OFFICIAL MONTH IN REVIEW

March 16.—PRESIDENT Magsaysay took off from Nichols Air Base at 1:30 p.m. today on his C-47 Mount Pinatubo to keep a crowded speaking schedule in Cebu City.

With him were Reps. Ramon Durano, Pedro Lopez, Manuel Zosa, Maximino Noel and Nicolas Escario of Cebu; Rep. William Chiongbian of Misamis Oriental; former Senator Tomas Cabili; Secretary of Education Gregorio Hernandez, Jr., Brig. Gen. Benito N. Ebuena, Air Force chief; and Lt. Leopoldo Regis, junior presidential aide.

The President took with him ₱150 worth of serum for Cornelio Faigao, president of the Cebu Press Club, who is now in the hospital for acute liver ailment. President Magsaysay received an urgent request for the serum two hours before he left Nichols.

Mayor Sergio Osmeña, Jr., and Gov. Jose Briones led city and provincial officials and a huge crowd who welcomed the President and his party at Lahug airport upon arrival at 3:45 p.m., or two hours and 15 minutes later.

Speaking extemporaneously from an improvised platform at the airport, President Magsaysay promised government aid to Cebu for the solution of problems which Osmeña mentioned in his welcome remarks.

From the airport, the President proceeded to the home of former President Sergio Osmeña, Sr., and paid his respects to the "grand old man of Cebu".

THEN he tackled his speaking engagement. He spoke at the commencement exercises of the University of the Visayas, the Southwestern Colleges, and the University of San Carlos.

President Magsaysay strongly condemned neutralism and ultra-nationalism in speeches he delivered at the commencement exercises of two universities and a college in Cebu this evening.

He was the commencement speaker of the University of the Visayas at 4 p.m., the Southwestern Colleges at 6 p.m., and the University of San Carlos at 7:30 p.m.

At the University of the Visayas, the President was conferred an honorary doctorate of laws. UV President and Mrs. Vicente Gullas placed the cap and gown on the Chief Executive.

The President's statements bearing on neutralism and ultra-nationalism were apparently aimed at the campaign line of Sen. Claro M. Recto, who is opposing him for the presidency in the election this November.

"Neutralism is un-Filipino," President Magsaysay told graduating students of the Southwestern College. "To attempt to foist it upon our people is to do them a grave disservice. The country has no need of fence-sitters in the struggle to preserve our way of life. Either we continually love and live this way of life, or communism stretching across the earth and threatening us here and now, will choke it from the body of our nation."

At the University of San Carlos, the President declared, "You do not have to be anti-American or anti-foreign in order to be resoundingly pro-Filipino. You are the battlefield on which future wars will be won or lost—you cannot remain neutral—you will have to take a stand."

He recalled to the graduates of the Southwestern Colleges that "we are a people with a history of courage" in which "there is no place for the fear of freedom, the fear to be on the side of freedom, the fear to be against slavery, the fear to strike a light for liberty amid the encircling gloom that is communism."

“Communism is anti-Filipino,” President Magsaysay said. “When communist sympathizers in the Philippines say that their movement is indigenous and not under the influence or control of any alien power, it is merely to coat with the veneer of a so-called Filipinism the dagger that they have aimed at the very heart of the Filipino way of life.

“We cannot for one moment afford to put in jeopardy the freedom of this way of life. Between it and communism there can be no peace, no grey neutralizing co-existence, no gray neutralism. There can only be conflict—total and without reconciliation.”

The President pointed out that the Philippines remains free in a world locked in a struggle between democracy and communism. “In spite of considerable rant and ill humor, usually around election time,” he said, “we are a free people.”

It is the people’s privilege to grumble, he said, “and no doubt we have things to grumble about, but we are better off than many other national groups than it is possible to name.”

It is also the people’s right to demand a change, the President continued, “and when enough of us want it, to get it. No concentration camp or firing squad awaits us if we happen to be of the minority.”

But the President warned in his Southwestern College speech that “we must not allow insidious proposals of economic panaceas to alienate us from our traditional allies in the free world. Let us not delude ourselves that credit arrangement with the enemies of our way of life will solve the, economic problems which afflict our land.”

“We must recognize that no pie-in-the-sky’ formula will cure all our ills; and that we face a continuing demand for calm thinking, sound reason, impassionate and undramatic hard work.”

At the University of the Visayas, President Magsaysay devoted his commencement address to the efforts of his administration to improve the educational structure of the country.

He said his administration had been seeking to re-order the educational structure “so that it may become a more effective instrument for jacking up our capacity to the rising level of our needs.”

The President pointed out that while much of the country’s wealth has remained idle, there are not enough men and women being trained to develop them owing to the fact that “our educational offerings have been too circumscribed.”

As a result, he pointed out, graduates of high schools or colleges find little opportunities for them owing either to lack of preparation or the lack of room in crowded professions.

He asserted, “We must find a way to divert effectively the vast energy latent in our youth, to the channels of our economic and social redemption. The Board of National Education, which the administration has organized, is making satisfactory progress in this direction.”

The President ate his dinner at the home of Mayor Osmeña. At 9 p.m. he was the guest of the Patria Society and then an hour later, spoke before local veterans and the local Chinese chamber of commerce.

But the people of the Philippines clung stubbornly to the hope that the President was still alive this evening, even as hope faded in the wake of reports that the Chief Executive was killed in a plane crash in Cebu this morning.

With 25 others, including a Cabinet official and the commanding general of the Air Force, the President was believed killed when his plane, the Mt. Pinatubo, crashed into a mountainside in Asturias, Cebu, early this morning.

The plane took off at 1:15 in the morning darkness from the Lahug airport, Cebu City. Five minutes later, it sent back a message on weather conditions—the last it managed to send out before the crash.

It was an accident which kept an entire nation on edge all day as it awaited minute-by-minute reports on the fate of the presidential plane and its passengers. Last night, as hope faded, the nation prepared to grieve the passing of the Asian leader.

The only survivor in the fatal crash, the worst in the history of local aviation and the first air disaster anywhere in the world in which a chief of state was the victim, was Nestor Mata, staff member of the Philippines Herald. Mata was with the presidential party. The other newspapermen with the group were left behind in Cebu City.

News of the disaster sparked the biggest air-land-sea search concentrated on a few islands in Philippine history.

The Air Force, Military Area commands, Navy ships, the U.S. Navy, the U.S. 13th Air Force, and amateur flyers were all alerted to join the search.

At 6:30 p.m. the plane wreckage was sighted to the boundary of Cebu City and Asturias. Shortly afterwards Defense Undersecretary Jose Crisol suspended the air search. Malacañang was immediately notified about the location of the wreckage and the failure of search teams to see a single survivor except Mata.

The first official to report discovery of the wreckage was Marcelino Nuya, barrio lieutenant of Asturias.

Mata, the lone survivor, was rushed to the hospital badly burned and unconscious, according to Brig. Gen. Manuel Cabal, PC chief.

Evacuation of the bodies proved to be extremely difficult in view of the fact that one of the ravines is 3,000 feet deep and the area is mountainous and thickly forested.

Search teams were having a difficult time looking for possible survivors in view of the rough and hilly terrain.

Chances that there would be any survivors were described as “nil.”

Three planes were hovering over Tapyawan until darkness suspended operations. Undersecretary Crisol, with a party of newsmen, scoured the area on foot and by motor car looking for the bodies of the victims.

Some 200 troops of the Armed Forces, plus about 200 civilians, were thrown into the great task of locating the bodies or survivors of the crash.

President Magsaysay took off from Lahug airport in Cebu in the Mount Pinatubo at 1:15 a.m. Two minutes later, at 1:17 a.m., as the C-47 became airborne, the pilot radioed Nichols Air Base that he had taken off for Manila and asked that a message be relayed to Malacañang that the presidential car and two other cars be sent to the NAB Base Operations building.

The message was received at the Palace by Lt. Navarette, one of the presidential aides. He sent the three cars to Nichols Air Base at 2:30 a.m. the time the Mount Pinatubo was expected to land at the airport.

The pilot's message at 1:19 a.m. was the last contact Nichols had with the presidential plane.

The other C-47 stayed at Cebu to wait for the newsmen and other members of the party who decided to stay overnight in the city.

By 2:30 a.m., the Mount Pinatubo had not reported to the control tower of the Manila International Airport.

The tower alerted the Air Force and the Civil Aeronautics Administration that the Mount Pinatubo was overdue.

The First Lady and her children began keeping up vigil for any further word on the President.

The PAF and the CAA, meanwhile, started a radio check with radio-equipped airports and alerted Clark Airbase and the headquarter of US naval forces in the Philippines at Sangley Point.

Cabinet men and Congress leaders rushed to Malacañang upon being informed that the President's plane was missing.

Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao ordered the Armed Forces to be on alert at 7 a.m. and directed all area commanders to start a ground search for the presidential plane.

At 9:15 a.m., the Malacañang press office issued Bulletin No. 1. It read:

"President Magsaysay took off from Cebu City in his plane Mt. Pinatubo at 1:15 a.m. this morning (Sunday, March 17). The plane is overdue in Manila.

"The last radio contact with the plane was upon its take off from Cebu City. It has not been heard from since.

"Contact with Cebu City established that the plane did not return there.

"Search parties from the Air Force, Civil Aeronautics Administration, U.S. Air Force, and U.S. Navy have gone out over the route between Cebu City and Manila.

"Normal flying time between the two points is one and a half hours."

All reports on the progress of the search were relayed direct to the aides' office in Malacañang.

Relatives of the other passengers of the Mount Pinatubo also came to wait for the latest word on the fate of the plane.

Among others who were at her side were Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sen. Jose P. Laurel, Sr., Sen. Emmanuel Pelaez, Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, and Commerce Secretary Oscar Ledesma.

Shortly before 12 noon, reports were received from the 2nd and 3rd military areas, which cover Southern Luzon and the Visayas, respectively, that ground searchers were negative.

Tracers were sent to Poro Point, La Union, and Iba, Zambales, in the hope that the President might have decided to land there.

But aides pointed out that the pilot would have so informed Nichols Air Base if the President had instructed him to land somewhere else.

LEADERS of Congress and members of the Cabinet held an informal meeting at Malacañang this evening and decided to create a joint executive-legislative committee that will fly to Cebu City first thing tomorrow to assist in the situation.

As of the time of the meeting no definite word had been received on the President's fate and, on the basis of reports from the accident scene, hope was not abandoned that he may have survived. In fact, while the meeting was going on, Cebu Mayor Osmeña, Jr., got through on the telephone to Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao and said the possibility of other survivors besides Nestor Mata, newspaperman of the Philippines Herald who has been established to have survived, should not be discounted.

The meeting at Malacañang was also advised that Vice-President Carlos P. Garcia was scheduled to depart from Sydney, Australia, at 2 a.m. tomorrow on board a chartered Qantas Airways plane and that he would arrive in Manila at 4 p.m. the same day.

The meeting decided to advise Vice-President Garcia of the creation of the joint executive-legislative committee that will supervise the situation in Cebu City and asked for his instructions.

The joint committee is composed of Secretaries Eulogio Balao, chairman, Florencio Moreno, Oscar Ledesma, and Paulino Garcia; Senators Emmanuel Pelaez and Francisco Rodrigo for the Senate and Speaker Protempore Daniel Z. Romualdez and Rep. Cornelio Villareal for the House of Representatives. It will leave Manila at 6:30 a.m.

The Malacañang meeting which began at 7:15 p.m. and ended at 8:45 p.m. was attended by Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez; Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr.; Sens. Cipriano Primicias, Pelaez, Rodrigo, and Domocao Alonto; Reps. Romualdez, Arturo M. Tolentino, Tobias Former; and Secretaries Pedro Tuason, Moreno, Balao, Ledesma, Garcia, and Eleuterio Adevosio; Commissioners Dominador Aytona and Amparo Villamor; and Undersecretaries Raul S. Manglapus of Foreign Affairs, Martin Aguilar of Education, and Rafael Contreras of Public Works and Communications.

1. President Magsaysay
2. Education Secretary Gregorio Hernandez, Jr.
3. Rep. Pedro Lopez of Cebu
4. Brig. Gen. Benito Ebuena, PAF chief
5. Ex-Senator Tomas Cabili
6. Lt. Leopoldo Regis, junior presidential aide
7. Jesus Paredes, Jr.
8. Nestor Mata, Philippines Herald (lone survivor)
9. Pablo Bautista, Liwayway Publications
10. Maj. Ramon Camus, appointments secretary
11. Paterno Magsaysay

12. Patricio Osmeña, Malacañang assistant protocol officer
13. Maj. Felipe Nunag, chief of security
14. Antonio Tiangco, security
15. Eduardo Reyes, security
16. Jose Sarcilla, valet
17. Celestino Teves, valet
18. Felix Manuel, Malacañang chief photographer
19. M/Sgt. Regino Manuel, DND movie cameraman
20. Cesar Rama
21. Jesus Rama
22. Maj. Florencio Pobre, pilot
23. Lt. Col. Alfred M. Bustamante
24. Capt. Manuel Navea, co-pilot
25. T/Sgt. Alfonso Ibe, chief of crew
26. Sgt. Isidro Fernandez, assistant chief
27. Staff Sgt. Raymundo Ruiz, radio operator

March 18.—THE PHILIPPINES has a new President.

At 5:56 o'clock this afternoon, some 41 hours after the plane bearing President Ramon Magsaysay crashed against a Cebu mountainside, Carlos P. (Polestico) Garcia became the fourth chief executive this Republic has had in its 11 years of existence.

Before Chief Justice Ricardo Paras of the Supreme Court, under the glaring lights of the chandeliers of Malacañang, Council of State room, the one-time school teacher from Bohol haltingly pronounced the words that made him President of the Philippines:

"I, Carlos P. Garcia, of Talibon, province of Bohol, having succeeded to the Presidency of the Philippines by virtue of the provisions of Article VII, section 8 of the Constitution, do solemnly swear that I will faithfully and conscientiously fulfill my duties as President of the Philippines, preserve and defend its Constitution, execute its laws, do justice to every man, and consecrate myself to the service of the Nation. So help me, God."

President Garcia took the oath of succession to the Presidency five minutes after he had convened members of President Magsaysay's Cabinet and officially notified them of the late President's demise.

"I have the honor," President Garcia told the Cabinet, "to inform, you that the President is dead; that there is indubitable proof of evidence that; his body or at least portions of it had been recovered and identified."

Immediately after he was sworn in, the new President appealed to the Filipino people for “sobriety, calmness, and dedication in the fulfillment of our common duty to God and Country, for the great ideals for which President Magsaysay lived and died.”

He also assured the nation that he would carry on the “great political problem” for which “President Magsaysay and the Nacionalista Party had given their all and their best.”

The new president then received pledges of support from leaders of Congress whom he had invited to the first Cabinet meeting of his administration.

The meeting which followed President Garcia’s oath-taking was devoted almost exclusively to the discussion of arrangements for the funeral of President Magsaysay.

As the meeting started, however, Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason. submitted to President Garcia “the resignation of all the members of the Cabinet collectively and individually.”

President Garcia responded by saying that he appreciated the gesture of the Cabinet which provided him with an opportunity to organize his own government if he so desired.

But, he said, he would defer action on their resignations for the time being and asked the Cabinet to carry on as usual. He said he would advise them later of his action on their resignations.

The Cabinet meeting saw the new President issue three proclamations and an administrative order. These were:

- (1) Proclamation No. 395, declaring Friday, March 22, as a special public holiday throughout the Philippines;
- (2) Proclamation No. 396, setting aside Friday, March 22, as the day of the funeral service of President Magsaysay and enjoining the nation to pay their tribute of “love, reverence, and respect” to the departed leader’s memory;
- (3) Proclamation No. 397, declaring a period of national mourning on the death of Ramon Magsaysay; and
- (4) Administrative Order No. 235, creating a committee to take charge of the funeral arrangements and burial of the late President Ramon. Magsaysay.

Finally, the Cabinet meeting under President Garcia’s direction resolved to extend its “sincerest and most heartfelt” sympathies to Mrs. Luz Banzon-Magsaysay; Teresita, Milagros, and Ramon, Jr., Magsaysay; Mr. and Mrs. Exequiel Magsaysay; and other relatives of the President.

“I AM GRIEVED,” was all that Vice-President Carlos P. Garcia, visibly shaken and misty-eyed, could utter as he stepped down the ramp of a Qantas Empire Airways plane that brought his party home from Sydney, Australia.

The sleek silvery Qantas super-G constellation, aptly called Southern Horizon, touched down at the domestic terminal of the Manila International Airport at exactly 3:04 p.m. on a chartered flight from Australia by way of Darwin.

It carried Vice-President Garcia and a party of 11 others who attended the recent conference of the council of ministers of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization in Canberra.

A jostling, milling crowd of Senate and House leaders, Cabinet members the diplomatic corps, businessmen, and close relatives and friends elbowed their way through a tight police cordon to catch a glimpse of the man who returned to become President of the Philippines.

Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., and department secretaries headed local officialdom while the Apostolic Nuncio, Msgr. Egidio Vagnozzi, led the diplomatic corps welcoming the new Chief Executive.

While the surging crowd of officials, relatives, and friends milled around him, Vice-President Garcia announced while being led to his car that he would call the Cabinet to an emergency meeting shortly after visiting Mrs. Luz Banzon-Magsaysay.

Senate President Rodriguez, Press Secretary J. V. Cruz, Foreign Affairs Undersecretary Raul S. Manlapus Sen. Pacita Madrigal-Gonzales, Mrs. Garcia and her daughter, Linda, Rep. Miguel Cuenco of Cebu were privileged to get inside the Qantas plane, for about five minutes before Vice-President Garcia emerged.

At 3:17 p.m., the Vice-President started to come out of the plane. Noticeably stunned, he waved twice to the welcoming crowd.

He gave his wife and daughter Linda an affectionate big hug and found time to chat with them briefly despite the onrushing crowd that could not be controlled by police, security officers, and Malacañang guards.

Protected by aides and security officers, the new President embraced Rodriguez while walking toward his car. He appeared to have shed a few drops of tears over the shoulders of the Senate President.

Shortly after, he was whisked away to Malacañang, where he said he would condole first with Mrs. Magsaysay and her family before presiding over an emergency meeting of the Cabinet.

The Qantas plane left Darwin at 8:20 a.m. where it picked up some members of the Philippine SEATO delegation. It was specially chartered by the Australian Government for the Philippine group.

The popular President's body was identified by his brother, Jesus, who flew to the scene in a helicopter.

A report from Defense Undersecretary Jose M. Crisol to Press Secretary J. V. Cruz at 12:35 p.m. indicated that the President's body was beyond recognition.

Crisol asked Secretary Cruz about the type of watch the President was wearing during the trip in order to establish the President's identity out of the mass of mangled bodies.

Cruz immediately informed Crisol that the President was wearing either of two watches, one Rolex self-winding time piece and the other, a Vacheron Constantin.

An assistant in the presidential office said the bodies of President Magsaysay and three of his close associates were found in the presidential compartment behind the crew's quarters.

The rescue team was also able to recover the bodies of five of the victims. They were identified as:

Brig. Gen. Benito Ebuena

Lt. Leopoldo Regis, presidential aide

Maj. Florencio Pobre, pilot

Maj. Felipe Nunag, chief security officer

The other bodies were those of Rep. Pedro Lopez of Cebu, Secretary of Education Gregorio Hernandez, Jr., and former Senator Tomas Cabili. Crisol reported the remains were being flown in helicopters to Cebu.

March 19.—PRESIDENT Carlos P. Garcia buckled down to work today and in lightning action, swore in Raul S. Manglapus as acting secretary of foreign affairs, granted a reprieve to a doomed convict, and received the diplomatic corps and Congress members.

In inducting Foreign Affairs Undersecretary Raul S. Manglapus as acting secretary, President Garcia said the Philippines will continue to identify herself with the free nations of the world.

He swore Manglapus in the presence of members of the diplomatic corps who called to offer their greetings and express their condolences and those of their respective heads of state, for the sudden death of President Magsaysay.

The President told the corps that the policy and stand taken by the Department of Foreign Affairs when he was the secretary would be continued under the present set-up.

AFTER receiving the members of the diplomatic corps and inducting Secretary Manglapus, President Garcia proceeded to the Executive Office, where he received a few callers and worked on some papers.

In a conference with Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon and Malacañang Legal Adviser Judge Salvador Esguerra, the President: (1) sent a directive to all provincial governors and city mayors instructing them to attend the funeral services for the late President Magsaysay on March 22; and (2) granted another 30-day reprieve to death convict Victor de Vega.

The late President Magsaysay had previously stayed the execution of Vega twice. The reprieve granted by President Garcia was the third. The President said that because he had just assumed office he wanted to familiarize himself with the facts of the case.

Among the callers of the President were Reps. Lorenzo Teves and Lamberto Macias of Negros Oriental and Constancio Castaneda of Tarlac, Auditor General Pedro Gimenez and members of his staff, ex-Senator Enrique Magalona, and Ambassador Manuel Adeva.

EARLIER in the morning, President Garcia went to the V. Luna General Hospital for a physical check-up. After the check-up, he and his family motored to the Lourdes church and heard mass. From the church, the President proceeded to Malacañang.

IN the afternoon, he motored with Mrs. Garcia to the Manila International Airport to meet the remains of his predecessor.

He followed the hearse bearing President Magsaysay's casket and bore up well under the scrutiny of the curious crowd which flocked about the slow-moving cortege on its way to Malacañang.

March 20.—THIS morning President Garcia visited the remains of the passengers who were with the late President Magsaysay in the ill-fated presidential plane Mt. Pinatubo and condoled with the widows and families.

The President first went to see the remains of Education Secretary Gregorio Hernandez, Jr., at the Department of Education building at Plaza Lawton. Arriving at the education building about 10:50 a.m., the President was met by ranking officials of the department, including Undersecretary Martin Aguilar and Public Schools Director Benigno Aldana. At the hall where the body of Secretary Hernandez lies in state, the President expressed his condolences to Mrs. Hernandez.

President Garcia was accompanied by Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, daughter Linda, Mrs. Ferdinand R. Marcos, and Maj. Teofilo Zosa, aide. They motored to the Department of Education building after hearing the mass at Malacañang said for the departed President Magsaysay and after condoling with the late President's family.

From Plaza Lawton the President proceeded to the Philippine Veterans Board building in Binondo, where the body of Lt. Col. Alfredo Bustamante, national commander of the Philippine Veteran Legion, lies in state. After talking and condoling with Mrs. Bustamante and her children, the President left for Funeraria Quiogue, where the remains of Sgt. Isidro Fernandez, Eduardo Reyes, and Celestino Teves were lying in state.

The President then motored to Cubao, Quezon City, where he viewed the remains of Jesus Paredes, Jr. The Chief Executive first went to the house of the deceased and condoled with the family and then proceeded to the Immaculate Concepcion church, where the remains had been taken to lie in state.

The next stop of the President was Camp Murphy, where he was met by National Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao, Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff, and other ranking officers. The Chief Executive entered the camp chapel and prayed before the caskets of the military casualties of the plane crash. Those lying in state in the Camp Murphy chapel were the remains of Brig. Gen. Ebuena, Maj. Felipe Nunag, Maj. Florencio Pobre, Maj. Ramon Camus, Lieut. Leopoldo Regis, Capt. Manuel Navea, Sgt. Raymundo Ruiz, and Sgt. Alfonso Ibe.

Motoring to the AFP Signal Corps in Diliman, Quezon City, from Camp Murphy, the President condoled with Mrs. Regino Manuel, who was sobbing before her husband's (M/Sgt. Regino Manuel) casket.

The last body visited by the President was that of former Senator Tomas Cabili. The body of the former senator was lying in state at his residence in Cordillera, Quezon City.

From the residence of the late former Senator Cabili, the President motored to his residence in Sierra Madre, Quezon City. He arrived home from his visits to the remains at about 1 p.m. The President was not able to see the remains of Felix Manuel because the body of the chief Malacañang photographer had already been taken to Sariaya, Quezon.

IN the afternoon the President returned to Malacañang and attended the necrological services for the late President Magsaysay under the auspices of the Armed Forces and the War Veterans of the Philippines, Incorporated.

President Garcia also attended the necrological services for Pablo Bautista of the Liwayway at the National Press Club building at 8 o'clock in the evening.

THE necrological service in honor of President Magsaysay was held at the ceremonial hall at Malacañang Palace this afternoon under the joint auspices of the AFP and War Veterans of the Philippines. The services were attended by Filipino and American military officials, as well as military attaches of foreign, embassies and legations in Manila.

The services started at 4 p.m. with the Constabulary band playing, In Memoriam. Other musical numbers were Addio by Tosti sung by Col. Jose Barredo, national director of the War Veterans of the Philippines, and Ave Maria sung by Gloria Dizon of the UST Conservatory of Music.

Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff, pledged that the Armed Forces would carry on the policies and “noble ideals” of President Magsaysay which had made the Armed Forces an effective instrument in bringing peace and security to the Filipino people.

The AFP Chief of Staff started his oration by asking all members of the Armed Forces, who came in duck uniforms, to stand. The oration was directly addressed as a final salute to their departed Commander-in-Chief.

“As we render you our final salute, we pledge every bone and sinew of the men and women in uniform to help fulfill your one consuming desire—peace and prosperity for the nation.” Gen. Arellano said. “We in the Armed Forces mourn because you were truly a great leader and a father to all of us.”

Maj. Gen. Basilio Valdez, national commander of the Veterans Association, who delivered the first oration, offered the ‘heartfelt condolence of all Philippine veterans to the President’s family. “May the love, the loyalty, and the admiration of all these who knew him well, serve to comfort you in your bereavement for all time to come,” Valdez said.

The response was rendered by Mrs. Elisa Banzon-Cabal, sister of Mrs. Magsaysay, on behalf of the bereaved family.

Among those present at the ceremonies were President Garcia; Gen. Lawrence Kuter, commander of the U.S. Far East Air Force; Maj. Gen. Joseph Harper, JUSMAG chief; Rear Adm. Wendell Switzer, commander of the U. S. naval forces in the Philippines; and Maj. Gen. John B. Ackermann, commander of the U.S. 13th Air Force. Mrs. Magsaysay did not attend the ceremonies which lasted until 5 p.m.

PRESIDENT Garcia today said that he will fulfill an engagement made by the late President Magsaysay to be the guest of Vice-Admiral Wallace Beakley, commander, U. S. Seventh Fleet, on the occasion of the landing exercises of “Operations Beacon Hill” on March 25 in Dinglasan Bay, Quezon.

The invitation was accepted by the late President Magsaysay several days before the fatal crash of his plane. President Garcia said he was going to fulfill the engagement.

March 21.—FROM his Sierra Madre home in Quezon City, President Garcia this morning motored to his executive office in Malacañang, arriving at 10:30 a.m.

His first caller was former President Sergio Osmeña, who had arrived yesterday from Cebu to view the bier of the late President Magsaysay and join the funeral.

The aging Cebu statesman, who had developed a strong friendship with the late President, asked President Garcia if he could participate in the necrological services to deliver a eulogy for the late President. President Garcia readily granted the request.

Apprised that three persons were hurt yesterday during the stampede of the big crowd which came to visit and pay final respects to the remains of the late President, President Garcia gave ₱50 each to the victims.

Col. M. D. Velasco, Malacañang financial assistant, personally delivered the money to Mrs. Agapita Tapangco, 80, widow, of 39-B Molave, Quezon City; Andrea Salom, 50, of Project 2, Quezon City; and Manolito Saguil, 29, of 752 Sanciango, Quezon City.

After receiving ex-President Osmeña, the President’ conferred with other callers, including Mayor Alfonso Tabora of Baguio City and Gov. Mariano Tajonera of Mindoro Occidental.

IN the afternoon, he and the First Lady, Mrs. Linda B. Garcia, attended the necrological services at the Malacañang ceremonial hall for the late President Magsaysay. The ceremonies were held under the auspices of the League of Provincial Governors and City Mayors, headed by Cebu City Mayor Sergio Osmeña, Jr., as chairman.

Towards evening, the President received special envoys of seven countries who will represent their nations at the funeral services tomorrow for the late President Magsaysay.

Those who paid their respects to President Garcia were:

- (1) Vietnam—His Excellency, Nguyen Van Tho, vice-president of Vietnam; His Excellency, Vu Van Mau, foreign secretary of Vietnam; and General Le Van Ty, chief of staff of the armed forces of Vietnam.
- (2) Japan—His Excellency, Hitoshi Ashida (former prime minister of Japan), ambassador extraordinary; Kunihiko Murono, secretary of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs; and Toshio Urabe, counselor, Ministry of Foreign Affairs;
- (3) Australia—His Excellency, Sir Allan Watt, ambassador of Australia to Japan;
- (4) United Kingdom—His Excellency, George Lisle Clutton, ambassador to the Philippines; William Burke Teeling, member of the British parliament;
- (5) Republic of Indonesia—His Excellency, Natzir Dt. Pamontjak, ambassador to the Philippines;
- (6) Kingdom of Thailand—His Excellency, Chitti Sucharitakul, ambassador to the Philippines;
- (7) Argentine Republic—His Excellency, Rogelio Tristany, minister to the Philippines.

The head of each delegation, in presenting his letter of credence to President Garcia, also conveyed his country's condolences on the death of President Magsaysay. In response, President Garcia thanked all the special envoys for their expressions of sympathy and their presence at the funeral services tomorrow.

Each group of envoys was presented separately to the President. Present were Acting Secretary of Foreign Affairs Raul Manglapus and Protocol Officer Jose Estrada.

March 22.—PRESIDENT Garcia got up at 5: 30 this morning and dressed up to hear the pontifical requiem mass for the late President Magsaysay held at the Independence Memorial Grandstand on the Luneta. The President, together with the First Lady and their daughter Linda, motored to the Luneta, arriving there at 6:20 a.m. They were accompanied by Maj. Teofilo Zosa, presidential aide.

AFTER the mass, the President and his family motored to the Manila Hotel, where they ate breakfast at the presidential suite. They had Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao for breakfast guest.

From the hotel, the President proceeded to the Session Hall of the House of Representatives to attend the necrological services for the late President Magsaysay, at which President Garcia was the principal funeral orator. Services over, the President joined the funeral procession to the Cementerio del Norte, where the late President Magsaysay was interred in the presidential tomb at exactly 12:45 p.m.

President Garcia and his family returned to their residence, where they ate lunch. After a brief rest, the President motored to Malacañang, where he received visitors at 4:30 p.m., at the study room.

At 5: 00 p.m. the President moved to the music room, where he held his first press conference, assisted by Press Secretary J. V. Cruz.

THIS afternoon the President received at Malacañang three foreign representatives sent here by their governments to attend the state funeral of the late President Magsaysay. The foreign representatives called upon the new Chief Executive to say goodbye prior to their departure from the country.

One of the representatives was Admiral Felix B. Stump, commander-in-chief of the U.S. Pacific command who had come here on behalf of U.S. President Dwight D. Eisenhower. He was accompanied to Malacañang by Minister Horace Smith, charge d'affaires of the U.S. Embassy in Manila; Gen. Lawrence Kuter, commander of the U.S. Far East Air Force; Vice-Admiral Wallace Beakley, commander of the U.S. Seventh Fleet; Rear Admiral Wendell Switzer, commander of the U.S. Naval Forces in the Philippines; Maj. Gen. John B. Ackermann, commander of the U.S. 13th Air Force; and Counselor William Walker, also of the local U.S. Embassy.

Another foreign representative who called on President Garcia this afternoon was General Le Van Ty, chief of staff of the armed forces of the Republic of Vietnam. He was accompanied by Minister Cao Thai Bao of the local Vietnamese Legation, Lt. Col. Le Lien, and Col. Jose Banzon of the AFP.

Shortly before 5 p.m., the President received Gov. Pedro Correia de Barros of Macao, who represented Portugal in the state funeral. He was accompanied to Malacañang by Consul Carlos Nunez of the local Portuguese consulate.

The President had his first formal press conference as chief executive at 5 p.m.

"After the press conference, the President received a delegation from Leyte headed by Gov. Bernardo Torres. In the group were Mayors Aquilino Cantiga of Albueria, Agustin Fulvadora of Indang, and Emiliano Melgaso of Longos.

PRESIDENT Garcia said this evening he would soon go out to the rural areas of the country "to try to be worthy of the confidence of the people."

In his first press conference at Malacañang, the new Chief Executive reiterated his pledge of carrying on the political program of the Magsaysay administration, and indicated that he would seek a reexamination of its economic policies.

Touching on a number of subjects, President Garcia emphasized his concern for the economic problems of the country and said he would have the National Economic Council transformed from its present advisory status to a body vested with strong executive powers.

"I appeal to the press for cooperation," President Garcia said in his remarks opening the press conference.

He explained he was still feeling his way in his new office and that it would take some time before he could acclimatize himself to the new environment.

Addressing the newsmen, several of whom were foreign correspondents, the Chief Executive said they were free to offer constructive criticisms because "I am not infallible."

Any suggestions pointing out his mistakes or offering alternative solutions to pending problems would be most welcome, the Chief Executive said.

He spoke for a good 15 minutes, expounding on his program of administration which, he said, he had charted along the course set by his predecessor.

President Garcia considered it his "bounden duty" to carry on the political program of the late President Magsaysay, adding he would prosecute it with relentless vigor as his departed predecessor had done.

He cited the crusade against graft and corruption in the government, land reforms, unemployment, rural development, irrigation, and other related economic problems which he promised to tackle to find their solutions.

"The fight will be relentless and continuous," the President pledged.

But the country's economic policies, he said, deserved to be studied more carefully, and he planned to do this with the assistance of competent technical men.

He explained that when President Magsaysay died, he was still studying the five-year economic program recommended by the NEC, and he proposed to subject this program to further scrutiny.

"I may have to revise or reverse some of the recommendations contained in the five-year plan," President Garcia said.

He was in favor of concentrating powers pertaining to economic policies in the hands of an "economic czar," indicating that the economic body he had in mind to supplant the NEC would be a powerful, executive agency.

Elaborating on this, the President said he would consult soon with Congress leaders to formulate the procedure by legislative action as to how he would have the economic body he had proposed, organized as an effective planning and implementing agency in the economic field.

The new President declined to discuss questions touching on politics, adding he would lay off the subject in deference to the late President, who had just been laid to rest.

After endorsing his predecessor's land reform and rural development program, President Garcia observed how the late Chief Executive had been held in high esteem and veneration by the people who, he said, had been "orphaned" by President Magsaysay's death.

He said he would attempt to fill the void left by the late President by going out to the barrios soon so that he could show he was worthy of the people's confidence.

Asked if he would go out to the rural areas as frequently as President Magsaysay did and by airplane, President Garcia said he would do the best he could but would adopt "tighter security."

On the question of foreign policy, President Garcia said the Philippines "will stand side by side with the United States," the US being the leader of the free world.

He manifested his strong belief in aligning the country with the democracies who seek world peace, "which is the sine quo non of world security and the full enjoyment of freedom."

President Garcia also touched on the following:

(1) He would cross party lines in the appointment of government officials, "depending on the nature of their jobs."

He said his policy would be to find capable men wherever they may be found to assure efficiency in the government service.

(2) He would maintain the status quo among appointees of President Magsaysay, and announced he was retaining Press Secretary J. V. Cruz.

(3) He indicated he might make some changes in the Cabinet, but this would come later. "The Cabinet may be retouched now and then," he said.

(4.) He has no plans of making changes or shifts in the present assignments of Philippine diplomatic representatives abroad.

(5) He has definitely no intention of going to the United States, at least during the next several months. He said, he will be merely filling the unexpired term of his predecessor.

(6) He is not in favor of trade with Red China, saying that the disadvantages outweigh the advantages. He would oppose admission of Red China to the United Nations.

(7) He would continue the policy of President Magsaysay of opening Malacañang to the people.

As a parting statement, the President said he would appreciate it being published in the papers that he was thankful to all the countries that sent messages condoling with the people on the death of President Magsaysay and wishing him success as the new Chief Executive.

“I will strive to prove worthy of the confidence of friends in the free world,” he said.

March 23.—THIS morning President Garcia received several members of the League of Provincial Governors and City Mayors who pledged their support and cooperation to his administration.

Headed by Rizal Gov. Isidro Rodriguez, vice-chairman of the league, the provincial governors and city mayors told the President that they would support his administration as they supported the administration of the late President Magsaysay.

The President thanked the provincial governors and city mayors for their pledge and said that he’ needed such support and cooperation.

The President announced that he would give a luncheon for the provincial governors and city mayors on Tuesday, March 26, at the Manila Hotel. Local problems of the provincial and city executives and the local autonomy bill would be discussed at a conference immediately following the luncheon.

The first visitors of the President were officials from Vietnam headed by Vice-President Nguyen Van Tho. The Vietnamese officials, who attended the funeral of the late President Magsaysay, paid a courtesy call on the President. During the call, Vice-President Nguyen Van Tho informed the President that Vietnam has allocated for export to the Philippines 50,000 tons of rice.

The President thanked the Vietnamese Vice-President for the offer and said that he would discuss the matter with the proper authorities. The Vietnamese officials who called on the President were Vice-President Tho, Foreign Minister Vo Van Mau, Army Chief of Staff Lieut. Gen. Le Van Ty, and Minister to the Philippines Cao Thai Bao.

A pledge of support to the new Administration was also made to President Garcia by Albay Gov. Nicanor Maronilla-Seva, Rep. Pio Duran, and the members of the Albay League of Mayors. Goy. Seva, speaking for the delegation, said: “As we supported the administration of the late President Magsaysay, so shall we support your administration.”

Early callers of the President included Brig. Gen. Alfredo Santos, head of the SEATO Military Planning Group in Bangkok, Thailand, and Gregorio G. Abad, special assistant to the Philippine Reparations Mission in Tokyo, Japan. Gen. Santos, who attended the funeral of the late President Magsaysay, paid his respects to the President.

Abad submitted a confidential report from Caesar Lanuza, reparations mission chief, to the President. Abad also discussed with the President the activities and problems of the mission, the procurement of reparations goods, and the reparations bill pending in Congress.

Gov. Jose G. Espino of Nueva Vizcaya submitted a provincial board resolution of support to President Garcia. The resolution, adopted in Bayombong, Nueva Vizcaya, March 20, carried the pledge of support of the provincial board

President Garcia today also turned down the resignations of Jose C. Nable and Vicente Logarta as legislative secretary and legislative liaison to the President, respectively.

President Garcia told Nable and Logarta to “carry on” with the work they had been doing for the late President Magsaysay.

President Garcia expressed deep gratitude to various official delegations which called on him at Malacañang this morning to convey pledges of support and cooperation to his administration following the death of his predecessor, President Ramon Magsaysay.

The President this morning received members of the AFP general staff, commanders of major services and their staffs, and area commanders and their staffs. With Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano acting as spokesman, the large delegation of ranking officers of the Armed Forces pledged their full support and loyalty to the new Administration.

The Chief Executive expressed gratitude for the spirit of cooperation shown by the Armed Forces officers. He said he was happy to accept the pledge from the branch of the government which constitutes the mainstay in the maintenance of peace and order in the country.

Accompanied by Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao and Defense Undersecretary Jose Crisol, the Armed Forces delegation included Lieut. Gen. Arellano, AFP chief of staff; Commodore Jose M. Francisco, Navy chief; Col. Pedro Molina, acting Air Force chief; Brig. Gen. Manuel Cabal; PC chief; Brig. Gen. Leoncio Tan, 1st MA commander; Col. Juan Relosa, 2nd MA commander; Brig. Gen. Cornelio Bondad, 3rd MA commander; and Col. Climaco Pintoy, 4th MA commander.

Earlier this morning, the President received a delegation from the Philippine Association of School Superintendents headed by its president, Tomas de Castro, Bulacan division superintendent. Accompanied by Public Schools Director Benigno Aldana, Assistant Director Vitaliano Bernardino, and other bureau officials, the delegation invited the President to be guest at their annual convention in Baguio City sometime in May, saying that President Magsaysay had previously accepted their invitation.

President Garcia said that he would honor all commitments of the late President Magsaysay. He assured the group that he would be available as guest for the occasion.

Other delegations this morning were those from Negros Oriental headed by Rep. Lamberto Macias; from Capiz, headed by Gov. Jose Dinglasan; and from Pangasinan, headed by Gov. Conrado Estrella.

IN the afternoon President and Mrs. Garcia motored to the U.S.T. chapel, where the remains of the late Education Secretary Gregorio Hernandez, Jr., lay in state. From there, they joined the long funeral procession to the Catholic cemetery in San Bartolome, Malabon, iRizal.

After condoling with the widow and the parents and children of the late education secretary, the President returned to Manila about 6 p.m.

MALACAÑANG is still open to the public—to the masses who really own it.

This was emphasized by President Garcia today when he instructed his senior presidential aide, Lt Col. Emilio Borromeo, that the gates of Malacañang should never be closed to the people who would like to enter and visit the presidential residence.

It will be recalled that the late President Magsaysay, immediately upon his assumption of office in 1953, directed that the gates of Malacañang should always be opened to the common people, because, he said, Malacañang belonged to the people.

March 24.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning continued condoling with the families of airplane crash victims who had perished with former President Magsaysay aboard the plane Mt. Pinatubo last Sunday.

Accompanied by the First Lady, the Chief Executive motored to the residence of Mrs. Tomasa Lopez, widow of the late Rep. Pedro Lopez, where he spent 30 minutes comforting the bereaved family.

At 9 a.m. the Chief Executive heard mass at the Lourdes church in La Loma, Quezon City.

Earlier, the President received friends and well wishers who trooped to his Sierra Madre (Quezon City) residence.

After visiting the Lopez family, the President motored to a restaurant on Dewey Boulevard where he ate his luncheon. He was accompanied by Col. Jorge Delarmente and Capt. Agerico Palaypay, aides.

Motoring back to his Sierra Madre residence, the President went over letters from well-wishers, after which he took a brief rest prior to his departure for “Operation Beacon Hill” at Dingalan Bay, on the coast of Quezon province.

He flew to Sangley Point at 3 p.m. and then boarded another plane for Laur, Nueva Ecija. From there, he flew by helicopter to the USS Saint Paul, from whose deck he would view “Operations Beacon Hill” today.

President Garcia’s trip to Laur was in fulfillment of a promise the late President Magsaysay made March 12 to Vice-Admiral Wallace M. Beakley, US 7th fleet commander.

Beakley had invited President Magsaysay to observe 20,000 US Marines debark in battle gear from 92 ships, March 12, in an operation’ designed to show US capability of fulfilling its commitments under the Philippine-United States mutual defense pact.

President Magsaysay accepted the invitation but could not keep the date: death got him first, but his successor volunteered to make good the promise. With Press Secretary J. V. Cruz, 10 newsmen, and a couple of aides, President Garcia left for Laur this afternoon, from where he boarded a helicopter which took him on the deck of the USS Saint Paul, flagship of Vice-Admiral Beakley.

It was gathered from the Malacañang press .office that the President would stay on board the Saint Paul until after the operations were completed this afternoon. The operations will be concentrated on the Dingalan bay area and the coast of Quezon province.

PRESIDENT Garcia arrived aboard U.S. heavy cruiser Saint Paul at 4: 09 p.m. today by helicopter—the first copter he has ever boarded his life—to view “Operations Beacon Hill.”

The President, accompanied by U.S. Embassy Minister Horace Smith, was welcomed aboard the ship by Vice-Admiral Wallace Beakley, commander of the U.S. Seventh Fleet and overall commander of operations and other officers of the cruiser Saint Paul.

Earlier, President Garcia with other Philippine and U.S. Government officials had led several planes which flew from Manila to barrio Bagong Sikat, Gabaldon, Nueva Ecija, where U.S. marine engineers had lengthened and improved the seldom-used airfield for these operations.

Met by Nueva Ecija Gov. Amado Aleta, 1st MA Commanding General Leoncio S. Tan and his staff, and barrio residents of Bagong Sikat, the President said his coming to these operations was an earnest of his determination to carry on the policies of the late President Magsaysay. He said that Magsaysay had accepted the invitation to view these operations and he was now fulfilling the late President's commitment.

President Garcia told the rural folks he would carry on Magsaysay's other commitments, especially by pursuing vigorously the rural development program. He assured the barrio people they would continue to receive priority consideration from the government.

Accompanying President Garcia were Foreign Affairs Secretary Raul S. Manglapus, Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao, Press Secretary J. V. Cruz, Rep. Numeriano Babao, Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, Brig. Gen. Manuel Cabal and Commodore Jose Francisco of the navy. American top officials included Minister Smith and Embassy Counselor William Walker. Also on hand were Chinese Ambassador Chen Chih Mai and observers from nationalist China armed forces in Taipei, Formosa.

The visitors landed at Bagong Sikat from where they were airlifted aboard Saint Paul by helicopter shuttle.

Admiral Beakley briefed the visitors on exercises and said the troops to be landed tomorrow on Dingalan Beach will race towards Cabanatuan City to intercept enemy force which had landed at Lingayen, Pangasinan, and was racing towards Manila.

March 25.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning viewed "Operations Beacon Hill" from the USS Saint Paul and from the USS Estes, another heavy cruiser, and then landed on Dingalan Bay beach for a close-hand view of these amphibious operations.

Meeting people of Dingalan town, President Garcia reiterated that he was determined to carry on the policies of the late President Magsaysay with particular emphasis on rural development and improvement of the living standards of the masses.

Dingalan Mayor Tomas Angara tearfully told President Garcia that the late President Magsaysay had promised ₱25,000 for the construction of the municipal building of this newly created town. "Now, Magsaysay is gone," Angara said, "and you are our remaining hope."

President Garcia told Mayor Angara that Dingalan may expect its municipal building, re-emphasizing he would fulfill all the commitments and the program of the late President. He added that his presence at these "Operations Beacon Hill" was proof of this.

After viewing the initial landings from the Saint Paul, President Garcia expressed desire to visit the USS Estes flagship of Rear Admiral Harold O. Larsen, commander of the amphibious task force of the exercises. President Garcia boarded Admiral Beakley's launch and after ten minutes arrived aboard the Estes where he was welcomed by Admiral Larsen and Marine Maj. Gen. S. Jack, commander of the marine air-ground task force of the operations.

President Garcia was taken on a tour around the Estes and then returned to the launch to skirt the landing beaches for close-up view of the operations. But the President changed his mind upon nearing the beaches and decided to land. The personnel landing craft was summoned and he transferred to it in midwater and then was taken to the beaches.

Curious residents of Dingalan were on the beaches watching the landing, and President Garcia immediately walked up to them and greeted them. The residents were happy to see the new President, who reassured them that the late President-Magsaysay's program for the common people would be continued.

Among those who talked with the President was Councilor Pedro Udarde of Dingalan.

Later President Garcia, with Admiral Beakley, Secretaries Manglapus and Cruz, Rep. Numeriano Babao, and Gov. Amaclo Aleta motored a short distance to Felipe Buencamino's country home where the party stayed for lunch.

The President also was told by Capt. Jose Carandang of the Nueva Ecija detachment of the 1st Military Area that four Army lawyers have been assigned to join "Beacon Hill" headquarters to help assess any damages that maneuvers may cause among the population. Carandang said that these lawyers were detailed on request of the American authorities themselves who wish a speedy and fair disposition of damage claims that may result from the exercises.

PRESIDENT Garcia told a press conference this noon the "Beacon Hill" exercises had provided renewed proof of the ability of the U.S. armed forces to help defend the Philippines against aggression.

The President met with newsmen covering the exercises after he had lunch at the country home of Felipe Buencamino, Jr., at Dingalan, Quezon, off the beach where U.S. troops participating in the maneuvers had landed.

The President also reiterated there would be no change in the country's policy towards Red China.

He said the basis talks between the Philippines and the United States were merely recessed and that resumption of the talks could therefore be expected provided a mutually acceptable basis for reopening the negotiations could be reached. He emphasized, however, that such basis was possible only within the framework of the declared Philippine position.

President Garcia said he was impressed by the coordination, precision, and timing of the various U.S. armed forces units which took part in the amphibious maneuvers. He said these demonstrated U.S. defensive power.

He added that the exercises were reassuring to all Filipinos because they showed the full capability of U.S. armed forces to help defend the Philippines against attack under the terms of the mutual defense treaty between the two countries. This treaty, he added, was a most important item in the relations between the two countries.

Asked by newsmen if the bases talks would be resumed, President Garcia said he expected them to be after pointing out that they had merely been recessed and not called off.

President Garcia admitted that informal explorations were being made through normal Philippines-United States diplomatic channels to determine, whether any mutually acceptable basis could be found for the talks resumption. He stressed however that this basis must fall within the framework of the Philippine position. He also emphasized that the final decision on the part of the Philippines as to when, where, and how to resume the talks will be made by the Philippine panel which conducted the negotiations.

The President said regarding the policy in regard to Red China that, even as secretary of foreign affairs, he had been against the admission of that country to the United Nations and against any relaxation of the restrictions on Philippine trade with the Chinese mainland. This policy will remain, he said. He reiterated that he felt the disadvantages far outweighed whatever advantages might be gained from trading with the mainland.

Asked to comment on the nomination of Charles Bohlen to be the new U.S. ambassador to the Philippines, the President stated that he had readily extended Philippine acceptance of Mr. Bohlen. He pointed out that Mr. Bohlen was reputedly one of the most capable men in the United States Foreign Service.

President Garcia also expressed appreciation of the United States plan to turn over to the Philippine Government in improved condition the bridges and 10-mile road which U.S. armed forces engineers had built for "Operations Beacon Hill." Eleven bridges have been built along the road over the Sierra Madre between Dingalan Bay, Quezon, and Gabaldon, Nueva Ecija. U.S. marines engineers had improved and developed the road itself for the exercises.

The President said he had been told that, after the exercises, U.S. engineers would remain behind in the area to see to it that the road and bridges were turned over to the Philippine Government in the best condition possible.

THE President told the people of Gabaldon, Nueva Ecija, the first rural town he visited since assuming the presidency, that he had pledged to carry on the policies of President Magsaysay not only because his tenure was merely a continuation of the late President's administration but also because he firmly believed in those policies.

Speaking before the townspeople on an improvised platform about 3:30 p.m. today, the President said: "I believe as President Magsaysay did that the power of this country does not spring from the higher strata of our population but from the common people in the outlying areas. I hope to continue the good work President Magsaysay was doing to improve living conditions in outlying regions."

The President was landed by helicopter at the Bitulok airstrip at 3:15 p.m. from the USS Saint Paul, flagship of the U.S. Seventh Fleet, where he had viewed "Operations Beacon Hill staged on Dingalan Bay. Gov. Amado

Aleta of Nueva Ecija, member of the presidential party invited to watch the mammoth naval maneuvers, informed him that a large group of people were waiting for him in Gabaldon.

Accompanying the President to Gabaldon were Minister Horace Smith, charge d'affaires of the U.S. Embassy in Manila; Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao; Rep. Numeriano Babao of Batangas, chairman of the House committee on national defense; and Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff.

As he was considered a guest of the U.S. Government until he was safely landed back at Nichols Air Base on a U.S. navy plane following the maneuvers, the President was escorted along stretches of dusty roads to Gabaldon by a detachment of U.S. marines in full battle gear, part of the amphibious task force which had landed in Dingalan Bay earlier this morning in connection with the naval operations.

The President told the people of Gabaldon that he had just come from an operation which amply demonstrated the ability of America to help defend the Philippines in case of Communist aggression. He said that, from what he had seen of the performance of American might, the security of this country was assured.

"One of the things President Magsaysay worked for the hardest and which he left as a legacy to his people was to insure the security of this country." He said. "President Magsaysay had always been for cultivating friendly relations with the United States, and I am glad to have come here to see the fruition of this effort."

Secretary Balao, who spoke briefly before the President, urged the townspeople to support and cooperate with President Garcia in order to give him a chance to continue the work President Magsaysay had left unfinished. Gov. Aleta, who introduced the President at the gathering, urged him to run for the presidency, making him the first provincial executive to urge publicly President Garcia to run.

Welcoming the President in Gabaldon were delegations from Gabaldon and surrounding towns, headed by Gabaldon Mayor Emilia Morales and Guimba Mayor Virgilio Calica.

The presidential party took off at the Bitulok airstrip aboard a U.S. Navy TF twin-engined plane at 4:20 p.m. for Manila.

March 26.—PRESIDENT Garcia this noon reiterated before the Provincial Governors and City Mayors' League that the main objective of his administration was to carry on the policies and the political program of the late President Magsaysay.

The provincial and city executives were guests of the President at a luncheon conference in the Manila Hotel. The members of the league, through their chairman, Mayor Sergio Osmeña, Jr., of Cebu City, pledged their support and cooperation to the administration of President Garcia. Thanking the provincial governors and city mayors for their "generous support and kind cooperation," the President said: "I must continue with all the policies of the late President Magsaysay, because it would be a betrayal of his accomplishments and ideals if I do not continue to prosecute his program."

The President said that he needed the support of the league in order to carry out effectively the political program of the late President Magsaysay. "I know you would not deny me the support I need," he said.

The Chief Executive added: "You can come to me with the same freedom, frankness, and directness as you did with our late President. I am conscious of my limitations and I welcome any constructive criticism."

The President assured the provincial and city executives of his endorsement of the local autonomy bill in connection with his pledge to carry out the political program of the departed President Magsaysay. The Chief Executive expressed his support for the local autonomy bill after he was asked about his stand on the matter by members of the league.

Mayor Osmeña submitted a copy of the final draft of the local autonomy bill to the President saying that Sen. Decoroso Resales, chairman of the Senate committee on local governments had already gone over it. The Cebu City mayor told the President that most problems of provincial and city executives were brought about by the lack of local autonomy.

The President also assured that all provincial governors and city mayors would be given courtesy passes with the Philippine Air Lines and the Manila Railroad Company for use in their official trips to Manila and back to their respective provinces and cities. The passes will be good only for official trips.

During the luncheon conference, Mayor Osmeña committed himself and "the people of Cebu" to support President Garcia's re-election. The President thank Mayor Osmeña but said that he preferred to remain silent on political matters.

In a light vein Mayor Osmeña also said that all the provincial and city executives might join him in supporting the President in November if he fully endorsed and approved the local autonomy bill.

The President was applauded several times by the provincial governors and city mayors in the course of his extemporaneous remarks. He recalled that he was instrumental in the formulation of the Nacionalista Party platform in 1953. "Our late President implemented all the items in that platform, but I was mainly concerned with our foreign policy, hardly with our domestic problems. I now find myself in need of your support so that I can successfully continue to prosecute our late President's political program," the President said.

EARLIER, the President received provincial delegations which pledged their support to his administration. At the same time, resolutions pledging support to his administration were continuously being received at Malacañang.

The Chief Executive had breakfast at his residence in Sierra Madre, Quezon City, with political leaders of Cagayan, including ex-Rep. Domingo Siazon, ex-Rep. Conrado Singson, Fiscal Alfonso Dones, Col. Pedro Felix, and Remigio Butacan, a lawyer.

After the breakfast, the President received provincial delegations, also at his residence. The provincial delegations which expressed support for the Administration included Capiz mayors accompanied by Gov. Jose Dinglasan; Tarlac officials, headed by Rep. Constancio Castañeda and Gov. Arsenio Lugay; and town officials of Zamboanga del Norte, headed by Rep. Alberto Ubay.

FROM his residence, the President motored with Mrs. Garcia and daughter Linda to Congress, where they attended the necrological services for the late Rep. Pedro Lopez of Cebu, who died with President Magsaysay and 25 others in the plane crash in Mt. Manungal, Cebu.

The President arrived in Malacañang about 10 a.m. and received callers. The first callers were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Barry, who were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Eugenio Eusebio. Barry is vice-president of Lions International, while Eusebio is the district governor of the local Lions club.

Officers of the Philippine Medical Association were the next callers of the President. Headed by its incumbent president, Dr. Fernando Manalo, and former Health Secretary Juan Salcedo, the PMA officers informed the President about their rural health programs, including their indigents project. The President commended the PMA officers and members for bringing the facilities of modern health service to the grassroots, and encouraged them to expand their projects. The medics offered the services of their association to the Administration "in any way we can be of help."

The President accepted the invitation of the PMA officers to be the guest speaker at their annual convention on May 2 in Baguio City. The President will also present the Golden Heart award to Dr. Francisco Duque of Dagupan City, incoming president of the PMA, during the convention. The award to Dr. Duque had been approved by the late President Magsaysay.

Other PMA officers who called on the President were Dr. Pedro Dimayuga, vice-president, and Dr. Alberto Z. Romualdez, secretary-treasurer.

Members of the Philippine Law School class of 1923, of which President Garcia was the valedictorian, also called on the President and informed him that the Philippine Law School would confer on him the degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa, on April 5. The President graduated from the Philippine Law School as valedictorian in 1923, with Justice Conrado Sanchez of the Court of Appeals as the salutatorian. Justice Sanchez recalled that the President received a general average of 91 while he got 86.

The President, and Justice Sanchez posed for a picture for the second time since 1923 when they graduated from the PLS. Members of the PLS Alumni Association of 1923 who saw the President included University of the East President Francisco Dalupan, Judge Ceferino de los Santos, Elections Commissioner Sixto Brillantes, Judge Minerva Inocencio-Piguing, Judge Edilberto Barot, Judge Antonio Cañizares, and PNB Vice-President Conrado Sevilla. Ricardo Lacson, president of the Philippine Law School and the Lacson College, was also with the members of the alumni association. The association will tender a banquet in honor of the President on April 28.

Other callers of the President included Reps. Salvador Encinas of Sorsogon and Bartolome Cabangbang of Bohol, Govs. Juan Frivaldo of Sorsogon and Juan Pajo of Bohol, and Philippine Ambassador to Taipeh Narciso Ramos, who paid a courtesy call.

Among the resolutions pledging support to the Administration received by the President were those from the municipal council of President Roxas, Capiz; the Barrio Lieutenants League of President Roxas, Capiz; the municipal council of Talisay, Negros Occidental; and the barrio council of Bubog, Talisay, Negros Occidental.

President Garcia today signed Proclamation No. 399, proclaiming April 9, 1957, as Bataan Day and declaring it a special public holiday.

The President also signed Executive Order No. 244, fixing office hours during the summer season. The executive order reduces office hours in all government offices to five continuous hours from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. from April 1 to June 15. The provisions of the executive order does not apply to the offices in Baguio City whether national, provincial, or municipal.

The executive order also does not oblige the head of any department, bureau, or office to reduce the office hours in his department, bureau, or office. The office head is given discretion by the executive order to maintain full hours subject to the requirements of the service or reduce them provided the volume of work is not diminished by the reduction of office hours.

In declaring April 9 as Bataan Day and as special public holiday, the President said that “the commemoration of the Fall of Bataan is a fitting homage to the heroism of Filipino and American forces who fought side by side against overwhelming odds in the epic struggle for democracy and freedom.”

IN the afternoon the President motored to Malolos, Bulacan, where he was the principal orator at the necrological services held in honor of the late President Magsaysay, under the auspices of the provincial committee of the mayors’ and provincial governor’s offices and the people of Bulacan, led by Gov. Alejo S. Santos.

In his oration President Garcia reiterated that he would carry on faithfully and forcefully President Magsaysay’s program and policies, emphasizing as he (Magsaysay) did the improvement of the living condition of the masses.

Before attending the necrological services at the provincial capitol auditorium in Malolos, President Garcia made a side trip to some barrios of Malolos where he inspected a barrio road ordered constructed by the late President Magsaysay, connecting the barrio of Lungos, Malolos, to the barrio of Iba, Hagonoy.

Alighting from his car, President Garcia walked the dusty road from barrio Bulihan to barrio Lungos. On the way he was met by many barrio people whom he greeted and to whom he said that he would carry out all the rural projects and program of government intended to uplift the barrio people, initiated by the late President Magsaysay.

After hiking some one kilometer of dirt road, the President finally reached the eight-kilometer barrio road being constructed. The President was informed that some 49 men of C Company of the AFP corps of engineers were constructing the barrio road.

Upon inquiry, the President was informed that it would take about a month more to finish the barrio road. President Garcia expressed the hope that the AFP corps of engineers would finish it soon for the benefit of the barrio people.

President Garcia was accompanied in his barrio inspection by Gov. and Mrs. Santos, Sens. Francisco A. Delgado and Francisco Rodrigo, and Rep. Rogaciano Mercado, who accompanied him from the Manila Hotel after the President’s conference with House leaders. Also present was Brig. Gen. Leoncio S. Tan, commanding general of the 1st Military Area.

From the barrio of Lungos the presidential party motored to Malolos, Bulacan, and proceeded directly to the Provincial Capitol pavilion, where the necrological services were held. An altar and a symbolic catafalque were constructed in the center of the pavilion. At the right side of the catafalque was a picture of the late President Magsaysay.

Among the orators were Mayor Ignacio Santiago of Polo, Bulacan, chairman of the mayors’ league of the province, Board Members Serafin C. Gunigundo and Tomas S. Martin, and Gov. Santos.

President Garcia's party left the Manila Hotel at 3:25 p.m., arriving at Malolos at 5:25 p.m. after a side trip to the two barrios. He left Malolos at about 7 p.m. and arrived in Manila at 8 p.m.

March 27.—THIS morning the President had breakfast at his Sierra Madre (Quezon City) residence, with Ben Javier who took notes on his life story. The interview lasted about 45 minutes.

After the breakfast President Garcia greeted well-wishers who trooped inside the sala of his residence. Among them were Cebu solons, including Sen. Mariano J. Cuenco and Reps. Ramon Durano, Manuel Zosa, and Isidro Kintanar. The Cebu solons pledged their support if the President should bid for reelection.

President Garcia today continued receiving pledges of support for his administration. Among those who called on him this morning were Sen. Jose C. Zulueta with several mayors from Iloilo, and Rep. Ramon Tabiana of Iloilo and Gov. Jesus Almero of Masbate. Then the President motored to the Manila Doctors Hospital on Isaac Peral, where he had his eyes examined. He was examined by Dr. Carlos Sevilla.

After the eye examination, the President hurried to Malacañang to preside over the Cabinet meeting.

AS he presided over his first regular Cabinet meeting this day, President Garcia reiterated to all his Cabinet members his wish that they remain at their posts and that they help him as he continues to carry on the work left unfinished by the late President Magsaysay.

President Garcia said that he was making this request because he knew that the Cabinet members were in the best position to help him prosecute the great task begun by the late President Magsaysay.

The President's statement was a reiteration of a previous request to the Cabinet members when he met them for the first time after the death of President Magsaysay.

President Garcia expressed the desire that the Cabinet members take it upon themselves to exercise full authority with corresponding responsibility in the discharge of their duties in their respective departments. The President said that under this arrangement the Cabinet members: should assume command responsibility for the implementation of the work allotted to each department of the government.

The President also expressed the desire to set aside a definite time each working day for the secretaries to consult him on important matters affecting their departments. A more definite announcement will be made on this matter later. It is also on this occasion when the Cabinet members can inform the President of what is going on in their departments.

The President appointed a Cabinet committee to set standards for the inclusion of items in the Cabinet agenda. He recalled that President Magsaysay himself had frequently complained that comparatively unimportant matters found their way into the agenda. The committee is composed of Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, chairman, Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, and Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason.

Pending the final choice of a permanent secretary of education, President Garcia at the Cabinet meeting designated Education Undersecretary Martin Aguilar as acting secretary of education. The designation of Aguilar was deemed necessary in view of the accumulation of papers in the department requiring the signature of the department head; such as, diplomas and other pending matters. These papers have piled up since the death of Secretary Gregorio Hernandez, Jr.

At the Cabinet meeting President Garcia directed Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao to keep a firm hand in the maintenance of peace and order throughout the country and to maintain vigilance against the possibility of a resurgence of Huk activities. He emphasized that the Armed Forces should not relax its vigilance and should carry on the policy of all-out force against die-hard Huks.

President Garcia gave this order following report of a Huk raid at the boundary of Pangasinan and Tarlac. He directed Secretary Balao to alert all his men in the field to continue foot and mobile patrols and to maintain their vigilance.

The President expressed his desire during the Cabinet meeting to improve the efficiency of the Air Force. He stressed the necessity of studying the possibility of acquiring trainer planes. He directed Secretary Balao to study two alternative ways of acquiring such trainers—whether the Philippine Government should procure primary trainer planes from Japan to be charged against reparations or it should order them from the United States through the Philippine procurement mission.

With regard to implementation of the reorganization plans, President Garcia reiterated what he had previously said that except for those offices already transferred, plans for reorganizing all other offices will be suspended in the meanwhile.

“Let what has been done remain done and what is pending remain pending,” President Garcia said. He added that this was in line with the decision of the late President Magsaysay.

The Cabinet approved the holding of the proposed third ECAFE conference on water resources development in Manila sometime in December 1957. The conference will enable technical personnel charged with irrigation and water resources development projects opportunity for direct contact and consultation with recognized experts in the field of water utilization and control.

The Cabinet also approved a proposal of the National Economic Council that the Department of Public Works and Communications take charge of all arrangements for the conference. A committee will be formed to plan and implement the necessary arrangements for this conference. The committee is to be composed of representatives of the Department of Commerce and Industry, the Department of Foreign Affairs, and from the following offices of the Department of Public Works.

(1) From the secretary’s office—Manuel K. Torres, technical assistant, and Engineer M. D. Bautista, chief, program and budget division;

(2) From the public works bureau—Director Julian A. Buendia and Agapito Alano;

(4) From the National Power Corporation—General Manager Filemon M. Zablan and Asst. General Manager and Chief Engineer Jose Lahoz.

On recommendation of Foreign Affairs Secretary Raul S. Manglapus, the Cabinet approved the sending of Cecilio D. Diloy of the Bureau of Plant Industry and Feliciano C. Manuel of the U.P. College of Agriculture to the United Kingdom not later than April 5, 1957. The two scholars were awarded fellowships in crop protection techniques in Britain under the Colombo Plan.

Upon recommendation of Commerce Secretary Oscar Ledesma, the Cabinet authorized the detail of Manuel E. Buenafe of the Department of Commerce and Industry to act as adviser to Filipino exhibitors in the New York and Seattle world fairs in the United States for a period not exceeding 25 days. The transportation expenses of Buenafe from Manila to New York and Seattle and return will be defrayed by the exhibitors.

President Garcia presided over the Cabinet meeting held at the Council of State room. The meeting lasted from 10:25 a.m. to 12:45 p.m.

After the Cabinet meeting the President received Gov. Marcelo Adduru of Cagayan, who headed a group of mayors from his province. Adduru and the mayors pledged their cooperation to President Garcia’s administration.

President Garcia today sent a wire to Admiral Wallace Beakley, extending his condolences on the death of a jet pilot in connection with "Operations Beacon Hill."

President Garcia was a guest of Admiral Beakley on March 24 and 25 during the staging of the naval demonstration. The President requested Admiral Beakley to convey his message of condolence to the family of the pilot who perished in the war exercises.

After the luncheon, President Garcia said that steps were already being taken to study on a technical level the increases of military aid to the Philippines in terms of equipment for air needs. The President said General Taylor had shown deep interest in further strengthening the alliance between the Philippines and the United States not only militarily but also economically.

In brief informal remarks after the luncheon, President Garcia welcomed General Taylor and his staff to the Philippines. He paid tribute to the late President Magsaysay, saying that the people of the Philippines and of the free world have lost a staunch champion in his death. He added that the visit here of General Taylor during this moment of sorrow of the Filipino people was most comforting and reassuring. He offered a toast to General Taylor.

General Taylor in response thanked President Garcia for the honor accorded him and expressed his deep regret over the death of the late President. He also expressed the hope for continued greater understanding between the armed forces of the Philippines and of the United States.

Others present at the luncheon were General Maxwell Taylor, Minister Horace Smith, Secretary Eulogio Balao, Sen. Emmanuel Pelaez, Rep. Numeriano Babao, General Alfonso Arellano, Admiral Wendell Switzer, General Joseph Harper, General John Ackerman, Brig. Gen. James K. Woolnaugh, Col. Howard Snyder, Col. Frank Norris, Col. Clyde Layne, Col. Wesley Edwards, Assistant Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, and Col. Emilio Borromeo, presidential aide.

PRESIDENT Garcia reiterated his gratitude to numerous provincial delegations which continued calling on him at Malacañang this morning to present resolutions pledging their support and cooperation to his administration.

"Knowing my limitations, I am sure I will find difficulty in carrying on with this administration used to the strong arm of the late President Magsaysay. But with your support, your faith, and your understanding, I feel strong and capable enough to tackle the hard tasks ahead of me," the President told his visitors.

Gov. Rafael Lazatin of Pampanga called to pledge his support in case President Garcia decided to run for the presidency. Gov. Lazatin informed the President he had nothing to do with the resolution reportedly passed recently by the Pampanga provincial board endorsing Sen. Gil J. Puyat's candidacy for president.

With Lazatin was Mayor Amando Quioc of Mabalacat, an officer of the Pampanga mayors' league, who also denied reports that the league recently passed a similar resolution supporting Senator Puyat's candidacy. Mayor Quioc explained that such a resolution could not have been passed, as the last meeting of the league was on March 6 when it passed a resolution endorsing the Magsaysay-Garcia team in the forthcoming presidential elections. Copies of this resolution had been furnished President Magsaysay and then Vice-President Garcia, Mayor Quioc said.

(1) That representations be made with the U. S. Government for the abolition of the excise tax imposed on coconut oil;

(2) The appointment of a representative of coconut producers, in the board of governors of the Rehabilitation Finance Corporation' in case a vacancy should occur in that financial institution in the future; and

(3) The appointment of Benjamin Guiang, vice-president of the Coconut Producers Federation, as member of the board of directors of the Philippine National Bank.

During their call, the newly elected officers of the federation took their oath of office before President Garcia. Inducted were Gov. Juan F. Triviño of Camarines Sur, president; Benjamin Guiang, vice-president for Mindanao; Juan S. Alano, regional director for Mindanao; Jose Mercado, regional director for Luzon; Tirso Uytengsu and Rep. Lamberto Macias, regional directors for the Visayas; and Santiago Gancayco, secretary-treasurer.

Newly elected legion officers of Marking's Fil-American Guerrillas who called at Malacañang to pledge their loyalty to the new Administration were also inducted by President Garcia. Among the officers inducted were Onesimo Soriano, national chairman; L. F. de Joya, vice-chairman for Cavite and Batangas; M. K. Santos, vice-chairman for Manila and Bulacan; Pablo Jornacion, vice-chairman for Rizal; V. Plantilla, vice-chairman for Laguna; Tiburcio Umlas, vice-chairman for Pampanga; O. Alzate, vice-chairman, for Quezon; and Gerardo Agustin, vice-chairman for Tarlac and Pangasinan.

Earlier this morning the President had breakfast with members of the Congressional Press Club who called on him to pay their respects. Then he repaired to his study, where he received callers until 12:30 p.m.

A delegation from the Laguna mayors' league submitted a resolution passed at their recent meeting pledging loyalty and support to the Administration. Accompanied by Rep. Wenceslao Lagumbay, the group included Mayors Alimango of Cabuyao, league chairman; Roman Vito of Majayjay, vice-chairman; Genaro Catalan of Los Baños, secretary; and Faustino Marcelo of Sta. Cruz, treasurer.

Other delegations this noon were those headed by Governors Jose Espino of Nueva Vizcaya, Leon Fernandez of Sulu, Mariano Peñaflorida of Iloilo, Vicente de Lara of Misamis Oriental, and Jesus Almero of Masbate; Reps. Lorenzo Teves of Negros Oriental, Eladio Balite of Samar, and Ricardo Ladrado of Iloilo; and Mayors Adriano Puno of Bacolod City and Cipriano Colago of San Pablo City.

IN the afternoon the President directed that Barrio Lieutenant Marcelino Nuya be given an official award by the Government for his heroic and humanitarian act in the rescue of Nestor Mata of the Philippines Herald, the lone survivor in the Mt. Pinatubo plane crash in which President Magsaysay and 25 others died.

The President also said that he would issue a directive to have an investigating team to determine who among the barrio people that showed meritorious acts during the rescue operation in the crash of the presidential plane should be given proper awards.

The Chief Executive made these statements in the course of a visit to Mata this afternoon. Mata is confined at the Veterans Memorial Hospital.

The President made this decision when Mata recalled the gallantry of the barrio lieutenant who was mainly responsible for his being brought to the Southern Islands Hospital in Cebu City. Mata also lauded the barrio folks who had helped in the rescue operations.

The President talked with Mata about 20 minutes. Also present were VMH Director Joaquin Sanchez, Assistant Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, PCAC Chairman Frisco San Juan, and doctors and nurses of the hospital.

From Mata's room President Garcia inspected the other wards of the hospital and talked to several walking patients. He told them to be hopeful of their early and full recovery. The President then went to the hospital lawn and noted that the landscaping was not complete. He suggested to the director that the planting of more trees and plants be completed in order to improve the scenery.

The President also inspected the presidential suite in the hospital which has never been used. Then he went to the director's room, where he admired a painting of the late President Magsaysay done by a Japanese artist, Kenzo Kakamori.

After some refreshments the President went back to his car. Before he boarded it, he was met by many walking patients who shook hands with him.

Upon reaching Malacañang, President Garcia received the delegates to the second annual convention of East Asian Travel Commission, who paid a courtesy call. The delegates were accompanied by Modesto Farolan, president of the Philippine Tourist and Travel Association. They are at present holding their conference at the Manila Hotel.

Among those in the group were Japan's Doigiro Majima, Mikio Sudo, and Takamasa Kofugi; Korea's Consul Do Soon Chung; Indonesia's Des Alwi and Soepari Tzokrohartono; Hongkong's George Hamilton Dick; India's R. K. Mukerjee; and Vietnam's Nguyen My Loc. Philippine observers with the group were Dalmacio Ago, Matias Antolin, Salvador Peña, and Eduardo Crisostomo.

March 29.—THIS morning, the President received officials of several government corporations who called at Malacañang to pledge their cooperation and to brief him on the latest activities of their government entities. The Chief Executive also received local business representatives who pledged their support and wished him success in his administration.

NARIC officials informed the President that the late President Magsaysay had approved the importation of 100,000 metric tons of rice in anticipation of a national shortage this year on account of floods, heavy rains, and pests. Former Governor Juan O. Chioco, NARIC board chairman, said that the late President had also approved the sending abroad of one of the members of the board to negotiate the projected rice importation on a government-to-government basis.

The NARIC officials reported that the corn crop this year was also short of the country's requirements. They said that the NARIC was exerting maximum efforts to purchase all the corn that was available in the farms to be sold in corn-eating provinces at a loss, in pursuance of a directive of the late President Magsaysay.

NARIC officials who called on the President this morning included Chairman Chioco, Board Members Maximo Calalang and Osmundo Mondoñedo, and Acting General Manager Vicente Concepcion.

Justices of the Court of Appeals called to pay their respects. They were Presiding Justice Jose Gutierrez David and Associate Justices Jose Ma. Paredes, Arsenio Dizon, Sotero Rodas, Dionisio de Leon, Buenaventura Ocampo, Felix Natividad, Felix Martinez, Querube Makalintal, Conrado Sanchez, Fernando Fernandez, Florentino Saguin, Sotero Cabahug, Fred Ruiz Castro, Vicente Santiago, Eugenio Angeles, and Ramon San Jose.

A delegation from the Philippine Chamber of Industries submitted a resolution written on parchment paper, assuring their wholehearted cooperation to the new Administration in all its policies designed to insure the economic stability of the nation. This group was headed by Roberto Villanueva, chamber president.

A delegation from the Bankers Association of the Philippines likewise pledged their full support to the new President. Alfonso Calalang, association president, acted as spokesman for this group, made up of presidents of the country's principal banking institutions.

Other delegations were those from the Home Financing Commission headed by Commodore Jose Andrada; the Land Tenure Administration, headed by Commissioner Manuel Castañeda; and Members of Class 1937 of the Reserve Officers' Service School who were celebrating the 20th anniversary of their graduation. This last group was headed by Col. Generoso F. Tanseco, class president.

Earlier this morning, the President received Dr. and Mrs. O. W. Rash, former resident in the Philippines on a brief visit here, who presented him with a box of cigars bought on the Escolta in 190G. The brand of the 57-year old cigars was Germinal and they were manufactured by the Fabrica de Tabacos de Manila. With the couple were their grand-daughter, Louise, and their niece, Dorothy Davis.

The President also received American members of the Nutrition Survey Team of the Armed Forces who called to say goodbye prior to their return to the U. S. after completing a 60-day research work in the Philippines. The team was headed by Dr. William J. Darby.

The President received callers at his executive office until 12:45 p.m. Then he repaired to the state dining hall in the Palace, where he had lunch with the members of the U. P. Board of Regents.

The President has nominated Col. Pullong Arpa (ret.) as envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the Republic of the Philippines to Egypt, Malacañang announced today. Arpa is a third class foreign affairs officer. He will be chief of mission. , PRESIDENT Garcia this noon instructed the U.P. Board of Regents to submit a number of names of alumni of the state university for possible appointment to the board to fill the vacancy left by the death of Prof. Vicente Lontok.

The President gave his instructions in the course of a luncheon conference he had this noon with members of the board who impressed upon him the necessity of filling up the vacancy preparatory to the election of a university president. He said he had in his possession several names previously submitted by the U. P. Alumni Association to the late President Magsaysay for the regency post but that he wanted to have a wider field from which to pick a suitable man for the position.

Acting Education Secretary Martin Aguilar, chairman ex officio of the Board of Regents, promised to include the matter at the next regents, meeting He said that the board had until May 15 within which to elect a president of the university, as it was held imperative that the institution should open in June with a new president already installed.

PRESIDENT Garcia said this evening he would continue the same policy toward Asia laid down by his predecessor, President Magsaysay.

At his weekly press conference in Malacañang, the Chief Executive clarified a published report that he had revived the "Asia for the Asians" slogan as a principle of the country's foreign policy.

"Our policy toward Asia is a continuation of that laid down by President Magsaysay," read the opening sentence of the press statement President Garcia authorized for release.

Press Secretary J. V. Cruz read the statement of the conference. The rest of it follows:

"Last October our late President said that it was one of the objectives of our foreign policy to develop our political and cultural relations with our Asian neighbors. He mentioned this objective together with the paramount purpose of national security which we have achieved by collective defense arrangements, particularly with the United States of America.

"Taken together, these two objectives mean that we seek the strengthening of freedom in Asia for two reasons: first, so that our fellow Asians may enjoy the fruits of real independence; and second so that we may, by being surrounded with communities of free Asians, be all the more secure from subversion and attack.

“To this end, it is our purpose within the limits of our capacities to share in the efforts of giving substance to the freedom of Asians. This is our purpose in intensifying technical and cultural exchanges with such countries as Indonesia, Vietnam, China, Malaya, and other countries of free Asia. This is why we recognized Vietnam and why we want to open diplomatic mission in more Asian capitals; such as, Rangoon, Burma.

“This is our policy in Asia. It cannot be adequately expressed in any single slogan.

President Garcia also told the press conference that he had not announced any new policy and that, by whatever name the country’s foreign policy in Asia is known, no special significance is attached to it.

He said that, because the original “Asia for the Asians” policy had the tendency of being misinterpreted as “exclusivistic,” it had been renamed the “Philippine policy in Asia.”

The President also defined his position on the “neutralist” stand taken by some Asian countries, particularly India.

He said he was against “neutralism” as a national policy in the ideological conflict between democracy and communism.

“But this does not mean that we have to quarrel with the neutralist countries,” President Garcia explained.

He said that international diplomacy involved in many ways the tolerance of the views of other nations.

President Garcia stressed further that essentially the Philippine foreign policy was based on two guiding principles; namely, first, the maintenance of friendly and cordial relations with the United States; and second, the maintenance of closer ties and cooperation between the Philippines and her Asian neighbors.

He said it was within this framework that the Asian policy was formulated, from which the country has no plans at present of deviating.

March 30.—IMPLEMENTING his pledge of continuing the policies of the late President Magsaysay, President Garcia today issued a policy statement declaring that the Magsaysay community development program would receive without any changes “my direct and personal attention.”

President Garcia added that the implementation of this program through the office of the presidential assistant on community development “will be pursued with greater vigor and determination by my administration.”

After making this policy statement, President Garcia also issued a directive to all community development workers saying that he felt very strongly that the community development program was too important to be involved in the ebb and tide of political fortunes. He declared that he would strive to protect this program from the encroachment of partisan politics.

The President issued this circular because he said that there might be great anxiety and insecurity among the ranks of community development workers who feared that changes might be made in implementing the program. He said that this feeling might engender a feeling among the barrio people that the program would suffer as a result of the death of the late President.

President Garcia appealed to all community development workers to give the barrio people the assurance that their welfare would be foremost among the goals of the Administration. He said, “I would like to appeal to you all to strive to exert greater efforts in order to assure the community development program’s success.”

The Chief Executive issued his policy statement on the community development program through Ramon Binamira, in charge of the program, after a breakfast with ICA officials at Malacañang this morning. The ICA officials were headed by Dr. Dennis Fitzgerald, deputy director for operations of the ICA.

After the conference, President Garcia said that he had good reason to believe that the United States “would continue to regard with increasing generosity” the implementation of the ICA projects in the Philippines.

The President said he was glad to hear that Dr. Fitzgerald was satisfied with the way the community development projects in the Philippines were being implemented. He added that the ICA deputy director considered the Philippine community development projects with deep sympathy.

President Garcia said that in a week or two he would discuss with Col. Harry Brenn specific items under the ICA aid program. He added that equipment consisting of tractors and bulldozers requested by the late President Magsaysay for the country’s rural development projects had begun to arrive in the Philippines.

The President and Philippine officials exchanged views with ICA officials on foreign aid in this area.

Those present at the breakfast conference were Minister Horace Smith; Dr. Dennis Fitzgerald, deputy director for operations. ICA; Dr. Raymond Moyer, ICA director of Far East Operations; Edwin H. Arnold, deputy director of Technical Services, Washington, D. C; Walter Schaefer, assistant to director for finance; Joseph Brent, ICA mission chief, Taiwan; Alvin Roseman, ICA mission chief, Cambodia; Leland Barrows, ICA mission chief, Vietnam; William Warne, ICA mission chief, Korea; James Baird, ICA mission chief, Indonesia; N. Carter de Paul, ICA mission chief, Laos; Sylvester Olson, acting director, Japan; William J. Shephard, Thailand; Col. Harry Brenn, Philippines; John Murphy, controller; Washington; Secretary Florencio Moreno; Secretary Paulino J. Garcia; General Joseph Harper; George Aurell; Governor Miguel Cuaderno of the Central Bank; Eduardo Romualdez of NEC; Assistant Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison; and Presidential Assistant on Community Development Ramon Binamira.

After conferring with the ICA officials from 8:30 a.m. to 9:30 a.m., President Garcia received some callers, among whom were Sens. Jose C. Zulueta and Domocao Alonto.

The President also received Manila Railroad General Manager Salvador T. Villa, who expressed the need of expanding the facilities of the Manila Hotel. The President agreed that the Manila Hotel should expand its facilities in order to accommodate the growing number of guests.

The President then conferred with Executive Secretary Fortunate de Leon on important papers.

At 11 a.m. the President motored to the ACCFA office on Taft Avenue. He was accompanied by Assistant Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison and Capt. Agerico Palaypay, aide.

IN another act implementing the late President Magsaysay’s policies, President Garcia this afternoon pledged to work to have the capital of the ACCFA increased to enable the agency to expand and intensify its program of farm credit and cooperative marketing as rapidly as possible.

He told ACCFA officials that he would direct the Central Bank and other government financing institutions to accommodate the ACCFA with the financing it required.

At the same time, the President said that knowing how the members of Congress were patriotic and ready to extend all possible help to the farmers, he would appeal to them to restore the ₱10 million slashed from the appropriation for the ACCFA.

The Chief Executive was applauded as he spoke extemporaneously at the ACCFA offices on Taft Avenue after having been given a briefing on the work and accomplishments of the ACCFA. ACCFA officials who spoke were Administrator Osmundo Mondoñedo and Assistant Administrator Francisco M. Sacay. Capt. Ernesto Gimenez, general manager of the Central Cooperative Exchange, and Col. Carmelo Barbero, also of the CCE, were the other two speakers.

The briefing was made at the board of directors conference room in the ACCFA office. Maps and charts showing ACCFA activities were shown to the President.

The President made his pledge of support to the ACCFA after inquiring into the status of the cooperative program as well as the problems being encountered by the ACCFA.

Emphasizing the importance of building up mass participation in the economic and social development of the country, the President expressed his desire to see the farmers' cooperative associations, or FACOMAS, grow in strength and stability.

He said that the FACOMAS were extremely potent agencies through which the rural people could secure improvement in their economic life on the basis of organized self-help. He added that the Government must give every possible assistance and support to develop and strengthen the self-help spirit being generated by the FACOMAS.

President Garcia directed the ACCFA officials to redouble their efforts and endeavor "to accelerate the process of emancipating the farmer from rural usury and exploitation by unscrupulous middlemen."

Informed that there were already 250,000 individual farmers in almost 11,000 barrios organized into cooperative marketing associations under the ACCFA program, President Garcia said the present capitalization of ₱100 million was not sufficient.

The President instructed Mondoñedo to prepare a plan by which the services of the other extension agencies of the government would be coordinated and made to produce the "greatest possible result by using the farmers' organizations as the channel for these services."

The President arrived at the ACCFA building a little past 11 a.m. He was greeted warmly by the employees. He left the ACCFA at past 12:30 p.m.

The President then motored to the Funeraria Paz, where he visited the body of the late Dr. Artemio Danao, a member of the Board of Dental Examiners. The President condoled with the family of the deceased represented by Felipe Danao. Then the President motored back to Malacañang.

PRESIDENT Garcia signed Administrative Order No. 326, requiring District Judge Pascual Santos of the Court of First Instance of Masbate to resign.

This was the first act of the President implementing the late President Magsaysay's desire to clean the government of unfit government officials. The President acted upon recommendation of the Supreme Court.

An administrative case was filed by the solicitor general against Judge Santos for serious misconduct and inefficiency in office for allegedly:

- (1) Submitting monthly statements, required for the collection of his salary, falsely certifying that all proceedings, applications, petitions, motions, and cases of all kinds submitted for decision or determination for a period of 90 days or more had been determined and decided; and

- (2) Approving and signing false monthly reports of his clerk of court that respondent had no cases pending decision for 90 days or more.

The charges were investigated by Associate Justice Querube C. Makalintal of the Court of Appeals.

According to the findings, the explanation of the respondent for Charge No. 1 was found unsatisfactory.

As regards the second count, the President said that he agreed with the Supreme Court that the respondent was still grossly negligent in approving and signing the reports of his clerk of court. The administrative order said: "What is worse, in signing and sending advance certificates of work completed which obviously did not reflect the truth, respondent showed, as observed by the court, serious disregard not only of the truth but also of the veracity that should characterize official records."

The President said in his order that in view of the findings, and "it appearing that the respondent has already been warned previously by the Supreme Court for reprehensible acts, I am constrained to take drastic action against him in the cause of the public service."

The President's order said: "Upon the recommendation of the Supreme Court, Judge Pascual Santos is hereby required to tender his resignation within five days from receipt of copy hereof. Should he fail to do so, he should be considered removed from office effective on the day following the expiration of the said period."

The case of Judge Santos was one of several involving alleged misconduct by judges of first instance which have been submitted to the Supreme Court for investigation and decision, pursuant to President Magsaysay's determined drive to clean up the government. The late President had once expressed impatience and disappointment with the high court's slow pace in disposing of these cases.

THE President was speaker at the forty-ninth commencement exercises of the Philippine Normal College held this afternoon at the PNC campus.

Fetches from Malacañang by PNC President Macario Naval, Mrs. Natividad Rogers, president of the PNC faculty association, and Dean of Instruction, Jesus Martinez, the President arrived at the PNC compound about 4:30 p.m. For almost two hours, the President stayed on the stage while diplomas were distributed to about 700 graduates of the college.

The Chief Executive was introduced by Acting Education Secretary Martin Aguilar, Jr. The President's speech lasted about 20 minutes. Other guests included Public Works Secretary and Mrs. Florencio Moreno and Benigno Aldana, director of public schools.

After the exercises, the President was led to the second floor of the PNC building where he had dinner with officials and faculty members of the institution.

Awarded diplomas at this afternoon's ceremonies were those who had completed the two-year general curriculum, the three-year combined general and home economics curriculum, bachelors of science in elementary education, and masters of arts in education.

After fulfilling his engagement with the Philippine Normal College, where he was commencement speaker this afternoon, he boarded the presidential yacht with a staff of Palace assistants. The yacht pulled out at 8:30 p.m. and anchored off Sisiman Cove before midnight. Before retiring for the night, he had a set of chess games with Col. Nicanor Jimenez, newly-appointed Malacañang assistant on Seato affairs.

March 31.—PRESIDENT Garcia decided he was entitled to a rest this day, after a week of grueling activities since he assumed office and took over the reins of administration on the death of President Magsaysay.

The Chief Executive and his party heard today shipboard mass at 7 a.m. After breakfast he and members of his party took a motor launch and landed on the beach of Luzon Point, a natural swimming resort off the coast of Mariveles.

As soon as the party hit the beach, the President was met by one Ricardo Valdez, who took care of loading cut logs of a mining company for shipment to Manila. The President conversed with Valdez and his wife and inquired about their work and their living conditions.

He could not resist the clear and shallow sea water; so he went in swimming.

PRESIDENT Garcia today ordered the extension of appointments of temporary employees in various offices appointed under the late President Magsaysay's administration.

The President gave this directive to Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon after consultation with Malacañang Financial Assistant Miguel D. Velasco aboard the Santa Maria, where the President rested during the weekend after a hectic two weeks since he assumed the Presidency.

Upon being informed that some 150 temporary employees whose appointments had terminated March 31 would be laid off, the Chief Executive told his executive secretary to continue carrying these affected employees in the payroll.

Although the President was supposed to rest during the cruise off Manila Bay, he took with him state papers to study. He was accompanied by Palace assistants with whom he consulted on important matters.

Among other decisions made by the President were:

(1) He signed an administrative order firing Tranquilino O. Calo, Jr., as justice of the peace of Carmen, Agusan; and

(2) He signed pardon papers of prisoners, upon recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole.

An administrative case was filed against Calo for, among other things: (a) ignorance of the law, (b) electioneering, and (c) persecution of political enemies. These charges had been investigated by the district judge of Agusan.

In the administrative order, the President affirmed that the respondent was found guilty of the three charges. Upon recommendation of the secretary of justice, the President dismissed Calo as justice of the peace of Carmen, Agusan, effective upon receipt of notice of the administrative order.

The President's action on the dismissed justice of the peace followed closely an order requiring a judge of first instance to resign. By these acts President Garcia showed he was following President Magsaysay's policy of cleaning the government of undesirable and unfit officials.

Upon recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole, the President signed the pardon papers of the following:

Conditional Pardon: Conrado Punzalan, Leodegario Aliboso y Erica, Juanito Alibuso, Leon Leycano y Mendoza, Pedro Triviño, Melchor Gerodias y Macalalad, Martin Neri, Nicacio Villanueva y de los Santos, and Cayetano Jecino.

Absolute Pardon: Roberto Carrios.

Upon being informed aboard the Santa Maria, that Gov. Rafael Lazatin of Pampanga had met with an accident, the President ordered a physician of the First Military Area to see the governor and extend medical assistance if necessary. The President was later informed that Lazatin was confined at the St. Anthony's Hospital in Manila and that he was not in serious condition.

- (12) Juan Locsin as member of the Board of Administrators of the Philippine Coconut Administration, vice Eduardo Reyes, resigned, for the unexpired term up to August 15, 1958.

TOWARD noon the President conferred with Executive Secretary De Leon and other Palace assistants on pending state papers.

IN the evening, the president had a long dinner conference with Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson and city officials.

It was speculated that Lacson discussed with the President matters affecting the November elections. Lacson had announced that he was also a candidate for the presidency.

The Malacañang announcement of the meeting stated that the topic of the conference was confined to local municipal problems. It was disclosed that President Garcia assured the city officials that he would honor all commitments the late President Magsaysay had made to help solve administration problems of the city.

Besides Lacson the following were present at the dinner meeting: Vice-Mayor Jesus Marcos Roces, Rep. Joaquin R. Roces of Manila, and Legislative Secretary Jose Nable.

Malacañang announced today that President Garcia has not authorized any person or persons to solicit contributions on his behalf for political or other purposes.

Malacañang requests that the police be immediately advised about anybody who uses the name of the President to collect funds in the guise of voluntary contributions.

April 2.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning ordered all government relief agencies to rush aid to the fire victims in Catbalogan, Samar.

The President:

- (1) Ordered Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona to release immediately the necessary financial aid;
- (2) Ordered the Armed Forces to submit a report on the calamity; and
- (3) Directed the SWA, the Red Cross, and the AFP to coordinate relief operations in that area.

The President's directives came following receipt of a telegram from Samar Gov. Fernando Veloso, who said that Catbalogan was razed by a conflagration which was the worst in its history. Gov. Veloso informed the President that the fire wiped out commercial and residential districts in that area. Gov. Veloso estimated the damage at ₱ 20 million and requested aid.

THE President today told field division engineers of the Department of Public Works and Communications to implement the public works program of the Administration in line with the plans of the late President Magsaysay.

The field division engineers, who had just completed a convention in Manila, called on the President with Public Works Undersecretary Rafael Contreras and Public Highways Commissioner Rodolfo Maslog.

The President was informed by the public works officials that ₱50 million had been appropriated and already calendared for the construction of public highways this year.

Acting on the information that the construction of more feeder roads on self-help basis was imperative, the President directed Commissioner Maslog to study and submit a report on how to implement thoroughly the self-help feeder roads program.

The President received callers from 8 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. The callers, most of whom came from the provinces, requested aid for their various public works projects.

Sen. Decoroso Rosales and Social Welfare Administrator Amparo P. Villamor informed the President that about four-fifths of Catbalogan, Samar, was razed by a fire which hit the town yesterday. Mrs. Villamor told the President that social workers had already been sent to Catbalogan with aid for the fire victims. The Chief Executive informed Sen. Rosales that other assistance measures had already been ordered for Catbalogan.

Support of President Garcia's administration was pledged by Rep. Leonardo Perez, mayors, vice-mayors, and councilors of Nueva Vizcaya. The pledge was made during the call of the Nueva Vizcaya officials on the President.

Among the provincial delegations received by the President were Quezon province mayors and town officials accompanied by Rep. Leon Guinto, Jr., Rep. Manuel Enverga, and Governor Leon Guinto, Sr.; Iloilo municipal officials with Rep. Ramon Tabiana; Sorsogon mayors accompanied by Rep. Salvador Encinas; Nueva Ecija town officials with Rep. Celestino Juan; Quezon City barrio lieutenants; and a delegation from Cotabato.

The first callers of the President were Mayor Rodolfo Ganzon of Iloilo City, Governor Delfin N. Montano of Cavite, and former Senator Justiniano S. Montano.

Other callers included Sen. Alejo Mabanag; Reps. Francisco Ortega of La Union, Cesar Fortich of Bukidnon, Panfilo Manguera of Marinduque, Natalio Castillo, Bartolome Cabangbang, and Esteban Bernido of Bohol, Carlos Tan of Leyte, Emilio Cortep of Pampanga, Delfin Albano of Isabela, Serafin Salvador of Rizal, and Erasiiho Cruz of Bulacan; and Juan T. David, a lawyer from Bulacan.

IMPLEMENTING further his desire to dispatch immediately all-out aid to the fire victims in Catbalogan, Samar, President Garcia this noon directed Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao to rush to the stricken area the necessary technical personnel.

The President directed Brig. Gen. Cornelio Bondad, 3rd MA commanding general, to coordinate relief and security work with the Social Welfare Administration and other relief agencies. Bondad was also ordered by the President to submit immediately a report on the general situation in the disaster area in order to determine the necessity of issuing a proclamation declaring a state of calamity.

On direction of the President, Social Welfare Administrator Villamor ordered 3,000 sacks of rice to be shipped from Legaspi, Albay, to Catbalogan. Another 500 sacks of rice from the NARIC will be loaded this evening aboard a ship for the area.

The President also directed Budget Commissioner Aytona to release necessary funds from the contingent appropriation to be used in the purchase of construction materials and other necessary supplies.

One Navy ship now in Cebu was placed under the disposition of General Bondad for the relief operations.

PRESIDENT Garcia formally launched this afternoon the 1957 Cerebral Palsy Educational and Fund drive sponsored by the Elks Club at the Malacañang social hall.

Addressing an impressive crowd at the kick-off ceremonies, the President called upon the people to help "this most worthy endeavor, for the sake of our severely handicapped cerebral spastics."

In handling his contribution to Eugenio Puyat, general manager of the drive, the President said that he hoped all civic spirited citizens would support the campaign.

Puyat disclosed that there were 746 patients at the clinic this day who were being treated free of charge. Ages of these patients ranged from eight months to 20 years.

In his message President Garcia pointed out that there are about 20,000 cerebral spastics who have been neglected and ignored, or left to deal with their disability with crude and haphazard methods.

“It was only lately that the government, through the National Orthopedic Hospital, and civic-spirited citizens, through the Elks Cerebral Palsy Clinic, have initiated effort to deal with this painful affliction scientifically and effectively,” he added.

First-day contributions totaled ₱18,405.

April 3.—THIS morning the President held a breakfast conference with members of the Sugar Planters’ Association who sought assistance for the full implementation of a law making fertilizer available to farmers at reasonable cost.

The sugar planters claimed that Republic Act No. 1609 was being only partially implemented and that only ₱5 million out of the ₱18 million annual appropriation was being released for fertilizers.

The President told the sugar planters that he was not against the full implementation of the law, because it was his desire to solve the present crop shortage in the country, particularly corn. He suggested that the sugar planters appoint among themselves three members to confer with the authorities concerned on measures to fully implement the law.

The Chief Executive said that he would check up from time to time on the progress of such conferences. He assured the sugar planters that he would give serious consideration to any agreement reached.

The sugar planters also assured the President of their support and cooperation with his administration. The President thanked the members of the association for their pledge.

Present at the breakfast conference were Commerce Secretary Oscar Ledesma, Rep. Lorenzo Teves of Negros Oriental, Sugar Planters Association President Jose Mapa Gomez, former NEC Chairman Alfredo Montelibano, Roberto Llantado, Vicente Gustillo, Rosario Singson, Mariano Santos, Gavino Moras, Giro Locsin, Fernando Cuenca, Rodolfo Lizares, Gerry Rodriguez, Amado Garcia, Cesar Poblador, Arturo Piccio, Ramon Nolas, Fernando Rosales, Jose Manzano, R. Benedicto, and Trino Montinola. The breakfast conference lasted from 8:30 to 9: 30 a.m.

AFTER the breakfast, the President went to the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Jose Corpus, where he visited Mr. and Mrs. Exequiel Magsaysay, parents of the late President Magsaysay. The President conversed for about 15 minutes with Don Exequiel and Dona Perfecta, who are staying indefinitely in the house of Dr. and Mrs. Corpus. Mrs. Corpus is the daughter of Don Exequiel and Dona Perfecta, while Dr. Corpus was the late President’s personal physician.

The President returned to Malacañang about 10 a.m. and presided over the regular Cabinet meeting.

The proclamation made it unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation in the locality (1) to sell or offer for sale palay, rice, corn, cloth, milk, canned goods, sugar and other foodstuffs, building and construction materials, at prices higher by 25 per cent or more over and above the average current local price of such commodities; one month previous to the occurrence of the calamity; and (2) to aggravate the crisis by refusing for the purpose of profiteering to sell at the legal price or by hiding, concealing, or hoarding the above goods.

At the same time the President directed that the provincial treasurer of Samar be authorized to give a two-month advance salary loan to all provincial and municipal employees of the town. The President directed Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon to determine whether the GSIS or the Philippine National Bank would advance the required funds for the purpose.

The President directed Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor and Defense Undersecretary Jose M. Crisol, over-all performance officer to enplane for the fire-stricken area and supervise and coordinate the relief activities. The two officials left by an amphibian plane requested from the United States Navy about 2 p.m., immediately after the Cabinet meeting. The plane was requested because amphibious craft is the speediest transportation to Samar.

The President was informed by Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao that more troops from Cebu and Leyte had been sent to Catbalogan in order to maintain peace and order for security purposes.

PRESIDENT Garcia gave members of his Cabinet today greater auto-burden of his work which he said would be devoted to other pressing matters of state.

At the Cabinet meeting for the President said that he was willing to accept command responsibility for the actuations of his department secretaries even if he has given them full discretion to act on matters not involving state policies.

The President and the Cabinet likewise:

1. Banned completely the exportation of scrap iron by turning down all petitions for an extension of time to ship out these articles; and
2. Approved the request pi the joint committee for Philippine participation in the Brussels (Belgium) Universal Exposition of 1958 to assess government owned or controlled corporations in order to raise the sum of ₱150,000 needed for the purpose.

In giving the department secretaries greater autonomy, the President upheld the report of the committee headed by Budget Commissioner Dominador R. Aytona limiting questions which should be submitted to the Cabinet.

In its report to the Cabinet, the Aytona committee recommended that “only matters relating to the establishment of national policy should be submitted to the Cabinet for action.”

It also listed the following possible exceptions which may be submitted to the Cabinet for decision:

1. Matters involving jurisdictional disputes or conflicts of opinion between two or more executive departments or comparable major agencies where every effort to resolve such matters at department level had been made but no resolution had been reached; and
2. Questions which even though dealing with specific cases tend to set precedents.

At the same time, the President said that like the practice of the late President Magsaysay, he would make himself available to the people and keep the Palace open to them.

In making this announcement, the President urged his department secretaries to follow President Magsaysay's example of making their offices easily accessible to all callers, especially those in need of help.

The President pointed out that, as a result of the new plan in dealing with the members of the Cabinet, he hoped that more questions could be resolved and more people would benefit by this arrangement.

“As you are the extension of my personality, and as you act on these various cases, I have actually multiplied myself and as a result I hope that more persons will be attended to and more problems solved on department levels.”

President Garcia and the members of the Cabinet denied all petitions to extend the time for the exportation of scrap iron.

The Cabinet action, it was learned, was prompted by criticisms raised recently by Sen. Claro M. Recto against the lifting of the ban by allowing some persons to export these commodities.

It was learned that the Cabinet had granted certain businessmen permits to export scrap iron, but that these permits had expired.

Petitions were addressed to the Cabinet for the extension of the time to make the shipment, as their scrap iron had not been loaded fully when the deadline came.

Senator Recto had indirectly chided the Administration for authorizing the exportation of scrap iron against a standing ban for the shipment of these commodities outside the country.

Upon the recommendation of Commerce Secretary Oscar Ledesma, the Cabinet approved a request of the joint committee for Philippine participation in the Brussels exposition to assess ₱150,000 from government owned or controlled corporations.

Secretary Ledesma reminded the Cabinet that the Philippine Government was irrevocably committed to participate in the exposition.

He said that the committee felt that the most feasible way of raising the money was to assess each government corporation.

Ledesma said that the government had only up to June within which to finish the construction of the Philippine pavilion.

THIS afternoon, President Garcia received Gov. Juan F. Triviño of Camarines Sur, who sought the release of ₱650,000 for river control project to avoid recurrent floods in his region, as well as the construction of the projected Caramoan Peninsula lands in his province.

As president of the Philippine Coconut Producers Federation, Gov. Triviño also took up with President Garcia some pressing problems of coconut growers.

LATER this evening, the Chief Executive received a delegation from the Escolta Walking Corporation which called to pledge their support and to wish him success in his administration. Headed by former Labor Secretary Primitivo Lovina, corporation president, the delegation also invited President Garcia to be guest of officers.

The EWC delegation included former Mayor Francisco Batacan, former Labor Director Felipe E Jose. Pedro Padilla, Fidel Vibar, Cosme Fabre Antonio Brodett, Jose Alvir, Patricio Senador, Mauricio Silverio, J. P. de los Reyes, Jose Yatco, and Gonzalo Espino.

Among the callers this evening was Sen. Edmundo Cea.

April 4—PRESIDENT Garcia held a breakfast conference with congressional leaders today, the first since he assumed the presidency. The conference took up legislative matters pending before the current session of Congress.

1. The President inquired on the status of the reparations bill and was told that the bill was up before a Senate-House conference committee. The main difference between the Senate and the House versions of the bill is that not more than 70 per cent of reparations payments will go to the private sector as against the government sector, while the Senate bill does not specify which part should go to the private sector and which part to the government.

The President told the conference that while he was not interested as to which version should prevail regarding this point, he hoped that the final reparations measure would retain the principle of flexibility, that is, it would not specify rigidly what share should go to the government and what share to the private sector.

On the suggestion of Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno, the conference also agreed to insert a provision in the final reparations bill which would make chargeable to reparations services whatever amount should be paid to ramie processing plants in Japan for the processing of ramie fiber grown in the Philippines and shipped to that country for finishing. Cuaderno told the conference that the Philippines was disbursing plenty of dollars for the processing of ramie in Japan. Charging it against reparations services, he said, would result in saving these dollars.

The Senate and the House conferees also were of the opinion that the provision in the House bill limiting reparations benefits to natural-born Filipinos was of doubtful constitutionality. It was the consensus that this provision would have to be thrown out of the final bill.

2. President Garcia renewed his plea for the restoration of cuts from the budget made in the House of Representatives.

(a) He made a strong request for the restoration of the ₱10 million additional capitalization for ACCFA denied by the House. President Garcia cited the benefits that ACCFA has extended to the average Filipino farmer by providing him with easy credit facilities, warehousing facilities, marketing advantages, etc. The conference, in view of President Garcia's appeal, seemed disposed to consider (favorably his request for restoration of the ₱10 million fund.

On motion of Sen. Emmanuel Pelaez, President Garcia promised that he would instruct the ACCFA to extend its services to the coconut industry. Pelaez pointed out that coconut growers have been clamoring for the benefits of the cooperative movement and that it was time the ACCFA heeded this clamor.

(b) The conference also seemed sympathetic to President Garcia's plea for restoration of the ₱8 million additional capitalization for the NARRA which had been rejected by the House. President Garcia pointed out that the NARRA to date has settled 19,000 families, of whom 14,000 have already achieved self-sufficiency, thus leaving only 5,000 families more to be taken care of by the NARRA. The President said that the publicity given to a few families which left NARRA settlements in disgust has distracted public attention from the fact that the NARRA has been highly successful in guiding 14,000 families to self-sufficiency. President Garcia and the Congress leaders also agreed that the administration of the NARRA has improved considerably since Col. Luis Franco became general manager.

(c) From the attitude of the conference, it was felt that there may be rougher sailing for President Garcia's request that the proposed ₱20 million additional capitalization for NAMARCO be restored. In urging this restoration, the President pointed out that goods imported into the Philippines have risen in price owing to circumstances beyond our control. He pointed out the cost of these goods has gone up at the source; transportation costs have risen because of the Suez Canal crisis; freight charges have gone up all over the world. As a result of these factors beyond the control of the government, President Garcia said, most prime commodities imported into the country have gone up in price. He said the only way to counteract this development was to insure ample supply of such commodities, and that this could be done only by increasing the capitalization of the NAMARCO. Thus, President Garcia requested restoration of the proposed ₱20 million additional capitalization for the NAMARCO.

3. President Garcia also told the conference that he was 100 per cent behind President Magsaysay's state-of-the-nation message recommendation for an adequate anti-Communist bill. Rep. Joaquin Roces of Manila assured the President that the compromise bill now pending consideration by the House was sufficiently strong and adequate to fulfill the need for forestalling further inroads by the Communist movement in the Philippines. On the basis of his assurance, President Garcia said he was placing his full support behind the Roces bill.

4. On motion of Rep. Eladio Balite, and with the full endorsement of President Garcia, the conference also agreed to approve a ₱500 thousand fire damage bill for Catbalogan, Samar. President Garcia this afternoon dispatched a special message to Congress, recommending immediate approval of the fire damage bill.

5. The conference also agreed that a bill would be presented and approved increasing the capitalization of the National Power Corporation to enable this corporation to carry on the construction of the Binga hydroelectric power project, the twin project of the Ambuklao power system. Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno said he would determine the exact amount of extra capitalization needed by the NPC.

6. President Garcia also pledged that he would make ₱20 million available immediately to cover public works projects which have been authorized by existing laws but the funds for which have not yet been appropriated. President Garcia said he would raise the amount by requiring government corporations to pay as soon as possible the advances made to them by the National Government. Secretary Moreno advised the conference that the outstanding public works projects already approved by Congress, but for which funds have not yet been made available, amounted to ₱110 million.

Those who attended the conference were Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr.; Sens. Cipriano Primicias, Jose P. Laurel, Sr., Alejo Mabanag, Fernando Lopez, Emmanuel Pelaez, Francisco Delgado, and Gil Puyat; Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr.; Reps. Daniel Romualdez, Arturo M. Tolentino, Joaquin R. Roces, Tobias Fornier, Cesar Fortich, Jose Roy, Eladio Balite, and Jose Corpus; Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno; Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona; NEC Chairman Eduardo Romualdez, Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon; Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno; and Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable.

THE President today said that he would not remove Salvador Villa as general manager of the Manila Railroad Company, because Villa was doing a good job and his services were indispensable in the expansion of the MRR. The statement of the President was prompted by a petition of labor leaders of the MRR requesting the retention of Villa as general manager and Andres Hizon as chairman of the MRR board of directors.

Upon reading the petition, the President said: "There is no question about Villa. I never thought of removing him, because he is doing a good job and he is indispensable in the expansion program of the MRR."

The labor leaders, representing the eight labor unions of the MRR, were accompanied by Rep. Constancio Castañeda of Tarlac. The President also said he would retain Hizon.

The President spent a very busy morning this day. After his breakfast conference with Congress leaders, he proceeded to the study room, where he received callers until 2 p.m. The presidential callers were mostly from the provinces. Several of them pledged their support to the Administration and many requested aid for their various public works projects.

Among the provincial delegations were the San Miguel, Leyte, councilors and residents accompanied by Speaker Protempore Daniel Romualdez and Mayor Santiago Paladin; Surigao officials composed of Rep. Reynaldo Honrado, Mayors Arcadio Jamir of Bacuag and Rafael Okay of Marihatag; La Paz, Leyte, town officials composed of Mayor Santiago Paladin and councilors and accompanied by Rep. Domingo Veloso; mayors and leaders of Mindoro Oriental with Gov. Francisco Infantado; officials of Mindoro Occidental with Gov. Mariano Tajonera; farmers from Villasis and Sant6 Tomas, Pangasinan, accompanied by Mayor Juan Dizon of Villasis, Vice-Mayor Mamerto Robura of Villasis, Vice-Mayor Asterio Soriano of Alcala, and Mrs. Estela Primicias-Sindico; Nacionalista Party leaders of Nueva Ecija accompanied by NARIC Chairman Juan O. Chioco; and the delegation from Catanduanes with Gov. Juan Alberto.

Rep. Honrado said that the 25 mayors of Surigao have signed a resolution endorsing the re-election of President Garcia. The President thanked the Surigao solon and mayors for their confidence in him.

Members of the Philippine Association of Exhibitors of the Rolling-Floating Exposition also called on the President. They requested the Chief Executive the use of Navy LST boats during their floating exposition sometime in May. The President said that he would discuss the matter with Commodore Jose Francisco of the Navy.

Among the other callers were Sen. Mariano Jesus Cuenco; Reps. Wenceslao R. Lagumbay and Jacobo Gonzales of Laguna, Augusto Francisco of Manila, Felipe Abeleda of Mindoro Occidental, and Vicente Peralta of Sorsogon; Gov. Domingo Chipeco of Laguna; Minister, Manuel Escudero; and Baguio City Councilor Benito Lopez, who urged the President to recommend a bill to Congress making the mayorship of Baguio elective.

April 5.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed the ACCFA to provide corn planters with sufficient fertilizer this month because of the current planting season.

The President's directive was issued to the ACCFA assistant administrator, Dr. Francisco Sacay, who was called to Malacañang. It will be recalled that at a recent conference with sugar planters who had expressed willingness to devote part of their land to corn, the President said that he was in favor of the full implementation of the law appropriating ₱18 million for fertilizer.

The President told Dr. Sacay it was imperative that the corn planters be provided with sufficient fertilizer this month in order to remedy the current corn shortage. The Chief Executive, answering a report from Dr. Sacay that the demand for fertilizer was greater than what available funds could purchase, said that measures should be adopted to allocate fertilizer to applicants in accordance with their respective crops' planting seasons.

Dr. Sacay also informed the President that out of the ₱5 million already released for fertilizer, ₱3 million was utilized to import fertilizer and the other ₱2 million was used for the purchase of fertilizer from the National Power Corporation. The ₱5 million was released from the ₱18 million appropriated by law for the purchase of fertilizer annually.

After his conference with Dr. Sacay the President received the members of the NAWASA board of directors who submitted their individual and collective resignations "in order to give you a free hand to choose men of your confidence.

The President upon reading their resignations said: "I request you to carry on. I am carrying on the work of the late President Magsaysay and you should also carry on." After their resignations were turned down, the NAWASA directors pledged their support and cooperation to the Administration. The President thanked them and expressed gratefulness for their pledge.

The NAWASA directors who called on the President were retired Lieut. Gen. Jesus Vargas, chairman; Susano R. Negado, member ex officio; Vicente Orosa, Cristobal Santiago, and Hermenegildo R. Reyes, members.

The board of directors of the Association of Provincial Treasurers, City Treasurers Municipal Treasurers, and Assessors also called on the President and informed him that their association was studying some changes in the assessment system of the government. The President said that if they would send their recommendations to him, he would recommend to Congress whatever legislation may be necessary.

The directors of the association were headed by Conrado Hernandez, chairman Jose Perez, vice-chairman; Pio Advincula, secretary; and Pedro Coronel, treasurer.

Others who called on the President were Gov. Juan Alberto of Catanduanes and ex-Senator Justiniano Montano.

President Garcia also received Eleuterio J. Gustilo and Pastor A. Gonzales representing members of the Class of 1923 of the Philippine Law School, who requested the holding of a class reunion with the President who belonged

The President said that he would be very glad to attend the reunion with his former classmates.

Gustilo and Gonzales showed the President the yearbook of their class in which it was predicted that the then graduate, Garcia, would become the vice-president of the Philippines. This prediction, they said, was not only fulfilled but was more than realized when the then Vice-President Garcia became President of the Philippines.

THE Chief Executive today cabled Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo in Washington directing him to master all support for pending bills in the U.S. Congress designed to bring benefits to Filipino veterans.

The President was implementing original instructions of the late President Magsaysay on this matter, who before his death, had instructed Romulo to take necessary measures for the benefit of Filipino veterans.

At the same time, President Garcia told Romulo to convey the gratitude of the Filipino people to Congressman Olin T. Teague and Congressman Brooks: Harvey V. Higley, administrator of veterans affairs in Washington; and the American Legion for their efforts in helping the cause of the Filipino veterans.

The President cabled Romulo after a conference with Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao; Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff; and Brig. Gen. Manuel Cabal, PC chief.

PRESIDENT Garcia said this afternoon that he will not release for publication the report of the Philippine bases panel on the ill-fated negotiations it conducted with: a United States counterpart, August through December of last year, for the revision of the 1947 military bases agreement.

The Chief Executive told a press conference in Malacañang this afternoon that the report, popularly known as the "White Paper," was "classified" in its entirety and as such, could not be made public.

This was President Garcia's first actuation since he assumed the presidency, March 17, that contravened a declared wish of his predecessor, the late President Magsaysay.

Shortly after he had received the "White Paper" on February 28 from Senator Emmanuel Pelaez, panel spokesman, President Magsaysay said he would make public such portions of the report as would not endanger the security of either the Philippines or the US or breach diplomatic protocol.

Other than these considerations, President Magsaysay said, he saw no reason for withholding the "White Paper" from the public.

Sources close to the Philippine bases panel said one of the major matters which occupied President Magsaysay's mind shortly before his death was the determination of just what portions of the report to release.

President Garcia's emphatic refusal this day to have the "White Paper" published was expected to draw criticisms from several members of the bases panel, especially from those who had had a hand in preparing the report.

It was the sentiment of these members that publication of the "unclassified" portions of the report would give the populace a "better grasp" of the points at issue in the stalled negotiations.

They were of the opinion that such a knowledge would keep the public from believing charges that the bases panel had been “unreasonable” in its demands and would unite the populace behind the panel’s stand on the bases question.

PRESIDENT Garcia was awarded the degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa, in solemn ceremonies held this evening at the Philippine Law School, where he graduated magna cum laude 34 years ago.

In his address accepting the honor bestowed on him by his Alma Mater, the President congratulated the new crop of graduates and urged them to cooperate in the solution of two main problems confronting the nation today; namely, to alleviate the plight of the common man and to preserve our democratic institutions.

The doctorate hood was placed on the President at 6:20 p.m. by Ricardo C. Lacson, PLS president, assisted by the First Lady, Mrs. Garcia. Among those present at the ceremonies in connection with the institution’s 36th commencement exercises held at the PLS quadrangle in Intramuros, were members of the Cabinet, members of the diplomatic corps, senators, and representatives.

Associate Justice Conrado V. Sanchez of the Court of Appeals, orator of the occasion, traced the colorful political career of President Garcia; first, as representative and provincial governor of Bohol; next as senator, vice-president, and concurrently secretary of foreign affairs; and then, as President of the Republic. Justice Sanchez also recalled the exploits of the President as a guerrillero during the dark days of the Japanese Occupation.

The welcome address was delivered by PLS President Lacson, who also introduced President Garcia, the distinguished PLS alumnus. President Garcia’s speech lasted about 30 minutes.

The Chief Executive continued speaking despite a slight drizzle toward the end of his speech. The ceremonies ended shortly after 7 p.m. with the President shaking hands with this year’s graduates of his Alma Mater who filed past him on the stage.

From the PLS, the President returned to Malacañang and made ready for his trip to Baguio City, where he was scheduled to address visiting members of the Moral Rearmament Movement.

The President left the Palace for Baguio a little after 8 p.m. He was expected to return tomorrow afternoon to address the graduates of the Feati Institute of Technology.

April 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia, the First Lady, and their daughter Linda visited their other “palace” in Baguio City early this morning.

It was the first visit of the First Family to the Mansion House, the summer home of the Chief Executive, since President Garcia succeeded to the presidency last March 19.

The President was accompanied by three senators and representatives, province people, and political leaders headed by Gov. Juan Pajo of Bohol, and Malacañang newspapermen.

Having developed an aversion for airplanes, the President took a special presidential train to Damortis (La Union last night. Cars waited for him and the members of his party at Damortis to take them up through the sig-sags to the Pines City.

PRESIDENT Garcia this morning stressed the need of understanding moral values and living in accordance with moral principles as an effective means of neutralizing the effects of communism.

The President spoke before the Moral Rearmament Asian Assembly delegates who have been holding their conference at the Pines Hotel, from March 28 up to April 8. Twenty-seven countries are represented at the conference with some 250 delegates attending.

In his extemporaneous remarks, the President said that man should understand God's law and must adjust his life in accordance with these laws. He added the main reason why there was so much human suffering was that man disobeyed the moral or eternal laws.

He cautioned that man should not think bad thoughts, speak evil words, or do bad deeds. Otherwise, he said, man would reap what he had sown. Instead, he advised that man must always have kind thoughts, words, and deeds for his fellowmen.

He expressed the hope that if all nations lived up to the natural laws and observed the "eternal verities" there would be peace in the world. He added that the world must unite in correcting the tendency to forget spiritual things instead of stressing only the material things.

He said he was glad that the Moral Rearmament Movement was helping people in understanding the moral laws and in living in accordance with these laws.

He welcomed the delegates to the Philippines and wished them a most successful assembly.

In the course of the program, representatives from various countries recounted to the audience their personal experiences on how the Moral Rearmament Movement had vitally affected their lives and made them live as true Christians.

President Garcia arrived in Baguio at 2:30 this morning after a train ride from Manila to Damortis and there by car to Baguio.

The President was accompanied by the First Lady and their daughter Linda, Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon; Sens. Domocao Alonto, Francisco Delgado, and Roseller T. Lim; Rep. Angel Castaño of Manila; Bohol Governor Juan Pajo; Lieut. Col. Emilio Borromeo and Lt. Melchor Fronda; Assistant Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison; and Malacañang newspapermen.

The President spent the night at the guest house. After breakfast he motored to the Pines Hotel for his speaking engagement at the Moral Rearmament Movement conference.

Upon reaching the Hotel entrance, he was met by MRA officials and a group of delegates who sang a welcome song.

About 10:30 a.m., after he had addressed the MRA delegates, the President and his party motored down to Damortis, where they took the train for Manila, arriving at the Sta. Mesa railroad station about 4 p.m.

In the evening the president said that "national stability is the high goal of our individual and collective efforts."

He stressed: "This should be the guiding policy not only in the field of government but also in the sphere of private endeavor."

The President made this statement in his address at the 12th commencement exercises of the FEATI Institute of Technology, on which occasion he was conferred the degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa. The conferment rite was performed by the FEATI president, Dña. Victoria L. de Araneta.

In his prepared address, the President said that national stability was the “achievement of a well-balanced national development which leaves no portion of the nation and no phase of life to the withering effects of negligent conduct.”

He pointed out that a high material standard of life for every man and woman in the country was most desirable. However, he explained that the Government’s efforts to achieve economic development should not merely be directed toward that objective.

The President said: “Our thinking and our striving for an expanded agricultural and industrial growth should be dominated by an overpowering purpose. This should be the ultimate objectives of all our plans for national stability.”

Mentioning in particular the graduates of the FEATI, President Garcia said that they should be more than mere engineers, chemists, or technologists. He explained: “The graduate is a man and should be a man. He is a citizen and should be a free citizen. It is not enough that he understands and appreciates material values. It is absolutely essential that he must know human values and measure his achievements and life itself by such standards.

The Chief Executive, however, warned that in the desire to attain national stability, the people should remember “that the exaltation of the human spirit, the respect for the dignity of man, and the maintenance of freedom are the ends which we should strive after.” At this point the President differentiated the opposing ideologies of democracy and communism. He explained that democracy stands for human values and the moral and spiritual attributes of man. On the other hand, he said, communism regards material values “as the be-all and end-all of existence.”

Continuing in his address, he explained that a social system was likely to fall prey to communism unless a climate of political stability was developed and an adequate measure of economic stability was established. He said that aside from political stability, the country must develop a stable economy because “an economic vacuum creates a danger which will likely affect adversely the stability of our body politics if permitted to remain for a long time.”

He added: “It has always been the concern of our government to achieve an adequate measure of economic stability by developing our natural resources, by encouraging the expansion of our agriculture, and by creating incentives for the establishment of industries. While we are still distant from the desired goal of general economic stability, the evidence of increasing activities in this respect is too clear and palpable to be ignored except by those who will not give credit to achievements of a lighter degree than what has been accomplished by much older industrialized countries.”

Regarding the development of the country’s economy, the President said that “the prospects in this respect are bright and encouraging.”

Sounding a note of optimism, President Garcia said: “There is no cause for pessimism, no reason for despondency, no ground for alarm that eventually we might never enjoy an adequate measure of economic stability. We are moving with reasonable speed in the path of economic progress.”

The conferment on the President of the doctorate degree highlighted the twelfth graduation exercises of the FEATI Institute of Technology. The President was introduced as the commencement speaker by the FEATI vice-president and dean, Dr. G. Y. Zara.

April 7.—PRESIDENT Garcia started today his two-week Lenten fasting by hearing mass on board presidential yacht Sta. Maria en route to Catbalogan, Samar, where he intended to find out how the government could be of further help to thousands of fire victims.

The mass was said by Captain Juan Tugade, Navy chaplain, about 8 a.m. while the yacht was sailing off Calapan, Mindoro Oriental.

With the President at mass were Samar Reps. Gregorio Abogado, Eladio Balite, and Marciano Lim; Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, Armed Forces chief of staff; Commodore Jose Francisco, PN flag officer in command; Rodolfo Andal, general manager of the Government Service Insurance System; and newsmen.

President Garcia brought Andal along to look into the possibility of extending credit facilities to the fire victims and facilitate their rehabilitation, particularly the construction of their homes.

Andal was also instructed to survey the extent of damages on government buildings insured with the GSIS to expedite payment of the corresponding indemnity.

Negado came along to look into the extent of damages on the town's waterworks. He disclosed his intention to revise the outmoded waterworks system in Catbalogan.

After mass the President and his party ate breakfast. President Garcia did not take anything save water with sugar. This will be his daily fare for one week.

ABOUT 9 a.m. the yacht and its escort held rescue exercises while cruising off Mindoro. The drill lasted some 20 minutes and consisted of the yacht stopping its engines and the escort ship overtaking and coming alongside it.

Commodore Francisco explained that the exercise simulated an emergency aboard the Sta. Maria, where it had become necessary for the escort ship to come alongside and receive the yacht's passengers. The exercise was made difficult by high swells.

The President is scheduled to arrive at Catbalogan at 7 a.m. tomorrow. Aboard the yacht and its escort are additional relief supplies for the fire victims.

The President spent the rest of the day going over state papers and chatting with newsmen.

April 8.—THE President today instructed GSIS General Manager Rodolfo Andal to extend real estate loans to the Catbalogan fire victims regardless of whether or not they are members of the system, to facilitate reconstruction of homes and business establishments.

The President also authorized two months' salary loans to national, provincial, and municipal government employees in Catbalogan to help tide them over during the period of rehabilitation.

Complying with the President's instructions, Andal immediately authorized the local provincial treasurer to pay the salary loans of applicants out of any available funds from the provincial treasury, subject to reimbursement by the GSIS. Andal, who is with the presidential party, also asked the cooperation of the local Philippine National Bank agency.

The President made available the amount of ₱40,000 as relief of the fire victims. In this connection, he formed a relief committee composed of the provincial governor, the PC provincial commander, and the Social Welfare Administration representatives to dispose of the amount to aid effectively the sufferers.

A big crowd of Catbalogan residents was on hand as the presidential yacht Sta. Maria pulled up the local wharf at 7:15 a.m. Reception delegations were headed by Gov. Fernando Veloso, Catbalogan Mayor Esteban Pecson, and other officials from the nearby towns.

Escorted by the cheering townspeople, the President walked from the wharf to the provincial capitol about a kilometer away. Enroute, he noted the extent of the devastation wrought by the conflagration which gutted four-fifths of the town, including the commercial district. He also dropped in at the schoolhouse where refugee fire victims were temporarily housed and stayed a while to chat with a number of families. Members of the party were surprised that the President walked briskly despite the fact that today is the second day of his fasting.

Addressing a large crowd gathered before the steps of the capitol building, the President lauded the splendid work of the relief agencies and civic organizations in extending immediate aid. He said that so far 11,600 sacks of rice, 7,936 cases of canned goods, 3,000 bags of cement, and other relief goods from the Social Welfare Administration, the Red Cross, and private establishments were already in Caltbalogon. Other speakers were Govs. Veloso and Bernardo Torres of Leyte.

Then the President went to the governor's office on the second floor of the capitol building, where he conferred with local officials, including about 30 mayors who had come to Catbalogan to present their problems.

PRESIDENT Garcia today cabled a message to President Eisenhower on the occasion of the 15th anniversary of Bataan Day.

In his message, President j Garcia said: "Today our two peoples are fighting the more subtle enemy, Communism, which is trying to subvert the ideals we fought for on Bataan."

Continuing, he said: "The; Filipino people know well the benefits of liberty and freedom and will continue to fight with the great spirit exemplified in Bataan to preserve those ideals."

President Garcia said that the Filipinos were pledged that the spirit of Bataan should not perish, and! that those gallant Filipino and American heroes who died for democracy; shall not have died in vain."

April 9.—PRESIDENT Garcia today signified his intention to purchase a four-engine plane and a faster ship for the use of the chief executive in periodic inspection trips throughout the country.

In a press conference aboard the presidential yacht Sta. Maria at 12:30 p.m., a few hours before he landed in Manila on his return from Catbalogan, Samar, the President said that the head of the nation, whoever he may be, was entitled to a safer plane than the C-47 planes being used by the Air Force. He contemplated the acquisition of a small four-engine plane about the same size as a C-47.

Because the Philippines is made up of many islands, most of which are not equipped with airfields, the President also pointed out the need of providing the nation's chief executive with a faster boat to keep up with his tight schedules. "Not necessarily a yacht but a utility boat on which a president could go about from island to island with a minimum of delay," he said. The presidential yacht Sta. Maria is a converted Navy minesweeper of World War II vintage.

Asked where he expected to get the necessary funds for the purchase of the plane, the President said he would get it from Armed Forces appropriations or ask Congress to appropriate the necessary amount. The ship could perhaps be ordered from Japan under the reparations agreement, he added.

Commenting on reports that Congress would restore budget slashes except the ₱20 million earmarked for the NAMARCO because of alleged animosities existing between some Congressmen and NAMARCO Manager Benjamin Estrella, the President expressed confidence that even the ₱20 million would be restored.

He said that if reports of ill-feeling between some congressmen and Estrella were true, he did not believe that the congressmen would place personal animosities above the nation's welfare. "The NAMARCO needs the funds to carry on its program of helping maintain the economic stability of the nation," he said, "regardless of who may be heading the NAMARCO."

During the conference, the President disclosed that the GSIS teams dispatched to Catbalogan to process and pay two months' salary and real estate loans to fire victims had already arrived at their destination. He said that a radio message he had just received on board the yacht also informed him that the ₱40,000 he had allotted for the relief of the fire sufferers had already been received by the provincial treasurer of Samar from the PNB branch in Catbalogan.

In the course of the press conference, the President reiterated his preference for foreign investments over capital loans, saying, among other things, that foreign investments bring in technologists which this country is badly in need of. He pointed out, however, that foreign investments should be welcomed here on a selective basis, that is, in fields that had not yet been undertaken by Filipinos and which make use of local raw materials.

President Garcia also told newsmen at the press conference he will accept a "compromise with merits" which would solve the long drawn problem involving 2,400 overstaying temporary Chinese visitors in the Philippines.

The President said he was not abandoning the late President Magsaysay's policy to repatriate "as soon as possible" the overstaying Chinese temporary visitors.

However, he added, that a "compromise with merits" may be favorably considered by the Philippine Government.

The President took up the question of 2,400 overstaying Chinese temporary visitors following reports that Immigration Commissioner Emilio L. Galang had blamed the Cabinet for the immigration mess in his testimony before the Senate yesterday on the government's policy towards 3,000 Chinese who had overstayed their visit here.

In his testimony, Galang in effect accused the Department of Foreign Affairs of usurping his office's jurisdiction over these visitors and showed displeasure over the extension which Padre Faura had been granting the Chinese's right to stay here.

The Santa Maria, aided by favorable winds and currents, reached Manila at 1:45 p.m.

But President Garcia, locked in a chess battle with Col. Nicanor T. Jimenez, technical adviser in SEATO affairs did not go ashore immediately after the boat had docked at Pier 5.

Before playing chess, the President consented to an informal press conference with the newsmen on board the ship.

President Garcia dressed up on the boat and motored directly to the Luneta, where he addressed a big Bataan Day crowd.

From the Luneta, the President dropped in at Malacañang, where he got his cap and gown, then proceeded to the commencement exercises of the University of the Philippines in Diliman, Quezon City.

THIS afternoon the President motored to the Independence Memorial Grandstand, where he was the principal speaker at a program which climaxed the four-day celebration of the 15th anniversary of the Fall of Bataan.

Starting from the presidential yacht Sta. Maria, where he had taken a brief rest following his arrival from Catbalogan, Samar, the President was accompanied to the grandstand by the AFP chief of staff, Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, Col. Emilio Borromeo, and Col. Dionisio Ojeda. A 21-gun salute marked the President's arrival at the grandstand. He immediately responded to an honor guard composed of a company of soldiers in front of the grandstand.

“On behalf of the people of the United States, I send Bataan Day greetings to our friends in the Philippines. Bataan Day is a solemn day for both nations, for it is a time when we pause to remember the price and consider the meaning of freedom.

“To try to recapture in words the deeds of the men of Bataan is not possible. By their action they expressed the true spirit of freedom better than words could ever do. That spirit is what we commemorate today.

“We also commemorate the comradeship which has bound our two nations together so strongly in the past, and which continues to be so vital in the anxious present.

“The dangers which now confront us are in a sense just as real as those that were faced on Bataan fifteen years ago. So we continue to draw upon the spirit of devotion, of comradeship and courage, which is the noble legacy of Bataan.”

After delivering his speech, President Garcia laid wreath on the flag-draped cenotaph of the late President Ramon Magsaysay, while a vested choir led by Mrs. Sally Cuadra-Salcedo sang a hymn.

April 10.—AT the Cabinet meeting this morning President Garcia backed an order issued by Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez banning the exportation of bangos fry.

The President’s action was in line with his policy of giving each department head more authority with corresponding responsibility in discharging the tasks of their respective departments.

Rodriguez had ordered the banning of the exportation of bangos fry in order to protect the interests of fishpond owners who complained that the exportation of this item left them in difficulty looking for fish seedlings for their fishponds.

However, after considering the investments under permits which had been previously granted by the Cabinet in favor of some parties, the Cabinet authorized these permittees, including the last applicant, to ship abroad bangos fry up to and including June 30, 1957, without any further extension and subject to the following conditions:

- (1) Final verification by the Central Bank of the declared value prior to shipment;
- (2) Shipment of the bangos fry must be supervised by the Bureau of Fisheries, the Bureau of Immigration, and the Bureau of Customs;
- (3) Payment of the shipment in dollars to the Central Bank of the Philippines must be effected before shipment; and
- (4) Usual conditions imposed by the Export Control Committee. The President and the Cabinet approved the sale of the NARIC lot on Azcarraga and Evangelista Streets to the Government Service Insurance System for ₱6 million under such terms and conditions agreed upon by these two government entities.

It was understood the GSIS will absorb the obligations of the NARIC to the National Government in the amount of ₱4 million which will be charged against the accounts of the National Government with the GSIS. The balance of the purchase price will be paid by the GSIS direct to the NARIC upon the signing of the deed of sale. This will enable the NARIC to obtain additional funds for its stabilization function.

In this connection, the Cabinet reiterated its desire that the Office of Economic Coordination intensify the collection of amortizations and interests due the Philippine Government from government-owned corporations. The Cabinet authorized the OEC to require the Cebu Portland Cement Company to turn over to the National Development Company the amount of ₱10 million from the proceeds of the sale of the Bacnotan Cement Plant so that the NDC might be able to settle part of its indebtedness to the National Government.

Upon recommendation of the Department of Foreign Affairs, the Cabinet authorized Harvey E. Hodge to salvage a U.S. submarine which was sunk within the Sangley Point naval base as an exception to Executive Order No. 175, series of 1948, it appearing that this vessel was a public war vessel of the United States.

It was, however, stipulated that this action should not be taken as a waiver of whatever interests the Philippines might have over other vessels similarly situated under international or municipal laws or under the said Executive Order No. 175.

President Garcia, who presided over the Cabinet meeting, adjourned the meet shortly after 12 noon because of his speaking engagement at the Lions Club luncheon at the Manila Hotel. The meeting which was held at the Council of State room started at past 10:30 a.m.

THIS noon the President reiterated “we cannot live in isolation,” saying world conditions inevitably affect the local situation making it necessary for the Filipinos “to live with the rest of the world.”

The President was guest speaker at the regular luncheon meeting of the Manila Lions at the Winter Garden of the Manila Hotel. He delivered an extemporaneous speech after he was introduced by the Manila Lions president, Dr. Olimpio Villacorta, as “the President of the Philippines by the will of the people and by the will of God.”

Taking a dig at those “who prefer to live in the Sleepy Hollow of isolation of centuries ago,” the President said that it was necessary to give and take—to live with the rest of the world in order to attain universal freedom, universal peace, and universal happiness.

The President paid tribute to the Lions Club for realizing the necessity of world brotherhood. He pointed out that the Lions organization was all over the world.

Turning to the issue of nationalism, the President said that “we should re-define nationalism in terms of the present world situation.” He added that the concept of nationalism many years ago could no longer be the same concept of nationalism now. He envisioned a nationalism of the whole’ world where a tragedy for the Americans or the Eskimos will also be a tragedy for the Filipinos and all other nationals.

“We cannot live in isolation because every economic, political, or social situation in any part of the world affects us,” the President said.

The Chief Executive was made honorary member of the Manila Lions because of “his exemplary services as legislator and statesman, Vice-President of the Philippines, and Secretary of Foreign Affairs.” Macario Tan read the citation and Dr. Villacorta placed the Lion medallion on the President.

The President said in accepting the membership: “I will prove that this honorary membership has not been extended to me in vain.” He was also presented by the Manila Lions with a large green laminated chessboard aside from a chess book which was sold to him by the Lions during the program.

The Chief Executive was flanked on the presidential table by Acting Secretary of Education Martin Aguilar, Commerce Secretary Oscar Ledesma, General Emilio Aguinaldo, Dr. Villacorta, District Lions Governor Eugenio Eusebio, Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, and Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao. The President arrived at the Manila Hotel a few minutes after 1.p.m. and returned to Malacañang about 2:30 p.m.

EARLIER, after the Cabinet meeting and on his way to the Lions meeting, the President met a delegation of the Philippine Manpower Reserve, Incorporated, who requested aid for the employment of the organization's deserving and neediest members.

The President informed the members of the organization that the late President Magsaysay had authorized the release of ₱200,000 for the self-help projects of the Social Welfare Administration designed to aid unemployed persons. The Chief Executive said that the members of the organization could desire help from these projects. He also said that he would study their problems thoroughly. Spokesman of the organization was Ricardo Rod. Reyes. Labor Secretary Eleuterio Adevosio also talked to the delegation.

The President's only callers in the morning before the regular Cabinet meeting were Netherlands Minister to the Philippines Allard Merens, Van Gorkon of the Netherlands Legation, and Miss Clarice Lorenz of Australia.

Minister Merens, who is scheduled to leave for his country on reassignment, bade goodbye to the President. He was presented by the President with a kamagong walking cane. Van Gorkon is the charge d'affaires of the Netherlands legation.

Miss Lorenz, founder of the National Opera of Australia, paid a courtesy call on the President.

Those nominated were: Col. Diosdado L. Rodriguez, AFP deputy chief of staff; Nicanor S. Velarde, commanding officer of the Philippine Army Training Command; Col. Tirso G. Fajardo, 3rd Infantry Division commander; and Col. Juan C. Relosa, commanding officer of 2nd Military Area.

SUPPORT of the entire province of Bataan was pledged to President Garcia's nomination at the convention and to his election in the coming November polls by a big delegation of officials from that province this evening.

Former Bataan Gov. Adelmo Camacho, chairman of the Nacionalista Party in the province who acted as spokesman if the group, told the President that all the Bataan delegates to the Nacionalista convention, including the two board members and mayors, were behind President Garcia one hundred per cent.

Camacho said that inasmuch as President Garcia had been elected together with the late President Magsaysay in the 1953 elections and inasmuch as the President was wholeheartedly carrying on the program of government of the late President, he deserved a chance to 'serve a full term as president.

President Garcia said that he was touched by the spontaneous demonstration of support shown by the Bataan delegation which came from the province of the late President's wife. He said that, knowing the great responsibility he had in carrying out to realization the unfinished work of the late President, nothing could gladden him more than to receive such promise of support.

He pledged to the delegation that he would do his best in fulfilling his task so that the great work begun by the late President Magsaysay would not be interrupted.

The President said: "I hope to be able to deserve your continuous support."

The delegation headed by Camacho consisted of Board Members Raymundo Galicia and Faustino Vigo; Mayors Lorenzo Bongco of Orani, Federico Muli of Dinalupihan, Jose Advincula of Mariveles, and Lorenzo de la Fuente of Abucay; Ex-Mayor Manuel Santos of Orion; and other political leaders in the province.

Another delegation from Davao likewise called to pledge its support. The delegation included Mayors Hermogenes Baloyo of Tagum, Gonzalo Palamos of Hagonoy, Lauro Arabejo of Compostela, and Severino Lacson of Moncayo.

Among the last callers this evening were Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez and Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno.

April 11.—AFTER breakfast with Don Exequiel Magsaysay, father of the late President Magsaysay, Rep. Godofredo Ramos of Aklan, Gov. Jose Dinglasan of Capiz, and Geminiano Yabut, the Chief Executive proceeded to the study room, where he attended to the problems and requests of many callers. On this fifth day of his fasting, the President took only water during breakfast. Don Exequiel came to Malacañang to return the President's visit to him and Mrs. Exequiel Magsaysay.

Among the callers of the President was Pedro D. Dioquino, a lawyer of Masbate, Masbate, who expressed appreciation for the recent removal by the Chief Executive of District Judge Pascual Santos as judge of the court of first instance of Masbate. Dioquino told the President that he was the original complainant against Judge Santos and as a result of his complaint an investigation followed resulting in the recommendation of dismissal of Judge Santos by the Supreme Court.

The President told Dioquino that the removal of Judge Santos was in line with the Administration's policy of weeding out undesirable public officials. Dioquino pledged his support to the President's re-election.

Another group which expressed full support for the President's reelection was a delegation of officials and leaders of Isabela headed by Rep. Delfin Albano. The Isabela delegation endorsed the President's re-election and thanked him for the implementation of the program on the financing and buying of native tobacco. Among those in the delegation were Mayor Panfilo Masigan, ex-Gov. Agustin Pintang, ex-Mayor Augusto Perez, ex-Board Member Felipe Padua, Pedro Cabauatan, Councilor Roger Esquera, Councilor Andres Carag, and Manuel Apostol.

A delegation of small fishermen headed by Arcadio Nuestro, president of the Federation of Manila Bay Fishermen, also called on the President and requested him to ban trawl fishing in Manila Bay. The President said that the matter would be studied thoroughly, together with the other requests for the banning of trawl fishing in other areas.

The fisherman complained to the President that their fishermen's village in Tondo was being occupied by some squatters. The President referred them to the Bureau of Lands with the directive that the matter be taken care of as soon as possible.

Rep. Joaquin Rocas of Manila accompanied Leo Hockstetter, Far East representative of the Motion Picture Association of America, and some proprietors of Manila movie houses, including Marcos Rocas and Ernesto Rufino, who discussed with the President the problems, of the foreign movie industry here. Juan Tan, labor leader, was also present at the conference representing the laborers and employees working in the movie theaters and companies. The President assured Hockstetter that he would confer with Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno on measures to solve the problems of the foreign movie industry in the country.

The President also met a delegation from Bataan composed of ex-Gov. Adelmo Camacho, ex-Gov. Alberto Aquino, Board Member Faustino Vigo, Mayor Federico Muli of Dinalupihan, and Mayor Jose Advincula of Mariveles. The delegation requested artesian wells and pre-fabricated school houses for the various barrios of Bataan.

Other callers of the President included Speaker Protempore Daniel Romualdez; Reps. Pedro Trono and Ramon Tabiana of Iloilo, Ignacio Cruz of Misamis Oriental and his delegation, Ramon Durano, Manuel Zosa, and Maximino Noel of Oebu, Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan, Mateo Pecson of Masbate, and Rogaciano Mercado of Bulacan; Gov. Alejo Santos of Bulacan; ex-Sen. Prospero Sanidad; ex-Gov. Gregorio Santayana of Quezon; ex-Gov-Paciencio Ysalina of Misamis Oriental; and, ex-Gov. Federico Castillo of Mindoro Occidental.

THE President today turned down the resignation of Dagupan City Mayor Teofilo Guadiz. Mayor Guadiz was an appointee of the late President Magsaysay. In his letter of resignation, Mayor Guadiz said that he was resigning in order to give the President a free hand to name his own choice for the Dagupan mayoralty.

President Garcia also signed Proclamation No. 406, declaring Saturday, April 20, as a special public holiday.

April 20, follows immediately Holy Thursday and Good Friday, which are public holidays, and immediately precedes Easter Sunday.

PRESIDENT Garcia tackled an old ticklish problem this afternoon—the presidency of the University of the Philippines.

The Chief Executive had merienda with the officers and members of the UP Alumni Association, headed by Sen. Domocao Alonto.

It was learned that the alumni recommended names for the President's consideration in the choice of the UP presidency.

The UP Alumni Association had previously endorsed Dean Vicente G. Sinco of the College of Law to head the UP.

April 12.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning had breakfast conference with 18 congressmen who reiterated their stand to support a Garcia-Laurel, Jr., ticket in the coming convention of the Nacionalista Party.

The congressmen also suggested to the President that a meeting of the executive committee of the NP be called immediately “to discuss some important matters and exchange ideas.”

Speaker Protempore Daniel Romualdez, who acted as spokesman of the group, told the President that the sentiment among the House NP members was that Speaker Laurel should be the vice-presidential candidate of the party. “We will pursue this line in the convention,” Romualdez said.

Answering the congressmen, the President said that he would abide by the decision of the convention. He added that he would discuss the possibility of calling a meeting of the NP executive committee with leaders of the party.

Other matters taken up during the conference were the legislative program of the Administration and the implementation of the Administration's rural development projects. The breakfast conference, which lasted for an hour, was attended by Speaker Protempore Romualdez, Reps. Constancio Castañeda of Tarlac, Enrique Corpus of Zambales, Alberto Ubay of Zamboanga del Norte, Bartolome Cabangbang and Natalio Castillo of Bohol Gaudencio Abordo of Palawan, Cesar Fortich of Bukidnon, Rogaciano Mercado of Bulacan, Felipe Garduque of Cagayan, Manuel Zosa of Cebu, Agustin Gatuslao of Negros Occidental, Lorenzo Teves of Negros Oriental, Jose Nuguid of Bataan, Wenceslao R. Lagumbay of Laguna, Ricardo Ladrido of Iloilo, Angel Castañano of Manila, and Tobias Fornier of Antique. Malacañang Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable was also present at the conference.

AFTER the breakfast conference, the President proceeded to the study room, where he met a delegation of retired top Army officers who proposed the sending of a veterans mission to the United States to work for benefits and claims of Philippine veterans and war widows. In the delegation were Maj. Gen. Calixto Duque, Maj. Gen. Guillermo Francisco, Brig. Gen. Florencio Selga, Brig. Gen. Alberto Ramos, Col. Francisco Enage, and Mrs. Pilar Normandy. They were accompanied by Sen. Ruperto Kangleon.

The retired officers made the proposal to the President in a written memorandum. The President said that he would discuss the matter with some government leaders. He assured the retired Army officers of help from the executive branch of the government in case the plan is finally put through. He also told them to discuss the matter with Congress leaders in order to get congressional support for the proposed mission.

Representatives of American insurance companies in the Philippines also called on the President and informed him of their problems. Insurance Commissioner Ceferino Villar was present at the conference. Those who called on the President were Arthur Henderson, president of the local branch of the American International Underwriters; Gus Oliver, local manager of the Insurance Company of North America; and Victor Bello, local manager of the American Foreign Insurance Association. They were accompanied by Charles Hodge, U.S. Embassy economic consultant, and Edwards Milans, U.S. Embassy commercial attaché.

IN the presence of officers of the Community Chest of the Philippines, the President signed a proclamation setting aside the period from June 1, 1957, to July 15, 1957, for the 1957 Community Chest Fund Campaign. The kick-off for the 1957 Community Chest fund drive will be held on June 1 at Malacañang. Carlos Palanca is the Chairman of this year's fund drive. Among those present during the signing of the proclamation were FEU President Teodoro Evangelista and Mrs. Trinidad F. Legarda. Mrs. Leonila Garcia, the First Lady, was also present.

After signing the proclamation, the President conferred with ACCFA Chairman and General Manager Osmundo Mondoñedo, Philippine Tobacco Administration Manager Manuel Turingan, and four congressmen from the North. Discussed during the conference was the plan for financing, grading, and buying of native tobacco. The President instructed Turingan and Mondoñedo to get together and thresh out the problems affecting native tobacco. The congressmen present at the conference were Reps. Amadeo Perez of Pangasinan, Manuel Cases of La Union, Felipe Garduque of Cagayan, and Delfin Albano of Isabela.

Other callers of the President included Gov. Juan Alberto of Catanduanes and Filemon Rodriguez, former chairman of the National Power Corporation and the National Economic Council.

MALACAÑANG announced today that President Garcia has reinstated Vicente Gella as National Treasurer of the Philippines owing to lack of evidence to warrant his prosecution in court in connection with alleged backpay irregularities.

The President reinstated Gella pending the final disposition of the administrative case against him (Gella) and without prejudice to the final outcome of the same. The reinstatement order was forwarded to Gella this day by Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon.

In reinstating Gella, the President also took into consideration the voluminous record of the administrative case which will take time to study.

The President today signed an administrative order designating members of the committee to coordinate the planning of the Marikina multi-purpose project.

Designated members of the committee were the secretary of public works and communications, as chairman, the director of public works, the general manager of the NAWASA, the general manager of the National Power Corporation, the commissioner of public highways, a representative of the National Power Board, a representative of the auditor general, a representative of the secretary of finance, and a representative of the National Economic Council.

Among the purposes of the Marikina project are (1) to regulate and control floods and (2) to provide storage of the flow of the river and the use of such stored water for irrigation, water supply, and power generation. The committee will serve as the coordinating body of the project.

IN the evening the President administered the oath of office to Pullong Arpa as minister to Egypt. Present at the ceremony held at the President's study in Malacañang were Mrs. Arpa, Sen. Domacao Alonto, and a delegation from Sulu, home province of the appointee.

The first Filipino Moslem appointed to the foreign service with the rank of minister, Arpa thanked the Chief Executive for the confidence reposed in him. President Garcia replied that Arpa's appointment was in accordance with the Administration's policy to give "Brother Moslems" greater participation in the government.

Arpa is a member of the board of directors of the Moslem Association of the Philippines. He will be the first minister of the Philippines to Egypt since the elevation of the Philippine diplomatic office in that country from consulate to legation. Yusup Abubakar, Philippine consul general there, will be charge d'affaires of the new Philippine legation.

April 13.—EARLY this morning, President Garcia received William Whiteford and Henry Hood, president of Gulf Oil Company and vice-president of the Lincoln National Life Insurance Company, respectively, who paid a courtesy call following their arrival in Manila in the course of a tour of the Far East.

Both business executives were accompanied to Malacañang by Gerald Wilkinson. The affair was purely social. Breakfast was served to the President's guests while the Chief Executive took only a glass of warm water with sugar. Today is the seventh day of President's fasting.

After the breakfast, the President was presented by Hood with a plastic paper weight with a profile of President Lincoln.

The breakfast lasted from 8 to 9 p.m.

The conferees discussed problems affecting Mindanao. Among the matters taken up were the full implementation of the Administration's rural development program, the construction of feeder roads, and more artesian wells.

PRESIDENT Garcia this morning instructed PCAC Chairman Frisco San Juan to investigate complaints that AFP officials had been mauled by Quezon City police the other night. The President took this action upon receipt of a complaint from a local radio announcer this morning.

The Chief Executive told San Juan that, if warranted, proper charges should be filed and drastic action taken against guilty parties.

According to the complaint received by the President, one Anita Lapeña, legal wife of Lt. Reynaldo Melosantos, disappeared from the family home on February 19, returned briefly on February 25 and left on the same day, and returned again March 4 and again disappeared on March 25.

The other night Lt. Melosantos and his father, Capt. Leopoldo Melosantos, had been tipped off about Anita's whereabouts. Riding in an Army jeep, they spotted her walking with QCPD Detective Jesus Antonio along South 6th Street in Kamuning. The girl and the detective were taken by the Army men into the jeep and taken to the house of Undersecretary Jose Crisol, but Crisol was out at the time. They were next taken to the house of Secretary Eulogio Balao, but Balao was also out. Then they went to the house of Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, who referred them to the PC criminal investigation service.

The CIS was beginning to investigate the case when Capt. Melosantos thought of going back to the detective's house in Kamuning to get Lapeña's belongings and from there go to the Manila Police Department. While the two officers, the girl, and the detective were near the Quezon Monument, they were stopped by Quezon City police members, some of whom were in uniform while others were in plain clothes.

The officers, although in civilian clothes, fully identified themselves. In fact the driver was in complete uniform. But they were all allegedly forced out of the jeep at gunpoint and taken to Quezon City Police headquarters where they were manhandled. The abuse was allegedly heavy in the case of Sgt. Gregorio Ponciano driver of the Army jeep, who is still confined at the V. Luna General Hospital.

He filed an application for enrolment in the home study course on National language offered by the institute for government employees.

The President also signed as part of the application a promise to contribute paper and mimeograph ink to enable the INL to keep up with the course. He was issued student identification No. 497, and the first lesson has been forwarded to him.

The President, in his application for enrolment, confessed that he knows "kakaunti pa lamang" of the national language and that he would like to know more, being the highest executive of the land.

THE President left this afternoon for week-end-cruise. The yacht Santa Maria steamed into Manila Bay about 5:25 this afternoon. President Garcia was accompanied by NEC Presiding Officer Eduardo Z. Romualdez, GSIS General Manager Rodolfo P. Andal, AFP Chief of Staff Alfonso Arellano, Commodore Jose Francisco, Col. Nicanor Jimenez, Assistant Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, Air Force Chief Pedro Q. Molina, Col. Jose Ramos, Gov. Juan Pajo of Bohol, Maj. Jose Estrella, and Dr. Jose Corpus, physician of the President.

The President took with him a thick bundle of state papers. He said he would study some economic problems with Romualdez and Andal. He also said he would continue discussing details of the proposed acquisition of a new presidential plane with General Arellano and Cols. Molina and Ramos.

April 14.—PRESIDENT Garcia was briefed today by Acting NEC Presiding Officer Eduardo Z. Romualdez of the general economic situation in the country and abroad. He also briefed the President on the detail and background materials concerning the proposal to enter into a trade protocol with Japan which the President is expected to take up at the next Cabinet meeting.

This was in view of the proximity of the termination of the open account agreement with Japan on April 30. Romualdez also informed the President on the progress of the acquisition and implementation of industrial priority formula in line with the efforts of the government to intensify industrial development. Those are the three main points that the President discussed with Romualdez, one of his economic advisers.

The President also went over state papers. This morning the President-heard palm Sunday mass aboard the yacht Sta. Maria.

He started taking fruit juice in the morning of this second week of his fasting for the overhauling of his digestive system.

The President refrained from playing chess this day. Instead he busied himself reading the Bible. He read the chapters on the Passion of Christ as a part of his observance of Holy Week which started this day.

The Sta. Maria docked at Pier 5 at 10:30 in the evening, some three hours, behind the President's scheduled return to Malacañang.

April 15.—THIS morning the President awarded the Philippine Legion of Honor (Degree of Commander) to Rear Admiral Wendell G. Switzer of the U.S. Navy. The award was given after a breakfast given at Malacañang by President and Mrs. Garcia in honor of Admiral and Mrs. Switzer.

Admiral Switzer was cited for exceptionally meritorious and valuable services to the Republic. The citation said that Admiral Switzer "has greatly assisted in the technical advancement of the Armed Forces of the Philippines by affording the Philippine Navy the generous exploitation of invaluable materials, modern facilities, and skilled personnel of his command, particularly the use of the U.S. Navy ship repair services at Subic, Zambales."

The citation added that aside from Switzer's contribution to the enhancement of the security of the Republic, "he has displayed profound and sincere concern for the love and collective welfare of the Filipino people by his spontaneous assistance during emergencies and other expressions of humanitarian services rendered regardless of place, time, and expense.”

The citation also said that “following the initial announcement of the aircraft tragedy involving the late President Magsaysay, and without any further consideration he immediately mobilized his command and dispatched planes and personnel to the search and rescue operations, in a most benevolent and unmistakable manifestation of the deep ties he has consciously established between himself and our people.”

The citation was read by Lt. Col. Emilio Borromeo, presidential aide. Assisting at the rites were Mrs. Switzer, Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao, and Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff.

After the breakfast and immediately before the awarding of the Legion of Honor, President Garcia delivered brief remarks in which he expressed the appreciation of the Philippine Government for the various ways of assistance rendered by Admiral Switzer to the Filipino people. He said that in this way Switzer had contributed to the fostering of closer ties of friendship between the Philippines and the United States.

The President expressed the hope that the Admiral would meet the same success in his future assignments as he had met here during his tour of duty in the Philippines. In his response Switzer thanked the President and the Philippine Government for the honor conferred upon him which he said he accepted with great humility. He recalled that during his stay in the Philippines, he was fortunate to have made the friendship of government officials and the Filipino people, which friendships, he said he would cherish during all his life. He wished President Garcia success in his administration.

The President gave souvenir gifts to Admiral Switzer consisting of a kamagong cane and a box of Philippine cigars. Mrs. Garcia gave Mrs. Switzer a piña luncheon set.

PRESIDENT Garcia this morning assured members of the Social Security Commission that he would endorse and certify, if necessary, the bill amending the Social Security Commission Act.

Labor Secretary Eleuterio Adevos, chairman of the commission, told the President that if the bill was approved it would benefit workers, laborers, and employees working in private firms. The amendatory bill seeks to correct some defects in the original law creating the commission.

Rodolfo P. Andal, Government Service Insurance System General Manager, also told the President that he shared the views of Secretary Adevos concerning the amendatory bill. The members of the commission told the President that the amendment was necessary before the law is implemented. Other members of the commission who discussed the bill with the President were Health Undersecretary Rafael Tumbukon representing the secretary of health and Teofilo Reyes, representing management.

Secretary Adevos also accompanied the members of the Philippine delegation to the ILO conference in Geneva, Switzerland, this June. The President wished the delegation luck. Members of the delegation, who paid a courtesy call, included Dean Jorge Bocobo, Cipriano did, Cesar Lorenzo, Juan Tan, Felina Reyes, Feliciano Belmonte, Jr., Ruben Santos, and Raul Inocentes.

The President conferred with NARIC Board Chairman Juan O. Chioco and Bureau of Internal Revenue Collector Jose Arañas. The President and Chioco discussed the progress of the measures adopted by the Administration to remedy the current corn shortage while Collector Arañas reported on the progress of tax collection.

Officers of the National Press Club headed by President Domingo Abadilla made representations with the President for houses and lots which could be sold to homeless newspapermen. With the newsmen was Vicente Orosa, People's Homesite and Housing Corporation chairman and general manager, who informed the President that portions of Project 8 in Quezon City would be set aside for newspapermen.

Other callers of the President included Sen. Decoroso Rosales, Rep. Enrique Corpus of Zambales, Rep. Numeriano Babao of Batangas, Gov. Francisco Infantado of Mindoro Oriental, ex-Rep, Leon Cabarroguis, Leyte ex-Governor Honorio Lopez, Mayor Francisco Enriquez of Atimonan, Quezon, and a delegation from the municipality, and Judge Guillermo Guevara.

A delegation of northern Negros coffee producers called on the President and denounced Forestry Director Felipe Amos for refusing to release the northern forest reserve in; Negros Occidental for their use. The delegation told the President that the area was promised them by the late President Magsaysay. The President said he would discuss the matter with Director Amos. The delegation, headed by Rep. Jose Puey, was composed of Alfredo Maraño, president; Vicente Katalbas, vice-president; and Salvador L. Paris, technical man of the coffee planters association.

The President finished receiving callers about 1 p.m., after which he motored to Pasay City where he attended a luncheon given by the Friends of Roxas Society on the occasion of the 10th anniversary of the death of the late President Manuel A. Roxas. The President went to the luncheon party with the First Lady and Malacañang Protocol Officer Manuel Zamora. Mrs. Trinidad Roxas met the President and the First Lady.

Earlier in the morning President Garcia had ordered a wreath sent to the Roxas historical marker at Clark Field where the late President died. Brig. Gen. Leoncio Tan, 1st MA commanding general, laid the wreath on behalf of the President.

The Chief Executive also sent a wreath to the Roxas tomb at the Cementerio del Norte. Upon his direction, units of the Presidential Guards Battalion were mounted at the tomb.

MALACAÑANG announced today that Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao will head a Philippine mission to Washington that will confer with officers of the U. S. National Shrines Commission for Bataan and Corregidor to finalize plans for a $6 million memorial on Corregidor.

Members of the Philippine team, scheduled to leave the last week of April, are Lieut. Jesus Vargas, retired Armed Forces chief of staff, and Col. Jose Razon, representing Filipino veterans. Razon will travel on his own.

The team will meet with the U. S. body headed by former U. S. Ambassador Emmet O'Neal which has been raising funds for an appropriate memorial on Corregidor to honor Filipino-American comradeship in World War II.

PRESIDENT Garcia accepted today the tender of resignation which PCAC Vice-Chairman Antonio J. Villegas reiterated last Friday.

In resigning Villegas assured that even in private life he will continue helping the cause of good government. Villegas resigned from his positions as vice-chairman of the PCAC and special prosecuting counsel in the various administrative cases which the late President Ramon Magsaysay had assigned to him.

IN the afternoon the President received members of the Far East Trade Mission sent over by the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce to survey possibilities of increasing investments in Asian countries.

With Ned Lewis, vice-president of the Wilbur Ellis Company and LACC director, acting as spokesman, the mission informed the President that their survey would last about two months and would take them to Hongkong, Japan, and other important countries in Asia, aside from the Philippines.

The President assured members of the mission that the Philippine Government was always ready to welcome foreign investments that would promote the development of the country. He asked the group not to hesitate to call upon any government agency which they thought could be of assistance to them in their survey work here.

Accompanied to Malacañang by Ed Milans of the U. S. Embassy in Manila and Stanley Fisher of the local American Chamber of Commerce, other members of the mission included Eugene D. Flaherty, vice-president of the American President Lines; Julian E. Embshoff, vice-president of Citizens National Trust and Savings Banks of Los Angeles; John F. Parkinson, traffic manager of the Los Angeles Harbor department; John A. Showers, director of the Far East Division of the World Trade Department; and Fred C. Embshoff.

Later in the evening, the President also received executives of the Standard Vacuum Oil Company headed by Cris Larsen, who informed him of plans of his firm to establish an oil refinery in Bataan.

President's Month in Review: April 16-30, 1957

April 16.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning held a breakfast conference with officials of the United States Veterans Administration who discussed with him the operations of that office.

Present during the breakfast were Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao; John T. Cooper, Jr., manager of the local office of the USVA; Dr. Robert Cook, medical coordinator; Thomas Lee, assistant chief of the legal division; Henry Scott, assistant to the manager; and Col. Bernard Anderson, who represented the American Legion.

Using different charts to illustrate his points, Cooper informed the President that:

- (1) Of the total U. S. expenditures in the Philippines, 53 per cent goes to the veterans and their families;
- (2) The expenditures of the USVA contribute 11 per cent of the country's foreign exchange reserves;
- (3) The USVA is now paying ₱65 million to the country's veterans and their families; and
- (4) In line with the policy of the USVA, the beneficiaries maintain bank deposits which at present total ₱40 million.

Cooper also informed the President that the local USVA was the lone office outside the United States administering veterans' affairs. In other countries, Cooper added, veterans' affairs were handled by attaches.

Financing of the Veterans Memorial Hospital for the next 10 years was discussed. No details about this matter were released.

After the breakfast conference, the President proceeded to the Malacañang study room, where he received some callers.

Rep. Luminog Mangelen headed a delegation from Cotabato which requested assistance for public improvements.

Individual callers were Sen. Quintin Paredes, Speaker Protempore Daniel Romualdez, Gregorio Licaros, and Tito Timpo, mayor of Kibawi, Bukidnon.

Roberto Oca, president of the Philippine Transportation Workers Organization, invited the President to be the guest during the convention of that labor organization on April 28 at the National Press Club building.

The President received callers up to 1 p.m.

THE President, on the tenth of his Lenten fasting today, drank milk in accordance with his two-week fasting schedule. He would continue taking milk up to Holy Saturday, the last day of his fasting.

Upon the recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole, President Garcia today granted 27 conditional pardons, three absolute pardons, and one special absolute pardon.

IN the afternoon the President and Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, the First Lady, motored out of Malacañang. They returned late in the afternoon.

April 11.—AT 5 o'clock this morning the President left for Baguio City, where he is expected to spend the rest of the Holy Week. He took along bundles of pending state papers.

Riding in a car, the President was accompanied by Maj. Jose Estrella, aide; Gerardo Palaypay, appointments secretary; and some newsmen.

President Garcia arrived in Baguio at 10 a.m. after a four-hour drive from Manila,

The Chief Executive arrived in Baguio with former Executive Secretary Jose Reyes. Reyes stayed at the Mansion House with the First Lady's relatives.

On the way to the Pines City, the President paused at the town of Sison, Pangasinan, where he presided over a press conference at a restaurant. President Garcia sipped milk while the newsmen took coffee.

Upon his arrival at the Guest House, the President closeted himself reading the Bible and the Passion of Christ. At the stroke of 12- noon, he led a one-minute prayer for the late President Magsaysay.

The prayer offering was attended by Exequiel Magsaysay, father, of the late President; Mrs. Concepcion Labrador; Ramon Magsaysay, Jr.; Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano; Brig. Gen. Manuel Cabal; and Brig. Gen. Pelagio Cruz.

The President held a second press conference within two hours in front of the Lourdes Grotto at the Mansion House. He retired at 1 p.m. saying that he would devote the rest of the day to meditation.

PRESIDENT Garcia today dismissed nationalism as a campaign issue and said he would base on the economic issue his bid to retain the post he took over from the late President Magsaysay.

In two press conferences within two hours, President Garcia also said that:

1. He would order the Department of Justice to investigate the reported ₱12 million lobby for overstaying Chinese visitors if government agencies could gather sufficient evidence to warrant a probe.
2. He hoped the bases negotiations between the Philippines and the United States would be resumed.

The Chief Executive disclosed some of his political plans as the official mourning period ended for President Magsaysay, who died in a plane crash with 25 others last March 17.

He said he would launch a full-scale offensive after the Holy Week to win the Nacionalista presidential nomination and eventually the November election.

President Garcia at his first press conference in Sison, Pangasinan, this morning told newsmen that he would launch a full-blast campaign Monday to win the NP presidential nomination and the November balloting.

Asked by newsmen about his political plans, President Garcia smiled, saying such plans and strategy were never disclosed—"they are a military secret."

But he said he would launch his political campaign on the issue of economic development. He waved aside the possibility of fighting on the nationalism issue, saying, "We are all nationalists."

Explaining his economic program, the President said he was not in favor of the lifting of exchange controls, saying the economy of the country did not warrant such action.

He reiterated that he favored foreign investment in the Philippines.

Asked about the role of the Constabulary and the Army in the coming elections, President Garcia said those military organizations would be used only in maintaining peace and order upon the request of the Commission on Election.

He said he would instruct the Department of Justice to investigate the alleged lobby if government agencies could gather sufficient evidence on which to start a probe.

Meanwhile, he said, the Government was pressing consistently for the deportation of the overstaying aliens.

The President hinted displeasure with Immigration Commissioner Emilio Galang, but refused to answer a newsman's query as to whether he would fire the immigration chief.

Galang, in testimony at the Senate hearings on the alleged ₱12 million lobby, laid part of the blame for the continued stay in the Philippines of more than 2,000 temporary Chinese visitors on actions by President Garcia when he was vice-president and concurrently secretary of foreign affairs.

Asked to comment on Galang's testimony, the President replied, "Galang doesn't deserve to be answered by the President. There was confusion in the statements of the immigration commissioner," he added.

During this interview, the President said he would keep Secretary of Justice Pedro Tuason in the Cabinet.

"No one can impeach the integrity of Tuason," he said.

PRESIDENT Garcia decided to commute the death penalty imposed upon prisoner Victor de Vega to life imprisonment as a pure act of mercy, considering that the killing of the deceased, Florentino Completo, alias Faustino Completo, happened during the Japanese occupation in 1944 when, on account of the resistance against the enemy, the temper of the times was such that people would take away human life without much deliberation and forethought.

The President believes that the killing of the deceased by Victor de Vega had something to do with the activities of the guerrilla band operating in the border of Cavite and Batangas to which de Vega was attached.

April 18.—PRESIDENT Garcia heard Maundy Thursday mass at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the small chapel of the Guest House. Fr. Juan Tugade, Navy chaplain, said the mass. Among those present were presidential aides and newsmen.

Fr. Tugade went to Baguio to assist the President in his spiritual retreat. He brought for President Garcia appropriate reading matters, among them pamphlets and sermons on the Seven Last Words.

The President continued reading the Bible this morning. At past nine a.m., he walked around the lawn of the Mansion House accompanied by Assistant Press Secretary Sison. Then the President went alone to one of the kiosks where he spent a few minutes of spiritual contemplation. He said the atmosphere of the place was conducive to meditations.

Following the late President's policy, President Garcia had the Mansion House and Guest House and grounds open to the people. Hundreds of vacationists trekked to the grounds for sight-seeing. In his garden stroll, the President met a group of teachers from Negro's Occidental and another group from Davao. He greeted them and asked if they were enjoying their Baguio sojourn.

Later the President met Rep. Emilio Cortez of Pampanga in front of the Guest House and discussed with him land problems. President Garcia said he would prosecute vigorously the Magsaysay policy of buying big landed estates for resale at cost to tenants. He added that he would back up the work of the Land Tenure Administration in helping solve the tenancy problem.

April 19.—PRESIDENT Garcia woke up late this morning, having played chess from 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon to 4 o'clock this morning with former Executive Secretary Jose Reyes, a house guest. The President said Reyes won once after many attempts.

On his 13th day of fasting, President Garcia looked thinner. But he was still strong as he toured the Mansion House grounds for his morning exercises.

This day being Good Friday, President Garcia read the book, God Is Dying, which contains a sermon on the Last Seven Words, written by Fr. Fulgence Meyer. He also continued reading the Holy Bible.

The President made his readings in his bedroom upon waking up in the morning. He interrupted his spiritual exercises by giving a press conference in one of the kiosks of the Mansion House, after which he strolled on the garden lawns: He came by many visitors from different parts of the country vacationing in Baguio. He welcomed them and talked with them informally.

Then he returned to the Guest House and drank another glass of milk. He resumed his spiritual readings until about 4 p.m., when he gave another press conference. In the evening he resumed reading spiritual books.

The President said he would end his fast on Sunday when he would take soft-boiled rice.

IN a press conference this morning President Garcia said he favors the active participation of Catholic groups in public affairs and in the government. He spiked charges of Church meddling in the government, saying that the Catholic Action groups were merely "under the guidance, nor regimentation of Catholic authorities."

President Garcia stressed that he will make representations for the appointment of a Filipino cardinal, "because it is the desire of Catholic Filipinos."

In the press conference, President Garcia:

1. Announced that he would meet leaders of private banks tomorrow to discuss the economic development of the country;
2. Said he would expedite the appointment of a Philippine, ambassador to the Vatican;
3. Directed Lieut. Col. Emilio Borromeo, senior military aide, to supervise the relief operations for the five victims in Gingoog, Misamis Oriental.

In favoring Catholic participation in the government, President Garcia said 80 per cent of our population are Catholics and, as citizens, their views will be helpful to the government. He pointed out that Catholic voters are more articulate in public affairs.

PRESIDENT Garcia, who presided at his second press conference this afternoon said he will meet with Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason to discuss the possibility of providing immunity for the press secretary and start off a full-scale investigation of the questionable transactions behind the case of the overstaying Chinese visitors.

The President reiterated that he had directed the Department of Justice to dig deeper into the alleged scandal.

At the same time, he authorized Acting Secretary of Foreign Affairs Raul S. Manglapus to appear before the Senate committee looking into the case of the overstaying Chinese and give that body all the facts held by the department on temporary visitor.

President Garcia pointed out that he had, in his capacity as then secretary of foreign affairs, granted two extensions of three months each to the temporary visitors in accordance with a Cabinet resolution. }

The President stressed that the temporary visitors should not be confused with overstaying Chinese who came here as refugees from the Chinese mainland when the communists overran it.

In the press conference this morning, President Garcia disauthorized Rep. Bartolome Cabangbang's statement that Malacañang was contemplating to "expose Immigration Commissioner Emilio Galang."

It was Commissioner Galang, who "revived" the case of the overstaying Chinese in a testimony before the Puyat committee, which is conducting hearings on the budget.

At the same time, President Garcia said that he believes the Senate committee on finance, headed by Sen. Gil J. Puyat, is not the proper body to investigate the Chinese lobby.

In a radiocast two weeks ago, City Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson "elaborated" on the alleged workings of the lobby for the purpose of legalizing the permanent stay of the Chinese visitors in consideration of ₱12 million representing their cash bonds.

The Liberals took up the "expose" and made it a campaign issue against the party in power. Several days ago, Reps. Diosdado Macapagal of Pampanga and Amadeo Perez of Pangasinan filed a resolution in the House of Representatives demanding that the activities of the supposed lobby be investigated.

Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr, branded the other day the Macapagal-Perez resolution as a political stunt and said that the case should be decided by the Nacionalista Party, it being a "political issue" involving the Nacionalistas.

The President said that the Senate Blue Ribbon Committee, not the Committee on Finance, should handle the investigation of the case.

President Garcia denied that Malacañang was contemplating reprisals against Galang for his "revelations" on the overstaying Chinese. However, the President stated that should Galang commit serious blunders in the future, he would be compelled to take drastic action against him.

At this juncture, he reiterated that Cabangbang's statement was not authorized. He hinted that he would talk with the Bohol representative and caution him against making similar statements.

The Chief Executive stated that Galang embarrassed the administration in his testimony before the Puyat committee.

He stressed that the Chinese temporary visitors have, not increased in number since the administration of the late President Magsaysay began in 1954.

April 20.—PRESIDENT Garcia received at the Guest House at 10:00 o'clock this morning justices of Supreme Court, headed by Cesar Bengzon, who paid their courtesy call.

In the course of their call, the President further reiterated before the Justices what he had already announced to the press that it was improper to consider the retirement of Chief Justice Ricardo Paras in favor of the nomination of Sen. Jose P. Laurel as reported, because Paras was not yet due for retirement, and besides, he was doing a good job. The President further reiterated that the position of chief justice should not be considered subject of political horse-trading.

The justices were gratified upon hearing personally from the President his stand on the matter. They said it had further upheld the independence of the judiciary.

The President exchanged views with the justices on such subjects as the reading of the Holy Bible, the significance of the finding of the Dead Sea scrolls, and the President's annual fasting which ends Sunday. Other justices present were Marceliano Montemayor, Alex Reyes, Alejo Labrador, Felix Bautista Angelo, Pastor M. Endencia, Roberto Concepcion, and Alfonso Felix.

The President received a report from Social Welfare Administrator Amparo S. Villamor that relief work for fire victims in Misamis Oriental and Angeles, Pampanga, was going on successfully and that the situation was under control.

A big delegation of teachers from the South headed by Silvino Maceran called on the President and greeted him. They said they were attending summer sessions in Baguio and they wanted to express their Easter greetings. The President spent some time chatting informally with them.

Auditor General Pedro M. Gimenez and Auditor Mauro Miranda of Baguio City also called on the Chief Executive to invite him to speak before the auditors' convention to be held sometime in May.

NAWASA General Manager Susano R. Negado informed the President that the water situation in Baguio was now under control. Negado discussed also matters affecting his office.

In the afternoon the President held a press conference.

THE Chief Executive told a press conference this afternoon that Galang's "statement of facts" on the Chinese case before the Senate committee on finance has caused "embarrassment" to the Administration.

President Garcia said he was thinking of asking Immigration Commissioner Emilio Galang to rectify his views on the issue of overstaying Chinese or face "drastic measures."

President Garcia conferred earlier with Rep. Bartolome Cabangbang of Bohol on the case and said he agreed with the congressman, one of his closest advisers, that the facts about the overstaying Chinese should be straightened out.

Galang had testified before the Senate committee that the Department of Foreign Affairs, while still headed by President Garcia, had obstructed his efforts to deport 2,400 Chinese who had overstayed their visas as temporary visitors.

The immigration commissioner's insistence on their deportation sparked a dispute between him and President Garcia while the latter was still vice-president and concurrently secretary of foreign affairs.

Galang had also declared that the foreign office had allowed the entry of Chinese temporary visitors and had given them extensions for their expired visas although 2,400 had already overstayed their permits.

The President reiterated to newsmen in Baguio today that the quota for the entry of temporary visitors had never exceeded the fixed figure of 500 during the Nacionalista administration.

In the press conference, President Garcia also said:

1. He was confident of winning the Nacionalista Party presidential nomination and would open his campaign for a “full-term” in Malacañang by sailing to Bacolod City and Iloilo City Wednesday.

2. He met Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., who has been mentioned as his possible running mate, at a luncheon given today by Mayor Alfonso Tabora of Baguio City, but they did not discuss politics.

3. He has disauthorized Rep. Cabangbang to speak for and in behalf of Malacañang.

4. There was no truth to the charge of City Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson that he (the President) had allowed Japanese and Formosan fishermen to fish in Philippine waters.

The President said he does not expect to meet any rough sailing in the Nacionalista Party convention. He said he would anchor his campaign to economic issues and to the development of a middle-class.

Exuding confidence, President Garcia added he would start talking on Monday to delegates to the NP convention.

He said he inquired from the House leader the state of health of his father, Sen. Jose P. Laurel, his rival for the NP nomination. “That was the only political talk” in the party, he added.

He said he would ask the electorate for a “full-term in Malacañang” to enable him to translate into action his plans and policies.

The President said Mayor Tabora was a close friend of the Laurels, but the city executive had pledged support to him “with reservations.”

In his meeting with Cabangbang, the President said he approved the manifesto of the Garcia-for-President-Movement which the Bohol solon heads as national coordinator.

President Garcia said that while he had disauthorized Cabangbang to speak for and on behalf of Malacañang, “I cannot stop him” from expressing his own views.

With regard to Mayor Lacson’s charge, the President said he had not allowed Japanese and Formosan fishermen to enter Philippine waters and that he had not formally received any request for them to do so.

The Chief Executive was in high spirits during his press conference. He ended his 14-day Lenten fast today and announced the forthcoming wedding of his daughter and only child, Linda, to Fernando Campos.

President Garcia ended his much-publicized fast at midnight tonight.

One of the first things he did during the press conference was to announce the forthcoming marriage of his only daughter, Linda, to Fernando Campos, a barrister and law graduate from the University of the Philippines.

Said the President to newsmen: “Tomorrow being Easter Sunday and in memory of the resurrection of the Lord, I am happy to announce the forthcoming marriage of my only daughter, Linda, to Mr. Fernando Campos.

Asked how he felt about the forthcoming marriage, the President said: “I am happy about it.”

April 21.—PRESIDENT Garcia today observed Easter Sunday by hearing mass said by Fr. Juan Tugade, Navy chaplain, at the Guest House chapel. Among those present at the mass were Malacañang assistants, newsmen covering the President, and Highways Commissioner Rodolfo Maslog.

Other officials who called later on the President to greet him were Ambassador Chen Chih-mai of Nationalist China, Agriculture Secretary and Mrs. Juan de G. Rodriguez, Baguio City Mayor Alfonso Tabora, Pangasinan Governor and Mrs. Conrado Estrella, Pangasinan Board Member Nancy Q. Sison, La Union Gov. Bernardo Gapus, and NARRA Board Member Porfirio V. Sison.

President Garcia broke his fast at about 8 o'clock last night when he started on lugaw. Today he is still on the same soft diet. Although he fasted during the past two weeks, subsisting on sugar and water at first and on fruit juice, then milk, in the second week, he had observed his regular routine of receiving daily callers except since last Wednesday when he went en spiritual retreat. The President feels in good health today although he has lost 11 pounds.

THIS afternoon at about 5 o'clock, the President gave a press conference.

PRESIDENT Garcia called on Congress today to speed up consideration of vital legislation measures to obviate the necessity of holding a special session in view of the coming presidential elections.

He told newsmen at a press conference in Baguio at 5 o'clock this afternoon that in his meeting with Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., yesterday, he urged the House chief to rush important measures since the current regular session has only 26 days to go.

The President said he was heartened by Laurel's concurrence with his views and the Speaker's statement that he would direct the arrest of solons who might absent themselves from the remaining days of the session.

President Garcia said the measures he wished expedited include the national budget, the reparations bill, the mines development bill, the social security bill, and other financial measures.

The President said he would convey his wishes to Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez upon his return to Manila tomorrow. He will leave Baguio by car early tomorrow and entrain at Damortis (La Union) for Manila.

In his press conference, President Garcia also:

1. Said he discussed with Chinese Ambassador Chen Chi-mai this morning the possibility of releasing Chinese-owned $1.1 million held in the Philippines. He added they touched briefly on the problem of 2,400 Chinese who had overstayed their temporary visitors' visas here;
2. Authorized Press Secretary J. V. Cruz to release a statement assailing Antonio J. Villegas, resigned vice-chairman of the President's Complaints and Action Committee, for declaring that the late President Magsaysay's campaign against corruption had become "a mockery" under President Garcia; (Cruz labeled Villegas' statement a cheap and transparent stunt.)
3. Issued a statement in welcome for Australian Prime Minister Robert Gordon Menzies and Dame Pattie Menzies, who are scheduled to arrive in Manila tomorrow for a state visit to the Philippines.
4. Reported he had conferred with provincial governors who pledged support for his presidential bid;
5. Made a bid for the support of the Magsaysay-for-President Movement.

President Garcia said he and Speaker Laurel agreed that a special session would be unfeasible owing to the proximity of the elections. He met Laurel at a luncheon in the house of Mayor Alfonso Tabora.

He said Laurel would start implementing tomorrow his promise to order the arrest of any solon who would absent himself from the sessions.

The President told newsmen that the Chinese ambassador was reluctant to discuss the case of the overstaying Chinese visitors in view of the current Senate investigation of the matter.

However, he said, he inquired about the status of Chen's proposal that the Chinese be repatriated to Formosa under five categories.

The President quoted the Chinese envoy as replying, "It is unfortunate that up to this time my government has not yet reached a decision on the matter."

It was not known whether or not President Garcia urged that the Taipei Government speed up action on the repatriation of the overstaying Chinese.

He pointed out that Chen came to greet him on Easter Sunday and to discuss the possibility of releasing the Chinese-owned dollars held in the Philippine Bank of Commerce.

President Garcia said he told Chen he would study the matter further.

Contacted by the Chronicle, the ambassador said, "That money is ours, but we are going slow with this ease in order to avoid straining relations with the Philippines."

Chen also told the Chronicle he believed the ₱12 million lobby allegedly seeking to extend the stay here of the 2,400 Chinese must have developed before he assumed his post here.

He waved aside a question as to whether or not the Chinese Embassy was conducting its own inquiry into the case. "I am not aware of the case," he said.

In welcoming Prime Minister and Dame Pattie Menzies, the President said: "I wish for their pleasant stay in our country."

He said Menzies state visit would surely strengthen further the solidarity between the Philippines and Australia. He also took occasion of the impending arrival of the prime minister to express his gratitude to the Australian Government for providing him with a plane to return to the Philippines when President Magsaysay died last March 17.

President Garcia, then vice-president and concurrently secretary of foreign affairs, was chief Philippine delegate to the SEATO council of ministers meeting in Canberra.

"This is a noble gesture of friendship which the Filipino people and government appreciate," the President said in recalling the Australian Government's offer of a plane to rush him home.

President Garcia postponed an earlier press conference scheduled at noon to receive political leaders who came to promise him support.

In bidding for the MPM's backing of his presidential bid, the President said, "I would like to see those who helped the late President Magsaysay also give me their support in order that I could prosecute his policies."

President Garcia said he believed that a great majority of the MPM members would support him despite reports that the MP.M would form its own party.

April 22.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning paid tribute to provincial and city health officers and urged them to continue implementing the rural health program of the late President Magsaysay, saying that “the most outstanding development during the last four years is the program on rural health.”

The President was the guest speaker at the 9th annual convention of the League of Provincial and City Health Officers held at the Far Eastern University auditorium. In paying tribute to the health officers, the President said he was gratified that “you have discharged your responsibilities with zeal and dedication.”

The Chief Executive cited the late President Magsaysay for having inspired the legislation mapping out the rural health program. The President said that the rural health law, Republic Act No. 1082, passed early during the Magsaysay administration, was “easily one of the most important pieces of legislation in the whole annals of our country.”

The President arrived at the FEU about 10:30 a.m. accompanied by Health Secretary Paulino J. Garcia. He was met at the gate by Health Undersecretary Rafael Tumbokon, Hospitals Director Tranquilino Elicaño, Dr. Melquiades Ronquillo, president of the league, and other officers of the league. The President delivered his speech about 11 a.m.

After his speech, the President descended from the platform and shook hands with the delegates to the convention. Other speakers at the convention were Secretary Garcia, Director Elicaño, and Dr. Ronquillo.

The President arrived from Baguio City about 9 a.m. and after a brief rest in Malacañang, he motored to the FEU auditorium.

PRESIDENT and Mrs. Carlos P. Garcia warmly received Prime Minister and Mrs. Robert G. Menzies of Australia on their arrival at Malacañang this afternoon on a state visit to the Philippines.

Arriving at the Malacañang grounds about 4:15 p.m., Prime Minister Menzies was met by an honor guard formed by a unit of the presidential guards battalion under the command of Major Bernabe Cadiz of Company C. After acknowledging raffles and flourishes offered by the honor guard, the Menzies and members of their party were led up the Palace, where they were met at the head of the stairs by the President and the First Lady, who led them to the Palace music room, where refreshments awaited the visitors.

At the music room, the First Lady inquired from Mrs. Menzies about their trip, particularly their reception at the Manila International Airport. Mrs. Menzies replied that “everything was perfect” and took occasion to thank the Filipino people for the welcome they had received on their arrival here.

President Garcia, in turn, thanked the Prime Minister for the hospitality he had received in Australia when he headed the Philippine delegation to the recent SEATO Council of Ministers session in Canberra.

After some 20 minutes, the President and the First Lady escorted the Menzies from the music room and showed them their room at the Palace. President Garcia explained that the room assigned to them used to be the bedroom of Presidents Magsaysay, Quirino, and Roxas located at the east wing of the Palace.

At this point, the Prime Minister said something about the room being a little bit warm. President Garcia said he was having the air-conditioning system re-connected because it had been ordered disconnected by President Magsaysay.

Accompanied by James Allen, charge d'affaires of the Australian Embassy in Manila, members of the Prime Minister's party at Malacañang this afternoon included Sir Allen Brown, secretary to the Prime Minister; James Plimsoll, assistant secretary of the Ministry of External Affairs; Miss Hazel Craig, private secretary; and Hugh Dash, press secretary.

Sir Brown and Secretary Plimsoll were also billeted at the guest room in Malacañang Palace. Other members of the party were accommodated at the Manila Hotel.

After receiving the Australian Prime Minister, the President received in the Malacañang study room officers of the Catholic Action of the Philippines who paid a courtesy call.

Support of President Garcia's administration was pledged by the group, headed by Dean Jose Ma. Hernandez, president of the association.

The President told the delegation that he was gratified with their pledge, saying that he welcomed support from such an active organization.

In the evening the President signed a proclamation declaring April 30, 1957, as Women's Rights Day.

The President signed the proclamation "in recognition of the contribution of women to the economic, social, and political welfare of the nation."

President Garcia signed the proclamation in the presence of a delegation of the Women's Party of the Philippines headed by Miss Inocencia Rivilla. Others present were Mrs. Lita Sollorano, Mrs. Vicenta Aviles, Mrs. Remedios Gatmaitan, Dr. Tomasa Halili, and Mrs. Soban Singh.

The President this evening also received a delegation of the League of Philippine Architects collaborative group headed by Architect Rufino O. Antonio, who presented to the Chief Executive the master plan of the executive group of the National Capitol building expected to be constructed soon in Quezon City on a 27-hectare lot at a cost of some ₱15 million.

The President told Antonio to bring all the drawings to the Cabinet meeting tomorrow morning for final approval of the Cabinet members.

Members of the Iloilo Press Club and Newsmen's Association also called on the President. The delegation consisted of Luther Garcia, Rodolfo Clafarols and Eliodoro Confreros. They were accompanied by Celestino M. Vega 'of the Bagong Buhay.

April 23.—THIS morning President Garcia presided over a meeting of U. S. officials to discuss plans to finalize the negotiation of an agricultural commodities agreement between the Philippine and U. S. Governments.

The President was told by the Philippine and U. S. groups that preliminary technical talks towards conclusion of such an agreement have ended and that the stage was set for formal negotiations between the two governments.

The President told the head of the American group, Minister Horace Smith, U. S. Embassy charge d'affaires, that he would appoint at the earliest possible time the members of the Philippine panel that would negotiate this agreement. It was held likely that officials who have participated in the preliminary talks would be included in this panel.

The Malacañang meeting was attended by both economic and defense officials of the two governments. Presence of the defense officials was explained by the fact that the pesos to be paid the U. S. Government for the purchase of surplus agricultural commodities would be re-committed to use in the Philippines for such purposes as improving the country's defense situation and helping along its economic development.

The hour-long meeting which began at 9:30 a.m. was attended, on the Philippine side, by President Garcia, CB Governor Cuaderno, Secretary Manglapus, Chairman Romualdez, Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao, Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, and Brig. Gen. Pelagio Cruz, among others, and on the American side, by Minister Smith Rear Admiral Edgar A. Cruise, Maj. Gen. Joseph Harper, Maj. Gen. John b. Ackerman, U. S. Embassy Counselor William Walker, and Col. Harry Brenn.

PRESIDENT Garcia and his Cabinet at their meeting this day took further steps to implement the Government's policy of gradually withdrawing from investment fields where private enterprises have indicated their desire to take over.

President Garcia and the Cabinet decided in principle to sell the shareholdings of the National Development Company in the Philippine Electrical Manufacturing Co., Inc., and in the Compania de Celulosa de Filipinas.

For this purpose the President appointed a special committee to appraise the value of the Government's interests in these two corporations, to be composed of the following: Deputy Administrator Juan Concon of the Office of Economic Coordination, as chairman, with Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, and RFC Chairman Eduardo Z. Romualdez, as members.

The President instructed the members of the committee to submit their findings on this matter to the Cabinet at its next meeting prior to the disposition of the government's stocks in these corporation.

At the same time the President and the Cabinet authorized the sale of the NDC canning plant to C. L. Inductivo or his successors in interest for the sum of ₱215,041.59.

In this connection, it will be remembered that, before the death of the late President, he had approved the final sale of the CEPOC plant in Bacnotan, La Union, to a private concern.

At the Cabinet meeting the President said that he would continue following the policy of having the government gradually withdraw its participation in private industries.

President Garcia and the Cabinet also decided to extend for a period of 60 days the open account trade agreement between the Philippines and Japan, provided that:

- (1) Japan pays in full the outstanding amount due to the Philippines beyond the allowable swing balance as of April 15, 1957;
- (2) The parties agree to pay interest of four per cent per annum during the period of extension on amounts outstanding and unpaid beyond the allowable swing balance; and
- (3) The parties will immediately enter into negotiations and conclude a trade protocol during the period of extension.

At the Cabinet meeting the President approved the trips of Commerce Secretary Oscar Ledesma and NEC Presiding Officer Eduardo Z. Romualdez to Hannover, Germany, as official guests of the German Government to attend the East Asia Trade Conference to be held under the German Industries Association, an official organization of German financiers and industrialists

The trade conference is scheduled for May 2 to 12. The trip will include official calls on the foremost bankers and industrialists in Hannover Berlin, Frankfurt, and Magdeburg.

The Cabinet also authorized the participation of the Philippines in the seminar on highway safety scheduled to be held in Tokyo, Japan on May 13-23, 1957, under the auspices of the Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East.

The following were designated Philippine delegates to the conference: Highways Commissioner Rodolfo Maslog, Traffic Research Engineer Irineo S. Ramos of the Bureau of Public Highways, and Col. Mariano Azurin of the Constabulary traffic control group.

President Garcia reiterated to OEC Administrator Concon his desire that collection of amortizations and interests from the government corporations be stepped up. The President emphasized that the government corporations should meet their financial obligations to the government.

During the Cabinet meeting the President signed a proclamation extending the tenth annual fund campaign of the Philippine National Red Cross for a period of 30 days from April 18 to May 17, 1957.

In the proclamation the President said that the original period from Feb. 14 to March 31, 1957, had been adversely affected by the deaths of President Magsaysay and Education Secretary Gregorio Hernandez, Jr., and that it was necessary to extend the period.

The President presided over the Cabinet meeting which was held at the Council of State room from 11:10 a.m. to 1:15 p.m.

THIS afternoon the President motored to the Gomez Elementary School on P. Guevara Street, where he was guest speaker at the third plenary session of the ninth annual representative assembly of the 'Philippine Public School Teachers Association.

Arriving at the Gomez Elementary School shortly past 5 p.m., the President was met by PPSTA officials, including Domingo Tan, vice-president, and Leocadio Momongan, Galicano Luansing, and Policarpio Domingo, members of the board of directors. He was greeted with a warm applause by the teachers who attended the assembly.

In the course of the program, Mila Magsaysay received a medal for the late President Magsaysay, who was awarded posthumously by the PPSTA for his unselfish service to the country, especially to the common people, and for his deep concern for the teachers' welfare.

The President was fetched from Malacañang by Acting Education Secretary Martin Aguilar, Jr., and Roman F. Lorenzo, Laguna superintendent of schools.

Before going to the PPSTA program, the President received in the music room a few callers who paid a courtesy call.

Minister Horace Smith, U. S. Embassy charge d'affaires, accompanied Admiral Lawrence Frost, director of U. S. Naval Intelligence, who is presently on a routine observation trip.

A group of insurance executives also called on the President. They were C. V. Starr, chairman of the board of the Q. V. Starr Co., New York; W. Youngman, president, C. V. Starr Co.; Earl Carroll, and Emilio Abello and Leonides Virata, president and vice-presidents respectively of the Philippine American Life Insurance Company.

Then the President received officers of the American Chamber of Commerce who also paid their respects. The American businessmen consisted of R. J. Monical of CALTEX (Philippines); Paul Wood, president of the International Harvester of the Philippines; and Ewald Selph, head of an American law firm. They were accompanied to Malacañang by Alfonso Calalang.

IN the evening President and Mrs. Garcia gave a state dinner in honor of Prime Minister and Mrs. Robert G. Menzies of Australia, who are now in Manila on a state visit.

April 24.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning told newsmen on board the yacht Sta. Maria that he was in favor of Auditor General Pedro Gimenez's view that Armed Forces men detailed to civilian jobs should not receive AFP pay but that of civilian positions only. The current practice is that these AFP men draw AFP salary and get the differential from the civilian job salary should the latter be higher. However, should the AFP pay be higher, they receive AFP pay only.

The President said they should get only the salary commensurate to civilian positions they occupy, regardless of whether or not it be or higher than their AFP pay.

The yacht bearing the presidential party pulled out of pier 5 at 8:15 a.m. today. Among those on board are Sen. Jose C Locsin Reps. L Rogaciano Mercado of Bulacan, Alberto Ubay of Zamboanga del Norte and Vicente Peralta of Sorsogon; Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno; Cavite Gov. Delfin Montano; Iloilo City Mayor Rodolfo Ganzon; Julian Montilla of Pulupandan; and Technical Assistant Sofronio Quimson.

Also with the President is his daughter Linda, who will crown a queen in one of the towns to be visited by the presidential party.

PRESIDENT Garcia told a press conference this noon that he would try to keep Press Secretary J. V. Cruz as long as he could

The President made the statement in response to newsmen's Queries about reports that his press secretary planned to reiterate his courtesy resignation soon He said he had no personal knowledge of such plan.

The Chief Executive also expressed his desire to keep other Magsaysay men in the government even in the event of his election provided they kept up with their splendid work.

In the course of the conference given at lunch with the newsmen the President said that Immigration Commissioner Emilio Galang had gone to Malacañang last night to ask permission to re-appear before a congressional committee and that the President had told him he did not care how many times Galang appeared in any committee provided Galang testified To facts and made efforts to rectify any misrepresentation made of his testimony as it had appeared in the newspapers.

According to the President, Galang then told him that news reports of his testimony were not accurate and that Galang had asked the President to read the official transcript of his testimony where he had not blamed anyone for the Chinese situation which Galang had considered normal.

PRESIDENT Garcia said today he was in favor of a six-year presidential term without reelection.

He said such a term would ensure an efficient administration because the incumbent Chief Executive would not seek reelection and would thus be above politics.

In the press interview aboard the yacht, President Garcia also said he would name Deputy Administrator Juan Concon as acting head of the Office Economic Administration. Concon is at present officer in charge of the OEC.

During the press conference, President Garcia said the "tremendous ovation" he received at his meeting with the MPM yesterday augured well for his candidacy for the presidency.

Asked about the speech he scheduled to make in Bacolod City tomorrow, the Chief Executive replied it would be extemporaneous.

He declined to disclose what he would say, but it was generally believed that the President would make a bid for support of his political plans.

President Garcia said he would make another trip to Mindanao next week, presumably to continue his drive for political support.

The Chief Executive stayed in his cabin the whole morning, going over pending state papers he had not taken along for action during the trip.

ABOUT 12:30 p.m. the President came out of his room and had lunch with the newsmen. Shortly before 4 p.m. he re-entered his cabin which he had turned into a private study.

Malacañang stepped into the controversy because of public interest and because of the charitable institutions affected. The controversy arose from the demand of horse owners and trainers for an increase of their percentage from the total gross of the Have and double races. At present the horse owners and trainers get four per cent of the total gross of Have and double races. Their demand is for five and a half per cent.

Charitable institutions affected by the controversy are the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office, the Philippine Tuberculosis Society, and the White Cross. It is from these institutions that the horse owners and trainers are demanding the one and a half per cent increase.

MALACAÑANG today took a hand in the horse racing controversy when Assistant Executive Secretary Mariano Yenko, Jr., upon instructions of President Garcia, called the parties concerned to a conference in Malacañang "to reach an amicable settlement."

Malacañang stepped into the controversy because of public interest and because of the charitable institutions affected. The controversy arose from the demand of horse owners and trainers for increase of their percentage from the total gross of the llave and double races at present the horse owners and trainers get four percent of the total gross of llave and double races. Their demands is for five per cent.

Charitable institutions affected by the controversy are the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office, the Philippine Tuberculosis Society, and the White Cross. It is from these institutions that the horse owners and trainers were demanding the one and half per cent increase

Because of the controversy, horse races have been temporarily cancelled by the horse owners who claimed that with the present percentage they were getting they were operating at a loss. Secretary Yenko requested the parties concerned to reach an amicable settlement so that the horse races could, at least, be temporarily continued for about a month until a permanent solution was reached.

Secretary Yenko said that he called, the parties concerned to a conference upon instructions of the President in order to get to the bottom of the controversy. He said that the conference was fact-finding and that he would submit his findings and recommendations to the Chief Executive, who would render a decision.

Present at the conference were GSIS General Manager Rodolfo P. Andal and Judge Salvador Esguerra, Malacañang legal adviser both of whom assisted Secretary Yenko; representatives of the GAB headed by Roces Commissioner Mariano Marfori; Board Secretary Alfredo Guidote; Joseph Arcache, heading the horse owners and trainers; Don Rafael Roces and Marcial Lichauco, representing the Manila Jockey Club; representatives of the San Lazaro Race Track; and representatives of the charitable institutions headed by Eugenic Santos, Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office general manager.

Secretary Yenke heard the explanations of all the parties concerned and gave assurance that any solution to be formulated would give justice and fairness to all.

April 25.—THE President woke up 7 this morning and heard mass aboard the yacht Sta. Maria.

After the services, the President had breakfast with Sen. Jose C. Locsin, and Mrs. Jose Aldeguer, Mrs. Sofronio Quimson, and Mrs. Florencio Moreno.

As the yacht neared Bacolod City, the President told newsmen on board he had ordered Forestry Director Felipe Amos to expedite the release of forest lands which had been planted to coffee by pioneers in Negros Occidental.

Early release of these lands for agricultural purposes would enable the pioneers to obtain titles to their plantations and apply for crop loans with the Rehabilitation Finance Corporation.

PRESIDENT Garcia received a royal reception on his arrival at Bacolod City at 10:30 a.m. today. Civilian piper cub planes flying in formation kept circling above the yacht Sta. Maria as it steamed into port. On hand at the Banago wharf to welcome the President was a large delegation from two provinces headed by Govs. Valeriano Gatuslao of Negros Occidental and Serafin Teves of Negros Oriental, and Mayors Teopisto Cordova of Bacolod City and Mariano Perdomo of Dumaguete City.

After acknowledging the cheers of his welcomers, the President was conveyed at the head of a long motorcade to the Capitol building before which a much larger crowd waving "Elect Garcia" placards congregated to see and hear him. The President addressed the crowd in front of the Capitol.

After the public rally, the President was scheduled to hold a conference with national, provincial, and city officials from Negros Occidental and

At 2 p.m. the party motored to the southern towns of Negros Occidental where the President inaugurated the waterworks system and the Magsaysay Bridge at Himamaylan, and health center at Binalbagan. The party traveled about 80 kilometers inland.

Linda Garcia, the President's daughter, who was with the presidential party, crowned the town fiesta queen of Himamaylan this evening.

April 26.—PRESIDENT Garcia was the keynote speaker at the National Air Jaycees Convention held at the University of San Agustin, Iloilo City, today.

The President was introduced to the conventionists by Manuel Loring, Jr., Jaycees Regional vice-president for Western Visayas. Other speakers were Salvador Sarabia of the Iloilo Jaycees and Mayor Rodolfo Ganzon of Iloilo City, who delivered the welcome addresses; Sen. Fernando Lopez, honorary president of Iloilo Jaycees; Ira D. Day, president of Jaycees International, who delivered a speech of greetings; and Luis Ma. Araneta, president of Philippine Jaycees.

The yacht Sta. Maria bearing the President and his party docked at Iloilo at 9 a.m. today. The reception consisted of a fluvial parade which escorted the Sta. Maria into port, a continuous blaring of sirens of factories along the shore, a 21-gun salute which boomed as the President went down the gangplank, and a large cheering crowd which surged forward to shake the President's hand as soon as he stepped on the dock.

After acknowledging the raffles and flourishes offered by an honor guard formed by the local military unit, the President motored to nearby Fort San Pedro for a tree-planting ceremony sponsored by the Jayceerettes. Then he proceeded to Jaro, where he visited Archbishop Jose Maria Cuenco and later spent a few moments of prayer at the Jaro Cathedral.

The President was at the University of San Agustin auditorium about 10:30 a.m.

ABOUT 12 noon the President headed a long motorcade to Pototan, some 36 kilometers away. Here he held a conference with Iloilo mayors who brought up problems of their respective municipalities, and there the presidential party had lunch at the home of Gov. Mariano Peñaflorida. The President returned to Iloilo City in the afternoon in time for a rally with ward leaders at the San Agustin University auditorium.

IN the afternoon the President was presented with two resolutions passed recently by the Iloilo provincial board and the Iloilo Mayors' League pledging support for his election.

In the resolution presented by Gov. Mariano Peñaflorida, the provincial board expressed the belief that of all presidential aspirants, President Garcia was best prepared "Owing to his background, experience, integrity, and dependability as a public servant."

The Mayors' league, on the other hand, made known in its resolution that it subscribed "unconditionally to the fiscal policies of the government being initiated and prosecuted by President Carlos P. Garcia." The resolution was handed to the President by Mayor Alfonso Espino of Dingle, league president.

Both resolutions were written on sheepskin scroll about three feet long. They were presented to the Chief Executive in the course of his conference with national, provincial, and municipal officials at the municipal building in Pototan at 3:30 p.m. today.

Also at the conference were Reps. Jose Aldeguer, Pedro Trono, and Ricardo Ladrido, and a big delegation from Capiz headed by Gov. Jose Dinglasan.

The President received a rousing welcome in his tour of northern Iloilo towns today. Everywhere he went, people lined the streets and cheered as the presidential car passed by. It took him this afternoon almost two hours to travel 36 kilometers, the distance from Iloilo to Pototan, owing to large delegations which forced the presidential car to stop several times along the way.

April 21.—IN high spirits, the President had breakfast this morning aboard the yacht Sta. Maria with government officials headed by Rep. Vicente Peralta of Sorsogon and Cavite Gov. Delfin Montano.

He spent the morning exchanging impressions with these officials and the other members of his party on the political campaign he undertook in Iloilo and the Negros provinces.

In an optimistic tone, President Garcia said his political drive had elicited "the unexpected popular endorsement" from these provinces. He gave newsmen an off-the-record views of his chances in the coming elections. His views were very optimistic.

At lunch time, winds and waves buffeted the Sta. Maria. The yacht was then off Masbate.

The President proved to be a good sailor. He remained unruffled as turbulent waves lashed the yacht. His companions were not as calm.

The Sta. Maria expects to drop anchor in Manila Bay early tomorrow morning. From the yacht, the President will proceed to Malacañang and have lunch with ranking officials of the Philippine Association of Free Labor Unions.

PRESIDENT Garcia expressed confidence that the people of Negros Occidental and Iloilo would rally behind him in his desire to carry on with the program of the late President Magsaysay following the enthusiastic receptions accorded him during his four-day whirlwind tour of the two provinces.

In his speeches delivered in clear, forceful Visayan during the tour, the President had reiterated his appeal for popular support to enable him to continue with the policies of the late President Magsaysay, particularly the improvement of living conditions in the rural areas.

He had inaugurated a bridge in Himamaylan, a waterworks system in Hinigaran, a health center in Binalbagan, and an artesian well in Sumag. To the mammoth crowds which gathered in these small towns of Negros Occidental to witness the ceremonies, the President said, "It is projects such as these that had become an obsession to our late President in his concern for the welfare of the masses. I intend to keep on building such projects."

He added: "I will carry on with the policies of President Magsaysay not only to honor the memory of that great man but also because I firmly believe in the wisdom of his policies. And should God permit me to continue, I shall dedicate my full time and energy to the upliftment of the masses of our people, make of them worthier so that this nation may be a better place to live in and die for, if necessary."

During his barnstorming tour of the two provinces, the President was always behind schedule in the hectic itinerary prepared for him by local committees, sometimes by as much as three hours, on account of numerous unscheduled stops he had to make. Almost all barrios and important road junctions along the route had formed their own welcome delegations, many of which were with brass bands and fireworks display. Learning that those people had waited there for hours, the President had to go down the car and shook hands with their leaders, or addressed them from atop the bumper of his car.

Reaching a road crossing in Binalbagan, Negros Occidental, last Thursday afternoon, the President came upon a large crowd waving numerous placards assuring him of victory in their locality in the November elections. He expressed amusement when he noted that one of the placards recalled he had garnered 132 votes there as vice-presidential candidate in 1953 while his opponent, Jose Yulo, got only nine votes. Binalbagan is former Speaker Yulo's birthplace.

The President's itinerary in Negros Occidental required him to travel some 83 kilometers from Bacolod City to Himamaylan in three hours, passing through a number of coastal towns. The presidential party negotiated the distance in almost six hours. The motorcade which was more than three kilometers long was considered among the longest ever seen in the province.

Similar situations awaited the President on his arrival in Iloilo the following day, yesterday, where he was presented with resolutions of support from the provincial board and the mayors' league, and from other organizations in the province. The board's and league's resolutions were elaborately hand-printed on scrolls of sheepsin about three feet long.

Passing through Janiuy, Iloilo, in the afternoon, the presidential party was stopped by the townspeople who blocked the road and refused to budge until the President got off his car and said a few words to them through a microphone, hastily set up under a tree by the roadside.

Mayor Pedro Margarico, in introducing the President to his townspeople said: "We would like to see President Garcia not only as President by succession but also as President by election." According to Mayor Margarico, Janiuy is the largest municipality of Iloilo.

In the next town of Sta. Barbara, Mayor Jacinto Delgado, on seeing how his people mobbed the President on alighting from his car, was moved into shouting into the public address system: President Magsaysay may be dead but his spirit still lives in the person of President Garcia.

Members of the presidential party were impressed by the endurance and stamina shown by the President during the hectic tour. His tight schedules kept him almost constantly busy from 8 a.m. to as late as midnight, but he showed no sign of strain or fatigue. Encouraged by the spontaneous show of affection on the part of the people, the President kept up with his itinerary with inspired enthusiasm.

April 28.—PRESIDENT Garcia returned to Manila at 5:20 this morning as he completed a four-day stumping tour of Iloilo and Negros Occidental.

It was the first political stump of President Garcia after the end of the one-month of mourning for President Magsaysay.

Upon arrival at Malacañang, the President heard mass and ate a light breakfast. Then he went to bed to rest. Malacañang aides said the President felt the effects of the rigorous town-to-town campaign he waged in Iloilo.

However, he was waken up 9:30, as he had scheduled an appointment with Rep. Tobias Fornier, chairman of the House committee on appropriations.

President Garcia and Fornier were closeted for almost an hour. It was learned that President Garcia had asked the Antique solon to help the Administration by restoring items for the government agencies like the National Marketing Corporation, the National Resettlement and Rehabilitation Administration, and the Agricultural Credit and Cooperative Financing Administration.

After meeting an unexpectedly great number of callers, the President went to the 12th anniversary party of the employees of the Manila Chronicle in Pasay City. The President greeted the officials and employees of the Chronicle and expressed the wish that it “would live a hundred more years.”

The President was accompanied by Lt. Melchor Fronda, presidential aide, Labor Undersecretary Agapito Braganza, and Assistant Press Secretary G. V. Sison.

President Garcia also presented checks from the Chronicle to two retiring employees, Aniceto Jamotillo and Francisco Valdez.

From the Chronicle party, the President motored to La Mesa Dam, where he addressed a convention of the Philippine Association of Free Labor Unions. The President stayed at the dam for more than two hours.

At 4 o'clock President Garcia addressed another labor gathering at the National Press Club building. The gathering was the convention of the Philippine Transport Workers Organization.

At the La Mesa Dam, the President met Labor Secretary Eleuterio Adevos, who is reported preparing to quit the Cabinet after May 1 to campaign for the Senate.

After his meeting with the PTWO, the President went to the Winter Garden of the Manila Hotel, where he was feted by the Philippine Law School Alumni Association headed by Judge Ceferino de los Santos.

THIS afternoon the President pledged to labor that he would continue working with all his resources for greater benefits to the laboring class which he called “soldiers of industry and the country’s economy.”

The President said that he would recommend to Congress a bill to reorganize the Court of Industrial Relations in order to make it more responsive to the needs of labor by rendering its decisions on labor cases more swiftly and by attending to as many cases as possible.

The Chief Executive also announced that he had certified to Congress the urgency of a bill amending the Social Security Act and would certify another bill which will require that in all government boards of corporations controlled or owned by the government, the working class would be represented.

The presidential announcements were met with thunderous approval by hundreds of labor delegates whom the President addressed separately this afternoon, the first being the Philippine Association of Free Labor Unions at the La Mesa Dam in Novaliches, and the other being the Philippine Transport Workers Organization at the National Press Club building.

Arriving at the La Mesa Dam at 1:15 p.m. for the septennial reunion of the PAFLU, the President was met by PAFLU leaders headed by Cipriano Cid, national president, and by Labor Secretary Eleuterio Adevosio. After luncheon served at the recreation center, a program followed, at which Cid and Secretary Adevosio spoke. Cid presented to the President problems of labor which he said needed solution.

Putting aside his prepared speech, President Garcia spoke extemporaneously, first in Tagalog and then in English. At 4 p.m. the President left the PAFLU and motored to the NPC building on Aduana near the Jones Bridge, where the PTWO first biennial convention was held. The President was accompanied in his car by Labor Undersecretary Agapito Braganza, Assistant Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, and Lt. Melchor Fronda, presidential aide.

The President was met at the NPC building by PTWO officials headed by Roberto S. Oca, national president. Rep. Angel Castaño of Manila introduced the President as the champion of labor, who was vigorously implementing the policies of administration initiated by the late President Magsaysay, and who had a special love for the laboring class. Oca acted as master of ceremonies. Rep. Augusto Francisco of Manila was also present at the program.

In his two speeches President Garcia said that he was carrying on the work of government started by the late President and that he was especially interested in working further for the amelioration of the working class. He paid high tribute to the achievements of labor in the Philippines which he said was most progressive and had acquired world prestige.

The President said: "We want to make this country economically strong and sound. In this great and difficult task, it is not enough that we have capital. We need to have labor to dig the wealth hidden in our earth, to fell the trees of our forests, to dive into the depths of our waters, and to turn the wheels of our industries."

In this joint enterprise, management and labor should work together, the President said. He added that labor was entitled to the fullest participation in the wealth that it would produce.

Battling strongly for the laboring class, President Garcia said that it should be entitled to a living wage so that it could improve its economic and social condition and enjoy the good life. He emphasized that this was giving labor social justice.

However, the President said that labor should play its role well and do its obligations so that industry could run on an even keel and so that more goods could be produced to justify the granting of higher wages.

The Chief Executive urged labor to settle its disputes through collective bargaining as a means of achieving industrial peace. He said that better results could be gained in an atmosphere of persuasion rather than by coercion.

He also appealed to the workers to exhaust first all amicable means of getting their demands before resorting to strikes which, he said, were expensive to the country as a whole. For this reason, he said, he would recommend to the next Congress the reorganization of the Court of Industrial Relations. In this reorganization, the President said, he envisioned the establishment of CIR branches in strategic places in the country and the appointment of more referees and more personnel. Under this set-up, the President believed that labor cases could be settled more swiftly and that justice to laborers would not be delayed.

He said, "I believe that with the reorganization of the CIR we may be able to solve most of our problems and there will be less strikes."

Regarding unemployment, President Garcia said that the problem would be solved by intensification of the country's industrial activities which would result in greater production. He mentioned the potentialities of the country's untapped resources in its mines, hydroelectric power, lumber, and possibly, oil. He also said that the country which was most suitable for the production of rice was still lagging in its production of this staple crop. The full development of the country's resources, he pointed out, would finally solve the unemployment problem.

The President revealed that he had been born in a small barrio and that he had obtained his education by dint of diligent labor. He said that he had worked all his life and that he had always had in his heart the interest of labor and would continue to work for that cause.

President Garcia told labor representatives that he would always listen sympathetically to the problems of the working man and that they should not hesitate to consult him any time his help was needed.

April 29.—HEAVY equipment and machinery for development of rural areas were pledged this morning to President Garcia by Col. Harry Brenn, International Cooperation Administration director, at a breakfast conference at Malacañang.

Citing the role of the ICA in the economic development of the country, Brenn briefed the Chief Executive on ICA operations in the Philippines.

Brenn said the ICA assistance fall into two categories, the industrial and the community development.

In the industrial field, Brenn said that through ICA's assistance to local industries, a total of ₱51 million has been saved in imports as of March 31, 1957. He added that the development of local industries has resulted in the employment of 11,843 new workers.

Brenn attributed this progress to the rural development program being spearheaded by the presidential assistant on community development. He said rural development has created additional income for the barrio people, thereby increasing their purchasing power for goods manufactured from local industries.

The President expressed his satisfaction with the ICA programs which played a vital role in rural development. He told Brenn to keep up the good work and to intensify the implementations of the rural development program.

Present during the breakfast which lasted from 8 to 9 a.m. was Ramon Binamira, presidential assistant on community development. PRESIDENT Garcia this day received callers up to 2 p.m. Rep. Jorge Abad of Batanes accompanied a group of town mayors from that province requesting funds for public works improvements and other projects in their respective towns.

The President received officers of the Project 6 Association which requested assistance for the construction of a school house and a health center for the residents in that government housing project.

A group of Tatalon (Quezon City) tenants called to request the President's intercession so that the price of the lots they are occupying will be reduced by the owner. The group was headed by Mrs. Aurora Dizon.

Alfonso Natividad, group settlement leader from Piat, Cagayan, headed a group of settlers who requested the President's assistance in the eviction of squatters to give way to legitimate settlers in that area. The President referred their case to the PCAC.

The President also received Minister Pullong Arpa, who is leaving shortly for his post in Cairo, Egypt. Minister Arpa called on, the President for final instructions before leaving for his post.

Edward Dennis Normandy III, Philippine delegate to the World Youth Forum, called to pay his respects following his arrival from the United States where the New York Herald Tribune-sponsored forum was held. He was accompanied to Malacañang by his mother, Mrs. Pilar Normandy, and Fr. Joseph O'Brien, S.J., of the Ateneo.

Individual callers included PNB President Arsenio J. Jison, Dean Conrado Benitez, Dean Jose M. Hernandez, president of the Catholic Action of the Philippines, Rep. Angel Castaño of Manila, and Commerce Undersecretary Perfecto E. Laguio.

April 30.—PRESIDENT Garcia returned today to Manila tired from a hectic motor drive to the largest province in Central Luzon. The President, although tired, was visibly happy over his triumphal political offensive in Pangasinan where streets were lined up with people who cheered him but occasionally jeered at Pugak and Tugak, who had ridden in Car No. 1 from Carmen, Rosales, to Lingayen when the President boarded Gov. Conrado F. Estrella's topdown car.

The President, after staying late at the closing night of the Dagupan City exposition, woke up at 6:30 o'clock in the morning, received former Interior Secretary Teofilo Sison, Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez, Gov. Estrella, and other political leaders. Although no announcement was made as to the details of the meeting at the President's room, it was indicated that President Garcia had appealed for the support of Pangasinan politicians in his bid for the presidency.

Upon leaving his room to sit at the breakfast table, the President found Rep. Bartolome Cabangbang, who came rushing to Lingayen with Col. Urbano Caldoza of the Civil Aeronautics Administration. Cabangbang had fought vainly for Caldoza's reinstatement under the late President Magsaysay's administration.

Cabangbang was reported to have been irked by newspaper reports that President Garcia had "muzzled" the Bohol solon for harassing former Magsaysay men in the government.

The Bohol solon met Col. Osmundo Mondoñedo, ACCFA administrator, whom he was reported to have assailed as among the MPM men who had committed political treason against the Chief Executive.

At their meeting Cabangbang told Mondoñedo that he never considered the ACCFA head among the political traitors. However, Cabangbang told Mondoñedo that he could not say the same thing for Labor Secretary Eleuterio Adevos, whom the President defended against the solon's diatribe last Monday afternoon in a press conference.

Cabangbang boasted he had evidence that the MPM leaders still in the government had met at the residence of a former commissioner of customs in San Juan and decided to resign en masse in the event that the MPM men were pushed around too much by the Bohol representative.

AFTER his breakfast, with the Pangasinan political leaders, the President hurried back to Manila, where he was scheduled to meet leaders of both houses of Congress.

He had set a conference with Congress leaders following reports that the two chambers were at loggerheads over the priority listing of administration bills.

Upon returning to the Palace, the President found the place swarming with many callers. Sen. Jose C. Zulueta was at the Palace reception room waiting for the President to arrive. Zulueta, it learned, wanted to explain his position in his new feud with Mayor Rodolfo Ganzon of Iloilo City. Another caller was Sen. C. Locsin.

The President, who expected an unruly conference between the Senate and the House leaders, found the conclave tame. Press Secretary J. V. Cruz said that "there was absolutely no evidence of the so-called discord between the leaders of both chambers."

The conference lasted for more than two hours as the Senate and the House leaders sorted out the different pending bills.

Shortly after the President concluded his conference with Congress leaders, the President motored to Angat, Bulacan, together with Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, the First Lady, where they inaugurated the new municipal building of the town. The entourage was expected back early last night.

PRESIDENT Garcia and Congress leaders agreed this noon on a list of 21 bills to be given priority consideration by Congress during the remaining days of the current regular session.

The bills include the budget. House leaders present at the Malacañang luncheon-meeting which lasted from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. pledged to work for the restoration of vital budget items previously stricken out by their appropriations committee. These include outlays for the NAMARCO, the ACCFA, and the NARRA.

The meeting was attended by Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., Senate Majority Floor Leader Cipriano Primicias, and Sen. Mariano Jesus Cuenco for the Senate, and Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., Speaker Protempore Daniel Z. Romualdez, and Acting Majority Floor Leader Ismael Veloso for the House of Representatives.

The other 20 bills given top priority by the conference were:

1. The public works bill, initiated and still pending in the House;
2. The bill creating a reparations commission, pending before a conference committee;
3. The Tariff Code, approved in the House and pending in the Senate;
4. The anti-subversion bill, approved in the House and pending in the Senate;
5. The bill providing for development of the nickel and iron ore deposits in Surigao, initiated and pending in the House.
6. The bill appropriating ₱120,000 for burial expenses for the late President Magsaysay and his fellow air-crash victims, approved in the House and pending in the Senate;
7. The bill appropriating a life pension for Mrs. Magsaysay, initiated and pending in the House;
8. The bill appropriating ₱10 million for Cebu City fire victims, approved in the House and pending in the Senate;
9. The Social Security Act amendments, pending in both chambers;
10. The bill appropriating ₱4million to defray the cost of extension classes organized some years ago, together with corresponding salary adjustments for teachers, initiated and pending in the House;
11. The bill repealing the 7 per cent tax on agricultural produce, still pending in the House;

12. The bill providing for a tax census, pending in both chambers;
13. The bill creating a National Development Authority, pending in both chambers;
14. The bill offering incentives to foreign investors, approved in the Senate and pending in the House;
15. The bill increasing the appropriation for pensions for veterans of the Philippine Revolution, from ₱5.5 million to ₱6.5 million, to raise individual pensions from ₱15 to ₱25 monthly;
16. The apprenticeship bill, pending in both chambers;
17. The bill on credit unions (S. B 236), initiated and pending in the Senate;
18. The Krivenko bill, pending in both chambers;
19. The local autonomy bill, pending in both chambers; and
20. The bill reducing electric power rates, initiated and pending in the House.

MALACAÑANG announced today the designation of Undersecretary Jose M. Crisol as acting secretary of national defense while Secretary Eulogio Balao is abroad on an official mission.

President's Month in Review: May 1-15, 1957

May 1.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning had breakfast with Pakistan Premier Husseyn Shaheed Suhrawardy, who arrived in Manila at 2:40 a.m. today.

Present during the breakfast were members of Premier Suhrawardy's party, including Osman Ah, joint secretary of the ministry of commerce; Aitad Amad Kahn, principal secretary to the Prime Minister; Col. Majid Malik, principal information officer; Mahmud Ahmad, undersecretary, ministry of foreign affairs and commonwealth relation; Abud Hashim, A.P.P. correspondent; Hakimuddin, assistant private secretary to the Prime Minister; S. Hussein; and K. H. Rahman, commercial secretary of the Pakistani Embassy at Tokyo. The breakfast lasted from 8 to 9 a.m.

Premier Suhrawardy was met at the Manila International Airport by Acting Foreign Affairs Secretary Raul S. Manglapus, who headed the welcoming group.

IN the afternoon the President led the nation in the observance of Labor Day by addressing a big crowd which gathered in front of the Independence Memorial Grandstand after a three-hour long Labor Day parade.

In his speech the President pledged that he would carry on the labor policies of the late President Magsaysay for the benefit of the laboring class. He pledged that he would sign into law any bill passed by the Congress for the welfare of the working man just as he would veto any bill that would prejudice the working man's interests.

President Garcia drew the immediate sympathy of the crowd, when he started his Labor Day speech in Tagalog. He was applauded several times in the course of his brief address in Tagalog. This being the first time that the President used the national language in his public address, he sometimes hesitated as he tried to give the correct pronunciation to the Tagalog words, but the crowd gave him an approving hand.

Before delivering his address, the President handed the awards to several outstanding labor leaders for the year 1957.

Color was added to the Labor Day celebration this year by the presence of Prime Minister Husseyn Shaheed Suhrawardy of Pakistan, who was seated in the grandstand next to the President. Among the officials and dignitaries in the grandstand were Labor Secretary Eleuterio Adevosio, Acting Foreign Affairs Secretary Raul S. Manglapus, Sen. Roseller T. Lim, chairman, Senate labor committee; Rep. Angel Castano of Manila, chairman, House labor committee; and several labor leaders and members of the diplomatic corps.

Premier Suhrawardy, who was introduced to the audience by Secretary Manglapus, said in his brief remarks that he brought to the Philippines the greetings of Pakistan to the Filipino people, especially the greetings of Pakistan's laboring class to the Philippines' laboring class.

He said that he was amazed at the growing strength of labor organizations in the Philippines. He paid tribute to the late President Magsaysay for his leadership and for what he had done for the benefit of the people.

President Garcia was fetched from Malacañang by Labor Secretary Adevosio and Vicente Arniego, chairman of the executive board of the Labor Day celebration. Also with the presidential party were Assistant Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison and Lieut. Melchor Fronda, aide.

The President arrived at the Independence Memorial Grandstand a little past 3 p.m. He returned to Malacañang about 7 p.m.

PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia gave a state dinner in the evening for Husseyn Shaheed Suhrawardy, Prime Minister of Pakistan, and his party, at Malacañang.

May 2.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning cancelled the projected purchase of a four-engined De Havilland plane for presidential use.

The President said that, instead, the Philippine Government would receive two twin-engined Albatros amphibian planes from the United States Government today, the 22nd anniversary of the Philippine Air Force. The turn-over of these planes is in accordance with the mutual assistance agreement between the Philippines and the United States.

The President was informed that these Albatros amphibian planes have powerful engines, modern radar equipment, and reversible props, and that they are jet-assisted during take-off. They have a 16-hour flying time as compared to the eight-hour flying time of the C-47s.

The President was introduced by Dr. Fernando Manalo, outgoing president of the PMA. Other speakers were City Mayor Alfonso Tabora of Baguio and Dr. Justo Rosales, president of the Baguio Medical Society, who delivered welcome addresses. Dr. Manalo introduced the President.

The ceremony started at about 9:30 a.m. with Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia cutting the ceremonial ribbon which signalled the opening of the medical convention.

President Garcia gave the awards to PMA members who were honored for their outstanding achievements. Among the awardees was Dr. Francisco Duque of Dagupan City, PMA president who was awarded the Golden Heart Presidential Medal for initiating the giving of free medical treatment to indigent families. The ceremonies ended before 12 noon.

THE President today requested all department secretaries concerned to take proper steps to speed up the rural development program of the Administration.

In implementing the President's suggestion, all field men concerned with rural development will be requested by their respective department heads to give priority attention to the prosecution of the grants-in-aid program undertaken through the presidential assistant on community development.

Under the grants-in-aid program, barrio people, through their barrio councils, will be given the opportunity to decide what projects they wish to undertake, provided that these projects will contribute to increased production and income, that they are self-help public improvement projects, or that they are health and sanitation projects. Of these categories, emphasis will be given to projects contributing to increased production and income.

The assistance of the barrio people will include providing them with necessary technical services in the preparation of plans, bills of materials, and other data which the barrio people cannot be expected to do by themselves.

At the same time, the President directed Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno that the ICA equipment already in the Philippines and those scheduled for delivery be organized into self-help barrio road construction teams, and that personnel be trained to operate them. These teams will be used primarily for the self-help barrio roads program and will be operated and maintained by the Bureau of Public Highways.

The President also requested Secretary Moreno to establish a section in the Bureau of Public Highways to be solely responsible for the administration, implementation, and scheduling of these self-help barrio roads program, working in close association with the presidential assistant on community development.

PRESIDENT Garcia, making good his Labor Day promise to work for more benefits for the working class, told a press conference in Baguio this noon he would certify to Congress the urgency of six bills favorably affecting labor.

President Garcia said he would ask Congress today to look with favor on bills:

1. Amending the Social Security Act of 1954 by eliminating provisions labor had found objectionable;
2. Seeking the establishment of credit unions;
3. Defining the causes for which employment may properly be terminated;
4. Providing for the development of nickel and iron ore deposits in Surigao to offer employment opportunities;
5. Laying down rules for apprenticeship; and
6. Offering incentives to foreign investors with a view to providing Philippine labor with ample opportunities for employment.

The President revealed his intention of certifying these bills to Congress only a day after he promised a mammoth Labor Day crowd in Manila that he would continue his predecessor's policy of working for more benefits for labor.

In the conference, the President also:

1. Dismissed as groundless the reports published in a Taipeh (Formosa) newspaper that overstaying Chinese here were being treated shabbily;
2. Justified the pardon of Rascid Lucman, life-termer and brother-in-law of Senator Domocao Alonto;
3. Favored increasing the membership of the Nacionalista Party executive committee to give representation to groups integrated into the party;
4. Expressed indifference to suggestions that members of the Magsaysay-for-President Movement be absorbed individually by the NP;
5. Cancelled his projected purchase of a four-engined De Havilland Heron plane; and
6. Expressed preference for holding the NP convention in the last week of June or on the fourth of July.

In spiking charges of a Taipeh newspaper, that "imperialistic treatment" was given Chinese in the Philippines, the President said he had received no protest or complaint from the Chinese ambassador on this score. He said the ambassador had invariably praised Philippine treatment of overstaying Chinese.

He explained that the cases of the Chinese visitors have been frozen owing to inaction on the part of the Taipeh Government toward receiving them in Formosa. The President said Taipeh had not proposed any solution for the repatriation of the Overstaying Chinese.

Defending the grant of pardon to Lucman, the Chief Executive disclosed that the late President Magsaysay had directed an NBI inquiry into Lucman's case and that a report pointed to other persons as the killer in the slaying for which the Muslim had been imprisoned.

President Garcia said Lucman's petition for a new trial to correct the original judgment failed to prosper in the courts. He emphasized that the pardon granted was conditional.

THE President also favored an increase in the membership of the Nacionalista Party executive committee to give representation to integrated groups like the Democratic Party.

He was non-committal on a proposal for the absorption of the MPM into the Nacionalista Party. He said: "I have no say on this."

President Garcia claimed that disagreement in the group may result in individual absorptions into the Nacionalista Party.

PRESIDENT Garcia today enlisted the cooperation of school superintendents in the implementation of the rural development program of the Administration.

In an extemporaneous speech delivered this afternoon at the opening of the nine-day annual convention of the Philippine Association of School Superintendents at Teachers' Camp in Baguio, the President said that school superintendents were in the best position to assist the program, their jurisdiction extending to the remotest areas in the country.

The President also pledged that he would continue the policies of the late President Magsaysay to improve and expand the nation's educational system in order to assure sufficient education for every child who seeks admission to the public schools.

The President was introduced by Acting Education Secretary Martin Aguilar, Jr. Other speakers were Tomas de Castro, association president, who acted as master of ceremonies, and Baguio City Mayor Alfonso Tabora who delivered a welcome address to some 155 conventionists. Also present in the convention hall were school supervisors, principals, and teachers attending summer classes in Baguio.

May 3.—THE President this day took a direct hand in preventing the impending Philippine Air Lines workers strike by discussing with the PAL board of directors the demands for salary increases and offering a solution which was substantially acceptable to the employees.

After consultation with the PAL board of directors at the music room in Malacañang this morning, the President suggested that to the demands of the PAL workers, the PAL management offer a ₱15 monthly increase in salary which will hold good during the next four years. Under this arrangement, there will be an extension of the contract between the workers and the management.

Among other things, it will be stipulated that during the Tenure of the contract, there will be no strikes or lock-outs.

The President also said that if during the four-year period the PAL would continue to show more substantial profits than that in the past year, he would see to it that bonuses were given to the employees.

Rep. Angel Castaño of Manila, who helped in presenting the staging of a strike by the PAL workers, said that the offer of the government as proposed by the President through the PAL board of directors was substantially acceptable to the PAL workers.

The President upon arrival this morning from Baguio City, met with the PAL board of directors with whom he discussed the problems of the PAL workers. After more than an hour's conference during which the President exchanged views with the PAL directors, the President suggested the giving of a ₱15 salary increase for a period of four years after the signing of the agreement. The President's suggestion was unanimously endorsed by the board.

Those present at the conference were Rafael Ygoa, vice-president; Daniel Ma. Gomez, secretary; Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, Antonio McLeod, Andres Soriano, Jr., Jose H. Panganiban, Alfonso Sycip, Jaime Velasquez, and Gregorio Trinidad, directors.

A few days ago, the President conferred twice with officials of the PAL union in an effort to settle the differences between the management and the employees. The President gave assurances that he would do his best to seek a happy solution.

PRESIDENT Garcia and his Cabinet today, after hearing the appraisal of a special Cabinet committee on the value of the government's interests in two corporations, approved the sale by public bidding of the share holdings of the National Development Company in the Philippine Electrical Manufacturing Company, Inc., and in the Compania Celulosa de Filipinas.

As a further step in implementing the government's policy of gradually withdrawing from the investment fields where private enterprises have indicated their desire to take over, the President and the Cabinet approved in principle the sale by public bidding of the government's share holdings in the Manila Gas Corporation.

The President directed OEC Administrator Juan Concon to bring to the next Cabinet meeting the appraisal papers submitted by the committee which had already made a study on the sale of the government's shares in the Manila Gas Corporation.

Final decision on this matter is expected to be handed down by the Cabinet at its next meeting.

The prospective sale of the government's shares in the Manila Gas Corporation will be the fifth to be undertaken by the government in its determination to get out of private business. The government had already sold the CEPOC cement plant in Bacnotan and the NDC canning plant.

The President and the Cabinet also approved the report of a Cabinet special committee which had endorsed the National Economic Council's recommendation allowing the Phillips Industrial Development, Inc., to establish a factory to manufacture glass envelopes and incandescent lamps through its subsidiaries, the Philippine Glass Bulbs, Inc., and the Phillips Electrical Lamps, Inc. It was stipulated that these companies should be 60 per cent Filipino-owned.

At a previous Cabinet meeting, the President had appointed the special committee to study the protest of the Philippine Electrical Manufacturing Company against the recommendation of the NEC approving the proposal of the Phillips Industrial Development, Inc., to establish a glass envelope factory and an incandescent lamp factory in the Philippines. The committee is composed of NEC Chairman Eduardo Z. Romualdez as chairman, with Budget Commissioner Dominador R. Aytona and Commerce Secretary Oscar Ledesma as members.

It had been found out that Phillips is an established and reputable firm and its entry in the local electric lamp manufacturing industry would bring about improvement in the quality and at the same time reduce the price of locally manufactured lamps, thus benefiting consumers.

Furthermore, the NEC had been convinced that the entry of Phillips would not result in harmful competition as there was adequate market for both PEMCO and Phillips. It was felt that the emphasis being placed on the industrialization and electrification programs of the government would result in a considerable increase in the country's requirements of electrical lamps, as these programs gained momentum. Besides, Phillips would invite and allow local firms to participate in the ownership and operation of its proposed glass envelope factory. This tie-up will, result in reduction of the foreign exchange allocation for the importation of glass bulbs.

In view of these findings, the special Cabinet committee recommended approval of allowing the Phillips Industrial Development, Inc., to establish a factory for the manufacture of glass envelopes and incandescent lamps.

Upon representation of Manila Railroad Company General Manager Salvador T. Villa, the President and the Cabinet approved substitutions in the procurement schedule from Japanese reparations as approved by the Cabinet on September 12, 1956, for Category No. 1 and on November 14, 1956, as follows:

Instead of nine first class coaches, 32 third class coaches, seven poultry cars, and six diesel rail cars, only five first class coaches and three diesel rail cars will be procured depending on the results of an international bidding.

It was also approved to hold an international bidding for 20 third class coaches and seven diesel rail cars. The bidding will be held simultaneously in Manila and in Tokyo.

At the Cabinet meeting, the President approved the appointment of Aguinaldo Maaba as secretary to the Cabinet and the advisory councils and concurrently as chief of the general affairs division of the Executive Office.

President Garcia presided over the Cabinet meeting which was held at the Council of State room from 12:20 to 2:10 p.m. Owing to heavy engagements, especially his conference with the board of directors of the Philippine Air Lines upon his arrival from Baguio this morning, the President was delayed in holding the Cabinet meeting.

IN the afternoon the President inaugurated the national headquarters of the Garcia-for-President-Movement (GPM) and pledged to “dedicate the rest of my life to work for the prosperity and happiness of the nation” if elected.

The President reiterated that he would continue with accelerated tempo all the items in the political program of the late President Magsaysay. He said he would place emphasis on the solution of the unemployment problem by initiating a balanced development of the agricultural economy and the industrial program.

The Chief Executive delivered extemporaneous speeches both at the national headquarters of the GPM on Arquiza Street, in Ermita and at the national campaign headquarters of the GPM on Plaza Lawton. He was introduced by Rep. Bartolome Cabangbang of Bohol, national coordinator of the GPM, as “the President whose interest is the national interest.”

“We should balance the development of our agricultural economy and our industrial program to improve our national economy in order to absorb the unemployed among us,” the President said.

He arrived at the GPM headquarters with Mrs. Garcia about 5:40 p.m. and proceeded upstairs for the inauguration. He was fetched from Malacañang by a motorcade led by Rep. Cabangbang and GPM leaders. Also with the presidential party was Sen. Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez.

Among those who were at the inauguration were Reps. Angel Castancy of Manila, Constancio Castaneda of Tarlac, Manuel Zosa of Cebu, Lorenzo Teves of Negros Occidental, and Quezon City Mayor Norberto Amoranto.

Upon his arrival, the President was mobbed by a large crowd of supporters and admirers and it took him several minutes before he could ascend the stairs.

At the national headquarters of the GPM on Plaza Lawton, the President delivered part of his extemporaneous speech in Tagalog. Other speakers were Rep. Castano, former Manila Councilor Isauro Santiago, and Rep. Zosa.

President Garcia assured members of the Farmers’ Cooperative Marketing Association all over the country that he would support all measures designed to help the farmers free themselves from poverty and monopoly.

The President delivered a short talk before the FACOMA members who called on him at Malacañang. The farmers, stockholders of the Central Cooperative Exchange of the ACCFA, were accompanied by Osmundo Mondoñedo, ACCFA chairman and administrator, and Ernesto Jimenez, CCE general manager.

After hearing the problems of the FACOMAs as expounded by Rizalino E. Lopez, spokesman of the group, the President said that he had already requested the members of Congress to restore the ₱10 million slashed from the ACCFA budget. He said that Congress agreed to restore not only the ₱10 million to the ACCFA but also the ₱10 million to the NAMARCO and the ₱8 million to the NARRA. He said that the cooperation of Congress in the restoration of the items was proof that the Congress members were interested in uplifting the conditions of the farmers and the common man.

The FACOMA members, in a unanimous resolution, expressed their thanks and gratitude to the President for his continuous support for the welfare of the farmers as evidenced by his “great desire to continue implementing the announced policies of the late President Magsaysay on rural development.”

In his talk with the FACOMA members, the President also promised that he would certify to Congress the urgency of the following bills as recommended by ACCFA Administrator Mondoñedo:

- (1) House Bill No. 7275, broadening the financing activities of the ACCFA, increasing the revolving fund of the ACCFA, and making explicit the authority of the ACCFA administrator to suspend erring FACOMA officials;
- (2) The bill amending Rep. Act No. 1194, revising the classification of Virginia leaf tobacco to be purchased by the government through the ACCFA;
- (3) House Bill No. 7294, including farmers’ cooperative marketing associations affiliated with the ACCFA as one of those qualified to become transferees of lands acquired and titled by authority of the Land Tenure Act;
- (4) The bill amending Commonwealth Act No. 141;
- (5) House Bill No. 5863, eliminating the prohibition on FACOMAs to handle the products of non-members except for storage and authorizing said FACOMAs to deal in the products of, and transact with or for other persons, entities, and parties who are not members of the association any business that it may transact with or for the members; and
- (6) House Bill No. 6578, extending the period of exemption from the payment of duty granted to textiles made of 100 per cent Philippine ramie.

Other requests of the FACOMA members which the President said he would study thoroughly were:

- (1) The certification of Senate Bill No. 578, authorizing the ACCFA instead of the NAMARCO to import onions, potatoes, garlic, and cabbages;
- (2) A directive to the NARIC to use the FACOMAs or their agencies as exclusive buying and distributing agents of rice or palay for NARIC;
- (3) A directive to the NARIC to buy all rice or palay bought by FACOMAs at agreed prices;
- (4) A directive to the NARIC not to construct facilities such as warehouses, ricemills, or stores where FACOMA warehouses, ricemills, or stores exist;
- (5) A directive to the NAMARCO to allocate a monthly quota of at least 30 per cent of its entire dollar allocation be earmarked for the CCE for exclusive distribution to FACOMAs; and
- (6) Allowing the ACCFA, NAMARCO, CCE, and any federation of FACOMAs to import directly farm implements, supplies, and commodities.

Earlier in the afternoon, the President signed the bill creating the municipality of Naawan in Misamis Oriental. The bill was the first one signed by the President during the current session of Congress. Sen. Emmanuel Pelaez, Rep.

Ignacio Cruz, and several mayors of Misamis Oriental were present at the signing of the bill. Naawan was formerly a/barrio of the town of Initao.

May 4.—PRESIDENT Garcia told the people of Laguna today that he would continue with the program enunciated by the late President Magsaysay of constructing irrigation systems all over the country as a means of helping poor farmers as well as of increasing the nation's food production.

Speaking at Siniloan, Laguna, this noon before a large crowd gathered to witness the inauguration of the Mayor River Irrigation System which will service some 800 hectares of rice lands in three Laguna towns, the President reiterated his plea for popular support so that he could have an opportunity to carry out the laudable policies of "my great predecessor."

The Chief Executive spoke extemporaneously in Tagalog and in English for about 30 minutes, during which he enumerated some of the projects of the late President which he intended to continue; such as, the construction of barrio roads, pre-fabricated school buildings, health centers, the installation of artesian wells, and providing homes for the homeless and lands for the landless.

"Owing to the untimely death of our illustrious leader, many people still do not have homes and lands, and many barrio roads, school buildings, health centers, and artesian wells are yet to be constructed," the President said. "I intend to complete the program of the late President Magsaysay to its happy conclusion."

Fetches from Malacañang by Rep. Wenceslao R. Lagumbay and Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, the President left the Palace about 7:10 a.m. He was met at the Rizal-Laguna boundary in San Pedro Tunasan by a large delegation headed by Gov. Dominador Chipeco, Rep. Jacobo Gonzales, town mayors, and other political leaders of Laguna.

The Chief Executive was scheduled to arrive in Siniloan at 10 a.m. to inaugurate the new irrigation project. However, owing to numerous unscheduled stops he had to make enroute, on account of other delegations which awaited him with brass bands, fireworks, and welcome leis, the President arrived at his destination past 12 noon, more than two hours behind schedule. Among the places where the President stopped, in deference to the wishes of the people who had waited for him for hours, were Bifian, Platero, Sta. Rosa, Cabuyao, Balite (Victoria), Pagsanjan, Kalayaan, Paete, and Pakil.

Entering Siniloan about 12 noon, the President was met at the outskirts of the town by a delegation of municipal officials headed by Mayor Ruben Adricula. He alighted from his car and, at the head of a welcome parade, walked the rest of the way to the town plaza about half a kilometer away, where a large crowd had gathered to welcome him.

After a brief, extemporaneous speech delivered in Tagalog, thanking the townspeople for the warm reception they had accorded him, the President returned to his car and motored to the irrigation dam site some three kilometers from the town.

The inauguration ceremonies started with an overture rendered by the Siniloan band. The ceremonial ribbon was cut by Mrs. Florencio Moreno, assisted by Mesdames Chipeco and Lagumbay, wives of the governor and the congressman, respectively. Rev. Alejandro Olalia, bishop of Lipa City, blessed the project.

The President, in his speech, disclosed that the province of Laguna had received a total of 22 million during the last three years of the Nacionalista administration, compared to only 4 million given under the previous administration. The 22 million had been given to the province in the form of public works projects, he said. He promised to continue "with this great momentum of public improvements."

The Chief Executive was introduced by Rep. Lagumbay. Other speakers at the inauguration rites were Gov. Chipeco, who delivered the welcome address, and Secretary Moreno, who delivered the opening remarks, Servando Suguitan, district irrigation engineer, was master of ceremonies.

Constructed at a cost of 192,000, the new Mayor River Irrigation System is considered the largest in Laguna. It will benefit some 2,000 families of farmers and serve about 800 hectares of rice lands in the municipalities of Mabitac, Famy, and Siniloan. It was estimated that the system would increase agricultural production in that region by three-fold.

The President was back in Manila about 3:30 p.m.

AFTER a hurried lunch, the President sped towards Manila to catch up with the meeting of the executive committee of the Nacionalista Party. He arrived late, as the presidential party reached Manila at 3:45 o'clock this afternoon.

After the NP executive committee meeting, the President gave an impromptu press interview over Radio Station DZQL Radio Reloj.

President Garcia said this afternoon that he was running for election on a platform of clean government as he announced what he called a "relentless drive against graft and corruption."

He made this announcement in a brief press interview with newspapermen over Station DZQL Radio Reloj at the New Selecta on Dewey Boulevard.

In a sortie at noon today into a politically hostile territory in Laguna, the President lambasted the Liberal Party in a bid to strengthen his chances in the coming elections.

It was the first broadside fired by President Garcia against the opposition party since he lifted the one-month moratorium on politics occasioned by the death of President Magsaysay.

1. Renewed a bid to win to his side the members of the Magsaysay-for-President Movement;
2. Expressed the view that Congress will restore the slashed item of the President's Complaint and Action Committee in the budget; and
3. Favored the development of a strong opposition which should serve as a fiscalizer to the leaders of the party in power.

In appealing to the MPMs, the President said the group is a potent factor in any election.

He stressed this as he recalled that he had not contemplated to remove Labor Secretary Eleuterio Adevosos from the Cabinet even if Garcia's chief political lieutenant, Rep. Bartolome Cabangbang of Bohol, concurrently national coordinator of the Garcia-for-President Movement, had denounced Adevosos as "disloyal" to the Chief Executive.

He said he was retaining Adevosos in the Cabinet and stressed the hope that the MPM will back him in his bid for the presidential election.

"I hope to get them to my side," President Garcia declared. He said that the MPMs who supported the late President Magsaysay would throw their support behind him because he was determined to follow the policies of his predecessor.

He said he would undertake a “relentless” campaign against graft and corruption in the government. “The MPMs are against graft and corruption,” he recalled.

The President spiked a charge that the Nacionalista Party convention which may be held sometime next month or in August will be a “rigged-up affair.”

He stated that he would not allow this to happen although such a set-up may favor his candidacy.

At the same time, the President said the coming convention will be able to decide on the candidate of the majority party. “I have high hopes that the party will be able to resolve any dead-lock,” the President remarked.

Turning on the pruning of items in the budget, the President said he believed that the PCAC item which had been abolished in the proposed budget would be restored.

He said he needed the PCAC in his campaign for a clean and honest government. He pointed out that the PCAC is the “clearing house of the complaints of the common man”.

Answering a query on whether or not he favored a reported plan of the Liberal Party to support him in the event their quest for a candidate for the highest position fails, President Garcia said he wanted to preserve the existence of a healthy opposition.

He said a fiscalizer is necessary to preserve democracy in the Philippines.

However, the Chief Executive commented that he has not given the supposed LP plan a thought. “Let them present their proposal,” he said, “before I shall comment on the supposed plan.”

IN the afternoon the President received some two hundred delegates to the 28th annual convention of the Philippine Dental Association who paid their respects to the Chief Executive on the last day of their convention.

The delegation was headed by Dr. Atanacio N. Ilano, president of the PDA, and Dean Genaro Felizardo, chairman of the convention. Also present were Dr. William R. Alstadt, president-elect of the American Dental Association; Dr. Jose F. Aubertine, fellow of the American College of Dentists; and Dr. Bienvenido R. Erana, president-elect of the 2nd Asia Dental Congress.

In his brief remarks to the dentists, the President said that the Administration had greatly expanded its rural health program, including the employment of more dentists to minister to the dental needs of the barrio people. He added that, as the program would expand further, more dentists would be needed to attend to the health of the people.

The President said that the science of dentistry had developed to an advance stage in the Philippines and that Filipino dentists had acquired prestige here and abroad.

Dr. Ilano introduced the President.

In the course of the call, Dr. Alstadt presented a scroll to the President making him a honorary citizen of Little Rock, Arkansas. The scroll was signed by Little Rock Mayor Woodrow Wilson Mann. Together with the scroll went a small symbolic key to the city of Little Rock.

Dr. Alstadt, in his brief remarks, said that he had observed the progress of dentistry in the Philippines resulting in a higher standard of the practice of the dental profession. He said that the International Dental Federation and the American Dental Association had recognized the Philippine Dental Association as the, official dental association in the Philippines.

The President expressed his thanks to the Little Rock Mayor, through Dr. Alstadt, for the honor of having been made an honorary citizen of that city.

PRESIDENT Garcia said in the evening that "economic statemanship" and closer alliance with the United States will steer the country through economic difficulties and the dangers of communism.

He addressed the members of the Chicago Club at the Aristocrat on Dewey Boulevard. The President said the Philippines can survive the "crucial struggle" against communism "under the leadership of the United States of America, and we intend to maintain this alliance."

He pointed out that the most serious problem involving the security of the country is posed by a "godless ideology that seeks to disrupt and destroy our orderly democratic processes."

He urged the members of the Chicago Club, as "men schooled in the ideals of democracy, to lead our people in that struggle."

In warning against the communist menace, the President rallied the people to "be ever on the alert, lest this merciless, soulless, treacherous way of life again attempt to creep into the lives of our people."

Although he was unequivocal in maintaining closer alliance with the United States, the President said, that the country should also strengthen its ties with other Asian countries within the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

He observed that the United States is a member of the alliance. "This is for us Filipinos," he said, "significant because of our special relations with that great country which has helped us a great deal in surmounting the many difficulties and problems we have encountered since we regained our independence in 1946."

He stressed also that as a young nation, the Philippines in its "endeavor to develop a fuller and more tranquil life can benefit much from the lessons of history and from the rise of progressive nations today, like America."

Turning to the economic difficulties of the country, the President pointed out that the root of most of the problems of mankind is economic.

He said that the Administration has been giving greater emphasis to the solution of economic problems.

He declared:

"With the natural wealth and resources that a provident God has endowed our country, there is no reason why we could not provide our people with better shelters, better foods, more comforts in life—if only the national effort should be geared with determination towards this end. We cannot do these things overnight."

However, he warned: "We can not achieve our avowed goals amidst petty squables, intrigues, and greed. We need to be guided by sound economic statesmanship and the genuine concern for those who have less in life."

May 5.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning before leaving for Antipolo, Rizal, at 9:20, said the Administration has succeeded in operating the government with a balanced budget for the past three years, and added that he would never tolerate deficit spending.

The President made this statement at the Malacañang study room, where Tarlac town mayors gathered to pledge their support to his election bid.

In a brief talk to the Tarlac town executives, the President urged the mayors to cooperate with his administration, particularly on projects enunciated by the late President Magsaysay.

Headed by Gov. Arsenio Lugay, the Tarlac town mayors consulted the Chief Executive on matters affecting their respective towns. The President listened to the town mayors individually, taking down notes on their respective problems.

Rep. Constancio Castañeda accompanied the town mayors to Malacañang.

PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia this morning motored to Antipolo, Rizal, on the opening day of the two-month annual pilgrimage in honor of Our Lady of Peace and Good Voyage.

The President was fetched from Malacañang by Sen. Lorenzo Sumulong. Others who accompanied him were Secretary Fortunato de Leon, Gov. Juan Pajo of Bohol, Assistant Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, and Lieut Melchor Fronda, aide.

On the way to Antipolo, the presidential party was met at Cainta by Mayor Francisco Felix and Vice-Major Catalino Cruz, who led welcomers, and at Taytay, by Rep. Serafin Salvador and Mayor Manuel Santos, who also led welcomers. In both places, the President alighted from his car, walked some distance, and acknowledged the greetings of the people,

The President and the First Lady and their party arrived at the Antipolo Cathedral past 10:00 a.m., and heard mass said by Mons. Vicente Fernandez, parish priest of the town. Other officials at the cathedral were Senate President and Mrs. Eulogio Rodriguez, Sen. and Mrs. Lorenzo Sumulong, Public Works Secretary and Mrs. Florencio Moreno, Executive Secretary De Leon, Gov. Amado Aleta of Nueva Ecija, and Mayor Isaías Tapales of Antipolo.

After the mass, the President and his Lady, together with the presidential party, motored to the farm of Sen. Sumulong where a traditional yearly luncheon was given. Among the officials present were Sen. and Mrs. Alejo Mabanag, Sen. Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez and husband, Sen. and Mrs. Lorenzo M. Tanada, Sen. Jose P. Laurel, Rep. Miguel Cuenco of Cebu, and Rep. and Mrs. Serafin Salvador of Rizal.

From the Sumulong farm, President Garcia and Senate President Rodriguez and his party motored back to Manila. They arrived at Pier 5 about 1:30 p.m., where the President boarded the yacht Santa Maria. Aboard the yacht waiting for him were some 17 governors who discussed with the President problems affecting their respective provinces.

After cruising in Manila Bay, the yacht returned to Manila about 5:30 p.m. After the governors had left, the President worked on a bundle of state papers awaiting presidential decision.

Among the papers signed by the President was a proclamation amending a previous proclamation which established the Mt. Apo National Park. The proclamation excludes from the previous proclamation's operation a certain portion of the land embraced within an area of about 3,946 hectares situated in Makilala, Cotabato, and declares this portion open to disposition under the provisions of the Public Land Act.

Upon recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole, the President signed papers giving conditional pardons to six convicts and absolute pardon to one insular prisoner.

The President remained at the yacht until late in the evening, working on state papers and conferring with Secretary De Leon on pending matters.

PAKISTAN Prime Minister Hesseyn Shaheed Suhrawardy will leave the Philippines tomorrow morning with an assurance from President Garcia that this country would support the United Nations in all its efforts to solve any international dispute.

The assurance was embodied in a joint communique which President Garcia and Prime Minister Suhrawardy issued early this morning. It was interpreted by members of the Suhrawardy party as a “signal victory” for the Pakistani premier in his fight against Indian annexation of the princely state of Kashmir.

They pointed out that President Garcia’s assurance was similar to the one Premier Suhrawardy drew from Japanese Premier Nobusuke Kishi during his state visit to Japan April 23-30.

The key part of the Garcia-Suhrawardy communique, in the Pakistani’s view, said Mr. Garcia and Mr. Suhrawardy agreed that all international disputes could be settled through the United Nations. (See Historical Papers and Documents, pp. 2765-2766, for full text of the joint statement.)

May 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia today told a delegation of the Civic Assembly of Women of the Philippines headed by Miss Helena Z. Benitez, CAWP president, that he would make full utilization of women’s services in various government offices to help him in the difficult task of government.

The Chief Executive said that he would continue placing the best qualified women wherever they are most suited to serve the country.

At the same time, he reassured the women leaders that he would do his best to continue using the national language as often as he could. As a matter of fact, he said that on some occasions in the past few days, he had spoken in Tagalog, the last one being on the occasion of Labor Day when he delivered his full speech in the national language.

The Chief Executive was prompted to make these remarks about his use of Tagalog by Dr. Ligaya D. Perez, acting president of the Panitik ng Kababaihan, who inquired from the President if he would deliver more speeches in the national language.

Miss Benitez also requested the President to certify to the urgency of House Bill No. 6600 in order to insure the holding of the first national conference on family life in December 1957, a project that was approved by the late President.

Other members of the CAWP present were Felisa S. Garina, acting secretary; Rafaelita Hilario-Soriano, Women’s International League; Constanca D. Dumlao, League of Women Voters of the Philippines; Juanita L. Pintoy and Milagros B. Sabane, Camp Murphy Women’s Club; Barbara M. Yap and Andrea Godinez, of the Moslem Women’s Association of the Philippines; Jessie Lichauco, Association de Damas Filipinas; Barbara B. Mariano and J. S. Lopez, Junior Federation of Women’s Clubs; Joaquina R. Zapanta, Women’s Christian Temperance Union; Trinidad F. Legarda, Pan-Pacific Women’s Association of the Philippines; Concepcion R. Gonzalez, Girl Scouts of the Philippines; Paz M. Catolico, National Federation of Women’s Clubs; Juanita Valera, Catholic Women’s League; and Mrs. Nieves Baens-del Rosario.

The President started receiving his regular callers at about 9:30 a.m. after having breakfast with executives of the Tabacalera. The League of Administration Executives, headed by Maj. Antonio G. Perez, called on the President and pledged its support of, and cooperation with, the Administration.

Rep. Floro Crisologo of Ilocos Sur requested the President that immediate extension of the Ambuklao hydroelectric power lines be made to Northern Luzon, particularly to Ilocos Sur, in order to bring the benefits of rural electrification to that region. The President directed National Power Corporation General Manager Filemon Zablan to take action on the request.

The Philippine Contractors Association headed by its President, Perfecto Mañalac, requested the President that more construction materials be made available in order to hasten the many construction works going on in the country.

The delegation was accompanied by Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno.

The Health Education Association of the Philippines delegation requested more appropriations for community centers. This project is a joint venture of the Department of Education, the Department of Health, and the Health Education Association of the Philippines. The delegation was headed by Macario Naval, president of the Philippine Normal College and of the association, and Carmen del Rosario, secretary.

Mayor Placido Fialza of Itogon, Mt. Province, and Mrs. Cecille Afable requested the President's help for the several families which had been displaced from their lands as a result of the construction of the Ambuklao and the Binga projects, and who until now have not been settled. The President referred the matter to Public Works Secretary Florenco Moreno to take up their case at the next meeting of the National Power Corporation.

Rep. Justino Benito of Pangasinan accompanied four mayors of his district and requested funds for the construction of the Ambaywan irrigation system and the waterworks system for Tayug. The President said that he would take this matter up with the Council of State at the next meeting.

A delegation of the Federated Civic Women's Organization of Quezon City headed by Mrs. Norberto Amoranto and Dr. Justiniano T. Mendoza, director of the Labor Hospital, requested the President to grant an additional ₱60,000 for the construction of a dispensary for the Labor Hospital.

A big delegation of the Philippine Employees, Laborers, and Tenants Association (PELTA) of Dagupan City, jointly with the Rapu-Rapu Labor Union of Albay, presented, resolutions to the Chief Executive endorsing unqualifiedly the President's candidacy for president.

The PELTA was represented by Francisco M. Lopez, its president and chairman, while the RRLU was represented by Eulalio B. Garcia, who spoke for Andres A. Aguilar, president of the union.

A delegation of the Garcia Citizens' Movement for President of Quezon City, headed by Mateo Ross, president, also paid their respects to the Chief Executive.

Other individual callers of the President were Sen. Domocao Alonto; Reps. Ombra Amilbangsa of Sulu, Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan, and Ramon P. Mitra of Mt. Province; and Gov. Antonio Raquiza of Ilocos Norte.

THIS morning the President stayed for a period of 30 days the execution of the death penalty on prisoner Crispin Verzo.

The court of first instance of Camarines Norte and the Supreme Court had imposed the death penalty upon prisoner Verzo for the crime of multiple murder and damage to property and the sentence had been set for execution on May 9, 1957.

A petition had been filed with the Board of Pardons and Parole for the commutation to life imprisonment of the death penalty imposed upon the prisoner. However, the report and recommendations of the Board of Pardons and Parole had not yet been received and some time will be needed for a thorough and careful consideration of the merits of the petition.

For this reason, the President stayed the execution of the final sentence on the prisoner.

THE President this morning also directed the secretary of health to order an investigation of alleged manhandling of two reporters by a doctor of the Philippine General Hospital.

The President took this action upon reading reports of the incident in the papers. The Chief Executive directed that the health secretary, after investigating the case, take the necessary action in accordance with the circumstances of the case.

IN the afternoon the President reiterated his determination to continue emancipating the rural people from the clutches of greedy landlords and loan sharks and to prosecute with vigor the land reform program initiated by “our great proletarian leader, the late President Magsaysay.”

The President made the statement during his extemporaneous speech before the delegates to the convention of the Philippine Rural Action for National Regeneration (PRANAR) at the YMCA building. The speech was one of the four speeches delivered by the President this afternoon.

Other speeches delivered by the President this day were:

(2) That before the National Seminar on Human Rights at the Institute of Science and Technology building; and

(3) The extemporaneous speech in Tagalog before the NARIC delegation from. Nueva Ecija, Pampanga, Tarlac, Pangasinan, Isabela, Cagayan, and other provinces headed by NARIC Board Chairman Juan O. Chioco, Acting General Manager Vicente Concepcion, Rep. Celestino Juan of Nueva Ecija, Govs. Jose Espino of Isabela, Marcelo Adduru of Cagayan, and Amado Aleta of Nueva Ecija, and Mayor Teodoro Santiago of Cabanatuan City.

In his speech before the PRANAR and the NARIC delegations, the President said that Malacañang was always open to the people. He invited the people to “come to me with your complaints and problems.” He assured them of his help.

He cited all the measures initiated by the Administration for the welfare of the common man. He said that small farmers and barrio people should take advantage of the small loans being offered by government agencies and corporations like the ACCFA, FACOMA, GSIS, RFC, and the CCE.

The President was given the Order of the Carabao award by the, PRANAR in recognition of his contributions to the uplift of the rural areas. Also given posthumously the same award was the late President Magsaysay. Milagros Magsaysay received the award for her late father. Dominador La Madrid, president of the PRANAR, said that the Order of the Carabao is symbolic of the backbone of the nation.

PRESIDENT Garcia, making known his desire for clean elections this November, vowed to respect the rights of minority political parties.

He said he would never countenance any act that may render it difficult for minority parties to express their will through the polls.

“Minority political parties may rest assured,” he said, “that I shall never lift a finger or utter a single word that may deprive them of an equal and untrammelled freedom in the discussion of the issues which they may present to our people.”

President Garcia made the vow in a speech he delivered in opening a national seminar on human rights at the Institute of Science and Technology building in the Philippine General Hospital compound.

The seminar which will last until May 11 is under the auspices of the United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization’s national commission of the Philippines.

In vowing to respect the rights of minority parties, the President said he is fully cognizant that “one of the acid tests of democracy is the clear awareness on the part of the majority party of its solemn responsibility to respect the rights of the minorities.”

“I am not unmindful of the lesson of experience,” he said in a jocular vein, “that the majority party that rides roughshod over the minorities is on its way to taking the place of the latter.”

At the Institute of Science and Technology building, where the President spoke on human rights after he had spoken before the Philippine Electric Plant Operators Association at the Manila Hotel, the Chief Executive was met by Dr. Jorge Bocobo, chairman of the seminar on human rights, and Rafael Salas, acting executive secretary of the UNESCO under whose sponsorship the seminar was held.

From the Institute of Science and Technology building, the President proceeded to the YMCA building for the PRANAR affair. The President was cheered by the delegates to the PRANAR convention when he said that he would recommend to the Land Tenure Administration the expropriation of a landed state in Paco as requested by the delegates.

The President returned to Malacañang about 7 p.m. and received the NARIC delegation. After the NARIC delegation, the President received the officials of the Home Financing Commission with whom he discussed matters affecting the commission. The officials were headed by Commodore Jose Andrada, chairman of the HFC.

May 7—PRESIDENT Garcia was accorded a colorful reception on his arrival in Cotabato, Cotabato, at 11: p.m. this morning aboard the plane Pagasa following more than three hours’ trip from Manila.

On hand at the Cotabato airport was a large crowd headed by national, provincial, and municipal officials, including Gov. Udtog Matalam, Rep. Luminog Mangelen, Cotabato Mayor Mando Sinsuat, and Lambayong Mayor Jose Guerrero, president of the Cotabato Mayors’ League.

After acknowledging the enthusiastic cheers of welcomers made up of people of mixed faiths, and the raffles and flourishes offered by an honor guard composed of the local Constabulary unit, the President was whisked at the head of a long motorcade to the palace of Mons. Gerard Mongeau, prelate nullius of Cotabato, thence to the nearby Immaculate Conception Cathedral, where a Te Deum was sung by the prelate.

Accompanied by local officials, the President then proceeded to the burned area where the fire had gutted eight blocks of the town’s business center with an estimated loss of 6,500,000. The President stayed at the fire area about 30 minutes, chatting with some of the 500 families rendered homeless by the conflagration. Most of the victims were Chinese businessmen.

The President had lunch at the officers’ clubhouse of the local PC headquarters. The Southern Hotel, where the luncheon was originally scheduled to be held, had been burned down.

At 4 p.m. the President had merienda at the carnival grounds, given jointly by the local civic organizations, including the Knights of Columbus, the Rotary, the Jaycees, the Freemasons, the Catholic Ladies League, and the Muslim association. Then the Chief Executive proceeded to the town plaza for the public rally.

Tonight the President had dinner at the Fountain Head Hotel given by the Cotabato Mayors’ League. Then he was the guest of honor at the mayor’s league night at the carnival auditorium, where he inducted the officers of the local press club headed by Pedro Morales, club president.

The President spent the night at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Perfecto Marquez, where he always stays while in Cotabato.

The presidential party included Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno Govs. Bernardo Torres of Leyte, Juan Pajo of Bohol, Juan Frivaldo of Sorsogon, and Alejo Santos of Bulacan; and Technical Assistant Sofronio Quimson.

May 8.—PRESIDENT Garcia returned today, from a two-day flying trip to Mindanao where he launched a “fruitful” campaign in Cotabato to win over the southern island voters in November.

In Mindanao the President was guest of Boholanos who gave him a breakfast in one of the restaurants which survived the conflagration in Cotabato, Cotabato. President Garcia was at "home" among his province people, reviewing old acquaintances with several of them.

The President was scheduled to induct the officers of the press club at a dance in the carnival auditorium in the evening. However, when the President showed up at the auditorium, the place was practically empty as the guests trooped in later in the night. Before the President could induct the press club officers, it rained, preventing them from fulfilling his schedule.

It was learned that the officers of the Cotabato Press Club went to see President Garcia in his quarters, but were told that the President was already asleep.

The President asked for the press club officers in the morning but the latter decided to call the whole thing off.

Before leaving Cotabato this morning, the President saw former Sen. Salipada Pendatun, who was expected to run for the House of Representatives in the coming elections.

FROM the Cotabato airport, the President flew on to Romblon where he viewed the remains of Mrs. Manuel Solidum, wife of the governor of the province. Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno accompanied the President to Romblon.

Taking off after lunch in Romblon, the President arrived in Manila shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The President was reported to have been wearied by the hectic trip to Cotabato where he delivered several addresses.

Waking up at six o'clock in the evening, the President conferred with the members of the Monetary Board of the Central Bank and the officers of the Philippine Chamber of Industries and the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines.

The President directed the Monetary Board to relax its controls on foreign exchange in order to provide a healthier climate for the industrialization of the country.

Rep. Lorenzo Teves of Negros Oriental, accompanied the businessmen and the Monetary Board members.

In the group were Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, Dean Vicente Sinco, Gregorio Licaros, Ben Medrano of the CCP, and Fernando E. V. Sison of the PCI.

May 9—THIS morning, the President had breakfast with visiting American businessmen who paid a courtesy call. The affair was purely a social gathering.

The businessmen included Allen Chase, Jack Tyler, Henry LeCossett, and William Cunn. They were accompanied to Malacañang by Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez, U.S. Embassy Minister Horace Smith, and David Chang.

Implementing a previous Cabinet decision to negotiate and conclude a trade protocol with Japan, the Cabinet approved the composition of the Philippine panel of negotiators as follows:

Jose Ma. Espino of the Department of Foreign Affairs, chairman; Dr. Marcelino Bernardo of the National Economic Council, vice-chairman; Dr. Benito Legarda of the Central Bank, Bonifacio Quiaoit of the Department of Commerce and Industry, and Martin Mendoza of the Department of Foreign Affairs, as members.

In addition, the following were appointed advisers: Dominador P. Amor of the Department of Foreign Affairs; Bernardo Abrera, NASSCO general manager; Jose H. Panganiban, NDC general manager; Vicente Coloso, OEC technical adviser; and Jose M. Trinidad of the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources. Wilfredo Vega of the Department of Foreign Affairs was appointed secretary to the panel.

The Cabinet gave its approval to the composition of the panel upon representation of Acting Foreign Affairs Secretary Raul S. Manglapus.

The Cabinet also approved the tank type (swimming pool) research reactor with two-position core model which the Philippines intends to acquire at the expense of the United States Government.

This type of reactor had been recommended by the inter-departmental committee on atomic energy, of which Health Secretary Paulino J. Garcia is the chairman. In sponsoring approval of this type of reactor, Secretary Manglapus said that this matter was considered urgent because further delay on the decision would hold the stages of implementation of the project.

Hand in hand with the approval of this research reactor, Secretary Manglapus also recommended that the President certify to Congress the urgency of legislation creating an atomic energy commission as administering authority to carry out the implementation of the bilateral agreement between the Philippines and the United States. This commission will formulate and recommend general policies concerning the development, uses, and disposition of atomic energy products.

The Cabinet was informed that until an atomic energy bill had been approved by the Congress, research and development on nuclear energy in the Philippines could not progress and Philippine commitments in the bilateral agreement with the United States would remain unfulfilled. This agreement will expire in 1960, after which any financial aid committed to the Philippines by the United States for this project might be lost by default.

The bilateral agreement entered into on July 27, 1955, is for cooperation between the Philippine Government and the United States Government in the development for peaceful uses of atomic energy. The Philippine Government expressed the desire of pursuing a research and development program towards the realization of the peaceful and humanitarian uses of atomic energy and to obtain assistance from the United States Government with respect to this program.

The United States Government, in turn, has committed to assist the Philippine Government by furnishing at no cost, a nuclear research reactor and by defraying the salaries, travel, and other necessary expenses of the technical men to be sent to the Philippines to supervise the installation and initial operation of the research reactor.

The Philippine Government is committed to construct the building and related facilities to house the reactor and to bear the cost of maintaining and operating the reactor.

Moreover, the Cabinet approved the draft agreement between the Philippine Government and the World Health Organization and on behalf of the United Nations and its specialized agencies concerning office accommodations in Manila.

Under this agreement the government shall grant to the WHO the free use of a piece of land on the corner of Isaac Peral and Taft Avenue on which to build the regional office for the Western Pacific of the WHO.

The WHO will enjoy the free use of the land indefinitely for as long as the regional office of the organization remains in Manila. The title to, and ownership of, the land shall remain with the Philippine Government.

The government will contribute as an outright donation the sum of ₱500,000, approximately 50 per cent of the estimated cost of constructing the WHO buildings. The title to the buildings shall be in the name of the WHO. However, should the WHO discontinue its activities or should it cease to require office accommodations in Manila, it will transfer a clear title to the buildings to the Philippine Government.

The Cabinet, furthermore, approved the sale by public bidding of the share holdings of the Philippine Government in the Manila Gas Corporation. It was stipulated that the selling price should not be less than ₱362.78, the book value per share as of March 31, 1957.

The Cabinet action in selling the government's shares of investment was the fifth to be undertaken in its determination to gradually withdraw from private business. It has already sold the CEPOC cement plant in Bacnotan, the NDC canning plant, and its share-holdings in "the Philippine Electrical Manufacturing Company and the Compania Celulosa de Filipinas.

Upon agreement between the secretary of health and the secretary of national defense, the Cabinet approve the transfer of the V. Luna General Hospital to the Bureau of Hospitals and of the Fort William McKinley Hospital to the Armed Forces.

The exchange of these hospitals is calculated to bring about more hospital facilities and accommodations to more people and will minimize the overcrowding of patients in government hospitals in Manila.

The exchange is also believed to be beneficial to both the Armed Forces and to the Bureau of Hospitals.

Also approved during the Cabinet meeting was the request of philatelists, stamp collectors, and civic organizations to issue a mourning stamp in honor of the late President Magsaysay. The American Bank Note Company of New York will print the 5-centavo stamps bearing the late President's picture. It was recommended that 5 million stamps be ordered.

The Cabinet decided to sell the stamps at ₱10 each and that one-half of the proceeds from the sale would go to the Magsaysay Memorial Fund.

During the Cabinet meeting, the President announced to his Cabinet members his policy regarding community development. He said that it was his desire that the Administration would implement the community development program with greater emphasis and that this activity should be kept away from the encroachment of partisan politics.

The President requested that all departments of the government give their active, continuous, and unreserved cooperation and that all efforts be coordinated.

The President announced that he had authorized the presidential assistant on community development jointly with the Departments of Agriculture and Natural Resources; Health, Public Works and Communications, and Education to embark on a "grants-in-aid" program where barrio people would be given the opportunity to decide what projects they wished to undertake within the following broad categories:

- (a) Projects contributing to increased production and income;
- (b) Self-help public improvement projects; and
- (c) Health and sanitation.

The President said that in order that the grants-in-aid program would succeed, it was necessary that the various departments concerned give priority support by providing the necessary technical services and help supervise the implementation of the program.

Upon the recommendation of Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, the Cabinet authorized the sending of Enrique S. San Juan, supervising architect in the Bureau of Public Works, to the Brussels Universal Exposition of 1958 in Belgium. San Juan was designated as the architect to supervise the work on the Philippine pavilion in the said exposition.

President Garcia presided over the Cabinet meeting which was held at the Council of State room from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

PRESIDENT Garcia in the afternoon called House leaders to a conference in an effort to quell the worsening rebellion in the House of Representatives against some members of his Cabinet.

It was a hastily-called conference as House members had suppressed items in the budget which are occupied by MPM men, whose loyalty to the party and to the Administration, had been doubted.

Malacañang was silent on the outcome of the conference. Assistant Press Secretary G. V. Sison, was allegedly stopped from attending the meeting by Legislative Secretary Jose C Nable.

Nable, it was learned, released the information to congressional reporters. Nable's action incensed Malacañang newsmen last night who decided to bring what, they call "usurpation of the function of the press secretary by the legislative secretary" to the attention of President Garcia at the press conference this afternoon.

Acting Defense Secretary Jose M. Crisol, head of the group, called common effort to support President Garcia as the latter has vowed to carry on the program of the late President Magsaysay.

Also among those who saw the President were close associates of the late President Magsaysay.

IN the evening, the President received a delegation of provincial board members from 17 provinces which presented him with a petition seeking that all provincial board members be called to a convention in Manila and be given an opportunity to organize themselves into a league.

With Provincial Board Member Salvador Madarang of Zambales as spokesman of the group, the delegation informed the Chief Executive that they had come to Manila on their own.

Malacañang said that newly-elected officers of the Garcia-for-President Organization took their oaths before the Chief Executive.

Headed by William V. Velasco, national coordinator, the organization is composed of various elements of the population with all provinces represented.

Other delegations were those headed by Sen. Domocao Alonto, Reps. Luminog Mangelen of Cotabato, and Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan.

PRESIDENT Garcia and Minister Walter Hofer of the Confederation of Switzerland this afternoon pledged continued friendly relations between the Philippines and Switzerland on the occasion of Minister Hofer's presentation of his credentials as envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the Confederation of Switzerland to the Philippines.

Minister Hofer was the first foreign envoy to present his credentials to the President. The ceremony was held at the ceremonial hall of Malacañang about 4:30 p.m. in the presence of some Cabinet members.

The Swiss minister, who is the first diplomatic representative of his country to the Philippines after a long series of consular representations since 1862, said in his remarks that “the long standing ties between our two countries have aroused the particular interest of private and official Swiss circles in the Philippine nation of today.”

In his response, the President expressed confidence that Minister Hofer would play “a major role in strengthening further the cordial relations now happily existing between our two countries and peoples” and conveyed to the President of the Swiss Confederation “the sincere best wishes of the people of the Philippines and my own for his continued good health and happiness, as well as the well-being and prosperity of his people.”

Minister Hofer cited the Swiss-Philippine Treaty of Friendship signed on August 30, 1956, and the Air Agreement between the two nations in 1952 as proofs of what the treaty declared as “perpetual peace and everlasting amity” between the Philippines and Switzerland.

The minister also said that his country would be happy, should circumstances warrant, to assist the Philippines and to welcome “fresh new ideas and plans which a younger state and nation usually brings forth.” He expressed the best wishes of the President of the Confederation of Switzerland to the President and the people of the Philippines.

Among those present at the ceremony were Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon, Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor, Acting Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs Tomas de Castro, Malacañang Protocol Officer Manuel Zamora, and Protocol Officer Jose Estrada, Pedro Angara-Aragon, and Monico Vicente of the Department of Foreign Affairs protocol division, Lt. Col. Emilio Borromeo, senior presidential aide, and Maj. Jose Estrella, presidential aide.

May 10.—PRESIDENT Garcia and House leaders, in a conference this morning, perfected their previous understanding on the budget and the other bills certified as urgent.

The President conferred with the House leaders in the music room of Malacañang for about half an hour. Present at the conference were Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., Speaker Protempore Daniel Z. Romualdez, and Acting Majority Floor Leader Ismael Veloso.

Before his conference with the House leaders, the President received the members of the Commission on Election who showed him the new ballot box with multiple locks and a metal seal with serial numbers. The commissioners told the President that the new ballot box was more convenient and would make more secure the safety of the ballots.

The President looked over the new ballot box and congratulated the commissioners. The new ballot box has two compartments, one for valid ballots and the other for spoiled ones. Formerly there were two separate boxes for the valid ballots and the spoiled ones. Members of the Commission who called on the President were Domingo Imperial, chairman; Gaudencio Garcia and Sixto Brillantes, members; and Emilio Aguila, secretary to the commission.

The members of the Commission on Election were the first of the many callers of the President. Starting at 9. a.m., the President finished receiving the callers 2; 30 p.m.

Representatives of the Philippine Association of Colleges and Universities, the Catholic Educational Association of the Philippines, the Association of Christian Schools and Colleges, and the unaffiliated schools submitted a petition to the President requesting the certification of House Bill No. 5211, which seeks to abolish the one per cent assessment tax on the gross income of private schools. The private schools representatives called the tax immoral and unjust.

Also contained in the petition was the private schools’ argument against “the incomplete 2-2 Plan sought to be implemented this coming academic year without giving schools sufficient time for study and readjustment.” They requested the deferment of the effectivity of the so-called 2-2 Plan on the ground that “both public and private schools will find the implementation of the 2-2 Plan impossible and impractical.”

The President assured the private schools’ representatives that he would study seriously with the Department of Education officials the argument against the 2-2 Plan. Concerning the presidential certification of House Bill No. 5211, the President advised the delegation to get the recommendation of the Congress leaders first in accordance with an understanding between the Chief Executive and the Congress leaders on bills for certification.

Among those in the private schools delegation were FEU President Teodoro Evangelista, UM President Mariano V. de los Santos, UE President Francisco Dalupan, Miss Helen Benitez of PWU, William L. Anderson of the Silliman University, Jose Motomal of UST, Segundo Infantado of NTC, Brother H. Gabriel, president of the CEAP; and Benicio T. Catapusan, executive secretary of the ACSC.

Philippine Chief Delegate to the United Nations Felixberto Serrano accompanied Asian experts on human rights who paid a courtesy call on the President. The experts from the Philippines, Australia, Japan, India, Indonesia, Thailand, and Nationalist China attended the recent seminar on human rights held at the Philippine General Hospital compound. The Asian experts were also accompanied by Prof. Enrique Fernando, Sergio Barrera of the Department of Foreign Affairs United Nations division, and Antonio Prats of the protocol division, Department of Foreign Affairs.

Members of the National Federation of Rice and Corn Planters also submitted a petition to the President proposing the banning of the importation of rice during the harvest season. The rice and corn planters claimed that during the harvest season, the Philippines was self-sufficient in rice. The petition also contained proposals to stabilize the price of rice and to equalize the distribution of fertilizer among the planters.

The President said that he would study the petition thoroughly and would discuss the matter with officials of the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources and the NARIC. He also advised the rice and corn planters to confer with the officials concerned on their proposal for the banning of the importation of rice. He said that the problem would be discussed on a Cabinet level and the rice planters would be invited to the meeting. In the delegation were former NEC Chairman Alfredo Mon-telibano, former Agriculture Secretary Mariano Garchitorea, Mario Moreno, Buenaventura C. Lopez, Mrs. Julia Vda. de Gonzalez, Mrs. Angela Butte, Juan Cojuangco, Asterio Favis, Romeo Gonzales, Marianito Tinio, and Juan Estacion.

The President received from Tarlac Governor Arsenio Lugay the sum of ₱15,000 as his province’s contribution to the Peace and Amelioration Fund Commission. The amount was raised by the Tarlac chapter of the PAFC through benefit programs. With Governor Lugay when he handed the check to the President were officials of Tarlac, including Provincial Treasurer Angel Tadeo; Lt. Col. Eladio Isleta, PC provincial commander; Lt. Col. Nelso Regalado, 5th BCT commander; and Dr. Marcos J. Corpuz, provincial health officer.

Another contribution to the PAFC in the amount of ₱8,000 was handed to the President by Bernardo Carpio, a lawyer of Davao. The amount was raised by the Davao chapter of the PAFC through the holding of benefit performances.

Provincial and municipal officials of Isabela, headed by Rep. Delfin Albano and Gov. Felix Caro, pledged their loyalty and support to the President for his re-election. The President thanked the delegation which was composed mostly of town mayors and councilors.

Rep. Fernando Pajarillo of Camarines Norte accompanied municipal officials of his province who requested aid for their public works projects. Among those in the delegation were Mayor Santiago Carranceja, Vice-Mayor Solomon Bacuno, Municipal Treasurer E. Chavez, Dr. Rufino. Salcedo, and municipal councilors Jesus Villafranca, Porfirio Ramos, Pedro H. Ferrer, Diego Naring, Mrs. Emilia Boayes, Eleuterio David, Fulgencio Badagtad, Sotero Macaro, Fabian Balce, Sofronio Balce, and Doroteo N. Caneba of Daet.

Officers of the Barrio Lieutenants Association of the Philippines invited the President to speak at their national convention to be held in Manila on June 1. Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez accompanied the barrio lieutenants.

The President also received the war widows of Zamboanga who requested the early release of their backpay claims. The President referred their problem to the authorities concerned for immediate action.

Other callers included Sen. Alejo Mabanag; Reps. Carmen Dinglasan-Consing of Capiz, Jose Roy of Tarlac, Alberto Ubay of Zamboanga del Norte, and Rogaciano Mercado of Bulacan; Govs. Rafael Lazatin of Pampanga and Alejo Santos of Bulacan; Spanish Ambassador Francisco Conde Garcia; NDC General Manager Jose H. Panganiban; Dr. Amando Dalisay; Fulgie Vega, Jr., of the Iloilo Boys' Town; and Fr. Jose Martinez, father superior of the Sanctuary of St. Anthony in Forbes Park, Makati, Rizal.

May 11.—THE President and Mrs. Carlos P. Garcia this morning motored to Camp Murphy, Quezon City, where a traditional testimonial parade was given in honor of the Chief Executive by the Armed Forces.

A 21-gun salute greeted the President upon his arrival at the parade grounds at exactly 8:30 a.m. On hand to greet the President were Acting Defense Secretary Jose M. Crisol and Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff.

Then the President, accompanied by Crisol, and Gen. Arellano, rode a command car and proceeded to the parade grounds where he inspected a brigade composed of contingents from all AFP units.

After the inspection, the President took his place in the grandstand and the parade started.

The President's speech climaxed the program.

Present during the occasion were members of the diplomatic corps, high government officials, and ranking armed forces officers of the Philippines and the United States.

IN a caucus called this noon by Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, NP chieftain, the presidential aspirants agreed they were ready to make sacrifices for the sake of party unity, but they were deadlocked on who should give way.

The closed-door meeting, held in the Tindalo room of the Manila Hotel over a luncheon table, was attended by President Garcia, NP chief Rodriguez, and Sens. Jose P. Laurel, Gil J. Puyat, and Quintin Paredes.

Sen. Cipriano Primicias, who was also invited by Rodriguez to the caucus, failed to attend on account of illness.

President Garcia reportedly appealed to his three rivals to give him a chance to run for a full term so that he could continue the program "of his predecessor, the late President Magsaysay.

He told his colleagues he never aspired to the presidency when President Magsaysay was still living, but now that Providence had placed him in Malacañang he wished he could continue as President in his own right.

But the President's appeal seemed of no avail, as the other three indicated they were determined to seek the nomination in the NP convention in accordance with the will of their supporters.

Rodriguez called the meeting for an exchange of views among the presidential aspirants in an effort to pare them down to only one whom the NP convention will nominate as the party's presidential standard-bearer.

In the Manila Hotel closed-door caucus, it was hoped that presidential aspirants would make offers of withdrawal in accordance with the plea of Rodriguez to simplify the work of the convention by having only one candidate for the nomination.

Rodriguez expected that a pre-convention agreement to back up only one candidate for the presidency would give the incentive for greater party unity and insure NP victory in the November polls.

However, none of the candidates made an offer to withdraw and instead, they took turns in explaining their positions and justifying their candidacies.

One of the decisions reached was to constitute a committee, with Rodriguez as chairman, which will seek a formula to narrow down the number of NP contenders to two, who will be pitted against each other in the party convention.

President Garcia expressed confidence such a formula was not difficult to find. The group decided to meet again next week when Rodriguez is expected to be ready with the formula.

The meeting broke up shortly after 4 p.m., about four hours after it started. Rodriguez announced that he would gather the same candidates next week in a bid to resolve the impasse.

PRESIDENT Garcia pledged this afternoon to continue with the rural development program of the late President Magsaysay and vowed to keep it out of politics.

The Chief Executive spoke before some 400 barrio lieutenants and 2,000 other persons at the opening of the seminar of barrio council members from five Southern Luzon provinces at the U. P. College of Agriculture in Los Baños. The seminar would discuss the role of barrio councils in the community development program.

In stressing rural development, President Garcia said that the development of agriculture in the barrios should first be made before industrialization.

He asserted that he believed in balanced agricultural and industrial development because "to do otherwise would be to build on sand." He pointed out that a farmer's earnings are less than ₱110 a year and a farmer could not buy the products turned out by industry.

The President also declared that he would recommend to Congress passage of certain measures that would give more autonomy to the barrios. This would include, according to the President, empowering the barrio councils to raise funds through voluntary contributions and giving the barrios a share in taxes collected from real property in their respective jurisdictions for use in community projects.

He also disclosed that he had adopted a five-year plan that would give an artesian well for every 200 persons, more waterworks, and feeder roads constructions. He said that 175 .million has been appropriated by Congress for artesian wells over a five-year period.

"These constitute," he asserted, "the grandiose dreams of the present administration."

The President also paid tribute to the barrio lieutenants, who, he said, work night and day to attend to the needs and problems of their constituents.

Vito Fernandez, president of the Barrio Lieutenants League, also spoke and appealed to the President for the continuation of President Magsaysay's rural program.

Ramon Binamira, presidential assistant on community development, introduced the President, while Dean Leopoldo Uichanco of the U. P. College of Agriculture delivered the opening remarks.

The President arrived in Los Bahos about 4 p.m., accompanied by Laguna Gov. Dominador Chipeco and Col. Juan C. Relosa, 2nd MA commander.

On his way to Laguna, the President was met at the Laguna-Rizal boundary by Gov. Dominador Chipeco and Ramon Binamira, presidential assistant on community development. Chipeco rode with the President to Los Banos where they “were welcomed to the college by Dean Leopoldo Uichanco.

The President was “honored with a merienda by the members of the bario council gathered at the college, campus.

THE President boarded the presidential yacht Santa Maria this evening for a weekend rest after a hectic seven-day of political conferences in Malacañang and campaign tours in Mindanao.

He went aboard the ship after a five-hour drive to the UP College of Agriculture in Los Baños, Laguna, where he addressed a seminar of barrio councils sponsored by the presidential assistant on community development.

May 12.—IN the morning the President conferred with Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, Armed Forces chief of staff. No detail was released by Malacañang on the subject of the President’s conference with Arellano.

PRESIDENT Garcia emphasized today the need for giving the salary standardization plan of the Wage and Position Classification Office a “fair trial” in his belief that a great majority of government employees were still underpaid.

In a message read to the Philippine Government Employees Association, which held a whole-day rally picnic at the Balara filters in Quezon City, the President also stressed that he was against excessive salaries for higher officials and that he was committed to the principle of “equal pay for equal work.”

The President’s message was read by Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon.

In explaining the features of the WAPCO salary plan, President Garcia said some people felt that the rates for high officials were “proportionately too high” compared with the rates for the rank and file under the plan.

“I feel committed to the principle of equal pay for equal work. I am therefore against excessive salaries for higher officials, especially in the government corporations capitalized out of borrowed money inasmuch as they belong to the same organization, the civil service, and are subject to the same civil service rules and regulations,” President Garcia said.

The Chief Executive stated that his administration could compare with that of other countries insofar as being liberal with employees was concerned.

He cited the privileges enjoyed by Philippine government employees under the general retirement and pension system. He mentioned their leaves with pay and half-day sessions during the summer months as among these privileges.

In return for these privileges, President Garcia urged all government employees to be the ideal public servant “animated by a missionary spirit, loving his work regardless of the material reward.”

He also asked them to “beware of temptations and strive always for ideal things.”

Like the late President Magsaysay, President Garcia emphasized that he believed in the policy of bringing the government closer to the people.

He expressed fears that some people might criticize this “personalized government.”

But as far as he was concerned, President Garcia said, Malacañang would continue to be the palace of the people, always open to those who seek audience or have a petition to present directly with the President, even though it is not exactly one involving the constitutional right regarding redress of grievances.”

The PGEA tendered the testimonial luncheon in honor of President Garcia, senators, and representatives. The employees asked for the following:

- (1) 40-hour or five-day work a week;
- (2) Restoration of the 10,200,000 salary standardization fund in the appropriation bill;
- (3) Liberalization of the Retirement Act, retiring employees with 30 years of service in government regardless of age; and
- (4) Twenty years of service should make an employee eligible for retirement so long as he had reached the age of 50.

PRESIDENT Garcia returned to Manila at 4 o'clock in the afternoon from a weekend aboard the presidential yacht Santa Maria.

He gave up two appointments, one with the Philippine Government Employees Association at the Balara filters and the other with the Philippine Veterans Legion at the YMCA Youth Center auditorium.

It was learned that the President was at the time aboard his yacht, conferring with Augusto Sevilla, chairman of the board of directors of the Cebu Portland Cement Company.

Reports said that the veterans were made to understand that the President was going to give a luncheon for the PVL members. However, up to 2 o'clock in the afternoon, the lunch boxes did not come. Many veterans were heard grumbling because the supposed host did not come.

This infuriated the Garcia-for-President headquarters which accused some PVL members for plotting the incident to embarrass the Chief Executive.

INFORMED of the incident, the President went ashore and drove to the YMCA auditorium to meet the PVL members. He was accompanied by Gov. Alejo Santos of Bulacan, a guerrilla veteran, who introduced him before the PVL members.

President Garcia spoke before the convention at 5 p.m., shortly before the meeting closed with the election of new legion officers. He had failed to appear as scheduled at 11 a.m., but showed up unexpectedly in the afternoon and spoke extemporaneously.

The President made a formal bid for the support of veterans in the elections by asking them to get “together in supporting the policies of good government.”

He said he and the veterans are bound by the same love for freedom and for the maintenance of a good government. He expressed the hope that the same spirit may find them together in supporting the policies of good government.

The President reassured veterans that his administration would look after them for the patriotic service they rendered in fighting in the last war, in Korea and other fronts to preserve freedom and democracy in the Philippines.

Ferrer, former commander of the legion, had been the target of attacks from solons, who asked for his relief from the Cabinet for “political disloyalty” to the President.

President Garcia failed to show up at the meeting this noon owing to a previous commitment. However, Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon read the President’s written message to the veterans.

The President, in that message, expressed optimism that the veterans would “choose well in November, for they knew that with their collective well-considered vote, they will help in giving our country a set of public servants who stand ready to declare a moratorium on their private interests while in office.”

Convention proceedings were suspended for about an hour from 11:30 a.m. as the delegates waited for President Garcia to address them.

About 1 p.m., Executive Secretary De Leon arrived at the convention hall and announced the inability of the President to appear before the audience.

He then proceeded to read a prepared message of the Chief Executive.

FROM the PVL meeting, the President motored to the UST campus to speak at the Hospital Week celebration. He was met at the UST gate by F. Ciriaco Pedrosa, vice-rector of the institution.

President Garcia returned to the Palace at 7: 30 o’clock in the evening.

May 13.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed Acting Education Secretary Martin Aguilar, Jr., and the division superintendents of schools to intensify the implementation of the home industries program of the department as a means to help solve the unemployment problem in the country.

The President said that there is a ready market for the products of cottage industries abroad and that in order to maintain this market these products should be standardized and that cooperatives should be organized to handle the big scale exportation of these products.

The President made these remarks on the occasion of the call of schools superintendents who were headed by Secretary Aguilar. In his brief extemporaneous remarks, the President said that the Department of Education should intensify its work in its vocational schools, especially in its home industries, and that there should be trained men to handle this job.

The President recalled that in Switzerland, the different parts of watches are being manufactured by different guilds and that these different parts are gathered in an assembly line in the manufacture of watches. He said that this is also true in Japan.

The President observed that this same practice could be observed in the Philippines in the manufacture of different products for export, the separate parts of which could be handled or manufactured in the home industries set up by the Department of Education.

The spokesman of the group was Jose Tuason, president of the Philippine Association of School Superintendents. Roman Lorenzo, chairman of the committee on resolutions, also read some of the resolutions passed by the association, among which was the opposition of the superintendents to the bill regarding the teaching of Spanish. To this the President said that he would ask the Board of National Education to study the matter and afterwards he would consult with the board.

To the request that funds be appropriated for the repair of buildings being used by school teachers at the Teachers Camp in Baguio, the President said that he would look for the needed amount.

The President received hundreds of callers today immediately after a breakfast conference. He received callers up to 2 p.m. after which he ate his lunch.

In the afternoon he started receiving his callers at 4 p.m. and continued to receive them up to past 7 p.m.

Among the morning callers were the executive officers of the Boy Scouts of the Philippines, headed by Jorge B. Vargas, BSP president and chief scout. Vargas requested authority from the President to extend the invitation to have the Philippines as the seat of the next World Scout Jamboree to be held sometime in 1959 or 1960. The President readily approved the request.

Some 18,000 scouts from all over the world are expected to attend the Jamboree and if the invitation is accepted, it would be the first time that such a world jamboree will be held in a country in this part of the world.

The President thanked the boy scouts executives upon being informed officially that he had been made the honorary president of the BSP. The announcement had been withheld in deference to the period of mourning for the late President Magsaysay.

Vargas also presented the Chief Executive with the annual report of the BSP in which it was reported that in 1956 the organization had a general membership of 201,813, the biggest in the 34 years of scouting history. This was made possible by an unprecedented gain of 59,391 scouts and scouters in one year alone.

A big delegation of teachers from Ilocos Norte headed by Vicente Lazo, retired supervisor, requested the President that the school teachers who had taught during the Japanese occupation be credited for their period of teaching during the Japanese time in order that they would qualify for the promotional examination given to teachers. Lazo was informed that although these teachers were allowed to continue teaching, they were being harassed by some people who present complaints to the effect that the teachers concerned had not taught during the Japanese occupation.

The President immediately telephoned Acting Education Secretary Aguilar and instructed him to look into the case of the teachers and give them justice.

Owing to the big number of callers, the President received jointly the following delegations:

(1) The Bago Bantay (Quezon City) Ladies Association, headed by Mrs. Jovita Rosauero, which requested financial assistance in the construction of a health center.

(2) The Bulacan Fishermen's Corporation which requested the blasting of illegal dikes and fishponds in the province of Bulacan. This group was headed by Col. Jose de la Rosa and Mayor Artemio Meneses.

(3) The Anti-Trawlers Association group, headed by Apolinar Fojas of Cavite City, Mayor Macario Peña of Naic, and Arcadio Nuestro, president of the Small Fishermen's Federation of the Philippines, which requested the banning of trawlers in Manila Bay. This group is composed of delegates from Pampanga, Cavite, Bulacan, Rizal, Bataan, and the Manila Bay area and represented some 270,000 people. Accompanying them were Cavite Gov, Delfin N. Montano and former Sen. Justiniano S. Montano.

(4) The MRR pensioners, headed by Juan Fernando, which complained that their pensions had been deferred and disallowed by the railroad.

(5) The Bulacan Farmers Association, headed by Pedro Vergara, which protested against dikes illegally constructed, causing floods to rice fields and affecting bijon manufacturers.

(6) The Candaba Swamp settlers, headed by Jose Dacques, who requested construction of feeder roads from the highway to the swamps.

(7) The Batangas Breeders Association, headed by Felipe Gabuco, which presented to the President the horse breeding and other allied problems of their association.

(8) The Piat (Cagayan) Settlers Association, headed by Alfonso Natividad, which presented problems regarding the distribution of land in Piat.

Regarding the request of the Anti-Trawlers Association, the Bulacan Fishermen's Corporation, and the Bulacan Farmers Association, the President said that final decision will be made on their requests after discussion of their petitions at the Cabinet meeting on Friday.

The President later received a delegation of the Foundation for the Blind headed by Nicomedes S. Maligot, which requested that the Association of the Blind be included in the distribution of benefits being derived from the Sweepstakes races.

The President also received the members of the presidential committee which had studied the Pepsi-Cola case. Solicitor General Ambrosio Padilla, chairman of the committee, submitted to the President the final report of the committee's findings. Other committee members present were Lt. Col. Angel Salcedo and Dr. Arturo Alafritz.

The President referred the Padilla committee report to Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason for evaluation and recommendation. No announcement will be made of the committee report until Secretary Tuason has submitted his evaluation to the President.

Earlier, the President had breakfast with the First National City Bank of New York executives who paid a courtesy call. The bankers included the visiting NCBNY Vice-President Frederick Satterfield and two local managers of that bank, Irving Searing and G. R. Hutchison.

They were accompanied to Malacañang by Sen. Gil J. Puyat.

Then the President received members of the Disabled Veterans Legion of the Philippines who sought the President's assistance for the increase of pensions for disabled veterans from ₱50 to ₱100. The President said that he was not against the raising of pensions for the disabled veterans.

The DVL members included Liberate Viray, Pancho Mamaril, and Amero Salvosa. They were accompanied to Malacañang by Dr. Eliseo Velmonte of the Philippine Veterans Board.

Lanao Gov. Salvador Lluch accompanied some town mayors of that province requesting assistance for public improvements of their respective towns.

Other morning callers of the President included Gov. Marcelo Adduru of Cagayan and Rep. Angel Castaño of Manila.

He received Donald H. McLean, Jr., and Mrs. Marjorie Ravenholt from the Rockefeller Brothers Fund in New York City, who informed the Chief Executive of the creation of the Ramon Magsaysay award.

The President was gratified upon hearing this news and expressed his thanks.

The President then received Chinese Ambassador Chen Chih-mai, who accompanied Ran In-ting, a contemporary Chinese artist, who presented the Chief Executive with a painting of his own.

The Chinese artist has his paintings now on exhibit at the Department of Foreign Affairs building in Manila. He also had exhibits of his paintings in London, Paris, Rome, Tokyo, New York, and Washington, D.C.

Ambassador Chen said that Ran had also presented a painting to President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Then the President received a big delegation of the Manila chapter of the Philippine Veterans Legion headed by Dr. Placido Bronto, commander, and Col. Alfonso Torralba, vice-commander.

In his brief remarks the President reiterated what he had told the veterans at their convention yesterday that he would continue working to give more benefits to the veterans of the Philippines in recognition of their valiant fight for freedom.

The President next received the delegation of the Municipal Health Officers headed by Dr. Pedro Guerrero, president, and Dr. Jaime Mendoza. The delegation was accompanied by Dr. Amadeo Cruz, head of the Rural Health Division of the Department of Health.

In his brief remarks the President requested the rural physicians to do their best in contributing to the health of the country by attending to the health needs of the people in the rural areas.

The delegation requested the President to increase the minimum salary of the rural doctors because, they claimed, some rural physicians were receiving pay lower than other government employees. The President said that he would do his best to help them.

Dr. Francisco Duque, president of the Philippine Medical Association, requested the President to certify to Congress a bill which will divide the work being performed by the Board of Medical Examiners and distribute it into three; namely, the Board of Medical Examiners, the Board of Medical Education, and the Board of Medical Practice and Inquiry.

Dr. Duque explained to the President that this proposed bill will contribute to the raising of the standards of medical practice in the Philippines and thus contribute to the improvement of the health of the people.

Duque was accompanied to Malacañang by Dr. Romeo Atienza, president-elect for the coming year of the PMA, and Dr. Alejandro Gaerlan, medical adviser to the President.

Other afternoon callers of the President were Paul Reeves, Rep. Enrique Corpus of Zambales, Rep. Agustin Gatuslao of Occidental Negros, who accompanied two mayors, and Baguio City Mayor Alfonso Tabora.

PRESIDENT Garcia this afternoon received Yaacov Shimoni, who presented his credentials as envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the State of Israel to the Philippines at ceremonies held at the Malacañang ceremonial hall.

Among those present at the ceremonies were Assistant Executive Secretary Mariano Yenko, Jr., Minister Tomas de Castro, Malacañang Protocol Officer Manuel G. Zamora, Department of Foreign Affairs Protocol Officer Jose Estrada, Ernest Simke, consul general of Israel, and Hyman Levine, honorary president of the Jewish community in Manila.

May 14.—PRESIDENT Garcia left Manila at 7 a.m. today in the third of three planes which brought him and his party on a second campaign invasion of Mindanao in less than a week.

The plane landed at the Buenavista airport at 10 a.m. and the President was met by a huge crowd.

He led a motorcade to Buenavista town, where he addressed a rally and promised to speed up work on public works projects in Agusan province.

With the President were Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, Rep. Bartolome Cabangbang of Bohol, Rep. Ignacio Cruz of Misamis Oriental, Rep. Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan, Health Undersecretary Rafael Tumbokon. Gov. Manuel Barretto of Zambales, Gov. Emilio Naval of Bataan, Brig. Gen. Manuel Cabal, Constabulary chief, Col. Pedro Q. Molina, chief of the Air Force, and newsmen.

President Garcia reiterated to the people of Agusan his pledge to continue the unprecedented nationwide public improvement program initiated by the late President Magsaysay as a means not only of bolstering the country's economy but also of easing the unemployment problem.

In speeches delivered this day in various Agusan towns, the President observed that Agusan was among those badly in need of improvement. He said if elected, he would see to it that Agusan receive the full share of benefits. He said he would pursue the late President's program until all barrios had artesian wells, schools, and health centers, and were connected by feeder roads to the highways and to the towns.

The President spoke before a large crowd at the Buenavista airport. Then he motored to Cabadbaran through some 53 kilometers of dusty roads. En route, he dropped in at the St. Joseph's church in Butuan City for the Te Deum sung by Fr. Cornelio Van de Loo and sponsored by various religious societies of Butuan City.

Arriving at Cabadbaran shortly before noon, the President was introduced at the town plaza rally by Gov. Dagani, who urged his province-people to vote for President Garcia. From the rally the President proceeded to Tubay town, where he inaugurated the ₱2 million Magsaysay Bridge.

May 15.—PRESIDENT Garcia told the people of Misamis Oriental today that with the able assistance of Sen. Emmanuel Pelaez and other outstanding leaders of this region, exploitation of Mindanao's natural resources was assured.

In speeches delivered in various parts of Cagayan de Oro City, President Garcia spoke of the aim of the Administration to tap fully the vast potentialities of Mindanao. He said that exploitation of minerals and large tracts of virgin lands would considerably enrich the nation's economy.

Accompanied by Sen. Pelaez, Gov. Vicente de Lara, Rep. Ignacio Cruz City Mayor Justiniano Borja, and Misamis Oriental mayors, the President spent the day in inaugurating different projects of Cagayan de Oro City. Sen. Pelaez arrived by plane early this morning from Manila to join the President.

The presidential party, arrived at Cagayan de Oro at 7 o'clock last night from Surigao. After acknowledging cheers of a mammoth crowd which had anxiously awaited him at the Lumbia airport since 3 p.m. yesterday the President, escorted by local officials, motored to del Monte where he spent the night.

As early as 6:30 a.m. today, local officials in Cagayan de Oro started trekking back to Del Monte to fetch the President to this city. Arriving at Cagayan de Oro about 9 a.m., the President inaugurated the 50,000 annex building and doctors' quarters of the provincial hospital, and the Red Cross and Blood Bank building where he and members of his party had lunch this noon. The President also laid the cornerstone of the puericulture center sponsored by the Women's Club, and officiated at a tree-planting ceremony at the new Red Cross and Blood Bank building.

After a brief rest at the new hospital annex, the President held a conference with Mindanao provincial governors, city mayors, and Misamis Oriental mayors at the Capitol building, where a cocktail party was given in his honor by Mindanao officials.

Later this afternoon, the President inaugurated the supermarket and returned to Del Monte in the evening.

PRESIDENT Garcia said in a press conference in the afternoon that he would find it difficult to have Sen. Emmanuel Pelaez as a running mate. The Chief Executive explained that he and Pelaez came from the "same region."

In Pelaez' presence, the President said in answer to a newsmen's question as to whether he would have Pelaez as a running mate in the elections, that he would find it difficult to support the senator as they come from the same region.

In the press conference the President:

1. Said he thought of Pelaez as "sympathetic" to his candidacy and did not consider the senator a potential rival or foe;
2. Announced his intention to keep hands off local politics;
3. Said he would serve notice on MPM leaders still in the government that he would keep them in office as long as they cooperated with him;
4. Refused to comment on Senate Bill No. 167, pending a study of the measure in relation to the entire range of the national economy;
5. Denied he had political henchmen in Congress; and
6. Refused to comment on the formation of the Progressive Party beyond saying a two-party system was the best for the country.

OFFICIAL MONTH IN REVIEW

May 16.—PRESIDENT Garcia returned at 11:35 o'clock this morning from three-day stumping tour of Mindanao. He returned with a battery of provincial governors who had endorsed his candidacy with Sen. Emmanuel Pelaez as a running mate.

Immediately upon arrival at the Palace, the President rushed to the Manila Hotel, where he addressed a 4-H Club luncheon. He arrived at the Manila Hotel about 12:30 p.m.

President Garcia this afternoon appealed to the youth to continue with their patriotic task of producing more economic goods in order "to bolster the country's national economy that will enable every citizen the employment of full measure of the good things of life."

The President sounded this appeal before hundreds of young boys and girls who attended the luncheon at the fifth annual rally of the 4-H Clubs at the Fiesta Pavilion at the Manila Hotel. Youth representatives from all parts of the Philippines were on hand to hear the President's after-luncheon message.

The Chief Executive was introduced by a 16-year old high school graduate named Bustrillos Zacarias, a 4-H Club member of Tagbilaran, Bohol. The big gathering was headed by Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez, Agricultural Extension Director Domingo Paguirigan, and officials of several firms contributing to the maintenance of the National 4-H Clubs.

Discarding a prepared text, President Garcia delivered an extemporaneous speech in which he lauded the National 4-H Club organizations for the phenomenal growth of their membership from an original 5,000 to the present 113,000 young boys and girls all over the country.

The President said that through these organizations, the country's young boys and girls were being trained for leadership as shown by their activities in their respective local 4-H Clubs.

Pointing with pride to the fact that the 4-H Club members were earning while they were learning, and that they had a total income of some ₱2million, President Garcia said that this achievement "gives us a feeling of faith and confidence in the capacity of our youth to contribute to the strengthening of the nation's economy."

He stressed that the country's need today is to build up an economy which could offer wide opportunities for everyone to work. He said that the youthful members of the 4-H Clubs were showing the way to help strengthen that economy.

He praised Secretary Rodriguez and Director Paguirigan and officials of the 4-H Clubs and sponsoring firms for giving an opportunity to Filipino young boys and girls in engaging in productive activities. He said that this was encouraging because later on these youths would take over the reins of government from the present national leaders.

The Chief Executive expressed the hope that all the young boys and girls of the Philippines join the 4-H Clubs in order that they could help solve the country's economic problems.

Before the President's speech, eight national winners in the 4-H Clubs contest were announced, as follows:

- | | | | | | | | | | | |
|-----|----------|-----------|-------|---------|----------|-----------|-----|------------|-------------|----------|
| (1) | Mauricio | Alcantara | of | Caba, | La | Union, | for | field | crops, | tobacco; |
| (2) | Miss | Justa | Bicay | of | Basco, | Batanes, | for | gardening; | | |
| (3) | Miriam | Cariño | of | Bontoc, | Mountain | Province, | for | foods; | | |

(5) Leopoldo Feliciano of Malabon, Rizal, for gardening;
 (6) Miss Cecilia Florencio of Bayombong, Nueva Vizcaya, for foods;
 (7) Miss Consuelo Ivo of Jaro, Levte, for home industries; and
 (8) Miss Pilar Tarnboboy of San Remigio, Cebu, for home improvement.

Each of the winners was granted a ₱400 scholarship. Miss Justa Bicay and Mauricio Alcantara, Jr., were also awarded the champion girl and champion boy prizes. They represent the Philippines in the United States convention of 4-H Clubs.

The President presented the certificates to the winners.

IN the evening the President swore into office Brig. Generals Diosdado Rodriguez, Nicanor Velarde, Tirso G. Fajardo, and Juan Relosa at a simple ceremony held at the Malacañang reception room.

Present at the induction were Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon; Acting Defense Secretary Jose M. Crisol; Commodore Jose M. Francisco, Navy chief; Brig. Gen. Manuel Cabal, PC chief; wives of the newly inducted generals; and Armed Forces officials.

The President assisted the wives of the generals in pinning the stars on the new brigadier generals of the Armed Forces.

The President also received a delegation of public school dentists and physicians, headed by Reps. Wenceslao R. Lagumbay of Laguna and Ricardo Y. Ladrado of Iloilo, who requested the President to certify the urgency of a bill nationalizing the dental and medical services of the Bureau of Public Schools.

Reps. Lagumbay and Ladrado informed the President that in the proposed bill the fifty centavos being collected for dental and medical services in the Bureau of Public Schools would be eliminated. The President certified the bill.

Upon recommendation of Acting Defense Secretary Crisol, the President also certified a bill amending Republic Act No. 1134, which seeks to place enlisted men of the Armed Forces on an equal footing with the commissioned officers who, by virtue of Republic Act 1134, are granted longevity pay. This bill is deemed necessary considering that enlisted men constitute the backbone of the entire Armed Forces.

The President also certified another bill which seeks to liberalize the retirement law for the AFP retireable enlisted men and officers allowing them to be promoted to the next higher rank upon death, even without finishing one year of service in their present ranks. The President, moreover, certified other bills which aim to give more benefits to members of the Armed Forces.

Earlier, the President received a group of nurses, headed by Mrs. Rosario Ordiz, who paid their respects to the Chief Executive prior to their departure to attend the eleventh quadrennial congress of the International Council of Nurses in Rome, Italy, from May 25 to June 1.

The President also received GSIS General Manager Rodolfo P. Andal. The President directed Andal to coordinate his activities with the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation in order to expedite the housing projects of the government in the Visayas, Mindanao, and Quezon City.

Funicane is on an observation tour in the Far East with J. Owen Zerhellen of the State Department, and Robert D. King and Paul Feireisen, both of the office of the secretary of the army.

The visiting American officials were accompanied to Malacañang by U. S. Embassy Minister Horace Smith; Maj. Gen. Joseph Harper, JUSMAG chief; and Col. Henry Miller, U. S. military attache.

Then the Chief Executive received at the study room Paul J. Langan, Far East director of the American Foundation of Overseas Blind, Inc., New York, and Eric Boulter, overall executive director of the foundation, who also paid a courtesy call.

The visiting American social workers were accompanied to Malacañang by Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor and Victor Baltazar, SWA supervisor of vocational rehabilitation for the blind and the handicapped, and Jeanette Sills, AFOP consultant of the SWA.

The visiting social workers informed the Chief Executive that, among other things, their purpose in visiting the country were:

- (1) To look into the feasibility of setting up an AFOB regional office
- (2) To survey and evaluate existing local program of vocational rehabilitation of the blind and the handicapped;
- (3) To establish printing plants for the manufacture of braille books, journals, and literature;
- (4) To extend grants and scholarships for studies abroad; and
- (5) To attend the inauguration of the newly created Commission for the Blind at Zamboanga City.

AT the Cabinet meeting this day the President directed the NARIC to buy all the palay stored in the bodegas of the FACOMAs at a price not lower than the floor price, which is ₱9 a cavan for macan ordinario.

The President gave this directive in the presence of Acting NARIC General Manager Vicente Concepcion, NARIC Board Member Maximo Calalang, and NARIC Statistician Fabian Valdemor.

This action was taken by the President in view of reports that the FACOMAs had some three million cavan of palay in storage and that there seemed to be no buyers.

The President and the Cabinet discussed lengthily the petition of the Bulacan Fishermen Corporation requesting the cancellation of all permits and licenses issued for the construction of fishponds at the mouth of the Bulacan River and to have all dikes constructed there demolished.

Invited to attend the discussion of this problem were Alejo Manalang, chief of the land management division of the Bureau of Lands; Jose Agutaya, district land officer, land district No. 7, Manila; Fisheries Director Heraclio Montalban; Jose Sanchez; Domingo Tecson; Jose Busque; and Juan Lopez of the Bureau of Fisheries.

Acting Defense Secretary Jose M. Crisol, who had made an investigation of the alleged illegal construction of dikes in two fishponds in Bulacan, Bulacan, voiced the sentiment of the fishermen adversely affected by these constructions and recommended the demolition of these illegal constructions.

After a discussion of the subject, President Garcia ruled that the matter be referred to Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason, who would render a legal opinion. The President said that depending on "the justice secretary's opinion, Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez might modify his department's Administrative Order No. 19, which declared as fishing grounds all areas within the Manila Bay fishpond project and cancelled or rejected all applications filed for areas within the project, so as to include the disputed areas in Bulacan within the purview of the administrative order.

The President directed the officials concerned to report to Secretary Tuason and discuss the matter more thoroughly before a legal opinion would be rendered.

The President and the Cabinet heard the petition of the Small Free Fishermen represented by Apolinar Fojas, their lawyer and spokesman, requesting the issuance of an executive order banning trawl fishing in Manila Bay.

Also present were officials of the Inter-Island Deep Sea Fishing Association headed by their president, Ildefonso Lachenal, who replied to the petition of the small fishermen. Fisheries Director Montalban also gave his comments on the matter.

Fojas said that the association of the small fishermen requested the banning of trawl fishing in Manila Bay in order to save from ruin some 270,000 fishermen members of their association who were allegedly being deprived of their means of livelihood through the activities of the trawlers. Lachenal replied that the association of trawlers had an investment of ₱16 million with some 4,000 people employed and, if their trawlers were banned from fishing in the Manila Bay area, there would be a diminution by 40 per cent in the fish supply of Manila which would result in high prices, to the detriment of a great number of people. He added that the real cause of the depletion of fish in the country was not the activities of trawlers but dynamite fishing.

Director Montalban said that his bureau had recommended the partial banning of the activities of trawlers in the Manila Bay area by prohibiting them from fishing in waters less than 10 fathoms deep. However, this was considered as an impractical solution because of the difficulty in enforcing this order.

After hearing both sides of the case, the President and the Cabinet appointed a committee to study further the petition requesting the banning of trawl fishing in the Manila Bay area, taking into account the interests of those engaged in trawling and the interests of the small fishermen and the consuming public.

The President directed the committee composed of the agriculture secretary as chairman, and the labor secretary and labor undersecretary as members, to submit their recommendations to the Cabinet as soon as possible. Gov. Delfin Montano of Cavite, who accompanied the members of the federation of small free fishermen, spoke in favor of the banning of trawlers in Manila Bay.

President Garcia presided over the Cabinet meeting which was held at the Council of State room from 10:45 a.m. to 2 p.m.

IN the afternoon the President received a resolution from the members of the provincial boards of the different provinces of the Philippines pledging “to support and actively work for the nomination of President Garcia . . . and to work for his election in order that he could carry on the great program of government to which he and the late President Magsaysay had been jointly committed.”

The resolution was presented to the President by Lino B. Azicate, board member of Catanduanes, who sponsored the resolution. Azicate presented it after the President had addressed the board members in convention at the Malacañang recreation hall. Co-sponsors of the resolution were Board Members Eladio Caliwara of Quezon, Agustin Fausto of Zamboanga del Sur, and Dr. G. Carreon of Zamboanga del Sur.

The resolution said that President Garcia “by training, academic attainment, experience, and physical, mental, and spiritual qualifications, is eminently qualified to occupy the high office he now holds.” It added that the President “is a militant and uncompromising foe of communism and a resolute fighter for democracy.”

In his extemporaneous address to the conventionists, the President stressed that the objective of the Administration was development of the country’s economy in such a way that every man and woman in the country could be fruitfully employed.

The President said that in order to achieve this end, the government would do everything within its power to develop all its natural resources. He said that the country was rich, especially in mineral resources, like nickel, iron, coal, copper, and gold. He said that with the full development of these mineral resources, there would be great opportunities for employment.

He appealed to the provincial board members to cooperate with the Administration in its task of bringing about the realization of the country's program of economic development.

He said that it was not true as some "prophets of disaster" kept saying, that the Administration had no economic program. The President said that there can be nothing further from the truth than this.

The President was introduced by Sofronio Quimson, technical assistant on civil affairs, who was in charge of the two-day convention. Quimson drew a parallel between the careers of the late President Magsaysay and President Garcia and said that the President should carry on the task left unfinished by the late President.

During the open forum which followed the President's address, a board member requested that an executive order be issued requiring that in the absence of a governor, a member of the provincial board be appointed acting governor. The President said he would study the matter.

Regarding a complaint by another board member that in one of the cases investigated by the PC AC, the complainant was not given the opportunity to explain his side and that the case was allegedly summarily dismissed, the President said that he would look into the matter and effect reforms in the PCAC in order to make it more efficient in the performance of its duties.

Salvador Madarang (Zambales), president (chairman); Jose Evangelista (Ilocos Norte), vice-chairman for Luzon; Francisco Remotigue (Cebu), vice-chairman for the Visayas; Benjamin Lopez (Bukidnon), vice-chairman for Mindanao Mrs. Nancy Q. Sison (Pangasinan), executive secretary; Vicente Javier (Rizal), assistant executive secretary; Agustin Fausto (Zamboanga del Sur), treasurer; Mrs. Dolores Acuña (Pangasinan), assistant treasurer; Dr. Germanico Carreon, (Zamboanga del Norte), public relations officer; Lino Azieate (Catanduanes) press relations officer;

Emilio Goduco (Nueva Ecija), Amado Gervacio (Rizal), Pedro Gallanosa (Sorsogon), and Justiniano Cortez (Cagayan), members of board of directors for Luzon; Manuel Laurente (Aklan), Lino Chatto (Bohol), Francisco Benedicto (Romblon), and Jose Camenforte (Sannar), members of board of directors for Visayas; Dr. Jose O. Martinez (Zamboanga del Norte), Sheik Ali Usman (Lanao), Alfonso Dalali (Misamis Oriental), and . Dr. Genaro Bomediano (Misamis Occidental), members of board of directors for Mindanao.

The President was fetched at 4 p.m. from Malacañang by a committee consisting of Board Members Francisco Remotigue of Cebu, Dr. Genaro Bomediano of Misamis Occidental, and Justiniano Cortez of Cagayan.

The President returned to Malacañang at 6: 30 p.m. and received former Senator Olegario Clarin and Luciano de la Rosa.

The Chief Executive also received Antonio Araneta, who accompanied Dr. L. Van Gorkon, charge d'affaires of the Netherlands legation; D. C. F. Van Eendenberg, president of the Phillips Industrial Development; and Dr. Th. P. Tromp, member of the presidium of the board of management of N. V. Phillips in Holland,

May 18.—LEADERS of warring factions of the local Nacionalista Party banded together for the first time to give President Garcia a rousing reception and to pledge their unconditional support in the November elections.

Speaking separately at a luncheon tendered by provincial officials at Poro Point this noon, local political leaders assured the President that La Union would rally solidly behind him both in the Nacionalista convention and in the presidential election.

The local leaders explained they had decided to support the President because, according to them, of all presidential aspirants, he was the most qualified for the position. They said that not being connected with any business interests, the President would concentrate his efforts for the interests of the country and not for his own.

Among the speakers were Gov. Bernardo Gapuz, Rep. Francisco Ortega, Baguio City Mayor Alfonso Tabora, Godofredo Rilloraza of San Fernando, former Govs. Juan Carbonell and Aguila of La Union, and former Rep. Valerio Fontanilla.

The President, in turn, thanked everyone for this manifestation of trust, confidence, and affection which, he said, was beyond his expectation. He said it had made him all the more confident in winning the election to continue the work for the cause of the people.

Another speaker at this noon's luncheon, Ex-Gov. Jorge Camacho, said that he had retired from politics eight years ago but when he heard that President Garcia was running for election, he decided to come out of retirement and help him retain the presidency. All three ex-governors are ex officio delegates to the Nacionalista convention.

Other speakers were Gov. Marcelo Addaru of Cagayan, president of the Northern Luzon governors, who predicted a "solid north" for President Garcia; Gov. Jose Espino of Nueva Vizcaya, who promised he would resign from the governorship if the President did not win in his province; Gov. Juan Triviño of Camarines Sur, who likewise predicted an overwhelming majority for the President in the Bicol region, and Gov. Marcos Malupa of Batanes, who also promised to campaign for the Chief Executive not only in his province but throughout the whole country.

EARLIER, at 10 a.m., the President landed at the Loakan airfield in Baguio after a 45-minute trip from Manila aboard the PAF plane Pagasa. After acknowledging the cheers of a large crowd of welcomers headed by Baguio City officials, the President motored direct to the Pines Hotel, where he addressed the fourth annual convention of the Rural Bankers Association of the Philippines. He was introduced by Jose S. Rodriguez, vice-president of the association. Alfredo Montelibano, former NEC chairman and president of the association who had been scheduled to introduce the President, was not able to attend the convention because of his sick wife.

After the President's speech which lasted about 20 minutes, the President spent about 30 minutes answering questions from some 200 delegates who brought to his attention their pressing problems. About 12:30 p.m., the President again took off from Loakan airfield for San Fernando, La Union.

At 6 p.m. the President inaugurated two wings of the provincial hospital. He addressed a large rally at the site inauguration ceremonies.

PRESIDENT Garcia said this afternoon he was in favor of secret balloting for the presidential nomination at the Nacionalista Party convention as he optimistically announced that he "will beat (Jose) Yulo again."

The Chief Executive was referring to his candidacy as the late President Magsaysay's running mate. He bested Yulo, who ran as President Quirino's teammate,

The President held an informal press conference at Poro Point after resting from a speaking engagement in Baguio City and San Fernando, La Union.

At the press conference, the President:

1. Claimed that he had "busted" the mythical "Solid North," saying that the region is now solidly behind him;

2. Said he was in favor of the proposed constitutional amendment providing for a six-year presidential term;
3. Predicted that the Nacionalista Party may be forced to declare some congressional districts free zones;
4. Said he will resume the “unity talks” with the other presidential aspirants after the close of the congressional session;
5. Stated that resigned Secretary of Labor Eleuterio Adevosio was disappointed because other Magsaysay-for-President Movement leaders, like Acting Secretary of Foreign Affairs Raul S. Manglapus, have not resigned;
6. Said he was still considering the case of Undersecretary of Agriculture Jaime N. Ferrer, another MPM, whose salary item in the budget was scrapped by the House for alleged “disloyalty” to the NP administration.
7. Expressed optimism that “if nominated (by the NP), I will win the presidential elections handily.”

The President claimed that” he had busted the mythical “Solid North” as shown by the rousing endorsement given him by rival factions of the NP in La Union and in other Northern Luzon provinces.

He said that he was in favor of secret balloting in the coming NP convention by way of commenting on Sens. Jose P. Laurel’s and Gil J. Puyat’s threat to walk out of the convention if the voting was done by viva voce. He said the party rules provide for secret balloting and recalled that President Magsaysay and he were nominated by secret ballot in the 1953 convention.

On Yulo’s candidacy, President Garcia said: “I have beaten him, I will beat him again, this time decisively, even in his hometown in Negros.” The then vice-presidential candidate beat Yulo in his hometown, Bago, Negros Occidental.

The President said that the proposed constitutional amendments may pass through the present session of Congress, if the controversial proposals were dropped.

He cited as non-controversial the six-year presidential term and the concurrence of Congress in a presidential proclamation of the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus.

He referred to the proposal to restore the bicameral legislature as “controversial.”

Asked to comment on Sen. Claro M. Recto’s “Program on Government,” the President said that Recto was “rewriting the Administration’s program of government” and that he was just “reciting” the things “we have already started to do.”

He said reports that Secretary Manglapus was resigning were being circulated by Adevosio, Who was “disappointed” because other MPMs had not followed his resignation.

President Garcia also minimized, former Customs Commissioner Manuel P. Manahan’s chances for the presidency, adding that even Yulo was uninterested in taking him as a candidate for senator in the Liberal Party ticket.

PRESIDENT Garcia designated Malacañang Technical Assistant Crisanto V. Alba to investigate the administrative charges” filed against Chief of Police Ilustre Reyes of Cavite City, Malacañang announced today.

The Cavite chief of police had been charged with: (1) abuse of authority and/or misconduct in office, (2) immorality, (3) toleration of gambling, (4) failure to account for the proceeds of a police fund festival held in December 1955; and (5) maltreatment of prisoners.

Malacañang directed Alba to submit immediately his findings and recommendations on the case as soon as he finishes with the investigation.

THE President this day also directed Acting PCAC Chairman Mariano Yenko, Jr., to coordinate the investigation of the death of Emiliano Carolino, allegedly at the hands of San Juan (Rizal) police officers.

In his personal letter to the President, Carolina's father asked the President's intervention in the investigation, claiming that he feared a whitewash of the case.

Yenko this morning dispatched a PCAC team to San Juan, even as NBI authorities proceeded to gather evidence for submission to the provincial fiscal.

The PCAC which is coordinating an NBI-PC-San Juan police team was directed to report its findings to the President at the earliest possible time.

May 19.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning told a large gathering of members of different religious "organizations of La Union that the Administration was not allowing any let-up in the fight against communism.

The President made this statement in a short talk he delivered at the San Fernando Christ the King Hall after a breakfast given in his honor by the La Union parish council.

Present at the breakfast were Northern Luzon officials including Sen. Alejo Mabanag, La Union Gov. Bernardo Gapuz, Rep. Francisco Ortega of La Union, San Fernando Mayor Godofredo Rilloraza, Batanes Gov-Marcos Malupa, Nueva Vizcaya Gov. Jose Espino, Ilocos Sur Gov. Pedro Singson Reyes, and Baguio City Mayor Alfonso Tabora.

Stressing the evils of communism, the President urged the people to be strengthened by their faith in the fight against an ideology which had created chaos and discontentment in places where it gained foothold.

After breakfast the President motored back to Poro Point, where he received delegations consisting of political leaders, officials, and town mayors from Northern Luzon provinces.

The delegations pledged their support to President Garcia's election bid, and consulted the President on local political matters.

Such delegations were those from Abra, headed by Virgilio Valera and Bene Pe Benito, former congressman and former governor of that province, respectively; from Ilocos Sur, headed by former Ilocos Sur Gov. Perfecto Faypon; from Ilocos Norte, headed by former Gov. Damaso Samonte; and from Nueva Vizcaya, headed by Gov. Jose Espino.

The President received earlier another delegation from Ilocos Sur headed by Gov. Pedro Singson Reyes. The President received delegations till 1:30 p.m.

After a brief rest in the afternoon at the Poro Point resthouse, the President enplaned back to Manila, arriving at the Nichols Air Base a little after 6 p.m.

May 20.—PRESIDENT Garcia today was informed by Daniel Ma. Gomez, vice-president of the Philippine Air Lines, that the PAL Employees Association (PALEA) and the PAL management had come to an agreement on two basic points; namely, (1) the giving of an increase of ₱15 a month to PAL employees as a contingent supplementary pay and (2) the inclusion of a non-strike clause in the agreement between the PALEA and the PAL until the expiration of the present contract in January, 1959.

Gomez said that with this understanding, the impending strike of the PALEA members would be definitely averted, as the basic demands of the PAL workers were satisfactorily met by the management.

Gomez further said that President Garcia 'had been instrumental in bringing about this amicable solution because it was the President, who initiated the proposition which was accepted by the PALEA members.

President Garcia received hundreds of callers in his study room starting at a little before 9 a.m. and lasting until 2:30 p.m.

Among the delegations which called at Malacañang were those from the University of the Philippines and the Philippine Normal College which requested the President to veto the bill requiring the teaching of additional Spanish subjects in the schools.

The U. P. professors, delegation, headed by Prof. Jose V. Aguilar presented a resolution signed by 4,000 pointing out among other things that the bill "violates the principle of academic autonomy enjoyed by universities."

The delegation from the Philippine Normal College representing some 4,000 student teachers taking the summer sessions, made a similar petition. The delegation was headed by Gaudencio D. Aquino, Maximo Ramos, and Emigio Egypto.

The President said that in view of the fact that there had been contrary petitions he had received on the subject matter, he would study the bill very thoroughly before taking final action.

The Gas Workers Union of the Philippines headed by their president, Antonio Yanguas, and accompanied by Rep. Angel Castaño of Manila and Cipriano Cid, petitioned that they be given a preferential consideration in the sale of the government's interests in the Manila Gas Corporation and that they be given a chance to run and manage the business.

Their petition said that the employees had the ability and technical knowledge to do so as amply demonstrated in the 45 years of existence of the corporation.

The government owns 60 per cent of the firm's stocks and capital assets. In a recent Cabinet meeting, it was decided to sell the government's shares through public bidding.

The President informed the petitioners that he would refer the matter to the Cabinet for study and action, as it was the Cabinet which had acted on the sale of the government's shares of stock in the corporation.

The President received the Political Action Committee of Labor Organizations members who are also officers of the Labor Lawyers' League, composed of Carlos Santiago, Jose Espinas, and Pangilalo Gaerlan.

Espinas recommended to the President that Rep. Castaño be appointed secretary of labor. He said that there was an urgent need for appointing a permanent labor secretary in order to resolve some important pending questions in the department.

The President said that he was studying the matter of appointing a permanent labor secretary. He added that he would consult with party leaders in making the appointment and that he expected to act on this question soon.

The President received a delegation from Cotabato headed by Gov. Datu Udtug Matalam, Rep. Luminog Mangelen, Provincial Treasurer Nicolas Galvez, Mayor Timoteo Belarmino, and former Sen. Salipada Pendatun.

Gov. Matalam presented a resolution of the Cotabato provincial board which said among other things that it was the sincere feeling of the board that "there can be no man in the Philippines today better qualified to lead our country in the direction of progress and stability and to enhance our national prestige than President Garcia."

The resolution added that the board endorsed the election of President Garcia and pledged its uncompromising and unqualified support.

Another resolution presented to the President was that approved by the Cotabato Mayors League endorsing President Garcia's election.

The delegation discussed with the President problems of the province; such as, construction of roads, repairs of school houses, and construction of a bridge.

The President received Mayor Carlos Pawa of Manito, Albay, who presented the President with a joint resolution of the municipal council of his town, and the barrio councils league, endorsing the candidacy of President Garcia.

Mrs. Rosalina Navarrete, councilor of Bagabag, Nueva Vizcaya, also headed a delegation which pledged to support the President's election.

The President expressed his thanks to all delegations which pledged their support to him.

The Chief Executive then inducted into office officers of the Garcia for President Organization, which presented a manifesto pledging "to render its unconditional support and to dedicate fully its efforts and endeavors to campaign for the election of President Garcia."

The officials of the organization are: Enrique E. Tan, president; Fernando Zamora, vice-president (Manila); Ben Ruiz, vice-president (Luzon); Benedicto Ma. Savillo, vice-president (Visayas); Romualdo Tecson, vice-president (Mindanao); Quirico S. Horca, executive secretary; Mrs. H. del Rosario, treasurer; Pedro Tolentino, auditor; Emiliano Siplon, liaison officer; and H. M. Cabilen, PRO.

The President also swore in officers of the Central Luzon Agricultural College Alumni Association as follows: Angel Mendoza, president; Jose Zarraga, first vice-president; Dionisio Orden, second vice-president; Antonio M. Fernando, treasurer; J. C. Cruz, secretary; Salvador M. Muerong, Melchor M. Sarmiento, Victoriano A. Gaborno, Bernardino M. Saplaco, Juan S. Arce, and Quintin Catabui, Jr., board members; Bernardino M. Cagawan, representative to the college council; Rustico G. Jinez, auditor; and Dominador Lagat, security officer.

The President also inducted into office the Photographers Association of the Philippines officers for 1957, as follows: Regalado Montemayor, president; Tomas Papa, vice-president; Regino Gonzales, secretary; Alejandro Manaba, treasurer; Jose V. Roldan, auditor; Flor Diolata and Pedro Austria, PRO; Salvador Gloria, Arsenio Veluz, Narciso Reyes, Sr., Romeo C. Ramos, Luis Masoy, and Dominador Cruz, board advisers; and Emilio (Fatso) Maglalang, sergeant-at-arms.

The Chief Executive received Eric E. Ward, resident representative of the United Nations technical assistance board, and Max Lacroix, principal adviser of the Philippine Government statistical center. The two officials paid a courtesy call.

Other presidential callers included Gov. Leon Fernandez of Sulu, who accompanied mayors of his province and discussed local problems, and Rep. Lorenzo Teves of Negros Oriental.

IN the afternoon the President administered the oath of office to Alejandro Galang as public service commissioner in a ceremony held at the Malacañang study room.

Immediately after the oath taking, the President told Commissioner Galang to do his best in promoting the interest of the public.

Present at the oath-taking ceremony were Tarlac officials and immediate members of the family of the new public service commissioner, including Justice Undersecretary Jesus G. Barrera, Rep. Constancio Castañeda, Tarlac Gov.

Arsenio Lugay, Mrs. Apolonia Galang, and Mr. and Mrs. Hipolito Galang, wife and parents of Commissioner Galang, respectively. A delegation from Tarlac consisting of friends and admirers of the new commissioner also witnessed the oath taking.

Before the oath taking ceremony the President received Samar Gov. Fernando Veloso, who accompanied a large delegation of mayors and town officials from that province. The Samar delegation requested assistance for more aid for fire victims of Catbalogan, construction of pre-fab school-houses, and feeder roads.

Then the President received at the music room Frederic de Hoffman, vice-president of the General Dynamics Corporation, Texas, who paid a courtesy call following his arrival from a conference at Tokyo.

The noted American physicist was accompanied to Malacañang by Rep. Jose Puey of Negros Occidental, author of a bill on nuclear energy recently filed in Congress; Theodore Brings, chairman of the Philippine Physics Society; Professor Salvador Gonzalez and Amando Mirasol, secretary and member, respectively, of the PPS.

Then the President received officers and members of the Garcia-for-President National Youth movement. Headed by Ruperto Baliao, president of that organization, the officers were inducted by the Chief Executive.

May 21.—THIS morning the President had breakfast with Eugene R. Black, president of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, who paid a courtesy call following his arrival from Hongkong.

Present at the breakfast were Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno, Sr., Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, U. S. Embassy Minister Horace Smith, and ICA Director Harry Brenn.

The President discussed with his guests the general economic development of the country in the past three years.

PRESIDENT Garcia at the Cabinet meeting today alerted all rural health units to give medical assistance and attend to influenza victims in their respective jurisdictions.

At the same time the President directed:

- (1) Manila city health officials to give all-out assistance to “flu” victims, especially the poor and those in the crowded areas;
- (2) Price-control agencies to keep prices of needed drugs and antibiotics within authorized levels; and
- (3) Health authorities to adopt preventive measures in order to contain the spread of the disease.

The President took these steps after hearing acting Health Secretary Rafael Tumbokon, Manila Health Department Chief Mariano C. Icasiano, Dr. Jacinto Dizon of the Department of Health, PNRC Manager Feliciano R. Cruz, and Col. Manuel R. deLuna, AFP surgeon general, report to the Cabinet on the overall influenza situation.

The health officials, particularly Secretary Tumbokon and Dr. Icasiano, stressed that although there was an increase in the incidence of influenza, there should not be cause for undue alarm. They said that according to statistics, the number of cases for May, this year, was almost the same as the number in May of last year.

Dr. Icasiano said that there were an estimated 53,000 persons sick with influenza out of which only six per cent were registered in hospitals. However, he said that the influenza outbreak was expected to subside within the next two weeks.

Icasiano informed the Cabinet that in Manila, there were 25 “bed centers” situated in the crowded districts which served as emergency hospitals for “flu” cases and where medicines were given to the poor. He added that with an additional appropriation for health services he had obtained from the city, physicians and nurses working in the poor districts of Manila could give more medicines to the needy.

Dr. Icaciano also said that he had secured the cooperation of all city hospitals and medical colleges regarding the use of their facilities, including the services of internes if necessary.

PNRC Manager Cruz said that the Red Cross was also extending all possible aid.

After hearing these reports, President Garcia said he was glad that necessary steps were being taken by the medical authorities to aid the influenza victims, and stated that there should not be undue alarm. He emphasized that all efforts be exerted to help the sick, especially the poor.

Upon inquiry by the President as to what other measures were being taken to help minimize the spread of the disease, Dr. Icasiano said that he had recommended to Manila authorities to enforce strictly the ordinance prohibiting overcrowding in Manila, theaters. He also recommended the temporary suspension of the holding of Flores de Mayo processions to protect the children from exposure to drafts and to big crowds. In the evening the President directed Philippine Charity Sweepstakes General Manager Eugenio E. Santos to recommend to¹ the board of directors a substantial sum for the purchase of medicines to be distributed free to poor and needy "flu" cases.

Invited to attend the Cabinet meeting were PAFLU President Cipriano Cid and Rep. Angel Castaño, who represented the workers of the Manila Gas Corporation in their petition to purchase the government's shares in that corporation.

It will be recalled that at a previous meeting, the Cabinet decided to sell the government's shares in this corporation through public bidding.

After hearing the verbal petition in behalf of the union workers, the Cabinet directed that after consultation with acting Economic Coordination Administrator Juan Concon, Cid and Castaño should submit the workers' concrete proposal to the Cabinet in two weeks.

President Garcia presided over the Cabinet meeting which was held at the Council of State room, starting at 10:40 a.m. At 11:45 a.m., the President left the Cabinet meeting to meet members of the National War College of the United States at the President's executive office.

In the President's absence, Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason presided over the meeting. Returning to the Cabinet after about 20 minutes, the President adjourned the meeting at 12:25 p.m. to preside over the traditional luncheon which he gave in honor of the senators and representatives at the Malacañang social hall.

THE President this noon received in his executive office members of the National War College of the United States, headed by Maj. Gen. R. W. Berry.

After greeting individually the members of the group, the President welcomed them and wished them all a pleasant sojourn in the Philippines. Gen. Berry introduced the members of his group to the President.

Answering a few questions asked by some members of the group, the President said that communist menace in the Philippines was already contained, and that the backbone of the local communist organization had been broken. He said there were sporadic raids by bandits foraging for food.

To a question as to whether there was any outside threat to the Philippines, the President replied that the threat was the communist ideology. The Chief Executive stressed that because of this threat, the Philippine Government was exerting all efforts to strengthen democracy as a way of life for the people.

Colonels (Army) D. O. Byars, Jr., F. W. Collins, J. T. Folda, Jr., R. W. Keyes, G. E. Pickett, and L. T. Jacobs; Colonels (Air) J. A. Brooks, H. E. Henderson, A. J. McChristy, W. J. Sherrard, and L. M. Thomas;

Commander F. P. Anderson, Captains (Navy) H. M. Avery, J. D. Craik (USCG), C. E. Gibson, J. M. Lee, and B. B. Pickett; Civilians: M. Baroll, H. B. Clark, W. A. Crawford, D. A. Flin, K. A. Hoyt, C. K. Nichols, and C. H. Opal.

IN the afternoon the President administered the oaths of office to Melecio R. Domingo, chief of the assessments division of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and to Abdon Javier, division superintendent of schools of Rizal, as deputy collector of internal revenue and superintendent of city schools of Manila, respectively.

In inducting Domingo, the President congratulated the personnel of the Bureau of Internal Revenue for having increased revenue collection by ₱45 million over that of a comparable period of last year. He announced that according to estimates submitted by the Department of Finance this increase would mount up to about ₱60 million by the end of the current fiscal year.

The induction ceremonies were held about 5:30 p.m. at Malacañang's reception hall. They were attended by a large delegation of ranking officials and employees of the Bureau of Internal Revenue headed by Collector Jose Arañas and by another large delegation from Rizal which included Gov. Isidro Rodriguez, and Board Members Amado Gervacio and Vicente Javier.

Domingo has served in the Bureau of Internal Revenue for the last 39 years, having started as storekeeper with a salary of P45 a month in October, 1918. He is a native of Laoag, Ilocos Norte.

Javier, on the other hand, started as classroom teacher some 41 years ago. He had for many years served as division superintendent of schools in various provinces of Luzon before his appointment to the city of Manila. He is from Tanauan, Batangas.

Presidential callers this evening included Reps. Felipe Abeleda, who requested the reservation of a hospital site in his district in Mindoro Occidental, and Natalio Castillo of Bohol

About 7 p.m., the President received delegations composed of mayors Surigao which presented him with a petition pledging their support the forthcoming election. Mayor Ricaredo Castillo of Bislig, vice-president of the Surigao Mayors' League, informed the President that the resolution had been approved at a recent meeting of the league. The delegation was accompanied by Rep. Reynaldo Honrado.

May 22.—PRESIDENT Garcia boarded the S.S. Santa Maria this morning to study several bills which required his certification to Congress.

Assisting the President were Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable, Assistant Legislative Secretary Vicente Logarta, Assistant Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, Appointments Secretary Rolando Kagawan, and Lt. Melchor Fronda, aide; Commodore Jose Francisco was also aboard the yacht.

The Chief Executive went over administration measures under discussion in Congress; such as, the bill for the development of nickel and iron mines, the foreign investments bill, the National Development Authority bill, the reparations bill, and the tariff code bill.

He also studied Senate Bill No. 167 and the bill requiring the teaching of more Spanish units in the schools.

After cruising about an hour, the yacht anchored a few miles off the shoreline.

Earlier in the “morning, upon learning of the death of Carmelita E. Agudo, eldest daughter of Manuel Agudo, technical assistant in the Office of the President, and Mrs. Renee E. Agudo, the President ordered a wreath to be sent to the Funeraria Nacional, where the body of the deceased lay. The President also sent his condolences to Mr. and Mrs. Agudo.

PRESIDENT Garcia today said the Philippine Government was studying steps to be taken towards the restitution by the Japanese Government of the sum of ₱23,850,419.70 which had been confiscated by the Japanese forces in the vaults of the national treasury in the early days of the occupation.

The President told National Treasurer Vicente G. Gella, whom he summoned to the S.S. Santa Maria, that he would take the necessary measures in pressing the claim of the Philippine Government for the recovery of the confiscated amount.

Gella informed the President during their conference aboard the yacht that this matter had already been brought to the attention of the secretary of finance way back in 1954. It was explained, however, that owing to the then pending negotiations for the ‘reparations agreement, the claim could not be pressed at the time.

With the signing of the reparations treaty and since this matter is entirely different from the reparations, Gella said that it was time to press for the solution of this legitimate claim.

President Garcia said that he was studying this question very carefully and that after the congressional session, steps would be taken to raise this claim on a government-to-government level.

The national treasurer said there were authenticated records supporting the claim of the Philippine Government. He added that persons who had witnessed the confiscation are still alive and can personally testify.

Gella said that the amounts confiscated by the Japanese consisted of Philippine currency, United States currency, Philippine Treasury certificates, Philippine National Bank notes, and silver bullion bars.

President Garcia also began studying the request for the payment of backpay to legitimate employees of local free governments during the occupation who have not yet received their due payments.

May 23.—THE President, this day accepted the resignation of Agriculture Undersecretary Jaime N. Ferrer.

Ferrer had handed in his resignation some time ago, but the Chief Executive had it under advisement.

President Garcia also confirmed the acceptance of the resignation of Acting NARRA General Manager Luis Franco by the NARRA board.

The President was informed by telegram by Mrs. Remedios Fortich, chairman of the NARRA board, that Franco had verbally reiterated his resignation. Mrs. Fortich said that the NARRA board had accepted the resignation effective June 1, 1957.

President Garcia stayed the whole day today aboard the S.S. Sta. Maria. He spent most of his time going over additional bills which required his certification to the Congress.

He waited for Congress leaders to arrive for the luncheon conference which took place 12:30 p.m.

In the morning, Technical Assistant Sofronio Quimson, Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable, Legislative Assistant Secretary Vicente Logarta, and Assistant Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison boarded the yacht Sta. Maria which was anchored way off the breakwater. They assisted the President as he went over the bills and acted on important papers.

PRESIDENT Garcia and legislative leaders had a luncheon conference this noon aboard the yacht Sta. Maria on the proposed constitutional amendments.

It was agreed that the House special committee on constitutional amendments and the Senate committee on code and constitutional amendments.

ments first discuss the proposed amendments to the constitution and then make a report on their study of the matter.

It was also agreed that the calling by the President of a special session to take up the proposed constitutional amendments would depend on the report of the two committees—Present at the luncheon conference which was presided over by President Garcia were Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., Senate Majority Floorleader Cipriano Primicias, House Majority Floorleader Arturo M. Tolentino, Sens. Jose Locsin, Lorenzo Sumulong, and Edmundo Cea, and Reps. Ismael Veloso of Davao and Tobias Fornier of Antique.

Also present at the conference were Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, Budget Commissioner Dominador R. Aytona, and Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable.

The luncheon conference started about 12:30 p.m. and lasted until 3:15 p.m.

May 24.—PRESIDENT Garcia ordered NAMARCO General Manager Benjamin Estrella to make immediate shipments of prime commodities and construction materials to Iligan City with a view to heading off profiteering in that fire-ravaged city.

On arrival at Tagbilaran (Bohol) this morning, the President also wired Lanao Gov. Salvador Lluch to inquire whether there was need of declaring a state of calamity in the disaster area.

Accompanied by the First Lady, the President was accorded a royal welcome on his first visit to his home province since his assumption of the presidency. Everywhere he went around the province today where he inaugurated bridges, feeder roads, municipal buildings, and the f 1,550,000 hydroelectric plant in Lobok, people received him with brass bands, parades, and fireworks display.

The President thanked the people for the splendid reception. He said he had longed to visit his province since his becoming President but that other duties had prevented him from going to Bohol earlier.

May 25.—THE people of Talibon have gone all out to celebrate their town fiesta with the presence there today of the town's most illustrious son. President Carlos P. Garcia.

Arriving in Talibon at 8 o'clock last night after motoring the whole day more than 100 kilometers along the northern coast of Bohol, the President and the First Lady were received royally with brass bands, a torch parade, and a colorful display of fireworks.

At the reception and ball given last night at the local market place, the President showed his appreciation for the wonderful reception given him and his party by dancing the curacha, a fast-moving native dance, acceding to popular request. Others who performed special native dances were Govs. Juan Pajo of Bohol, Jose Dinglasan of Capiz, and Marcos Malupa of Batanes, and Talibon Mayor Maximino Garcia.

This morning, after hearing mass at the town church, the President inaugurated the ₱150,000 municipal building. The President is scheduled to return about 2 p.m. to Tagbilaran after a conference with provincial and municipal officials at the new Talibon municipal hall.

May 26—PRESIDENT Garcia was accorded an enthusiastic reception by the people of Negros Oriental on his arrival at Dumaguete City at 9:45 a.m. today on the second leg of his four-day whirlwind inspection tour of Southern Visayas and Mindanao.

Accompanied by Gov. Serafin Teves, Rep. Lorenzo Teves, mayors, and other local political leaders, the President, and his party motored through 13 of 16 towns of Negros Oriental, culminating in Gihulngan, about 10 p.m. after traveling more than 100 kilometers from Dumaguete. Receptions in the towns visited included parades, fireworks display, and ringing of church bells.

In speeches delivered in Visayan, the President, asked the people to allow him to continue the program of the late President Magsaysay. The presidential party had lunch at Tanjay, where the President inaugurated the ₱80,000 municipal building.

The President will leave for Iligan City tomorrow morning to inspect the extent of damage wrought by the recent fire, then return to Manila in the afternoon.

May 27.—PRESIDENT Garcia told, the people of Iligan City that he had authorized the release of ₱200,000 for relief and rehabilitation of some 1,500 families rendered homeless by the recent conflagration in that city.

Addressing fire victims from the kiosk of the city plaza overlooking the still smoldering ruins of Iligan's business center, the President this noon said that the entire government machinery had been promptly put into motion to extend immediate aid to the disaster area.

"I have come here with the hope that my few hours with you would help wipe away some of the tears in your grief-stricken faces," the President told the people.

The President arrived in Iligan about 1:30 p.m. from Dumaguete City following a three-day tour of Bohol and Negros Oriental towns. He had intended to visit the fire-ravaged city early this morning and then proceed to Manila in time to fulfill some noon appointments in Malacañang but the PAL plane Otter, which flew him from Ozamis City to Iligan, developed engine trouble and delayed him a few hours while some repairs and adjustments were made.

The PAF C—47 plane, Pagasa, bearing the presidential party from Dumaguete had to land in Labo airport near Ozamis City, as the Maria Cristina airfield near Iligan was under repair and could only land smaller planes. From Labo, the President transferred into a DeHavilland Otter plane of the Philippine Air Lines which took him to Maria Cristina. The single-engined plane with a seating capacity of 10 passengers was piloted by Capt. Pedro Mallari.

On hand at the Labo airstrip to welcome the President were Misamis Occidental Gov. Diego Ty Deling, Board Member Genaro Bomediano, Mayor Angel Medina of Ozamis City, and other provincial, city, and municipal officials of Misamis Occidental. While adjustments were being made on the Otter, the President decided to make a side trip to Ozamis City, some five kilometers away, making several whistle stops enroute.

Arriving at Maria Cristina airfield about 1 p.m., the President was met by large delegations of Lanao political leaders which included Sen. Domocao Alonto, Gov. Salvador Lluch, Iligan Mayor Mariano Badolles and Baloi Mayor Geronimo Marave, president of the Lanao mayors league.

In Iligan about 30 minutes later, the President went around the area of the fire which had gutted 19 blocks of the city, including all of Iligan's commercial center. Col. Ramon Aguirre, deputy 4th MA commander, reported that a total of 282 buildings had been razed to the ground, including the City Hall, the PNB building, the public market, the city auditorium, the post office, and other government offices.

After talking individually with some of the fire victims he found in the area, the President was led to the plaza kiosk, where he addressed a large crowd which had awaited him for hours. Other speakers were Gov. Lluch and Mayor Badolles.

The President had lunch at the residence of the Iligan City mayor at 2:30 p.m., took off on the Otter at Maria Cristina airstrip at 4 p.m., and transferred to the PAF C-47 plane Pagasa at Labo airport for the return trip to Manila. He was back in Malacaiiang about 8:30 p.m.

May 28.—THIS morning President Garcia received individual pledges of support for his nomination and reelection from members of the Bicol Bloc with whom he had a breakfast conference.

The Bicol political leaders submitted a resolution to the President pledging to work for the election of whoever is nominated by the Nacionalista Party in the coming convention. After the resolution was given to the President, members of the bloc individually expressed their support for the President's nomination and reelection.

Sen. Edmundo Cea committed himself and his followers "at the service" of the President for his campaign for nomination and reelection "because we believe you are the right man to lead the party to victory in the coming election."

Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez also assured the President of her support. She said that she would work for the nomination and reelection of the Chief Executive.

Others who expressed their support to the President were Reps. Justino Nuyda and Pio Duran of Albay and Vicente Peralta of Sorsogon, Govs. Juan Frivaldo of Sorsogon and Juan Alberto of Catanduanes, and ex-Governor Wilfredo Panotes of Camarines Norte.

Rep. Peralta told the President that the three leading officials of Sorsogon, Rep. Peralta, Rep. Salvador Encinas, and Gov. Frivaldo, "will support you for nomination and reelection because we believe that you are the most logical and the best candidate of the party."

Other resolutions submitted by the members of the bloc to the President during the conference pertained to local problems which needed national help.

Present at the breakfast conference were Sens. Cea, Gonzalez, and Pedro Sabido; Acting Defense Secretary Jose M. Crisol; Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona; Reps. Nuyda, Duran, and Peralta; Govs. Alberto and Frivaldo; ex-Gov. Panotes; MVO Chief Ruben Villaluz; Melquiades Fuentebella; Felix Imperial, Dr. S. Ortega; Nick Enciso; and Pedro Venida.

After the breakfast conference, the President received former President Sergio Osmeña, who paid a courtesy call. The President conversed with the former President, who came to Manila to attend the Council of State meeting, in the Malacañang music room.

Also received by the President were Tristan E. Beplat, vice-president of the Manufacturers Trust Company of New York, and Dwight G. Allen, assistant treasurer and deputy Far East representative of the same company. The two American business executives were accompanied by Acting OEC Administrator Juan Concon and Felix de la Costa, executive vice-president of the Philippine Bank of Commerce.

Other callers of the President before he presided over the Council of State meeting were Speaker Protempore Daniel Z. Romualdez, Reps. Pedro Trono and Juan Aldeguer of Iloilo, and Gov. Jose Dinglasan of Capiz.

PRESIDENT Garcia and the Council of State at their meeting this day approved the issuance and sale of bonds by authority of various republic acts to finance public projects considered vital to the overall progress of the country.

These public improvements pertain to the construction of public buildings hospitals, and sanitaria; highways, including main feeders and secondary roads; artesian wells; waterworks; river control; irrigation; air-navigation; port works; low-cost housing; and school building program.

Also included in these projects are the resettlement of landless families, fostering the growth of scientific research and studies, survey and subdivision of public lands, development of the coconut industry, and expropriation of landed estates.

The prosecution of these projects is a further implementation of the government program initiated by the late President Magsaysay.

The Council of State meeting was the first presided over by President Garcia since his assumption of office. The items approved are as follows:

(1) For the balance of the National Land Resettlement and Rehabilitation Administration appropriation (R. A. 1600), to carry on this agency's work of resettling landless families
(2) For the advancement of scientific research and development in the Philippines as requested by the National Science Board for the national scientific engineering and technological research fund under (R. A. 1606)
(3) For the payment of the obligations of the Philippine Government to the San Juan de Dios Hospital representing the balance of the promissory notes for the payment of the Tambo-bong-Buenavista estate, as requested by the Land Tenure Administration (R. A. 1400)
(4) For public works projects authorized under various Republic Acts
(5) For further implementation of the low-cost housing program of the Administration, as requested by the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation
(6) For intensification of the work of surveying public lands and subdividing them, as requested by the Bureau of Lands
(7) For encouragement and development of the coconut industry, as requested by the PHILCOA
(8) For the intensification of the government's program of expropriating landed estates in Manila, as requested by the Land Tenure Administration

The total of these bonds is ₱187,656,000.

The Council of State meeting started at 10:25 a.m. and lasted up to about 12:15 p.m.

Aside from the regular Cabinet members, those present were Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., Senate Majority Floorleader Cipriano Primicias, Speaker Protempore Daniel Z. Romualdez, House Majority Floorleader Arturo M. Tolentino, Senators Jose P. Laurel, Sr., and Jose Locsin, Cebu City Mayor Sergio Osmeña, Jr., chairman of the Provincial Governors and City Mayors League; former President Sergio Osmeña, former Gov. Juan O. Chioco, and Alfonso Ponce-Enrile.

IN the afternoon the President took further steps to intensify and make more effective the government's overall anti-influenza drive.

The President, through Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason, who presided over the Cabinet meeting in the President's absence, directed:

- (1) Acting Defense Secretary Jose M. Crisol and Acting Health Secretary Rafael Tumbokon to coordinate the anti-"flu" campaign of the health units of their respective departments; and
- (2) Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona to release ₱200,000 to purchase anti-"flu" medicines for free distribution, especially to the poor and the needy.

(On the advice of his physicians, President Garcia rested the whole afternoon immediately after the Council of State meeting because of a slight fever due to cold.)

Upon the President's directive, Secretaries Crisol and Tumbokon immediately organized a combined defense-health team composed of physicians and nurses to be headed by Secretary Tumbokon himself. Dr. Amadeo Cruz, chief of the rural health units, will assist the health secretary. This team will enplane Wednesday for Legaspi, Albay, with an initial medicine load of ₱30,000 for free distribution to the needy. The team members will also minister to the needs of the sick.

Crisol and Tumbokon said that from Legaspi their combined health team will enplane for Iloilo and then to Cebu, Davao, Cotabato, and other places.

Tumbokon said that in Manila health authorities of his department and of the City have coordinated their efforts in making a house-to-house visit to influenza victims, especially in the poor and congested areas.

Crisol said that following the President's directive he ordered all available Armed Forces vehicles to be used in transporting needy influenza victims to hospitals where they could be treated.

Tumbokon said that he had reiterated his directive to all rural health units to extend all possible medical assistance in their respective areas. As a matter of fact, he said, Dr. Amadeo Cruz, rural health division chief was going with him to the field tomorrow to intensify the anti-"flu" campaign.

In the absence of the President, Secretary Tuason presided over the Cabinet meeting which started at 4:30 p.m. and lasted up to past 7 p.m. Mostly routine matters were taken up during the Cabinet meeting.

May 29.—PRESIDENT Garcia was confined to bed today on the second day of his bout with "flu" which he contracted yesterday.

While President Garcia was in bed, the First Lady and their only child, Linda, were busy preparing for the latter's wedding tomorrow morning with Fernando Campos, Jr., a Cavite lawyer.

Cakes, drinks, and wedding gifts poured into Malacañang today. Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, the First Lady, also invited the Campos family to Malacañang for a "get-together" today.

The First Lady said this was their custom. She pointed out that although the President was slightly indisposed, she wanted to keep up with their tradition. She recalled to newsmen that the tradition, was observed when she married the President.

The First Lady was slightly nervous on the eve of her only child's wedding. Asked how she felt, the First Lady said: "I could not describe my feelings. I hope I do not cry at the wedding."

She said that the President has recovered but expressed fears that the strain he would undergo during the ceremony at the San Agustin church and at the reception in Malacañang tomorrow may upset him. "He may have a relapse," she said.

Linda, on the other hand, was also nervous. She spent the evening in church with Campos for confession.

"I am nervous," she told newsmen. "I hope my father can make it."

Linda expressed the hope that it would rain on her wedding. "It's a good sign," she said. She recalled that the old folks in the provinces told her that rain brings good things to a newly-married couple.

"Rain is a sign of abundance," she said. "I hope it rains if not today tomorrow."

Linda said she and her husband would fly tomorrow afternoon for Hongkong, where they would spend the first days of their two-week honeymoon. They plan to go to Tokyo later.

PRESIDENT Garcia today issued the following statement on the death of Judge Roldan:

“The death of Judge Arsenio Roldan marked the passing of a devoted public servant who dedicated his life to the service of his country by dispensing justice in the best tradition of the bench. He showed great love for the working man and also saw to it that the public welfare was duly safeguarded. I join my countrymen in mourning Judge Roldan’s death.”

May 30.—PRESIDENT Garcia, looking happy despite a bout with “flu,” gave away his only child, Linda, in marriage to Fernando Campos this morning.

After the rites, the President received the wedding guests at Malacañang and later posed for pictures with the newly-weds at his study room in Malacañang.

After bidding Godspeed to the couple who were to leave at noon today for their honeymoon in Hongkong, the President motored out of the Palace and proceeded to the presidential landing where he boarded the yacht, Sta. Maria.

Gaerlan was said to have told the President the sea air would help him gain the pounds he lost during his bout with the “flu” Tuesday and Wednesday.

With the President aboard the yacht were Gaerlan, Assistant Press Secretary Guillermo Sison, Appointments Secretary Agerico Palyapay, and Major Jose Estrella, aide.

After a short cruise in the bay, the yacht dropped anchor a few miles off the shore limits.

As soon as the yacht anchored, President Garcia dictated two notes of condolence, one addressed to acting Secretary of Foreign Affairs Raul S. Manglapus on the death of his mother, and the other, to the deceased’s family.

A little before 4 p.m. the President received Sen. Roseller Lim, who called on him prior to leaving for Geneva, where he’ would head the Philippine delegation to the International Labor Organization’s conference.

At 4 p.m. National Treasurer Vicente Gella boarded the yacht and conferred with the President on what his office had done towards facilitating redemption of backpay certificates due to mature next year.

At 6 p.m. Alfonso Calalang, president of the Security Bank and Trust Company, called to present to the President a report of a Central Bank committee studying the effects of increasing dollar remittances to American movie exporters.

May 31.—MRS. Leonila D. Garcia this morning received H. H. Swami Kumar Parivrajak, a Hindu holy man and founder of the Universal Religion Mission, who is presently on a universal peace tour. The Swami informed the First Lady that a local chapter of his organization had been formed.

H. H. Parivrajak was accompanied to Malacañang by Mesdames Lorenza Fabian, chairman of the local U. R. M.; Sarsati Sharma, Minda Vaswani, Carlos Ripoll, Miss Carmelita Fabian, Zosimo Draw, and Generoso Vidanes.

The First Lady also received Mrs. Geneva Link Winston of Iowa, who is traveling alone to fulfill her cherished wish to visit the Philippines. She informed the First Lady that her brother, Edwin, had been among the first batch of American teachers who had arrived in the Philippines at the early part of the U.S. occupation in 1898 and who had spent the greater part of his life teaching Filipino children in Cebu.

Mrs. Winston was accompanied to Malacañang by the children of Edwin, Emma L. Infante, Manuel Link, and Minnie Link, all Cebu residents.

The First Lady received presidential callers at the music room.

FIVE governors from Luzon called on President Garcia in the afternoon and reaffirmed their pledge to support the President's nomination in the convention and work for his election.

The governors who called on the President aboard the S.S. Sta. Maria were Conrado Estrella of Pangasinan, Alejo Santos of Bulacan, Rafael Lazatin of Pampanga, Amado Aleta of Nueva Ecija, and Bernardo Gapuz of La Union.

The governors in reiterating their pledge of loyalty and support to the President, said that they would exert all their efforts in insuring the victory of President Garcia. The President thanked them for their renewal of their pledge which they had given to him a few weeks ago.

EARLIER in the morning, President Garcia signed the bill liberalizing the retirement of government employees.

After signing the law aboard the S.S. Sta. Maria in the presence of Rep. Vicente Peralta of Sorsogon, one of the bill's sponsors, GSIS officials headed by General Manager Rodolfo P. Andal, PGEA officials headed by Artemio E. Gesmundo, the President said:

The highlights of the new law are:

(1) It will qualify government employees to retire after 20 years of service regardless of age, and to receive one month's salary for every year of service, but not exceeding two years;

(2) It will allow government employees to retire after 30 years of service regardless of age, and to receive a life pension to be computed on the basis of actuarial tables.

The bill was sponsored in the House of Representatives by Reps. Peralta and Serafin Salvador of Rizal, and in the Senate, by Sen. Jose Zulueta.

Among other officials present at the signing of the bill were Gregorio S. Licaros, chairman of the board of directors; Education Secretary Martin Aguilar, Jr.; Casimiro L. Dacanay and Miguel D. Velasco, members; Dr. Manuel O. Hizon, GSIS actuary; and Abdon Angeles, assistant general manager.

The President also signed a proclamation further extending up to May 31, 1958, the thrift campaign.

The President signed the proclamation because the result of the thrift campaign which had been extended up to May 31, 1957, under the sponsorship of the Bankers Association of the Philippines, required that it be further extended for another year.

The President also received James Bell of Time-Life who paid a courtesy call. He was accompanied by Tony Escoda of the Manila Daily Bulletin.

The President stayed aboard the S.S. Sta. Maria in order to speed up his full recovery from a recent cold. He returned to Malacañang in the evening.

President's Month in Review: June 1-15, 1957

June 1 – HAPPY over last night's meeting in the residence of Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, President Garcia motored bright and early this morning to the home of Sen. Gil Puyat, his only remaining rival for the NP presidential nomination.

Last night he was assured by his party colleagues, particularly Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez and Sens. Jose P. Laurel and Quintin Paredes that he would eventually be left alone to win the nomination unopposed. The only stumbling block was Puyat, who was not present at the meeting because of illness and was, therefore, not bound by the agreement that all NP presidential contenders sacrifice their personal ambitions, in the interest of unity, so that the party could rally behind President Garcia's candidacy.

But, at the time, the President called on the Pampanga senator, the latter was still sick and he (the President) could not stay long to convince his rival to withdraw. It was reported that Puyat "politely but firmly" told the President he was staying in the race.

This did not prevent the Chief Executive from announcing in a press conference he held later in the afternoon aboard the presidential yacht Sta. Maria that he was still confident he could make Puyat withdraw in his favor.

EARLIER in the morning, the President received in Malacañang Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao, who had just returned from a trip to the United States. Balao made a preliminary verbal report to him on his mission.

At noon the President boarded his yacht where he inducted into office Mayor Paulino Ong of Naawan, Misamis Oriental. The newly-installed town mayor was accompanied to the President by Rep. Ignacio Cruz of Misamis Oriental.

AT 5 p.m., the President received aboard the yacht Malacañang newspaper reporters for his weekly press conference. In the conference, he expressed optimism he will win the NP nomination and that he might still run unopposed in the convention.

The President exuded confidence when he said his talks with Puyat were far from over, indicating that the Pampanga senator had indicated willingness to make the same sacrifice that his other rivals, Senators Laurel and Paredes, had done.

EARLY in the evening, he received members of the Barrio Lieutenants Association of the Philippines, officers of the Philippine Veterans Legion, and those of the PVL women's auxiliary whom he inducted into office.

President Garcia commended the members of the Barrio Lieutenants' Association of the Philippines for their civic consciousness in helping the government become more responsive to the needs and desires of the masses.

The President said that their personal sacrifices in attending their convention in Manila to discuss barrio problems and improve the living conditions there showed a growing strength of democracy in the Philippines and social consciousness among the barrio people.

The Chief Executive made these remarks to scores of barrio lieutenants who paid their respects to the President aboard the S.S. Sta. Maria on the last day of their three-day convention prior to their return to their respective barrios. The barrio lieutenants were accompanied to the yacht by Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez and Severino Luna, BLAP president.

In his brief extemporaneous speech, the President praised the efforts of the barrio lieutenants in helping uplift living conditions in the barrios. He said that they were extending great help in the building up of Philippine democracy from the grass roots up which, he added, had been the objective of the late President Magsaysay and which he was implementing.

Luna introduced the President to the conventionists who greeted him with a warm applause. Secretary-Rodriguez also delivered a brief speech.

Severino N. Luna, president; Salvador M. Buason, national vice-president; Hermogenes C. Sulpicio vice-president for Luzon; Bartolome Cagasan, vice-president for Visayas; Datu Saaban Muti, vice-president for Mindanao; Tiburcio R. Riva, secretary; Victor H. Gaza, treasurer; and the following members of the board of directors: for Luzon—Efren Dulay, Ursenio Maya, and Max F. Ubusan; for, the Visayas—Timoteo Ramirez, Benito Sombrero, and Santiago M. Peroy; and for Mindanao—Efren Dominguez, Alejandro Golob, and Efraen Musico.

After receiving the barrio lieutenants, the President received the officers of the Philippine Veterans Legion and the PVL Auxiliary whom he inducted into office.

The PVL officers were as follows: Francisco B. Offemaria, commander; Jose Ai Aranas, vice-commander, Luzon; Conrado J. Nofada, vice-commander, Visayas; Peregrino M. Andres, vice-commander, Mindanao; Tomas T. Nufable, adjutant; Philomeno P. Padilla, treasurer; Dominador A. Realon, inspector; Dante Q. Nagtalon, judge advocate; Rev. Fr. Pedro Hilario, chaplain; Manuel Abella, PRO; Magno Jamito, historian; Mariano S. Noriel, auditor; and the following committeemen: for Luzon—Eulogio D. Balao, Anatolio M. Bustamente, Elias P. Palma, Vicente O. Novales, and Fortunato Martin; for the Visayas—Atilano R. Cinco, Pepito G. Iyulores, Ernesto C. Vilfanis, Iluminado Tale, and Felizar.do Martir; and for Mindanao—Antonio Napili, Antonio Portugal, Ignacio Abragan, Eugenio Millado, and Mareelo T. Paiso.

THE PVL Auxiliary officers follow: Mrs. Luz Belen Sese, president; Mrs. Catalina Malanyaon, vice-president for Luzon; Mrs. Alnif Golez, vice-president for Visayas; Mrs. Jovita Macatol Waminal, vice-president for Mindanao; Mrs; Amelia S. San Juan, secretary; Miss Pat Beriho, sub-secretary; Mrs.. Helen Jamito, treasurer; Miss Clara Tudtud, PRO; Miss Teofila Nequin, liistorian, and the following committee women: for Luzon—Miss Nelie Arroyo, Miss Domihguita Seranilla, Mrs. Gregoria Urcia, Miss Leticia Lugo, and Miss Consolation Teoxon; for the Visayas—Miss Aquilina Aviado, Mrs. Catalina Estuya, Miss Dolores Collada, Mrs. Maria Villanueva, and Miss Carmelita Catedral; for Mindanao—Mrs. Marcela Gray, Mrs. Agapita A. Gallardo, Mrs. Caridad C. Madarieta, Mrs. Simeona Mediante, and Mrs. Cenencia T. Omahoy.

Other callers of the President were Regs. Jose Aldeguer of Iloilo and Carmen Dinglasan Consing of Capiz, and Gov. Jose Dinglasftn of Capiz.

June 2.—ON his physician's advice, President Garcia stayed the whole day this day aboard the presidential yacht Sta. Maria in order to recover completely from a recent bout with the cold. The yacht steamed out of Pier 5 last night after the Chief Executive had inducted officers of the Philippine Veterans Legion and the women's auxiliary of the organization and of barrio lieutenants in convention here.

With President Garcia in the cruise along Manila Bay off Corregidor were Appointments Secretary Rolando Kagawan, Lieut. Melchor Fronda, presidential aide, and Dr. "Antonio Guytingco.

The President started his day by hearing mass sung aboard the yacht by Fr. Juan Tugade, Navy chaplain, at 7 a.m. Then the Chief Executive worked on pending state papers which he took along. He is scheduled to return to Malacañang early-tomorrow morning.

June 3.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning received Commerce Secretary Oscar Ledesma, who reported that European countries were anxious to buy Philippine products like copra, abaca, sugar, and other items. Secretary Ledesma recently arrived from Hannover, Germany, where he had attended the Hannover International Fair.

The commerce secretary, however, said that trade with the European countries with sterling currency was limited because of the non-convertibility of the peso in sterling. The Philippines accepts payment for exports only in dollars.

Secretary Ledesma also extended to the President the blessings of Pope Pious XII.” The commerce secretary passed through Rome on his way back here.

AFTER receiving Secretary Ledesma, the President inducted the officers of the Garcia-for-President United Federation (GPUF) who promised to “do our best to insure your victory in the coming election.” According to the spokesman of the federation, the GPUF has an initial membership of 15,000.

A courtesy caller of the President was C. H. Goughlin, president of the Island Gas and Electric Company of New York. Coughlin was accompanied by former Justice Secretary Jose P. Bengzon.

Retired Maj. Gen. Calixto Duque, retired Brig. Gen. Florencio Selga, and Mrs. Pilar Normandy discussed with the President matters affecting Philippine veterans, particularly the bills passed in the last session of Congress. The retired generals and Mrs. Normandy were accompanied by Sen. Ruperto Kangleon.

Former Gov. Felipe Azeuna of Zamboanga del Norte pledged his all out support to the President in the coming election. Gov. Azeuna, who was earlier reported as supporting the candidacy of Sen. Recto, was accompanied by Rep. Alberto Ubay of Zamboanga del Norte.

Other callers of the President included Sen. Francisco Delgado, Govs, Dominador Chipeco of Laguna and Juan Alberto of Catanduanes, and ex-Rep. Dominador Tan.

June 4.—PRESIDENT Garcia spent a busy day this day receiving hundreds of callers. He ate his lunch about 2 p.m. after receiving the Masbate delegation which was the last of many provincial delegations.

After breakfast with Don Andres Soriano, Andres Soriano, Jr., and Miguel Noel, the President proceeded to the study room, where he listened to the complaints and problems brought before him by his callers.

About 200 occupants of the Tambobong estate in Malabon, Rizal, belonging to the Tambobong Estate Actual Occupants Association, complained to the President that Senate Bill No. 644 was not in line, with the government’s policy for the landless people. Fernando Santiago, spokesman of the tenants/said that the bill was against the interest of landless people. The bill, according to Santiago, would give preference to lessees instead of to actual occupants in the sale of landed estates administered by the Land Tenure Administration. The President said that he would “carefully consider” the complaints of the tenants when he decide on the merits of Senate Bill No. 644.

Officers and members of the Democratic Army Veterans and Philippine-Civilian Social Security Organization (Dav-Philian) petitioned the President to approve Senate Bill No. 547, which seeks to create a commission to process and determine the unsettled claims of Philippine veterans. The Pav-Philiah officers and members were accompanied by Sen. Jose C. Zulueta, author of the bill. Col. Servando C. Miclat, national chairman, and Pedro Guerrero, executive secretary, told the President that their organization was working for the welfare of unpaid guerrillas.

A 200-man delegation, composed of members of the Federation of Free Farmers in Bulacan, petitioned the President for national aid for the construction and establishment of feeder roads, irrigation system, and artesian wells. The farmers were accompanied by Segundo Gonzales and Fernando Esguerra of the FFF. The President endorsed the resolutions of the farmers to the officials concerned for immediate action.

Members of the Philippine Jaycees, headed by out-going president Luis Araneta and incoming president Sotero H. Laurel, requested the President to give a small portion of Plaza Militar for the construction of their headquarters. The President said that he would discuss the matter with the proper officials.

A delegation from Masbate also requested the President for help. The delegation was composed of former Gov. Vicente Quisumbing, Dr. Efrén Valencia, Dr. Francisco Altarejos, and others.

Members of the Philippine Lawyers League, headed by Dr. Arturo Alafriz, president, also called on the President. They discussed with the President matters affecting their association.

Cithier callers of the President included Reps. Rogaciano Mercado of Bulacan, Augusto Francisco of Manila, Enrique Corpus of Zambales, Manuel Enyerga of Quezon, Gaudencio Abordo of Palawan, Miguel Zosa and Ramon Durano of Cebu and Emilio Cortez of Pampanga; and Govs. Conrado Estrella of Pangasinan, Alejo Santos of Bulacan, and Bernardo Gapuz of La Union.

THE First Lady, Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, this morning turned over to Hospitals Director Tranquilina Elicaho anti-“flu” medicines which had been solicited by civic organizations for distribution to “flu” victims in the city and in the rural areas.

Only a very small portion of the medicines were given to the Malacañang clinic for free distribution to those who go there for treatment. In turning over the medicines to Dr. Elicaño, the First Lady directed that they be distributed free to where they are most needed.

The medicines which were donated by Winthrop and Stearns consisted of (1) 3,000 strips of novaldin, (2) 3,000 pills of gardan, (3) 600 libritos of flufavit, (vitamin pills), and (4) 300 bottles of deka syrup.

IN the afternoon, the President accepted the letters of credence of Charles E. Bohlen, new U. S. ambassador to the Philippines, in presentation ceremony held at Malacañang.

In presenting his credentials, Ambassador Bohlen pledged: “It shall be my constant endeavor to strengthen the deep ties of friendship which have always characterized the relations between our nations.”

The President, in his response, assured the new envoy that “in all our dealings, all problems which may arise between your country and mine shall be resolved under an atmosphere of cordially, understanding, and faith.”

Fetches by Jose Estrada, protocol officer of the Department of Foreign Affairs, and Lt. Col. Emilio Borromeo and Maj. Jose Estrella, senior and junior aides of the President, respectively, Ambassador Bohlen arrived at the Malacañang Palace grounds about 5:12 p.m. in the presidential Car No. 1. He was met by an honor guard formed by a unit of Company “B” of the Presidential Guards Battalion under the command of Lt. Egidio Gardose.

After acknowledging the raffles and flourishes offered by his honor guard, Ambassador Bohlen was led up the Palace stairs and into the ceremonial hall, where the President and ranking Filipino officials received him.

After presenting his credentials, the ambassador was introduced by Acting Foreign Affairs Secretary Raul S. Manglapus to other Filipino officials attending the ceremony; namely, Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason, Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez, Acting Education Secretary Martin Aguilar, Jr., Health Undersecretary Rafael Tumbokon, Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao, Commerce Secretary Oscar Ledesma, Sen: Jose Locsin (acting chairman of the NEC), Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon, SWA Administrator Amparo Villamor, and Assistant Press Secretary G. V. Sison.

Ambassador Bohlen, in turn, presented members of his staff made up of Minister Horace Smith; Director Harry Brenn of the ICA, Counselors William Walker and Charles Hodge; Col. Henry Miller, army attache; Douglas Crawford, agricultural attache; Michael Cross, treasury attache; and George Aureli. Also present were Rear Admiral Edgar Cruise, commander of U. S. naval forces in the Philippines; Maj. Gen. Joseph Harper, chief of JUSMAG; Maj. Gen. John Ackerman, 13th Air Force commander; and John Cooper, attache for veterans' affairs.

The ceremonies lasted about 20 minutes. After the traditional toast exchanged by the President and Ambassador Bohlen to continued friendly relations between their two countries, the new ambassador, followed by his staff, was led down to the Palace stairs and into the grounds where he again acknowledged honors by his honor guard despite a slight drizzle.

June 5.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning had breakfast with members of the Sugar Planters' Association of the Philippines who urged the approval of Senate Bill 167.

After listening to their oral, arguments favoring the approval of the bill, the Chief Executive told the sugar men to submit a memorandum as soon as possible "so that I can study the matter further."

Present at the breakfast were Jose Mapa Gomez, president of the association, Vicente Singson Encarnacion, Alfredo Montelibano, Arturo Piccio, Jose Poblador, Vicente Gustilo, Mariano Santos, Jose Mirasol, Antonio Aquino, Ciro Locshv Gerry Rodriguez, Rodolfo Lizares, Ramon de la Rama, Miguel Gatuslao, Gavino Moras, and Ramon Nolas.

Also present were Commerce Secretary Oscar Ledesma, and Reps. Carlos Hilado and Jose Puey of Negros Occidental.

The breakfast lasted from 8 to 9 a.m.

THIS President and the Cabinet at their meeting today ordered the immediate release of ₱7.5 million to back up the implementation of the Fertilizer Subsidy Law, which enables farmers to buy fertilizers from the Agricultural Credit and Cooperative Financing Administration at practically one-half of the current market price.

President Garcia directed that the fertilizers be procured immediately and distributed to the farmers without delay in time for the planting season starting early next month.

This order was given upon representations made by ACCFA Administrator Osmundo Mondoñedo, who reported that out of the authorized appropriation of ₱18 million for this year, only ₱5 million has been released so far. As a consequence, he said, the ACCFA has rationed the distribution of the low-priced fertilizers to only five bags per farmer.

Mondoñedo explained to the Cabinet that the total fertilizer requirement of the country based on previous experience was approximately ₱25 million a year. On the basis of such figures, he said, the ACCFA would need a minimum of ₱12.5 million a year to take care of the farmers' fertilizer requirements all over the country. He asked the Cabinet for the immediate release of at least ₱7.5 million, in addition to the ₱5 million released previously.

Realizing the need for increased production and the direct benefits to be received by more than a million farmers, the Chief Executive at the Cabinet meeting directed Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytopa and Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez to make immediately available to the ACCFA the funds needed to implement the fertilizer program.

After consulting with Acting Education Secretary Martin Aguilar, Jr., Acting Health Secretary Rafael Tumbokon, and Manila Health Officer Mariano C. Icasiano, on the "flu" situation as it would affect the opening of classes,

President Garcia and the Cabinet ordered that all classes be officially opened on June 10; It was however stipulated that enrollment be allowed to continue until the end of June, depending, on individual cases and circumstances to be decided by local school officials concerned.

The President made the decision on the announcement of the school opening in view of various proposals regarding this matter affecting the school system. Some official recommended the opening on June 10 while others proposed opening on June 17.

The Cabinet agreed with the President's decision that all classes officially open on June 10 but enrollment would be allowed until the end of June depending on individual cases.

In order to encourage and aid the construction of local vessels for the country's shipping needs, the President and the Cabinet approved the sending of 10 trainees to Japan, including engineers, technicians, and skilled laborers, to study the design and construction of 1,500-ton cargo-passenger vessels.

This proposal was recommended to the Cabinet by NASSCO General Manager Bernardo P. Abrera. Under this plan the training of the Filipino team costing $80,000 will be chargeable against the Japanese reparations payment.

When the trainees come back to the Philippines, they will be employed in the construction of cargo and passenger vessels at the Mariveles shipyards of the NASSCO. It is believed that with the knowledge and skill to be acquired by these trainees, they 'will be able to contribute to the development of the country's shipping industry.

Implementing further the Government's policy of withdrawing from the business field where private enterprises are willing and ready to undertake the job, the President and the Cabinet approved the sale by public bidding of the Romblon marble project of the CEPOC.

After an explanation by Acting OEC Administrator Juan Concon of the conditions of the bidding, the Cabinet agreed that among the important provisions should be that the winning bidder should pay not less than 15 per cent down of the total cost, the balance to be paid in five years.

Another condition is to the effect that the successful bidder should give preference for the present employees and laborers in the matter of employment.

The projected sale of the Romblon marble project will be the sixth instance in which the government has withdrawn from business. The government in the past two months sold: (1) the CEPOC cement plant in Bacnotan, and (2) the NDC canning plant; and its share holdings in the (3) Philippine Electrical Manufacturing Company, (4) the Compania Celulosa de Filipinas, and (5) the Manila Gas Corporation.

President Garcia at the Cabinet meeting ordered the immediate release of the anti-"flu" medicines and assumed the payment of taxes and customs duties out of his personal funds, when apprised by Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez that these medicines had been held up at the airport because of non-payment of dues as required by law.

Explaining the matter before the Cabinet, Secretary Hernandez said that there was no provision in existing laws which would exempt the Philippine Medical Association or any other private entity from payment of taxes on imported items.

The President than said that he would assume the payment of the collection dues on these medicines from his personal funds in order to uphold the law, and at the same time enable those sick with influenza to be benefited by these medicines which will be distributed free.

At this juncture the Cabinet members offered to share with the President the payment of whatever taxes and customs duties may be levied on the anti-"flu" medicines which had been sent by the American Medical Association to the Philippine Medical Association.

The Cabinet also recalled that during the time of the late President Magsaysay, taxes due on the donation given by CARE and the American Catholic Charities worth millions of pesos could not be waived by the late President unless a government entity was made the consignee of these goods.

It was revealed that consequently these goods were consigned to government agencies in order to be exempted from the payment of taxes and customs duties.

The Cabinet was informed by Secretary Hernandez that the Philippine Medical Association had refused to have these medicines consigned to the Department of Health and that therefore it was at first found difficult to let these medicines in tax free.

At the Cabinet meeting President Garcia signed an executive order terminating the collection of tolls on the following toll bridges: (1) Bahi, Camarines Sur; (2) Bauang, La Union; and (3) Marala, Rizal.

The tolls were lifted after the office of the President had been informed that the costs of the toll bridges plus interest had been fully recovered in accordance with law.

The President presided over the Cabinet meeting which was held at the Council of State room from 10:40 a.m. to 1:40 p.m.

Headed by W. T. Mallisor, head of the African-Asian branch of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission, Washington, D. C, the group consisted of Dr. George Boyd, assistant director of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory; E. P. Lizard, reactor physicist; Dr. Kimball Attwood, senior biologist; and Dr. Marshall Brucer, head of the medical department of the national laboratory at Oak Ridge. All members of the group are connected with the National Laboratory at Oak Ridge, Tennessee.

The group arrived in Manila recently to implement an agreement between the Philippines and the United States Governments to cooperate with each other in harnessing atomic energy for peaceful uses.

The group will also advise the local committee on atomic energy regarding the setting up of a nuclear research reactor project here.

After receiving the group, the President received Indonesian Ambassador-at-large Ahmed Subardjo, who paid a courtesy call following his arrival from Jolo where he had attended the Muslim conference.

Subardjo was accompanied to Malacañang by Indonesian Ambassador Nazir Datuk Pamontjak, H. Mohammed Elyas, Indonesian minister of religious affairs, and Dr. A. F. Amrousi, Egyptian Ambassador to Indonesia.

Gen. Kuter was cited, among other things, for exceptionally meritorious and valuable services rendered to the Republic of the Philippines, particularly to the Armed Forces, while holding the positions of major responsibility as commander of the United States Far East Air Forces.

Present during the ceremonies were high officials of the Philippines and American governments, including Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen, Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon, Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao, Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, Commodore Jose M. Francisco, Brig. Gen. Manuel Cabal, Col. Pedro Q. Molina, PAF chief, U. S. Embassy Minister Horace Smith, U. S. 13th Air Force Commander Maj. Gen: John Ackerman, U. S. Naval Forces Commander Rear Admiral Edgar A. Cruise, and Maj. Gen. Joseph Harper, JUSMAG chief.

The President's senior aide, Lt. Col. Emilio Borromeo read the citation.

PRESIDENT Garcia this day granted another 30-day reprieve to prisoner Crispin Verzo, who is scheduled to be executed on June 8, 1957, for the explosion of a PAL plane that took off from Daet, Camarines Norte, in 1947 resulting in the death of all the 13 passengers and crew;

The President granted the reprieve in order to have more time to study the case in connection with the petition for executive clemency filed in behalf of the prisoner.

PRESIDENT Garcia today ordered the airlifting to Manila of an emergency patient from Panacan, Palawan, by an Air Force plane.

Domingo Batoctoy, 32, a NARRA employee, suffered a ruptured appendix. Immediately upon his arrival this evening at the Nichols Air Base, he was rushed to the Philippine General Hospital by an Army ambulance.

The President ordered Batoctoy's airlifting following receipt of a telegram from the NARRA project settlement informing the Chief Executive of the emergency.

IN the evening the President directed Assistant Executive Secretary Mariano Yenke, Jr., to expedite all pending cases on suspended jockeys on appeal with Malacañang.

The President gave the order in the course of his conference with members of the Games and Amusements Board who called on him to pay their respects and at the same time discuss various pressing problems of the board. Headed by Manuel Nieto, Jr., GAB chairman, board members present at the conference were Commissioners Mariano Marfori and Esteban Mayo. Also present were Alfredo Guidote, GAB secretary; Narciso Pimentel, Sr., GAB racing expert and Secretary Yenke.

During the conference which lasted from 5 to 6:30 p.m., the President instructed the GAB to continue its strict supervision of the races, Jai-Alai, boxing, and other amusements.

Following the Conference, the President received other callers who called to pledge their support to his bid for election. Among the callers were Mayors Sofronio Avancena of Sinacaban, Liberato Bacayo of Aloran, Francisco Paylaga of Jimenez, and Gregorio A. Gamotin of Tudela, all of Misamis Occidental. The mayors were accompanied by Reps. William Chiongbian of Misamis Occidental and Manuel Zosa of Cebu.

June 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning received Lions District Governor Eugenio Eusebio, who paid a courtesy call on the Chief Executive prior to his departure for San Francisco, California, to attend the 40th Lions International Annual Convention.

Eusebio will represent Lions District 301, of the Philippines. During the call the President signed a message which he requested Eusebio to present to the Lions International Annual Convention. The President also signed citation to the California and Nevada Lions Clubs and to Lion Maurice Perstein and Lion L. Jack Block, the general chairman and coordinator of publicity and material handling, respectively, of "Operations Philippines".

The citation cited the California and the Nevada Lions Clubs for their initiative in helping transform into reality the Magsaysay program of resettling dissidents by supplying sometime ago some 25,000 tons of farm implements which were sent to the EDCOR through "Operations Philippines".

The citation said that the sending of these farm implements was an invaluable contribution in the fight against communism in the Philippines.

Eusebio told the President that he would request Lions International to continue extending help to the Philippines, especially in connection with the RM Educational Foundation Fund sponsored by the Lions.

President Garcia then received Gov. Leon Guinto and Rep. Leon Guinto, Jr., of Quezon, who discussed with him the details of the President's trip to their province.

It was agreed that the President's projected visit to Quezon be postponed from June 20 to June 24. The President said that he would like to stay in Malacañang on June 20, 21, and 22 in order to study carefully the bills before signing them, the deadline of which is June 22.

A delegation from Cavite requested the President to proclaim June 12 this year as special public holiday in their province as well as in the cities of Trece Martires, Cavite, and Tagaytay. Rep. Jose T. Cajulis, who headed the delegation, said that this year's observance of the 59th anniversary of the declaration of the first Philippine Independence would be attended by U. S. Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen, who would return to Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo the very flag which the American forces had seized from the Filipino revolutionists in Kawit, Cavite, in 1898.

A large delegation from Nueva Vizcaya made up of mayors, councilors, and barrio lieutenants called to pledge their support. With the group were some native Igorot settlers who requested the early issuance of titles to lands allocated to them. Headed by Rep. Leonardo Perez, the delegation included Mayor Castillo Tindang of Kayape, president of the Nueva Vizcaya mayors' league.

The Chief Executive received callers at his study up to 1:30 p.m. Other visitors included Commerce Secretary Oscar Ledesma; Defense Undersecretary Jose M. Crisol; Reps. Ricardo Y. Ladrido, Pedro Trono, and Jose Aldeguer of Iloilo, Francisco Pajo of Leyte, and Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan.

THE President today directed National Civil Defense Administrator Alfredo G. Eugenio to work towards expediting the shipment of some 100 fire-engines which are expected from the Japanese reparation payment beginning this month of June.

This year's delivery is part of a total of 300 fire-engines which will be delivered to the Philippines in three years at 100 fire-engines a year.

The President gave this order to help prevent the repetition of uncontrolled conflagrations in the provinces, such as those in Catbalogan, Cotabato, and Higan City, which had resulted in the loss of an estimated ₱45 million.

The Chief Executive was informed by Eugenio that the National Civil Defense Administration has so far mobilized some 300 municipalities all over the country to organize fire-watcher teams known as ronda. The NCDA chief further said that his office had bought from its own funds and distributed some 59 portable fire pumps to many towns which had helped the organized rondas in controlling fire in their localities.

With the distribution of the expected fire-engines from Japan to provincial capitals, chartered cities, and towns, Eugenio said the NCDA would further mobilize the civilian population in those places in order to minimize the prevalence of fires in the Philippines.

EARLY in the evening, the President inducted into office Paciente Cubillas as mayor of the newly-created municipality of Matagob, Leyte. Present at the ceremony was Rep. Carlos Tan of Leyte, author of the bill creating the new town.

Up to 9:30 last night the President was receiving callers composed mostly of municipal officials. Among them were Mayors Gil Gaddi of Kida-pawan, Cotabato; Tranquilino Dalupang of Cagayan, Isabela; Agapito Gala-mida of Davao, Surigao; Porfirio Quinto of Malimono, Surigao; and Felipe Acinas of Kinoguitan, Misamis Oriental.

Also in the list of late callers were Gov. Rafael Lazatin of Pampanga and Rep. Ombra Amilbangsa of Sulu.

June 7.—PRESIDENT Garcia today temporarily suspended the public bidding of labor services by the NARIC scheduled on June 12, following a complaint filed by leaders of the Philippine Trade Unions Council and the Confederation of Unions in Government Corporations.

The labor leaders told the President that the scheduled bidding of labor services was against the NARIC charter and the public policy and would tend to promote the caho system. The President contacted the NARIC by telephone for the temporary suspension of the bidding and said that he would confer with the members of the NARIC board of directors on the matter.

Regarding the request of the labor leaders for the appointment of labor representatives to the different boards of directors of government corporations, the President said that he would discuss with the Cabinet the adoption of a general policy on the matter.

The President also assured the labor leaders that he; would confer with Acting U. P. President Enrique Virata on the request of the PTUC officials for wage increases for the members of the U. P. Employees Welfare Association.

The labor leaders reminded the President about their request for a lot on which to construct a labor hall. The Chief Executive said that he would direct Lands Director Zoilo Castrillo to locate a lot for the proposed hall.

After thanking the President for the signing into law of the bill liberalizing the benefits for members of the GSIS, the labor leaders registered their stand against Senate Bill No. 167 and Senate Bill No. 560, which seeks to create the National Development Authority.

Bills recommended by the PTUC and CUGC for approval were Senate Bill No. 67, providing for the 40-hour a week for government employees; House Bill No. 3428, exempting employees of government corporations from the coverage of civil service rules and regulations; Senate Bill No. 625, amending the Social Security Act; and Senate Bill No. 387, establishing apprenticeship training system. .

Accompanied by Acting Labor Secretary Agapito Braganza, the labor leaders who saw the President were Ildefonso Remolona, acting general secretary of the PTUC; Vicente Arnieto, acting president of the PTUC; Guillermo Sambo, member of the PTUC executive board; Remberto Z, Evio, member of the PTUC executive board; Pangilalo Gaerlan, member of the PTUC executive board; Vicente T. Ocampo, legal counsel; Luis Mauricio, legal counsel; and Silvestre Himan, Geronimo Quadra, Arturo Buatarang, Arturo Tambolero, Mauricio Poblete, Tomas Tolibas, Daniel Galvez, Ramon Pugap, and Federico Valerio, representatives.

Chinese Ambassador Chen Chih-mai accompanied members of the Industrial and Commercial Group to Southeast Asia of the Republic of China who paid their respects to the President. The Chinese industrial and commercial executives told the President that the purpose of their trip here-was to get acquainted with local businessmen so that they could learn or offer any help in the country's industrial and commercial development.

Members of the group were Liang Chen, chairman of the board of the Shantung Industrial Corporation; Chen Wong, chairman of the board of the Taiwan Agricultural and Industrial Development Corporation; Chung-sing Wen,

Hong, general manager of the Fooher Dried Fruits and Canning Factory; Yu-h Hou, representative of the Shing Fu Hsing Cotton Mills; Pan-chih Chang, general manager of the Chu Nan Lumber Mill; Tseng-min Hsu, manager of the Chung Yuan Bleaching and Dyeing Factory; C. T. Chen, chairman of the board of the Tah Hwa Textile Co.; Ching-hsiao Chen, general manager of the Tung Ho Dyeing and Weaving Factory; and Chin-lu Huang, managing director of the Ta Hsin Industrial Co.

Representatives of the Philippine Association for Curriculum Development, Association of University Women, League of Women Voters, and the Philippine Association of Universities and Colleges requested the President to veto the Spanish bill. Leaders of the delegation were Miss Helen Benitez, president of the Association of University Women, Dr. Maria C Peralta, president of the Philippine Association for Curriculum Development; and Dr. Constanca Dumlao, president of the League of Women Voters.

Officers and members of the Philippine Band of Mercy, headed by Dr. Rodolfo Gonzales, called on the President and thanked him for having accepted the position of honorary president of the association. Officers and members of the Philippine Band of Mercy in the group included Alfonso Sycip, Valeriano Fugoso, Dr. Mariano Icasiano, Dy Huanchay, Ralph Hawkins, Jose P. Bautista, Dr. Basilia Taningco, Mrs. Consuelo Hervas, and Mrs. Paz Reyes.

A delegation of members of the Democratic Labor League, the Muslim Student Association, and the Mindanao Veterans Association pledged their support to the President and urged the appointment of former Sen. Felixberto Verano as secretary of labor. The President thanked them for their support. Regarding the proposed appointment of Verano, he said that it was his policy not to make any major appointment until after the election. Leaders of the group were Maj. Nicasio Masinon, Carterio V. Rosales, Bonifacio Legaspi, and Manioba Aguam.

Rep. Salvador Encinas of Sorsogon accompanied Mayor Francisco Bilbao and the councilors of Matnog, Sorsogon, who requested the President for aid for the completion of their various public works projects.

Other callers of the President included Rep. Esteban Bernido of Bohol, Rep. Godofredo Ramos of Aklan, Ignacio Cruz of Misamis Oriental with Mayors Alejandro D. Uy of Manticao and Paulino Ong of Naawan, and Mayor Teodulo Bernados of Tanay, Rizal.

IN view of fresh reports that the influenza epidemic is still taking tolls in the provinces and that there might be a new wave of influenza epidemic, President Garcia this day issued the following order by way of clarifying the Cabinet decision on the matter of opening of school classes:

Classes will open on June 10, 1957, and the enrollment period is extended to June 30.

However, school authorities after consulting with health officials in their respective jurisdictions, and subject to approval by the Secretary of Education, may delay within the said enrollment period (up to June 30) the opening of classes as the circumstances warrant.

PRESIDENT Garcia this afternoon warned supporters of Senate Bill 167 not to make a political issue out of the legislation, which is now awaiting his signature.

He told a Malacañang press conference held at 5 p.m. that his action on the bill, which was approved by both Houses of Congress in the last congressional session, would be based on how it would affect the national economy.

But when a newsman informed him that certain members of Congress identified with the "sugar bloc" had threatened to oppose him. in the coming elections, the President issued this warning:

“They better not make that mistake . . . let them not make a threat to fight me in the elections.”

He said that those who are interested in the passage of the bill should “use arguments to convince me.” He added: “And the only argument that can convince me is that the bill would be for the good of the nation’s economy.”

In the same press conference the President:

1. Justified the Cabinet decision on the date of the school opening on June 10 in answer to criticisms against it in certain sectors;
2. Voiced confidence the Nacionalista Party would resolve the issue of the NP presidential nomination amicably and said he relied on the “good faith” of his rivals for the nominations;
3. Said that recent events in Taipeh and Tokyo concerning jurisdictional disputes over American serviceman “have strengthened” the Philippine position in the stalled US-PI base negotiations;
4. Refused to comment on reports that Jesus Lava, No. 1 Filipino communist, had offered to surrender to government authorities;
5. Said that the Senate Blue Ribbon Committee “has done all it could” in its investigation of the ₱12 million Chinese immigration lobby; and
6. Frowned on suggestions that the Philippines trade with Red China. Commenting on the controversial Bill 167, the President said he has not finished his study of the measure, indicating that political pressure was being exerted on him by both those against and those in favor of the legislation.

He said he has until June 27 to act on the bill under the provisions of the Constitution and hinted he might use “the full period” in deciding whether to approve or veto it.

The President recalled he had a breakfast conference with sugar planters in Malacañang last Wednesday who urged approval of the measure. He said he had given them until today to file a memorandum listing their arguments supporting acceptance of the bill.

Asked about the bill requiring college students to take at least 24 units of Spanish, the Chief Executive observed that there was mounting opposition to this measure.

He also indicated that has not formed a decision on whether he should sign the bill into law or reject it by his exercise of the presidential veto.

On the question of the NP presidential nomination, the Chief Executive said his understanding was that both Sens. Jose P. Laurel and Quintin Paredes had withdrawn their presidential bids in his favor.

However, he said he was confident that, should another “summit meeting” of NP leaders and presidential aspirants be held to resolve the the issue, he would clinch the nomination.

Regarding the bases negotiations, President Garcia said that since the arrival of the new US ambassador to the Philippines, Charles E. Bohlen, “nothing has been discussed about the bases.”

He did not believe the stalled talks would be resumed this year, in view of the coming elections, but asserted that should there be a “basis for the resumption of the negotiations, we may proceed any time.”

Asked about the case of an American employee of the US Navy in Sangley Point who figured in road accident recently in which a university professor and his wife were killed, the President said that Philippine courts have assumed jurisdiction.

He said the turnover by Constabulary authorities of the American employee to US Navy authorities was “a common practice.” But he said there was no question that local courts have jurisdiction over the American defendant against whom a criminal complaint had been filed.

The President commended members of the Blue Ribbon committee for their efforts in looking into the circumstances behind the reported ₱12 million Chinese lobby.

However, he said he sympathized with the senator-members of the committee because they “were up against hearsay evidence which has no probative value.”

The President was referring to the testimonies of several witnesses on what the late President Magsaysay had told them about the politicians behind the move to legalize the stay of overstaying Chinese visitors for certain monetary considerations.

FOLLOWING the press conference, the President received a large delegation of students from different universities in Manila and suburbs who had spent the summer months in government settlement projects in Mindanao to assist settlers in the fields of education, medicine, agriculture, engineering, and social work.

Headed by Louie Carbonell, director of the student summer work camp in Maramag, Bukidnon, and Benjamin Marte, director of the student work camp in Wao, Lanao, the delegation apprised the President of their accomplishments in the government settlement areas.

The President thanked them for their visit in Malacañang. He also congratulated them for their civic spirit in helping poor settlers in improving their ways of life in the settlement areas.

June 8.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning conferred upon James Mc-Neil Crawford the Golden Heart presidential award in a simple ceremony held at the Malacañang music room.

The award was conferred upon Mr. Crawford in recognition of his initiative and enterprise in the establishment of the Del Monte Pineapple Plantation and Cannery, and later the Philippine Packing Corporation, which represented exemplary endeavors in the agricultural development of this country.

THE President today was requested by officials of the Philippine Public Schools Teachers Association to sign into law House Bill No. 6614, which seeks to appropriate ₱3,028,000 as subsidy for public secondary school teachers to implement their salary increases.

The PPSTA officials were Roman Lorenzo, president, and Ricardo Castro, executive secretary. The two PPSTA officials who are scheduled to depart for the United States and Germany to attend the centennial celebration of the National Education Association of America and the convention of the World Confederation of Organizations of the Teaching Profession in Frankfurt, also talked to the President about the offer of the Asia Foundation to donate 5,000 volumes of books a month to public schools through the PPSTA.

The books will be donated free to Philippine public schools, and the PPSTA officials requested the President to declare the donation free of customs duties and taxes.

The President wished luck to Lorenzo and Castro and reminded them that as Philippine delegates to the NEAA and the WCOTP conventions they would also be goodwill ambassadors for their country.

Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez and the bureau directors of his department requested the President authority to use the savings of the department for paying the salary differences of the department employees affected by the reorganization plan. About 500 employees were affected by the salary reduction as a result of the reorganization of the department. The department officials said that if the savings could be used for salaries, there would be no reduction of salaries.

The bureau directors in the group were Zoilo Castrillo of the Bureau of Lands, Benjamin, Gozon of the Bureau of Mines, Eugenio Cruz of the Bureau of Plant Industry, Heraclio Montalban of the Bureau of Fisheries, Domingo Paguirigan of the Bureau of Agricultural Extension, Laureano Marquez of the Bureau of Animal Industry, and Felipe Amos of the Bureau of Forestry. Rep. Isidro Kintanar of Cebu was also with the department officials.

Officers of the Philippine Mental Health Association invited the President to be the guest of honor at the premiere presentation of their stage production, My Name Is Legion, on June 24. They also requested that National Mental Health Week be held in the third week of September every year instead of January. Among the PMHA officials who saw the President were Domingo Bascara, president; Dr. Dalmacio Martin, Mrs. Eva Estrada-Kalaw, Miss Madeleine Klepper, Alberto Cacnio, Dr. E. Aldava-Lim, and Dolores Francisco.

Gov. Diego Ty Deling of Misamis Occidental accompanied a delegation from the town of Clarin composed of Mayor Jose U. Ochate, Mrs. Generosa B. Roa, president of the Clarin Women's Club; Mrs. Roman S. Hill, Mrs. Josefina Mintalar and Resunecio Villa. The delegation requested aid for the public works projects in Clarin.

Other callers of the President included Ray Higgins, P. Hyde, and Philippine Charity Sweepstakes officials headed by Eugenio E. Santos, general manager, Dr. Luis Alandy, Roman Lagura, and Favio Yatco. The PCS officials discussed with the President matters affecting their office. PRESIDENT Garcia will enplane for Legaspi, Albay, tomorrow morning to inaugurate public works projects in the Bicol region and at the same time to take anti-"flu" medicines to that area.

The President will be accompanied by, among other officials, Dr. Jesus Nolasco, acting director of the Bureau of Health; who will take with him anti-"flu" medicines. The President conferred with Dr. Nolasco this evening and told him to join the trip and to bring the necessary medicines.

The President took this step upon receipt of a telegram from Buluan, Sorsogon, informing the Chief Executive that the "flu" epidemic was still continuing in the barrios of Buluan. The President will take advantage of his trip to the Bicol region to take along Dr. Nolasco and the necessary medicines to be distributed not only in Buluan but in other places where these medicines will be needed.

The President this evening also received former acting CAA Administrator Arturo Sevilla, who made a preliminary report to the Chief Executive on his observations in the International Civil Aviation, AGA Division, conference in Montreal, Canada, participated in by 33 countries. Sevilla represented the Philippines in this conference.

Sevilla also informed the President of the negotiations that he had made for the acquisition of fire rescue trucks for airports in the Philippines. He said that he had also conferred with officials of the United States Civil Aeronautics Administration.

June 9.—PRESIDENT Garcia today demonstrated anew his determination to carry out the late President Magsaysay's program of rural development as he toured outlying areas of Albay today and inquired into the needs of farmers and laborers.

The President's inspection trip in this province was highlighted by the inauguration of the 27-kilometer Bonbon-Pantao barrio- feeder road costing ₱500,000, which opens for development large tracts of virgin lands from the eastern to the western coasts of Albay.

The President spent most of the day motoring through the hinterlands and "traversing erstwhile Huk strongholds from the Pacific coast on the east to Ragay Gulf on the west-coast. Accompanied by Sens. Pedib Sabido and Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez, Gov. Nicanor Maronilla Seva, Rep. Pio Duran, and other Bicol officials, the President reached up to barrio Pantao of Libon to inaugurate the Magsaysay feeder road, a 27-kilometer winding road, which cuts across mountains and is full of hairspiri turns perched on precipices 800 feet above sea level.

The President was accorded an overwhelming reception on arrival in Legaspi at 8:20 a.m. aboard the PAF plane Pagasa after more than an hour's trip from Manila. On hand at the airport to meet the President were large delegations from various towns of Albay and nearby provinces.

After acknowledging the cheers of his welcomers, the President was whisked to the Legaspi residence of Gov. Seva, where the President and his party had breakfast. Then at 9:20 a.m., the President, at the head of a 3-kilometer long motorcade, proceeded to Libon where a special mass was said and a Te Deum was sung.

En route to Libon, the President was stopped at six towns; namely, Daraga, Camaling, Guinobatan, Ligao, Oas, and Polangui. The Unscheduled stops were due to delegations made up of townspeople who formed human roadblocks and refused to budge unless the President went down a moment and shake hands with them.

From Libon, the entourage motored to the nearby barrio Bonbon, where the President witnessed the ribbon-cutting ceremony by Sen. Sabido at the starting point of the Magsaysay road. Also at the ceremony were Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, Sen. Gonzalez, and Miss Evelyn Maronilla Seva, sister of Gov. Seva.

After other unscheduled stops in some barrios, the presidential party finally arrived at barrio Pantao on the west coast of Albay where another ribbon cutting ceremony was held at the end of the feeder road which had been constructed at a cost of a half million pesos. This road opens for development large tracts of virgin lands from coast to coast of Albay.

Stopping at several barrios, the President was cheered enthusiastically by farmers who surged forward to shake his hand and promised, "We will vote for you, sir, because you are very much like President Magsaysay."

Addressing a big crowd of farmers at barrio Pantao the President said it was the feeder roads such as the one just inaugurated which he intended to continue building. He asked the people to give him opportunity to carry out to a "happy conclusion" the noble program initiated by the late President Magsaysay aimed at helping the poor people in the rural areas.

The President had lunch at barrio Pantao. After a brief rest, his party motored back to Legaspi where he addressed a public rally in the evening.

THE President today suspended Celso Fernandez; as chief of police of Basilan City for a period of one month effective upon notice of the order. Fernandez was found guilty of (1) gross negligence in releasing an insane person under police custody resulting in the death of a policeman, and (2) violation of law and dereliction of duty in refusing to recognise the authority of the Basilan City mayor.

In his administrative order, the President warned Fernandez that a repetition of similar offense in the future would be more severely dealt with. The police chief was also directed to cooperate with the city mayor of Basilan City.

The President's order in suspending the Basilan City chief of police is in furtherance of his determination to implement the good government policy of the Administration.

The President said in his administrative order that the respondent in not giving effect to the city mayor's administrative order "by refusing to approve the salary of the patrolman affected by the said order, was guilty not only of violation of law but also of dereliction of duty."

SPEAKING on behalf of President Garcia, Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon this morning said that it was due to the Magsaysay-Garcia administration and the Nacionalista Party that greater incentives for rural health development had been generated in the past three years.

Secretary De Leon spoke on behalf of the President on the occasion of the 1957 Alumni Homecoming and Reunion and the opening of the semicentennial year of the U. P. College of Medicine, at the Malacañang Park.

President Garcia could not attend the celebration because of a previous commitment to inaugurate government projects in the Bicol region.

De Leon said that during the Nacionalista administration rural health units, health officers, nurses, midwives, sanitary inspectors, and hospital beds have increased by leaps and bounds in the rural areas.

Comparing the rural health facilities in 1953 to those of the present, Secretary De Leon said that in 1953 there were only 81 rural health units as compared to 801 completely staffed rural health units, 233 incomplete units, and 66 junior units at present. He said that hospital beds increased from 7,475 in 1954 to 10,050 at present; and the number of rural health doctors increased from 342 to 629, and rural health nurses, from 770 to 1651.

Secretary De Leon, however, said that much was left to be done. He said that of the approximately 11,500 registered physicians in 1956, 10,446 were concentrated in Manila and other cities while only 1,134 were serving the much thicker concentration of population in 18,600 barrios of the 1,300 towns.

He said that the rural areas were critically in need of physician's services, demanding the ministering of doctors with missionary spirit and self-abnegation.

He called upon the physicians to go forth into the barrios and towns in order to minister to the needs of the common tao, "the base of the national pyramid and the mainstay of the nation."

June 10.—THE President today laid the cornerstone of the 600-kilowatt Cauayan River hydro-electric power project and said that the electricity and power to be generated by the project would improve the economy of the province.

In his extemporaneous speech the President said that the Administration was putting emphasis on the rural development program. He said the power project would mean more irrigation systems and would increase the output of the cottage industries of Sorsogon.

After laying the cornerstone, the President proceeded to Sorsogon town where he heard a Te Deumsung at the church. From the church the President proceeded to the Sorsogon airport which he inaugurated. He pledged to give more aid for the completion of the airfield, saying that the airport was necessary for developing the economy of the province. The airport has a four hundred-foot runway. The President was assisted by Sen. Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez in cutting the ceremonial ribbon at the airport inauguration.

In his speeches at Cauayan and at the Sorsogon airfield, the President reiterated his commitment to continue with the program of the late President Magsaysay. He also reiterated that the Administration would devote his time to exploit the country's natural resources in order to develop industries and improve the country's economy.

In Cauayan the President was introduced by Rep. Vicente Peralta. Mayor Santos Dangan of Sorsogon thanked the President for the hydroelectric project. Another speaker was Gov. Juan Frivaldo of Sorsogon.

At the inauguration of the airfield, the speakers included Gov. Frivaldo, Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, and CAA Administrator Urbano Caldoza.

Earlier the President conferred with mayors of Albay during a breakfast in Tiwi hot springs. Local problems were taken up. Eighty-seven thousand pesos was assured by the President for the waterworks of Libog.

The President also assured Albay officials he would send representatives to look into the possibility of improving the hot springs in Tiwi to make them tourist attractions. The President took a bath in the hot springs before breakfast.

On his way to Sorsogon the President and his party were met by officials of Sorsogon at the Albay-Sorsogon boundary. Officials were headed by Reps. Peralta and Salvador Encinas and Gov. Frivaldo.

June 11.—THE President this morning officiated at the ground-breaking ceremony for the ₱550,000-irrigation project in barrio San Ramon in Bulan. Also at the ceremony were Sen. Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez, Gov. Juan Frivaldo, Rep. Salvador Encinas, and Sorsogon mayors.

Arriving at the irrigation dam site about 8 o'clock this morning, the President found a large group of farmers who crowded around him and took turns in shaking his hand. He spent some 20 minutes chatting with them and inquiring into the needs of their communities.

Expected to be completed in four months, the irrigation system will service some 800 hectares and benefit about 600 families whose palay crop would be increased by an estimated 28,500 cavans. The ceremony also featured the President's lowering the steel capsule containing plans and other documents on the projected irrigation dam, into the commemorative marker to be opened after a hundred years.

The President took off at the newly inaugurated Bulan airport in Sorsogon shortly before 10 a.m. today aboard the plane Pagasa for the return trip to Manila following a two-day tour of Albay and Sorsogon.

Upon his arrival in Manila at 11:25 this morning, President Garcia directed Acting Health Director Jesus Nolasco to dispatch anti-"flu" medicines to Sorsogon. He issued the order after he had been informed in Sorsogon that there were still "flu" cases in the province.

He was, also, informed that the influenza cases had decreased by about one-fifth.

The President also conferred with Acting Foreign Affairs Secretary Raul S. Manglapus. Malacañang was silent over the Gareia-Manglapus conference. It was gathered that the President discussed with Manglapus the latter's testimony before the Senate Blue Ribbon committee.

THE President likewise instructed SWA Administrator Amparo P. Villamor to send immediately to Manila for free treatment and rehabilitation two Sorsogon indigent invalids.

Julia Balanoyos, 27, and Jose Camara, 41, a near-blind woman and an amputee of both legs, respectively, met the President in the course of his visit to barrio San Ramon, Bulan, Sorsogon, where he officiated at the ground-breaking ceremony for the San Ramon irrigation project.

The President's sympathy for the indigents was drawn when he noticed them having difficulty in wading through the crowd to shake the hand of the visiting Chief Executive.

Julia is the wife of a discharged veteran. She is on the verge of blindness but her sickness can be cured if treated early. She is expected to be treated in a government hospital.

The amputee will be sent to the SWA rehabilitation center. He is a laborer who had met an accident while doing his chores.

June 12.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning directed the Department of Education to instruct three private universities to accommodate 600 more medical students out of those who had been refused admittance this year because of the limitation of enrollment in the various colleges of medicine.

The President issued the directive after a conference with Acting Education Secretary Martin Aguilar, Jr., and Private Schools Director Daniel Salcedo, and announced it to a group of medical students who had been refused admittance. The medical students marched to Malacañang and sought the help of the President.

Secretary Aguilar and Director Salcedo told the President that there were about 1,000 medical students who had not been admitted for enrollment because of the limit on enrollment for medical students.

The President was informed by the education officials that only 600 more medical students could be admitted without impairing the standards set up by the various private colleges of medicine. The private universities to be directed to accommodate the additional medical students are the University of Santo Tomas, the Far Eastern University, and the Manila Central University. They will apportion the number in accordance with their facilities.

Before talking to the medical students, the President created a committee of five to choose the site for the establishment of the University of Mindanao. Initial funds for the establishment of the university in the amount of ₱500,000 is included in the 1957-58 budget.

The creation of the committee followed representations made by Sen. Domocao Alonto, Gov. Salvador Lluch of Lanao, and Iligan City Mayor Mariano Badolles. The establishment of the University of Mindanao had been authorized by law passed two years ago. Members of the committee will be representatives from the Department of Public Works and Communications, the Department of Education, the Armed Forces, the Board of National Education, and the governor of Lanao.

The President signed into law House Bill No. 6096, creating the City of Silay in the province of Negros Occidental. Present when the bill was signed were Sen. Jose Locsin, Reps. Carlos Hilado and Jose Puey, Mayor Romulo Golez of Silay, and Nicolas Ledesma.

The President also received Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., and Mariano Laurel. During his conference with the Laurels, the President rejected the resignation of Mariano Laurel from the Board of Directors of the Philippine National Bank.

Other callers of the President included Rep. Angel Castaño of Manila and the members of the Commission on Elections.

THE President in his conference with members of the Commission on Elections discussed ways and means of insuring the holding of clean, free, and honest elections.

The President and the commissioners agreed that government agencies connected with the holding of elections, such as the Constabulary and the Department of Education, send representatives to confer soon with the members of the Commission on Elections on the implementation of the President's objective of seeing to it that the coming elections be held clean, free, and honest.

Present at the conference with the President held at the Malacañang music room were Domingo Imperial, chairman, and Gaudencio Garcia and Sixto Brillantes, members.

In the course of the conference, the question of the award for the manufacture of ballot boxes as reported in the newspapers, was taken up.

The commissioners denied all charges of discrimination and other alleged anomalies aired in the newspapers in connection with the ballot boxes award. As a matter of fact, the commissioners told the President that they would seek the vindication of their honor through the courts.

In view of this information given him, the President deemed it unnecessary to take further action on the case.

THE President today directed Acting Foreign Affairs Secretary Raul S. Manglapus to take up with the United States Embassy the expeditious sending to the Philippines of necessary equipment to detect the possibility of any nuclear fallout in this area. The President's directive was a purely precautionary measure.

Reports reaching Malacañang have not confirmed the presence in the Philippines of nuclear fallouts. However, the President said today Filipino scientists should be fully prepared to detect such fallouts if they should ever appear in the country.

According to the Civil Defense Administration, all provincial rain water samples so far tested for possible nuclear fallouts, have revealed negative findings.

FRESHENED by a day's rest after a gruelling political drive to Albay and Sorsogon, President Garcia enplaned this afternoon for Masbate.

The President was accompanied by Sen. Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez, Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, SWA Administrator Amparo Villamor, Baguio City Mayor Alfonso Tabora, and Benjamin Estrella, NAMARCO general manager.

The trip was marred by a walkout of Malacañang reporters who refused to join the presidential entourage in protest against what they said was a "shabby treatment" accorded them by presidential aides in the Bicol region.

Apprised of the matter before his departure, President Garcia pointed out he would see to it that the incident would not be repeated.

Newsmen said they will join President Garcia's trip to Nueva Vizcaya tomorrow.

The President took off at 1:30 p.m. and reached Masbate at 3:45 p.m. after a bumpy ride through inclement weather and cloudy skies.

The President was given a rousing reception at the Masbate airport by a large crowd headed by Gov. Jesus Almer and Rep. Mateo Pecson. President Garcia for the first time was "mobbed" by the crowd.

He conferred with national, provincial, and municipal officials and listened to their problems. At the same time these officials pledged to support his candidacy in the coming elections.

The President stayed at the residence of Mrs. Otila Vda. de Legaspi in Masbate. Mrs. Legaspi is a relative of the governor.

Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, the First Lady, accompanied the President to the airport.

When the presidential plane Pagasa was warming up, Secretary Moreno showed up at the Nichols Air Base and shouted to the pilots to allow him to board the aircraft Moreno had been previously reported missing aboard a Cessna plane.

IN the evening at a huge rally held at Masbate's Plaza Rizal the Chief Executive was lustily cheered as he reiterated his pledged to carry on the program of the Administration enunciated by the late President Magsaysay, particularly the upliftment of the people in the rural areas. He recalled that Masbate had always supported the Nacionalistas and expressed-hope this island province would continue to do so.

June 13.—PRESIDENT Garcia ordered the NARIC to dispatch rice to Masbate with the view to replenishing the island province, limited supply and lowering the price of this prime commodity in that area.

The President gave the order following his visit to the public market of Masbate capital this morning shortly before he boarded the PAF plane Pagasa for the return trip to Manila. On his way to the Masbate airport, after an overnight stay in the town, the Chief Executive dropped by the capital's market, where he found that rice was selling for as high as ₱1.50 a ganta.

The President also told the people of Masbate he would release the amount of ₱100,000 for the construction of a seawall in Masbate. This was due to representations made by Masbate Mayor Benjamin Magallanes, who informed the President that the town was being eaten up by the sea.

The Chief Executive was back in Manila about 10:45 a.m.

THE President this morning signed into law H. B. No. 7312, amending the law for charity sweepstakes races and lotteries.

Under the amended law, the general manager of the sweepstakes office shall be appointed by the Board of Directors and he can be removed or suspended only for cause as provided by law. He shall have the direction and control of the office in all matters which are not specifically reserved for action by the board.

This is interpreted to mean that the office of the general manager will be free from political interference.

Present at the signing in the bill were Executive Secretary Fortunate de Leon; Eugenio E. Santos, general manager; Dr. Luis Alandy, general field supervisor; and Fabio Yatco, secretary of the committee on races.

THE President also signed a proclamation declaring Wednesday, June 19, 1957, as a special public holiday. This year's June 19 celebration is the 96th birthday of Jose Rizal.

In his proclamation the President said it was desirable that the people be afforded full opportunity to celebrate the day with appropriated ceremonies in keeping with Rizal's ideals.

AFTER lunch President and Mrs. Garcia motored to the International Airport to join in the reception for the remains of Mrs. Corazon Locsin-Montelibano, wife of the former NEC Chairman Alfredo Montelibano, which arrived from Honolulu. It was transferred to a plane for Bacolod City. The President and the First Lady were accompanied by Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff.

From the airport the President motored to the residence of the widow of the late Chief Justice Ramon Avanceña to extend personally his condolences. The President had earlier wired a message of condolence in which he had said that the late jurist had helped "enrich in no small measure Philippine legal jurisprudence." The President added that Avanceña's official behavior was of a type worthy of emulation by all public servants."

President Garcia expressed confidence this afternoon he could still prevail on Sen, Gil J. Puyat to withdraw and allow him to run unopposed for the Nacionalista presidential nomination.

Puyat has remained steadfast in his decision to contest the party nomination with the President, following the withdrawals made by Sens. Jose P. Laurel and Quintin Paredes.

But the Chief Executive told his-press conference in Malacañang this afternoon that he had a "formula" with which he/could convince the Pampanga senator to retire from the presidential race in his favor.

Withholding further comment, he said, "I am .not in a position to reveal what, that formula is at the moment."

However, by way of comment on the Batangas senator's latest statement that he has not counted himself out of the race, the President said he even called Laurel by telephone yesterday to thank him for his withdrawal and "Laurel acknowledged my gratitude."

The President was referring to a published report yesterday which quoted a spokesman of the Laurel, "family council" as announcing the the senator's withdrawal to allow his son, Speaker Laurel, Jr., to seek the NP nomination.

After reading the report, the President indicated he telephoned Laurel to express his gratitude for withdrawing in his favor.

At the same time, the Chief Executive denied he has picked the Speaker as his running mate in the coming presidential elections.

"My position is clear on that matter," the President said, "and, as I have already stated, the question of the vice-presidency should be left to the convention to decide."

He said he could not deviate from the usual procedure of allowing the party convention to select his teammate. He added he would accept whoever was chosen by the convention.

The President also said he was "happy" over Sen. Paredes' announcement that he had given up his presidential bid, and expressed his gratitude to the Abra senator.

June 14.—PRESIDENT Garcia today received the first public pledge of support from Sen. Quintin Paredes, who sounded a general appeal to his political leaders and admirers in the Cagayan Valley to rally behind the Chief Executive in the forthcoming November elections.

At a mammoth rally held in Solano, Nueva Vizcaya, this noon, Sen. Paredes who had accompanied the President in a flying visit to that province today, said he had withdrawn his candidacy in favor of President Garcia because he thought that the latter who was already in office would be more in a position to help the country than himself, who would still be starting if elected President.

The Abra senator, who spoke extemporaneously in Ilocano, started his speech by saying he had readily accepted the invitation of President Garcia to accompany him in the trip to Nueva Vizcaya because of his desire to explain to the people in the North why he had decided to withdraw from the presidential race. He urged his followers to give President Garcia a full term within which to carry out the good plans he had for the country, particularly that of continuing the program of the late President Magsaysay.

Other speakers were Govs. Jose Espino of Nueva Vizcaya, Amado Aleta of Nueva Ecija, and Mariano Tajonera of Mindoro Occidental, who all assured the Chief Executive of overwhelming victory in their respective provinces in the November, elections.

In speeches delivered at Bagabag and later at Solano, Nueva Vizcaya, the President, in turn, thanked the people for the enthusiastic reception accorded him and his party. He reiterated his pledge to keep building feeder roads, irrigation systems, schoolhouses, artesian wells, waterworks and other public, improvements, especially in the rural areas.

Accompanied by Sen. Paredes, Rep. Leonardo Perez, Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao, Acting Health Secretary Rafael Tumbokon, Hospitals Director Tranquilino Elicaño, and Gov. Tajonera, the President arrived at the Bagabag airport in Nueva Vizcaya aboard the PAF plane Pagasa after more than one hour's trip from Manila.

On hand to welcome the presidential party was a large delegation of local officials headed by Gov. Espino, Board Members Alejandro Silapan, Eficio Acosta, and mayors;

Then, at the head of a long motorcade, the President proceeded to Bayombong, making stops at Bagabag and Solano where public rallies were held and where he inaugurated the Magsaysay Highway, the Magsaysay Horseshoe Drive, and the ₱2 million grain elevator of the Nueva Vizcaya Federation of the EACOMAs.

At Solano the President also laid the cornerstone of a new municipal hall and stood sponsors at the christening of Baby Josephine Espino, daughter of the governor. Other sponsors were Sen. Paredes, Secretary Balao, Judge Jose R. de Venecia, fiscal Juari Aquino, and Engineer Julio Tongson.

The President and his party had lunch at 1:30 p.m. at the country home of Gov. Espino in barrio Sinafal, Solano. In the afternoon, after visiting the provincial hospital, the St. Mary's College, the capitol, and other public buildings at Bayombong, the President took off at 5:30 p.m. at the Bagabag airport, Arriving in Manila about 7 p.m.

Those who saw the President off at the Nueva Vizcaya airfield included municipal mayors headed by the president of the Nueva Vizcaya mayors league, who presented him with a resolution pledging their support in the coming elections.

PRESIDENT Garcia said today he will consult with the Cabinet on the fourpoint Japanese demands for "most-favored-nation" treatment of its nationals in doing business with the Philippines.

He told newsmen at Bagabag, Nueva Vizcaya, that he had decided to take up the Japanese demands at the Cabinet meeting on June 26 owing to unofficial reports that Japan had poised retaliatory measures against the Philippines for allegedly "dilly-dallying" in current negotiations for a trade treaty.

However, President Garcia said that the Japanese charge d'affaires here had scotched the persistent dispatches from Tokyo on the alleged reprisals.

President Garcia also said that he plans to call his Cabinet to a meeting this morning. He had not met the Cabinet this week as he was in Masbate last Wednesday.

During an impromptu press conference with newsmen who accompanied him, the President also:

1. Said that he will not seek a reconsideration of the Cabinet decision opening public schools on June 10, despite reports that 12 Bohol school children died of relapses shortly after attending classes;
2. Called former Speaker Jose Yulo Liberal Party presidential aspirant, as a "spokesman of America;"

3. Disclosed he jestingly made overtures with Sen. Claro M. Recto at their chance meeting at the airport last Thursday to withdraw in his favor for the NP presidential nomination;
4. Announced the extension of the railroad lines to Aparri, Cagayan passing through Nueva Vizcaya and Isabela;
5. Said Sen. Quintin Paredes, who had withdrawn in his-favor, would “make a good vice-presidential running mate,” but that he would prefer to leave the matter up to the NP convention to decide; and
6. Hinted he might ask the Constabulary to police the elections, but he might dispense with the services of the ROTC cadets.

June 15.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning said he would go hard on all hoarders of prime commodities whose prices have been jacked-up and would see to it that those guilty of hoarding and profiteering get the full penalty of the law.

The President added that he was set to adopt strong measures in order to protect consumers against the unreasonable spiralling of prices of essential articles.

President Garcia today called a special Cabinet meeting jointly with officials having to do with implementing economic policies to be held at 5 p.m. Monday at the Malacañang Council of State room.

At the Cabinet meeting the President will discuss the adoption of stern measures to prevent hoarding of, and profiteering on, prime articles such as rice, corn, and sugar. The Chief Executive said he could not see justification for the jacked-up prices, for instance, of sugar of which there is an abundant local supply.

The President will also reconcile conflicting views of officials in charge of implementing economic policies and soon thereafter lay down the line to be followed after a thorough discussion of the subject matter.

The Cabinet will also take up the most-favored-nation clause relation of the proposed trade agreement between the Philippines and; Japan. The purely trade aspects of the agreement will be left for the technical panels to discuss.

President Garcia today ordered the lifting of Constabulary control over the towns of Mariveles, Bacaan, and of Naic, Cavite.

The President gave the order upon recommendation of Brig. Gen. Manuel Cabal, PC chief; Govs. Delfin N. Montano of Cavite and Emilio Naval of Bataan; and Lt. Col. Laureano Marana and Maj. Simplicio Cristobal, PC provincial commanders, respectively, of the two provinces.

THE President this day directed the NARRA to attend to the immediate needs of government settlers in Masbate who were reportedly suffering from food shortage due to crop failure in their farms last planting season.

The President gave the directive following receipt of a petition from the settlers whom he recently visited in Masbate, informing him of some of the pressing problems in the settlement. After going over the petition, the President ordered George U. Alba, NARRA assistant general manager:

- (1) To continue rice rations for those settlers urgently in need until after the next harvest;
- (2) To provide materials for the construction of a two-room school-house in the settlement;
- (3) To dispatch additional seed palay to the settlers this planting season;
- (4) To purchase eight carabaos so as to provide all settlers with work animals;

(5) To coordinate with the Bureau of Lands with the view to expediting investigation and settlement of existing land conflicts affecting the settlement area; and

(6) To proceed to the settlement to look into other problems and other needs of the settlers.

The Chief Executive was informed that school facilities available in the area were not adequate to meet the requirements of the settlers' children. In ordering that materials be provided for a two-room schoolhouse, he appealed to the settlers that they provide the necessary labor as the government had very limited funds for the purpose.

The President was also informed that owing to the dry spell and the late rains, seed palay previously provided the settler-farmers did not germinate well. Aside from sending additional seed palay, the Chief Executive instructed Alba to provide coconut seedlings for permanent crop planting which is said to be highly suitable for the soil in the settlement area.

President Garcia said that he would request relief agencies to allocate clothing donations for the needy in the Masbate settlement project.

THE President this morning received at his study room members of the Cavite Mayors' League who pledged their support to his election bid.

Headed by Bacoor Mayor Benigno E. Guinto, the mayors presented a resolution which stated their "unqualified support" for the Chief Executive's election bid.

Then the President received American insurance men who consulted him on legislative matters affecting their business. Accompanied by Edward M. Milans, commercial attache of the U. S. Embassy, the group was composed of Robert A. Warren, Insurance Company of North America; Arthur Henderson, president, American Underwriters for the Philippines, Inc.; Victor Bello, American Farm Insurance Association; and Counsellor Charles Hodge of the U. S. Embassy.

Rep. Miguel Cuenco of Cebu accompanied three prominent educators, namely, Chancellor Jose M. Hernandez, Dr. Norberto de Ramos, and Francisco Cuerva, who presented a petition signed by prominent citizens supporting the approval of a bill regarding the teaching of additional Spanish units in all colleges and universities. After hearing their oral arguments, the President told the group that he would study the matter.

Then the President received Ilocos Sur Gov. Pedro Singson Reyes, who accompanied town officials of Cervantes, Ilocos Sur. The group, aside from asking funds for public works improvement, also requested the President's intervention regarding the boundary controversy in that area.

The President also received J. N. Morales, president of a corporation bearing that name, who, accompanied officials of the company. They presented a scroll expressing their support of the Administration's economic policies.

The President received callers until 1:30 p.m.

SEVENTEEN agreements were signed this afternoon by President Garcia, representing the Philippine Government, and Stanley Gilbert, manager, Philippine Office of Alien Property, covering the transfer to the Philippine Government of most of the property remaining in the custody of the Philippine Office of Alien Property of the U.S. Department of Justice. U.S. Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen witnessed the signing of the agreements.

The property transfer marks the closing phase of a program begun almost two years ago, based on an agreement between the two governments, providing that property of enemy aliens in the Philippines vested in the Alien Property Custodian, was to be administered for the benefit of the Philippine Government, and that the property or the proceeds thereof were to be transferred to the Philippine Government as rapidly as claims were disposed of, litigation concluded, and administrative costs paid. Numerous previous transfers of property and cash have been made throughout the period of operation of this program.

Property transferred today includes 10,666,666 shares of Lepanto Consolidated Mining Co., bonds, interest in the salvage value of 136 ships, a tract of land for a railroad line with estimated area of more than 1,000,000 square meters, residential and commercial lands, and more than 1,800 items of personal property.

In his remarks regarding the transfer, Ambassador Bohlen praised the smoothness and efficiency with which the complex task has been done, calling it “an example of the cooperation which has characterized the relations between our two governments.”

The American Ambassador added that although the property transferred was of great value, the principle of cooperation under which the program had been carried out was of even more importance. He said: “It shows what can be done when two governments undertake to solve a problem so complex, in a spirit of mutual goodwill.”

President Garcia in response said that the transfer was made possible “only by the existence of the closest ties of friendship and of mutual interest and trust which bind our two nations together whether in times of war or of peace.”

Concluding, President Garcia said that the spirit of goodwill which gave rise to the agreements was even of greater importance to the Philippines than the properties transferred, for “it testifies in no small measure to the deep and abiding interest which the government and people of the United States feel towards the welfare and prosperity of the Filipino people.”

The Philippine Office of Alien Property will be closed on June 30, 1957, and the small amount of work remaining to be done will be handled from the Office of Alien Property, Washington, D.C. Two Manila attorneys, Juan T. Santos and Lino M. Patajo, will continue to represent the U.S. attorney general in litigations still pending in the Philippines. After litigation and claims are disposed of, further transfers will be made.

Among other officials present at the ceremonies were Acting Foreign Affairs Secretary Raul S. Manglapus, Minister Tomas de Castro, Counsellor Juan M. Arreglado, Assistant Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, Appointments Secretary Rolando Kagaoan, Maj. Jose Estrella, Protocol Chief Jose Estrada, Protocol Officer Monico Vicente, Chief of Treaty Division, Enrique Bautista, and Board of Liquidators officials Eladio E. Enriquez, Mariano V. Ruiz, and Bartolome Fernandez.

Minister Horace Smith, Counsellor William Walker, Stanley Gilbert, and Richard Ely of the American Embassy were also present.

After the signing of the documents, Mr. Gilbert handed to President Garcia the certificates of the shares of stock of the Lepanto Consolidated Mining Co.

The ceremonies were held at the Malacañang Council of State room from 5:10 p.m. to 6 p.m.

June 16.— AFTER breakfast with the First Lady in Malacañang, the President motored to Pier 5 and hoarded the yacht Santa Maria.

While the President was in his yacht, the First Lady proceeded to Fulgueras, Tondo, where she was guest of honor at the annual fiesta of that district.

President Garcia tackled today the controversial Senate Bill No. 167. The President stayed aboard the Santa Maria and studied carefully the controversial bill.

The President denied reports: from opponents of the bill that he had already made up his mind to return the measure to Congress. He was alone as he went over the merits of the measure.

June 17.—UPON arrival at 9 a.m. this day in Malacañang from the yacht Sta. Maria, where he had worked on state matters the whole day yesterday, the President directly proceeded to the Palace porch, where he had breakfast with provincial officials of Agusan.

Discussed at the breakfast were vital public improvements of Agusan. Among those present during the breakfast were Gov. Felisberto Dagani, Eep. Guillermo Sanchez, and Democrito O. Plaza. Also present were civic leaders from Butuan City.

President Garcia this morning received the letter of credence of Morio Yukawa, the new Japanese ambassador to the Philippines, in a ceremony held at Malacañang.

In presenting his letter of credence, the new Japanese envoy said that the Japanese Emperor had always in mind the vital importance of promoting friendly relations between the Philippines and Japan. He added that the Japanese emperor had "commanded me especially to serve for such end."

In his responses the President assured Ambassador Yukawa the full cooperation of the Philippine Government "to insure the success of your mission for the benefit of our two peoples."

Arriving at Malacañang grounds at 10:30 a.m., Ambassador Yukawa was given military honors by a unit of Company "C" of the Presidential Guards Battalion.

After presenting his credentials, the new Japanese ambassador was introduced by Acting Foreign Affairs Secretary Raul S. Manglapus to Filipino officials who were present during the ceremony; namely, Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, Acting Education Secretary Martin Aguilar, Jr., Acting Labor Secretary Agapito Braganza, Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao, NEC Presiding Officer Eduardo Romualdez, Executive Secretary Forturiato de Leon, Acting Economic Coordination Administrator Juan Concon, Budget

After receiving Ambassador Morio Yukawa, the new Japanese envoy to the Philippines, the President received at his study room heads of different missions from Spanish-speaking countries who donated books written in Spanish by noted authors of their respective countries, for the personal library of the Chief Executive.

Accompanied by Foreign Affairs Protocol Chief Jose Estrada, the group was composed of Spanish Ambassador Francisco Javier Conde, Argentine Minister Rogelio Tristany, and Consuls Jose del Prado, Ricardo Padilla, Pat Dayrit, and Eduardo Silva of Costa Rica, Ecuador, Honduras, and Nicaragua, respectively.

The Philippine National Soap Box Derby is being sponsored by local business firms and will be held in Quezon City July 13 and 14 this year.

In his proclamation the President said that, in the holding of the derby, the youth of the country would compete in the spirit of true sportsmanship in this race of hand-made gravity-propelled racers built by boys in accordance with official Soap Box Derby rules.

The President also said that this event would bring about a sense of comradeship among civic organizations, business houses, and individuals, "all working for the welfare of our youth, developing friendship, goodwill, and cooperation."

The proclamation also said that one of the principal purposes of the holding of the derby was to stimulate ingenuity and enterprise among the youth of the country,

THE Cabinet, in a five-hour meeting in the evening, shelved a four-point Japanese demand for "most-favored-nation" treatment of its nationals doing business in the Philippines and directed the PI panel to carry on its negotiations with its Japanese counterpart in drafting a trade agreement with Japan.

It was understood that the negotiations would skip the Japanese demands.

In shelving the four-point Japanese demands, the Cabinet pointed out that to adopt them in the proposed trade agreement would give it the character of a treaty. This treaty, it was added, would require Senate ratification.

During the special Cabinet meeting the President attempted in vain to reconcile the conflicting views of government economists in an effort to resolve their controversies.

President Garcia did not commit himself on the disputes between Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno and Arsenio J. Jison, president of the Philippine National Bank, but he virtually upheld the National Rice and Corn Corporation in its dispute with the Agricultural Credit and Cooperative Financing Administration.

A Malacañang spokesman said the President listened to the conflicting views of Cuaderno and Jison. However, the discussions were said to be "preliminary."

It was hinted that talks would be resumed some other time, before the President announces his decision.

A Malacañang spokesman said President Garcia decided to continue with the late President Magsaysay's policy in upholding the NARIC in its rice dispute with the ACCFA.

NARIC sources pointed out that the rice agency had always followed Magsaysay's rice policy which had been criticized by Col. Osmundo Monnoñedo, ACCFA administrator.

In upholding the "Magsaysay rice policy" the President said the NARIC should continue with its price of ₱.85 a ganta of the Macan No. 2 variety.

Mondoñedo had opposed the importation of the Super A-1 and its mixture with the Macan variety, as this competes heavily with the products of the local farmers.

The President, however, told Mondoñedo that he would soon adopt measures which would serve as incentives to rice producers to increase their output, despite the sale of the cheap Macan No. 2 variety.

Malacañang said the President counseled the government economist against carrying on their debates in the newspapers. He said the discussions should be confined within board meetings in order not to affect price stability of prime commodities.

The President had previously traced the artificial increase in the price of prime commodities to the long drawn debates among government economists.

In announcing the discussions between Cuaderno and Jison, Malacañang said the President asked them to explain their views.

Cuaderno pointed out that he had defended the actions of the Central Bank.

Jison, on other hand, said that he had criticized the CB policies which had failed to improve the dollar reserves of the country despite eight years of exchange controls.

Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, and Commerce Undersecretary Perfecto Laguio joined the discussions.

The discussions touched on exchange controls, bond issues, public borrowing, and the public development program.

Aytona told newsmen this evening he did not side with anybody but defended the administration policy as contained in the President's budget message to Congress.

President Garcia called members of Congress to a special meeting to study the Japanese demands for favorable treatment of its nationals engaged in business in the country.

He had also invited Cuaderno, Jison, Mondoñedo, Gov. Juan O. Chioco, chairman of the NARIC board of directors, and Vicente R. Concepcion, acting general manager of the rice agency.

The meeting started at 5:30 p.m. and broke up shortly before 11 o'clock in the evening.

THE President adjourned the Cabinet meeting as he was scheduled to go to the airport to meet his daughter, Linda, and his son-in-law, Fernando Campos, who returned from a two-week honeymoon to Hongkong and Japan.

June 18.—PRESIDENT Garcia was lustily cheered by the people of Capiz as he reiterated his determination to carry out the policies of the Nacionalista administration auspiciously started by the late President Magsaysay.

In speeches delivered at the Roxas City rally at noon and in President Roxas town in the afternoon, the President was roundly applauded as he enumerated the details of the Nacionalista program which he said he intended to continue to a happy conclusion.

The President arrived at the Loctugan airfield at 9:35 a.m. today. He was met by a large crowd headed by Govs. Jose Dinglasan of Capiz and Mariano Peñaflorida of Iloilo.

From the airport the President proceeded to the church of Roxas City for the Te Deum sung by the Vicar general of Capiz diocese. Afterwards, the President laid the cornerstone of the projected ₱650,000 airfield, visited the provincial hospital, and then spoke at the rally held at the public plaza which lasted until 1:30 p.m.

The President then motored to Rep. Carmen Dinglasan-Consing's residence in Hacienda Esperanza for lunch, and later conferred with local officials.

The President took off at 6 p.m. for Manila under a driving rain. The newsmen's plane was unable to take off owing to engine trouble.

June 19.—THIS morning the President received at his study room Leon Chatelain, Jr., president of the American Institute of Architects, who paid a courtesy call;

Mr. Chatelain is guest of the Philippine Institute of Architects. He was accompanied to Malacañang by officers of the PIA, including Francisco V. Fajardo, president, and Edmundo Lucero, Jose Ma. Zaragoza, and Mr. and Mrs. Conrado Espejo. Mrs. Chatelain was also present during the call.

Then the President received officers and members of the Knights of Rizal who paid a courtesy call in connection with the 96th birthday celebration of the national hero.

Headed by H. B. Reyes, supreme commander of the Knights of Rizal, the group thanked the Chief Executive for signing Proclamation No. 418, authorizing the lease of a lot for the use of their organization.

AFTERWARDS the President motored to the Independence Memorial Grandstand on the Luneta, where he delivered the main speech on Rizal's 96th birthday anniversary.

In his speech, the President said Rizal was entitled to be recognized by all the world as the father of Asian nationalism. The program, of which the President was the guest speaker, was sponsored by the National Youth Congress of the Philippines.

President Garcia in his speech advocated a new and constructive approach to Dr. Jose Rizal through a greater and deeper understanding of his life and work in order to "free him at last from the perennial controversies to which we have unwittingly subjected his memory, and establish him in his final exalted place, not only in our history but also in the history of all mankind."

In advocating a new and constructive approach to Rizal, the President said that we should adjust our attitude to Rizal by:

- (a) Adopting a more human and rational approach to the national hero;
- (b) Understanding the martyr's thoughts and ideas in their true historical contexts; and

(c) Evaluating his ideals and deeds in terms of their positive and significant consequences to the history of humanity.

The President was given the Distinguished Order of Rizal medal by the National Youth Congress of the Philippines for his distinguished public service and demonstrated leadership. The award was conferred on the President by Dr. Dominador S. la Madrid and Dr. Sofia Prudenciado, president and vice-president, respectively, of the youth congress.

The President also awarded medals to five young people for youth leadership. The awardees were Miss Corazon Yamzon of Negros Occidental, Antonio Tupaz of Agusan, Luis Villafuerte of Camarines Sur, Augusto Abogado of Samar, and Datu Conte Mangelen of Cotabato.

Accompanied by his aide, Maj. Jose Estrella, the President arrived at the grandstand about 9:30 a.m. The President proceeded to the platform where he was flanked by Executive Secretary Fortunate de Leon, Indian Minister Maj. Gen. Mahindra Chopra, Civil Defense Administrator Alfredo Eugenio, Dr. La Madrid, and Dr. Prudenciado.

IN the afternoon the President signed into law House Bill No. 6584, outlawing the Communist Party of the Philippines.

The signing of the bill took place at impressive ceremonies at the Malacañang social hall, attended by sponsors of the bill and members of both Chambers of Congress headed by Rep. Joaquin Rocas of Manila and Sen. Emmanuel Pelaez, principal sponsors of the bill in the House and the Senate, respectively, Cabinet members, members of the diplomatic corps headed by Papal Nuncio Egidio Vagnozzi, defense and Armed Forces officials headed by Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao and Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff, and various civic organizations identified against communism.

After signing the bill, the President in a prepared statement said that the passage of the law “reaffirms the position which our government has taken, and will take, vis-a-vis communism: a firm, unequivocal, and uncompromising stand against freedom’s most odious and implacable foe.”

“With this law,” the President said, “our people have not only officially made the fight against communism a matter of national policy but we have also acquired a potent weapon in the fight against subversion.”

He added: “In this vigorous and reasoned counter-offensive to communist aggression, I feel that we are serving the cause of the Free World as well as our own best interests”

However, the President emphasized that it was to the credit of the champions of civil rights in Congress that necessary safeguards were made such that the legitimate exercise of citizens of their rights should remain inviolate. He pointed out that “What the present law punishes is not dissent or heresy but subversion and conspiracy.”

The President said further: “I assure lovers of freedom and democracy’s friends everywhere that during my incumbency as President of the Republic of the Philippines, I shall not only see to it that the anti-communist program of my illustrious predecessor, Ramon Magsaysay, will remain intact, but I shall also push it through with the same dedication and with unrelenting vigor.”

The law, known as the Anti-Subversion Act, declares the Communist Party of the Philippines as an organized conspiracy to overthrow the government of the Republic for the purpose of establishing a totalitarian regime and placing the government under the control and domination of an alien power.

Under this Act, the term “Communist Party of the Philippines” shall mean and include the Communist Party and its military arm, the Hukbalahaps, and any successors of such organizations.

The Act provides that whoever knowingly, willfully, and by overt acts, affiliates himself with, becomes, or remains a member of the Communist Party, shall be punished by the penalty of arresto mayor and shall be disqualified permanently from holding public office and from exercising the right to vote.

In case of a second conviction, the principal penalty shall be prision correccional, and in all subsequent convictions the penalty of prision mayor shall be imposed; any alien convicted shall be deported immediately after serving his sentence.

The law further provides that if such member is an officer or a ranking leader of the Communist Party, or if such member takes up arms against the government, he shall be punished by prision mayor to death with all the necessary penalties provided therefor in the Revised Penal Code,

It is further provided that one who conspired with any other person to overthrow the government by force, violence, deceit, subversion, or other illegal means, for the purpose of placing such government or political subdivision under the control and domination of any alien power, shall be punished by prision correccional to prision mayor with all the necessary penalties provided therefor.

The President signed five copies of the bill, each time with different groups: first, with the sponsors of the bill and with members of both Chambers of Congress: second, with the foreign diplomatic corps which was in full attendance; third, with the officials of the Department of National Defense and the Armed Forces; fourth, with Cabinet members; and fifth, with different civic organizations known for their anti-communist stand.

Among the solons present were Sens. Pelaez, Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez and Pedro Sabido; Speaker Protempore Daniel Z. Romualdez; House Majority Floor Leader Arturo M. Tolentino, Reps. Roces of Manila, Erasmo Cruz of Bulacan, Celestino Juan of Nueva Ecija, and Delfin Albano of Isabela, Defense Undersecretary Jose M. Crisol, who is one of the outspoken spokesmen against communism, was present. Govs. Alejo Santos of Bulacan and Amado Aleta of Nueva Ecija were also present.

President Garcia this afternoon, before signing the Anti-Communist bill, directed Land Tenure Administration Chairman Manuel Castañeda to speed up the implementation of the land tenure law in order to bring to full realization the late President Magsaysay's land reform program.

The President gave this directive in the course of the call of land tenure administration officials who informed the President of the progress of the work of their office. Other officials with Castañeda were Commissioners Julian de Vera and Numeriano Fabie.

In the course of their call Castañeda and the two commissioners urged the President to veto Senate Bill 644. They said that the bill would give preference to leasees instead of actual occupants of the land and this would retard the progress of the land program of the administration.

The President said that he would study the matter carefully.

June 20. —PRESIDENT Garcia today mobilized three government agencies and the Philippine National Red Cross to send aid immediately to Cauayan, Isabela, which was razed by fire at 2 a.m. this day.

On board the Navy speedboat Alert, where he is studying the bills passed by Congress in the recent regular session, the President was informed by the Cauayan mayor of the fire. The town mayor estimated the damage at ₱1 million.

The President ordered the Social Welfare Administration, the NARIC, and the PNRC to dispatch aid to the fire victims immediately. He directed the Department of Health to send medical teams to Cauayan to look after the health conditions there.

The President also directed Brig. Gen. Manuel Cabal, Constabulary chief, to fly to the fire area and report immediately on the extent of the damage.

THE President stayed aboard the Alert this morning and later moved to the yacht Sta. Maria, where he busied himself going over the bills passed by the Congress waiting for his final action. In order that he could concentrate on the study of the bills, he did not receive any callers the whole day.

The President this day signed around 150 minor bills which are of local interest; such as, those changing the names of towns and barrios or creating new barrios from sitios. With the President the whole day were Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon, Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable, Appointments Secretary Rolando Kagawan, and Maj. Jose Estrella.

Members of the interdepartmental committee chairmanned by Justice Undersecretary Jesus Barrera boarded the Sta. Maria about noon time and discussed bills which needed further study before final action of the President. The committee used the ship's saloon for their workshop.

Simultaneously, the President called for ACCFA Administrator Osmundo Mondoñedo to explain the latter's resigning anew as ACCFA chief.

A Malacañang spokesman said that the Mondoñedo resignation had been wired from Cotabato, and had been based on a press statement attributed to Rep. Bartolome Cabangbang of Bohol, charging Mondoñedo with disloyalty to the Administration.

The spokesman underscored the fact that Rep. Cabangbang had not been authorized to issue such a statement. The truth of the matter, the spokesman continued, is that the ACCFA has been and continues to be one of the main concerns of President Garcia.

The spokesman recalled that, only recently, the President had directed the release of ₱7,500,000 for the ACCFA's purchase of fertilizers as assistance to farmers.

On three occasions, the spokesman added, the President had personally asked Congress leaders to approve in toto the ACCFA's fiscal needs of ₱10 million. This sum was approved by the Congress and will be due for release after July 1.

The spokesman pointed out that as of October 11, 1956, the total budgetary releases to the ACCFA had already amounted to ₱30 million. In addition, about ₱39,600,000 in the form of loans had been released to the ACCFA.

The late President Magsaysay had asked Congress for ₱10 million from the general funds for the ACCFA in 1955, and a similar amount for the next year. The spokesman said that President Magsaysay's program for the ACCFA was being implemented when President Garcia personally indorsed this financial program.

Congressional support was also sought by the President for two other government corporations; namely, the NARIC and the NAMARCO, the spokesman said.

The first government corporation visited by President Garcia when he took over the reins of government-was the ACCFA, the spokesman recalled.

June 21.—PRESIDENT Garcia today continued going over pending bills in an effort to meet the deadline at midnight tomorrow for his action on them.

The President kept himself secluded aboard the presidential yacht Santa Maria as he waded through hundreds of measures approved in the fourth and last session of the Third Congress.

A Malacañang spokesman said the President stayed up to midnight, mulling over the bills.

He woke up early and had his breakfast at 7:30 a.m. He immediately plunged into work, assisted by Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon and Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable.

THE President shied away from callers in order that he may not be disturbed. Delegations were reported to have sought audience with the President today. They went to Malacañang, to the presidential landing at the Luneta, and at Pier 5 in an effort to board the Santa Maria.

The President often stayed in his cabin to have privacy as he went over the bills. He had lunch at 1 p.m.

After a short nap, the President resumed his study of the bills. At 4 o'clock he had merienda consisting of a cup of coffee and camote fritters.

The President did not observe any let-up in his cramming. He ate supper at 9 p.m. and stayed up until past midnight.

THIS morning the President signed into law 50 bills passed in the recent regular session of Congress.

Among the 50 bills signed by the President on board the presidential yacht Sta. Maria were:

- (1) H. B. No. 2156, increasing the number of letter carriers in Manila by 200 and granting them an extra allowance of ₱1.00 a day each;
- (2) H. B. No. 2742, requiring the printing and issue of semi-postal stamps for raising funds for the Philippine Tuberculosis Society; and
- (3) H. B. 4407, appropriating the amount of ₱10,000 for expenses in locating the remains of the late Chief Justice Jose Abad Santos in Mindanao and transferring the same to Pampanga or any other place the family of the late Chief Justice may decide for enshrinement.

According to H. B. No. 2742, the proceeds from the sale of the semi-postal stamps will be deposited in the national treasury as a special fund for the Philippine Tuberculosis Society. The Director of Posts was directed by the new law to order such semi-postal stamps of different dominations yearly from the period August 19 to September 30.

PRESIDENT Garcia tonight signed Senate Bill No. 64., extending the benefit of the five-day, 40-hour, a week of labor to government employees. A similar bill had been presented in Congress some four years ago. However, it did not go through despite enthusiastic endorsements of government employees. Resolution and endorsements had unanimously been passed by the annual conventions of Philippine Government Employees Association (PGEA) in 1950 and 1952.

The effectivity of the new law and the office hours will be fixed by the President in an executive order in accordance with the law's provisions. The executive order will be issued by the President later.

Other bills signed into law by the President tonight were:

(1) H. B. 5042, providing for the re-establishment and rehabilitation of the railroad line from Plandel, Bulacan, to Cabanatuan, Nueva Ecija, and appropriating ₱3,800,000 for the purpose;

(2) H. B. 5043, increasing the annual vacation leaves of judges of courts of first instance from one to two months; and

(3) H. B. No. 6844, establishing a school of nursing in the provincial hospital of Rizal and authorizing an appropriation of ₱100,000 for the purpose.

The President, as of this writing, has signed about 200 bills. A total of 493 bills were passed by the Congress in its recent regular session. The President has not acted yet on 293 bills. Deadline for him is midnight tomorrow.

With him were Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable, Malacañang Technical Assistant Sofronio Quimson, Gov. Juan Pajo of Bohol, Commodore Jose Francisco, Navy chief, and Col. Nicanor Jimenez.

President Garcia vetoed in the evening Senate Bill. 167 with a three-page explanation to Congress of what he said was one “of the most momentous decisions in my life.”

“I cannot affix my signature to a legislative proposition that will make the rich richer and the poor poorer,” President Garcia said as he tried to justify his action in disapproving the controversial bill.

At the same time, the President pledged to create a committee of responsible officials and leaders in business “to study ways and means of attaining the objective of the said bill in a manner generally beneficial to our national economy.”

THE President returned to Malacañang this afternoon and intended to stay at the Palace to pass upon pending bills until midnight today when the deadline for his action on them would expire.

However, he rushed back to the presidential yacht Santa Maria after legislators and other lobbyists besieged him with pleas for approval of their pet measures.

Malacañang said that the President, until presstime this morning, was still going over most of the vital measures, including the public works measure, the ₱1.1 billion budget, and the controversial Spanish bill.

It was learned that the President’s action on some 100 bills would not be known until tomorrow morning.

However, a Malacañang spokesman reported that the President had signed into law House bill No. 4410, providing for the allocation, re-allocation, and administration of the absolute quota on sugar.

This measure provides for annual allocation of quotas on unrefined sugar.

THE President also signed H. B. 698, which appropriated ₱100,000 for Mrs. Ramon Magsaysay as grant to the widow of the late President. The amount is tax-exempt.

Among other bills signed today were:

1. H. B. 6753 and S. B. 520, creating the Reparations Commission and prescribing the national policy in the procurement and use of such payment from Japan;

2. A bill creating an independent electoral tribunal to decide poll protests involving presidential and vice-presidential elections;
3. H. B. 6175, exempting from the payment of amusement taxes all boxing exhibitions where a world championship is at stake if one of the contenders is a Filipino;
4. S. B. 482, increasing the penalty for the crime of reckless imprudence;
5. S. B. 625, known as the Social Security Act, amending Republic Act 1.161; and
6. H. B. 6906, creating a body invested with the authority to prepare a complete program on atomic research.

The President also vetoed H. B. 5158, known as the Medical Act of 1957, which would transfer the power to appoint medical board examiners from the President to the commissioner of civil service.

President Garcia returned to Malacañang this afternoon and met newsmen who had asked for an audience in order that the Chief Executive may be able to explain his action on Senate Bill 167.

Several newsmen, the biggest number yet to gather for a presidential press conference, showed up at the meeting with the President.

Malacañang newsmen noted that there were retired American newsmen who had attended the press conference and kept applauding the Chief Executive for his action on Senate Bill 167.

There were also solons and governors who brought personally their bills for the signature of the President.

The President went down to the social hall of Malacañang after the press conference, where he met various delegations which marched to the Palace, urging approval of some bills.

Among the officials who accompanied delegations to Malacañang early in the evening were Reps. Celestino C. Juan of Nueva Ecija, Wenceslao, Rancap Lagumbay of Laguna, Vicente Peralta of Sorsogon, and Leon. Guinto, Jr., and Manuel Enverga of Quezon.

Asked by newsmen what he would do if proponents of Senate Bill 167 fought him in the elections, the President replied "It's up to them to do what they want."

He pointed out that the Senate bill, which would relax control of imports, has "laudable purposes."

But, he added, that after a study of the arguments of those in favor and those against the measure, "I came to the conclusion that Senate Bill No. 167 will not lead us to the attainment of its high objectives."

He said Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez and Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno, whom he had relied upon mainly in vetoing the bill, told him that "approximately $128 million will be removed from the control and disposition of the CB."

Newsmen pointed out that 75 congressmen had endorsed the measure.

The President said, "I am aware of what I have done."

He dismissed any political significance of his action. He said Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez had urged veto of the measure.

He also recalled that Sen. Cipriano Primicias, sponsor of the bill, had changed his mind on the bill.

President Garcia continued, "I have sought the advice of our older statesmen, many of whom are members of the Council of State, our highest advisory body, members of the Cabinet, and the interdepartmental committee. An overwhelming majority of them recommended veto of this bill.

President Garcia also said yesterday he will veto partly the tariff and customs code.

After meeting large delegations who carried placards and urged approval of some bills, the Chief Executive retired to his bedroom, where he went over pending bills until midnight. However, before midnight, the President left for the Santa Maria, where he spent the night.

There were still a number of important measures awaiting the President's signature.

June 23.—EARLIER this morning the President heard mass at the Camp Murphy chapel. After mass he proceeded to the clubhouse, where top ranking Armed Forces officers gave a luncheon in his honor on the last day of their three-day conference. He was introduced to the conferees by Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao. Others present included Defense Undersecretary Jose M. Crisol and Lieut Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff.

In an address delivered before the annual conference of major AFP commanders and their staffs at the officers' clubhouse in Camp Murphy this noon, the President disclosed that he had approved and directed the prompt implementation of a plan for the activation of Headquarters, Philippine Army.

The Chief Executive exhorted the conferees to allow no let up in the fight against communism. He praised the achievements of the Armed Forces, particularly those in the field, for their successful efforts to secure the country against communist assaults.

He also counselled the Armed Forces to keep away from politics and to perform their tasks with a high sense of duty when called upon to assist the Commission on Elections.

Following his luncheon engagement, the President returned to an undisclosed place where he had sought refuge early this morning to rest after a hectic three days, trying to beat the deadline provided by law within which to act on bills.

THIS evening the President signed into law House Bill No. 3635, declaring obligatory the teaching of Spanish in all courses of public and private universities and colleges in the Philippines.

In approving the bill, the President pointed out that the measure did not seek to add 24 units of Spanish to the curriculum load of students but merely to increase the load by 12 units in a period of four years. Consequently, he said, the load increase amounts to only three units per academic year or one and one-half units per semester.

"There is every reason to believe that such an increase can easily be absorbed by students without seriously impairing their academic proficiency," the President said. "There is no need of sacrificing subjects of science or there need of prolonging the course by vocational subjects, nor is there need of prolonging the course by one semester. The additional units required by the act can very well be spread over four years."

"The purpose of this act is to enable our students to read in the original the literary works of our patriots like Rizal, Palma, and Apostol," the President added.

Among major administration measures signed by the Chief Executive before deadline were:

(1) H. B. No. 7133, otherwise known as the appropriation bill, providing for ₱639,063,711.00 for the expenditure of the National Government from July 1, 1957 to June 30, 1953;

(2) The Public Works bill;

(3) H. B. No. 5513, entitled “An Act to Revise and Codify the Tariff and Customs Laws of the Philippines.”

(4) H. B. No. 5914 and S. B. No. 483, exempting from payment of all taxes and duties all donations in any form and importations of articles which are donations to international civic organizations, religious, and charitable institutions, and providing penalties for violations thereof;

(5) H. B. No. 5323, entitled “The Philippine Coastwise Shipping Act of 1956,” appropriating ₱20 million to finance the local construction of coastwise vessels or watercrafts of not less than 100 gross tons, to be undertaken by the National Shipyards and Steel Corporation;

(6) H. B. No. 3268 and S. B. No. 596, “An Act Strengthening Health and Dental Services in the Rural Areas”, providing for ₱450,000 for additional dental units, and ₱1 million for the creation of additional rural health units;

(7) S. B. No. 589, “An Act Authorizing the Auditor General to Reorganize the General Auditing Office and for Other Purposes.”

PRESIDENT Garcia today ordered the deportation of four aliens convicted of various crimes ranging from illegal possession of opium to robbery.

Ordered deported through the recommendation of the Deportation Board were Yee Wing, Tiu Kian, Ang Seng Sek, and So Chong Tek.

June 24.—PRESIDENT Garcia was deeply touched by the enthusiastic reception accorded him on his whistle-stop tour of Quezon province today.

In speeches delivered in Tiaong, Agdanganan, Candelaria, Lucena, Unisan, Gumaca, and Lopez towns, the President thanked the people of Quezon who had turned out en masse and patiently awaited him for hours in the rain and under the heat of the noonday sun.

“I will remember this as long as I live,” he said. The spontaneous enthusiasm with which the people received him in all places he visited, was held significant as the province is generally regarded as Recto’s bailiwick.

Accompanied by Sen. Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez, Reps. Manuel Enverga, and Leon Guinto, Jr., of Quezon Wenceslao R. Lagumbay of, Laguna, and several governors, the President left the Paco railroad station in Manila by a special train at 5:30 a.m. today. The first stop was at San Pablo City where delegations headed by city officials came aboard the train to greet the Chief Executive. City Mayor Cipriano Colago said the people of his city did not know of the President’s visit, but he read about it only in the newspapers this morning.

At Tiaong, Quezon, Recto’s birthplace, the President was surprised to find a big crowd braving a drizzle which developed as the train pulled up at the station, located some two kilometers from the town proper. The people cheered heartily and waved “Elect Garcia” placards.

The presidential train which had been scheduled to reach Lopez about 12 noon was two hours late owing to numerous unscheduled stops. Moved by the warm enthusiasm shown by welcomers, the President made several barrio stops and addressed the people from the train’s rear end platform, or alighted to shake hands with rural folks.

In Lucena the President attended a Salve sung at the Cathedral and inaugurated the ₱35,000 nursing school built at the provincial hospital grounds.

At Gumaca the President was introduced by Mayor Mariano Tañada, who told the townspeople he might support President Garcia's election bid. Mayor Tañada is the brother of Sen. Tañada.

The President had lunch at 2 p.m. in the home of Lopez Mayor Gregorio Yumul, president of the Quezon Mayors' League. After a huge rally held at the Lopez town plaza and a conference with municipal mayors, the presidential train left Lopez for the return trip to Manila about 6 p.m. The Chief Executive was accompanied throughout the province by Gov. Leon Guinto, Sr., mayors, and other local officials, including Provincial Auditor Luis Lagdameo.

Malacañang today readied for the President's signature the draft of an executive order fixing the office hours to be observed by government employees in compliance with the provisions of the "five-day, 40-hour," week law.

Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon said that two sets of office schedules were readied for the President's final decision. One sets office hours from 8 a.m. to 12 noon, then 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. The other schedule fixes the working hours from 7:30 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. De Leon said that the President will make the final decision as to which office hours will be prescribed in the executive order.

Secretary De Leon added that the new office schedule, as provided for in the new law, will take effect on July 1, 1957, after signing by the President of the proposed executive order.

Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia headed an audience that attended a command performance of a play presented by the Philippine Mental Health Association entitled My Name is Legion at the Malacañang social hall this evening. Before the curtain rose, the First Lady gave a cocktail party at the Malacañang social hall, honoring the cast of the play and officers and members of the PMHA.

The guest list included members of the Cabinet, justices of the Supreme Court and of the Court of Appeals, heads of diplomatic missions, the Archbishop of Manila, heads of other high government officials

The President was originally scheduled to attend the performance, together with the First Lady, but he could not do so because of an inspection tour of Quezon province

June 25—PRESIDENT Garcia met with party leaders at a Malacañang breakfast conference this morning and the following points were agreed upon:

(1) That the previous ban on filling of important vacancies until after the November elections would be partially lifted. The conference agreed that pending vacancies would be filled where considerations of efficiency and public interest demand it. Among the important vacancies at present existing in the government are the secretaryship of labor and the secretaryship of education, as well as those of eight additional seats in the Municipal Board of Manila provided by legislation last year.

(2) That Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson will be invited to appear before the NP Executive Committee on Friday, June 28, to present whatever case he may have against attending this meeting.

(3) That the special committee under Sen. Jose P. Laurel created to study and make recommendations on NP intramural conflicts would tackle these problems immediately.

The Malacañang conference took place from 8:15 to 10 a.m. Present Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., Senate Majority Floor Leader Cipriano Primicias, Sen. Laurel, Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., Speaker Protempore Romualdez, House Majority Floor Leader Arturo M. Tolentino, and Press Secretary J. V. Cruz.

AFTER the breakfast conference, the President received Rep. Jose R. Nuguid and Gov. Emilio Ma. Naval of Bataan.

Nuguid questioned the proclamation of Press Secretary J. V. Cruz as the NP congressional candidate for Bataan.

The President also received members of the Garcia-for President League headed by Eugenio Micalo.

President Garcia had a closed-door conference today with Gov. Juan Pako of Bohol, the Chief Executive's political chieftain. No announcement was made of the outcome of the conference.

He also conferred Agricultural Credit and Cooperative Financing Administration. He summoned Mondoñedo to Malacañang after the latter had tendered for the second time his "irrevocable" resignation from the ACCFA.

IN the afternoon, Gov. Ragael Lazatin of Pampanga headed a delegation of school teachers to Malacañang. The teachers were led by Jose C. Reyes, principal of Pampanga High School.

The teachers thanked the Chief Executive for signing H.B. 6614, appropriating ₱3,028,000 to implement the standardization of the salaries of school teachers. Also with the Pampanga delegations were members of FACOMAs in the province

The President also met large delegation from Zambales headed by Gov. Manuel Barretto and Genaro G. Magsaysay, NP congressional candidate and son-in-law of Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez.

The group asked the President to proclaim Magsaysay as the NP congressional candidate. President Garcia said that "if I am the official NP candidate, I will proclaim him."

The President also conferred with former Justice Secretary Roman Ozaeta and Reps. Manuel Enverga of Quezon and Ricardo Y. Ladrido of Iloilo.

June 26.—THIS morning the President signed Executive Order No. 251, prescribing the office hours to be observed in the different bureaus and offices of the government, including government-owned or controlled corporations, in accordance with the new five-day working week law. The signing was made before the Cabinet meeting started at the Council of State room.

The President set the office hours from 8 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 to 5 p.m., from Monday to Friday, and fixed the effectivity of the new law on July 1, 1957. All government bureaus and offices, including government-owned or controlled corporations, but except schools, courts, hospitals, and health clinics, will begin observing the new law on Monday, July 1.

The President said in the executive order that, when the interests of the public service so require, the head of any department, bureau, or office may extend the daily hours of labor for any or all of the employees under him, and may likewise require any or all of them to do overtime work, not only on work days but also on holidays.

The Chief Executive signed the executive order in the presence of the officers of the Philippine Government Employees Association headed by Pedro de Guzman, Jr., president. The PGEA officers were accompanied by Rep. Serafin Salvador of Rizal, author of the new law.

The PGEA officers submitted a letter to the President conveying their thanks to him for signing into law the five-day working week bill and Senate Bill No. 664, providing for optional retirement of government employees after rendering 20 or 30 years of service, regardless of age and under certain conditions. They also thanked the Chief Executive for the restoration in the 1957—58 budget of the ₱10,200,000 salary standardization fund to implement partially the position classification and pay plans.

The PGEA officers said that the mass of government employees and workers throughout the country were highly grateful to the President and to Congress for the enactment of the new laws. The officers claimed that the two days off granted to government employees under the five-day working week law will contribute to making them better public servants and useful citizens because they are afforded added leisure time which can be devoted to cultural reading and enhancement, healthy forms of relaxation, more opportunities for home care and family needs, and greater participation in civic and religious endeavors.

Other PGEA officials present were Gregorio A. Q. Limjoco, vice-president; Domingo F. de Vera, organization chairman; and Marcelo C. Banog, Pedro M. Hernandez, and Maximino C. Lopez, council members.

Before signing the executive order, the President received Saburo Endo, member of the Japanese Diet, who paid a courtesy call. Endo was accompanied by Rep. Jose Roy of Tarlac, columnist Teodoro Valencia, F. Fukuye, and I. Ishiguro.

The President also received Korean Minister Young Kee Kim, who bade goodbye prior to his departure for his new post in Italy. The Korean minister was accompanied to Malacañang by Jose Estrada, chief of protocol, Department of Foreign Affairs.

After signing the executive order, the President presided over the regular Cabinet meeting.

PRESIDENT Garcia and the Cabinet at their meeting this day approved in principle the draft schedule of goods and services to be procured from Japan during the second year of the implementation of the Reparations Agreement covering the period from July 23, 1957, to July 22, 1958.

The Cabinet stamped its approval on the draft schedule amounting to $57,697,000 upon hearing a report of the National Economic Council submitted by its acting presiding officer, Eduardo Z. Romualdez.

The draft schedule is broken down as follows: government sector, $23,997,000; private sector, $27,700,000; and other projects, $6,000,000.

Items for the government sector include equipment and materials for the extension of the Manila Railroad line to the Cagayan Valley, improvement and expansion of the Bureau of Telecommunications facilities, NASSCO ship building projects, Iligan steel mills, National Development Company ramie plant, ACCFA agricultural machinery and home industries, and Bureau of Agricultural Extension projects. Also included is Portland cement for government construction works.

The amount for the private sector will include reparations goods for highly essential projects; such as, shipping, logging, mineral resources development, fisheries development, and a number of industrial development projects, including the establishment of a cement plant, two ceramics plants two pulp and paper plants utilizing bagasse and other locally available raw materials, and a wire-drawing plant.

Under the item, "Other Projects", the schedule includes amounts needed for the acquisition of a site for the chancery of the Philippine Embassy and for diplomatic and consular quarters in Tokyo and Kobe. This schedule also will include amounts for paying services for processing ramie fiber sent to Japan, fertilizers, and highly essential consumer goods to be recommended by the NEC.

Other amounts are for the continuation of salvage of sunken vessels, training of Filipino technicians and craftsmen in Japan, and expenses of the reparations mission in Tokyo.

During the discussion of the draft schedule as prepared by the NEC, the President insisted that more emphasis should be given for the acquisition of reparations equipment and materials for the country's home and cottage industries.

The President also said that he had asked Minister Caesar Lanuza in Tokyo to come to Manila for consultation in connection with the implementation of the Reparation Law.

The President and the Cabinet also approved the extension for another month of the barter trade and financial agreement between the Philippines and Japan beginning on July 1, 1957.

The new one-month additional extension was approved, considering that the panels negotiating the trade agreement between Japan and the Philippines are expected to reach an understanding soon.

During the Cabinet meeting the President directed MRR General Manager Salvador T. Villa to send immediately necessary buses to take care of the transportation requirements of the town of Bailen, Cavite.

The President took this action upon receipt of a letter from Fr. Leopoldo del Rosario, parish priest of Bailen, who reported to the President that owing to the strike of the Batangas Transportation Company, perishable products of Bailen, like vegetables and fruits, the people's sole means of livelihood, were going to waste.

Fr. Del Rosario said that prices of essential goods were going up beyond the reach of the laboring class and the wage earners.

Upon receipt of the letter during the Cabinet meeting, the President immediately directed Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon to order Manager Villa to make available the necessary buses for the transportation requirements of Bailen.

The President presided over the Cabinet meeting held at the Council of State room from 11:15 a.m. to 2:15 p.m.

IN the afternoon the President had a merienda conference with members of the Rizal Centennial Commission who informed him that final plans of the construction of the ₱10 million Rizal Center are now underway.

To be constructed at the Wallace Field, the Rizal Center will be composed of the National Theatre, the National Museum, and the National Library and Archives, according to the members of RCC.

Headed by Acting Education Secretary Martin Aguilar, Jr., chairman, the commission urged the Chief Executive to approve the plan and suggested that the entire Luneta Park be placed under the authority of the RCC.

The President told the RCC members that he was in favor of the plans of the commission. He suggested that a committee of three from among the RCC members be appointed to confer with the director of lands to look into the feasibility of placing the entire Luneta Park under the authority of the RCC.

The President was also informed by the RCC members that the fund drive for the raising of the ₱10 million had already started.

Present during the conference were Sen. Jose P. Laurel, Sr., H. B. Reyes, Jose Bantug, Enrique Virata, Ernesto Rodriguez, Angel Tesoro, Daniel Salcedo, Eduardo Quisumbing, Geronima T. Pecson, Arsenio Luz, Lopez Rizal, and Jose Orosa.

June 27.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning received a delegation of the Tinig ng Kababaihan headed by Mrs. Trinidad F. Legarda, association president, who presented a resolution endorsing the President's election bid.

The resolution said that this women's group has chosen the President as their candidate because of his abiding faith in God and devotion to country, his espousal of the cause of freedom and democratic principles and processes, his deep interest in the welfare of the common man, and his ample preparation for the presidency.

Mrs. Legarda said that the pledge of loyalty was given to the President "without any strings attached" and without seeking any concessions from the Chief Executive.

The women expressed their gratitude to the President for his action in vetoing Senate Bill No. 167. They said that he had acted wisely and

The President thanked the delegation for their resolution which was arrived at after due deliberation of the merits of the different presidential candidates. He said that he would continue working for the good of the women of the country.

Among those who signed the resolution and were present at its presentation were Sen. Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez, Social Welfare Administrator Amparo P. Villamor, Mrs. Paz R. Rodriguez, Mrs. Luisa Magsaysay-Corpuz, Mrs. Concepcion M. Frias, Mrs. Adelina Garcia-Diapo, Mrs. Nicolasa J. Tria Tirona, Mrs. Chuchi Planas-Pineda, Mrs. Zara Planas-Sarmiento, Mrs. Priscila Y. Chongbian, and Mrs. Dolores L. Gaerlan.

THE President told a large group of Manila residents that the Council of State had already approved the floating of bonds for the purchase of big landed estates by way of implementing the land tenure law.

He added that for Manila alone, the amount of ₱5 million had been earmarked for the purpose.

The Chief Executive made these remarks to the Manila residents who urged him to cause the expropriation of a certain estate in Manila. The delegation was accompanied to Malacañang by House Majority Floor Leader Arturo M. Tolentino.

The President said he would instruct CB Governor Miguel Cuaderno to see to it that the bonds necessary for the purchase of the estate be raised at the earliest possible time.

Then the President received a delegation from Bulacan and Nueva Ecija which gathered at the Malacañang reception hall.

Headed by Gov. Alejo Santos, the Bulacan delegation was composed of fishpond owners who expressed their gratitude to the President for signing into law a bill providing for the 5 per cent reduction of taxes on some industries, particularly fishing.

The Nueva Ecija delegation was composed of market vendors who sought the President's help in reducing the rents of stalls in the public market at Cabanatuan City. The delegation was headed by Gov. Amado Aleta.

The President told the NE market vendors that he would send an investigator to Cabanatuan to look into the matter. He added that he would base his action on the request on the report of the investigator.

Then the President received at the music room Rt. Hon. John McEwen Australian minister of trade, who paid a courtesy call in the course of his visit to Asian countries.

Accompanied by Australian Ambassador K. O. Shann, the visiting Australian Cabinet member presented the President with a landscape painting of a typical Australian countryside and a blue Australian woolen rug. McEwen's party included Dr. A. Westerman, deputy secretary of the department of trade, and E. Jarvis, trade commissioner attached to the Australian Embassy in Manila.

The President received at his study room officers of the Girl Scouts of the Philippines who informed him that three groups of girl scouts were soon leaving for England, Switzerland, and Canada to attend the regional centenary world encampment to be held in those countries next month.

The President handed a Philippine flag to the delegation which will fly over the Philippine Camp during the jamboree.

Other delegations were composed of provincial and municipal officials who sought the President's help in government projects in their respective localities.

Naga City Mayor Monico Imperial headed one such delegation composed of councilors from Naga City, requesting help in some public works improvement, in their city.

Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez accompanied a large delegation from three Pangasinan towns; namely, San Carlos, Urbiztondo, and Sison, headed by Mayors Agripino Padua, Tranquilino Palisok, and Ignacio Aquino, respectively. The delegations reiterated their support to the President's election bid.

Earlier, the President had a breakfast conference with Sen. Jose Locsin and Rep. Jose Roy of Tarlac, who briefed him on their observation of the work of the Philippine Reparations Mission in Tokyo.

The solons also told the President that Minister Ceasar Lanuza chief of the mission in Tokyo, was doing impressive work in carrying out the work of his office.

The President received a group of employees of the Fertilizers Administration headed by Gregorio de Monteverde who complained to the Chief Executive that they have not received their salaries during the past three months. The President immediately gave a directive to Budget Commissioner Dominador R. Aytona to pay the salaries of these employees.

The new officers of the American Legion (Philippine department) paid a courtesy call on the Chief Executive. Those who made the call were Wilber R. Brucker, department commander; Rev. Thomas B. Cannon, S. J. chaplain; Ricardo C. Galang, adjutant; Inocentes G. Duerreros, representative; Charles A. Park, Phil-Americanism officer; Ernesto Deonaldo, second vice-commander; and Santos Oro and Ben G. Mendez.

The President received callers until 1:30 p.m.

IN the evening the President awarded the Order of the Golden Heart to Stanley Gilbert, manager of the Manila branch of the U.S. Office of Alien Property, "in recognition of his outstanding service to the Philippines" during his six years tour of duty in this country.

In the citation which was read by Lt. Col. Emilio Borromeo, chief presidential aide, in ceremonies held at Malacañang, the President said that Gilbert had always maintained a sympathetic and cooperative attitude and shown great interest, and had always been zealous in taking any action within his power to aid the Philippine Government.

Gilbert had been manager of the OAP since its establishment in Manila in June 1951. During his incumbency, he had turned over to the Philippine Government millions of pesos in cash and property, including shares of stock, and agricultural, residential, and commercial assets which formerly belonged to enemy aliens.

Gilbert, whose office will officially close tomorrow, said that the OAP also had handled claims of various friendly nationals from whom certain properties had been confiscated by the Japanese forces of occupation. He said that with the closing of the branch office in Manila, further claims would, henceforth, be entertained by the Department of Justice in Washington, D. C.

Among those present at the award ceremony this evening were Commodore Jose M. Francisco of the Navy, Protocol Officer Jose Estrada and Monico Vicente of the Department of Foreign Affairs, James Bowers and Charles Hodge of the U. S. Embassy, Mr. and Mrs. James Mewshaw, and Flavio Canuel, Lino Patajo, and Benjamin de Guzman. The last three are Filipino officials of the OAP.

Earlier this evening the President received a delegation representing some 40 domestic insurance companies who called to pay their respects. During their call the insurance representatives discussed the possibilities of their handling the insurance of reparations shipments from Japan, the importation of as many fire-fighting units from Japan under the reparations agreement, and the adoption of a "building code" in cities and municipalities with the view to preventing conflagrations which have been causing heavy losses in government and private property.

Accompanied by GSIS General Manager Rodolfo P. Andal, the delegation included Eduardo Viaplana of Metropolitan Insurance, Joaquin Garrido of Capital Insurance, William Dux of Alliance, Miguel Campos of Philippine American General Insurance, Julian Locsin, J. B. Olbes, and Ramon Zoza of the F.G.U. group, Tomas Benitez of the People's Surety, and J. J. de Guzman of Liberty Insurance.

New officers of the National Music Council took their oaths of office before the President. Inducted at a ceremony held at Malacañang's music room were Alfredo Lozano, president; Lucrecia Kasilag, Candida Bautista and Felipe de Leon, vice-presidents; Felisa Lardizabal, treasurer; Jose Lauchengco, executive secretary; and Trinidad F. Legarda, Pedro F. Abella, Ramon Tapales, Perla Saucó, and Juan Javier, members.

Newly-elected officers of the Defenders of Bataan also called to pay their respects and offer their support and cooperation to the Administration. Headed by Col. Antonio Varias, supreme defender, the delegation included Cols. Dionisio Ojeda, Isagani Campo, Cirilo Daza, Daniel Victoria, and Jose Arambulo.

Mamerto Besa, president of the Philippine ex-Boxers' Association, headed a delegation which thanked the President for signing H. B. 6175 (now R. A. 1812), providing for exemption from amusement taxes world championship bouts involving Filipino fighters and promoted by Filipinos anywhere in the Philippines. The delegation was accompanied by Rep. Serafin Salvador of Rizal, author of the bill.

Among the last callers this evening was a delegation composed of some 150 district, city, and irrigation engineers all over the country who called to pay their respects on the fourth day of their six-day convention in Manila. Public Works Undersecretary Rafael Contreras, who accompanied the delegation, informed the President that the convention was being held for the purpose of standardizing practices and procedures so as to achieve maximum efficiency in the implementation of the vast program of public works being undertaken by the government. Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno was also present.

During their call, the President took the opportunity to congratulate them for the efforts they had been exerting to accelerate the Administration's program of public improvement. He also thanked them for their pledge of support contained in a resolution recently passed by the conventionists and which was presented to him during their call at Malacañang.

Other callers this evening included Sens. Quintin Paredes, Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez, and Domocao Alonto.

June 28.—PRESIDENT Garcia said this morning he had an idea of the nature of some of the charges which Mayor Lacson threatened to expose.

The President made this statement in conversation with newsmen on board the yacht Sta. Mariabound for Leyte where he is scheduled to inaugurate several public works projects. Scheduled to arrive at Ormoc City early tomorrow morning, the President will meet with Leyte municipal officials.

The President woke up early this morning and heard mass. After the mass he had breakfast on deck of the yacht with the First Lady and guests, including Mesdames Jose B. Laurel, Jr., Angel Castaño, Augusto Francisco, Jose Aldeguer, and Rep. Angel Castaño.

The Sta. Maria pulled out of Pier 5 at 1:30 a.m. today.

THE President said this evening he had always wanted Mayor Lacson to come out with his expose as early as possible, when asked by newsmen to comment on reports that Lacson would make public his charges on or before July 10.

The President had a brief conference with newsmen inside his cabin. When asked to comment on Manahan's move to confer with opposition groups for clean elections, the President said that it was good but emphasized that the elections would be the cleanest possible. He also told newsmen he had approved the appointment of Sen. Emmanuel Pelaez to the NP Credentials Committee.

On the report that Lacson had been reinstated in the NP Executive Committee in order to gag him, the President said that gagging was not the purpose. He said that he was not even sure Lacson had been reinstated.

June 29.—THE President arrived at Ormoc City at 10 o'clock this morning and was received with a rousing welcome by a large crowd headed by Gov. Bernardo Torres, Speaker Protempore Daniel Z. Romualdez, and provincial and city officials. While the yacht Sta. Maria was still 20 minutes away from the wharf, it was met by a fluvial parade, including a big interisland boat filled with people. Fireworks were set off and sirens sounded as the yacht approached the wharf. At the pier was placed a big V-shaped arch.

Following the reception and military honors at the wharf, the President proceeded to the city parish church where he heard a Te Deum. He is scheduled to meet with Leyte municipal officials this afternoon in Albueria town.

Before eating his breakfast, the President heard mass on board the Sta. Maria on the occasion of the Feast of St. Peter and St. Paul.

PRESIDENT Garcia reiterated that he would carry out to a successful completion the rural development program of the late President Magsaysay in his speech this morning in Albueria, Leyte, where thousands braved a heavy downpour to listen to him.

Accompanied by Sen. Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez, Health Under-secretary Rafael Tumbokon, Rep. Angel Castaño, and Leyte Gov. Bernardo Torres, the President went around well paved streets of Albueria and was impressed with the cleanliness of the town. He congratulated Albueria Mayor Aguilino Contiga for the accomplishment.

In a short speech, the President urged the townspeople to keep up the name of Albueria as a model town of Leyte. He recalled that he was instrumental, when he was a senator, in warding off a move to Albueria part of Baybay town.

Before having his lunch in Ormoc, the President received delegations from nearby towns at the city hall. Municipal officials discussed with the President local problems and pledged support for the President's election.

The First Lady extended financial aid to the family of a dead woman which the presidential party chanced upon in front of the Ormoc church where the President heard a Te Deum this morning. Mrs. Garcia gave financial aid to the children and nephew of the dead woman, Mrs. Ursula Ardaza-Naido.

ACTING on behalf of President Garcia, Assistant Executive Secretary Mariano Yencko, Jr., this morning received at the Malacañang grounds a big delegation of the Laguna-Tayabas Bus Company employees association which requested the President's help in settling the strike at the LTBC.

Secretary Yencko told the delegation that he was calling to a conference in Malacañang on Monday, July 1, representative from the Department of Labor, the LTBC management, the strikers, and the non-striking employees in order to reach an amicable settlement of the strike.

Yencko was informed by the delegation that only some 20 of the LTBC employees were on strike and the rest of the strikers were ex-employees and non-employees of the company

The delegation also told Yencko: "We most emphatically wish to make of record that our association is not a party to the aforeseaid strike. The demonstration which we are conducting today is eloquent proof that we are not and have never been on strike. Our cessation from work has been brought by our desire as peaceful and law-abiding citizens, to avoid disturbance and violence that may ensue as a consequence of the threats and intimidations being perpetrated by the strikers."

The employees further said: "We now further make of record that we are willing to return to work and resume operations of trips in all the provinces covered by the lines operated by the Laguna-Tayabas Bus Co. We have staged this rally in early return to normalcy of transportation business in the said provinces."

The delegation of some 300 was headed by Toriano Alidio, president, and Enrique Amoda, vice-president.

PRESIDENT Garcia addressed one of the biggest rallies in his provincial trips tonight. He spoke before a mammoth crowd at the carnival grounds in Ormoc City. With him on the speaker's platform were Sen. Pacita Madrigal Gonzalez, Social Welfare Administration Amparo Villamor, Secretary of Public Works Florencio Moreno, Commissioner Sofronio Quimson, Susano Negado, head of the National Waterworks and Sewerage Authority, and Col. Urbano Caldoza, civil aeronautics administrator.

After his speech, the President joined the First Lady in the carnival auditorium, where Mrs. Garcia crowned the carnival queen. During the coronation ceremony the President was asked to recite an ode to the queen and he readily complied.

From the carnival grounds, the President and his lady returned to the yacht Santa Maria where they spent the night.

June 30. —AFTER waking up early in the morning, the President and Mrs. Garcia heard mass aboard the yacht Sta Maria and then motored to the residence of former Rep. Dominador Tan in Ormoc City where they ate breakfast. From Tan's house, the presidential party was taken on a motorcade to the city.

The President told newsmen with him that he extended the ban on slaughter of carabaos for another six months ending December 31, 1957. The previous order on the ban issued by the late President expires today

In his speeches the President made mention of the Administration's program to construct more roads, irrigation systems, barrio schoolhouses, and artesian wells.

He also endorsed the candidacy of Tan for congressman against Rep. Domingo Veloso. From Kananga, the president went to Carigara where he delivered another speech.

Other towns at which the President spoke were Jaro and Palo. In Palo the President paid a call on Archbishop Lino Gonzaga and had merienda at the fishpond of Gregorio Montejo.

The President arrived at Tacloban at 5:30 p.m. and proceeded directly to the church where he heard a Te Deum. From the church, the President joined the First Lady in the procession of Sto. Niño, patron saint of Tacloban, which was celebrating the patron's feast. He joined the procession after receiving military honors and attending a reception given by a huge crowd in Tacloban City.

MALACAÑANG today took further action to pull down the prices of essential commodities. By order of President Garcia, Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon directed the NARIC to distribute its rice stocks in places where rice prices have reportedly gone up.

In another order Secretary De Leon directed the NAMARCO to flood the market with essential commodities, especially sugar, to keep the prices of these commodities at reasonable levels.

PRESIDENT Garcia, Gov. Salvador Lluch of Lanao, the Civil Defense Administration, three amateur radio stations, and the Philippine Air Lines today played a dramatic role in an effort to save the life of a seriously ill two-year old child who had swallowed a T-shaped can opener.

Gov. Lluch sent an S-O-S message to President Garcia through DU-9WX, an amateur station in Iligan City, that a two-year-old child which had swallowed a T-shaped can opener was seriously ill and requested medical treatment at the V. Luna General Hospital.

The message was interpreted by another amateur radio station CD-14 at Roxas City, which flashed it and in turn was interpreted by radio station DUI-DLS operated by a student of La Salle College named Tristan Leviste, of 24 Buendia Street.

Leviste in turn transmitted the message and it was picked up by the Civil Defense Administration radio which relayed it to Malacañang.

Upon receipt of the message, President Garcia ordered the immediate airlifting of the stricken child for treatment at the V. Luna General Hospital.

The Philippine Air Lines generously offered free passage to the father and the child, who will take the 8:30 a.m. trip from Iligan City tomorrow morning for Manila.

Malacañang wired Lt. Col. Antonio Garcia, PC commander of Lanao, to inform Gov. Lluch that PAL would airlift the child and its father tomorrow morning, and to see to it that the airlifting is done without a hitch.

PRESIDENT Garcia this evening approved the extension of the ban on the slaughter of carababaos for a period of six months up to December 31, 1957. The present ban ends today, June 30.

The ban on the slaughter of carabaos which was first put into effect by the late President Magsaysay has proved beneficial in providing enough work animals to be used by farmers in their farms which has greatly aided in the food production campaign of the Administration.

The President's order was wired from Leyte this evening.

President's Month in Review: July 1-15, 1957

July 1.—PRESIDENT Garcia last day in Leyte was a hectic one. Debarking in Tacloban City from the presidential yacht Sta. Maria at 8 a.m. today, the President had breakfast at the residence of torist church in Tacloban, inaugurated the 100-bed capacity Leyte Provincial Hospital, inaugurated the puericulture center of the city inaugurated in Tigbao-Cebuans in Leyte, inspected the Leyte Trade School and laid then cornerstone of the Tacloban TB pavilion.

It was already dusk when the President re-board the Sta. Maria, for the home trip to Manila. He had been in Leyte for the past three days, appealing for “a full term” in Malacañang and inaugurating various ‘public works projects.

At the Tacloban wharf the President was given a warm send-off by the people. Among those who saw him off were Gov. Torres and Speaker Protempore Daniel Z. Romualdez.

In his speeches in this city the President emphasized the fact that the Administration was carrying out successfully every program of the late President Magsaysay, especially the rural development program. He cited the irrigation systems, barrio schoolhouses, feeder roads, and artesian wells already constructed or being constructed by the Nacionalista administration.

In Tigbao barrio the President awarded the Presidential Golden Heart medal to Mrs. Enriquita C. Jocson, who donated more than one hectare of her land for the site of the community schoolhouse.

The President also gave presidential medals of merit to Donato Ripilda and his heirs, who donated the barrio Tagburo school site, Pedro Buclatan, who donated barrio Anibong school site, and Segundo Indik, who donated another barrio school site.

The President motored from one place to another in Tacloban the whole day, as he was kept busy by his tight schedule. The people applauded him in his speeches. From the Redemptorist church, where he laid the cornerstone of the future home of the Mother of Perpetual Help in Tacloban, the President went to inaugurate the Leyte Provincial Hospital which cost, P300,000.

Earlier in the morning President Garcia received delegations on board the Sta. Maria. Delegations included Liberal leaders from barrio Guindapunan and Carigara who pledged to support his election as President. LP leaders were accompanied by Councilor Reginaldo Pascual of Tacloban.

July 2.—PRESIDENT Garcia today expressed personal indignation over the manner the triplets were evicted from the Maternity Hospital in Cebu. He directed Acting Health Secretary Rafael Tumbokon to take immediate steps to reinstate the triplets in the hospital and to send a Department of Health investigator to check and report on circumstances surrounding the eviction of the triplets.

The President also instructed Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor to send immediately material aid to the family of the triplets.

The presidential yacht Sta. Maria was tossed, swayed, and rocked by big waves the whole morning. Instead of arriving in Manila at 10 p.m. today, the yacht will arrive about 1 a.m. because its course was altered to avoid huge waves and strong winds. Every passenger, including newsmen, stayed in bed the whole morning to avoid dizziness. The President stayed in his bedroom after hearing mass and eating breakfast with the First Lady.

The President and the First Lady ate lunch at 2 p.m. after the big waves had calmed down a little. After lunch the President rested in his bedroom and went over state papers. Weather along the way of the Sta. Maria has been cloudy with slight rains, strong winds, and big waves.

July 3.—PRESIDENT Garcia returned to Malacañang at 2 o'clock this morning with a large entourage who were badly shaken by huge waves which lashed the presidential yacht Santa Maria at the China Sea before it entered Manila Bay.

It was an eventful trip, and President Garcia who had appeared unperturbed after taking two tablets to fight sea-sickness said, "It is part of the game."

At a few hours of sleep, the President motored to Camp Murphy where he had breakfast given in his honor by Army officers and their ladies at the officers' club.

Addressing officers and men of the Armed Forces on the occasion of the annual testimonial parade and review given in honor of their commander-in-chief at Camp Murphy this morning, the President said, "Our proud history has entitled us to the claim of guardianship over democratic institutions. That claim and duty of guardianship must be fulfilled even at the price of personal sacrifice so as to insure the integrity and purity of the ballot.

"If those who are in power must face defeat, let it be; but nothing must be done to tarnish the sanctity of the free man's vote," the President said.

Speaking in a voice that rang loud and clear to the men who stood in formation before him on the parade ground, the President, stressed:

"Friends and countrymen, on the eve of the national commemoration of the attainment of our independence, and at this historic hour, let me make this solemn pledge that as long as I am Chief Executive of our Republic and Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces, I will not tolerate nor countenance any pollution of the ballot, any frustration or perversion of the popular will as expressed through the vote, or any illicit, or unconstitutional interference of the military in the conduct of elections."

The ceremonies started promptly at 9 a.m. with the presentation of the award of the Philippine Legion of Honor (Chief Commander) to Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo "as the foremost military leader during the darkest hour of the Philippines' fight for freedom against the then existing Spanish regime, culminating in the establishment of the erstwhile Philippine Republic."

The award was pinned on the 87-year old revolutionary general by the President. He was assisted by Secretary Balao and General Arellano.

Then, boarding one of the staff cars, the President inspected two regiments which stood stiffly at attention at one end of the parade ground. The regiments were made up of battalions from the Philippine Military Academy, the Constabulary, ground forces, Navy, Air Force, artillery, the school for reserve commission, and the Presidential Guards Battalion under the command of Lt. Col. Romeo Honasan.

The parade started about 9:30 a.m. Enthusiastic applauses were received by each unit representing the different major services as they marched smartly past the reviewing stand. A squadron of PAF Mustang planes flew in formation over the parade ground.

With the President on the reviewing stand were Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, the First Lady, members of the Cabinet, chiefs of foreign missions and members of their staffs, senators and congressmen, and top military officials of the Philippines and foreign countries.

The Chief Executive and the First Lady were back at Malacañang about 10:15 a.m.

THE President this afternoon stressed the great importance of schools and colleges to the future of the country, emphasizing that "our schools and Colleges be brought up to the highest degree of efficiency of which our wisdom and our means are capable."

The President said the efficiency of our educational institutions would shape and determine the progress that could be attained by the Filipino people. He said: "If our schools are fifth-rate, they can only produce fifth-rate citizens; and if we have fifth-rate citizens, we can build only a fifth-rate nation."

The Chief Executive said: "If our people give me the necessary time to lead in the accomplishment of this vast and important task, I shall embrace the opportunity with energy, determination, and decision."

The President made these remarks at the formal inauguration and blessing of the University of the East Ramon Magsaysay Memorial Medical Center and the Science Building on Aurora Boulevard with President Garcia and Mrs. Luz Banzon-Magsaysay as co-sponsors. Mrs. Garcia, U.E. President and Mrs. Francisco Dalupan, and the U. E. Board of Trustees present were in attendance.

The U.E. Ramon Magsaysay Memorial Medical Center (College of Medicine) is a non-stock and non-profit institution named after the late President.

In his speech, President Garcia praised the U. E. founders of the college for their boldness and vision in their search for educational improvement. He said that by its inauguration, the institution announced its intention to pioneer in at least two important phases of education: the abolition of the profit motive and the limitation of enrollment.

With regard to the solution of the many shortcomings of the country's educational effort in general, the President said he was seriously thinking of the feasibility of creating a body of scholars and educators to conduct a thorough and comprehensive study of Philippine education as a whole and to "recommend to the Government such improvements and the means to those improvements as it may find wise and necessary."

The President expressed the hope that if the U. E. Ramon Magsaysay Memorial Medical Center succeed, it would "open to the schools and colleges of this country a new vista of service to the youth and to the Republic as the late President Magsaysay, whose honored name this medical college bears, envisioned it in his lifetime."

President Garcia congratulated President Dalupan and the U. E. Board of Trustees and the faculty for boldly embarking on this great pioneering adventure in Philippine medical education. The President felicitated Mrs. Magsaysay, who, because of her consent to the use by the college of the late President's name, "there has been added one more fitting memorial to our late President, my great predecessor, and the moral force of his name has been aligned with the cause of educational progress."

President and Mrs. Garcia were fetched from Malacañang by U. E. President and Mrs. Dalupan about 4:00 p.m. They rode together in the presidential car to the UERMMC. The President was given a 21-gun salute and full military honors. The program was held in one of the auditoriums of the medical college.

President and Mrs. Garcia returned to Malacañang about 5:30 a.m.

July 4.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning ordered all government relief agencies to extend immediate succor to the fire victims in Cabadbaran, Agusan.

The President, through Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon, directed Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor, the Philippine National Red Cross, the Department of Health, and the relief units of the Armed Forces to mobilize their units in giving immediate relief to the sufferers of the Cabadbaran fire.

The President took this action immediately upon receipt of a telegram from Gov. Felixberto Dagani of Agusan, who informed the Chief Executive of the fire and requested relief.

According to Dagani, Cabadbaran was hit by the biggest fire in its history, with the whole commercial district razed to the ground. At the time of the sending of the telegram (8:26 a.m.), the fire was still raging.

PRESIDENT Garcia and President Eisenhower exchanged messages of felicitations on the occasion of the anniversary celebrations of the independence of their respective countries today, July 4.

In a message addressed to President Garcia received at Malacañang early this morning, President Eisenhower said: "It gives me pleasure to extend to Your Excellency and to the people of the Philippines the congratulations and sincere good wishes of the people of the United States on the national anniversary of the Republic of the Philippines.

President Garcia also received similar congratulatory messages from heads of state all over the world. Among such messages were those from Emperor Hirohito of Japan, Queen Juliana of the Netherlands, King Baudouin of Belgium, King Bhumibol of Thailand, King Adolf Gustaf of Sweden; Presidents Izhak Benzvi of Israel, Rajendra Prasad of India, Adolfo Ruiz Cortines of Mexico, Hans Streuli of Switzerland, Theodor Heuss of Germany, Iskander Mirza of Pakistan, and Pedro Eugenio Aramburu of Argentina; -Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek of Nationalist China; and Giovanni Gronchi of Italy .

Meanwhile, Ambassador Felisberto Serrano wired from New York informing the President that the Philippine mission and the Filipino community in that city were cooperating to celebrate Independence Day with appropriate ceremonies.

UPON the recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole, President Garcia this day granted 50 conditional pardons, two absolute pardons, and two commutations of sentence.

THE President presented the posthumous award of the Quezon Service Cross on the late President Ramon Magsaysay in ceremonies held at the Malacañang social hall this evening in connection with the observance of the 11th anniversary of the Republic of the Philippines.

The award was presented to Mrs. Luz B. Magsaysay, widow of the late President, in the presence of officers and members of the 11th civic assembly of women, Cabinet members, members of the diplomatic corps and their ladies, and representatives of various civic organizations gathered at Malacañang to witness this year's awarding of presidential medals of merit under the sponsorship of the CAWP.

Attired in black terno, Mrs. Magsaysay stood misty-eyed, apparently trying hard to fight back her tears, as the citation reviewing the achievements of Ramon Magsaysay, "soldier, statesman, patriot, protector of the poor, implacable foe of Communism, and leader of his people," was read before the assemblage. However, after the medal had been placed around her neck, the former First Lady broke down and wept silently.

Recipients of the presidential medals of merit were Mrs. Luisa Fernandez de Lichauco for home arts, Mrs. Flora Amoranto Ylagan and Dr. Ricardo C. Lacson for education, Richard T. Ely and Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason for public service, and the family of Dr. Jose de Jesus for exemplary family. The medals were pinned on the awardees by the President.

The presentation ceremonies started about 6 p.m. with Miss Helen Z. Benitez, CAWP president, presenting the awardees, on behalf of Mrs. Minerva Inocencio Piguing, chairman of the CAWP awards committee. Also present was Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, the First Lady.

In a brief extemporaneous speech delivered during the ceremonies, the President congratulated the officers and members of CAWP, whom he called the "quintessence of Filipina womanhood" for their valuable participation in the nation's affairs. He said that their contribution had been instrumental in making of this country what it is today.

After the ceremonies, about 7 p.m., the First Lady invited her guests to refreshments at the reception hall.

PRESIDENT Garcia and Mrs. Garcia gave an Independence Day state dinner at 8 o'clock this evening at Malacañang.

The affair was attended by leaders of Congress and the judiciary, heads of diplomatic missions, members of the Cabinet and the Council of State -and their ladies, top brass of the Philippine and the American Armed Forces, and prominent citizens and other high government dignitaries.

MALACAÑANG announced today the appointment of Dean Feliciano Jover Ledesma as a member of the National Board of Education to take the place of the late Jess Paredes, who died in an airplane crash with the late President Magsaysay.

July 5.—PRESIDENT Garcia woke up late this morning after, his midnight caucus with some 35 solons who wanted to do away with provincial conventions and make the present congressmen automatically the official candidates of the Nacionalista Party in their respective districts.

The President engaged the solons in some political debates on the matter and finally told the solons bluntly he could not subscribe to their views which scuttle the rules and regulations of the party.

It was a tough night for the President, as he was forced to commit him-self on his choice of a running mate. The solons had asked the President to pick Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., as his running mate. After vacillating for some time, the President finally said “you can have the green light” to campaign for the Garcia-Laurel team.

PRESIDENT Garcia at the Cabinet meeting this day signed an executive order implementing Reorganization Plan No. 77, creating the Forest Products Research Institute.

This plan provides for an objective-organization to study and recommend the effective utilization of all forest products and their by-products and to give encouragement for the development of wood and lumber industries.

The Government Survey and Reorganization Commission said that the creation of this institute was one milestone toward the implementation of the Administration’s economic development program.

As organized, the Forest Products Research Institute will have one director and one assistant director. It will also have five divisions; namely, administrative services, chemical investigations, industrial investigations, wood technology, and wood preservation.

The implementation of this reorganization plan abolishes the forest products laboratory and the forest products research section of the Bureau of Forestry and transfers their functions together with the appropriate personnel, appropriations, property, equipment, and records to the FPRI. There will be no lay-off of personnel as a result of this reorganization.

Upon strong representations of Philippine Charity Sweepstakes General Manager Eugenio E. Santos, the President and the Cabinet approved the petition of PCSO employees for higher salaries, provided that these salary increases conform with the rates set down by the Wage and Position Classification Office.

The President and the Cabinet observed that the PCSO was an agency of the government exercising the regular functions of a government office and therefore it should follow the WAPCO standard of salaries.

Manager Santos explained to the President and the Cabinet that his employees deserved the increases given to them because of the good work they were performing, resulting in greatly increased sales of sweepstakes tickets. Santos said that although his employees now numbered 347 as against 370 in 1953, they produced better results.

Santos pointed out that whereas the sales in 1953 amounted to only P9,662,757, the sales in 1957 jumped to P28 million, and that while the aids given in 1953 were only P3,043,768, the aids given in 1957 amounted to P8,829,000.

He also said that in 1953 the sweepstakes office had a deficit of P250,936, but in 1957, it had a surplus of P706,188.

President Garcia directed that a cable be sent to President Eisenhower expressing the Filipino people's "deepest appreciation for signing the legislation handing back valuable historical documents and records seized during the Philippine Insurrection in 1898."

In his message the President said that President Eisenhower's signing of the bill on the eve of the anniversary of Philippine independence "will be cherished by the Filipino people, especially by our historians and scholars who are now provided with a veritable source of historical materials."

President Garcia added, "This is indeed another manifestation of the cordial and close relations existing between our two countries."

LATE In the afternoon the President received callers after working on state papers.

The callers who were received individually by the President were Sens. Edmundo Cea, Francisco Delgado, and Quintin Paredes, and Govs. Juan Frivaldo and Valeriano Gatuslao of Sorsogon and Negros Occidental, respectively.

Then the President received a group of labor leaders who presented a resolution pledging their support to his election bid. They also requested the Chief Executive to order the insular treasurer to resume payment of backpay claims of the labor battalion of the pre-war Civilian Emergency

Headed by Pablo Manlapit of the National Employees Workers Union and chairman of the United Labor Political Action Committee, the labor leaders informed the President that backpay payments to the CEA battalion had been suspended last year owing to an investigation which was conducted because of an alleged anomaly.

The labor leaders were composed of Alejandro Salazar, general president, International Labor and Marine Union; Hugo Retaga, president of the National Workers Brotherhood; Ildefonso K. Romey, president of the Union de Tabacos, Inc.; Filomeno Prudon, president of the Binangonan Labor Union; Arcadio Roxas, president of the PLAW; Pedro Advincula, president of the Gen. Log Workers Union; Eduardo Donato, president of the Union de Tabaqueros de Filipinas; Teodoro Pineda, Mechanical Technical Stev. Union; Juan D. Floras, Philippine Labor and Sailor Federation; Aniceto de Castro, Union de Tabaqueros de Filipinas; Aurelio Galvizo, president of the United Seamen's Union; Alfredo de Antonio, of the Construction Workers Association, Eusebio Queros, Furniture Workers Union; and Avelino Catolico and Isabelo V. Gandionco, lawyers.

The President expressed his gratitude to the labor leaders for their support to his election bid.

Regarding the request of the labor leaders to resume the payment of backpay claims of the CEA labor battalion, the President told them that he would study the matter seriously.

A group of Aklan municipal mayors also presented a resolution pledging their support to the President's election bid. The town mayors were Batan Mayor Mariano Pador, Lizo Mayor Catalino Prado, Malinaw Mayor Sancho Incierto, Tangdan Mayor Augusto Gaboy, Balete Mayor Apolinar Cleofe, and Makato Mayor Jose Legazpi.

Mayor Cristino Jimenez of Dasol, Pangasinan, accompanied prominent political leaders of his municipality who pledged their support to the President's election bid.

Other individual callers were Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez and ex-Governor Gulamu Rasul of Sulu.

The President received callers up to late at night.

July 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia, before enplaning for Baguio this morning, received Health Secretary Paulino Garcia, who submitted a report on the fruitful results of the work of the Philippine delegation to the Tenth World Health Assembly in Geneva and afterwards, in the United States.

In his report to the President, Secretary Garcia said that the Philippine delegation got from the World Health Assembly approval of the program of assistance for the Philippines for the fiscal year 1958m estimated at $249 441 to be financed from the WHO regular budget, the U. S. technical assistance funds, and the UNICEF.

This assistance program consists of aids for tuberculosis control, leprosy control, influenza center, bilharzias pilot project, midwifery training maternal and child health, mental health, environmental sanitation, and the institute of Hygiene, U. P.

Secretary Garcia told the President that, as directed by the Chief Executive, he proceeded to the United States where he and Dr. Regala looked into tine exchange visitors program and the ICA health-assisted programs, and made technical observations and consultations.

Secretary Garcia said that he had talked with Filipino doctors in Mount Vernon Hospital and Lawrence Hospital in Westchester County, New York, whom he found happy in their work and satisfied with their placements. The directors of the two hospitals spoke well of the Filipino doctors and held them in high regard, according to the health secretary.

In Chicago the health secretary said he had met with Consul Abrera and with the executive directors of the American Hospitals Association and the American Medical Association. He had been given assurance that remuneration of Filipino nurses under the exchange visitors program would be increased.

Secretary Garcia said that he had extended an official invitation to Dr. Leroy Burney, the surgeon-general of the U. S. Public Health Service, and to Dr. Eugene Campbell, ICA health director in Washington, D. C, to come to the Philippines to observe on the spot the implementation of the mutual programs.

Garcia also observed the work and research being done in cancer control and in mental health at the National Institute of Health in Bethesda, Maryland, and conferred with directors of the respective institutes on the ever-all phases of activities in these fields.

The President congratulated Secretary Garcia for the good work he had done in his mission abroad.

IN the afternoon the President inducted Col. Marcos G. Soliman, superintendent of the Philippine Military Academy, as ad interim brigadier general in the Armed Forces at ceremonies at the Guest House.

Soliman's appointment was one of the three ad interim appointments signed by the President in Manila this morning before enplaning for Baguio City. The other two were those of Col. Climaco Pintoy, commander of the IV Military Area, and Col. Pedro Q. Molina, chief of the Philippine Air Force, as brigadier generals.

Present at the ceremonies were Rep. Ramon Mitra of Mountain Province; Baguio City officials, headed by Mayor Alfonso Tabora; Maj. Gen. Joseph Harper, chief of JUSMAG; Maj. Gen. John Ackerman, commander of the U. S. 13th Air Force; Col. Jose Maristela, PC provincial commander of Mountain Province; Col. Harold Beck(commander of Camp John Hay; and ranking officials of Baguio City.

General Soliman has been in the Army for 27 years. He graduated from the P. C. Academy in 1933. He later graduated from the U. S. Infantry School in Fort Bennings, Georgia, and from the U. S. Command and General Staff School in Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

The President arrived at the Loakan airport in Baguio aboard the Pagasa at 12:10 p.m. He was met by city officials headed by Mayor Tabora and a delegation from the Baguio police department headed by Col. Francisco Paraan, chief of police. The delegation submitted to the President a resolution signifying their willingness to forego the benefits of the new law prescribing a five-day a week office schedule, for the good of service. The President thanked the Baguio policemen for their dedication to public service.

From the airport the President motored to the Guest House.

In the evening, the President motored to the Baguio Country Club, where he spoke at the installation of the Baguio Rotary Club officers.

PRESIDENT Garcia last night paraded the economic achievements of the Magsaysay administration and marshalled facts and figures to refute the charge of "rank mismanagement in the fiscal, financial, and trade fields" which former Speaker Jose Yulo had levelled at the ruling Nacionalista Party.

In what political observers considered his "fightingest" speech yet, the President took Yulo, Liberal Party presidential aspirant, to task for "misrepresenting the economic situation by erring either on the side of exaggeration or understatement."

President Garcia delivered the speech shortly after he had installed officers of the Baguio Rotary Club at the Baguio Country Club in Baguio City this evening.

It was the first major speech on economics he had delivered since succeeding "the late President Magsaysay last March 17.

It was also a rejoinder to a scathing attack on NP economic policies Yulo launched before the Manila Rotary Club on June 27.

Among others, Yulo had charged the NP with exhausting the country's dollar reserves with foisting on the people "fantastically unbalanced budgets," and with rank mismanagement in the fiscal, financial, and trade fields.

President Garcia said: "The Liberal charge is not only unfounded and improved; it is also gratuitous and ridiculous. It is, as I have said, a desperate attempt to convert defense into- offense, a last ditch try to make the red herring trick work."

The President told the Rotarians that Yulo, in hurling those charges at the NP, recited "half-truths and inaccurate figures or no figures at all to support premeditated and self-serving fuminations."

He said the presidential aspirant twisted and tortured economic data "for political effect" and in so doing, "sacrifice the national welfare to personal ambition."

The President cited facts and figures which he said were "of public record" to throw back Yulo's charges to the LPs themselves. See Historical Papers and Documents, pp. 4059-4066, for the full text of the President's speech.)

July 7.—THE President had breakfast at 7:30 a.m. with Miguel Velasco, "Malacañang financial assistant, who consulted him on the implementation of the new budget, particularly in the office of the President.

Sen. Edmundo Cea gave the President a favorable report on the latest political developments in the Bicol region. He said he was working for the complete solidification of Bicol political leaders to rally behind the President.

Other callers this morning included a delegation of the Citizens Committee for Garcia headed by Florendo Aquino and Rep. Ramon Mitra of Mt. Province.

Shortly after 10 a.m., the Chief Executive motored to the Baguio Cathedral, where he heard mass. After the mass he motored around the city.

Returning to the Guest House shortly before noon, the President received Gov. Marcos Malupa of Batanes, who reassured him that except for four or five congressmen, there was really no “revolt” in Congress. Malupa reported that Reps. Angel Castaño and Augusto Francisco of Manila and himself had canvassed 40 alleged rebels. Malupa also reported that governors and city mayors from the First Military Area and the Bicol bloc were scheduled to meet at the Manila Hotel tomorrow. Also invited to the meeting were Govs. Leon Guinto, Sr., of Quezon, Mariano Tajonera of Mindoro Oriental, and Francisco Infantado of Mindoro Occidental.

Among the last callers was Gov. Bernardo Gapuz of La Union, who appraised the Chief Executive on the latest political developments in his province. After having his lunch at 2 p.m., the President stayed in his bedroom the whole afternoon and evening.

PRESIDENT Garcia woke up this afternoon after a short nap feeling slightly indisposed; so he postponed his scheduled return to Manila for tomorrow noon.

The President was scheduled to go down by car at 4 p.m. today to board the plane at San Fernando. La Union, as the Loakan airfield in Baguio is closed in the afternoon owing to the weather. He expects to take off at Loakan before noon tomorrow and fly direct from Baguio to Manila.

The President received several delegations which called on him at the Guest House this morning. The first of these delegations was composed of some 50 Igorot farmers from nearby Trinidad and Tublay towns who requested the early adjudication of titles to the public lands they were cultivating.

Two delegations called to pledge their support. They were the Benguet Balatoc Workers Union delagation headed by Vicente Osemana and the Romblon provincial and municipal officials delagation who told the President they would support him whoever would be his running mate in the coming election.

Accompanied by Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, the Romblon group included Gov. Manuel Solidum, Board Members Francisco Benedicto and Vicente Tanciangco, and Mayors Isidro Mallorca of Romblon, Pablo Bargete of Badajos, Francisco Fernando of Odiongan, Li Umali of Cajidiocan, Elias Baranda of San Fernando, Teofisto Nepomuceno of Magdiwang, Dionisio Fetalvero of Jones, Gaudencio Molina of Sta. Fe, and” Vidal Tolieria of Corcuera.

July 8.—THIS morning President Garcia did not receive any caller at the Guest House in Baguio. He spent the whole morning in conference with Miguel D. Velasco, Malacañang financial assistant, on the implementation of the new budget. He also conferred with Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon, who consulted him on pending matters.

Shortly before 12 noon, after an early lunch, the President motored to the Loakan airfield where he boarded the plane Pag-asa for the return trip to Manila. He took off at the Baguio airport under a heavy rain, and landed at Nichols Field one hour later.

ALIGHTING from the presidential plane Pag-asa at 12:20 p.m. from his two-day stay in Baguio, the President saw Col. Molina, who headed a large group of top ranking airforce officers who welcomed him at the air base. He decided to swear in the air force chief right at the base canteen where he sought shelter from a slight drizzle.

Col. Molina was one of three ad interim brigadier-generals whose appointments were signed by the President last Saturday morning shortly before he enplaned for the Pines City. The other two were Cols. Climaco Pintoy, commander of the IV MA, and Marcos Soliman, superintendent of the PMA. The latter was sworn in at the Guest House in Baguio Saturday afternoon.

July 9.—THIS morning the President inducted six mayors of Tarlac who formally affiliated with the Nacionalista Party and pledged to support his candidacy. The six mayors were among 15 mayors of Tarlac who called on the President and collectively pledged their loyalty to the Administration.

The six mayors, who were DP's before their affiliation, were Felipe Obillo of Moncada, Pedro Pascasin of Pura, Silvestre Sabado of Anao, Florencio Molioc of Sta. Ignacia, Esteban Mangabat of Ramos, and Amado Roldan of San Clemente.

Taken up by the Tarlac mayors with the President were their respective local problems, including the boundary dispute between Tarlac and Pangasinan which involved six barrios between San Clemente, Tarlac, and Mangatarem, Pangasinan. The President instructed Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon to look into the dispute and work out a solution as soon as possible.

Aside from the six newly affiliated mayors, others who saw the President were Mayors Hipolito Castañeda of Tarlac, chairman of the Mayors' League, Enrique Sison of Bamban, Francisco V. Nogoy of Capas, Eufonio Subara of Gerona, Patrocinio Garrido of Victoria, Eliodoro Castro of Paniqui, Dioscoro Felix of San Manuel, Rosendo Tomas of Mayantoc, Benigno Aquino, Jr., of Concepcion, and Vice-Mayor Jaime Vigilín of Camiling.

Other callers in the morning included Gov. Romulo Garrovillo of Zamboanga del Norte and Ambassador Francisco Javier Conde of Spain. In the evening, callers of the President were delegations headed by Rep. Salvador Enemas of Sorsogon and Rep. Constancio Castañeda and Governor Arsenio Lugay of Tarlac.

Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon this morning inducted the officers of the Department of Public Services Union in Manila. The officers were headed by Bernabe Juguilon, president; Hipolito Santos, 1st vice-president;

Nicasio Masangkay, 2nd vice-president; Bernabe Aguado, secretary; Anastacio Soriano, assistant secretary; Hermogenes Vigos, treasurer; Benjamin Padilla, assistant treasurer; and Genaro Galvez, auditor. The union officers were accompanied by former Bataan Rep. Medina Lacson de Leon and Mariano de Joya, Jr.

PRESIDENT Garcia this afternoon paid tribute to the youth of the land whose determination to do their best for the government will redound to the betterment of the Filipino people.

The President made the remarks before officers and members of the League of Young Professionals who pledged to support his re-election. The young professionals also informed the President that they realized "the necessity of active participation in all phases of national endeavor—economic, political, and social."

The league was formed by young professionals all over the country, with the purpose of actively being "instrumental in the betterment of our people and in the moulding of our nation's destiny."

Thanking the young professionals for their pledge of support, the President paid tribute to their active spirit and recalled that the history of the country was replete with the heroism and patriotism of young people.

In a resolution submitted to the President, the young professionals said that "we are convinced that the man who can truly live up to the role demanded by the imperatives of our time is President Carlos P. Garcia, whose integrity as a man, devotion as a public servant, and greatness as a leader, have already been tested."

They pledged "to exert all efforts to the end that President Carlos P. Garcia be elected by the Filipino people as the fourth President of the Philippine Republic and to support his administration and policies in the interim."

The officers of the league included Santiago F. Dumlaog, Jr., Juanito R. Remullo, Augusto E. Villarin, Pablito J. Enano, Teodoro G. Bonifacio, Mariano C. Ereso, Jr., Ernesto T. Duran, and Teodulo Fra, Arriola.

THIS afternoon the President ordered Vicente G. Bunuan, chief of the Sugar Quota Office, to release immediately out of the “A” sugar, which is for export, the amounts necessary to meet requirements of local sugar consumption.

The President took this step in order to flood the market with enough sugar stocks and bring the price of this commodity to normal levels.

He issued the order during a 30-minute conference which he had with Bunuan in the President’s anteroom this afternoon.

PRESIDENT Garcia, in a conference with Gregorio S. Licaros, chief of the Import Control Division of the Central Bank, directed the Monetary Board to study immediately the lifting of the suspension by the Monetary Board of the granting of dollar allocations to Filipino exclusive distributors. The President’s directive followed the complaint last night of Benjamin R. Medrano, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines, that the Monetary Board had not implemented the President’s directive of May 8, giving dollar allocations to exclusive distributors.

The President said he wanted a report on the Monetary Board’s study of this matter at the earliest possible time.

MALACANANG announced today that a satisfactory understanding for the solution of the problem of the American film industry in the Philippines has been arrived at.

The announcement was made after an early morning conference among the president, Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, and Leo Hochstetter, representative of the Motion Picture Export Association of America.

It was agreed at the conference that: (1) the sum of $1,800,000 representing part of the profits of U.S. films here will be allowed to be remitted to the United States; and” (2) the matter of levying back taxes on American movie films will be submitted to the proper court for final determination as to the legality of the action.

RECENT news reports stated that the President, in his speech before the Rotary Club of Baguio on July 6, claimed that the international reserve in 1950 was $130 million. Evidently, this is a misinterpretation of the following statement:

“In 1950, the fiscal authorities of the Liberal Administration did not consider $130,600,000 as ‘dangerously low.’ For the $260,000,000 which they fixed as a safe level, $130,000,000 would consist of funds borrowed from abroad. Our position today is certainly sounder and better than this, for our international reserves are nearly $200,000,000 of which only $15,200,000 consists of borrowed foreign fund.”

For purposes of clarification, this statement does not mean that the international reserve as of 1950 was $130 million. The above paragraph was intended to point to the fact that the Liberal administration recognized that to carry on the development program of the country, balance of payments deficits would have to be incurred so that after 1953, the international reserve would have to be depleted to $130 million unless foreign assistance were availed of. This recognition was expressly stated by the 1950 Report of the Philippine Economic Survey Mission of which Mr. Yulo was the Chairman. This report stated:

“... Within the framework of assumptions made, the international reserve after 1953 would be reduced from the present level to about $130.6 million. The Commission believes that the international reserve should be maintained at the present level of $260 million in order not to impair confidence in the value of the peso. The country, therefore, would need a foreign assistance to carry out this program to the extent of $130 million.”

Despite heavy outlays for industrialization, the international reserve as of July 2, 1957, amounted to $198.11 million, which is definitely better than the $130 million anticipated by the Liberal Administration if the development program were to be pursued vigorously. Of this, only $15 million represents repurchase obligations with the International Monetary Fund which is much lower than the $130 million proposed to be availed of from foreign sources as loans, grants, and assistance in the Yulo Report. Hence, if we were to incur a total foreign obligation of $130 million, the international reserve level will be about $300 million which exceeds the $260 million considered as a safe level in the Yulo Report by $40 million.

July 10.—THIS morning the President received NP ward leaders from Pasay City who informed him they would rally solidly behind him to insure his victory in the November elections.

Headed by Francisco Victor, president of the NP directorate in that city, the ward leaders recalled that the defeat of the NP mayoralty candidate in Pasay last election was due to the lack of unity of the NP's who had put up no less than three strong candidates for the post.

The 14 ward leaders who were at Malacañang this morning included former Acting Mayor Adolfo Santos, Nena Herrera, and Francisco Jalbuna.

The President also received Msgr. Egidio Vagnozzi, papal nuncio, who delivered a message from His Holiness Pope Pius XII extending the Holy Father's "cordial good wishes for your personal health and well-being and for the peace and prosperity of the people of the Philippines."

The President was deeply touched by the papal message and said he would keep it among his most treasured collections. It was in reply to a previous message sent to the Vatican recently by the President through Commerce Secretary Oscar Ledesma.

Mons. Vagnozzi also presented the President with a book entitled: "First Asian Meeting of the Apostolate of the Laity," a report of the apostolate congress held in Manila in December 1955. The Chief Executive thanked the Nuncio for the gift and promised he would read the book.

About 10 a.m., the President received Mayor Teopisto Cordova of Bacolod City, who reiterated his pledge of loyalty and at the same time denied reports he had committed himself to support an LP presidential aspirant. The Bacolod mayor explained he had met the LP presidential bet at the airport during the latter's recent visit to Bacolod simply because he was a member of the Lions Club which had invited the aspirant to that city.

Aurelio Montinola and Gerald Wilkinson, president and vice-president of the Republic Cement Corporation, respectively, also called to invite the Chief Executive to inaugurate their new cement plant in the latter part of this month.

FOLLOWING up his order last evening to flood the market with A sugar in order to keep sugar prices at normal levels, President Garcia at the Cabinet meeting today took steps to insure that this sugar would not fall into the hands of combines and hoarders and that it be placed within the reach of all the people.

To achieve this end, the President created a committee composed of Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason as chairman, with Commerce Secretary Oscar Ledesma, Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao, and National Economic Council Presiding Officer Eduardo Z. Romualdez, as members.

The President charged the committee with studying ways and means of insuring that the "A" sugar which was to be dumped into the local markets, found its way direct to the consuming public and not hoarded by speculators.

The President said that it was necessary to take precautions in safeguarding this sugar from falling into the hands of combines or hoarders, because otherwise it would not accomplish the purpose for which it was intended.

He discussed at length with the Cabinet the sugar situation. He reviewed the steps already taken by the government in seeing to it that there were enough sugar stocks in the market.

The Chief Executive recalled that the 220,000 tons of sugar for domestic consumption had been augmented three times recently, first by 10,000 tons, then by 25,000 tons, and still later by 25,000 tons. He said that with his order last night, an additional 30,000 tons of sugar would be dumped into the market to make an all-time high of 310,000 tons of sugar for local consumption during the present year.

It was believed that the increase in local sugar prices was artificially generated. It was also held possible that other causes could be the hoarding of the commodity or the smuggling of sugar out of the country.

With the President's order to increase the local supply of sugar by an additional 30,000 tons and with the precautionary measures to be taken by the government, the price of sugar can be expected to return to normal levels.

The President and the Cabinet took another step in implementing the Administration's land reform program and in removing one of the causes of social unrest in Central Luzon when they approved the purchase of the 2,255-hectare Hacienda De Leon in Talavera, Nueva Ecija at P2, 746,000. The hacienda has 450 tenants with 1,929 dependents cultivating it.

After the purchase of the hacienda by the Land Tenure Administration, and after adding interests at 6 per cent per annum, including cost of survey subdivision, and registration, the hacienda will be sold to the tenants at an estimated cost, of P3.077 per hectare, payable in 25 equal annual installments of P123 annually.

The President and the Cabinet finally approved the purchase of the hacienda after a lengthy discussion of the merits of the purchase and after hearing Land Tenure Administration Administrator Manuel Castañeda and Commissioner Julian C. de Vera clear up some doubts regarding the vital information surrounding the purchase.

The President called Castañeda and De Vera in View of a complaint filed regarding alleged unreasonable price of the hacienda. After hearing the explanation regarding the cost price of the hacienda, its productivity, and the manner of its sale to the tenants, the President and the Cabinet gave their approval to its purchase.

The President and the Cabinet were informed that out of the 2,255 hectares, 1,805 hectares were irrigated ricelands, 101 hectares were unirrigated ricelands, 301 hectares were cornland, 29 hectares were wasteland, and 19 hectares were eroded by a river.

Upon learning that some portions of the hacienda were unirrigated and that some were not riceland, the President made it clear to Chairman Castañeda that in the distribution of the land to the tenants, the selling price should be proportionately adjusted in accordance with the nature and productivity of the land being sold to each tenant.

NARIC Chairman Juan O. Chioco, who is from Nueva Ecija himself and who was consulted on the purchase of the land, said that the expropriation of the hacienda was a forward step in eliminating one of the causes of social unrest in Central Luzon, because this hacienda was formerly a Huk territory. He said that its purchase was a wise move of the government and that it would contribute to the maintenance of peace in Central Luzon. The President and the Cabinet, approved a recommendation submitted by a Cabinet committee concurring with a previous recommendation of the National Economic Council and the Cabinet regarding the approval of the establishment of an incandescent lamps factory proposed by the Philips Electrical Lamps, Inc.

Among the reasons given by the Cabinet committee in stamping its approval were that the establishment of the company would result in benefits that would accrue to the consumers in particular and to the country in general, in terms of better quality lamps at lower prices to be brought about by competitive forces.

The committee was composed of NEC Presiding Officer Eduardo Z. Romualdez as chairman, with Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, Commerce Secretary Oscar Ledesma, and Acting OEC Administrator Juan Concon, as members.

The Cabinet meeting presided over by President Garcia was held at the Council of State room. It lasted from 10:45 a.m. to 1:45 p.m.

MALACAÑANG explained today that President Garcia had vetoed the National Development Authority bill because it required congressional approval of corporate budgets which tend to reduce the effectiveness of government corporations as instruments for economic and social betterment.

In his veto message to Congress the President pointed out that the provision in the measure that the budgets of the proposed NDA and of the corporations under it shall be effective only after their approval by Congress, would give rise to serious adverse repercussions and implications. Operations of government corporations under the NDA would be paralyzed beginning July 1, 1957, he said.

“This requirement is not necessary for Congress to exercise broad powers of control over government corporations to make for efficient administration of the corporations,” the Chief Executive said. “Congress has the power to investigate the operations of government agencies, including the corporation. Moreover, the financial statements of the corporations are appended to the budget submitted by the Chief Executive to the Congress.”

The President also expressed objection to the Dill (S. B. 560—H. B. 6459) because it did not adequately meet the twin objectives set forth by the late President Magsaysay; namely, (1) to serve as a central implementing arm for economic development and (2) to supervise government corporations.

He said that the proposed NDA was “confined primarily and mostly to the supervision and coordination of government corporations, and, even at that, only of those corporations that may be placed under the Authority.” According to the President, the bill contained no other provision on how the NDA shall serve as an effective central implementing agency for economic plans, policies, and projects.

PRESIDENT Garcia designated Gregorio Rasalan as acting deputy commissioner of civil service, Malacañang announced this day.

Rasalan, who holds the degrees of Bachelor of Arts (1918) and Bachelor of Laws (1923) from the University of the Philippines, was the chief of the Investigation and Law Division of the Bureau of Civil Service until his designation.

His designation was recommended by Civil Service Commissioner Amado del Rosario. He replaces Ruben Ledesma, who was transferred to the Central Bank.

July 11.—PRESIDENT Garcia today expressed confidence that the NP arbitration committee would be able to solve all party local conflicts.

At a breakfast conference this morning with Nacionalista councilors and Vice-Mayor Jesus Marcos Rocas of Manila, the President said that the arbitration committee headed by Senator Jose P. Laurel, Sr., “has a very good batting average, and I am sure it will be able to solve all the local conflicts.”

The President also said that he was referring to the NP executive and arbitration committees all the protests and conflicts brought before him. He made it clear that he never intervened nor did he take a hand in any local conflict in Manila or anywhere else. He said that all local conventions must be held in accordance with the rules and regulations of the party.

The President made the announcement when he was told by some of the councilors of their problems in their respective districts. Three of the councilors informed the President about their intention of running for Congress under the NP banner. The three councilors were Fausto Alberto of the first district, Hermenegildo Gonzaga of the second district, and Gonzalo Santos Rivera of the fourth district.

The Manila councilors assured the President that they were going to work for the victory of whoever is nominated by the coming NP national convention. Most of them expressed the belief that the President would win the nomination.

During the conference, which lasted from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m., the councilors also:

- (1) Unanimously expressed their stand against the appointment of the additional eight councilors of Manila, calling it “a waste of public funds.”
- (2) Suggested the establishment of a cooperative in the City Hall to handle the distribution and sale of NAMARCO goods to the employees and laborers of the City Hall;
- (3) Requested national aid for the establishment of more playgrounds in the city; and
- (4) Requested the early release of the RFC loan for the construction of the City Hall annex.

The President said that he would refer the establishment of the cooperative to the NAMARCO officials for study and action. He also said that he would talk to RFC officials about the loan for the City Hall annex.

Present at the breakfast conference were Vice-Mayor Roces, Councilors Gonzaga, Eriberto Remigio, Alberto, Antonio Barredo, Leonardo Garcia, Angel Linao, Rivera, Pablo Dio Cruz, and Apolonio Gener, and Municipal Board Secretary Paredes Tinoco.

After the breakfast conference, the President received callers. Among the callers were Gov. Salvador Lluch of Lanao and his delegation, Rep. Alberto Ubay and former Gov. Felipe Azcuna of Zamboanga del Norte, and the Ilocos Norte delegation of NP leaders composed of former Gov. Damaso

At 12:30 p.m. the President motored to the Manila Hotel, where he addressed the members of the Manila Rotary Club. The President was guest of honor at the inaugural luncheon-meeting of the Rotary Club of Manila at the Winter Garden of the Manila Hotel. His speech lasted about 15 minutes.

Fetches from Malacañang by Juan J. Carlos, Rotary outgoing president, and Joaquin B. Preysler, incoming vice-president, and accompanied by Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, the Chief Executive arrived at the Manila Hotel promptly at 12:30 p.m. The President and the First Lady were greeted with a prolonged standing ovation as they entered the Rotary meeting hall.

The inaugural program started about 1 p.m. with the National Anthem played by the Philippine Army band under Col. Laureano Cariño.

President Garcia was introduced by Francisco (Paco) Delgado, Rotary president. The Chief Executive finished speaking about 2 p.m.

In his speech before the Rotary Club of Manila at the Manila Hotel, the President cited facts and figures to defend the actions of the Nacionalista Administration in contrast to that of the Liberals.

President Garcia scored the previous Liberal administration for failing to solve substantially the country's economic and budgetary problems during its eight years of administering the nation's affairs.

Replying to the charges made by former speaker Jose Yulo, Liberal Party presidential aspirant, in another Rotary Club speech, President Garcia denounced the Liberals for “all the fallacies foisted upon the people concerning the budget, public indebtedness, and American aid.”

The Chief Executive pointed out that the previous Liberal government, “from 1946 to 1953, foisted annual budgets upon the people with fantastic deficits”.

In contrast to these, he explained, the Nationalista budgets from 1954 to 1956 have always shown surpluses.

Regarding loans, the President said the “past Liberal administration record borders on recklessness” with a total of P208.2 million borrowed to spend on ordinary operations of the government and some P152 million “illegally” taken from the fiduciary trust, special, and sinking funds of the government.

On the other hand, the President stressed, the Nacionalista administration has been able to pay off P157,915,000 of the Liberal government’s budgetary loans “and return all the pilfered funds” from the government coffers.

PRESIDENT Garcia received a 500-man delegation from the Philippine Veterans Legion which marched to Malacañang this afternoon to express their gratitude for his “deep and abiding concern for the welfare of the country’s veterans.”

In a resolution written on laminated wood and unanimously approved by the national directorate, the PVL thanked the President for the sympathetic attitude he had shown in their behalf, particularly his approval of four bills passed during the last session of Congress in which veterans were interested.

The four bills which were signed into laws were (1) that providing for the establishment of a Veterans Claims Commission, (2) that increasing the monthly pensions of permanently disabled vets from P50 to P100, (3) that creating a Reparations Commission and setting up policies to be followed in the disposition of war indemnities from Japan, and (4) that outlawing the Communist Party in the Philippines.

The President said that having fought the Japanese invaders himself during the dark days of the Occupation, he knew the sacrifices the veterans had undergone in defense of their homeland. They could, therefore, always count on him to advance their interest and welfare, he said.

The PVL delegation which staged a gratitude. rally at Malacañang this afternoon included Francisco Ofemaria, national commander; Jose Aranas, national vice-commander “for Luzon; Conrado J. Norada, national vice-commander for the Visayas; Peregrino Andres, national vice-commander for Mindanao; Tomas Nufable, national adjutant; Filomeno Padilla, national treasurer; Dominador Realon, national inspector; and Dante Nagtalon, national judge advocate.

Among the callers at Malacañang in the evening were 11 regional supervisors of the Social Welfare Administration who called to pay their respects, Ambassador Chen Chih-mai of Nationalist China, Rep. Celestino Juan and Gov. Amado Aleta of Nueva Ecija, and other political leaders from nearby provinces.

July 12.—THE President this morning had a breakfast conference with Manila officials headed by Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson with whom he discussed public improvements in the city.

Discussed extensively by the President with the city officials was the exchange of lands between the National Government and the City Government. The exchange involves the City’s land near the Manila Hotel and a government land in Intramuros. It was agreed at the meeting to expedite the exchange of the lands.

The land near the Manila Hotel, will be used by the National Government for the building of a Manila Hotel annex, while the land in Intramuros will be utilized by the City Government for the construction of a P1 million city high school.

Also taken up during the conference which lasted from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m., was the establishment of additional playgrounds and recreational centers in Manila. The President agreed with the city officials that there was a necessity for additional playgrounds and recreational centers, and assured them of national aid.

Political matters were not taken up during the conference. With Mayor Lacson at the meeting were Rep. Joaquin Roces, Vice-Mayor Jesus Marcos Roces, and Jose W. Diokno, the city mayor's legal counsel.

AFTER the conference the President ordered Commissioner of Customs Eleuterio Capapas to release immediately the rice imported by the NARIC from Thailand in order to peg down the price of rice in the areas where this prime commodity is short. The Chief Executive ordered the immediate release of the rice during his conference with NARIC General Manager Vicente Concepcion at Malacañang. Concepcion said that the rice which arrived last July 8 was being held by the Bureau of Customs because of Republic Act No. 2017, which requires the NARIC to pay duty and tax for all rice imported by the government corporation. Concepcion informed the President that the rice imported by the NARIC from Thailand was 2,710 metric tons or 27,000 sacks.

The President ordered Capapas to release the rice and settle later with the NARIC about the payment of duties. The Chief Executive called Concepcion to Malacañang and inquired into the status of the imported rice.

After his conference with Concepcion, the President received Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao, Sen. Edmundo Cea, Defense Undersecretary Jose M. Crisol, and Gov. Jose Dinglasan of Capiz.

Gov. Nicanor Maronilla Seva of Albay was also an early caller of the President. He called on the Chief Executive before the breakfast conference. IN the afternoon the President, received some 50 governors and city mayors who presented him with a scroll endorsing his candidacy. Mayor Sergio Osmeña, Jr., who has been reported as supporting the Liberal Party presidential candidate, Jose Yulo, reiterated that he was with the governors and mayors for President Garcia.

After meeting the governors and mayors, the President presided over his weekly press conference. He inducted the new officers of the Malacañang Press Association; namely, Silvino Caparas, Daily Mirror, president; Celestino M. Vega, BagongBuhay, vice-president; Mabini Rey Centeno, Liwayway, secretary; Richard Po, Great China Press, treasurer; and Jesus Ortiz, Voz de Manila, sergeant-at-arms.

He said he was optimistic he would get 60 per cent of the delegates' votes.

The President likewise dismissed as speculations that Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez would also seek the presidential nomination.

He blamed the report on intriguers. However, President' Garcia refused to name those intriguers within the NP.

Answering Sen. Pelaez' blast that the NP would break up if he won the nomination, the President said that the Misamis solon could not speak for the party. "If that is his view," the President said, "he is entitled to his own opinion."

Asked about the charges Lacson aired in his weekly radio broadcast against Yulo, LP presidential bet, the President said he was familiar with the P2 million loan the former speaker allegedly secured without sufficient collaterals.

He said he believed the loan was anomalous and recalled he picked it up in the campaign in 1953 as an issue against Yulo, then the LP vice-presidential candidate. However, he refused to say whether he would do anything about the loan.

The President told newsmen he was not familiar with Lacson's charges on the tax liabilities of the LP presidential standard bearer.

On the matter of his vice-presidential running mate, the President reiterated he was leaving the choice of the vice-presidential candidate to the convention.

After the press conference, the President received delegations from Ilocos Sur, headed by former Gov. Perfecto Faypon, and from Batangas, accompanied by Rep. Apolinario Apacible.

The Ilocos Sur delegation included Board Member Faustino Tobia and. Mayors Godofredo S. Reyes of Sta. Maria, Nicolas Bello of Santa, and Juan Ines of Sinait. The Batangas group included Mayors Leon Sangalang of Lemery, Pedro Diokno of San Luis, Gregorio Brotonil of Aguinaldo, Olimpio Sayo of Calatagan, Quirino Lejano of Lian, and Conrado Macatangay of Calaca.

The President also received a delegation of 50 NP provincial governors and city mayors who presented him with a resolution, unanimously approved at their convention, pledging to work for his nomination in the convention.

Mayor Osmeña of Cebu City, president of the governors and mayors league, presented to the President a scroll signed by the governors and mayors.

Elated by the pledge, the President expressed optimism he would win the convention with their support.

A Malacañang spokesman pointed out that the governors have many delegates who could swing the convention in favor of the President.

Osmeña, in presenting the scroll, told the President that not all the governors signed the resolution because of their inability to attend the convention.

The provincial executives also explained that governors who were not at the convention had previously pledged their support to the President.

PRESIDENT Garcia today directed Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao to investigate immediately the alleged hazing of Cadet Juanito Rimando, who is now confined at V. Luna General Hospital.

The alleged hazing of Plebe Rimando was brought before the attention of the President by the cadet's mother, Mrs. Maria R. Rimando, who said "I was promised by the officers of the PMA that they would take action against the guilty cadet, but I don't know if they have already investigated and taken action against the cadets mentioned by my son to have participated in the hazing."

Mrs. Rimando told the President that her son was hazed by upper classmen on June 15, 1957, and as a result he was operated on last June 17 at the PMA hospital. Cadet Rimando, was later transferred to the V. Luna General Hospital, where he is still confined. Mrs. Rimando said she finds no progress" in her son's recovery. The President talked to Mrs. Rimando for about 15 minutes.

July 13.—NACIONALISTA political leaders from all six provinces of the Bicol region converged upon Naga City today, to give President Garcia a rousing welcome and to reassure him of their solid support in the forthcoming NP convention as well as in the November polls.

Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, who accompanied the President to Naga this morning, said he had been authorized to inform the Chief Executive that all 128 delegates of the Bicol bloc to the NP convention would support his nomination and work for his election.

Secretary Hernandez explained that his fellow Bicolanos were subordinating whatever local differences and divergence of views they might have on other political questions in order to put up a solid front behind the candidacy of President Garcia.

“The provinces of Camarines Norte, Camarines Sur, Albay, Sorsogon, Catanduanes, and Masbate have a total of 128 delegates to the NP convention, and we are giving it all to President Garcia,” Hernandez said. “If we had more delegates, we would give more to the President.”

In an informal interview with newspapermen who were with the presidential party in Camarines Sur, Sen. Pedro Sabido this noon also said he was quite certain that neither Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., nor Senator Jose P.-Laurel, Sr., would submit their names for nomination against the President.

“Why should we put up a candidate other than President Garcia and place our opponents on equal footing with us? Sen. Sabido asked. He explained that it would be more advantageous for the NP’s to have an incumbent president as their standard bearer.

Practically all NP senators, congressmen, governors, mayors, and other political leaders in all six Bicol provinces were on hand to receive the President on his visit to Naga today. Accompanied by Sens. Sabido and Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez; Reps. Felix Fuentebella of Camarines Sur, Justino Nuyda of Catanduanes, and Angel M. Castaño of Manila; and Gov. Bernardo Torres of Leyte, the President landed at the Pili airport near Naga at 8:15 a.m. aboard the presidential plane Dagohoy, formerly the Laong-Laan, used by the late President Quirino.

Among his welcomers at the airport were mayors’ delegations from Camarines Norte headed by Rep. Fernando Pajarillo, from Camarines Sur headed by Gov. Juan Triviño and Ambassador Jose Fuentebella from Albay led by Gov. Nicanor Maronilla-Seva, and from Sorsogon headed by Gov. Juan Frivaldo and Rep. Salvador Encinas.

After acknowledging the cheers of his welcomers, the President was whisked in an open car to Naga City, some 12 kilometers away, at the head of a three-kilometer long motorcade of cars, jeeps, and buses. In Naga city he heard a Te Deum at the Nueva Caceres cathedral. Then he had breakfast at the residence of Ambassador Fuentebella, where he conferred with Bicol political leaders.

In a mammoth rally held later at the city plaza, the President thanked the people of Bicolandia for their pledge of support as well as for the lavish reception accorded him and members of his party. “I fervently hope I shall continue to deserve this Bicol hospitality showered upon me today” he said.

The President expressed regret for his inability to prolong his visit in the locality because of pressing engagements in Manila. He, however, promised to return and visit other towns in the Bicol region which, he said had always stood by the NP administration in the past.

It rained hard during most of the President’s brief stay in Naga, but at 10 a.m., the time the public rally was scheduled, the rains stopped. It resumed pouring again after the President had spoken.

There were fireworks display during the rally. A huge plastic balloon with the inscription, “Long Live President Garcia,” was released amidst cheers of Mabuhay from the mammoth crowd gathered at the plaza despite inclement weather.

After luncheon at the University of Nueva Caceres, the President took off at the Pili airport for the return trip to Manila under a driving rain. The presidential plane had to leave as early as possible in order to head off a fast-approaching typhoon.

The President was back in Malacañang about 3:30 p.m.

He conferred this afternoon with provincial governors and city mayors headed by Mayor Sergio Osmeña, Jr., at Malacañang.

PRESIDENT Garcia extended a 30-day reprieve to three prisoners who are scheduled to burn Monday (July 15), Malacañang announced this day.

The three prisoners are Bautista Ragandan, Hilario Mendova, and Alfredo Mendova, on whom the death penalty had been imposed for the crime of robbery with double murder.

The President in his order said that the report and recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole on the petition for commutation to life imprisonment of the death penalty imposed upon said prisoners had just been received in Malacañang and some time was needed for a thorough and careful consideration of the merits of the petition.

The 30-day reprieve expires on August 13, 1957.

July 14.—PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia today stayed aboard the yacht Santa Maria with a rowdy group of guests—newspapermen and their ladies.

The Garcias, together with their son-in-law, Fernando Campos, dined, wine, and even played and danced with their guests.

“We shall have another affair like this,” President Garcia said in brief remarks to the reporters. “And it will be after the elections.”

The Santa Maria was converted into a floating casino as the hosts and their guests played dice and mahjongg. The President played chess with several newsmen and beat all of them.

The President and the First Lady, who were in high spirits, danced to the tune of Calypso music furnished by an Army band while the boat rocked and roiled as it was lashed by huge waves outside the breakwater.

A number of newspapermen and most of the ladies got seasick, forcing Commodore Jose Francisco, Navy chief, to order the yacht to return to Pier 5.

Mrs. Garcia left the boat at 3 o’clock in the afternoon in order to catch up with an engagement, while the President stayed aboard the boat with the newsmen until sundown.

July 15.—THE President this morning took steps to encourage the cotton industry by approving the lease of a government land in Mindanao to the Cotton Plantation, Inc., a corporation 80 per cent Filipino, through the National Development Company.

NDC General Manager Jose Panganiban, who recommended approval of the lease, said that the terms of the lease would be similar to that which had been granted to the Philippine Packing Corporation.

Panganiban pointed out that one of the provisions of the contract of lease provides for profit sharing between the corporation and the government.

The President approved the lease at a breakfast this morning with Jose Fernandez, Cielito Zamora, Romeo Villongco, and Harry Stonehill, board members of the Cotton Plantation Corporation. After the breakfast, the President proceeded to his study to receive his callers.

Gov. Rafael Lazatin of Pampanga accompanied Candaba Mayor Godofredo Gatus, who requested aid for public works improvements in his town.

Also present were Mrs. Constancia Maglalang and Jose Jecson, head teacher and teacher of the Sta. Ana Primary School and the Candaba Elememary School, respectively, who requested prefab schoolhouses in their respective localities.

Then the President received Sultan Batu Ali, a political leader from Dansalan City. Accompanied by former Mayor Cesar Bendigo of Sta. Cruz, Davao, the sultan denied reports that he had pledged his support to a Liberal Party presidential candidate. Batu Ali reiterated his pledge to support President Garcia's election bid.

Then the President proceeded to his private chamber, where he conferred with defense and AFP officials.

PRESIDENT Garcia today directed the AFP judge advocate general to review the report of Philippine Military Academy authorities which had investigated the alleged brutal hazing of the 4th Class Cadet Juanito Rimando.

Giving his directive through the AFP general staff, the President directed the JAGO to submit its recommendations within 48 hours.

The President issued his directive after receiving the report of the PMA board of officers which was submitted by PMA Superintendent Brig. Gen. Marcos Soliman. General Soliman was accompanied to Malacañang by Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao, Defense Undersecretary Jose M. Crisol, and AFP Chief of Staff Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano.

At the conference with defense and AFP officials this morning, the President recalled that certain improvements in the PMA administration had been undertaken by the late President Magsaysay during whose time a hazing case reached the late Chief Executive. President Garcia ordered that further efforts be exerted to correct whatever defects may yet be found in that military institution.

The PMA authorities investigating the hazing case recommended the dismissal of nine cadets, the suspension for one year of seven, and disciplinary action for three.

Recommended for dismissal were Second Class Cadets Jesus N. Alcordo, Rudy B. Enojas, Primitivo V. Lara, Diosdado Cunanan, Bernabe Oreña, Jose S. Capa; and Third Class Cadets Eduardo Enriquez, Oscar Florendo, and Urso D. Bello.

Recommended for one-year suspension were Second Class Cadets Manuel Oxales, Gumersindo Yap, Jose Filio, Virgilio Blas, Elias Sta. Clara; and Third Class Cadets Mateo Buwagas and Rolando Guzman.

THIS evening President Garcia received a delegation representing local producers and importers who protested against a resolution of the Monetary Board of the Central Bank reducing their regular foreign exchange allocations for the current semester.

The delegation informed the President that the reduction of their dollar quotas had caught them by surprise, as Resolution No. 950 of the MB was passed last June 26 without warning nor prior hearing. They expressed fear that it might result in the paralyzation of industries affected and the laying off of thousands of workers.

Jesus Cabarrus, president of the Base Metals Association, who acted as spokesman, said that 44 private producer and importer firms were affected by the MB ruling. He said that the withdrawal of exchange allocations would keep producer firms from importing much-needed machinery, spare parts, and supplies for their factories.

The President said he would confer with members of the MB sometime tomorrow and find out their reasons for adopting the resolution. He said he would decide on the protest as soon as he had heard the side of the board.

The disputed MB resolution provided that “regular foreign exchange allocations for the second semester of 1957, of quota holding firms which have been granted barter permits by the No-Dollar Import Office, Department of Commerce and Industry, shall be reduced to the extent of the amount of such barter permits granted during the first semester of 1957.” The resolution was published in a circular issued by the Central Bank last July 3.

Cabarrus said that the new ruling would automatically reduce the importation of much-needed machinery replacements from the United States. Since barter could only be made with Japan, which does not have the required machinery, the curtailment of the importation would impair the operation of the firms, he said. Among those affected are mining, lumber, abaca, copra, and importer firms.

Other members of the delegation which called at Malacañang this evening were Jose Cuyugan, general manager of the Philippine Iron Mines; P. B. Dionisio, Ramon Bagatsing, and Dominador Ramos, vice-president, treasurer, and director, respectively, of the Producers and Exporters Association; and Sebastian Ugarte, secretary-treasurer of the Base Metals Association.

Official Month in Review: August 1 – August 15, 1957

August 1.— THIS morning the President had his eyes examined by EENT experts of the Veterans Memorial Hospital on the occasion of the opening of the Sight Saving Week.

The EENT experts, Dr. Noe Legasto, chief of the EENT department of the VMH, and Dr. Terencio Gener, EENT specialist of the VMH, said that the eyeglasses being used by the President were still all right for his eyes.

Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia's eyes were also examined by Dr. Legasto and Dr. Gener. The EENT specialists told the First Lady that she should get a new pair of eyeglasses with a higher grade.

Present during the examination of the President's and the First Lady's eyes in the music room of Malacañang were Acting Labor Secretary Agapito Braganza, Sight Saving Week Committee Chairman Ernesto Runno, Philippine Eye Bank Chairman Leopoldo Rovira, Jr., VMH Director Joaquin Sanchez, Dr. Guillermo Ilano, Dr. Marcelino Angangco, VMH assistant director, P.E.B. co-Chairman Henry Tang, Director Jose S. Alfonso, Ramon Zosa, Mrs. Benjie Kosloff, Mrs. Amparo L. de Guzman, Mrs. Dominador Aytona, and others.

After the examination of his eyes, the President received the Earl of Bandon, commander-in-chief of the British Royal Air Force in the Far East. The Earl of Bandon, who paid a courtesy call, was accompanied by Christopher Ewart-Piggs, charge d'affaires of the British Embassy.

Other callers of the President were mostly provincial delegations headed by political leaders. The callers renewed their pledges of support to the President's election bid. Among those who saw the President were Gov. Bierivenido Ebarle of Zamboanga del Sur and his delegation; Mayor H. de Pedro of Koronadal, Cotabato, and his followers; Gov. Diego Ty-Deling of Misamis Occidental and Mayor Angel Medina of Ozamis City; Rep. Jose Nuguid of Bataan; Rep. Godofredo Ramos and Gov. Jose Raz Mehes of Aklan and their delegation; Gov. Valeriano Gatuslao of Negros Occidental; Rep. Tobias Former of Antique, and Gov. Juan Alberto of Catanduanes. Another courtesy caller of the President was retired U.S. Navy Capt. Richard Gaines.

The President also received Enrique Soriano of Iloilo, who was a delegate to the recent Nacionalista Party national convention. Soriano reported to the President that because of the lack of irrigation system in Iloilo there was a draught in the towns of Balasan, Estancia, Carles, and Batad. The President assured Soriano that he did instruct, Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno to look into the possibility of constructing an irrigation system to serve the, four towns.

PRESIDENT Garcia conferred with a number of city and provincial executives who called on him at Malacañang this afternoon to air their views and suggestions, regarding the political situations in their respective localities and requested him to transmit those suggestions to the executive committee of the Nacionalista Party.

At an impromptu press conference following his meeting with the city and provincial officials, the President did not reveal the views and suggestions aired.

Those who met with the President at the Council of, State room in Malacañang from 6 to 7 p.m. were Mayor Sergio Osmeña, Jr., of Cebu City and Govs. Amado Aleta of Nueva Ecija, Juan Alberto of Catanduanes, Alejandro Almendras of Davao, Bernardo Torres of Leyte, Felixberto Dagani of Agusan, Marcos Malupa of Batanes, and Romulo Garrovillo of Zamboanga del Norte.

August 2.—PRESIDENT Garcia, who has been kept busy by crowds of delegates and other callers who visited him the whole week after his first ballot victory, slipped out of Malacañang early this morning.

He boarded the Navy ship Alert, together with his aide, Maj. Jose Estrella, and cruised around Manila Bay for a three-day rest.

The President is planning to stay aboard the ship until Sunday. He may extend his cruise until Monday, as he plans to shy away from the Nacionalista Party executive committee meeting to give that body “a free hand” in choosing his running mate. President Garcia has refrained from throwing his support behind any of the vice-presidential aspirants.

President Garcia said he wanted to stay alone. He has previously told his aides to cut down on callers but many visitors trooped to Malacañang just the same. Most of them claimed they were delegates to the NP convention which had endorsed his nomination on the first ballot.

The President decided to board the Alert, as his hideout in Fort Wm. McKinley has been too well-known for him to seek refuge from callers.

Before motoring to the wharf, the President directed Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon to accept the resignation of Defense Undersecretary Jose M. Crisol and sign it.

He likewise directed Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff, SWA Administrator Amparo Villamor, and Technical Assistant Sofronio Quimson to proceed to Pangasinan to check up on the progress of the reconstruction and relief work in the flooded areas.

Before leaving Malacañang to board the Alert, the President received Rep. Maximino Noel of Cebu.

On board the Alert, the President conferred with Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno on matters affecting the Central Bank. After Cuaderno left, President Garcia held a breakfast conference with a group headed by former Sen. Felixberto Verano which included Aproniano Borres and Guillermo Anton.

At 11 a.m. the President received Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona and discussed with the latter routine matters involving the budget.

He then received Rep. Manuel Zosa of Cebu and Gov. Juan Trivifio of Camarines Sur, after which he worked on pending state papers.

Up to late at night, the President was still on board the Alert. Malacañang could not say whether or not he was spending the night on board the Navy ship.

August 3.—THE PRESIDENT stayed aboard the Navy ship Alert for the second consecutive day today, cruising around Manila Bay.

The President was reported to have relaxed the whole day, napping and playing chess aboard the Alert.

President Garcia used the Alert, as the presidential yacht Santa Maria is under repairs after it had been used by newsmen and their ladies a few days before the convention.

A brief report reaching Malacañang said that the President received the report of a presidential team which had enplaned for Mabini, Pangasinan, this day to survey the progress of relief and reconstruction operations in the flooded areas.

The report was submitted to the President by Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff, Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor, and Technical Assistant Sofronio Quimson.

The President had ordered the trio to fly to Mabini early this morning to check on the relief brought to the flooded areas.

Malacañang also said the President had lunch aboard the RPS Ifugao, one of the Navy cruisers. It was not known why the President transferred to the light cruiser for lunch.

However, after his lunch, the President was reported to have returned to the Alert, where he took a short nap and then played chess with an ill .Identified playmate.

President Garcia may return to Malacañang tomorrow evening, although there were reports that he may stay aboard the Alert till Monday afternoon and let the N.P executive committee choose his running mate.

While aboard the Alert this day, the President was reported to have listened to the progress of the Liberal Party convention proceedings through a radio set.

August 4.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning heard mass aboard the RPS Ifugao, anchored a short distance from the Navy headquarters, where he had been staying since Saturday to study state papers.

After breakfast he read the Sunday papers and received a few callers. Among the callers were Gov. Amado Aleta of Nueva Ecija, who discussed problems affecting his province, and GSIS General Manager Rodolfo Andal, who took up GSIS matters.

Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia and a few members of the President's family went aboard the RPS Ifugao, where they ate lunch with the President. About 2 p.m., Mrs. Garcia and her companions returned to Malacañang.

Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable, Gov. Juan Pajo of Bohol, and Assistant Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison also boarded the ship and conferred with the President. The President gave his order summoning heads of several government agencies to attend the Cabinet meeting on Wednesday.

Among the office chiefs summoned to the Cabinet meeting were Ernesto Jimenez, acting ACCFA administrator; Juan O. Chioco, NARIC chairman; Benjamin F. Estrella, NAMARCO general manager; Manuel Castaneda, land tenure administrator; and Fernando Santiago, Agricultural Tenancy Commission chairman.

The President said that he would like to know from these officials their progress in implementing the government's objective of attending to the primary needs of the people. He added that if these officials had problems in carrying out their work, the President and the Cabinet members would discuss the problems and seek their solution.

The Chief Executive said that he wanted to know personally from Jimenez and Chioco the present rice and corn situation, and the working agreement between these two agencies regarding their previous difficulties.

President Garcia would like to be informed how the ACCFA head was implementing a recent presidential order on the improvement of the mechanics of fertilizer distribution and increased allocations of fertilizers to meet the requirements of farmers.

With regard to the NAMARCO, the President would like to have a report on the present sugar situation and to know if this agency was supplying the local retailers with enough prime commodities needed by the consuming public.

President Garcia said that he was interested in receiving a progress report of the Land Tenure Administration as to the number of landed estates already bought and subdivided and the number of tenants who have been benefited.

He would like also to be informed by the Agricultural Tenancy Commission on the progress it was making in the promotion of better relationships between the landowners and the tenants.

Mrs. Amparo Villamor, social welfare administrator, and a member of the Cabinet will also report on the work of her office in helping ameliorate the living conditions of the people.

The Chief Executive said that he wanted the heads of various government agencies to apprise him and the Cabinet of what they were doing and to present their problems so that these could be solved. He added that he wanted to know these reports so that he could vigorously implement the government policy of attending to the people's needs more effectively.

ON learning about former Speaker Eugenio Perez's death, the President sent the following message of condolence:

"I join the Filipino people in mourning the death of former Speaker Eugenio Perez. Fondly called 'The Manong', he was an outstanding leader of his party. In my long years of association with him, I found him both a worthy opponent in politics and a sincere friend. Mrs. Garcia and I extend our heartfelt condolences to Mrs. Perez and her family and pray to the Almighty for his eternal repose."

IN the afternoon, the President worked on state papers. He is expected to be back to Malacañang tomorrow morning.

August 5.— AT a luncheon this noon tendered by Speaker Jose B. Laurel Jr., at the Filipinas Hotel after his proclamation as the Nacionalista official vice-presidential candidate, President Garcia reiterated his appeal for NP unity in order to insure the party's victory in the coming elections.

At the same time, the Chief Executive expressed his appreciation over the results of the NP national convention and the deliberations of the NP executive committee in reposing their confidence in him and in Speaker Laurel.

"I am sure of one thing—the masses of our people have faith and confidence in the Nacionalista Party, and we shall not fail the people who have already pronounced a favorable judgment on the Nacionalista Party, as shown in public manifestations, especially in the 18 provinces I have visited recently," the President said.

Among those present at the luncheon were Sens. Jose P. Laurel, Sr., Pacita M. Gonzalez, Manuel C. Briones, Pedro Sabido, Cipriano Primicias, Jose C. Locsin, Roseller T. Lim, Alejo Mabanag, and Domocao Alonto; Secretaries Jaime Hernandez, Florencio Moreno, Fortunato de Leon, and Eulogio Balao; Reps. Jose Aldeguer, Arturo M. Tolentino, Bartolome Cabangbang, Angel Castaño, Tobias Fbrnier, Francisco Ortega, and Ramon Mitra; Govs. Nicanor Maronilla Seva, Arsenio Lugay, Bernardo Torres, Alejandro Almendras, and Dominador Chipeco; Ambassadors Felixberto Serrano and Jose Fuentebella; and Cebu City Mayor Sergio Osmeña, Jr.

After lunch the President, together with Speaker Laurel and other NP stalwarts, motored to the residence of former Speaker Eugenio Perez to condole with the widow, Mrs. Consuelo Salazar-Perez, and immediate members of the family.

UPON arriving at Malacañang early this morning from RPS Ifugao, the President started receiving callers, among them Secretaries Oscar Ledesma, Eulogio Balao, and Florencio Moreno; Ambassador Serrano, CB Governor Miguel Cuaderno, Sen. Roseller T. Lim, and Gov. Valeriano Gatuslao.

Then he proceeded to the Malacañang lawn where he reassured about 1,000 recognized and unrecognized guerrillas belonging to the Talbac Regiment that the Veterans Commission as provided for in R. A. 1889 would be created soon. Screening of guerrilla applications for veterans benefits would also start soon, he said.

At the study room, the President received members of the Batangas Lawyers Association, led by Mario Gutierrez, who requested him to be their guest speaker at the induction of their officers.

Soon after this, Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., arrived with Speaker Protempore Daniel Z. Romualdez, to inform officially the President of Speaker Laurel's selection as official vice-presidential candidate of the Nacionalista Party.

Speaker Laurel also invited the President for luncheon at the Filipinas Hotel to celebrate his selection.

THE President today accepted “with the utmost regret” Press Secretary J. V. Cruz’s resignation, “effective upon the appointment of your successor.”

In submitting his resignation, Secretary Cruz said that as he had been nominated and confirmed as the official candidate of the Nacionalista Party for the lone congressional seat of Bataan, “I will have to begin campaigning for your victory and mine, and that of our party’s entire ticket in the coming November elections.”

Cruz said that it had been a pleasure and a privilege for him to have served with President Garcia, “not only as your press secretary since your succession to the Presidency but long before that, at the various SEATO conferences which I had attended as a member of the Philippine delegation under your wise guidance and leadership.”

He expressed confidence that the people would renew their faith and confidence in President Garcia’s stewardship of their affairs at the November elections. He expressed the hope that he would have the “opportunity to continue serving you as a member of congress.”

President Garcia praised J. V. for having discharged the responsibilities and functions of his office with high distinction. The President said that this fact had been recognized early “during your tenure by the most appropriate and severest possible judge of your work, the National Press Club, when it unanimously recommended to the late President Magsaysay that your position be raised to Cabinet rank, and the late President readily acceded.”

The President gave assurance that he would contribute in every way he could to J. V.’s election to Congress, “not only because of your obvious qualifications to serve in that august body but because I will need, assuming my own re-election, your continued service and support.”

The President thanked J. V. for his pledge of assistance, and he expressed high hopes that “our cause will meet with the enthusiastic endorsement and approval of an overwhelming majority of our people.”

August 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia received numerous callers the whole morning today.

After a breakfast conference with Sens. Jose Locsin and Cipriano Primicias, the President received former Sen. Salipada Pendatun and Rep. Luminog Mangelen. He also received Sens. Quintin Paredes and Francisco Delgado and PNB President Arsenio Jison.

Two separate delegations from Iloilo, one headed by Gov. Mariano Peñaflorida and the other, by Sen. Jose C. Zulueta, saw the President.

The delegation led by Peñaflorida included Reps., Pedro Trono and Ricardo Y. Ladrado; Domitilo Abordo; Mayors Toribio Barredo of Barotac Nuevo, Rafael Lacuesta of Lambunao, Severino Fernandez of Calinoc, and Florentino Perez of Pototan; Dr. Ricardo Provideo; and Esteban Debuque.

Zulueta’s delegation included Provincial Board Member Guadalino Mosqueda; Ceferino de los Santos and Nicolas Centeno; and Mayors Juanito Pondon of Dumangas, Nicolas Tarrosa of Banate, Potenciano Imperial of Lucena, and Simplicio Carreon of Oton.

Eligio J. Tavanlar, past president of the Manila Lions Club, led a delegation of fellow Lions to ask the President to be the guest speaker at a banquet to be given at the Manila Hotel on August 19, birthday of the Late President Manuel L. Quezon. Other Lions present were Eduardo Escobar, president; Dr. Climpio Villacorta, immediate past president; Leon Lopez, first vice-president; Domingo Arcega, secretary; and Mike Campos, director.

Rufino G. Gache led a delegation of officials and members of the Bicol Youth for Garcia Campaign Committee. Other members present included Juan E. Verdad, Carmelisa Reyes, Jose Montanez, Napoleon Fulay, Guadalupe Basco, Wilfrido Panotes, Jr., Jose Tayato Ester Cater, Lourdes Balce, and Dr. Restituto Valentin.

In response to the wire for aid of the 360 workers of the Philippine Rubber Project Company in Kabasalan, Zamboanga del Sur, who are on strike, President Garcia contributed P500 from his personal funds as aid for the purchase of 20 sacks of rice. Alfredo R. Gomez, president of the Labor and Tenant Movement for Garcia, together with Ricardo Z. Buyco, president of the Inter-island Labor Organization, and Dominador S. Sustento, ILO legal counsel, told the President that they would enplane tomorrow for Kabasalan to deliver the presidential aid.

Gomez said that President Garcia proved he was a true friend of labor.

PRESIDENT Garcia today granted another 30-day reprieve to death convict Crispin Verzo, who was scheduled to burn on the electric chair tomorrow.

Verzo, who had been sentenced to death for planting a time bomb in a Philippine Air Lines plane, had been previously given a 30-day stay of execution by the President. The first reprieve expires today.

The President, in granting another reprieve, said that "some time was considered still necessary for a thorough and careful study of the merits of the petitions for executive clemency filed in behalf of prisoner Crispin Verzo."

IN the afternoon, the President conferred for several minutes with Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., the Nacionalista Party's vice-presidential candidate, and later presided over a press conference.

Speaker Laurel was grilled by Palace newsmen on the Batangas electoral reaction in the coming polls. He declared that "no Batangueño can say Sen. Claro M. Recto will lose in Batangas."

However, he added that his election as President Garcia's running mate has greatly improved the chances of candidates in that province.

"Senator Recto is not the only Batangueño. I am a Batangueño and so is my father," Speaker Laurel said.

It was one of the most well-attended press conferences, with a number of "rah-rah" boys from several Garcia-for-President clubs present to furnish the line for the President to follow.

President Garcia also announced he was naming Assistant Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison as acting press secretary to replace Secretary J. V. Cruz, who resigned the other day.

THE following is the text of the joint statement of President Garcia and Speaker Laurel as presidential and vice-presidential candidates, respectively, of the Nacionalista Party:

"In this our first joint press conference as official candidates of the Nacionalista Party, we would like to offer our greetings to the people of the Philippines through the press and radio.

"We are deeply grateful to the Nacionalista Party for its overwhelming manifestation of confidence in choosing us to be its standard bearers in the coming national elections.

"Drawing strength from this mandate of our Party, we are determined to push onward to victory our campaign for the entire Nacionalista Party ticket. We will go to the people whose will is sovereign in a democracy—in the barrios, on the farms, in the factories, and everywhere else—and remind them of this truth: That the Nacionalista Party Administration has been faithfully implementing the program of government as initiated by our beloved late President Ramon Magsaysay.

“We will ask them to reaffirm their faith in the Nacionalista Party because it has proved itself the genuine guardian of Magsaysay’s ideals for good government. For it is through the Nacionalista Party that the people can realize the fulfillment of the late leader’s dream of improving their lot.

“We are confident that with the aid of Divine Providence and the solid support of our Party and the people, all Nacionalista candidates will be given an impressive verdict of victory at the November polls.

“We also would like to take this opportunity to convey our gratitude to the press, radio, and television for their splendid cooperation in the holding of a democratic convention as well as an honest and orderly nomination.”

IN the evening the President received a delegation of five provincial governors who suggested the inclusion of provincial governors in the NP senatorial ticket and in the Cabinet.

The governors who called on the President were Juan Alberto of Catanduanes, Alejandro Almendras of Davao, Francisco Infantado of Mindoro Oriental, Juan Triviho of Camarines Sur, and Diego Ty-Deling of Misamis Occidental.

The President assured the governors that he would transmit their request to the Nacionalista Party executive committee.

The President also received the San Juan, Rizal, councilors headed by Vice-Mayor Sofronio Veloso. The councilors and Vice-Mayor Veloso pledged their support to the President’s election bid. They also invited the Chief Executive to inaugurate the San Juan GPM (Garcia-for-President-Movement) headquarters where Vice-Mayor Veloso is the coordinator.

Other callers of the President included Rep. Reynaldo Honrado of Surigao and his delegation, Rep. Lamberto Macias of Negros Oriental and his delegation, and Gov. Manuel Solidum of Romblon and Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno.

August 7.—THIS morning the President had breakfast with political leaders from Lanao with whom he discussed local problems like public improvements and the province’s political situation.

Present at the breakfast were Sen. Domocao Alonto, Lanao Gov. Salvador Lluch, Mardki Alonto and Laurentino Badolles, a congressional aspirant. Also present at the breakfast was Olimpio Villacorta, former Liberal Party stalwart of Lanao, who pledged his support to the entire Nacionalista Party ticket in the coming elections.

The Lanao leaders reiterated their pledge of support for all the Nacionalista official candidates in the coming elections. They assured the President that the Nacionalista Party will win in Lanao.

After the breakfast, the President proceeded to the Council of State room, where he presided over the regular Cabinet meeting.

PRESIDENT Garcia and his Cabinet in a 4-hour meeting this day attended by six heads of government agencies:

- (1) Discussed ways to pull down the prices of essential commodities and provide incentives for better production; and
- (2) Received a progress report on what the government has already accomplished in providing lands and homes for the landless and the homeless, and in promoting better relations between tenants and landowners,

The need for lowering the price of rice and maintaining it at the authorized ₱.85 level and the necessity of providing incentives to producers in order to increase rice production and thereby assure its steady local supply, were resolved by adopting the following measures:

(1) Aside from the expected arrival of some 40,000 tons of rice at about the end of August, the President and the Cabinet approved an additional importation of 20,635 tons. This will cover up the expected shortage of rice caused by pests and typhoons which hit the Bicol region, Visayas, Mindanao, and Central Luzon, including the poor second rice crop in Central Luzon.

NARIC Chairman Juan O. Chioco explained to the Cabinet that the first NARIC importation of 39,365 tons of rice this year had already been exhausted and the expected 40,000 tons was due to arrive at the end of this month. He, however, stressed that in view of the anticipated rice shortage, there was still necessity to import the additional 20,635 tons in order to cover the 100,000 tons of rice importation originally intended for this year as approved by the late President Magsaysay.

The President and the Cabinet agreed that with these steps, together with the harvest of upland and other early palay varieties in September, the price of rice would gradually drop to a normal ₱.85 per ganta of Macan ordinario and remain steady until the year's end. It was believed by the Cabinet that these measures could solve the immediate rice problem.

However, the President and the Cabinet adopted a measure designed to solve the rice problem on a long-range basis by means of increasing the production of this staple commodity.

Upon the suggestion of Acting ACCFA Administrator Ernesto Jimenez, the President and the Cabinet approved that the NARIC buy all palay, Macan No. 2, at prices ranging from ₱10 to ₱10.50 a cavan. This was calculated to give an incentive to rice producers to increase their volume of production. The President at the same time said that he would soon create a committee to study ways of giving further incentives to producers. It was believed that the ultimate solution to the shortage in the production of staple crops, was production and that this could only be realized when the proper incentives were given to producers.

The President, through Jimenez, thanked all FACOMA members for their cooperation with the government in selling to the NARIC through the CCE all their palay which amounted to some 500,000 cavans.

Regarding the corn situation, Chioco said that the price of corn in consuming areas was now ₱.50 to ₱.55 a ganta of grits. This price is considered normal.

The lowering of the price of corn grits from ₱70 per ganta during the months of May, June, and July to the present level was, according to Chioco, brought about by the NARIC sale of corn grits direct to the consumer at not more than ₱40 a ganta, as originally ordered by the late President Magsaysay. Chioco added that the harvest of corn in Davao, Cotabato, and Pagadian (Zamboanga del Sur) had already started.

However, Chioco called the attention of the Cabinet that as a result of its selling of corn at ₱40 a ganta, the NARIC had, as of June 31, suffered a total loss of ₱1,182,000.

(2) Regarding sugar, NAMARCO General Manager Benjamin F. Estrella reported that the NAMARCO, upon a previous order of President Garcia, had procured sugar for distribution to the public. He said that the NAMARCO had enough golden brown sugar stocks that would last until the end of September, to be sold at from ₱.30 to ₱.35 a kilo.

Estrella explained that the price of sugar could not go down immediately because sugar distributors had first to dispose of their old sugar stocks which had been procured at a higher price. He said the new and lower prices would be felt in a week or so.

In order to control more effectively the price of sugar, Estrella recommended that the government take an active participation in the procurement and distribution of sugar. He said that as the milling season would be around October and November, action should begin immediately with regard to the procurement of this commodity.

(3) Regarding the lowering of the cost of other essential commodities, the President and the Cabinet approved that NAMARCO officials hold a conference with Monetary Board officials in order to thresh out differences as to the interpretation of the NAMARCO law allotting $20 million to the NAMARCO for the importation of controlled goods, in addition to the $14 million for decontrolled items.

It was explained by Estrella that his office was facing difficulty in getting additional dollar allocations from the Central Bank because amounts already drawn by the NAMARCO against its $14 million allotment for decontrolled items were being charged against the $20 million as allowed by the NAMARCO law. Estrella said that in view of this difficulty in get the full dollar allocations for the NAMARCO, his office could not import enough prime commodities to flood the market and bring down prices to reasonable levels.

Estrella, however, pointed out that if the NAMARCO could also utilize its $34 million total allocation for the importation of goods it would have sufficient stocks to stabilize prices.

President Garcia and his Cabinet heard PHHC General Manager Vicente Orosa report on the progress of the government's low-cost housing projects; Land Tenure Administration Chairman Manuel E. Castañeda, on the number of landed estates already acquired and distributed to landless tenants; and Agricultural Tenancy Commissioner Fernando Santiago, on the progress his office was making in promoting more harmonious relations between tenants and landowners.

Secretary Orosa informed the President and the Cabinet that the government's low-cost housing projects have been progressing at appreciable speed with eight projects in Manila and Quezon City fully completed; Project 7, Area B, in Quezon City, 60 per cent completed; Tagaytay City project, 30 per cent completed; Tacloban City project, 30 per cent completed; the Iloilo, Bacolod, and Roxas cities projects, five per cent completed; and Project 8 in Quezon City, about to be started.

Orosa said that in the Government's desire to provide the lowest possible rentals to its low income employees, reductions in rentals have been effected in some projects. He added that an additional area was being acquired in Novaliches in order to accommodate more squatters from Manila who are due for resettlement.

Orosa said that in the eight low-cost housing projects already finished, some 9,335 families had already been settled.

Land Tenure Administration Chairman Castañeda reported that out of 536 petitions for acquisition of landed estates, 42 estates involving more or less 26,095 hectares of agricultural land and 1,514,741 square meters of residential properties have been programmed. The total number of tenants to be benefited is 11,782 with about 59,420 dependents. Of these 42 estates programmed, 12 have already been acquired and/or fully negotiated. There are 15 estates under expropriation in court and 15 are pending final negotiations.

Castañeda said that his office had already subdivided and/or still subdividing the following estates: Fabie estate, Tibaguin estate, Buenavista estate (partial), Juanito estate, Valdez estate, Lichauco estate, Dimson area (Dinalupihan estate), and Tucop area (also Dinalupihan estate).

He added that distribution of the lands subdivided had been accelerated by enhancing investigations of conflicts of claims among tenants.

Castañeda pointed out that a total of ₱2,126,478.92 had been collected by his office, representing an increase of ₱546,050.68 over the amount collected by its predecessor for a like period representing the fiscal year 1954-55, and half of fiscal year 1955-56.

He also said that the LTA had already screened about 8,000 house owners or occupants of lands in Tondo Foreshore and about 2,000 occupants are to be screened. He added that the LTA had executed deeds of sale or agreements to sell in favor of 2,369. tenants, virtually making them owners of the land they actually till or occupy.

Commissioner Santiago, reporting on the tenant-landowner relations, informed the Cabinet that for the six months of the fiscal year 1957 alone, 1,844 cases involving 6,001 tenants had been handled. Some 1,647 or 89 per cent of these involving 5,518 tenants had been settled.

Regarding the enforcement of the security of tenure and crop sharing provisions of Republic Act 1199, Santiago said that a great majority of tenancy conflicts handled by the Commission involved these two issues. He said that the tenants who were victims of illegal sharing arrangements and whose cases were mediated by the ATC last fiscal year, 13 per cent were able to secure as additional shares from 25 per cent to 55 per cent of the net yield, 68 per cent received as additional shares from 10 per cent to 24 per cent of the net yield, and 19 per cent received below 10 per cent of the net yield.

These tenants who secured these additional shares will enjoy these benefits every harvest time henceforth, he added.

Santiago also reported that the ATC was able to secure the reinstatement or compensation of 78 per cent of 281 out of 381 tenants who complained during the past six months that they had been illegally ejected.

The President was pleased with the reports of Orosa, Castañeda, and Santiago. He urged them to exert more efforts in completing the program of their respective offices for the benefit of the majority of the masses of the people.

The President presided over the Cabinet meeting which was held at the Council of State room from 10:30 a.m. to past 3 p.m.

THE President today endorsed to the Commissioner of Civil Service for immediate appropriate action the findings and recommendations of the special committee designated "to look into alleged inefficiency, incompetence, and negligence at the Philippine General Hospital."

In a report to the President, the committee recommended the following with the full concurrence of Health Secretary Paulino Garcia:

- (1) That Dr. Polleno Cespon, adjunct resident on duty in pediatrics, be required to resign immediately;
- (2) That Miss Clarita Rubica, staff nurse in Ward 9, be required to resign immediately;
- (3) That Miss Juanita Sereho, staff nurse in Ward 9, be fined an amount equivalent to one-month salary or suspension for two months without pay with the warning that repetition by her of the same or similar offense shall be cause for dismissal;
- (4) That Dr. Juanita Esguerra-Arcilla, physician on duty, be suspended for one month without pay and warned that repetition by her of the same or similar offense shall be dealt with more drastically;
- (5) That Manuel Silao, interne on duty in pediatrics, be suspended for one month and warned that repetition by him of the same or similar offense shall be dealt with more severely; and
- (6) That Dr. Salud Buquir, ambulance surgeon on duty in the admitting section, be reprimanded for her failure to demonstrate such solicitous and humanitarian interest for the relief of the patient's suffering.

The finding and recommendations of the committee were made following an investigation of the case of 13-year child Rosalinda Angeles for which the committee had been instructed to submit a report, within five days. Child Rosalinda was admitted at the PGH on July 23, 1957, and died owing to alleged negligence on the part of the hospital staff.

The committee reported to the President that Dr. Salud Buquir did what was expected of her as ambulance surgeon but should have shown more interest and concern by administering a medication that might have relieved Rosalinda's symptom.

The committee said that Manuel Silao, who was only a fifth-year medical student, arrogated to himself almost full responsibility for the patient while he was not matured or experienced enough to do so.

Miss Rubica was found by the committee grossly negligent in the performance of her duty to the patient, inefficient in her work as a nurse, and showed acts of indifference and discourtesy unbecoming of her position as staff nurse.

The committee said that Dr. Cespon was grossly negligent in the discharge of his duties in regard to child Rosalinda and in the supervision he was to exercise on Silao. The committee also said that Dr. Cespon did not have adequate experience to have assumed the responsibility he did in the case of Rosalinda.

The committee was of the opinion that Miss Sereño violated established procedures in the PGH pertaining to her duties and responsibilities and that she was wanting in the concern and solicitude which one in her position was expected to give to the child patient.

Dr. Esguerra-Arcilla did not display proper diligence and care of her responsibility according to the committee.

The report was submitted to the President during the Cabinet meeting by Health Secretary Garcia, who said that the committee was already at work on the second phase of the probe: Fundamental causes of public dissatisfaction regarding conditions and services in the PGH. Secretary Garcia said that a report on the second phase of the investigation would be submitted within two weeks.

The committee is composed of Dr. Arsenio Regala, special assistant in the Office of the Secretary of Health, chairman, and Dr. Gumersindo Garcia, Dr. Ricardo Alfonso, Dr. Antonio Rodriguez, Dr. Manuel Arambulo, Dr. Trinidad Gomez, and Isabelo Zapanta, members.

PRESIDENT Garcia accepted today the resignation of Solicitor General and concurrently Government Corporate Counsel Ambrosio Padiila from all the government positions he was holding.

Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon signed the President's acceptance of Padilla's resignation. Padiila was considered resigned effective at the close of office hours yesterday.

August 8.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning received more pledges of support for the Nacionalista Party and his election bid. He signed the affiliation papers of three former Liberals.

Press Secretary J. V. Cruz, official NP congressional candidate in Bataan, accompanied Mayor Romulo Albelda of Samal, Bataan, who formally signed his affiliation papers before the Chief Executive. Former Gov. Adelmo Camacho and other Bataan political leaders were present at the ceremony.

The President also signed the affiliation papers of Datu Punjungan Indal of Suru and Jose Ponce de Leon of Bacolod City in the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Amonio Lozada, Col. and Mrs. Jose B. Teruel, and Mesdames Luz Medel, Nena Locsin, Nemio Poe, and Maria Vicente.

A delegation of the Iloilo Lawyers Association, led by Tomas Concepcion, called on the President to submit its report on the political situation in Iloilo. Other members of the delegation were Rafael D. Lavente, Agustin Misola, Engracio Areño, Edgardo Villalobos, Roberto Dineros, and Emilio Eligio, all lawyers.

Other callers included Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez, Gov. Alejo Santos of Bulacan, and former Labor Secretary Jose Figueras.

THE President this morning signed Proclamation No. 430, authorizing the Philippine Tuberculosis Society to conduct a national fund and educational drive from August 19, 1957, to September 30, 1957.

The proclamation was signed in the presence of Manolo Elizalde, general chairman of the campaign, and ranking officials of the society, among them Drs. Jose Capistrano, Fernando Duran, and Miguel Cañizares, and Antonio Bengzon, Mrs. Norberto Amoranto, and Pedro Lopez.

PRESIDENT Garcia today directed acting ACCFA Administrator Ernesto T. Jimenez to implement fully and immediately the provisions of the Fertilizer Law and speed up the distribution of fertilizers to all farmers in order to step up production of staple crops and find a more permanent solution to the lowering of their prices.

President Garcia issued this directive as a follow-up to the measures already discussed and approved at the Cabinet meeting yesterday in seeking a solution to the lowering of prices of prime commodities and increasing production. He gave the order after a conference today with Commerce Secretary Oscar Ledesma; Jose Ma. Gomez, president of the Federation of Sugar Cane Planters Association; and Carlos Ledesma, president of the San Carlos Planters Association.

Upon learning of the immediate requirements for fertilizers estimated to exceed the ₱7 ½ million previously released on his authority, the President asked Budget Commissioner Dominador R. Aytona to seek ways and means for the release of an additional outlay of P8 million before September this year, to cover the deficiency. Under R. A. 1609, the ACCFA is charged with the distribution of subsidized fertilizers to farmers applying for them.

The President recently ordered the release of ₱7 ½ million for the purchase of fertilizers to be sold at half the procurement cost. The President told the ACCFA executive to do everything within his means to hasten the shipment to the Philippines of some 10,000 metric tons of fertilizers ordered from abroad so that they could be distributed soon to the farmers.

He also directed the National Power Corporation to increase the rate of shipment of fertilizers earmarked for the ACCFA from the Maria Cristina plant of the corporation.

Numerous representatives of farming groups, including the rice and sugar growers, have asked the President and ACCFA officials for earlier distribution of the subsidized fertilizers to catch up with the weather conditions now existing, which are favorable for planting. It was learned from ACCFA Administrator Jimenez that agreements had already been made with representatives of sugar planters with regard to the allocation of fertilizers to sugar people and the manner of distribution.

It was further learned that practically all sugar planters are members of associations affiliated with the ACCFA.

PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia in the afternoon witnessed the field demonstrations and the "Philippine Constabulary in Review" at Camp Crame presented by the PC on the occasion of its 56th organization day.

The President and the First Lady, accompanied by AFP Chief of Staff Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, arrived at Camp Crame about 3:30 p.m. A 21-gun salute boomed as the President entered the gate of the camp. After saluting the colors, the President proceeded to the platform from where he witnessed the demonstrations.

Top ranking officers of the AFP and PC, retired generals, foreign military top brass, and the ladies of the officers met the President and the First Lady as they ascended the stairs of the platform in front of PC headquarters building.

The Chief Executive enjoyed the field demonstrations which included a silent drill exhibition, cavalry exhibition, commando exhibition, dog exhibition, and an exhibition of a daylight commando raid with cavalry and dogs in support. "The Philippine Constabulary in Review," where the PC was shown in different uniforms from 1901 up to the present, drew an applause from the President and the audience.

The President was invited by the PC as guest at their celebration. Speakers during the program were PC Chief Brig. Gen. Manuel F. Cabal and Maj. Gen. Mariano N. Castañeda (ret.), former PC chief and AFP chief of staff.

The Chief Executive was flanked on the platform by Lieut. Gen. Arellano, Brig. Gen. Cabal, and Gen. Castañeda, General Emilio Aguinaldo, Lieut. Gen. Jesus Vargas (ret.), JUSMAG Chief Maj. Gen. Joseph Harper, Maj. Gen. Basilio Valdes (ret.), AFP Deputy Chief of Staff Brig. Gen. Diosdado Rodriguez, and other top brass of the AFP and the PC were among those present at the demonstrations and programs.

The President returned to Malacañang about 7 p.m.

AN accident victim, who was seriously injured when the jeep he was riding fell off a cliff near the NARRA Maramag settlement project in Bukidnon, is now in the care of expert hands at the National Orthopedic Hospital after being airlifted to Manila by the order of President Garcia.

The victim, Victorino Mangalindan, NARRA field auditor, was with three others who were not seriously injured. Mangalindan was airlifted by an Air Force plane which took off for Bukidnon at 4:30 this morning. The plane came back about seven hours later and the patient was whisked by a PAF ambulance to the NOH.

The President ordered the airlifting of Mangalindan and the three others yesterday upon being informed of the matter by Acting NARRA General Manager Jorge Alba and NARRA Board Chairman Remedios Fortich. The plane was not able to get to Bukidnon on the same day because of bad weather. The plane passed by Virac, Catanduanes, for another emergency patient also by order of the President.

August 9.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning paid homage to the late former Speaker Eugenio Perez. He and Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia motored to the Legislative Building, where joint Senate-House necrological services were held in honor of the departed former Speaker. The President was greeted by Speaker Protempore Daniel Z. Romualdez upon arrival at the Capitol at exactly 9:05. He immediately proceeded to the session hall of the House of Representatives, where the remains of the former Speaker was lying in state.

After the necrological program, the President and the First Lady condoled with the family of the late Speaker Perez. Then they returned to Malacañang.

On the way to Congress this morning to attend the necrological services in honor of the late Speaker Eugenio Perez, the President received a resolution approved by the Faculty Club of the University of Santo Tomas to suspend the application of the Social Security Act to the UST faculty members.

ON his return from Congress, the President received all the PC provincial commanders and members of the Constabulary general staff, headed by Col. Ricardo G. Papa, PC deputy chief.

The President also received Rep. Manuel Enverga of Quezon, Dr. Generoso Nadres, and Mayor Ricardo Macasaet of Infanta, who accompanied two Liberal leaders, Mayor Felix Oria of Candelaria and former Mayor Eligio Manalo, who took their oath as Nacionalistas.

PRESIDENT Garcia this day directed Benjamin Estrella, NAMARCO general manager, to stop the importation of printed textiles, upon the representations of P. L. Lim, spokesman of the Philippine Textile Mills Association.

A delegation of the PTMA called on the President to complain against the NAMARCO importation, alleging that there was no increase in the price of cotton printed textile.

In his directive to Estrella, the President said that NAMARCO should spend its dollars to import other essential goods and not to prejudice local textile production.

The President announced his determination to give his all-out support to the local raw cotton industry as a step to save dollars and ease unemployment.

Other members of the PTMA group were Jesus Yujuico, Martin Tinio, Felix Lirag, Antonio Assad, and C. B. Lim.

The President said that he would announce shortly the members of the committee he would create to study ways and means of giving incentives to producers, including agriculturists and manufacturers, in order to increase the country's production of prime commodities and eventually reduce prices. The Chief Executive said that he had several persons in mind for this committee but was weighing very carefully the qualifications of each prospective member, adding that he wanted to be sure the committee would not in any way reflect political color and detract from the high objectives of the committee.

The President said that the committee would be composed of representatives of the different segments of the country's economy, including consumers. He added that once the committee was formed, it would be authorized to call on technical men to assist it in its deliberations.

The creation of the committee was first announced by the President last June 22 when he vetoed Senate Bill No. 167. In that veto, the President said that he was desirous of seeing to it that the country's producers and manufacturers be provided positive and practical incentives in order to increase the production of the major crops. He believed that the permanent solution to the stabilization of prices of prime needs lay in the production of enough of these commodities.

THE President this morning told 53 PC provincial commanders and members of the PC general staff to be "good referees" during the coming elections so as not to give the impression that they favored any political party. The Chief Executive made this remark in the course of a courtesy call made by the Constabulary officers led by Col. Ricardo Papa, PC deputy chief; Col. Santiago Concepcion, C-1 chief; Lt. Col. Manuel Yan, C-2 chief; Col. Lucas Cauton, C-3 chief; Col. Fortunato Racelis, C-4 chief; and Col. Angel Magallanes, deputy area commander for PC affairs, 2nd MA. Brig. Gen. Manuel C. Cabal, PC chief, could not accompany the PC officers because he was kept in bed owing to an indisposition.

President Garcia expressed confidence that Constabulary officers would be able to resist any political pressure which might be exerted by those who might want "to gain advantage over opponents."

However, the President counselled the officers to handle the situation with tact and to avoid incidents that might destroy the prestige of the Constabulary.

"The role of the Constabulary in the coming elections is to uphold the law, keep peace and order, maintain free, orderly, and clean elections, and maintain its impartiality," the President said.

THIS noon the President ordered the Social Welfare Administration to extend immediate assistance to some 20 families rendered homeless by a fire which broke in the commercial center of Cagayan de Oro City about 10 a.m. today.

The President gave the order following receipt of a message from City Mayor Justiniano Borja of Cagayan de Oro, who estimated the damage caused by the conflagration at ₱200,000. Two messages were received in Malacañang from the city mayor; the first at 11:30 a.m. when he reported that the fire was still raging and the second at 2:30 p.m. when he said that the conflagration had been put under control.

The President also ordered the Philippine Airforce to have a plane ready to ferry relief supplies from the SWA and the PNRC. Social Welfare Administrator Amparo S. Villamor said she was releasing ₱1,000 for the local purchase of relief goods in the disaster area for immediate distribution to sufferers. This was to augment the assistance already extended the fire victims by government social workers in the area.

AT noon President Garcia had a luncheon conference with members of Congress, headed by Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., NP vice-presidential candidate.

The President and the congressmen discussed plans for the carrying out of an effective campaign in the provinces once the entire Nacionalista senatorial line-up is decided.

Others present at the conference were Speaker Protempore Daniel Z. Romualdez; Majority Floorleader Arturo M. Tolentino; and Reps. Tobias Fornier of Antique, Francisco Ortega of La Union, Ismael Veloso of Davao, Jose Aldeguer of Iloilo, and Justino Nuyda of Albay. Also present were Budget Commissioner Dominador R. Aytona and Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno.

LATE in the afternoon the President conferred with finance officials of the American motion picture industry during which a satisfactory solution was found for the problem of payment of taxes by American movies.

It was agreed during the conference that American movies would pay the taxes for the year 1956. It was also agreed that the question of paying back taxes by the American movies be submitted to the tax court for final decision.

The President conferred with Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, Internal Revenue Collector Jose Arañas, Leo Hochstetter of the American Movie Exporters Association, and R. Ogermann, lawyer for the association.

MALACANANG announced today that the initial shipment of 150,000 Magsaysay mourning stamps was finally released by the commissioner of customs after President Garcia had intervened in the matter.

President Garcia this morning upon reading newspaper reports that customs officials allegedly refused to release the stamps unless customs duties were paid, directed Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison to tell Customs Commissioner Eleuterio Capapas that the President was paying from his personal funds the customs duties due on these stamps amounting to ₱237.

Malacañang Financial Assistant Miguel D. Velasco sent an employee of his office to the Manila International Airport with the money to pay for the customs duties.

It was however found out that the Bureau of Posts had been able to get an exemption from the payment of such duties from the office of the Auditor General. However, President Garcia was asked to pay only ₱2.05 for customs stamps instead of ₱237 for customs duties. The Magsaysay stamps were then released.

August 10.—PRESIDENT Garcia today fired his first broadside against his political counterpart, without mentioning his name, when he told, the people of Tarlac:

“Do not trust so called economists who have used their knowledge in economics to enrich themselves and not their country and their countrymen.

“Let us trust and elect those who are doing everything in their power to bring about the economic development of our country, those who are giving lands to the landless and homes to the homeless and who are eradicating the tenancy system in our country.”

Although the President did not mention names, his audience knew to whom his tirade was directed, and the people applauded.

The President made these remarks in the course of his speaking trips to nine towns of Tarlac jointly with Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., when the two of them, as the Nacionalista official presidential and vice-presidential tandem, opened their first salvo and brought the case of the Nacionalista candidates direct to the common people and barrio folks of Tarlac.

In his speech at the inauguration of the ₱4,700,000-Magsaysay Irrigation Dam at Mayantoc, Tarlac, the President emphasized that the completion of this project which would irrigate 10,500 hectares, would contribute to the overall production of the country's staple crops in connection with the government's long range program of pulling down the prices of these commodities.

In speaking at the towns of Bamban, Santa Ignacia, Mayantoc, Camiling, Moncada, Paniqui, Pura, Gesona, and Tarlac, President Garcia and Speaker Laurel took turns in explaining to the people that it was the Nacionalista Party and the present administration which has faithfully implemented the late President Magsaysay's program of uplifting the lot of the masses of the people.

President Garcia and Speaker Laurel said the Administration has constructed irrigation systems, highways and feeder roads, pre-fabricated school-houses, bridges, and artesian wells; has quadrupled the rural health facilities for the common people; has given lands to the landless and homes to the homeless; has given peace and order to the country; has given social justice to those who need it; and has restored the people's faith in their government.

They stressed to the people that this gigantic task was only one-fourth completed at the death of the late President Magsaysay and that only the Nacionalista candidates should be entrusted in completing the work. They pledged that, if elected president and vice-president, they would bring to a successful conclusion the Magsaysay program of good government to the people.

The Garcia-Laurel tandem was royally welcomed in all the towns visited by them. "People rushed to the streets to meet them and shake their hands, while girls tossed flowers on their way. In Mayantoc, President Garcia and Speaker Laurel were borne on the shoulders of the townspeople from the entrance of the town to the town kiosk, where the tandem addressed the cheering crowd.

In his speech in Mayantoc, President Garcia said that the act of the townspeople was symbolic of the people's support of the Nacionalista administration which would be surely shown in the coming November polls. The people shouted their approval.

After delivering his speech at the Magsaysay Irrigation Dam, President Garcia, accompanied by Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, Gov. Arsenio Lugay, Reps. Jose J. Roy and Constancio Castañeda, Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor, Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez, and other officials, walked to one of the water gates of the dam and pulled a lever which let the water flow into the different canals of the system.

The President arrived, at Bamban, Tarlac, about 9:25 a.m. He was on the go the whole day, as he and Speaker Laurel visited the eight other towns and made their speeches. The other officials who accompanied them were Govs. Juan Frivaldo of Sorsogon, Juan Alberto of Catanduanes, Rafael Lazatin of Pampanga, Alejo Santos of Bulacan, and Manuel Barretto of Zambales.

In their speeches. President Garcia and Speaker Laurel praised the work of Reps. Castañeda, and Roy in the Congress, calling them truly dedicated servants of the people.

August 11.—THE President retired to the residence of Public Service Commissioner Alejandro Galang in Tarlac, Tarlac, at 3: 30 this morning for a much-needed rest.

The President woke up 8:30 a.m. and had breakfast 30 minutes later.

After thanking his host for a good night's rest, President Garcia and his party proceeded to the Tarlac parish church, where they heard mass. From the church, the presidential party motored out of Tarlac for Manila. A big crowd saw them off.

Palace aides said the President repaired to his "hideout" to work on state papers.

He is expected to return to Malacañang late tonight.

ON orders of President Garcia five emergency patients were airlifted to Manila from different parts of the country. One of the patients is a survivor of a fatal vehicular accident which claimed seven lives in Nueva Ecija recently.

The patients were flown to Manila for treatment following representations of the respective provincial authorities who either wired or called by Long distance to Malacañang about the patients' condition.

The list of the emergency patients follows:

- (1) Miss Florentina Santillan, Nueva Ecija high school teacher, who is suffering from a brain contusion as a result of an accident in San Leonardo, Nueva Ecija.
- (2) Romulo Okaba, from Davao City, who is suffering from infantile paralysis;
- (3) Miss Felicidad Tugot, also from Davao City, who has brain tumor;
- (4) Gregorio Moralita, from Tacloban City, who suffered fractures after an accident; and ;
- (5) Florentino Amoy, a three-year old child from Dapitan, Zamboanga del Norte, who swallowed a coin.

All patients were rushed to different Manila hospitals upon arrival at the airport.

Yesterday President Garcia, while in Bamban, Tarlac, directed that Ernesto Manalo, an eight-year old boy be sent to the V. Luna General Hospital for possible surgery. The boy, son of Abelardo Manalo, is suffering from systolithiasis.

August 12.—THE President this morning said he was confident that the NP five-man nominating committee would recommend to the executive committee the men that would compose the winning senatorial ticket in the coming elections.

He reiterated that he would support to the limit all official candidates of the Nacionalista Party.

The President made this statement before a delegation composed of former Gov. Juan Chioco's sympathizers who marched to Malacañang and urged the Chief Executive to take a hand in the selection of the NP senatorial candidates so that the former governor could be included in the line-up.

The President explained that the NP executive committee, which created the five-man nominating committee, had the blanket authority to name the eight official senatorial candidates who would be selected from the 73 aspirants.

The President told the delegation that he had known Chioco to be a good man and that he as Vice-President had campaigned for Chioco extensively in Mindanao in the last elections when the former governor was an NP official senatorial candidate.

After receiving Chioco's sympathizers, the President proceeded to the music room where he received Ambassador Manuel Alzate, who paid a courtesy call following his arrival from his post at Karachi, Pakistan.

Then the President repaired to his study where he received a few callers, including Health Undersecretary Rafael Tumbokon, Rep. Celestino Juan of Nueva Ecija, Manila Councilor Antonio Barredo, Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Sabarre, Sixto and Salvador Esquibas, and Mateo Encarnacion.

IN the afternoon the President received Mr. and Mrs. Constantin Brown, who called at Malacañang to pay their respects following their arrival in Manila in the course of a world tour "to find out how many good friends America still have."

Brown who is foreign editor and foreign news analyst of Washington's Western Evening Star and whose columns are syndicated by 60 American newspapers, said of the President after a 20-minute chat at the Palace music room. He impressed me as a very capable man."

Arriving in Manila last Saturday from Bangkok, Thailand, the Browns leave for Taipeh, Formosa, on Friday and, thence, to Hongkong, Seoul, (Korea), and Tokyo (Japan) before returning to Washington. Brown said he had been a newspaperman for the last 44 years.

Other callers this evening included Rep. Serafin Salvador of Rizal and Deputy Internal Revenue Collector Melecio Domingo. Domingo has just returned from a two-month stay in Switzerland. .

In declaring August 19 as a special public holiday, the President said it is desirable that "our people be given full opportunity to render homage to the memory of our illustrious leader."

As this day coincides with Citizenship Day under Proclamation No. 331, President Garcia enjoined the observance of the day with appropriate ceremonies designed to inculcate upon the people, especially the youth, the rights and duties of good citizenship to the end that they would consecrate themselves to the ideals and traditions of the Republic.

The President also signed Proclamation No. 432, declaring the third week of January of every year as National Mental Health Week.

The President said that sound mental health is necessary to the attainment of individual happiness and efficiency, to the establishment of peace and order, and to the promotion of economic and cultural progress. The Philippine Mental Health Association was designated to take charge of the celebration.

The Chief Executive called upon all government and non-government entities and all residents in the Philippines to lend their cooperation and support to the observance of the week.

The President, moreover, signed Proclamation No. 433, declaring the last week of August of every year as Barrio Lieutenants' Week.

In the proclamation the President said that the barrios are the foundation of the country's economic and democratic way of life and that the progress and welfare of every barrio depends to a large measure upon the leadership and devotion to duty of the barrio lieutenant.

The President added that the role of a barrio lieutenant is "a continuous process of self-sacrifice."

He said that in recognition of the constant sacrifices of barrio lieutenants for the welfare, progress, and prosperity of the barrio people, he declared the last week of August of every year as Barrio Lieutenants' Week. He enjoined every mayor to hold programs during the week honoring the barrio lieutenants, and to create a citizens' committee to select during the week the most outstanding barrio lieutenant of his city or town.

PRESIDENT Garcia this day granted another reprieve for prisoners Bautista Ragandan, Hilario Mendova, and Alfredo Mendova, who had been convicted of robbery with double murder and sentenced to death.

The previous reprieve granted to these prisoners on July 12, 1957, expires on August 13, 1957.

The President in his order said that some time was considered still necessary for a thorough and careful study of the merits of the petition for executive clemency filed in behalf of the prisoners.

The new reprieve granted to the prisoners expires on September 12, 1957.

August 13.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning administered the oath of office to Leopoldo Rovira, Jr., of Dumaguete City as acting member of the social security commission. Among those present at the ceremony was Rep. Lorenzo Teves of Negros Oriental, who accompanied Rovira to Malacañang.

The induction ceremony was held at the Malacañang study room, where the Chief Executive received callers who took turns in consulting him on various matters.

The callers consisted mostly of provincial governors who reported to the President on the political situation in their respective localities.

Such callers were Govs. Juan Frivaldo of Sorsogon, Felixberto Dagani of Agusan, and Delfin N. Montano of Cavite.

The President also received Sen. Domocao Alonto and Rep. Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan.

Consul Consuelo Arranz of the Philippine Embassy in Rome, Italy, called to pay her respects following her arrival recently.

Then the President received movie actor Jose Padilla, Jr., who took his oath as a member of the Nacionalista Party.

Individual callers included Vicente Neri, Tereso Dumon, and Benigno Angeles.

The President received callers until 2 p.m.

THE President today received Matias Taniaga, a 27-year-old former guerrilla courier from Naic, Cavite, who sought the President's assistance for the restoration of his sight.

Taniaga informed the President that he had become blind as a result of the tortures he had received from Japanese soldiers during the Occupation.

Upon learning of Taniaga's plight, the President wrote a directive to the commanding officer of the V. Luna General Hospital, ordering that an eye specialist examine Taniaga's eyes and if possible restore the guerrilla's eyesight by operation.

The blind guerrilla courier was accompanied to Malacañang by Joy Francisco, a radio commentator, through whose radio program Taniaga learned about the President's concern for the poor and the afflicted.

August 14.—THIS morning the President gave a despedida breakfast in honor of the Philippine Ambassador to the Vatican, Jose Ma. Delgado, who is scheduled to leave for his post on Friday, August 16.

The affair was purely social although the President, in the course of the breakfast, gave his final instructions to the departing, ambassador to do his utmost in promoting, “better understanding” between the Philippines and the Vatican.

Present at the breakfast were members of the Catholic hierarchy, including Papal Nuncio Egidio Vagnozzi, Manila Archbishop Rufino J. Santos, Auxiliary Bishops Vicente Reyes, and Hernando Antiporda.

Also present at the breakfast which lasted from 8 to 9 a.m. were Sens. Francisco A. Delgado and Francisco Rodrigo and Executive Secretary Fortunate de Leon.

Ambassador Delgado was accompanied to Malacañang by his son, Francisco.

PRESIDENT Garcia today lashed at “men or parties” who wish to perpetuate the tenancy class in the country, and reiterated his vigorous determination to push through the “land for the landless and home for the homeless” program initiated by the late President Magsaysay.

“Far from being an accomplishment, the purchase of the De Leon Estate is only a big step forward in the objective of the administration to have every tenant own the farm he is tilling,” the President said.

“Toward this end,” he added, “the Administration is seeking through negotiated sale or through expropriation proceedings to acquire other landed estates.”

The President said that in Nueva Ecija alone there are six other estates already acquired or due for payment as follows: Lichauco, 58 hectares, in Cabanatuan City; Del Rosario, 667 hectares, in Cabanatuan City; Tuala, 838 hectares, in Guimba; Halili, 235 hectares, in Cabanatuan City; Uson, 26 hectares (for homesite purposes), in Jaen; and Juanito, 673 hectares, in Cuyapo.

The President warned against those who were trying to perpetuate the tenancy class in the country. He added that he was happy to have been an instrument in helping eradicate the tenancy system here. “I wish more of our countrymen will become home owners, home builders, and home defenders,” the President said.

Comparing a tenant to a bird in a cage, the President said that no matter how well fed a bird was, it could never be happy and contented in the cage because it wanted to be free,

The President acknowledged that Doha Sisang Vda. de Leon, owner of the estate, acceded to the acquisition of the estate as a sincere gesture of cooperation with the government in its “land for the landless” program.

Alejandro Clemente, spokesman of the De Leon estate tenants, in his brief remarks told his fellow tenants gathered at the Social Hall to vote for the re-election of President Garcia so that he could pursue the “land for the landless” program and give other landless tenants a chance to have their own farms.

Manuel de Leon, son of Dona Sisang, in his brief remarks said that the De Leon family had agreed to the sale of their estate in their wish to cooperate with the government in accomplishing its land reform program. He expressed the wish that the tenants would continue cultivating their new parcels of land industriously.

Mrs. Amado Q. Aleta, in representation of her husband, the governor of Nueva Ecija, expressed her thanks for the acquisition of the estate. She met with applause when she asked the tenants to vote for President Garcia in the coming elections.

Luis V. de Leon, another son of Dona Sisang, signed the sales document in the name of the owners of the estate, while Manuel Castaneda, head of the Land Tenure Administration, signed in the name of the government.

President Garcia handed over to Manuel de Leon, a treasury warrant W the amount of ₱1,374,000 as one-half payment of the total price, the rest to be paid in land certificates cashable after five years. The hacienda has an area of 2,255 hectares.

At the average price of ₱1,213.72 a hectare the government paid for the land, the tenants will have to pay an annual installment of ₱96.57 a hectare for 25 years, which payment can be easily made by the tenants if they set aside 25 per cent of their regular harvests. There are about 500 tenants with some 2,000 dependents who will be benefited by this purchase.

After the subdivision of the land, each tenant is expected to be given four hectares of land which he will own.

Among those present at the ceremony were Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez, Rep. Emilio Cortez, Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon, Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, Rep. Enrique J. Corpuz, former Press Secretary J. V. Cruz, LTA Commissioners Numeriano Fabie and Juan Vera, and Mrs. Amado Aleta, wife of Nueva Ecija governor.

AT their meeting today President Garcia and his Cabinet adopted measures to insure the early remittance of the 85 per cent of export proceeds to the dollar reserves in order to strengthen the dollar position of the country.

At the same time, the President appointed a committee composed of Commerce Secretary Oscar Ledesma, as chairman, and Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez and RFC Chairman Eduardo Z. Romualdez, as members, to look into ways to hasten the bringing in of commodities being imported under the 15 per cent privilege granted by the No-Dollar Import Law.

This measure was believed necessary in view of the fact that according to reports some $25 million worth of these import commodities had not arrived yet. It was pointed out that if these commodities were delivered here as they should have been, there would be less drain on the dollar reserves for additional importation of these commodities and that the prices of these goods would considerably go down.

After considering the recommendations of the Philippine Bankers Association, presented to the Cabinet by Alfonso Calalang, association president, and Jose D. Fernandez, also of the association, Commerce Secretary Oscar Ledesma, Finance Secretary Hernandez, and Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, the President and the Cabinet approved supplementary rules governing barter under R. A. 1410. These regulations are designed to insure the prompt remittance of the 85 per cent of export dollar proceeds to the Central Bank.

One of the rules adopted was that proposed by Commissioner Aytona, who recommended that the exporter of any commodity will be granted his barter permit for 15 per cent only upon certification by the Central Bank that the full dollar proceeds from the exportation of the applicant had been remitted to the C. B.

It was believed that this regulation would insure that the dollar proceeds of all exports from the Philippines would be promptly remitted to the Central Bank and thus strengthen the dollar position of the country.

The supplementary rules and regulations governing barter, as approved by the Cabinet follow:

1. Notwithstanding contrary provisions in existing regulations, all barter transactions shall be based on back-to-back letters of credit which shall be in accordance with the following conditions:

a. The export of goods must be covered by an export letter of credit from the foreign importer and such letter of credit must specifically provide for drawings at sight in dollars against shipping documents.

b. The import letter of credit that may be opened by the domestic producer-exporter must have as its beneficiary the same party opening the export letter of credit and negotiations under the import letter of credit shall be restricted to the country of destination of the Philippine products exported and to commodities originating from the country of destination of the corresponding Philippine exports, "originating" to mean that the commodities to be exported are covered by a certificate of origin duly signed by a consular officer as having originated from the country of the port of embarkation.

2. No import letter of credit may be issued by Philippine banks under Barter Permits issued by the NDIO until satisfactory evidence is presented that the full proceeds of the export corresponding to such credit have been actually credited to the negotiating Philippine bank.

3. The No-Dollar Import Office shall issue two types of barter permits: Type A for minor exports, surplus goods in excess of quotas set in the Laurel-Langley Agreement, and low-quality marginal-cost commodities; and Type B for fifteen per cent of major exports.

Type A permits shall be sub-divided into Type A-1 for minor ex-, ports, Type A-2 for surplus goods in excess of quotas set in the Laurel-Langley Agreement, and Type A-3 for low-quality marginal-cost goods. No Type A-2 permit shall be issued for any commodity before the U.S. quota for said commodity has been filled.

The No-Dollar Import Office shall attach to every Type A barter permit it issues specific documents evidencing the prior shipment and the receipt of proceeds by the negotiating bank of the exportation of commodities on the basis- of which the barter permit is issued. Type B permits shall be issued only to the same parties who have made the export shipments, during the six months immediately preceding, on which the barter permit is based.

Shipments made to countries without exchange controls and to free ports shall be counted as part of the base on which Type B permits are given.

4. Barter permits shall be valid only:

a. For exports, 60 days after date of permit.

b. For imports, 90 days after negotiation of the corresponding export. If the corresponding export under the permit is not made within 60 days of issue, the barter permit lapses completely and becomes invalid.

If the collateral import under the permit is not made within 90 days after the negotiation of the corresponding export, the right to import shall lapse and the agent banks holding the foreign exchange corresponding to the export previously made shall within 24 hours sell such exchange to the Central Bank.

5. Agent banks negotiating exports under barter permits shall make a segregation in their accounts of the proceeds of exports under NDIO barter permits and shall, when reporting to the Central Bank, clearly distinguish their free foreign balance from foreign bances acquired under barter exports.

6. Agent banks may open letters of credit under barter permits only upon prior certification by the Central Bank as to price accuracy.

7. The No-Dollar Import Office shall submit to the Central Bank at the end of each week a report of all barter permits issued during the week.

8. The previous Cabinet decision limiting the issuance of barter permits to producers of the commodities sought to be bartered shall be strictly enforced.

9. These supplementary rules and regulations shall govern all barter transactions, including those already approved but not yet consummated.

10. That no extension of existing barter permit which has expired shall be granted.

THE President and the Cabinet approved a proposal of the World War II Veterans Enterprises, Inc., to undertake the sale and distribution of specific items of goods coming from the $20 million reparations goods earmarked, for the veterans, at a profit of not more than 15 per cent in order to provide more benefits in the form of civic projects and to create job opportunities for war veterans war widows, and orphans.

Under the plan, the corporation will pay in cash for the reparations goods coming from Japan. Then it will sell and distribute these goods to consumers, thus transforming the goods into cash, to be turned over to a bank designated by the Philippine Government, as a trust fund, as envisioned in the new enactment of Congress. The corporation will undertake the sale of these goods at a gross profit about 15 per cent.

The corporation proposes to utilize this expected profit as follows:

(1) Set aside a certain sum to be determined and agreed upon later, for the expenses of a veterans mission to Washington, D.C., to work for more benefits for veterans, war widows, and orphans;

(2) Set aside a sum to be determined and agreed upon later, to be spent in the unification of all veterans organizations in the Philippines and in the establishment of an adequate headquarters complete with the necessary working personnel for the purpose; and

(3) Set aside an amount for investment in deep sea fishing, fish canning, and other allied dollar-producing industries which will employ exclusively veterans, war widows, and orphans.

The corporation will file a performance bond to guarantee the faithful performance of its obligation.

The corporation, with Maj. Gen. Calixto Duque (Ret.) as president and general manager, has the support of the following organizations: the CONVETS, the PVL, the Cold Star Mothers and War Widows, the Marking's Guerrillas, the United Disabled Veterans Association of the Philippines, the USAFIP, the Philippine Association of War Widows, the Parents and Orphans, and the Banal Guerrillas Organization.

The corporation claims that it has the support of veterans organizations comprising at least 95 per cent of all veterans of the country.

UPON recommendation of Carlos P. Ramos, director of the Institute of Public Administration, University of the Philippines, the Cabinet authorized the I. P. A. to conduct in Manila in December, 1957, a Southeast Asian regional conference with special reference to economic and social development.

Eighteen countries in Southeast Asia, including the Philippines, will participate in the conference; namely, Australia, Burma, Cambodia, Ceylon, Federated States of Malaya, Hongkong, India, Indonesia, Japan, Nepal, Laos, New Zealand, Pakistan, Republic of China, Republic of Korea, Republic of Vietnam., and Thailand. Some 120 delegates and observers will attend the conference to be conducted over a period of 14 days.

The representatives will be composed of governmental administrators and professionals in the field of public administration.

The objectives of the proposed conference are:

(1) To help advance the cause of our economic and social development, through the interchange of experience and information, with a view to more effective administration of developmental programs among countries in this region.

(2) To establish communications among countries in this region as a basis for mutual cooperation in the advancement of public administration.

(3) To provide us with much needed information on, and insights into, the status and progress of public administration among our sister nations in Southeast Asia, thereby enriching our training and educational programs at the Institute of Public Administration.

(4) To help improve administration of public affairs, through the mutual exchange of information and ideas on education and through professional training for the public service.

(5) To join hands with representatives of countries in this region having common cause. with us in advancing the career service, especially in key administrative, technical, and other staff positions involved in the planning and implementation of economic and social development programs.

(6) To stimulate studies in practical methods and procedures for the improvement of the conduct of governmental business in the light of local conditions.

(7) To lay the groundwork for providing for a permanent and continuing organization on public administration in this region.

FINANCE Secretary Jaime Hernandez informed the President and the Cabinet that the Philippines became the fiftieth member of the International Finance Cefspiration last Monday morning, after Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo had signed the articles of agreement in a special ceremony in Washington, D. C.

The information was sent to the finance secretary by Jorge Mejia Palacio, executive director of the IFC.

It was pointed out that the membership of the Philippines in the IFC would benefit the country as citizens of member countries are entitled to ask financial assistance in the financing of business enterprises.

PRESIDENT Garcia at the Cabinet meeting appointed a committee to take charge of the observance of the late President Magsaysay's birthday on August 31.

Appointed chairman of the committee is Education Secretary Martin Aguilar, Jr., with Acting Labor Secretary Agapito Braganza, Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao, and Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor, as members.

The President said that he would like that Magsaysay's birthday be celebrated fittingly in memory of the late President.

THE President and the Cabinet approved the following policy on the question as to whether or not the status of an employee who has reached retirement age of 57 may be changed from temporary to permanent, for purposes of retirement insurance benefit under Republic Act No. 660, as amended:

I. Classified employees—

(a) Those who have already fulfilled the age and service requirements to be entitled to retirement insurance benefits under Republic Act No. 660 should be issued regular and permanent appointments for purposes of retirement insurance, subject to the provisions of the Civil Service Law and Rules. The physical examination provided for in Section 663(c) of the Revised Administrative Code as a prerequisite for permanent appointment should be waived with respect to those who are leaving or have already left the service on account of old age, physical incapacity, or death, but whose appointments have remained temporary for failure to undergo the prescribed physical examination.

(b) Temporary teachers are entitled to retirement insurance benefits without the necessity of permanent appointment.

(c) Substitute teachers are not eligible to insurance membership.

(d) In all cases of temporary employees in the classified service, the appointing official should propose the change of status of the employee concerned from temporary to permanent, if qualified under the Civil Service Law and Rules.

II. Unclassified employees—

(a) Retiring employees in the unclassified service occupying fixed or permanent items shall be entitled to permanent appointments for retirement purposes. The requirement of physical examination is waived in favor of those who are leaving or have already left the service on account of old age, physical incapacity, or death, but whose appointments have remained temporary for failure to undergo physical examination.

(b) Casual or emergency employees without fixed items are not eligible to retirement insurance.

(c) Retiring employees, whether classified or unclassified, who left the service or were separated therefrom on account of old age prior to June 16, 1956, may be entitled to retirement insurance benefits if the period they were actually out of the service does not exceed one year from the date of their separation to June 16, 1956, the date of approval of Republic Act No. 1573.

President Garcia presided over the Cabinet meeting which was held at the Council of State room. The meeting lasted from 11 a.m. until 2:30 p.m.

PRESIDENT Garcia formally opened the 1957 Anti-TB National Fund and Educational Campaign by contributing ₱1,000 in a ceremony held at Malacañang's social hall this afternoon.

In opening the drive, the President called upon every citizen and resident of this country "to intensify their united crusade against the White Plague, giving the enemy no quarters until every man, woman, and child need not shudder with dread from the spectre of tuberculosis." (See Historical Papers and Documents in the next issue of the Official Gazette for the text of the President's speech.)

After the President handed his check to Manuel Elizalde, general chairman of this year's drive, other donors came forward with their contributions in amounts ranging from ₱100 to ₱10,000. Donors consisted of government and business firms as well as civic-spirited private citizens. Total collections at the ceremony amounted to ₱79,500.

The kick-off ceremony attended by members of the Cabinet, senators, representatives, members of the diplomatic corps and their ladies, and representatives of various civic organizations, started at 5:30 p.m. It began with an overture by the PC band with Lt. Col. Antonino Buenaventura, conducting.

The President's speech lasted about five minutes. Among those with him on the speaker's platform were the First Lady; Dona Julia de Ortigas, Gen. Basilio Valdes, and Dr. Miguel Canizares, president, vice-president, and executive vice-president, respectively, of the the Philippine Tuberculosis Society; and Miss Conchita Sunico, vice-chairman of this year's campaign.

Following the ceremony which lasted until 6: 30 p.m., the President repaired to his study where he received several callers, including Reps. Cesar Fortich of Bukidnon and Enrique Corpus of Zambales.

August 15.—THIS morning the President told a large group of housing project residents that negotiations with a view to selling outright the lots in join PHHC-ICA projects to their respective occupants are now in progress.

The President made this statement at the Malacañang study room this morning when the residents of the joint PHHC-ICA housing projects called to request the President to grant them the outright sale of the lots which they are occupying, in these projects. Rep. Serafin Salvador of Rizal acted as spokesman of the group.

The President said that he is not against the outright sale of the lots to occupants because such action would be in consonance with the policy of the Administration. He pointed out that those housing projects which were undertaken solely by the PHHC would amount to an outright sale because titles to these would eventually be issued to occupants.

Referring to the joint PHHC-ICA housing projects, the President said that he knows of no provision in the agreement of these two entities regarding the sale of lots to their respective occupants: He said that PHHC and the ICA authorities were exerting efforts to find means of effecting the outright sale of the lots in the joint projects to occupants.

Earlier, the President received governors and congressmen who requested assistance for public improvements. They discussed with the Chief Executive political developments in their respective localities.

The callers included Govs. Rafael Lazatin of Pampanga, Arsenio Lugay of Tarlac, and Delfin N. Montano of Cavite.

The President also received Sen. Quintin Paredes and Rep. Lucas Paredes of Abra. They discussed the political situation in Abra.

PRESIDENT Garcia today directed Acting Education Secretary Martin Aguilar, Jr., to take immediate steps in order that the Iloilo Normal School teachers would be paid their salaries for the month of July.

The President gave this directive upon receiving news reports that teachers of the Iloilo Normal School had not received their salaries for July because the treasury warrant covering the amount for the operation and maintenance of the school had been wrongly credited to the city treasurer of Iloilo instead of to the provincial treasurer.

According to Santiago Villaluna, president of the Iloilo Normal School Teachers Association, the treasury warrant had been transmitted to the city treasurer through the Philippine National Bank, but the salaries of the teachers had not been paid because the city treasurer would not transfer the money to the provincial treasurer without an express authorization from his superiors in Manila.

The President told Secretary Aguilar to take the necessary steps and see to it that these salaries of the teachers were paid immediately.

THE President also directed the Department of Foreign Affairs to wire immediately Minister Jose D. Ingles in Hamburg, West Germany, to get in touch with Catalina Zandueta, soprano, who had appealed to the President for financial aid to further her mission of "selling" the Philippines to Europe.

Miss Zandueta made her appeal in Munchen, Germany.

The President told the department to direct Minister Ingles to submit his findings and recommendations on Miss Zandueta's case as soon as possible.

In the evening President Garcia; Administered the oath of office to Ildefonso J. Remolona as member of the board of the Social Security Commission in a ceremony held at Malacañang.

Vice-President of the Mindanao Federation of Labor and assistant general secretary of the Philippine Trade Union Council, Commissioner Remolona will represent labor in the commission. He replaced Ignacio Lacsina whose nomination to the SSC had been bypassed at the last regular session of the Third Congress.

Present at the induction were Acting Labor Secretary Agapito Braganza; SSC Chairman and Administrator Rodolfo P. Andal; Ricardo Manalad, president of the Association of Port Checkers Union; Gaudencio Antonio, president of the Producers and Exporters Association; Mrs. Remolona, wife of the new appointee; and other relatives and friends of the inductee.

President's Month in Review: August 16-31, 1957

August 16.—THE President was in bad humor this morning after reading newspaper reports that he was heading for a “showdown” with Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez.

“This is no longer objective reporting,” the President was reported to have told Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison whom he summoned to the Palace after reading the newspaper account.

The President told Sison to issue a denial to the story and later called Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable to do something about it.

President Garcia told his early callers today he had never been at loggerheads with the Senate President and described their conference in Malacañang last Thursday as “cordial and devoted to drafting campaign plans.”

It was learned that the President had summoned the Senate Leader, who is concurrently president of the Nacionalista Party, on becoming the general campaign manager in the coming political drive. However, Rodriguez was reported to have said that his designation would depend on the senatorial candidates who have to ratify the President's choice.

President Garcia later conferred with his running mate, Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., for almost two hours. The conference was held behind closed doors.

However, a Malacañang spokesman told newsmen last night the President and the Speaker discussed campaign plans and decided to devote more time in campaigning in Tagalog provinces.

Laurel conceded that the President may lose in these areas unless a concentrated campaign was waged.

Sison disclosed part of the subjects taken up in the conference and said that if these matters were kept under wraps again, newsmen may speculate on another Garcia-Laurel “showdown.”

After the President's conference with Laurel, he received Lirio Tongson, vice-chairman of the board of directors of the UNICEF.

AT noon the President swore in former Director of Labor Agapito Burgos as member of the Nacionalista Party, before ranking political leaders of the Cagayan Valley who witnessed the ceremony at the President's study room.

Burgos, who had launched his candidacy for Congress in the first district of Cagayan, announced his withdrawal from the race in order to dedicate his time in campaigning for the entire Nacionalista ticket.

He also expressed the hope that his withdrawal from the Cagayan congressional race would help solidify the North and boost the leadership of Secretary Eulogio Balao in Cagayan.

Burgos rose from the ranks and served as director of labor under the late Presidents Quirino and Magsaysay. He said he retired from the government service when the Department of Labor was reorganized.

Sponsors of the new Nacionalista were Secretary Balao, Gov. Ramon Caro of Isabela, former Gov. Vicente Formoso of Cagayan, Rep. Delfin Albano of Isabela, and ex-Rep. Domingo Siason of Cagayan.

The President also received Rep. Ismael Veloso and Gov. Alejandro Almendras, both of Davao, in separate conferences. Earlier in the morning he received Gov. Valeriano Gatuslao of Occidental Negros and Isidro Rodriguez of Rizal.

Then the President received a delegation of sanitary inspectors, led by their president, Carlos E. Cabantac, who promised to support the Administration's rural health program. The sanitary inspectors are at present holding their fifth national convention at the San Lazaro Hospital compound.

August 17.—UPON the recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole, President Garcia before leaving for Baguio this morning granted 22 conditional pardons, four absolute pardons, one special absolute pardon, and two commutation of sentences.

PRESIDENT Garcia this afternoon was guest speaker at the graduation ceremonies of the Harvard Second Advanced Management Program in the Far East, held at the St. Louis College auditorium in Baguio City.

Conducted by faculty members from the Harvard University's Graduate School of Business Administration, the advance course which lasted eight weeks had been attended by businessmen from seven Asian countries; namely, Burma, India, Indonesia, Japan, Pakistan, Thailand, and the Philippines.

The President's speech lasted about 40 minutes. He was introduced to the cosmopolitan gathering by Pablo R. Suarez, Jr., one of the graduates from the Philippines.

Other speakers were Mons. William Brasseur, vicar apostolic of Mt. Province, who gave the invocation; Faustino R. Lozada, president of the graduating class; and Dr. Harry L. Hansen, dean of the Advanced Management Program, both of whom delivered welcome addresses; Ramon V. del Rosario, chairman of the program's executive committee; and Amir Chiney, from Pakistan.

The President arrived in Baguio about 2:15 p.m. after more than six hours' motor trip from Manila. The presidential car had to proceed slowly along the highway the whole morning, sometimes, at not more than 20 miles an hour, owing to heavy blinding rains.

Originally intending to take a plane for Baguio, the Chief Executive finally decided to take a car on the insistence of Col. Urbano Caldoza, Civil Aeronautics Administrator, because of the inclement weather.

At Marilao, Bulacan, at 9:10 a.m., the presidential car figured in a near mishap when a jeepney with a Manila license plate, running at a fast clip from the opposite direction, suddenly swerved and smashed into a security car driving a few feet ahead of the presidential car.

The accident was attributed to a mechanical defect of the jeepney, as its front left wheel flew off, hitting the presidential car. The Chief Executive alighted from his car and proceeded only after ascertaining that no one in the jeepney was hurt.

AT exactly 12 noon, while going through a barrio in Moncada, Tarlac, a two-year-old child suddenly emerged from one of the houses and raced across the street. The slow moving traffic jeep from the IMA which had offered to lead the presidential motorcade through Tarlac province, had to ram into a fence on the opposite side of the street to avoid the child.

The President again alighted and in no time found himself surrounded by barrio folks who were pleasantly surprised to find the head of the nation suddenly in their midst. He talked to the people and expressed gratification over the fact that the child, except for light bruises for having stumbled on the street, was otherwise unhurt.

Finally arriving in Baguio early in the afternoon, the President proceeded direct to the St. Louis College auditorium for the graduation ceremonies. Without having his lunch, he stayed at the auditorium until the graduation rites ended at 4:30 p.m. The President saw the program through. He shook hands with each of the 108 graduates, along with the Harvardian faculty members who conducted the advanced business course.

The President arrived at the Guest House at 5:30 p.m. and, after a brief rest, received several callers.

August 18.—PRESIDENT Garcia had a heavy schedule of callers at the Guest House today.

The President started the morning by hearing mass at the Guest House. Following breakfast the President started receiving callers.

A big delegation of La Union mayors and political leaders, accompanied by Rep. Francisco Ortega, called on the President to reiterate their pledge of loyalty “in order to erase any misunderstanding about their stand in the forthcoming national elections.”

Top officers of the Philippine Military Academy also called to pay their respects. They were accompanied by Col. Oscar Rialp, acting PMA superintendent. In the course of their call, the PMA officers discussed with the President new policies being adopted by the Academy to further improve that military institution. The President expressed his belief that the traditional hazing had no longer a place in modern education, particularly because in the Philippine Military Academy the cadets are being subjected to rigid mental and physical examinations prior to their admission. He said that the practice of hazing was already outdated.

A delegation headed by Rep. Luis Hora of Mountain Province called on the President and requested improvements for their respective barrios in the suburbs of Baguio.

Another delegation from the barrios of Hillside and Dagsi-an, accompanied by Rep. Ramon Mitra and Mayor Alfonso Tabora, saw the Chief Executive. The group thanked the President for giving them their school building and feeder roads.

The President had luncheon with Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, who consulted him on problems of his office.

IN the afternoon, the Chief Executive received Mons. William Brassour, vicar apostolate of Mountain Province, who accompanied a delegation from the PACDAL Catholic Council which paid their respects.

The President is expected to return to Manila tomorrow morning to fulfill a speaking engagement with the PTUC at 11 a.m. at the National Press Club Building.

August 19.—PRESIDENT Garcia stayed awake in Baguio all of last night and caught up with his sleep aboard the presidential train that brought him and a group of newsmen to Manila this morning.

Mansion House sources said the President stayed late into the night with Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona and discussed contingent fund allocations to flood-stricken areas.

Just before dawn, the President switched from state papers to chess. He played with Col. Nicanor Jimenez until four o'clock in the morning.

After drinking a cup of coffee, the President motored to Damortis where a presidential train awaited to take him to Manila.

President Garcia had planned to fly to Manila but was advised against doing so owing to the inclement weather.

The President arrived in Damortis at 6:30 a.m. and immediately the presidential train pulled off for Manila.

President Garcia gave a brief press conference aboard the presidential train and later repaired to his suite where he slept throughout the way to Manila.

The presidential train arrived at the Sta. Mesa station at 10:30 a.m.

After a brief rest in Malacañang, the President motored to the National Press Club where he addressed the Philippine Trade Union Council.

He went down to the third floor of the NPC and joined newsmen at the bar. He offered drinks to newsmen and paid the chits.

From the NPC, the President returned to Malacañang.

After a few minutes' rest, the President motored to Quezon City where he led the nation in observing the 79th birthday of the late President Quezon.

He read a prepared speech which started in the national language and later switched to English.

President Garcia's speech left no doubt in the minds of his listeners that he had a hand in drafting the five-page opus.

Notable portion of his speech was as follows:

"The whole nation offers to his (Quezon's) memory the most beautiful flowers of a thousand fragrance culled from the very heart of the people's Garden of Love and Gratitude.

"It was his cherished dream to send the sunbeams of contentment and happiness into every hut and heart.

"But I would like to add that in our preoccupation for charting the course of our Ship of State amidst the Sargasso Sea of international relations

"He dipped his insight into the mechanics of the human heart and the dynamics of the human soul"

IN the evening the President delivered his third address of the day at the Manila Hotel before the Manila Lions.

He delivered his first address before the Philippine Trade Union Council at the National Press Club Building at 11 a.m.

In the afternoon the President was the principal speaker in Quezon City which celebrated President Quezon's birthday anniversary.

August 20.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning received the pledge of the officials and members of the Moslem Pilgrimage Association of the Philippines to support his candidacy.

Sheik Abdul Racman Pacasum, president of the association, transmitted the pledge to the President in the course of his call on the Chief Executive.

Pacasum also informed the President that the association would conduct a pilgrimage to Mecca sometime early next year. For the last three years there had been no pilgrimage to Mecca, Pacasum added.

Officials of the President Magsaysay's Rural Organization accompanied former PPP organizers in Mindoro Oriental who were sworn in as Nacionalista members by the President.

Socorro Veloria, provincial coordinator and organizer-at-large of the Progressive Party of the Philippines (MPM), told the President that she had been convinced that there could be no other candidate better fitted for the presidency than the present incumbent.

The other new Nacionalistas were Roberto Tenorio, Ofelia Acedillo, and Serenidad Acedillo. They were accompanied by Tereso Dumon, Capt. Sofronio Tagaro, and Jose Sarte, a lawyer.

A group of Japanese businessmen, accompanied by Jose A. Laurel, III, paid a courtesy call on the President. The Japanese group was composed of T. Ando, president of the Onoda Cement Company, T. Nakao, O. Hirano, Susumu Kajita, S. Fujimaki, and S. Hanada.

After receiving Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., NP vice-presidential candidate, and Sen. Francisco Delgado in the Malacañang music room, the President went down to the social hall to receive a big delegation of Caviteños led by Mayor Benigno Guinto of Bacoar, president of the Cavite Mayors' League, Mayor Isaac Tolentino of Tagaytay City, and Mayor Fidel Dones of Cavite City.

THE President today signed a proclamation declaring Friday, August 30, 1957, a special public holiday only in the province of Bulacan.

Marcelo H. del Pilar, who used the nom de plume Plaridel in his struggles in Spain to obtain reforms for the Philippines during the Spanish regime, was born in Bulacan, Bulacan, on August 30, 1850.

The Samahang Bulacan requested the President to sign the proclamation to give the people of Bulacan the opportunity to celebrate Del Pilar's birthday with fitting ceremonies.

PRESIDENT Garcia received the credentials of Ministers Ty Kim Sour of Cambodia and Phouvong Phimmasone of Laos in separate ceremonies held at Malacañang this afternoon.

The ceremonies marked the formal opening of the first diplomatic relations between the Philippines and those states, in line with the Administration's policy of establishing closer economic, cultural, and diplomatic ties between this country and its neighbors in the Far East.

Laos and Cambodia are the last sovereign states in this part of the world with which the Philippines has heretofore not established diplomatic relations. Phouvong who is concurrently ambassador to Vietnam and Ty, who is concurrently minister to Thailand, are accredited here as non-resident ministers of their respective countries. Their Philippine counterpart is Minister Mariano Espeleta, Philippine minister to Vietnam, who had been also accredited as non-resident envoy to Laos and Cambodia.

In presenting their credentials, the new envoys pledged to devote their utmost efforts to the accomplishments of their mission; namely, the furtherance of friendly relations between the Philippines and their countries.

The President in his response welcomed the new diplomats on behalf of the Filipino people and assured them of full cooperation on the part of the Philippine Government in the accomplishment of their missions.

The credential-presentation ceremony for the Cambodian minister started about 4 p.m. Then followed that for the Loatian minister at 5 p.m. Each of the ceremonies which were held at Malacañang's ceremonial hall lasted not more than 15 minutes.

Present at the rites were Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, Assistant Executive Secretary Mariano Yenke, Jr., Ministers Tomas de Castro and Juan Arreglado, Counsellors Benito Bautista and Jose Ma. Espino, Manuel Zamora and Jose Estrada, protocol officers of Malacañang and the foreign office, respectively, and Pedro Angara, assistant protocol officer.

IN the evening the President received a large delegation of political leaders from Surigao which presented him with a resolution informing him that all the Nacionalista factions in their province were united in support of his candidacy.

In the course of the call, Ex-Gov. Pedro E. Escuyos, a Liberal, was inducted into the NP by the President. The delegation included Gov. Bernardino Almeda, Ex-Govs. Fernando Silvosa and Vicente Pimentel, and former Sen. Felixberto Verano.

Another delegation from Ilocos Norte headed by Dr. Rizal Peralta also called in the evening. The group included Ex-Gov. Damaso Samonte and Mayors Vicente Hernando of San Nicolas, Esmeraldo Agabin of Badoec, Conrado Llaguno of Paoay, and Apolinario Madarila of Pinili.

Other delegation this evening were those from Laguna headed by Gov. Dominador Chipeco and Rep. Wenceslao Lagumbay and from Lopez, Quezon, led by Mayor Gregorio Yumul.

August 21.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning held a three-and-a-half hour conference with government and private financial and business experts to study means for laying the groundwork of implementing legislation passed by the Congress designed to bolster the country's economy.

Among the matters discussed were the exploitation of the nickel and iron deposits in Surigao, the development of NASSCO's steel mill project in Iligan, and the implementation of the Reparations Law.

As the conference was preliminary in nature, no details were revealed. However, the President stressed that he discussed with his conferees means to exploit the country's mineral resources and the expansion of the NASSCO steel mill plant with a view to accelerating the country's economic development through the generation of allied industries and providing jobs to thousands of the unemployed.

With regard to the Surigao mines which are reputed to be one of the most extensive in the world, it was pointed out that the Surigao mainland reserve alone is approximately 56,900 hectares while Nonoc Island has 4,321 hectares with a potential ore reserve for iron alone of about one billion tons or more. The other islands within the entire reserves are still unexplored.

In the exploration of about 336 hectares of the mainland area, the blocked-ore reserve estimates ran to 17 million tons positive and 50 million tons probable. A previous preliminary estimate of minable iron ore in the same area covering 10,000 hectares was 430 million tons, which included 275 million tons within easy hauling distance to the nearest harbor.

The nickel-bearing ore reserves in Nonoc Island have been estimated to date at 29 million metric tons of ferruginous laterite and serpentine containing 1.38 per cent nickel.

The President said that the implementation of the law providing for the establishment of a giant steel mill in Iligan City would start the establishment of other allied factories engaged in the manufacture of steel or which would use steel products.

The five-year expansion program of the NASSCO is divided into three phases with a goal to produce 200,000 tons of pig iron and to be converted to about 186,000 tons of steel.

The President said that the expansion of the steel mill in Iligan would contribute greatly to the development and growth of allied industries.

It was also pointed out at the conference that the development of the Surigao iron and nickel mines, together with the expansion of the NASSCO steel plant, would provide job opportunities to thousands of the unemployed.

The President also discussed ways and means of effectively implementing the Reparations Agreement with Japan.

The President said that he had asked the opinion and advice of government and private experts in economics and finance in his desire to speed up the implementation of the country's economic development program.

Those who were present at the conference were Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno, Sr.; RFC Chairman Eduardo Z. Romualdez; Alfonso Calalang, president of the Philippine Bankers Association; Monetary Board Member Vicente G. Sinco; Andres Soriano, Sr.; Andres Soriano, Jr.; Sebastian Ugarte; and Miguel Noel, a lawyer.

PRESIDENT Garcia at the Cabinet meeting this day signed a proclamation declaring Saturday, August 31, as a special public holiday throughout the Philippines to celebrate the 50th birthday anniversary of the late President Magsaysay.

The President and the Cabinet members also approved a tentative program to celebrate fittingly the occasion.

As submitted by Education Secretary Martin Aguilar, Jr., chairman of the committee in charge of the Magsaysay Day celebration, the observance starts at 7:30 a.m., Saturday, August 31, with a field mass to be said by Manila Archbishop Rufino Santos at the tomb of the late President at the North Cemetery.

After the mass, the official portrait of the late President will be unveiled. President Garcia will lead government officials, the family of the late President, admirers, and friends, in attending the ceremony which will also be featured by the laying of a wreath.

Lt. Col. Nicolas Ortega, chief of Army chaplains, will be in charge of religious rites while Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao will take charge of the wreath-laying.

At 12 noon, Saturday, a one-minute silence will be observed throughout the country in prayer for the late President. Sirens will be sounded all over the country to mark the start of the one-minute silence observance.

At 4 p.m. a Magsaysay youth rally will be held on the Luneta with President Garcia as the guest speaker. The rally will be featured by the conferring of awards on the medical students and the NARRA Consultative Council of Students volunteers, by Health Secretary Paulino Garcia and Mrs. Remedios Fortich, respectively.

Other numbers of the rally will include an invocation by Mons. Vicente Reyes, welcome address by Ignacio Debuque, Jr. (in charge of the affair), opening remarks by Rafael M. Sales, and introduction of the President by Secretary Aguilar.

During the rally a tape recording of the late President's last speech will be rebroadcast.

In the evening, at six o'clock, a popular band concert will be held on the Luneta with the PC, the AFP, and other bands assisting.

UPON representation of Commerce Secretary Oscar Ledesma and Carlos Quirino, in charge of the No-Dollar Import Office, the President and the Cabinet approved some revisions in the supplementary rules and regulations governing barter under Republic Act 1410, which had been approved by the Cabinet in its last meeting on August 14.

Features of the revised supplementary rules are that the rules should not be made retroactive in nature, and that the period for the validity of barter permits for exports was increased from 60 days to 90 days after the date of the permit.

Only Rules Nos. 4, 9, and 10 have been revised to read as follows:

a. For exports, ninety (90) days after date of permit.

b. For imports, ninety (90) days after negotiation of the corresponding export. If the corresponding export under the permit is not made within ninety (90) days of issue, the barter permit lapses completely and becomes invalid.

If the collateral import under the permit is not made within ninety (90) days after the negotiation of the corresponding export, the right to import shall lapse and the agent banks holding the foreign exchange corresponding to the export previously made shall within 24 hours sell such exchange to the Central Bank.

“9. These supplementary rules and regulations shall apply to all barter permits which may hereafter be granted.

“10. That no extension may be granted to barter permits issued under supplementary rules.”

PRESIDENT Garcia and the Cabinet approved in principle the immediate settlement of gratuities to retiring employees of the Manila Railroad Co. as soon as the gratuities were due.

A hitch developed in the payment of the gratuities of these employees because of the fact that the MRR had failed to pay to the GSIS its corresponding share of premiums for the retirement of employees. Upon explanation of Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona that these employees had religiously paid their premiums, the President said that it was unfair for the government to withhold the payment of gratuities to these employees because of the MRR's default.

The President said that the government should meet its obligation to the employees and that arrangements should be made in the settlement of the MRR's deficit payments to the GSIS.

The President appointed a committee, with Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez as chairman and Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona and OEC Administrator Juan Concon as members, to study the mechanics of the payment of gratuities to the employees and the manner the MRR could make up for its defaulted payments incurred during the last administration.

UPON representation of Health Secretary Paulino Garcia, the President and the Cabinet agreed that the appointments of some 100 physicians already approved for position at the National Mental Hospital be subject to a screening of a committee which had been created for the purpose before these new appointments are made effective.

Secretary Garcia informed the President that before he left for his recent trip abroad, he had created a screening committee which had gone over more than 3,000 applicants for 280 openings available at the National Mental Hospital.

He said that the prospective appointees to these positions had to be screened for their suitability for their specialized kind of job in order that they could perform their duties effectively.

The Health Secretary, however, said that during his absence some 100 applicants who had not undergone the necessary screening to determine their technical suitability for the job had been appointed.

He added that it was not fair that those who had undergone the screening and had been certified to as suitable should not receive the proper consideration they were entitled to. This, he remarked, was not fair to the patients, either.

The President said that in justice to the 3,000 applicants who had undergone the screening tests and in order that those to be finally appointed to the National Mental Hospital would be really competent for their technical work, the 100 new appointees should be screened by the committee.

Secretary Garcia said that those who would pass the test would be given permanent appointments.

THE Cabinet granted to Antonio V. Arizabal, Jr., metallurgical engineer of the Iligan Steel Mills, an extension of his leave of absence without pay to enable him to pursue advance courses and research in metallurgical engineering in the United States. Young Arizabal graduated with an M.S. in metallurgical engineering last June with one of the highest scholastic records from Carnegie Institute of Technology Graduate School in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. He is at present working for his Ph. D. in metallurgical engineering in Carnegie Institute of Technology.

Iligan Steel with a capital of P50 million has recently entered into a series of contracts with European and American firms for the establishment here of the most modern integrated steel plant. The multi-million peso steel mill will process Philippine iron ores to supply billet requirements of the five rolling and blooming mills now operating in the country.

A STEADY increase in profits in the operation of government corporations since 1954 was reported by Juan Concon, acting administrator of the Office of Economic Coordination, at the Cabinet meeting.

Concon reported that the fiscal year ending in June 1957 alone gave a net increase of P4,647,824.93 over that of the preceding fiscal year. He attributed the favorable trend in the results of corporate operations to the following factors:

- (1) Improved methods of operations;
- (2) Scientific and efficient management;
- (3) Rigid economy through effective budgetary control;
- (4) Effective implementation and coordination of economic measures; and
- (5) Increase in the volume of business and proportionate decrease in the total cost of production and other operating expenses.

The administrator pointed out, however, that the comparison was only for 12 corporations instead of 17 in the preceding fiscal year, as five corporations had been transferred to the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources on January 16, 1957. Corporations transferred were the Abaca Corporation of the Philippines, the Philippine Coconut Administration, the Philippine Sugar Institute, the Philippine Tobacco Administration, and the National Resettlement and Rehabilitation Administration.

A statement of statistical data on the combined results of financial operations of corporations in the OEC group for eight fiscal years under the past and present administration was also presented by Concon.

Concon noted that the fiscal year 1953–54 belonged to both the past and the present administrations, that is, the first half from July 1, 1953, to December 31, 1953, belonged to the former administration, and the second half from January 1 to June 30, 1954, to the present administration.

“So it can be safely stated that the big loss of more than P17 million was incurred during the last year of the past administration on account mainly of mismanagement,” Concon added.

President Garcia presided over the Cabinet meeting which was held at the Council of State room from 12 noon to 2:30 p.m. Before the President's arrival, Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason presided over the meeting.

THE President issued Executive Order No. 263, creating the Pinaglabanan Commemorative Commission charged with the erection of an appropriate monument or memorial to commemorate the first battle for the emancipation of the Filipino people which took place in San Juan del Monte, Rizal, in August 1896.

In issuing the executive order, the President entrusted the commission with soliciting voluntary contributions from the public, selecting the site of the monument or memorial, and supervising its construction and erection.

The President pointed out in his executive order that a campaign to enlist public support in the project had already been launched on the initiative of "The Spirit of 1896," a patriotic organization many of whose members had given up their lives for the freedom of the Philippines. He added, however, that the perpetuation of the memory of the Battle of Pinaglabanan was the concern not only of any locality or entity but of the entire nation. [See Executive Order No. 203, p. —, for the composition of the Pinaglabanan Commemorative Commission.]

The Provincial Treasurer and the Provincial Auditor of Rizal shall act as treasurer and auditor ex officio, respectively, of the Commission.

THE First Lady today was given a warm reception in Bulacan where she officiated in the inauguration of five government projects.

The projects inaugurated were the following:

- (1) The Longos pre-fabricated schoolhouse in Calumpit and the Calumpit-Iba-Hagonoy feeder roads;
- (2) The Pinagtulayan and the Paombong elementary schools;
- (3) The NAWASA pumping stations at barrios Concepcion and Sabang, Baliuag;
- (4) The SWA administered Bulacan Boys' Welfare Home at Pinaod, San Ildefonso; and
- (5) The Rural Health Center at Pulong Buhangin, Sta. Maria.

Traveling under a heavy rain, the First Lady's car plowed over muddy barrio roads while school children and barrio folks stood by the roadside cheering the First Lady's party.

At the inauguration of the Iba-Calumpit-Hagonoy barrio road, the First Lady braved a drizzle. She cut the ceremonial ribbon under umbrellas held for her by barrio folks.

In her brief speeches the First Lady expressed gratitude for the warm welcome afforded her. She said she would continue to support the Administration's rural uplift program.

Mrs. Garcia was accompanied to Bulacan by Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez, Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor, Mrs. Eulogio Balao, and Mrs. Dolores Gaerlan. She was fetched from Malacañang by Mrs. Alejo Santos, wife of the Bulacan governor.

Arriving at the Bulacan provincial capitol in Malolos at 9:30 a.m., the First Lady was greeted by Bulacan Governor Alejo Santos, Rep. Rogaciano Mercado, and other provincial and municipal officials. They escorted the First Lady to the sites of all projects she inaugurated.

The First Lady was back at Malacañang about 8 p.m.

REGARDING Col. Osmundo Mondoñedo's retirement from the Army, a Malacañang spokesman said today:

"President Garcia believes that it is the privilege of every qualified Filipino to run for public office. The President will not in any manner stand in the way of Col. Mondoñedo to seek an elective position. After the colonel has filed his certificate of candidacy, his retirement is a matter of course, unless he has committed anomalies while in the military service."

August 22.—COMPLAINING of slight indisposition, the President cancelled his appointments this morning, including the scheduled induction of four new Cabinet members at 10 o'clock. His physician said he was suffering from a bad cold.

However, he had breakfast with other leaders, and after a brief exchange of views with them, the President motored out of Malacañang to an undisclosed place. It was learned he went to his hideout at Fort McKinley.

THIS afternoon, feeling somewhat better, the President administered the oaths of office to Ambassador Felixberto Serrano as acting secretary of foreign affairs, Rep. Angel M. Castaño as ad interim secretary of labor, Assistant Executive Secretary Mariano Yenke, Jr., as ad interim undersecretary of national defense, and Col. Nicanor Jimenez as ad interim assistant executive secretary.

The ceremonies which were held at the social hall in Malacañang were witnessed by senators and representatives; ranking officials of the Departments of Foreign Affairs, Labor, and Defense; and labor leaders, relatives, friends, and admirers of the new appointees.

In inducting Ambassador Serrano to the premier Cabinet portfolio, the President expressed confidence that Serrano would "conduct the affairs of the nation in such a way as will give glory and honor to the Filipino people." Serrano succeeds Raul Manglapus, who had been holding the foreign affairs secretaryship in an acting capacity since March when the then Vice-President and concurrently Secretary of Foreign Affairs Garcia assumed the Presidency on the death of President Magsaysay.

On the induction of Rep. Castaño to the labor portfolio, the President pointed out that the role of labor had grown in importance in the economic security of the country. He said that the Philippines was trying to establish an example to Asian countries in ideal labor-management relations, and expressed hope that Castaño's leadership would be instrumental in bringing labor and management to work "not against one another but with one another to enrich the economy of the nation and the Filipino people." Castaño succeeds Eleuterio Adevos, resigned.

Regarding the appointments of Assistant Executive Secretary Yenke to the undersecretaryship of defense and Col. Jimenez to the assistant executive secretaryship, the Chief Executive, likewise, expressed confidence that the two men with their long and distinguished military service behind them, would be assets to the offices to which they were just inducted. Yenke succeeds Jose M. Crisol, resigned, while Jimenez takes the post vacated by Yenke in Malacañang.

Despite the inclement weather, hundreds of people trooped to Malacañang and jam-packed the spacious social hall to witness the ceremonies. First to be inducted was Ambassador Serrano at 4:35 p.m. Then he was followed by Rep. Castaño, Secretary Yenke, and Col. Jimenez. The induction rites ended about 5 p.m. with the President's brief remarks.

Among those present were Speaker Protempore Daniel Z. Romualdez, House Majority Floor Leader Arturo M. Tolentino, Sen. Jose P. Laurel, Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao, Gov. Feliciano Leviste of Batangas, Brig. Gen. Manuel Cabal, Counselor Tomas de Castro of the Department of Foreign Affairs, and labor leaders.

IN the afternoon President Garcia received Archbishop Rufino J. Santos, who brought to the President's attention a petition of the professors and employees of the University of Santo Tomas requesting the suspension of the application of the Social Security Act to the U.S.T.

According to the petition, the U.S.T. professors and employees prefer their own social security system because it is more beneficial to them than that of the government.

The President told the Archbishop that this matter had been discussed in the Cabinet meeting on August 21 and it was the consensus that there was nothing in the law which would empower the President to postpone the effectivity of the Social Security Act. The President, however, said that an opinion was voiced in the Cabinet that it might be possible for a private corporation to choose between the retirement system of the government or the corporation's own system, depending on which is more beneficial to the employees.

The Chief Executive told Archbishop Santos that this opinion was referred to Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason for a more careful study.

The President and the Archbishop Conferred for about 30 minutes in the music room immediately after the Chief Executive had officiated at the induction ceremonies at the social hall.

August 23.—PHYSICIANS of the V. Luna General Hospital pronounced President Garcia “fit as a fiddle” for the exigencies of the political campaign after a thorough check-up this morning.

President Garcia spent a great part of his day at the V. Luna General Hospital checking up on the progress of the recovery of patients he had sent for treatment there. At the same time, he had a thorough physical check-up preparatory to his taking to the field to campaign.

The President was heartened to know that the patients, most of them emergency cases, whom he had sent to the V. Luna General Hospital for treatment were fast regaining their health.

Upon reading in a local magazine an article on the condition of a ten-year old schoolboy, Delfin Bayan, whom he had ordered treated at the VLGH, President Garcia decided to visit the boy, including all the other patients whom he had sent to the hospital.

President Garcia was surprised to see little Delfin, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Maria Bayan, and his uncle, Carlos Pascua, very much improved in health, able to walk and speak, and able to see with his left eye which had been damaged. Delfin greeted the President, saying, “Mr. President, I thank you for sending me to the hospital for treatment. I am well now.”

Delfin, a 10-year old schoolboy from barrio Tangil, Laoag, Ilocos Norte, had suffered from grenade shrapnels inbedded in his skull, with his left eyesight affected. First taken to the North General Hospital, he was later on transferred to the VLGH by order of the President for observation and possible brain surgery.

Lt. Col. Melchor M. Javier, one of the leading brain surgeons of the hospital, who had attended to the boy, said that nature had taken its course in relieving Delfin of his illness, adding that for the present there was no need for a brain surgery. However, the boy is still under further observation and treatment in order that he would recover completely. The boy's mother and uncle thanked the President.

While in the hospital, the President decided to have a medical check-up and was given a thorough looking over by Army physicians under the supervision of Col. Luis Martinez, VLGH commanding officer.

After being given X-Ray tests and electro-cardiography, the Army physicians, in consultation with the presidential physicians, Drs. Luis Gaerlan and Antonio Guytingco, gave the Chief Executive a clean bill of health.

Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison said that according to the President's physicians, the President “is fit as a fiddle and is ready for the exigencies of the campaign.”

The President underwent medical examination from 9:45 a.m. to 11 a.m. From the examination room, the President walked up to the second floor of the hospital and proceeded to Ward I, where he visited Second Lieutenants Augusto Flores and Jesus de la Cruz, who had been victims of two ambushes in Sulu last August 17.

Flores had been shot through the thigh while De la Cruz had suffered gunshot wound in the chest. The two lieutenants figured in two separate ambushes, the first in sitio Baono in Panamau District while the second in barrio Pantao, Biloan, Sulu.

The President congratulated the two officers who are on the way to recovery, for their bravery and directed that good care be given to them.

From there the President proceeded to the Surgical Ward for officers, where the Chief Executive greeted the patients and wished them good luck and fast recovery. Among those in the ward was Cadet Juanito Rimando, who had been one of the hazing victims at the Philippine Military Academy.

From there, the President proceeded to Ward II, where patients requiring brain surgery and orthopedic treatment were confined. While in the ward, the President went from one bed to another, greeting each patients and inquiring into the progress of the recovery of each. He was pleasantly surprised to find in this ward several of the patients whom he had ordered brought to the hospital for emergency treatment.

Among these was four-year old Aniceto Manalo, whom the President had ordered brought to the hospital, for surgery to remove a stone in his bladder. The President was happy to know that the operation was over and the little boy was well on the way to recovery.

The President wondered at the skill of the VLGH surgeons and physicians who had treated these patients who are now on the way to health, although they were in an almost hopeless condition at the time they were brought to the hospital.

The Chief Executive spent about an hour visiting the patients in the wards, leaving the hospital at 12:30 p.m.

The President was accompanied from Malacañang by Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison and Drs. Guytingco and Gaerlan. The President later on was joined at the VLGH by Defense Undersecretary Mariano Yenke, Jr., and Assistant Executive Secretary Nicanor Jimenez.

From the hospital, the President motored to the residence of Lieut. Gen. Jesus Vargas (ret.) where he ate his lunch about 1:30 p.m.

EXECUTIVE Secretary Fortunato de Leon this morning inducted into office Primitivo Ballesteros and Mariano Ledesma as acting director and assistant director, respectively, of the Bureau of Printing.

Present during the ceremony which was held at Secretary De Leon's office at Malacañang were relatives and division chiefs of the Bureau of Printing, including Mrs. Ballesteros, Superintendent of Works Cristino de Guzman, Composing Division Chief Zoilo Nasal, Administrative Officer Eutropio Floresca, and Power Plant Chief Nicasio Ramos.

President Garcia received the credentials of Minister Lincoln Hoon Kim of Korea in a simple but impressive ceremony held at the Malacañang Ceremonial Hall this afternoon upon his return from the V. Luna General Hospital.

After presenting his credentials, Minister Kim pledged to maintain and strengthen the close and friendly relations existing between the Philippines and Korea. These close ties of friendship are based on the common dedication of the two peoples to the ideals of freedom, independence, and democracy, he said.

The Korean minister recalled the part played by Filipino soldiers during the communist aggression in Korea and pointed out that because of developments of recent history, the peoples of the Philippines and Korea play a most vital role in preserving freedom and democracy in Asia.

The new envoy stated that the national unification of Korea, which is the prime objective of the United Nations' effort in Korea, is the most pressing task to be accomplished with the continued positive support of the free world alliance, of which the Philippines is an important member. He added that the economic rehabilitation of Korea to cure the ills of communist aggression is the next important task.

In his response the President said that the close ties linking both peoples must be maintained and solidified further if they are to play a vital role in the preservation of democracy in Asia.

Present at the ceremony were Acting Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon, Sens. Cipriano Primicias and Alejo Mabanag, Ministers Juan Arreglado and Tomas de Castro, and Counselor Jose Ma. Espino.

President Garcia today received from Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona a report on the comparative statements of annual expenditures of the office of the President during 3½ years under the Liberal Party administration, from fiscal years 1951 to 1954, and those of the Nacionalista Party administration from 1954 to 1957.

In submitting his report to the President, Aytona said that he would like the people to know that the Office of the President during the Liberal administration spent in 3½ years for such items as travel abroad, discretionary fund, Belo fund, and salaries for miscellaneous and emergency employees and laborers the total sum of P3,224,799.99 as against P1,949,932.09 spent during the Nacionalista administration. Aytona emphasized that the previous administration spent P1,274,867.90 more than the present administration has spent.

In his itemized report to the President, Aytona revealed that during the 3½ fiscal years of the Liberal administration, the total spent for travel abroad was P396,923.25 as compared to P213,067.13 spent by the Nacionalista administration.

The other items were compared as follows: Discretionary fund, P998,763.23 (LP) as against P534,778.67 (NP); Belo fund, P1,637,417.20 (LP) as against P1,102,966.29 (NP); and salaries for miscellaneous and emergency employees and laborers, P191,696.31 (LP) as against P99,120 (NP).

Aytona said that among these four items, the expenditures for the Belo fund was the biggest item in which the Liberal Party administration had exceeded the Nacionalista administration by P534,450.91.

IN the evening the President administered the oath of office to Gonzalo Gonzalez as member of the Social Security Commission at a simple ceremony held at the Malacañang ceremonial hall.

The appointment of Gonzalez to that body completes the membership of the commission. Other SSC members are GSIS General Manager Rodolfo Andal, chairman, Labor Secretary Angel Castaño, Health Secretary Paulino Garcia, Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor, Ildefonso Remolina, representing labor, and Leopoldo Rovira, Jr., representing management. Gonzalez represents business interests.

Present at the ceremony were SSC Chairman Andal and Sens. Cipriano Primicias and Pedro Sabido.

Earlier, the President received Sens. Cipriano Primicias and Alejo Mabanag, who accompanied political leaders from Ilocos Norte, including Sarat Mayor Gabriel Reyes, former Congressman Vicente Lazo, and former Gov. Damaso Samonte.

Then the President received Bulacan Gov. Alejo Santos. Rep, Rogaciano Mercado, and Board Member Tomas Martin, who headed a large delegation composed of town mayors and political leaders from that province. Aside from reiterating their pledge to support the President's election bid, the delegation requested assistance for public improvements in Bulacan.

August 24.—PRESIDENT Garcia expressed optimism over the victory of the Nacionalista Party in the coming election, saying that the people would support the NP straight ticket because of the achievements the party has accomplished the last three years of administration.

In six speeches delivered since his arrival in Negros Occidental today, the President said the foremost accomplishment of the NP were the restoration of peace and order and the people's faith in the government. He said these were important because without peace and order and the people's faith in the government, all other programs of good government which the NP sought to undertake would have been impossible of implementation.

The President recalled the late President Magsaysay's promise to stamp out lawlessness when he ran under the NP banner in 1953. On assumption of office, President Magsaysay in no time fulfilled the promise and later proceeded to carry out the NP program of building artesian wells, barrio roads, prefab schoolhouses, and other projects designed to uplift conditions in outlying areas, he said.

He added, however, that the NP program was only one-fourth finished when RM died last March. He expressed the belief that the Filipino people would retain the NP in power in order to let it continue the program started by President Magsaysay.

The President received a royal welcome upon his arrival in Bacolod. Everywhere he went, people turned out en masse, cheering and waving "We are for Garcia" placards.

Landing at the Bacolod airport at 10 a.m. aboard PAF plane Dagohoy, the President met hundreds representing all towns of the province. He was met by Sen. Jose C. Locsin, Gov. Valeriano Gatuslao, and other local officials.

The President mounted the platform at the airfield and thanked the people for the spontaneous reception. He was introduced by Mayor Teofilo Cordova of Bacolod City. Speaker Laurel, who was with the party also spoke and defended himself from charges leveled against him and the Nacionalista Party.

Then the President and the Speaker headed a long motorcade to Bacolod City. All along the way, people from all walks of life lined the streets and cheered heartily as the presidential car passed by. Entering the city, the presidential party was forced to stop owing to large crowd in front of the Negros Occidental High School. The crowd refused to disperse until the President climbed on the hood of one of the escorting jeeps and said a few words to the enthusiastic welcomers.

At the city hall, the President had a brief conference with city officials. Then he proceeded to the University of Negros Occidental, where he and the Speaker addressed the student body in an open auditorium under the heat of the noonday sun.

About 1 p.m. the President and the Speaker again addressed a gathering of local officials who gave a luncheon in their honor at the University Club. About 3 p.m. the President and his party boarded a car and started the scheduled tour of northern municipalities of the province. The next stop was Talisay where people awaited him patiently for hours. The President and the Speaker addressed a huge crowd from a gaily decorated platform erected at the entrance of the Talisay market.

He arrived in Silay City about 6 p.m. for the inauguration ceremonies. He proceeded with a tour of northern towns after an evening stay in Silay.

August 25.—THE President resumed his stumping tour of northern Negros Occidental towns after hearing an early morning mass at Silay City, where he had spent the night. He delivered a total of five speeches in five public rallies in five municipalities.

The Presidential party was welcomed with parades, brass bands, and fireworks in all the towns visited. The people turned out by the thousands and waited patiently for hours under the heat of the noonday sun all along the Presidential route.

In his speeches the President appealed for a straight Nacionalista ticket. He said it was the best way to insure a continuation of the NP economic development program.

The first stop this morning was at Saravia. The President was introduced to the big crowd gathered at the public plaza by Mayor Luis Magalona, a Liberal and son of former Sen. Enrique Magalona, who pledged the support of his town to the President's bid for election.

Other towns visited today were Victorias, Manapla, Cadiz, and Sagay which is about 90 kilometers from Bacolod. The President ate lunch at 2:00 p.m. at the home of Dr. Vicente Gustilo in Cadiz.

PRESIDENT Garcia said today he would try to prevail upon Justice Undersecretary Jesus Barrera to stay in his post.

In an impromptu press conference this afternoon, the President discounted reports that Barrera's resignation had any political significance. He said it was only due to misunderstanding between Secretary Tuason and Barrera. He expressed hope that he would be able to thresh out the misunderstanding.

IN the evening the President returned to Bacolod City, where another rally was scheduled at 10:00 p.m.

The President was accompanied during the tour by Gov. Valeriano Gatuslao, Commerce Secretary Oscar Ledesma, Sen. Jose Locsin, and Sen. Pacita Madrigal Gonzalez. The President is scheduled to fly back to Manila tomorrow morning.

August 26.—BEFORE leaving Bacolod City this morning for Bohol to fetch the First Lady, the President expressed his confidence at a press conference that in Negros Occidental the Nacionalista Party would have a "repeat performance of the 1953 overwhelming victory."

In his last speech delivered last night at the Bacolod plaza, the President said that he was seeking re-election not for power nor for wealth but because of his desire to complete the economic development program initiated by the late President Magsaysay.

He appealed to the Bacolod electorate to vote the straight Nacionalista ticket on the basis of the achievement of the Nacionalista administration, like the re-establishment of peace and order and the restoration of the people's faith and confidence in the government.

He also said that one of the issues was whether or not the people wanted to preserve the democracy which the Nacionalistas had retrieved in 1953 after it had been lost in the maladministration of the Liberal regime.

Arriving at Tagbilaran, Bohol, at 10:45 this morning, the President was accorded a rousing welcome at the airport in spite of his wish for a quiet homecoming. People lined up both sides of the road from the airport to Tagbilaran and cheered him lustily.

Gov. Juan Pajo informed the President about the results of the NP congressional conventions held yesterday. Proclaimed official NP candidates for Congress were following: Rep. Natalio Castillo, first district; Rep. Bartoleme Cabangbang, second district; and Mayor Maximino Garcia of Tabilon, third district.

PRESIDENT Garcia returned this afternoon to Manila after a two-day stumping tour in Negros Occidental, quite confident that the Nacionalistas would sweep the province in the coming November elections.

The President and Mrs. Garcia enplaned for Manila about 3 p.m. and arrived at the Nichols Air Base at 5:25 p.m. From the airport the President motored to the Archbishop's Palace in Mandaluyong, Rizal, to greet Archbishop Rufino J. Santos on the occasion of his birthday. However, the Archbishop was not in.

August 27.—THE President, who had just returned from a two-day stumping tour of Negros Occidental, was kept busy today by visiting United States Undersecretary of State Christian Herter.

He received the American Undersecretary in the morning and feted him at a dinner at this Palace dining room in the evening.

In between his appointments with Undersecretary Herter, the President conferred with political leaders in an effort to strengthen his bid for votes in the coming elections.

With Herter was Ambassador James P. Richard and Ambassador Charles Bohlen.

Earlier this morning, the President received former Sen. Justiniano S. Montano and his son, Gov. Delfin Montano of Cavite. The Montanos protested the exclusion of the former Cavite senator from the NP slate.

However, the President told the Montanos that their protest was under consideration by the NP executive committee.

The President also received the newly-elected officials of the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines. The CCP officials invited the President to induct them on September 3.

The President accepted the invitation. With the CCP group were former Secretary of Labor Primitivo Lovina, Marcelo Balatbat, Benito Medina, Ben Medrano, Ramon V. del Rosario, P. E. Domingo, Jose Y. Orosa, former Justice Manuel Lim, Gil Carlos, E. V. Mendoza, and Luis Ablaza.

Justice Lim later conferred with President Garcia and raised speculations that he had been apprised of his coming appointment as secretary of education.

IN the afternoon the President conferred with the eight senatorial candidates of the majority party.

At the meeting held at the family dining room of the Palace were President Garcia Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sens. Cipriano P. Primicias, Manuel Briones, Gil J. Puyat, and Roseller T. Lim; Commerce Secretary Oscar Ledesma and Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao; and Rep. Arturo M. Tolentino, Gov. Juan C. Pajo, Technical Assistant Sofronio Quimson, Bulacan Gov. Alejo Santos, Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable, Mayor Benigno Aquino, Montano Nazario, and Tomas Arquiza. The meeting lasted for two hours.

PRESIDENT Garcia today cabled President Eisenhower expressing confidence that the U.S. President would sign into law the bill passed by the U.S. Congress providing backpay for Filipino scouts.

President Garcia added that President Eisenhower's "favorable action will bring great joy to many thousands of Filipinos and strengthen the bonds of friendship between our countries."

In his message President Garcia said that the Filipino people “have been greatly impressed by the news of the U.S. Congress having passed H. R. 5807, providing backpay for Filipino scouts during the period between their release from prison camps and return to service with their respective units.”

In this connection, President Garcia said that the government and the Filipino people, especially the veterans, were grateful to Defense Eulogio Balao and Col. Bernard Anderson, whose dedicated efforts in presenting the case of the Filipino veterans before American leaders contributed much to an understanding of the justness of their case and finally led to the passage of the bill.

A veterans mission headed by Secretary Balao, and of which Col. Anderson was a member, was sent recently to the United States to help in securing greater benefits for Filipino veterans through enactment of favorable legislation. Col. Anderson was particularly active in contacting veterans in the U.S. Congress. The passage of the bill providing backpay for Filipino scouts was one of the tangible results of their work.

“The Filipino people have been greatly impressed by the news of the Congress having passed H. R. 5807, providing backpay for Filipino scouts during the period between their release from prison camp and return to service with their respective units. Being fully cognizant of your good will toward our Republic and its people, I am confident you will sign this bill into law and your favorable action will bring great joy to many thousands of Filipinos and strengthen the bands of friendship between our countries. With wishes for your continued good health and success.”

August 28.—THIS morning the President continued his conferences with his financial and economic advisers in his determination to strengthen further the country’s economy. He met separately with RFC Chairman Eduardo Z. Romualdez and Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno, Sr.

In his conferences the President took up with his advisers such matters as the needs of local industries, the rice problem, prices of prime commodities, and reparations. No details were given.

Romualdez and Cuaderno also briefed the President on the forthcoming annual conference of the International Monetary Fund to be held in Washington, D. C., on September 21 to 28, 1957, which they will both attend.

The Philippine delegation to the conference is composed of Miguel Cuaderno, Sr., governor; Eduardo Z. Romualdez, alternate governor; and Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, Felix de la Costa, Vicente G. Sinco, Alfonso Calalang, and H. B. Reyes, as members.

The President conferred separately with Romualdez and Cuaderno up to a few minutes before 12 noon. After the conference, the President met with General Emilio Aguinaldo and then proceeded to the Council of State room to preside over the Cabinet meeting.

This step was taken as a means to lower immediately the price of rice pending the arrival of the 500,000 cavans of rice on September 15 and an additional 400,000 cavans of rice toward the end of the month. This latter importation was approved today by the Cabinet in addition to the September 15 shipment in order to insure enough supply of rice and to stabilize its price.

The President and his Cabinet spent a greater part of their meeting tackling the rice problem. Aside from deciding on the sale of the special and fancy rice varieties at not higher than P.95 a ganta as an immediate remedial measure and approving the additional 20,000 tons (400,000 cavans), the President and the Cabinet directed:

(1) The FACOMAs, through the ACCFA, to step up their milling of palay and to sell all their available rice to the NARIC so that this agency would have more stocks to sell to the public; and

(2) The NEC Presiding Office Eduardo Z. Romualdez to make arrangements for the expeditious arrival in the Philippines of the 10,000 metric tons of rice already ordered from the United States.

The President said that in his trips to the provinces, he received complaints about the soaring price of rice. For this reason, he said, he had summoned to the Cabinet meeting NARIC Chairman Juan O. Chioco and NARIC General Manager Vicente Concepcion, together with acting ACCFA Administrator Ernesto Jimenez and NAMARCO General Manager Benjamin F. Estrella, in order to adopt practical measures of easing up the rice situation.

Chairman Chioco said that with the arrival of the 900,000 cavans of imported rice during the month of September and the forthcoming harvest, the country would soon have enough rice stocks to enable the NARIC to maintain the sale of this commodity at P0.85 a ganta.

The President turned down Chioco's resignation as NARIC chairman and instead authorized him to leave immediately in order to insure the early arrival of the additional 400,000 cavans of rice expected at the end of September.

The President said that this additional importation is necessary because September is a critical period and that it is imperative that the government has enough rice stocks in order to insure the sale of this staple food at authorized levels.

Acting ACCFA Administrator Jimenez informed the President and the Cabinet that the FACOMAs had sold to the NARIC 21,000 cavans of rice which already distributed. The President said that the FACOMAs should intensify their milling of palay, if possible, on a 24-hour basis so that they could sell more rice to the NARIC, which in turn would sell it to the consuming public.

The Chief Executive told Romualdez to make representations for the speedy shipment to the Philippines of the 10,000 metric tons of rice which had been ordered sometime ago from the United States. The arrival of these additional rice stocks, the President said, would further normalize the rice situation here.

Romualdez said that this U.S. rice is expected to come in two months. By that time, rice harvests will be in full swing throughout the Philippines.

The President's directive for the NARIC to sell special and fancy varieties of rice at not more than P0.95 a ganta was made after consultation with Chairman Chioco, Commerce Secretary Oscar Ledesma, and NAMARCO General Manager Estrella. It was agreed during the discussion that if losses would be suffered by the government as a result of the sale of these fancy rice varieties, the NARIC and the NAMARCO should share in the losses. The President directed Chioco and Estrella to work out the details regarding this matter.

UPON recommendation of Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, the Cabinet approved the request of Acting Education Secretary Martin Aguilar, Jr., for the creation of 206 additional extension teaching positions for elementary schools in various school divisions throughout the country. This will accommodate more school children who could not be admitted before. The money for this purpose was taken from the savings in the appropriations for extension classes.

The recommendation for the filling up of these additional positions had been taken up in a previous conference among Commissioner Aytona, Secretary Aguilar, and the director of public schools.

UPON recommendation of Health Secretary Paulino J. Garcia, the Cabinet approved the Philippine participation in the eighth session of the World Health Organization Regional Committee for the Western Pacific to be held in Kowloon, Hongkong, from September 5 to 11, 1957.

The Philippine representatives to the conference are Dr. Jesus A. Nolasco, officer in charge of the Bureau of Health, and Dr. Antonio Ejercito, project director of the Malaria Control Division, Public Health Research Laboratories.

Dr. Nolasco was likewise designated Philippine representative to the Travel Study Tour in Public Health Administration of the WHO for two weeks, one week in Taipeh and one week in Japan, immediately following the close of the eighth session of the WHO in Hongkong.

President Garcia presided over the Cabinet meeting from 12 noon to 2:30 p.m. The Cabinet meeting was held at the Council of State room.

Owing to other important conferences which the President attended prior to the Cabinet meeting, Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason presided over the meeting until the President's arrival.

The Cabinet meeting was attended for the first time by the newly appointed members, Foreign Secretary Felixberto Serrano and Labor Secretary Angel Castaño.

THE President at the Cabinet meeting approved the official program to be held on the 50th birthday anniversary of the late President Magsaysay on August 31.

Mrs. Luz Banzon Magsaysay accepted the invitation of the committee headed by Education Secretary Martin Aguilar, Jr., to be present at the ceremonies to be held in honor of her late husband. The Magsaysay children will also be in attendance.

Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon recently sent out a circular to all provincial governors and city mayors enjoining them to cooperate wholeheartedly in the national observance of President Magsaysay's 50th birthday anniversary which had been proclaimed a national holiday throughout the Philippines by President Garcia.

IN the afternoon the President inducted Lieut. Gen. Jesus Vargas (Ret.) as ad interim secretary of national defense in an but impressive ceremony at the reception hall of Malacañang.

Gen. Vargas replaced Eulogio Balao, who resigned to run for the Senate under the NP ticket. The President inducted Vargas at 3:15 p.m., a few minutes after the regular Cabinet meeting had been adjourned.

Among those present at the induction were Senator Jose P. Laurel, Sr., Balao, Justice of the Court of Appeals and former National Defense Secretary Sotero Cabahug, AFP Chief of Staff Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, top brass of the Armed Forces and other ranking AFP officers and their ladies, and close relatives of Secretary Vargas.

August 29.—AT breakfast this morning President Garcia took further steps to implement the economic development of the country during a long conference with the Fiscal Policy Council which lasted from 7:30 to 11:30 a.m.

The President, with the unanimous endorsement of the members of the Council, decided that the nickel deposits on Nonoc Island in Surigao, the development of which had been long planned, should be fully exploited under the terms provided in the enabling legislation recently passed by Congress.

The President directed the director of mines to take up immediately with the National Economic Council the laying down of the conditions to be complied with by bidders who wish to participate in the exploitation of these mines. It was stipulated that these conditions should be acceptable to the Philippine Government.

The Council believed that from the nickel deposits on Nonoc Island alone, the country's foreign exchange position would be considerably strengthened, considering that aside from the initial outlay estimated at $100 million, the products from this extractive industry would yield a considerable amount to augment the country's international reserves.

The Fiscal Policy Council, which was created by Executive Order No. 236, met for the first time this morning. With the President as chairman, the members are: Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, NEC Presiding Officer Eduardo Z. Romualdez, and Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno, Sr.

The Council considered the recommendations made by the screening committee for the Council of State on bond issues for the fiscal year 1957–58 intended for the country's economic development. It was decided that the broad categories included in the listing made should be considered after a system of priorities have been adopted.

The categories included bond issues for irrigation, main highways, secondary and feeder roads, pre-fabricated school buildings, artesian wells, hospitals, airports, portworks, river controls, telecommunications, waterworks, and public buildings.

Among the points approved by the Council were:

(1) Authorizing the Manila Railroad to proceed with its expansion plans by releasing through bond issues P1,500,000 for the Plaridel, Bulacan, to Cabanatuan railway line. The Council also authorized the MRR to spend P100,000 to start the survey of the extension of the Sorsogon railway line.

It was believed that with the expansion of the MRR lines, more areas of the country would be brought under development and products in these regions could be easily transported to where they were needed.

(2) The release of needed amounts from bond issues to support the accelerated acquisition by the Land Tenure Administration of landed estates. The President said that the Administration's land tenure program should be stepped up in order that more landed estates could be acquired, subdivided, and sold to the tenants at cost.

(3) The Council gave financial support to the NARRA in order to enable more landless settlers to acquire and own lands and homes and to become independent farmers. It was stressed that the full programming should be undertaken jointly by the NARRA and the NEC to insure the widest possible results.

(4) Continuing the late President's program of providing pure drinking water to all the people, more water systems in the provinces are to be constructed with funds amounting to about P8 million. The construction of artesian wells in all barrios will be prosecuted.

(5) The work on reforestation will be intensified in order to conserve the forests and, aside from providing employment to more people, to prevent erosion and floods.

(6) The manufacture of more pre-fabricated school buildings should be accelerated. For this purpose, the sum of P1,500,000 was released in addition to an equal amount already spent for the purpose. The Chief of Staff of the Armed Forces was asked by the President to increase the output of pre-fab schoolhouses for distribution to more areas needing them.

THIS morning the President administered the oath of office to Madki Alonto as acting chairman of the Commission on National Integration, at the Malacañang social hall.

After the ceremony, the President lauded the objectives of Republic Act 1888, which created the Commission, in helping in the upliftment of the non-Christian tribes of the country.

The President foresaw a better era for the non-Christian tribes in the country under the Nacionalista administration and promised to continue his policy of educational, cultural, and economic upliftment of the minorities.

After inducting Madki Alonto as acting chairman of the Commission on National Integration, the President swore in former Liberal Cavite Governor Dominador Camerino, and about 5,000 members of his faction, including seven municipal mayors, as members of the Nacionalista Party.

The President then inducted Fortunato Sazon and ex-Mayor Roman Kabilang, both of Lubao, Pampanga, as Nacionalista members. One mayor, two vice-mayors, and six councilors of Isabela also took their oath of affiliation as Nacionalistas before the President.

Manuel Rodriguez, national chairman of the Philippine Federation of Labor and formerly national chairman of the Quirino for President Club in the 1949 and 1953 elections, was also inducted as a Nacionalista by the President, together with Pedro Grande, secretary general of the club.

Luciano Millan, former newspaperman and official NP candidate for the fifth district of Pangasinan, called on the President to ask for help for the typhoon-damaged public works installations in several towns of his district. Millan obtained the assurance of the President that help would be extended to the towns.

NARIC employees, led by acting General Manager Vicente R. Concepcion, called on the President to express their gratitude for the retention of Gov. Juan O. Chioco as chairman of the Board of Directors of the state firm.

ACTING on the appeal of presidential candidate Manuel P. Manahan, President Garcia today directed Health Secretary Paulino J. Garcia to have three women allegedly suffering from mental ailment in Dipolog, Zamboanga, to be attended to immediately and airlifted to Manila for confinement and treatment at the National Mental Hospital, if necessary.

Manahan, who learned of the plight of these three women during his stumping tour in the South, appealed to the President to help them.

President Garcia lost no time in directing the health secretary to have the health officer in Dipolog, Zamboanga, examine these women. He directed that should it be necessary for these women to be confined and treated at the National Mental Hospital, he would immediately send a plane to fetch them.

The President expressed his thanks to Manahan for calling his attention to this case which needed the government's help.

The President said: "Continuing with as much enthusiasm and vigor the policy initiated by the late President Magsaysay in extending the government's help to our unfortunate countrymen, I have always immediately acted in giving succor to those who are in distress, especially the oppressed and the sick. I thank Mr. Manahan for calling my attention to the case of these three unfortunate women. Steps have already been taken to help them."

In another directive, President Garcia this day told Acting Education Secretary Martin Aguilar, Jr., to attend immediately to the case of the 106 public school teachers of Jaro, Leyte, who claimed that they had not been paid their salaries in July.

The teachers, through their president, Sofronio Marmita, wrote the President saying that, because of their financial difficulties, some of them had applied for salary loans from the Government Service Insurance System.

The President told Secretary Aguilar to act on this case with dispatch and to see to it that the teachers receive their salaries beginning July. He said that arrangements should be made so that henceforth they would receive their salaries regularly. The Chief Executive told Aguilar to report the result of this directive.

IN the evening the President led the nation in the observance of the 61st anniversary of the Battle of Pinaglabanan. He motored to Pinaglabanan, San Juan, Rizal, where he was guest of honor at a civic-educational-military parade and a literary-musical program held in connection with the two-day celebration.

Arriving at the Pinaglabanan monument at exactly 5 p.m., the President was greeted by a large crowd headed by Rizal Gov. Isidro Rodriguez and San Juan Mayor Nicanor Ibuna.

After inspecting an honor guard made up of a unit of the Presidential Guard Battalion, the President proceeded to an improvised grandstand erected at the foot of the Pinaglabanan monument.

The program started at 5:30 p.m. with the singing of the Philippine National Anthem by the Teachers' Club school children, with Miss Constanca Alva, directing. Other features of the program included floral offerings made by civic, social, and school groups; a Kundiman sung by Miss Adelina Cruz; and giving of donations for the improvement of the "Pinaglabanan Heroes Monument." Judge Guillermo Guevarra was master of ceremonies.

In his speech this afternoon President Garcia pledged to harness all the resources of his administration to promote the happiness of the people, saying that the "government has no business to exist if it cannot enhance the general welfare."

He spoke before the monument erected to the memory of the heroes of the battle.

The President recalled that the first shots against Spain and later against the United States were fired at San Juan.

After extolling the heroes of Pinaglabanan, the President called attention to "thousands of other heroes who have made this country what it is today."

He said he referred to farmers, laborers, teachers, social workers, and thousands of other civil servants who have all dedicated their lives to the service of their people.

"These heroes never carried guns, nor took to a bloody battlefield, though history records that they too were ready to pick a bolo if need be in defense of their country," the President said.

He then pointed out that the "challenge of Pinaglabanan rings much clearer today" and that the opportunities for sacrifice and heroism that sparked our heroes sixty-one years ago to deeds of valor are all about us."

President Garcia urged the people to work together for the prosperity and freedom of the country.

"To make this country strong, we must stand together," he said. "All of us should be ready to give up something of ourselves for our country."

The President's speech lasted for about 20 minutes. He was introduced by San Juan Mayor Nicanor Ibuna, (See the next issue of the Gazette for the complete text of the President's speech.)

The President returned to Malacañang about 7 o'clock in the evening.

August 30.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona to release the full amount for the implementation of the salary standardization of public secondary school and city intermediate school teachers.

The President gave the directive during a courtesy call of academic supervisors and principals of normal schools who are terminating their seminar on cooperative education.

Jose del Rosario, president of the Academic Supervisors Association, informed the President that the salary standardization insofar as the secondary school and city intermediate school teachers were concerned was not being implemented.

Under the law, the sum of P3,028,000 was appropriated to cover salary differentials.

Earlier, the President received three officials of the International Bank who were accompanied by General Manager Filemon Zablan of the National Power Corporation.

During the courtesy call the President and the IB officials discussed various details of the $25 million loan being applied for by the Philippine Government for the dollar requirement needed for the construction of the Binga Hydroelectric Project in Mt. Province.

The International Bank officials were informed by the President that the Nacionalista administration will pursue vigorously the program of construction of hydroelectric projects.

Rep. Tobias Fornier, chairman of the appropriation committee of the House of Representatives, informed the President that after a thorough research he found out that the release of discretionary funds is not covered by the provision under the Public Works Act which prohibits the release of funds under said act 45 days before elections.

Augusto J. Lopez called on the President to present one of his "Magsaysay clocks of democracy". Lopez in making the donation expressed the hope that "the ideals of our late President will be forever preserved for our country and people".

Other presidential callers were Sens. Decoroso Rosales and Pedro Sabido, Govs. Rafael Lazatin of Pampanga and Juan Frivaldo of Sorsogon, Rep. Manuel Zosa of Cebu, and former Defense Undersecretary Teodosio Diño.

THE President today ordered the airlifting and admission in Manila suburban hospitals of four emergency patients from different parts of the country on urgent requests of members of the patients' families and the local provincial doctors.

The patients were Vicente Daruca from Cebu, Nelita Pescador from Tuguegarao, Cagayan, and Genaro Edquilang and Vicente Talibong from Bukidnon.

Daruca, who was suffering from "intracranial hematoma secondary to trauma, was admitted at the V. Luna General Hospital on the request of his wife, after having been brought to Manila on a Philippine Air Lines plane.

Pescador who was also brought here on a PAL plane was considered an emergency case by the Cagayan provincial doctor, as the case needed the removal of a foreign body in the trachea. She is now confined at the North General Hospital.

Edquilang and Talibong were brought to the city from Bukidnon on a mercy plane of the Philippine Air Force. They were victims of a car accident. They were admitted to the National Orthopedic Hospital on the request of the chief of the Bukidnon provincial hospital.

THE President also directed that President Magsaysay's favorite portrait be hung among the portraits of past presidents on the walls of the reception hall of Malacañang Palace, on the eve of Magsaysay's birthday.

The portrait is a new copy recently made of the one presented as a gift by Mrs. Vicky Quirino-Gonzalez, daughter of the late President Quirino, when Magsaysay was still secretary of national defense. It was President Magsaysay's favorite picture hung in Mrs. Magsaysay's bedroom during their stay in Malacañang.

Recently, President Garcia had ordered a new copy made by Garcia-Llamas, the famous Filipino painter who did the original which was returned to Mrs. Magsaysay, it being a personal property of the family.

The copy was delivered to Malacañang today in time for the observance of the late President's 50th birthday.

Smith of the U. S. Embassy, Ambassador Bohlen during his brief call at Malacañang this afternoon, informed the Chief Executive that the stamps were to be the first of a series to be issued by the U. S. Department of Post in memory of the great Filipino leader.

Following the call, the President repaired to the state dining hall where he gave his regular weekly press conference. Then he resumed receiving callers which included a delegation headed by Mayor Sergio Osmeña, Jr., of Cebu City.

At the press conference, the President said, "I would like to take up with you this afternoon the following points:

"(1) I have been in constant conference with my financial and economic advisers regarding what points in the Administration's economic program can be immediately implemented to bolster our economy and quicken the country's economic development.

"Following my meeting with the Fiscal Policy Council yesterday I told Mines Director Gozon to discuss with the National Economic Council the laying down of the conditions to be complied with in the bidding for the exploitation of the nickel deposits on Nonoc Island in Surigao, which would be acceptable to the government.

"I am glad to inform you that today the NEC Presiding Officer, Eduardo Z. Romualdez, said that Mines Director Gozon would submit on Tuesday all the needed papers preparatory to the opening of bids for the exploitation of these mines. It is needless to say that the development of these mines will provide employment to thousands of our countrymen and bolster tremendously our dollar reserves.

"We will exert all efforts in seeing to it that work on these mines can be started at the earliest possible time. The initial outlay needed for the exploitation of these mines is estimated at $100 million.

"(2) As I announced about two months ago, I am organizing very soon a committee which will study ways and means of providing incentives to producers. I believe that in order to increase production in our country, the Government should provide real and substantial incentives to our producers. Only through increased production can we solve on a permanent basis the high cost of essential commodities. I believe that incentives which do not go directly to producers but to middlemen and speculators, are not the right kind of incentives which will produce the desired results.

"I have been going over a list of prospective members of this committee representing all the segments of our country's economy. I have been extra careful that the committee is not influenced in one way or another by political considerations, in order that it can accomplish successfully the task assigned to it. I expect that in a day or so I shall be able to release the membership of this important committee.

"(3) This morning I had a most cordial conference with Justice Undersecretary Jesus Barrera, during which I asked him to defer his resignation until the paramount questions involved in the bases talks between the Philippines and the United States, in which he has played a very important role, would have been fully resolved.

"Undersecretary Barrera said that he would defer his resignation and abide by my wishes and decision.

"(4) In the interest of contributing to the holding of clean and free elections, I ordered today the director of telecommunications to reduce press rates from three centavos to two centavos during the period from November 5 to 19, 1957. I believe that one effective means of preventing frauds in elections is to make the results public as fast and as complete as possible and also to report fully news which are conducive to the holding of free elections. This can be achieved if the present rates are reduced for very obvious reasons. The observance of these reduced press rates is only experimental in nature, but if the experiment proves to be a success, I shall order its continuance.

"(5) As you know, there have been adverse reports in certain U.S. magazines and newspapers concerning our activities in the recent convention. These criticisms are completely false and groundless.

"I resent any suggestion that the Filipinos cannot do a magnificent job in self-government. It is my declared purpose to make this a clean and model election. I am asking your cooperation to this end.

"In countries like the United States, for example, the constant check on the functioning of representative government is a free and informed press. Happily, we have such a press here in the Philippines. I am not sure that some of our critics in other parts of the world are fully aware of this fact.

"Not only to make this plain, but also to provide the additional safeguards of the democratic process that a free press can offer, I wish to extend an invitation that may be unusual from the point of view of governments but that is, in my judgment, right and wise.

"Will those of you who represent non-Philippine newspapers and news agencies kindly extend to your principals, and through them, to other newspapers and agencies, our cordial invitation to "cover," as you say, this election to the extent of their capacity? We will extend to them every facility within our power to get the facts and to report them promptly. They can be assured of a warm and friendly welcome in this country and an understanding of the fact that their job is to present the news, fairly and freely.

"We do not shun the spotlight of close scrutiny. We want an election that will be an honor to our country, and, when we have it, we want it reported."

August 31.—PRESIDENT Garcia this day led the nation in the observance of the 50th birthday anniversary of the late President Magsaysay.

Leaving Malacañang at 7:20 a.m., the President, accompanied by the First Lady, motored to the tomb of the late Chief Executive where a mass was said by Manila Auxiliary Bishop Vicente Reyes.

Upon arriving at the North Cemetery, the President inspected the honor guard and then proceeded to the pew where Mrs. Luz Banzon Magsaysay was seated, and greeted her. In the next pew were seated the Magsaysay children, Ramon, Jr., Milagros, and Teresita.

After the mass the President offered a wreath at the Magsaysay tomb. He was followed by Sens. Cipriano Primicias and Emmanuel Pelaez who represented the Senate; Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., in representation of the House of Representatives; Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano; and Lt. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff, in representation of the Armed Forces. Other wreaths were offered by other high government officials and friends of the late President. After the mass, taps were sounded.

THE President then motored to the Nichols Airbase Officers' Club where he ate his breakfast. After breakfast the President, on behalf of the Philippine Government, received from Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen, aircrafts for the PAF at turnover ceremonies held at the Manila Domestic Air Terminal.

In his speech the President stressed the need for a coordinated and integrated US-PI air defense effort in the Philippines and in this part of the world.

He expressed the hope that this latest increment in the program of modernization of the PAF "may also serve as a deterrent to communist resurgence in our country and as a prop to the defense of our institutions and our way of life."

At the same time, he pointed out the triple significance of the occasion because it showed that the United States was concerned over the safety of the Filipino people; that she believed in our innate capacity to resist aggression; and that, despite the smallness of the Philippines, the United States considered her a partner in a common cause to help preserve the free world by further strengthening its defenses against communism.

The President expressed confidence in the ability of the PAF officers and men to make effective use of the new equipment and facilities. He added that as a tangible manifestation of his confidence, he had authorized the immediate release of P200,000 for the housing project of officers and enlisted men at the Basa Air Base.

In his speech Ambassador Bohlen said that the aircraft turnover gave substance to the US-PI Mutual Defense Treaty. He stressed the ever-increasing role that air power played in the modern world in the preservation of peace.

The planes transferred consisted of 30 F-86F Sabrejets, four SA-16A Albatross, and eight T-6G Advance Trainer aircraft.

Among those present at the ceremonies were Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas, Senator Pacita M. Gonzalez, Justice Sotero Cabahug, Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, Rep. Numeriano Babao; Lt. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Diosdado Rodriguez, AFP deputy chief of staff; Brig. Generals Pelagio Cruz and Leoncio Tan; Maj. Gen. Joseph Harper, JUSMAG chief; Maj. Gen. John Ackerman, commanding general of the US 13th Air Force; and Rear Admiral Edgar Cruise.

PRESIDENT Garcia appealed this noon for support to the senatorial slate of the Nacionalista Party at the national convention of the Democratic Labor Party at a Plaza Santa Cruz restaurant.

In appealing for labor support, the President stated that by comparison with the senatorial ticket of the opposition parties, the NP line-up was formidable. He pointed out that the Nacionalista senatorial candidates were men who had rendered long and distinguished public service.

The DLP, headed by former Labor Secretary Jose Figueras, is supporting the entire Nacionalista ticket.

Genaro Magsaysay, brother of the late President Magsaysay and official NP candidate for Congress in the lone district of Zambales, was the keynote speaker.

Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., NP candidate for vice-president, and Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., also spoke. They were introduced by Figueras and Rep. Arturo M. Tolentino, respectively.

IN the afternoon the President swore in as a Nacionalista Diosdado Reyes Delima, who had already been proclaimed as the Liberal Party congressional candidate for the third district of Bohol.

Delima was formerly a provincial board member of Bohol. He was accompanied to Malacañang by Bohol Governor Juan Pajo, Lorenzo Piquero, secretary of the Bohol provincial board, and Mayor Maximino Garcia of Talibon.

The President also signed the ad interim appointment of Domingo Cordoba as justice of the peace of Hinundayan, Leyte.

President Garcia today directed the airlifting of Mrs. Asuncion de Castro of Iba, Zambales, to Manila for medical treatment.

The President ordered the airlifting upon request of Zambales Governor Manuel Barretto and Pastor de Castro.

Mrs. De Castro is suffering from stones in the kidneys. She was airlifted this morning to Manila and was taken by an Army ambulance to the North General Hospital, where she will be confined and treated.

Upon recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole, President Garcia today granted four conditional pardons and two absolute pardons, and commuted the sentence of one.

PRESIDENT Garcia this afternoon reiterated his determination to push through the numerous projects launched by the late President Magsaysay, particularly “the redemption of our fellowmen in the barrios, the achievement of their prosperity and self respect, and the restoration of their human dignity.”

Speaking at the Magsaysay youth memorial rally held at the Independence Grandstand on the Luneta this afternoon to commemorate the 50th birthday of the departed leader, the President said: “We carry on, with his memory guiding and prodding us onward to push through the great reform he had traced out for the redemption of our fellowmen in the barrios, that they may at last regain in full measure the substance of their Christian heritage.”

Present at the rally were Mrs. Luz B. Magsaysay, widow of the late President; her children, Teresita, Milagros, and Ramon, Jr.; and Genaro Magsaysay, brother of the departed Chief Executive. Also present were members of the Cabinet, other high ranking government officials and large student delegations from various colleges and universities in Manila and suburbs.

The memorial rites were featured with the replay of a recorded speech last delivered by President Magsaysay at the commencement exercises in San Carlos University in Cebu City last March 16. For 10 minutes, the mass assemblage of students listened with rapt attention to the voice coming through the public address system, as President Magsaysay, in his extemporaneous speech, underscored the role of the youth in his program of rural improvement.

Mrs. Magsaysay, who sat misty-eyed throughout the program, was seen to have passed a handkerchief over her eyes several times while listening to the voice of her late husband. However, she could not help laughing when, at one point of the recorded speech, President Magsaysay was talking about his grey hairs and adding, “They are not only greying but falling.”

The program started at 5:15 p.m. upon the arrival of President Garcia at the Independence Grandstand. The Magsaysays arrived a few minutes earlier in a Malacañang No. 1-C car with motorcycle escorts. Mrs. Magsaysay wore a black terno with a cattleya orchid on her left breast. Her children Teresita and Milagros were also in black dresses, while Ramon, Jr., wore a white suit with black tie and shoes.

Other speakers were Ignacio Debuque, Jr., who gave a welcome address, Rafael M. Salas, who delivered the opening remarks, and Education Secretary Martin Aguilar, Jr., who introduced the President.

Another feature of the program was the presentation of a presidential plaque to members of the Consultative Council of Students Summer Work Camps for “outstanding and unselfish services rendered to NARRA settlers in Wao Lanao, and Maramag, Bukidnon. Another presidential plaque was awarded to the Medical Students Rural Volunteers headed by Dr. Narciso Monfort, for services rendered to people in the rural areas while performing duties as assistants to rural health officers last summer.

During the presentation of the awards, Debuque, who was master of ceremonies, disclosed that the student work camps last summer had been approved by the late President Magsaysay on the eve of the latter’s departure for Cebu City on March 16, and later ratified and given full support by President Garcia.

President Garcia returned to Malacañang about 6 p.m.

President's Month in Review: September 1-15, 1957

OFFICIAL MONTH IN REVIEW

September 1.— PRESIDENT Garcia said today that in seeking a valid solution to the country's problems, the government should form policies based principally on morality and Christian precepts.

He emphasized that whether it be in solving economic ills or in pursuing foreign policy, the government should be guided by moral principles.

He quoted: "Seek ye first the Kingdom of Heaven and everything else would be added unto you."

The Chief Executive made these remarks in a brief, extemporaneous speech after having breakfast with the Knights of Columbus, Capitol Council, at the Camp Murphy club house on the occasion of the organization's fourth anniversary celebration.

Congratulating the members of the K of C Capitol Council, the President said that they belonged to a universal organization which imposed upon its members clean living, among other things. This, he added, was a factor which would contribute much to the administration of good government.

He warned unscrupulous persons against spreading calumnies and lies about their fellowmen. He said that if one did this, "he will ultimately become a victim of his own folly." He reminded his audience of another quotation: "If you sow the wind, you will reap the whirlwind."

He lauded the members of the K of C for their work in promoting better understanding among their fellowmen. This, the President said, would contribute to making this world and the Philippines a more peaceful and a better place to live in.

The President arrived at the Camp Murphy club house shortly before 9:00 a.m. He was welcomed by Grand Knight Faustino Turla and other officers of the organization. 6

Commerce Secretary Oscar Ledesma, who introduced the Chief Executive, said that President Garcia was one public official whom the people could implicitly trust.

After delivering his Extemporaneous speech, the President motored to Tanay, Rizal, to fulfill another speaking engagement.

THE President this morning said that the Nacionalista Party ticket was composed of men who have rendered the country more than a quarter century of dedicated public service.

He said, "They are heads and shoulders over the candidates of other parties."

The President made this statement at a rally in Tanay, Rizal, where he motored this morning to attend a reunion of Class '23 of the Philippine Law School of which he had been a member. The reunion was organized by the President's classmates, headed by Protacio Amoroy.

Speaking at an improvised platform a few meters away from the Tanay church, the President said that the art of government should not be entrusted to inexperienced hands like movie stars and radio comedians.

The President said that the Nacionalista Party had a splendid record since its founding in 1907 and had produced men like Quezon, Osmeña, and Palma. In less than four years, the President said, after the Nacionalista Party returned to power following eight years of Liberal Party misrule, the Nacionalista administration has achieved among other things the following:

(1) Launched an unprecedented program to uplift the living conditions in the rural areas by building more artesian wells, feeder roads, schoolhouses, irrigation systems, and by establishing health units in the rural areas; (2) Restored peace and order;

(3) Restored the people's confidence in their government by bringing it closer to them and making it more responsive to their needs;

(4) Freed the small farmers from the clutches of usurers by organizing the ACCFA; and

(5) Gave land to the landless by creating the NARRA and the Land Tenure Administration.

In giving his reasons for his election bid, the President said that he was committed to finishing the "grandiose task" which had been auspiciously started by the late President Magsaysay.

He said that while it was true that he had received the highest gift of the people by operation of the Constitution, it was wrong to believe that his ambition was to enjoy the prestige and power of the presidency. He said that after 32 years of public service he considered it his greatest challenge to complete the unfinished projects started by the Nacionalista Party in 1954. He emphasized that the ultimate goal of these projects was to promote the general welfare of the people and to preserve democracy in this part of the world.

Before delivering his speech, the President swore in Mariano Floresca, who affiliated with the Nacionalista Party. Floresca was formerly Liberal Party president of the Tanay local chapter.

Among those who accompanied the President to Tanay were House Majority Floor Leader Arturo Tolentino, NP senatorial candidate, Rizal Governor Isidro Rodriguez, Quezon City Mayor Norberto Amoranto, and Batanes Governor Marcos Malupa.

The President returned to Malacañang at 6 p.m.

IN the evening the President inducted the officers of the senior class of the Manuel L. Quezon Educational Institution at Malacañang Park.

He also swore in Camilo Cabili, son of the late Tomas Cabili, who perished with President Magsaysay in the Mount Pinatubo plane crash in Cebu, as a member of the Nacionalista Party. Young Cabili, who is a practising lawyer, told the President that he will urge the followers of his late father to join the Nacionalista camp. He was inducted into the NP at ceremonies at the Malacañang ceremonial hall.

September 2.—THIS morning the President received Msgr. Edward E. Swanstrom, director of the Catholic Relief Services-US National Welfare Conference, who gave assurances that 5,000 tons of rice and another 5,000 tons of relief supplies were due to arrive in the Philippines before the end of the year.

Msgr. Swanstrom is touring the Far East. He arrived yesterday from Korea and Japan. He will leave for Vietnam, Tuesday.

The visiting Catholic prelate was accompanied by Msgr. Joseph J. Harnett, Far East director; Edward Kinney, director of purchase and supplies; and Lee Sanborn, Manila chief of the same organization.

Earlier, the President received Gov. Miguel Cuaderno of the Central Bank, who called for last-minute instructions before leaving to attend the International Monetary Fund Conference in Washington, D.C. Cuaderno is the head of the Philippine delegation.

THIS noon the President promised labor leaders that, if re-elected, he would recommend to Congress at its next session in January the amendment of the Social Security Act in order to correct certain defects of the law.

The Chief Executive said that one of his proposed amendments would provide that any employee who would retire before retirement age could get back all his deposits plus the contribution of his company to the benefits plan.

Another amendment to be recommended by the President would give employees the right to decide whether to join the Social Security System or continue under their present company benefits plan provided that the latter plan would give at least equal or more benefits than those provided for by the Social Security Act.

The President bared his plan to seek the amendment of the Social Security Act before members of the Philippine Labor Organization headed by Dr. Marcelino Enriquez, who asked exemption from the compulsory coverage of the Social Security Act.

The PLO members, mostly employees of the Caltex, Tidewater, and Shell oil companies, alleged that they were now enjoying better benefits under the plan of their companies than those provided for by the law. They also alleged that their companies' plans did not require them to contribute their share in the retirement benefits.

The President told the employees of the oil firms that he was not empowered by law to postpone the implementation of the Social Security Act or to exempt employees from coverage because the law was very explicit in this respect.

Among those with the delegation were Clemente Gonzales, president of the Shell Employees Association, and Jesus R. Mata, adviser of the Shell Employees Association.

The President also received former Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao, a Nacionalista Party candidate for senator, Jose Fernandez of Compania Maritima, and Highways Commissioner Rodolfo Maslog.

The President receipted callers up to 3 p.m.

IN the evening the President entertained a delegation from Cebu headed by Gov. Jose Briones and City Mayor Sergio Osmeña, Jr., and a delegation from Misamis Oriental headed by Gov. Vicente de Lara and Rep. Ignacio Cruz.

He also received Dangold Milk Company executives headed by Santiago Syjuco, company president.

Before motoring to the Manila Hotel to attend a dinner that several Northern ward leaders were giving for Balao, the President conferred with Sen. Edmundo Cea and Rep. Manuel Zosa of Cebu.

PRESIDENT Garcia today signed Proclamation No. 440, declaring Saturday, September 21 1957, as Children's Day.

In the proclamation the President said "it is necessary to set aside a day dedicated to children in the hope of arousing greater concern for their welfare."

He added. "We are all vitally interested in the well-being of children, especially in these times when they are exposed to so many temptations to stray away from the straight and narrow path."

He said that the future of the nation demanded that children be given all the care and attention necessary to make them good and useful citizens.

The President designated the Children's Library and Museum, Inc., to take charge of the celebration of the day.

September 3.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning ordered the release of ₱5,230,000 for various public works projects at a breakfast conference with Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, and Acting Secretary of Education Martin Aguilar, Jr.

At the conference, the President:

- (1) Directed Secretary Moreno to release ₱1,330,000 appropriated under Republic Act No. 917 for restorations and repairs of highways damaged by the recent typhoon;
- (2) Directed Secretary Aguilar, Jr., to release ₱2,900,000 appropriated under Republic Act No. 1613 for the construction of school buildings to house about 3,706 new classes accommodating around 200,000 school children; and
- (3) Authorized the release of ₱1,000,000 from his highway discretionary funds for various continuing projects, among which are the Tumawini Diversion of the Cagayan "Valley road, the Tagudin-Cervantes road in Ilocos Sur, and the Iloilo-Molo boulevard in Hollo.

The President also instructed Secretary Moreno to start the dredging of Sorsogon Bay as soon as possible.

THE President administered the oath of office to former Justice Manuel Lim as secretary of education in a ceremony held at Malacañang this afternoon.

At the induction the President took occasion to thank Education Undersecretary Martin Aguilar, Jr., for "the splendid service he had rendered as acting secretary the past few months." The President at the same time expressed hope that the educational system in the country would be further improved with the appointment of Lim as new head of the department.

Secretary Lim, for his part, thanked the President for the opportunity accorded him again to be in the public service. He pledged to do his utmost to implement the educational policies of the Administration.

The new education secretary was formerly undersecretary of justice and concurrently solicitor general. He was at one time also associate justice of the Court of Appeals. Present at the ceremony were ranking officials and employees of the Department of Education headed by Undersecretary Aguilar, Justice Pastor Endencia of the Supreme Court, and friends, relatives, and admirers of the new appointee.

Following the induction, the President had a conference with NEC Chairman Eduardo Romualdez, Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez, and Mines Director Benjamin Gozon, who submitted to him for consideration the proposed terms and conditions" under which the Nonoc nickel mines in Surigao would be exploited by private parties.

After the conference, the President said he would study the proposed terms more thoroughly and would make them public after consultation with his Cabinet. Also at the conference were Leopoldo Abad and Pascual Bautista, chiefs, mining division and petroleum division, respectively, of the Bureau of Mines.

The President also received Gov. Conrado Estrella of Pangasinan, who presented to him the official congressional candidates of the Nacionalista Party in his province. Presented were Aguedo Agbayani of the first district, Teofilo Guadiz of the second district, Cipriano Primicias, Jr., of the third district, Ramon Saura of the fourth district, and Luciano Millan of the fifth district.

A 300-man delegation composed of political leaders from Bulacan also called to reiterate their pledge of loyalty. Accompanied by Rep. Erasmo Cruz, the delegation also asked the President to exert his influence in the NP to have the first district of their province declared a free zone.

Chinese Ambassador (Mien Chih-Mai headed the long list of scheduled and unscheduled callers of President Garcia today. The Chinese Ambassador's visit was purely a courtesy call.

Rep. Apolinario Apacibjle of Batangas led a delegation of mayors, councilors, and barrio lieutenants who saw the President to inform him of the progress of their political campaign. The mayors were Gregorio Pretonel of Agoncillo, Olimpio Sayo of Calatagan, Quirino Lejano of Lian, Angel Lasala of San Luis, Luis Ramos of Balayan, Pedro Macalalag of Tuy, Pedro Renosa of Nasugbu, Exequiel Caringal of San Nicolas, and Leon Sangalang of Lemery.

Others who called on the President were PHHC General Manager Vicente Orosa, Santiago Syjuco of the Darigold Milk Company and the 7-UP Bottling Company, Senator Decoroso Rosales, Reps. Ramon Mitra of Mountain Province, Lucas Paredes of Abra, and former Sen. Justiniano Montano.

Among other callers were Sen. Alejo Mabanag and a delegation from Ilocos Norte headed by former Gov. Damaso Samonte.

IN the evening, the Chief Executive motored to the Winter Garden of the Manila Hotel, where he inducted the new officers and board members of the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines.

President Garcia this evening declared, that the "resiliency and spirit of survival" among Filipinos have encouraged him to take an optimistic attitude about the economic future of the country.

He spoke extemporaneously before the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines at the induction of its new officers at the Manila Hotel.

The President laid aside a prepared speech and went into a defense of the economic structure of the country after it came under criticism from former Secretary of Labor Primitivo Lovina, new president of the chamber.

Lovina preceded the President to the rostrum and delivered his inaugural speech. The new CCP president is also a member of the Liberal Party's national executive committee.

President Garcia explained that the national economy reflects three and a half centuries of foreign domination and it would take "superhuman efforts" to shake off Spanish and American influences.

"This is a reality which we cannot afford to overlook," the President said.

He told the businessmen that in their trips abroad, they must have noticed that even countries in Europe are tightening their belts to prevent the collapse of their economies.

But in the Philippines, he pointed out, "despite the ravages of the past war, we were not so unlucky." He then reviewed the rapid rehabilitation of the country from the liberation era in 1945.

"With the resiliency of the Filipinos, their capacity to rise above reverses, and their spirit of survival," President Garcia declared, "I cannot help but face the future with optimism."

He called on the members of the chamber to share his optimism.

In his prepared speech the President had intended to call on businessmen to exploit new productive fields, increase production, and provide employment opportunities for the unemployed.

September 4.— AT the Cabinet meeting today President Garcia approved the proposed terms and conditions under which the government would Accept bids of private parties for the operation of the Surigao Mineral Reservation.

The terms and conditions had been prepared by a committee recently for the purpose of studying the implementation of President Republic Act No. 1828, authorizing the exploitation of mineral deposits in the Surigao reservation. The committee was composed of NEC Chairman Eduardo Z. Romualdez as chairman, Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez, and Mines Director Benjamin Gozon, as members.

In approving the proposed terms, the President pointed out that the exploitation of the minerals in Surigao should be left to private entities, as the Government could not undertake the project for it involved a highly technical and most expensive process. He said that the exploitation of the mines would greatly enhance the economy of the country, because the Surigao reservation was said to contain an estimated ₱2 billion worth of mineral deposits.

(1) Approved the sending of four groups to represent the Philippines at a series of SEATO conferences to be held in Bangkok, Thailand, this month and next month; and

(2) Received the report of Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno on financing arrangements for the Marikina River multi-purpose project.

The four SEATO groups which had been authorized to leave for Thailand soon are the Information, Cultural, Education, and Labor Committee composed of four members; the Economic Experts Committee composed of five members; the Security Experts Committee also composed of five members; and the delegation to the seventh meeting of SEATO military advisers composed of eight representatives.

With Dr. Rafaelita H. Soriano as chairman, the ICEL committee is composed of Demetrio Andres, Felina Reyes, and Major Jose Ma. Guerrero, members.

Chairmanned by Dr. R. Tarcelino Bernardo of the NEC, the economic experts committee is composed of Benito Legarda, Jr., of the Central Bank as co-chairman, and Jose Fernandez, Anastacio Bartolome, and Pobustiano, Espiritu, members.

The security experts is composed of the following: Col. Rigoberto Atienza, chairman, and Lt. Col. Manuel Yan, Major Isabelo, Castro, Major Rizal de Umaly, and Prudencio del Castillo, members.

The Philippine delegation to the seventh meeting of SEATO military advisers is made up of Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, Brig. Gen. Pelagio A. Cruz, Brig. Gen. Tirso Falardo, Cols. Flaviano P. Olivares, Rigoberto J. Atienza, and Victor M. Osias, Navy Capt. Ramon A. Alcaraz, Lt. Col. Godofredo F. Mendoza, and 2nd Lt. Constante R. Quiaoit, Gen. Arellano's aide.

Secretary Moreno recommended in his report that the second year reparations schedule which had previously been approved by the Cabinet and which is now being discussed in Tokyo, be amended so as to include an amortization plan of repayments which would enable the Marikina Coordinating Committee, through the Central Bank, to negotiate a loan for the project from the Export-Import Bank of Japan in an amount not exceeding $50 million. No further details on the report were available.

Preliminary discussions were held on Moreno's report at the Cabinet meeting. The President, however, decided to defer action on the matter and instructed members of his Cabinet to go over the 25-page report more thoroughly, copies of which had been furnished each of them. The President expected to act on the report at the next meeting of his Cabinet.

The Chief Executive convoked today's Cabinet meeting at 11 a.m. It lasted until 2:30 p.m. Most of the matters taken up were routinary in an effort to clear the Cabinet agenda of pending cases; such as, the appointments and the retirements of individual government employees.

Attending the meeting for the first time were Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas, Education Secretary Manuel Lim, and Chairman Madki Alonto of the National Integration Commission, recently created under Republic Act 1888 to effectuate the economic, social, moral, and political advancement of non-Christian Filipinos or relational cultural minorities. The law creating the commission vests its chairman with a Cabinet rank.

PRESIDENT Garcia received few callers today as it is a Cabinet meeting day.

He received former Agriculture Secretary Mariano Garchitorena, former Liberal Party leader in the Bicolandia. Malacañang said the Bicol LP chieftain pledged to support President Garcia and the NP senatorial candidates in the coming elections.

President Garcia also received a delegation of Cebu officials, headed by Sen. Mariano J. Cuenco. It was not known what the Cuenco leaders took up with the President.

It was speculated that the Cuenco men briefed the President on the visit the Chief Executive would make to Cebu next week.

With Sen. Cuenco were Reps. Miguel Cuenco, Manuel Zosa, and Ramon Durano.

After the conference with the Cebu political leaders, the President presided over the weekly meeting of his Cabinet.

IN the afternoon the president conferred with Deputy Central Bank Governor Andres Castillo and officials of the National Shipyards and Steel Corporation (NASSCO).

The President and his guests took up the immediate establishment of the proposed integrated steel mill in Iligan City.

The President has said that the establishment of the steel mill will open job opportunities for the unemployed.

Among the NASSCO officials present were Bernardo Abrera, general manager; Ulpiano Sarmiento, board chairman; Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, Maximo Calalang, Mlarion Henares, Jr., Jose Dorado, Eligio Herrera, and Aniceto Crisostomo, board members.

He received former Agricultural Secretary Mariano Garchitorena.

September 5.—AFTER having his breakfast, the President received Juan 1 H. Imperial, son of former Gov. Jose Imperial; Aquilino Bonto, Jr., and Jose Estevez, all of Albay, who took their oath of affiliation as members of the Nacionalista Party, in the presence of Sen. Pedro Sabido and Rep. Justino Nuyda.

The President also received Ricardo Navarro, Jr., son of former Rep. Navarro of Surigao, who informed the Chief Executive that he and his father had switched to the Nacionalista Party and were actively working for the victory of the entire NP ticket. Navarro assured the President of an overwhelming victory in Surigao.

The President gave a check for ₱10,000 to Miss Helen Benitez, overall chairman of the Civic Assembly of Women of the Philippines and the Workshop as initial aid for the celebration of the First of the Filipino Family.

Miss Benitez was accompanied by Mrs. Concepcion Gonzales, Mrs. Paraluman S. Aspillera, Rev. Hilario Lim, S.J., Cesareo Grau, Mrs. Flora Ylagan, Dr. Conrado Pascual, and Dr. Felisa Garña.

The President also gave ₱5,000 as charity relief to a group of blind men headed by Carlos C. Garcia, president of the Philippine Association for the Sightless, Inc.; and Nicomedes Maligat, president of the Foundation for the Blind of the Philippines, Inc.

PRESIDENT Garcia this day continued receiving pledges of support from former LP stalwarts from Surigao, Albay, and La Union, all of whom officially switched over to the Nacionalista Party.

Municipal officials of Rosario and Tubao, La Union, who bolted the Nacionalista Party in the 1953 elections in order to support former Sen. Camilo Osias, called on the President to promise their support to the NP ticket.

The officials who were brought to Malacañang by Baguio City Mayor Alfonso Tabora, were Mayor Jose B. Madriaga, Vice-Mayor Eusebio Cacayuran, and Councilors Guillermo Estabillo, Gregorio Hipolito, Benigno de Guzman, Pio Asperin, Mauricio Sanchez, and Luis Padilla of Rosario; and Mayor Florencio Baltazar of Tubao and some barrio lieutenants.

The President did not receive any caller in the afternoon. He spent his time in his private study, working over a pile of state papers prior to his departure for the southern provinces.

September 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia today with Richard W. Reuter, CARE executive director; Paul W. Gordon, CARE chief of mission in the Philippines; and Ramon Binamira, presidential assistant on community development, plans to give some 1,312,000 elementary school children a glass of milk each school day for a ten-month period.

Reuter told President Garcia that CARE agreed to request from the U.S. Government 26,250,000 pounds of skim milk powder and a pilot quantity of cheese for distribution to needy school children in public schools throughout the Philippines with the cooperation of the Department of Education.

The program was submitted to the U.S. Government and a favorable decision is expected shortly.

The President took up routine matters with Executive Secretary Fortunate de Leon, Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, and Assistant Executive Secretary Nicanor Jimenez before receiving callers.

Officers of the Association of Public Secondary Schools Administrators called on the President to urge the implementation of WAPCO salary schedules. They expressed their gratitude for the presidential release of the sum of ₱3,028,000 for the salary adjustments of high school and intermediate teachers.

APSSA officers who called on the President were Jose G. Reyes, president of the association and principal of the Pampanga High School; Cesareo C. Bandong, vice-president for Luzon; Mrs. Conmemoracion Concepcion, secretary-treasurer; Bernardo Fajardo, auditor; and Victor Hernandez, past president. Dr. Frederick Shipp, guest consultant of the association and UP exchange professor, accompanied the group.

A delegation of the "Garcia-Laurel Crusade" accompanied two former Liberals who took their oath of affiliation as Nacionalistas before President Garcia. The defectees are Mayor Pablo C. Hernandez of Calaca, Batangas, and special coordinator Ambrosio Lipana, of Malabuyoc, Cebu.

The delegation was led by Vicente S. Boiser, Ernesto B. Bahia, Crisostomo Diokno, Celestino Hallazago; E. Tapiru, and Felix Borja.

After inducting the officers of the National Movement for Free Elections the President ate his lunch and afterwards left for the Nichols Air Base to enplane for Masbate, Masbate, for a six-day tour of Samai, Negros Norte, and Misamis Occidental.

THE President reiterated today his pledge to insure free, clean, and honest elections in November before NAMFREL officers whom he inducted into office in Malacañang before enplaning for Masbate.

The President donatedd ₱5,000 to the NAMFREL. At the same time, he enjoined NAMFREL officers to continue the good work started by the organization in the past tolls.

President Garcia lauded the efforts of the organization during past elections when it succeeded in eliminating from the official lists of voters thousands of fake voters in Lanao, Negros Occidental, and Cavite.

In accepting the ₱5,000 check, Vicente D. Gabriel, NAMFREL national coordinator, pledged to keep faithfully the trust and confidence imposed on the civic organization to keep the elections clean, honest, and free.

Gabriel stated that his pledge was inspired by the statement of President Garcia in accepting the the nomination of the Nacionalista Party when he said “I would rather be right than successful. I would rather keep faith with justice than have power. . . .”

The NAMFREL head assured the President that the organization will continue to delegate watohers in all precinct to prevent the repetition of the 1949 elections.

THE Air Force plane Dagohoy bearing President Garcia, flew out of Manila at 2:15 this afternoon and landed in Masbate, Masbate, an hour and a half later.

From the town proper, the President motored to the wharf to board the presidential yacht Sta. Maria, which will be his headquarters for his seven-day stump of Samar, Negros Oriental, Misamis Occidental, and Zamboanga del Norte.

Upon “popular” request, the President deigned to address Masbate folks from the Sta. Maria. He promised to free rural folks from the clutohes of usurers and unscrupulous landlords.

With President Garcia were Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez, Education Secretary Manuel Lim, and Technical Assistant Sofronio Quimson.

UPON the request of President Garcia, Chinese merchants in the Philippines would sell, effective immediately, rice and sugar at the same prices that the NARIC and the NAMARCO are selling these essential products, Malacañang announced today.

This announcement was made upon assurances made today by Ambassador Chen Chih-Mai, who informed President Garcia that Chinese merchants in the Philippines have gladly responded to the President’s appeal to cooperate with the Administration in keeping down the prices of prime commodities. The President had made the appeal to the Chinese merchants through the Chinese ambassador.

Ambassador Chen told the President that the Chinese merchants would even be willing to reduce further their prices of rice and sugar the moment the NARIC and the NAMARCO lower their prices. At present the NARIC has pegged the price of rice at 85 centavos a ganta of Macan ordinario No. 2, and at not higher than 95 centavos a ganta of the fancy varieties. The NAMARCO is selling sugar at 33 centavos a kilo of golden brown and 45 centavos a kilo of refined sugar.

Ambassador Chen further told the President that Chinese merchants would try their best to sell other essential commodities as close as possible to government prices.

The President expressed the gratification of the Philippine Government to the Chinese merchants for this gesture of cooperation with the Administration in its effort to mill down the prices of essential commodities to reasonable levels. He told Ambassador Chen to convey his personal thanks to the Chinese merchants saying that their cooperation would go along way in strengthening the friendship between the Philippines and Nationalist China. The President expressed the hope that with the steady cooperation of the Chinese merchants, the government’s efforts in keeping down the prices of essential commodities would succeed.

Malacañang today directed all local officials, particularly provincial governors and city and municipal mayors, “to see to it that all candidates, including their supporters and followers, irrespective of party affiliation, are granted the same and equal opportunity to hold political meetings in public plazas”.

The Malacañang directives, contained in an unnumbered provincial circular signed by Executive Secretary Fortunate de Leon, warned that drastic action shall be taken against any local official who will refuse, for flimsy and whimsical reasons, to grant permits to hold political meetings to interested persons or parties or discriminate against any candidate or political party in favor of another

The circular said that the directives was prompted by complaints from existing political parties, candidates, and political leaders against local officials, particularly provincial governors and city and municipal mayors, for - refusing to grant permits to hold meetings in favor of certain individuals or candidates who are not affiliated with the same party to which the local official concerned is affiliated.

The circular also emphasized the importance of free and untrammelled discussion of political issues. It cited section I (8) of the Bill of Rights of the Constitution, which guarantees freedom of speech and the right of the people to assemble peacefully and petition the government for red-dress of grievances.

It was stated in the implementing the great d directive was issued.

September 7.— PRESIDENT Garcia called upon the people of Samar today to vote the straight Nacionalista ticket as the only means of ensuring continuation of the late President Magsaysay’s program of administration.

In no less than 10 speeches delivered at public rallies in northern Samar towns the whole day today, President Garcia said: “If you want more irrigation systems, feeder roads, artesian wells, prefabricated schoolhouses, waterworks, health centers, and other projects of rural improvement, vote for Nacionalista president, vice-president, senators, and representatives.”

The Chief Executive was royally received in Samar today. During his tour of the first congressional district, which required him to travel by car through more than 100 kilometers of narrow dirt roads, the President was invariably met by large noisy crowds, complete with fireworks, brass bands, and parades.

The President’s schedule gave him 11 hours to traverse over 100 kilometers from Laoang to Allen. However, owing to numerous unscheduled stops, the presidential party negotiated the distance in over 16 hours, almost five hours behind schedule.

Towns and principal barrios along the way which erected their own colorful arches put up human roadblocks which forced the presidential car to slow down at a snail’s pace, with the President constantly waving to cheering crowds which lined the streets as flowers were showered upon him from houses.

People from all walks of life who turned out in large numbers, jammed public plazas and overflowed into side streets and nearby buildings. Many people cheered heartily from tree branches, church steeples, and roof tops.

The President durhijg his tour was accompanied by Sens. Decoroso Rosales and Pacita M. Gonzalez, Gov. Fernando Veloso, and Rep. Eladio Balite, whom he proclaimed official NP candidate for re-election.

Among the towns visited were Laoang, where he was welcomed by Mayor Romulo Giray; Pambuyan, by Mayor Ramon Servo; Mondragon, by Mayor Filemon Pahunmayan; Catarman, by Mayor Eusebio Moore; Bobon, by Mayor Conrado Carpena; San Jose, by Mayor Agaton Pondenera; Lavezares, by Mayor Gabriel Querobiles; and Allen, by Mayor Maximo Manooc.

Sen. Rosales, who introduced the President in public rallies, assured the Chief Executive that the 17 mayors in Samar’s first district were for t the Nacionalista ticket.

PRESIDENT Garcia this evening barely escaped injuries when an “atomic” firecracker was exploded near him reportedly by town policemen who were apparently excited over his arrival at Lavezares town about 9:30 p.m.

Alert execution of protective measures by Malacañang security units prevented what might have been an injury to the President. Lt. Leon Decayo of the MSU suffered burns on his back while trying to screen with his body the President from burning powders which flew wildly a few seconds after the explosion.

The incident happened a few minutes after the President got out of the car he was riding in to acknowledge greetings of a large crowd of torch-bearing welcomers who lined the road leading to the poblacion.

Sen. Decoroso Rosales, who was walking beside the President, suffered superficial burns on his face.

THE President today ordered the airlifting of 20,000 units of antitetanus serum for a patient in Tuguegarao, Cagayan, who was reported to be hovering between life and death.

AN Air Force plane dew early this morning for Tuguegarao with the medicine which was procured from the Bureau of Health through Hospitals Director Tranquilino Elicano immediately after the President gave the order.

The patient, Alejandro Perez, was reported to be in a serious condition. His case was brought to the attention of the President by Mrs. Cristina Perez of Quezon City.

September 8.— PRESIDENT Garcia today reiterated his appeal for a straight Nacionalista vote, saying it was the only means of insuring the prosperity of the country.

In mammoth rallies and in Catbalogan, Samar, feeder roads, artesian wells, irrigation systems, school buildings, and other public improvement projects, vote straight Nacionalista ticket.”

Colorful fluvial parades met the presidential party on arrival ad Calbayog City at 7 a.m. today. A fleet of gaily decorated motorboats circled around the Sta. Maria while a bigger boat carrying a brass band escorted the ship as it maeuvcered to port. One of the placards borne by welcomers on landing, read “We are not stupid to vote for Yulo.”

With the crowd of enthusiastically cheering welcomers trailing behind him, President Garcia walked to the church plaza where five masses were said simultaneously by Cebu Archbishop Julio Rosales, Domestic Prelates, Luis Gonzaga, Manuel del Rosario, C. Urgel, and Vicente Figueroa. Then the President laid the cornerstone of the new seminary which will be constructed near the church.

The presidential party had breakfast at the Calbayog residence of Sen. Decoroso Rosales. During breakfast Liberal Mayor Hilario Carpena of Bobon pledged support to the President’s candidacy.

At 9:30 a.m. the President inaugurated the ₱80,000 City Hospital. Then he proceeded to the town plaza where a big cheering crowd awaited him.

Other speakers at the Calbayog rally were Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., the President’s vice-presidential running mate and senatorial candidates Jose C. Locsin and Cipriano Primicias.

After a late luncheon at the house of Calbayog City Mayor Jose Roño, the presidential party, which now included Laurel, Locsin, and Primicias, shove off for Catbalogan, arriving there about 5:30 p.m.

The President addressed a rally at the Catbalogan plaza this evening.

THE President this day wired Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon to direct government relief agencies to extend immediate assistance to the victims of the ₱600,000 fire in Baliuag, Bulacan.

Secretary De Leon immediately directed the Social Welfare Administration, the Philippine National Red Cross, the NARIC, and the Department of Health to send representatives to the fire area and give the needed relief.

MALACANANG today took steps to prevent injustices in connection with the suspension of municipal elective officials by provincial governors during pre-election days.

Executive Secretary De Leon issued an unnumbered provincial circular requesting provincial governors to exercise utmost care in the suspension of municipal officials in order to prevent the injustices that are often committed as election day approaches when municipal elective officials, who do not belong to the same political party as the provincial governor, are suspended for slight and transient causes.

The provincial circular said that except in cases of final conviction by the final judgment for a crime involving moral turpitude preventive suspension should be effected only after the governor is satisfied that the charge or charges are so serious and the probabilities of guilt so strong as to warrant removal from office after the investigation.

However, the circular said that administrative cases against municipal elective officials now pending investigation, or which may be filed, shall be given due course in accordance with the provisions of the Revised Administrative Code.

The circular was issued by Secretary De Leon in order to prevent injustices to the elective municipal officials as election day approaches, and to protect them and/or their party from being discredited in the eyes of the electorate.

TWO patients from Zamboanga City were airlifted to Manila today following an order of President Garcia.

AN Air Force mercy plane brought to Manila the patients, Serlyne Maravilla, who is suffering from serious mental ailment, and Justiniano Miguel, who is suffering from an advanced tumor.

The two patients were brought to the attention of the President by Rep. Alberto Ubay of Zamboanga del Norte. Maravilla is now at the National Mental Hospital while Miguel is at the Philippine General Hospital.

September 9.—ON his arrival at Dumaguete City at 5:30 p.m. today, on the third leg of his six-day stumping tour of the Visayas and Mindanao, President Garcia was accorded a royal welcome.

Thousands of people jammed the pier, lined the shore, and cheered heartily to the accompaniment of blaring sirens, fireworks, and brass bands.

The President was mobbed as soon as he went down the gangplank. He had to forego the ceremony offered by an honor guard because of the onrushing crowd which had become unmanageable as soon as he stepped on the pier.

It was some time before the local police and security officers could restore order. The President then boarded a car, and at the head of a long motorcade, drove slowly to the town plaza where more people awaited him.

The presidential party left Catbalogan, Samar, about 2 a.m. today, following a huge rally.

The President spent the morning in his cabin reading some state papers he had brought along, as the yacht Sta. Maria, steamed from Catbalogan to Dumaguete City.

With him on board are Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., vice-presidential candidate, and Sens. Cipriano Primicias, Jose Locsin, and Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez.

Two big rallies are scheduled in Negros Oriental tonight, one in Dumaguete and the other in Bais, where they are celebrating the town fiesta. The President will proceed to Zamboanga tomorrow after the rallies.

President Garcia this morning felicitated former President Sergio Osmeña on the occasion of the latter's 70th birthday anniversary.

"Please accept my warmest felicitations and that of Mrs. Garcia on this your natal day anniversary. The Filipino people, who can never forget your services of half a century to the nation, hail you and Mrs. Osmeña on this day and pray to God that He continue to shower upon you the abundance of His blessings. The Nacionalista Party, which you founded and led gloriously and which you continue to inspire as long as you live, wishes you many happy returns of the day."

MAYOR Ricardo O. Macasaet of Infanta, Quezon, who was profusely bleeding from the mouth because of advanced pulmonary tuberculosis, was airlifted to Manila today following an order of President Garcia.

Mayor Macasaet was brought to Manila by a United States Navy helicopter from Sangley Point. Sangley Point was contacted by the Manila Rescue Coordinating Center after representations made by Malacañang.

President Garcia learned of Mayor Macasaet's condition from the Infanta municipal health officer, Dr. Pablo Utulo; J. Corsilles, secretary to the mayor; and Dr. F. Gurango, president of the Infanta Civic League. Mayor Macasaet is now being treated at the Quezon Institute.

September 10.—PRESIDENT Garcia today took another positive step in hastening the exploitation of the country's mineral resources by authorizing the publication of invitations for bids for the operation of the Surigao Mineral Reservation on Nonoc Island.

In a letter to the chairman of the National Economic Council, writing by authority of the President, Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon extended the authority to publish invitations for bids.

De Leon said in the letter that the committee created by the President, composed of the NEC acting presiding officer as chairman and the secretary of agriculture and natural resources and the director of mines as members, for the purpose of recommending the terms and conditions under which the government would accept bids from private parties for the operation of the Surigao Mineral Reservation, "is hereby authorized to publish invitations for bids."

Mines Director Benjamin Gozon was authorized by the committee chairman and the agriculture secretary to publish invitations for bids in the name of the committee. Notice for the bids will be published immediately and the bids will be opened on October 31.

The President authorized the committee to conduct the bidding, study and negotiate for the best and most advantageous terms and conditions for the government, and submit its recommendations to the President.

Director Gozon said that some 100 interested parties in the United States, Europe, Canada, and Japan would be sent copies of invitations to participate in the bidding. He said that the notices of the bidding, aside from being published in metropolitan papers in Manila, would be sent to the Philippine embassies and legations abroad which in turn would have them published in their respective jurisdictions.

Those steps are taken in order that the greatest possible publicity for the invitation for bids would be made possible.

Gozon said that many of the prospective bidders have a general idea of the terms and conditions of the bidding, adding that he believed they would have sufficient time to submit their offers up October 31.

A Malacañang spokesman said that the President decided to have the Surigao Mineral Reservation developed as soon as possible in order to implement the Administration's economic development plan which had been under study for some time. The development of these mines, the spokesman added, would go a long way in bolstering the dollar reserves, strengthening the country's economy, and helping solve the unemployment problem.

PRESIDENT Garcia today took time out from his hectic campaign tour and made a side trip to Dapitan, Zamboanga del Norte, to pay homage to Dr. Jose Rizal, the place where the great martyr hero had stayed in forced seclusion for four years.

The President this afternoon spent about one hour visiting the relief map of Mindanao made by Rizal in front of the town church, the bamboo house at the foot of the mountain which had been the hero's home for years, the brook where Rizal had spent many afternoons in contemplation, and other scenes of Rizal's banishment. The President was accompanied by Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., Zamboanga del Norte Gov. Romulo Garrovillo, Rep. Alberto Ubay, Ex-Gov. Felipe Azcuna, Sen. Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez, and Mayors Francisco Bamoy of Dapitan, and Pastor Bahamonde of Dipolog.

The presidential yacht docked at the Dapitan wharf at 4 p.m. today. While motoring to the Rizal shrine several kilometers away, the President noted along the road a young woman being borne on the shoulders of some men who apparently were taking her to the hospital in great haste. The President ordered the motorcade to stop and had one of the security cars rush the woman to the hospital.

The young woman was Avelina Bahian, 19 years old, married. The woman was on her way Home to barrio Sawang about nine kilometers from Dapitan poblacion when suddenly she fell ill. Hospital doctors registered her case as abortion.

THE President in his speeches today reiterated his confidence in a Nacionalista victory in the forthcoming elections. He said the people would vote straight NP ticket, because they knew that the party was committed to the promotion of the welfare and prosperity of the common man.

The Chief Executive delivered three speeches today in public rallies held in Larena, Siquijor sub-province, about 10 a.m., in Dapitan town plaza at 6:30 p.m., and in Dipolog at 10 p.m. He said that Yulo, who is essentially a businessman and a big landowner, would likely be more inclined to work for his own interests and perpetuate the tenancy system which is against the policy of the NP administration.

The yacht Sta. Marty bearing the presidential party arrived at 6 a.m. today at the bustling little port of Larena, capital of Siquijor, a rocky island sub-province. The party; stayed on the island about five hours, during which a number of local j Liberal Party leaders took their oath before the President as new Nacionalista affiliates.

Shortly before 12 noon, the yacht pulled out of the island and proceeded to Dapitan. The party expects to leave Dipolog about midnight.

UPON instructions of President Garcia, an emergency patient was airlifted from Roxas City to Manila aboard an Air Force plane this morning.

The patient, Tomas Torado, 39, is suffering from broken ribs as a result of his fall from a coconut tree at Kalibo, Aklan, a few days ago. He was airlifted following request of hospital authorities of that province.

Upon arrival at Nichols Air Base, Torado was rushed to the National Orthopedic Hospital.

September 11.—PRESIDENT Garcia today urged the people of Misamis Occidental to plant rubber, saying that the rubber industry had a bright future in the Philippines.

In seven speeches of Misamis Occidental are most adaptable to for local consumption delivered in public rallies held in different towns today, the President said that the rubber supply in the neighboring countries is fast dwindling and that it would be well for Agusan, Zamboanga del Norte, and Misamis Occidental provinces, which rubber planting, to produce this commodity not only but also for export. The President assured the people of full government support to rubber planters.

The Chief Executive spoke in Oroquieta, Aloran, Jimenez, Sinacaban, Tudela, Clarin, and Ozamis City. The people turned out in large numbers for hours under the rain and the sun in towns and route. The local Nacionalista leaders estimated that get about 90 per cent of Misamis Occidental votes. Chiongbian, who was among those who welcomed the presidential party, conceded that the President would carry the province by a landslide.

Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., who usually preceded the President in delivering speeches, appealed for popular support by informing the people that his father was retiring after many years of service in the government. Laurel asked the people that he be given the opportunity to continue in the service of the country.

The presidential party arrived in Oroquieta, Misamis Occidental, at 8 a.m. today from Dipolog, Zamboanga del Norte, aboard the yacht Sta. Maria. The President was met at the wharf by large delegations from all parts of the province, headed by Gov. Diego Ty Deling.

After breakfast on board the yacht, the President spoke at rally in Oroquieta, then proceeded overland to Ozamis City, stopping many times along the way to acknowledge the welcoming cheers of the local population and to speak at public rallies, both scheduled and unscheduled. It took the presidential party about 16 hours to traverse the 45-kilometer distance from Oroquieta to Ozamis City owing to numerous unscheduled stops and speeches. The President spoke from hoods of jeeps and from chairs and tables placed in the shades of trees along the road.

NP senatorial candidates Roselier T. Lim, Arturo M. Tolentino, and Oscar Ledesma joined the presidential party at Jimenez this noon where the President had lunjjh at the residence of Mrs. Remedios Fortich, NARRA chairman and general manager.

The presidential party is scheduled to return to Manila tomorrow by boat. He expects to I arrive here Friday night.

Malacañang released today a message received by President Garcia from former President Sergio Osmeña. The text of the Osmeña message follows:

“I deeply appreciate yours and Mrs. Garcia’s cordial birthday felicitations and sending generous expressions of goodwill and friendship. I am thankful to our people and party for opportunities of service given me. Our warmest regards to you and Mrs. Garcia.”

September 22.—MAYOR Bias Rubio of San Remigio, Antique, and two others, who were seriously injured in a motor accident, were airlifted to Manila today by an Air Force plane by order of President Garcia.

Mayor Rubino suffered a dislocation in the right shoulder while his two companions, Leonora Omallao and Benedicto Gallera, sustained fractured skulls, fractured right ribs, and dislocated right shoulders as a result of the accident. They were all taken to the National Orthopedic Hospital for treatment.

Gov. Josue Cadio and Rep. Tobias Fornier of Antique made representations with the President for the airlifting of the injured mayor and his two companions.

In the same PAF mercy plane was another patient from Iloilo City, a daughter of Jesus Porras, who was suffering from insanity. She was taken to the National Mental Hospital for treatment.

THE yacht Sta. Maria bearing the President pulled out of Ozamis City wharf at 5 a.m. today for the return trip to Manila after the President had finished with last minute conference with Misamis Occidental political leaders. The President spoke at Ozamis this afternoon under a heavy downpour which failed to drive away a huge crowd gathered at the market place to listen to the NP candidates.

For about three hours heavy swells rocked the ship after it had come out of Iligan Bay at 8 a.m. today. Shortly before lunch time, however, the ship steadied as it entered Bohol Strait between Cebu and Bohol Islands.

The President came out of his cabin about 9 a.m. to have breakfast at the ship's saloon. He looked a little rested after about four hours' sleep.

After lunch at 2 p.m. and a brief conference with newsmen who had accompanied him on the tour, the President retired to his cabin, where he worked on state papers he took along in the trip.

He had supper at 7:30 p.m. with newspapermen.

Also aboard the yacht on the return trip to Manila was Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema. Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., Sen. Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez, and senatorial candidates who had been with the presidential party returned to Manila by plane early this morning.

September 13.—PRESIDENT Garcia announced today that he would appoint Assistant Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison as acting press secretary following the filing by Press Secretary J. V. Cruz of his certificate of candidacy for the lone congressional district of Bataan. The President made this announcement at breakfast while chatting with newspapermen who accompanied him in trip to the Visayas and Mindanao.

Asked at a press conference on his return trip to Manila to explain the royal reception accorded him and his party in places he had visited, the President simply replied, "These are my traditional bailiwicks. They have always been with me whenever I run for national office."

The President added that his opponents would have to campaign "a lot more" if they hoped to wrest those strongholds from him.

The President came out of his cabin about 8 a.m. today while the ship was cruising off Tablas island near Mindoro. The presidential party had a rough sailing the whole night. The Chief Executive had breakfast and chatted with newspapermen, during which he made the announcement of Sison's appointment as acting press secretary.

Afterwards, the President repaired to his cabin, where he resumed working on state papers he took along on the trip. He was assisted by Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema.

The President ate his lunch at 2 p.m., and after a little rest, he closeted himself again in his cabin with Secretary Quema. The President ate supper with the newsmen about 8 p.m. as the yacht sailed on the smoother waters of Manila Bay.

The President was back in Malacañang shortly before 10 p.m. His yacht docked at Pier 5 about 9:30 this morning.

A PATIENT who was in serious condition because of perforated big intestines, was airlifted to Manila from Polillo, Quezon, today following a directive of President Garcia. The patient, Eladio Acquesa, was airlifted to Manila by a United States Air Force helicopter from Clark Field. He is now in the North General Hospital for possible operation and treatment.

Upon direction of President Garcia, Malacañang contacted the Manila Rescue Coordinating Center, which made representations with USAF Clark Rescue for a seaplane or a helicopter. A USAF seaplane flew to Polillo yesterday but had to return without the patient because of the rough sea which prevented the plane from landing.

After the return of the seaplane, a helicopter was dispatched to Polillo by CAFB to pick up the patient. The helicopter stayed in Polillo overnight waiting for the patient to become conscious. The helicopter arrived at the Nichols Air Base early this morning.

The helicopter was manned by Capt. Charles Osburn, pilot; 1st Lt. Alfred Feloman, co-pilot; and S/Sgt. Leo P. Ayutte, medical technician.

September 14.—THIS morning the President had breakfast with visiting United States health officials who paid a courtesy call following their arrival recently in the course of their observation tour of the country.

The U.S. health officials who came upon invitation of Health Secretary Paulino J. Garcia were Surgeon General Leroy Burney, United States Public Health Service; and Dr. Eugene Campbell, chief, Far Eastern Division of Public Health of the ICA.

At the breakfast the President was informed by the visiting American health officials that in the implementation of their three-day observation tour, they found out that the program of the Philippines' rural health improvement was more advanced than those of most other countries of the world.

The President was also informed that the mechanics and the operational procedure of the country's Department of Health were excellent.

Others present at the breakfast which lasted from 8 to 9 a.m. were Sen. Jose Locsin, Health Secretary Paulino J. Garcia, Education Secretary Manuel Lim, Defense Secretary Jesus B. Vargas, Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon, Director of Hospitals Tranquilino Elicaño, U.S. Charge d'Affaires Horace Smith, ICA Director Col. Harry Brenn, and Horace De-Lien of the ICA health division.

PRESIDENT Garcia today gave further assurance that there would be enough supply of rice to meet the country's requirements and reiterated to the NARIC to maintain its rice ceiling prices of 85 centavos a ganta of Macan ordinario No. 2 and 95 centavos a ganta of the fancy varieties.

The President gave the assurance after a conference with NARIC and Monetary Board officials; namely, NARIC Chairman Juan O. Chioco, NARIC General Manager Vicente Concepcion, Monetary Board Chairman Jaime Hernandez, Acting Central Bank Governor Andres Castillo, and the chief of the Central Bank Import Control Division, Gregorio S. Licaros. Also present at the conference were Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon and acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison.

Chairman Chioco informed the President of the progress of the importation of 34,000 metric tons of rice from Southeast Asian countries, the balance of the original amount of 100,000 metric tons as approved previously by the Cabinet. Chioco said that out of this 34,000 metric tons, the following deliveries were forthcoming:

- (1) 5,000 tons from Bangkok to arrive 1 September 18;
- (2) 5,000 tons from Cambodia to arrive September 22; and
- (3) 2,000 tons from Cambodia to arrive September 30.

The President directed Chioco to enplane immediately back to Bangkok to finish his negotiations for the importation of the remaining: 22,000 metric tons of rice. The NARIC chairman was confident that the importation would go through.

The President was also informed that in addition to these rice importations, rice would be harvested in the Bicol region and in Mindanao beginning October. This would greatly increase the local supply of the commodity, Chioco said.

The NARIC according to Chioco was assured by the FACOMA of delivery of 250,000 cavans of rice.

The President reiterated to the NARIC officials to maintain the ceiling prices of rice at 85 centavos a ganta of Macan ordinario No. 2 and at 95 centavos a ganta of the fancy varieties.

The Chief Executive informed the NARIC officials that he had directed Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas to provide enough Army trucks and LSTs to transport local rice from their sources to where they are most needed. It was pointed out that enough and speedy transportation could help solve the rice problem.

The President called for the Monetary Board officials to join the conference in order to make sure that the dollar needs for the rice importation would be granted with dispatch. The CB officials said that this had already been taken care of.

FIVE hundred Ilocano youth leaders of the Good Government League, 300 student leaders from the major colleges, universities, and youth associations in Manila and 50 former Pangasinan Liberals, representing a small part of the faction led by Engineer Jose S. Biagtan today pledged to support President Garcia in the November polls.

In a manifesto, the student leaders, who are officers of 47 chapters of the "Youth Garcia for President Movement", asserted that President Garcia, "by virtue of his long brilliant record of public service, first as a school teacher, then later as congressman, governor, senator, vice-president, and subsequently as President of our Republic, is the leader most qualified to carry on the great program of government laid down by President Magsaysay."

In supporting the candidacy of President Garcia, the chairman and national coordinator, Cirilo J. Paredes of the Good Government League, stated that it was consistent with one of the league's primary purposes which is "to select, endorse, and campaign actively at any special or general elections for the candidacy of and/or to recommend the services of Filipino citizens to any position in the government service when their qualifications and fitness can best secure and serve the public good."

The former Liberals from 4 towns of the third congressional district of Pangasinan, aside from pledging their support, took their oath of affiliation as NP members before President Garcia. NP senatorial candidate Eulogio Balao witnessed the oath-taking.

The Pangasinan group included Joaquin Ferrer, of Mangaldan; Vice-Mayor Vicente Baltazar, former Mayor Alejandro Caballero, and former Councilor Evaristo Marcelia of San Fabian; and Arturo Estarias of San Jacinto.

The student group included Alberto Javier, Jr., YGPM secretary-general; Juan T. Aquino, George Debuque, Celso R. Lustre, Obdulio Villanueva, Avelino Jimenez, Jaime Rosario, Nicomedes Ricote, Alawadin Ban-don, Jr., Jose Ringor, Isidro Villafuerte, Clem Macasiano, Lorenzo Lopez, Poririo Yabut, Frank Santos, Pio Lazo, Aquilino Illera, Tomas Cortez, Hermie Ramos, Fely Guevara, Restita Margallo, Yolanda Osea, and Fe Gil.

At the testimonial banquet given in his honor at the Knights of Columbus building, the President expressed his gratitude for the pledge of support of the members of the Good Government League.

This kind of support, he said, was worthwhile because it was given without solicitation but was voluntary on the part of the GGL members, based on their confidence in his ability to give the people a clean, efficient, and strong government, responsive to the needs of the masses.

Earlier, after breakfast with visiting U.S. health officials, the President administered to Mayor Agapito Gaddi (Ind.) of Santa Ana, Pampanga, the oath of affiliation as NP member.

The President also received Sen. Jose Locsin, Speaker Protempore Daniel Z. Romualdez, Gov. Juan Frivaldo of Sorsogon, Chester A. Baird, president of the San Jose Oil Co., Inc., and R. Roberts and Herminio B. Banico, lawyers, of the same company.

PRESIDENT Garcia inducted into the Nacionalista Party one Liberal congressional candidate, four Liberal mayors, two Liberal vice-mayors, seven Liberal councilors, and a number of other prominent political leaders from Cagayan province in a ceremony held in Malacañang this afternoon.

Among those inducted were Bienvenido Quirolgicc, LP congressional candidate; Mayor Marcelino Collado of Ballesteros, president of the Cagayan Mayors' League; Mayor Eliodoro Lorenzo of Abulug, league secretary; Mayor Nicolas Aquino of, Pamplona and Mayor Luciano Sanchez of Langaman; Vice-Mayors Gabriel Bautista of Faire and Josefa Fres of Claveria; and Councilors Alfredo Fon'acier, Benjamin Medrano, Napoleon Zuniga, and Alfredo Asiatico, all of Claveria, Cagayan.

The mass affiliation to the NP, considered one of the biggest LP defections in Northern Luzon, was sponsored by former Defense Secretary Eulogio Balao, NP senatorial candidate. Also at the induction was Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., NP vice-presidential candidate.

The Chief Executive received very few callers this afternoon in his desire to clear his desk of pending matters. He closeted himself in his bedroom with a pile of state papers submitted to him for presidential action.

Other callers this afternoon included: Rep. and Mrs. Pedro Trono of Iloilo and Mayor Lorenzo Formoso of Vigan, Ilocos Sur.

September 15.—PRESIDENT Garcia, owing to slight indisposition due to a sore throat, spent most of his time in bed the whole day today on the advice of his physicians.

The President, however, took advantage of his seclusion in his room by working on a pile of pending state papers needing presidential action. He did not receive any callers.

The Chief Executive heard mass at the Malacañang chapel this afternoon instead of this morning owing to his indisposition.

Following the mass, the President went over his speech he would deliver before the Junior Chamber of Commerce at luncheon tomorrow at the Manila Hotel's Winter Garden.

September 16.—PRESIDENT Garcia and the Cabinet at their special meeting today approved the release by the Philippine National Bank of a ₱6 million enable it to start immediately loan to the Sugar Stabilization Committee to the work of stabilizing the price of domestic sugar.

Under this arrangement, the Committee, with the ₱6 million loan from the PNB, will buy "sugar futures" (outright purchase of sugar for future delivery) in order to enlarge the NAMARCO's stockpile of sugar and enable it to stabilize the price of this commodity.

The action of the President and the Cabinet will benefit the sugar planters who in effect will receive loans from the purchase of "sugar futures." This will also enable the NAMARCO to have enough stocks of sugar to stabilize the prices for the benefit of consumers.

This Cabinet action was immediately ratified by the Philippine National Bank board of directors at its, meeting this afternoon. A spokesman of the PNB said that the bank was ready with the ₱6 million to give out as loan to the Sugar Stabilization Committee so that it could start its work immediately in keeping down the price of sugar.

The Committee is composed of representatives from the NAMARCO, the Philippine Sugar Institute, and the Sugar Quota Administration. The objectives of the stabilization program for domestic sugar are:

- (1) To maintain at a stable level the price of domestic sugar to the producer in order to assure him of a reasonable profit and to make it worthwhile for him to fill the nation's requirement of domestic sugar; and
- (2) To maintain the price stable at a reasonable level to the consumer.

The committee will have the following long-range functions:

- (1) Prior to the planting of each crop, it shall determine how much sugar should be produced to fill the domestic and the export requirements of the country, plus a reasonable reserve;
- (2) It shall determine the prices at which domestic sugar shall be stabilized, both at the producer's level and at the consumer's level, and announce in advance, prior to the planting of the crop, how much domestic sugar will be purchased by the NAMARCO when the crop is harvested and milled;
- (3) It shall determine the schedule of monthly or weekly issues of "B" sugar permits in order to release the domestic sugar at an orderly rate into the market; and
- (4) It shall advise the NAMARCO on its procurement and selling operations, keeping close watch over the market and movements therein.

In addition to an ordinary inventory which the NAMARCO should maintain, a sugar stabilization stock must be created to cover annual deficits which may occur owing to unforeseen circumstances or to absorb annual surpluses which are generated in good years.

NAMARCO General Manager Benjamin F. Estrella said that with the loan made immediately available by the PNB, work on the stabilization of domestic sugar prices could be made more effective right away.

LABOR Secretary Angel Castaño informed the President and the Cabinet that labor unions in 12 government corporations had filed with his department notice to strike.

Castaño said that the reason for the impending strike was that the boards of directors of the corporations concerned had entered into collective bargaining with these labor unions. He added that some of the terms agreed upon in the collective bargaining, especially with reference to increases in salaries, could not be complied with now by the corporations affected because of objections from the Office of Economic Coordination and the Budget Commission as a result of the WAPCO scale of salaries.

Secretary Castaño was authorized by the Cabinet to inform the labor unions that with regard to those unions in government corporations which operate under the profit system, the agreements regarding salary increases would be respected. However, it was ruled that those unions working in government corporations which are performing purely governmental functions should be governed by WAPCO regulations regarding salary scales.

Upon inquiry of the labor secretary, the Cabinet said that there would be no change in the policy regarding overtime pay to employees in the government corporations. In other words employees in these corporations will continue receiving overtime pay.

Secretary Castaño was requested by the Cabinet to confer with labor unions which had filed notice to strike and explain to them the Cabinet stand on their requests.

UPON RECOMMENDATION of Acting Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, the Cabinet approved a revision of the draft agreement between the Philippine Government and the World Health Organization, concerning the WHO's office accommodations in Manila, particularly Article 5 of the agreement.

In the original draft agreement it was provided that the question of reimbursement, should! The WHO discontinue the activities of the Western Pacific Regional office or cease to require office accommodations, was left subject to future negotiations between the Philippine Government and the WHO.

The revised draft Agreement specifically provides that the WHO would be equitably compensated on the basis of the book value of the building, the compensation of its proportionate share of the said value to be decided by an appraisal board (consisting of three members, one of whom shall be named by the Philippine Government, another by the WHO, and the third by the two members thus chosen.

In the revised draft agreement, the rights of both the Philippine Government and the WHO were clarified, avoiding further complications which might arise, should the [provision on compensation be left subject to future negotiation between the Philippine Government and the WHO.

THE CABINET authorized the following:

- (1) Jose C. Moran, manager of the RFC Cebu Branch, to proceed to Japan to make further studies on the development of cottage industries and to- observe the technical and financial assistance extended to these industries by the Japanese Government;
- (2) Miss Maria A. Sembillo, home economics supervisors, division of city schools, Pasay City, to study abroad for one year, from September 16, 1957, to September 15, 1958, with salary, to enable her to pursue graduate studies leading to master's degree in the Michigan State University;
- (3) Capt. Emilio Mondonilla, chief of police of Legaspi, Albay, to attend the conference of International Association of Chiefs of Police, to be held in Honolulu, Hawaii, beginning September 28, 1957;
- (4) Designation of Rep. Godofredo P. Ramos of Aklan, member of the National Economic Council and chairman of the NEC's Committee on Foreign Aid Coordination, and Mrs. Carmen G. de Ledesma, assistant director of foreign aid coordination, NEC, as delegates to the forthcoming meeting of the Consultative Committee of the Colombo Plan for Cooperative Economic Development in South and Southeast Asia, scheduled this year in Saigon, South Vietnam.

THE PRESIDENT and the Cabinet reiterated to maintain in full force and effect its original approval for the establishment by the Limco Industrial Corporation of a factory for the manufacture of cotton seine twine and wrapping twine, which the NEC had endorsed favorably to the President. The establishment, of this corporation is calculated to reduce the price of the products to be manufactured by it.

The President had on his agenda the discussion with his Cabinet members the creation of the presidential committee which will study ways and means of giving incentives to producers. The President also wanted to take up the formal approval of the construction of the Marikina multi-purpose project, but because of lack of material time to discuss these matters, the President said he would take them up again at the next Cabinet meeting.

The Chief Executive adjourned the Cabinet meeting at 12:30 p.m. because of his engagement to address the Manila Jaycees at a special luncheon meeting held at the Manila Hotel.

PRESIDENT Garcia called for an honest and clean election this November in an impassioned speech he delivered before the Manila Junior Chamber of Commerce at the Manila Hotel this noon.

“Clean elections are the very life of democracy” because, he said, “any other kind of election is a travesty of democracy and republicanism.”

Speaking before a good crowd of Jaycees at the Winter Garden of the Manila Hotel, President Garcia declared it is “our sacred duty to ourselves and to our way of life” that honest and clean elections prevail in November.

In strong terms the Chief Executive took to task political parties and candidates whom he charged with “misleading” the people with “gross and unscrupulous misrepresentations and impossible and fantastic promises.”

He deplored what he considered the “high-pressure propaganda which the unscrupulous experts in psychological warfare and public relations have brought to the current political campaign.”

One of the “most unpardonable attempts at misrepresentation,” President Garcia said, involved the public debt of ₱1.5 billion which his political detractors said was the fault of the present administration “and is proof of its extravagance.”

It is a matter of record, the President said, that of this amount, the Liberal administration had incurred no less than ₱1,065,975,000 while the Magsaysay and the present administration contracted only the amount of ₱469,465,000.

The indebtedness racked up by the Liberals amounting to ₱696,938,000 was spent for ordinary budgetary purposes with only- ₱369,037,000 invested in economic development, President Garcia pointed out.

In contrast, he continued, the Nacionalista administration not only has used more than 65 per cent of its borrowing for long range development projects but has also paid off ₱157,917,000 of the budgetary indebtedness of the Liberals.

“The attempt to mislead the people with falsehoods and half-truths is so frantic and so flagrant that it is getting difficult for the average, well-intentioned individual to get the truth,” the Chief Executive said.

He urged the Jaycees to help the Administration conduct an election where the voters “should vote in an atmosphere of freedom and security, and the votes cast should be counted with honesty and accuracy.”

This will not be possible, President Garcia said, unless civic-minded individuals and associations undertake a campaign of enlightenment to “counteract the excesses of political parties and political workers, resulting in gross and unscrupulous misrepresentations.”

“Never in the political history of our country have our people been subjected as they are being subjected today to the barrage of half-truths and falsehoods that manage to find their way to print and over the air waves,” the President said.

President Garcia commended the Jaycees’ campaign to “get out and vote” because he said, “democracy is at its best” when all the citizens are interested in public affairs and all the qualified voters participate in elections.

The Chief Executive told the Jaycees that the Administration is taking various steps to insure the cleanliness and honesty of the election.

He pointed to the assigned roles of the Commission on Elections, the Constabulary, and the public school teachers who, he pointed out, “can be trusted to perform this task with sincerity, honesty, and efficiency.”

He took a dig at “pseudo-economists” who have promised to bring about low prices, full employment, high wages, abundant production, and universal electrification in their bid to win votes.

The problems of our national economy, President Garcia said, “are not so simple as to be susceptible of solution through economic and political quackery.”

He made a strong appeal to the Jaycees and to the people “to unmask the demagogues, free our campaign of opportunism, explode the fantastic promises and brazen lies, and help maintain an honest and peaceful election.”

President Garcia emphatically stressed that “I would not want to continue as President of the Philippines unless I am elected in an honest and free election.”

September 17.—THE PRESIDENT consolidated his hold in the province of Surigao when he administered this morning the oath of affiliation to the Nacionalista Party to Engineer Oscar Diez, former LP stalwart in the province. Diez was the LP campaign manager of the Liberal Party in Surigao during the 1953 and 1955 elections.

Those who sponsored; the new Nacionalista member were Rep. Reynaldo Honrado, Mayor Victor G. Risma of Tago, president of the Surigao Mayors League, and Jose Arreza, member of the Surigao Provincial Board.

A delegation of rural health physicians led by Dr. Lauro Arreglado called on the President to request early implementation of Republic Act No. 1891 that provides for salary increases of municipal health officers, from ₱3,000 to ₱3,600 per annum.

The President informed the health officers that he had directed Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona to find the necessary funds for their pay increases. In the absence of Aytona, who left recently for the United States, the President wrote Deputy Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco inquiring about the status of his directive.

PRESIDENT Garcia said today that the Nacionalista administration, if given a new lease by the electorate this coming November, would implement its economic development program with more vigor.

The President made this remark before Customs collectors and appraisers led by Customs Commissioner Eleuterio Capapas and Assistant Commissioner Pablo Mariano, who paid the Chief Executive a courtesy call after finishing their seminar.

The President told the Customs collectors that the Philippines had been extended by the Import-Export Bank an open credit line of $65 million and that the Administration would utilize this amount to further develop the country’s industries.

The Chief Executive; said that from about 300 new industries in 1954, the country now has more than 700 industries, and in this industrial growth the Philippines did not make use of the credit line opened to it.

He mentioned the fact that highly industrialized countries like England and Japan had resorted to the use of foreign credit lines for developing their industries.

The Chief Executive said that the drain on the country's dollar reserves was due to the implementation of the Administration's economic development program and the purchase of equipment and machinery for the new industries.

But, the President said, the Administration was determined to carry on its economic development program with more vigor.

He enjoined Customs officials to intensify their collections. He was gratified when Commissioner Capapas informed him that this year's collection would amount to ₱300 million as against ₱257 million last year.

Among the Customs collectors who called on the President were Florencio Espino of Cebu, Juan B. Celeste of Zamboanga, Pedro Villafuerte of Iloilo, Paulino Valdez of Davao. Andres Fernandez of Cagayan de Oro, Benito Tamayo of Tacloban, Emigdio Lauengco of Legaspi, Abril Santos of Batangas, and Democrito Septimo of Jose Panganiban, Camarines Norte.

THIS evening the President visited Msgr. Hernando Antiporda, auxiliary bishop and vicar general of Manila, who was convalescing from a recent illness.

The President motored to the San Miguel Pro-Cathedral with Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison and Maj. Jose Estrella, aide. He stayed with Bishop Antiporda for about ten minutes.

Before visiting Msgr. Antiporda, the President had a merienda with Sen. Fernando Lopez, Reps. Jose Aldeguer of Iloilo, and Ramon Durano and Manuel Zosa of Cebu, Provincial Board Member Jesus Colmenares of Iloilo, and Bobby Benedicto.

MALACANANG announced this day that President Garcia issued three proclamations, one of which declared Saturday, September 28, birthday anniversary of the late Wenceslao Q. Vinzons, as a special public holiday in Camarines Norte.

The second proclamation declared the period from October 6 to 12, 1957, as Business and Professional Women's Week, while the third one declared Friday, September 20, as Josefa Llanes Escoda Day "as a tribute to her patriotism and her contributions in the fields of social work and the girl-scouting movement." The late Josefa Llanes Escoda, outstanding patriot and civic leader, was killed by the Japanese during the last war for her underground activities and aid given to war prisoners and allied internees, in military and concentration camps. She was born September 20.

The late Wenceslao Q. Vinzons, delegate to the Constitutional Convention and former governor and representative of Camarines Norte, was also killed by the Japanese during the last war for underground activities. The President designated the special public holiday in Camarines Norte, so that the people of the province could be afforded full opportunity to celebrate Vinzons' birthday.

The President designated the Business and Professional Women's Week in recognition of the important role being played by business and professional women in the promotion of the economic and social welfare of the country.

September 18.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning created a five-man committee to find ways and means of solving the immediate problems confronting the country's mining industry.

Named to the committee were Jose Cabarrus, president of the Base Metal Association of the Philippines, Acting Central Bank Governor Andres Castillo, Tariff Commissioner Montano Tojam, Customs Commissioner Eleuterio Capapas, and Miners Director Benjamin Gozon. Servillano Aquino was appointed as adviser of the committee.

The President created the five-man committee in the course of his breakfast conference with members of the Base Metals Association of the Philippines who pointed out the urgency of solving the problems of the mining industry.

In creating the committee, the President instructed its members to submit their findings and recommendations within a week and to delve primarily into the feasibility of reducing the duties and tariffs now imposed on the mining industry. The President also instructed the committee to look into the feasibility of restoring the barter trade with foreign markets to the mining industry.

Present at the breakfast conference were Jose Cabarrus, W. Hicks, R. Ledesma, M. Relley, S. Ugarte, H. Brimo, and M. Auck. Acting CB Governor Castillo and Education Secretary Manuel Lim were also present. The breakfast lasted from 8 to 9 a.m.

Umali was the over-all commander of President Quezon's Own Guerrillas (PQOG), operating during the Japanese occupation in Laguna, Quezon, Batangas, and Cavite provinces.

Umali stated that he had no reason to stay in the minority, expressing his belief that Jose Yulo, its presidential standard bearer, had destroyed it and broke faith with its ideals.

Members of the Umali faction are scheduled to switch formally to the Nacionalista Party in Lucena when President Garcia starts his stumping tour in Quezon province sometime next month.

Meanwhile, NP legal luminaries informed President Garcia of their intention to file a formal petition before the Commission on Elections to strike out and cancel the certificates of candidacy of three persons with the surname of Garcia, alleging that they had been presented in bad faith and with the sole purpose of prejudicing the candidacy of President Garcia.

Sen. Jose P. Laurel, Sr., Jose Diokno, and Alfonso Ponce Enrile agreed to present the petition.

PRESIDENT Garcia at the Cabinet meeting today received from Health Secretary Paulino J. Garcia the report on the second phase of the investigation work of the presidential committee which had been probing deficiencies at the Philippine General Hospital in order that this government institution could be made more responsive to the people's needs.

Secretary Garcia told the President that he was in full accord with the findings and recommendations of the committee. As a result of the findings and observations of the committee in the second phase of its investigating work, it recommended to the President the following:

1. The establishment and immediate execution of a system of receiving and admitting patients which will give proper regard to the condition, comfort, and welfare of patients. The immediate transfer of patients in the emergency wards to vacancies in the regular wards, after the beds have been vacated, should have top priority.

2. To minimize serious congestion in the emergency wards, the most senior members of the residents staff should be responsible in admitting patients. To the fullest extent possible, the services of the professional staff should be drawn. This arrangement will permit the utilization of maturer experience and judgment. Decongestion should- and can be done by the utilization of enough spaces still available in the hospital, particularly the portion of the laboratory between the south ends of wards 8 and 10, which is now being haphazardly used for rehabilitation purposes.

3. Practical distribution and proper utilization, particularly of the nurses, attendants, and helpers or laborers. A proposed distribution of these personnel in the nursing and non-nursing areas, including the ancillary services, is appended as Annex 5. Distribution should permit flexibility for necessary adjustments, particularly in the event of emergency.

4. Reapportionment of the funds for the purchase of medicines and medical supplies in the present budget to permit increasing the amount from ₱0.59 to ₱1.00 per capita per day. Should more funds be needed, they can be drawn from the accumulated savings of ₱757,810. Other necessary equipment can likewise be purchased from this fund.

It is recommended that a committee of appropriate representation be established which shall determine, after consulting with relevant services or units, the medicines, medical supplies, and equipment which shall be purchased. Appropriate measures should be taken to ensure the availability of these medicines, medical supplies, and equipment to meet emergency, immediate and foreseeable needs, in all areas of the hospital within the fiscal year.

The pharmacy of the hospital shall be opened 24 hours a day and shall make available to public (charity) patients, at costs, medicines and drugs which they have to buy. This will be helpful to the patients and at the same time minimize the possibility of commissions being obtained from prescriptions which patients have to buy at the drug stores outside of the hospital.

5. Strengthen the central supply service and place it in a strategic position. The suitable place is the one now occupied by the private concessioner. The purpose of the use of this particular space by the private concessioner is not of any immediate benefit to the patients and any contract made with it should be rescinded. Alternatively, the private concessioner can be established in other areas of the hospital not otherwise needed by the hospital for patient care.

6. Strengthen the preventive maintenance service and the housekeeping department and placing respectively under them the upkeep and cleanliness of the hospital. This will save the nurses from the supervisory work which they do now and the time saved can be devoted to their nursing duties.

7. Carry out physical improvements and construction from funds now available and the release of all other funds earmarked for other specific physical improvements and new constructions. Priority of physical improvements should be given to the admitting and emergency section and to Emergency Ward 7, a suggested plan for which is appended as Annex 8. The other physical improvements of next priority are those appended in Annex 2.

8. The commutation of quarters and subsistence allowances, particularly for the married nurses, in order to remedy the unhealthy congestion in the dormitories and mess halls.

9. A review of the existing scale of salaries and of the privileges given, with the view to obtaining promotions in pay in consideration of length of service and efficiency and of removing discrimination in the granting of privileges. Corollary to this should be the establishment of a means to guard against possible Unfairness in the matter of promotions of personnel and appointments of new ones. The creation of a Council of Personnel Administration as already provided for by law with memberships in the Council of all relevant services can be the means.

10. There should be a policy declaration to the effect that the Philippine General Hospital should primarily be for patients' care and service without prejudice to its teaching and training functions but the latter be contingent upon the adequacy first of the service, care, and treatment given to patients.

11. For the effective implementation of the policy declaration mentioned in No. 10, the director of the hospital, shall have complete supervision and control over all the personnel in the hospital, including interns, residents, and the professional staff, in connection with the work of the latter three groups of personnel in patients' care in the hospital. The director of the hospital may recommend disciplinary action or separation from the hospital service for cause of any one of these latter three groups of personnel directly to the president of the university or to the U.P. Board of Regents.

12. The director of the hospital shall be on full-time status. He may be permitted limited private practice outside of office hours and not within the hospital premises. To assist him in his work, he shall have under and directly responsible to him the following chiefs of units:

- (a) A full time administrative assistant who shall be a qualified hospital administrator and shall be responsible to the director for all business matters and the efficient performance of the non-technical personnel.
- (b) A full time chief of clinics who shall be responsible to the director for the efficient and ethical performance of the medical staff and for the coordination of the medical teaching and training functions of the hospital. The chief of clinics may also be permitted limited private practice outside of office hours and not within the premises of the hospital.
- (c) A chief nurse who shall be responsible to the director for the efficient and ethical performance of the nursing staff and for coordinating the nursing teaching and training functions of the hospital. Commensurate salary should be provided for each of the above positions to draw in qualified individuals and ensure the maximum efficiency.

13. The professional staff (part-time medical staff) shall not be permitted private practice during official office hours nor within the hospital premises after official office hours except to patients who are actually confined in the pay wards, and also to emergency cases.

14. No resident shall be appointed in the hospital staff unless the appointee has already passed the examination given by the board of Medical Examiners and has had experience in the hospital as an adjunct on rotation basis to all the clinical departments for a period of six months and another period of six months continuously in the department where he will be appointed as resident. The tenure of residency; shall be on a yearly basis contingent on satisfactory work and on efficiency. Reappointment shall carry automatic promotions. The maximum period of residency, which must be continuous for those being reappointed, should not exceed five years.

The residents shall be given the salary scales which are now being given in other government Hospitals.

15. Graduated levels of responsibilities should be established among the resident staff commensurate with length of service and efficiency of work. There shall be written guides for interns which shall include clear delineation of discretion which they may be permitted.

16. For all categories of personnel in the hospital, there should be up-to-date manuals of procedure and operations.

17. The hospital administration shall see to it that adequate supervision at all levels and for all categories of personnel shall be functioning at all times

The committee said by way of general remarks that the Philippine General Hospital had a total of P1,995,420 in idle funds. It added that there were separate funds earmarked for physical improvement and other capital expenditures some of which were now available. It suggested that there should be no delay in the immediate and proper utilization of these funds.

The committee also observed that notwithstanding the U.P. Board of Regents' regard of the PGH as primarily a teaching institution, "the concept or objective of any hospital should be that of patient-care first and all others are secondary."

The committee added: With fullest acceptance of the highly desirable objective of the best standards in medical and nursing education, the lives and welfare of patients should never be subordinated to this objective. Should the hospital continue to be utilized as a teaching institution, which the committee strongly encourages, adequate safeguards must be made to insure that adequacy of patients' care would at all times prevail over the needs of teaching. The organizational pattern of the hospital should be geared towards this end."

The committee in its report continued: "It is highly desirable and it will be useful for the hospital to establish personnel procedures and policies which will guide the personnel in the performance of their duties, in their interrelation in the institution and in their dealings with patients and with the public and which will maintain and promote their morale. Being a public institution, it is incumbent upon the hospital and all of its personnel to cultivate and practice at all times good public relations.”

The President inquired from Secretary Garcia the result of the report of the committee on the first phase of its investigation which had been submitted to the U.P. Board of Regents.

The first phase of the investigation work covered the case of 13-year old child Rosalinda Angeles, who had been admitted at the Philippine General Hospital on July 23, 1957, and who died owing to alleged negligence on the part of the hospital staff.

Education Secretary Manuel Lim, who is chairman of the U.P. Board of Regents, said that the committee of the Board of Regents in charge of the case had admitted the validity of the original findings and recommendations of the committee but allowed the personnel of the hospital who had been meted out punishment to present additional facts to support their side of the case.

Secretary Lim promised the President that the Board of Regents would not whitewash the case, but that it was decided to grant the request of the parties concerned to present more facts in order that they would be given due and full process of the law.

Lim also promised the President and the Cabinet that the Board of Regents, committee was given two weeks to furnish its rehearing of the case and that it would submit its findings immediately.

The President said that he would study the report of the committee very carefully.

THE PRESIDENT and the Cabinet at their meeting also approved:

- (1) The technical services contract for engineering, geological, and other studies and design of a multi-purpose dam, harnessing the Marikina River for power, irrigation, water supply, and river control; and
- (2) In principle, the recommendation of Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno on the proposal contained in a memorandum of understanding between Moreno and the president of the Import-Export Bank of Japan making possible the negotiation of a loan from this bank for the necessary amount to finance the Marikina dam.

The technical services contract was entered into recently between the chief of the Philippine reparations mission in Tokyo in representation of the Marikina Project Coordinating Committee headed by Secretary Moreno and the International Engineering and Development Company, concurred in by the Construction Technical Institute Foundation of Japan, which will collaborate with the above named principal Japanese consulting firm. The estimated cost of services was originally placed at $250,000.

The Cabinet approved in principle the recommendation of Secretary Moreno for a possible loan from a Japanese bank to be underwritten through reparations for the construction of the Marikina dam project. The annual repayment of this loan will begin with the token amount forming part of the first installment on the loan, chargeable against the second year reparations schedule, and the balance sliding into the annual reparations payment beginning the third year.

Under the work schedule attached to a supplemental memorandum agreed upon between the Marikina Project Coordinating Committee and the technical consulting firm of Japan, the engineering, geological investigation, and design of the dam will be completed by the end of July 1958.

Secretary Moreno assured the Cabinet that the supplemental memorandum did not discriminate against Filipino technicians who desire to collaborate in the phase of the work wherein the Filipinos' technical services could be utilized to advantage.

Because of this assurance, Moreno said that the Philippine Association of Civil Engineers (PACE) which had originally registered opposition, had withdrawn it and favorably endorsed the project.

The Cabinet approval of the Marikina dam project came in the wake of satisfactory explanations that the Marikina Project Coordinating Committee made yesterday to local engineers headed by the PACE as to the real nature of these technical services contract which in its tenor does not discriminate against local technicians.

The contract limits the utilization of Japanese technicians to those phases of the work requiring highly specialized skills in which the local technicians do not have as yet the necessary experience, such as in the seismic investigation on sub-surface conditions to insure the stability of reinforced concrete dams of this magnitude of k located in an earthquake zone.

Moreno also emphasized that all work of the Japanese consulting firm would be under the direct supervision and direction of the Marikina Project Coordinating Committee assisted by their local engineering experts.

Secretary Moreno explained that the construction of this dam would bring the following benefits:

- (1) Will provide an additional 160,000 kilowatts of generated electric energy to meet the increased peak load demand around the Manila area during the critical years 1961 to 1962;
- (2) Will prevent recurrence of destructive floods in the Marikina Valley affecting the suburbs of Manila;
- (3) Will serve 6,000 hectares of farmlands in the Marikina Valley, thereby enhancing productivity in this area;
- (4) Will relieve on a permanent basis the water shortage in Manila; and
- (5) Will provide employment opportunities to hundreds of Filipino technicians and laborers.

Secretary Moreno also said that the construction of this dam would serve as a monument or memorial to Philippine-Japanese friendship. He said that, in an interview, Premier Kishi had expressed appreciation of the construction of the dam.

The financing arrangement made possible by the approval of the Cabinet will preclude the drain on the country's dollar reserves, Moreno said.

PRESIDENT Garcia, with the unanimous approval of his Cabinet members, created a presidential incentives committee charged with the duty of studying ways and means of giving incentives to producers in order to increase production of essential products and thus lower prices.

Former Finance Secretary Antonio de las Alas, who represents the lumber industry, was appointed chairman of the committee. The other members of the committee are the president of the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines, the president of the Philippine Chamber of Industries, the president of the Philippine Chamber of Agriculture, the president of the Philippine Bankers Association, Mrs. Trinidad F. Legarda and Miss Helena Z. Benitez, representing consumers, Jose Hernandez, representing labor, and Domingo C. Abadilla, president of the National Press Club, representing the press. Miss Benitez, aside from being a member, was made secretary of the presidential committee.

The President directed that the committee should hold public hearings in order to get a cross-section of the views of all the economic segments of the country as regards the best means to be adopted by the government in giving incentives to producers. He said that the committee should start its hearings at the earliest possible time.

The President also directed that all government offices and instrumentalities should be ready to cooperate with the committee whenever the committee required assistance in pursuing its work.

After the committee shall have finished its hearings, it will submit its recommendations to the President.

The President said that the creation of this committee was a commitment which he had made at the time he had vetoed Senate Bill 167.

AFTER consultation with Labor Secretary Angel Castaño and Telecommunications Director Jose Alfonso regarding the problems of the telecommunications operators who: had come as a group to see the President at the Malacañang social hall; before the Cabinet meeting, the President:

- (1) Announced the appointment of Rufino Tolentino as assistant director of telecommunications;
- (2) Owing to the volume of work being done by the traffic section of the bureau, told Director Alfonso to study the possibility of converting the traffic section into a division;
- (3) Gave assurance that overtime pay should be given to the employees of the bureau, subject to budgetary limitations; and
- (4) Ordered that complaints regarding discrimination in the increase in salaries in the bureau be looked into and to see to it that every employee was given justice.

Secretary Castaño also; informed the President that the union members of some 12 government corporations who had filed notices with his department to strike had desisted from their intention.

With regard to the petition of the Life Insurance Executives Association to continue with the practice of deducting from salaries of employees insurance premiums which had been ordered discontinued in accordance with Wage Administration Service and Bureau of Labor Standards circulars, Secretary Castaño said that if the employees themselves send their sworn statements to the labor secretary authorizing deduction from their salaries to pay for such premiums, then he would give his authority for such deductions.

UPON recommendation of the National Economic Council, the Cabinet approved the establishment and operation by the Milk Industry, Inc., of a plant for the manufacture of canned evaporated and condensed milk. The plant has an annual capacity of 500,000 cases of evaporated milk and 165,000 cases of sweetened condensed milk.

It was believed that the establishment of this milk factory would reduce the importation of processed milk and thus save on dollars.

The permit was given under the following conditions:

- (1) That the company's foreign exchange requirements should be obtained from the Import-Export Bank or from other financial institutions abroad;
- (2) That its raw material requirements in the form of powdered milk shall be obtained under U.S. Public Law 480 and/or under section 402 of the U.S. Mutual Security Act; and
- (3) That this firm shall undertake the necessary steps to develop dairy farms so that its raw material requirements may be obtained locally to assure its continued and uninterrupted operations.

During the Cabinet meeting, Acting Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano briefed the President and the Cabinet on the political developments in Thailand.

The President presided over the Cabinet meeting from 11:30 a.m. to 2:15 p.m. The meeting was held at the Council of State room.

September 19.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning appointed Gaudencio Antonino, president of the Producers and Exporters Association, as the tenth member of the incentives committee which the President had created at the Cabinet meeting yesterday.

The President said that he included Antonino in the committee because he would like the incentives committee to be more truly representative of all the economic segments of the country.

BEFORE taking off to-day for Gasan, Marinduque, the President assured the early implementation of the provisions of Republic Act 1862, which amended Republic Act 30, otherwise known as the Armed Forces Retirement Act. In a conference with Sen. Ruperto Kangleon and retired AFP officers, President Garcia revealed that he had directed Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas to implement the said Act.

Republic Act 1862 authorizes officers and enlisted men previously retired with lump sum gratuities under Republic Act 340, prior to January 1, 1955, with 20 years of active service, to receive in lieu of said gratuities a monthly retirement pension starting June 22, 1957.

The retired officers who saw President Garcia were Cols. Gabriel Castillo, Juan Deloso, Patricio Guerrero, Leonardo Torres, and E. Linsangan.

Pangan, who could hardly walk because of old age, said that before he would die, he would like to see President Garcia.

The President, upon learning of the presence of Pangan, left his other visitors and talked to Pangan and inquired about his health. The President said that he would be very glad to extend assistance to Pangan if his help was needed.

Pangan was accompanied to Malacañang by his grandson, Aniceto Alcalá.

Among the other callers of the President were former Sen. Sotero Baluyut, Dr. Gil Gaddi, and Pedro Soller.

The President left Malacañang about 1 p.m. and motored to the Nichols Airbase, taking off at 1:35 p.m. for Gasan, Marinduque.

Among those with the President on the plane were Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., vice-presidential candidate, Education Secretary Manuel Lim, Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, Albay Governor Nicanor Maronilla-Seva, Pedro Q. Molina, Air Force chief, and CAA Chief Urbano Caldoza.

The presidential plane Dagohoy landed at the Gasan airport at 2:20 p.m.

THIS afternoon the President inaugurated the newly constructed ₱139,000 CAA Gasan airport. He said in his speech that never before was so much done for the welfare of the common people than during the present Nacionalista administration.

He cited the achievements of the Nacionalista Party and said the party was standing on its record. He mentioned the fact that the Nacionalista administration appropriated ₱600 million for irrigation systems and ₱46 million for the health program. He also said that since 1953, the Nacionalista Party, under the leadership of the late President

Magsaysay and President Carlos P. Garcia, restored peace and order and the faith and confidence of the people in the government.

In inaugurating the airport the President stated that it was in line with the Administration's program of extending the benefits of aviation to the greater number of people and that it was expected to provide faster means of transportation for persons, mail, and cargo and would directly bring economic benefits with the speedy development of Marinduque's rich natural resources.

The President cited that rural doctors, rural nurses, and rural midwives are being sent by the Administration to the barrios to look after the health of the masses. He also mentioned that more than 8,000 prefabricated schoolhouses have been constructed and distributed by the NP administration, saying that the NP was always concerned with the growth and upliftment of the conditions of the people, especially in the rural areas.

The Nacionalista Party's achievements in three years were three times as much as the Liberal Party's accomplishments in eight years, the President said. He pledged to continue at all times, the program of the late President Magsaysay. He told the people of Marinduque that more aid was coming to them for their public works projects saying that the total aid given to Marinduque during the NP administration amounted to ₱6,882,000 while the entire LP regime granted only more than ₱1 million, to the province.

The President arrived in Gasan, Marinduque, at 2:30 p.m. He was met at the airport by a big crowd of provincial officials headed by Rep. Panfilo Manguera, Gov. Miguel Manguera, Mayor Antonio Zoleta of Gasan, and Mayor Lorenzo Belarmino of Sta. Cruz. The President was accompanied by Speaker Jose B. Laurel Jr., vice-presidential candidate, Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez, Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, Education Secretary Manuel Lim, PAF Chief Brig. Gen. Pedro Q. Molina, CAA Administrator Urbano Caldoza, former CAA Administrator Arthur Sevilla, Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema, and Malacañang Technical Assistant Sofronio Quimson.

After the inauguration of the airport, the President motored to the plaza of Gasan, where he spoke at a rally. He had merienda at the residence of ex-Councilor Flor Coral. He then motored to barrio Cawit, Boac, for another rally. Later on he proceeded to the plaza of Boac where a huge crowd listened and cheered him as he cited the accomplishments of his administration. At the airport a mammoth crowd with placards and brass bands met the President. The people cheered and elbowed each other as the President shook the hands of the welcomers.

Speakers at the rallies included the President, Speaker Laurel, Sen. Gonzalez, and Secretary Moreno. The President and Speaker Laurel are both suffering from slight cold.

September 20.—PRESIDENT Garcia arrived in Daet, Camarines Norte, at 9:30 a.m. today after a rough hour-and-a-half flight from Gasan, Marinduque.

The presidential plane Dagohoy was buffeted by winds generated by typhoon Faye. Typhoon signal No. 1 was up in Daet when the Dagohoy landed.

Despite the inclement weather, thousands turned out at the Daet airfield to welcome President Garcia and his running-mate, Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., for the November elections.

The two led a long motorcade to Daet proper. They heard a Te Deum at the town's church after which the President inaugurated the ₱4.2 million Daet-Talisay irrigation project.

The project was expected to help farmers of Camarines Norte increase their rice output to 150,000 cavans a year. The system will benefit six towns in the region.

In his speech during the inauguration the President hurled back at Liberal Party presidential candidate Jose Yulo a charge of extravagance.

Yulo had accused the NP of incurring “too great” public loans.

The President said the loans had been and would be used for public improvement projects, something which the LP neglected to do during its hey-day.

He said that when the LP was in power, it spent 65 per cent of the loans it incurred on operational expenses and only a few thousands for public works.

After inaugurating the irrigation system, the President motored to the mining towns of Larap, Paracale, and Labo.

In these towns he delivered speeches disclosing government plans to exploit the country’s mineral resources. He said he would have a smelting plant set up in Jose Panganiban.

The President was met at the Daet airport by a big crowd headed by Gov. Esmeraldo Eco and two contending NP congressional aspirants, Rep. Fernando Pajarillo and Pedro Venida.

To avoid suspicion of favoring one candidate or another, the President ate breakfast in Venida’s residence and lunch in Pajarillo’s.

September 21.—PRESIDENT Garcia told newsmen in Naga City today that he directed the Army, through Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas and Brig. Gen. Manuel Cabal, Constabulary chief, to take necessary measures to prevent violence in the coming elections.

The President disclosed his directive as he scoffed at the Liberal Party charge of Nacionalista terrorism in an effort to win in the coming national elections.

President Garcia said he had instructed Secretary Vargas and Brig. Gen. Cabal to visit all the critical areas in the country and adopt necessary measures to prevent violence and insure a clean and honest election.

The President branded as “imaginary” the Liberal charges that the Nacionalistas will commit terrorism to insure their victory in the coming elections. He said it is fantastic that the charge comes from men whose party had been convicted of political terrorism.

He likewise laughed off at the statement in Bacolod City of ex-Speaker Jose Yulo, Liberal Party presidential candidate that Yulo will prosecute him if he is elected president. “Do I have to comment on that?” asked President Garcia. “It is wishful thinking,” he added.

The President and his party arrived in Naga City at 10 o’clock this morning. He inaugurated the Barit hydroelectric project.

President Garcia declared that the Nacionalista Party will present with more vigor its overall program of electrification throughout the country in order to spread the industrialization plan.

The President made this statement during the inauguration of the ₱2.7 million hydroelectric plant which will furnish electric power in Naga City, Buhi, Iriga, Baga, Buli, Bato, Navao, and neighboring towns.

High government officials led by Speaker Laurel, Jr., Gov. Juan Triviho, Mayor Monico Imperial of Naga City, members of the presidential party, and prominent residents witnessed the inauguration ceremony.

The Nationalists Party, said the President, marshalled funds for the construction of hydro-electric project in spite of criticisms from the opposition, in its desire to extend electric power to those places never served before.

The President and his running-mate, Speaker Laurel, assailed the Liberals for neglecting the welfare of the rural areas when they were in power.

President Garcia this afternoon viewed the fluvial procession in connection with the biggest religious festival in Naga City.

Mrs. Leonila Garcia arrived there this afternoon to crown the queen of the festival.

Owing to a hectic schedule, the President cancelled his scheduled conference with government officials.

September 22.—PRESIDENT Garcia presented the three fundamental achievements of the Nacionalista Party as a basis for its continuation in power in a mammoth rally held early this morning at Naga City after the fluvial procession in honor of the Virgin of Peñafrancia, patron saint of Bicolandia.

The President pointed out to the following as the fundamental achievements of the Nacionalista Party:

- (1) Restoration of the people's faith and confidence in the government;
- (2) Restoration of peace and order with the policy of "all out friendship and all out force" against the dissidents; and
- (3) The implementation of the five-year economic development plan with emphasis on the uplift of conditions in the rural areas.

The President also announced during the rally that the NP administration was successful in its effort to have the processing tax on coconut oil and copra abolished in the Congress of the United States.

Against the record of achievements of the NP, the President pointed out the fiasco of the LP administration which "failed to rise up to the expectation of the people and grounded the wheels, of progress."

Before a huge crowd of about 50,000, the President said that the LP presidential bet was trying to hoodwink and fool the people when he sang Hosannas to the late President Magsaysay and in the same breath lambasted the Nacionalista administration.

Reminding the people that the NPs had promised to restore peace and order as well as the people's faith and confidence in the government, the President said that in six months the Nacionalistas had been able to restore peace and order and the people's faith in the government. He said that the restoration of the people's faith and confidence in their own government had been obtained mainly through the creation of the PCAC where the common man could air his grievances, seek redress, report abuses, and solicit government aid.

He charged that the LPs had lost the cooperation of the people because of misrule, abuses, graft, and corruption.

The President asked the electorate to render its judgment on the records of the Nacionalista Party and the Liberal Party in choosing the men who would handle the affairs of the nation.

He voiced his conviction that the people could see through the "hoodwinking tactics" adopted by the Liberals. The President said that even in presenting "perfumed" Liberals to the electorate, the minority party was still trying to fool the people. He told the wildly cheering crowd that the Filipino people had developed a sense of justice and fairness that could render a wise decision in the coming polls.

President Garcia heard mass at the shrine of the Virgin of Peñafrancia about 8 o'clock this morning. He and members of his party made their way through a thick crowd of people who also heard mass. After the mass, he proceeded to the residence of Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, where he had breakfast, and then conferred with provincial officials of the Bicol region.

After the conference, about 11:30 a.m., the President boarded the presidential plane Dagohoy and reached Manila an hour later.

AN Air Force mercy plane early this morning took off for Legaspi, Albay, with eight vials of tetanus anti-toxin for a boy who was hovering between life and death.

President Garcia directed the airlifting of the medicine immediately upon receipt of a telegram from Councilor Eduardo Jana of Legaspi whose son was seriously suffering from tetanus at the hospital in Daraga, Albay. The medicine was procured from Director Felix Velasco of the San Lazaro Hospital about 2 o'clock this morning. The medicine was delivered to Councilor Jana by the PC provincial commander of Albay about 8 a.m. today.

The President also directed the Philippine National Red Cross Blood Bank to procure immediately 500 cc of type AB blood for Surigao. The appeal for the blood came from Dr. J. Castro of Surigao, Surigao, who said that it was badly needed for a patient. Dr. Castro said in his wire that the blood could not be obtained in Cebu.

September 23.—PRESIDENT Garcia received this morning two visiting members of the British Parliament and the commander-in-chief of the U. S. Pacific Fleet.

After conferring with Palace assistants over routine matters and receiving Pampanga Gov. Rafael Lazatin and former Public Works Secretary Sotero Baluyut, the President saw the Honorable Robert Mathew and John Hill, members of the British Parliament.

The visiting British solons are in Manila in the course of a private observation tour of the Far East. They were accompanied to Malacañang by British Charge de'Aiffaires Edward Biggs.

After receiving the British legislators, the President saw Admiral Felix B. Stump, commander-in-chief of the U. S. Pacific Fleet, who arrived Sunday afternoon at Sangley Point after attending the SEATO military advisers, conference in Bangkok, Thailand.

Admiral Stump was accompanied by U.S. Ambassador Charles Bohlen; Rear Admiral Edgar A. Cruise, commander of the U. S. naval forces in the Philippines; Capt. J. N. Myers, new naval attache of the U. S. Embassy in Manila; and Commander F. X. Broeker, aide and flag lieutenant of Admiral Stump.

The President then received members of the Philippine Sportswriters Association who invited him to attend the PSA Third Fiesta Fistiiana on October 1, at the Rizal Memorial Coliseum for the benefit of disabled ex-boxers.

Owing to previous commitments, the President regretted that he could not attend the affair. However, he donated the belt to be disputed by Leo Espinosa and Al Asuncion in the main event of the card for the featherweight championship of the Philippines.

The PSA members who were led by their president, Pep Scarella, were Vicente Villafranca, Virgilio Pantaleon, Ernie Bitong, Benjamin Defensor, Felipe Galang, and Conrado Baluyut.

Before proceeding to the Cabinet meeting, the President administered the oath of office to former Senator Pedro C. Hernaez as ad interim secretary of commerce and industry, to take the place of Oscar Ledesma, who is running as official NP candidate for Senator.

High government official and prominent sugar cane planters witnessed the oath-taking, among whom were Commerce Undersecretary Perfecto Laguio, Health Secretary Paulino Garcia, Executive Fortunato de Leon, Sen. Jose P. Laurel, Sr., Jose Ma. Gomez, president of the National Confederation of Sugar Cane Planters, Eugenio

Lopez, Negros Oriental Gov. Serafin Teves, Bacolod City Mayor Teofisto Cordova, Dr. Timoteo Consing, Dr. Vicente Gustilo, Ramon Lacson, Ciriaco Locsin, Rodolfo Lizares, Fernando Cuenca, Ambrosio Magsaysay, and Fernando Gonzaga.

After inducting Hernaez, the President received a delegation of Nueva Ecija mayors headed by Gov. Amado Aleta and Rep. Celestino Juan. Then he presided over the Cabinet meeting.

THE ADMINISTRATION'S program of providing more homes and lots for the low-salaried class was further boosted when the President and his Cabinet at their meeting today authorized the acquisition of 132 hectares of land in Parañaque, Rizal in order to expand the low-cost housing projects of the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation.

The approval of this project was given after representations made by PHHC Chairman-General Manager Vicente Orosa, who explained the benefits to be derived from the purchase of this additional land for the construction of low-cost houses. Acquisition of this property was previously approved by the FHHC board of directors which was endorsed later by the Office of Economic Coordination.

Out of the 132 hectares, 19 hectares are located fronting the superhighway. The property is about 10 kilometers from Manila and is believed to be an ideal place for subdivisions and housing projects. It is near the Manila International Airports, Forbes Park, and San Lorenzo Village, and lies between two groups of factories.

After hearing the explanation of Manager Orosa, the President and the Cabinet unanimously approved the purchase of the property.

The President said that with this additional lands, the PHHC could expand its activities in providing low-cost houses and lots to the deserving.

UPON recommendation of Acting Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, the President and the Cabinet authorized the release of ₱3,028,000 for salary adjustments of teachers and other personnel of general high schools and city intermediate teachers in chartered cities, pursuant to the provisions of Republic Act No. 842. The amount had been appropriated by Republic Act No. 2042.

Previously, the President, acting upon petition of teachers concerned, had directed the budget commissioner to study ways of implementing the provisions of the law which adjusted their salaries.

The release of this amount was subject to, the following conditions:

(1) That the adjustments of salaries should be limited to four rates from the minimum salary for the position and/or in the same manner the salaries of officials, teachers, and other school personnel in the national rolls were adjusted out of the funds appropriated under Republic Act 1230; and

(2) That inasmuch as the amount appropriated in Republic Act 2042 is good only for one fiscal year, or up to June 30, 1958, the provinces, municipalities, or cities desiring to continue paying such salaries as adjusted beyond June 30, 1958, shall provide the necessary amount for the purpose from their local funds.

UPON recommendation of Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, the President and the Cabinet approved the revised memberships of the Philippine delegation to the Colombo Plan Consultative Committee meeting to be held in Saigon, South Vietnam, from September 30 to October 24, 1957.

Health Secretary Paulino J. Garcia was appointed chairman of the ministerial meeting which will be held on October 21-24. Secretary Garcia was made the new chairman in view of the fact that delegations to the ministerial meetings of the Colombo Plan have always been headed by officials of Cabinet rank.

Others in the delegation to the ministerial meeting are Minister Mariano Ezpeleta, vice-chairman; Mrs. Carmen G. de Ledesma of the NEC, member; and Pablo A. Peña of the Department of Foreign Affairs, member.

The delegation to the official meeting from October 7 to 17, follows:

Minister Mariano Ezpeleta, leader; Mrs. Carmen G. de Ledesma, alternate leader; Pablo A. Peña, member; and Ernesto C. Pineda of the foreign office, member.

The delegation to the preliminary working group from September 30 to October 5, is composed of the following:

Mrs. Carmen G. de Ledesma, leader; Pablo A. Peña, alternate; and Ernesto C. Pineda, alternate.

The delegation to the preliminary working group will also act as representatives of the Philippine Government to the National Day Celebration of the Republic of Vietnam on October 26, 1957.

The President requested Secretary Serrano to sound out the SEATO member countries on the possibility of having a Filipino elected as secretary-general of the regional defense alliance.

The SEATO secretary-generalship was made vacant by the appointment of Pote Sarasin, Thai ambassador to the United States and newly designated secretary-general of the SEATO, as premier of Thailand. Sarasin had resigned his position as SEATO secretary-general.

THE Cabinet at its meeting today:

(1) Approved the holding of the second session of the Regional Association V of the World Meteorological Organization in Manila sometime in February, 1958, with the Philippine Government as the host;

(2) Authorized Philippine participation in the First General Conference of the International Atomic Energy Agency, which will open in Vienna, Austria, on October 1, 1957, with Dean Crisostomo A. Ortigas of the U. P. as the Philippine delegate to the conference; and

(3) Authorized Emiliano A. Tan Chico, legal and evaluation officer and acting officer-in-charge of the investigation section of the intelligence division of the Central Bank, to leave for the United States to undergo specialized training in the detection and investigation of counterfeits, forgeries, and/or alterations of money, checks, and securities for a period not to exceed four months.

The Cabinet meeting was presided over by the President from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. The meeting was held at the Council of State room.

PRESIDENT Garcia received a 1,000-man delegation representing GPM chapters from various districts of Manila which staged a "loyalty rally" at Malacañang this afternoon.

With Alfredo Gomez acting as their spokesman, the delegation which jam-packed the spacious social hall informed the President that they just wanted him to know they were working vigorously to insure his victory in Manila in the November elections. The group also promised they would undertake a house-to-house campaign in the city.

Another delegation composed of employees in the Bureau of Printing called to present a 12-point petition. Among the requests contained in the petition were:

- (1) General salary increases particularly for those who had been working in the bureau for many years without a single promotion;
- (2) Improvement of their building with the view to providing employees more healthful working conditions; and
- (3) Investigation of nepotism and favoritism which allegedly thrived in the bureau.

The President assured the delegation he would have the charge of nepotism and favoritism, investigated immediately. As to the request for salary increases, he said he would refer their petition to the Wage and Position Classification Office (WAPCO) with instructions to find a way to grant the desired salary boost, especially for those who had rendered long and continuous service to the bureau.

The Chief Executive received callers until 9 p.m. Other visitors included Gov. Francisco Infantado of Mindoro Oriental, Rep. Emilio Cortez of Pampanga, Acting Mayor Jesus Marcos Rocas of Manila, and Rep. Joaquin Rocas of Manila.

September 24.—THE PRESIDENT before taking off for Davao felicitated Liberal Party presidential candidate Jose Yulo, who is celebrating his 62nd birthday anniversary today.

The President's felicitation was contained in a telegram which reads as follows:

“IN WISHING YOU MANY HAPPY RETURNS OF THE DAY AYE TAKE THIS OCCASION TO RESTATE MY BELIEF THAT AN OPPOSITION PARTY IS NECESSARY TO KEEP ALIVE DEMOCRATIC PRINCIPLES IN OUR COUNTRY STOP MRS GARCIA JOINS ME IN WISHING YOU CONTINUED GOOD HEALTH AND HAPPINESS IN THE YEARS AHEAD.

PRESIDENT GARCIA”

PRESIDENT Garcia was assured today that mayors and councilors in all 27 municipalities of this province are actively campaigning for his election.

The assurance came from Davao Gov. Alejandro Almendras on the President's arrival in Davao shortly before noon today aboard the presidential plane Dagohoy. Almendras said the President would win in his province by overwhelming majority. President Garcia was wildly received during his tour of the province this afternoon. People met him with brass bands, parades, and noisy fireworks display. Davawenños turned out by the thousands, lined the streets along presidential routes, and threw flowers on the path of the presidential car.

The Chief Executive in public rallies in Davao reiterated his determination to carry out the NP program of exploiting untapped natural resources of Mindanao with a view to boosting the nation's economy. He cited the achievements of the NP administration since 1954 and added that the NP more than any other party could be depended upon to steer the country toward better times in view of its splendid record.

The President spoke in English and in Visayan in public rallies. He was invariably introduced by Gov. Almendras as “still to be our President in the next four years.”

Accompanied by Speaker Laurel, Jr., his vice-presidential running mate, Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez, Secretaries Manuel Lim of Education and Angel Castaño of Labor, the President landed at the Sasa airport in Davao City at 11:30 a.m. on the first leg of a seven-day stump of Mindanao. After acknowledging honors offered by a large cheering crowd at the airport, the President was whisked at the head of a long motorcade to Davao City, where he heard a Te Deum at the San Pedro church.

From the church the President had luncheon conference with national, provincial, and municipal officials at the nearby Boy Scouts building, where he delivered a brief pep talk before local officials. Other speakers at the conference included Speaker Laurel, Jr., Gov. Almendras, and Davao City Mayor Carmelo Porras.

THIS afternoon, after a tree planting ceremony at the Mindanao Colleges, cornerstone laying ceremonies at the Davao City High School and the Mindanao health center, and a brief inspection tour of the Sasa equipment depot in Sasa, all in Davao City, the President proceeded to Tagum for the first scheduled public rally in the province. Owing to numerous unscheduled stops, the President hit Tagum about 53 kilometers from Davao City, about 9 p.m.

After supper at Tagum, the Presidential party returned to the city where the biggest rally in the province was held. The city rally started about 11 p.m. instead of 9 p.m. as scheduled owing to many unforeseen stops which disrupted the President's schedule. The stops were caused by enthusiastic Davawenios who awaited the presidential car in towns and barrios and insisted that the President get off the car. Whenever he could, the President alighted from the car and shook hands with barrio folks, most of whom had been waiting for him for many hours.

MALACANANG announced today that President Garcia signed Proclamation No. 446, declaring Friday, September 27, 1957, a special public holiday in the province of Batangas and Lipa City in connection with the commemoration of the ninetieth birthday anniversary of General Miguel Malvar.

General Malvar, hero and patriot during the Philippine Revolution and the Filipino-American War, was the last Filipino general to surrender to the Americans.

The President declared the birthday of General Malvar a special public holiday in Batangas and Lipa City in order to give the people of the province and the city opportunity to celebrate the occasion fittingly.

September 25.— PRESIDENT Garcia nursed a finger he injured while shaking hands with the crowds which lined his route from Davao City to Digos this morning.

No one tended to his injured finger as his two physicians, Drs. Guytingco and Gaerlan, could not be found.

It turned out that the two physicians went joyriding ahead of the presidential car in a limousine.

President Garcia slept aboard the presidential yacht Sta. Maria, anchored off Davao City early this morning.

He woke up at 7:30 a.m. and had breakfast half an hour later.

He called newsmen to a conference in which he informed them of his directive to the Armed Forces to investigate reports that letters in Chinese characters, demanding contributions to the Nacionalista Party campaign fund, were being circulated among local Chinese.

He said that the circulation of these letters was another attempt to sabotage his election campaign.

From the yacht, the President motored south, stopping at Sta. Cruz and at Digos.

He had his car stopped many times to enable him to shake hands with Davawenios who lined the route. It was while he was greeting a crowd that he injured his finger.

Upon arriving in Digos, the President laid the cornerstone of the National Rice and Corn Corporation (NARIC) corn mill.

At three o'clock he proceeded to Kidapawan, stopping over in Marawi City.

He was scheduled to address a rally in Kidapawan in the evening and to spend the night at the residence of Primitivo Martinez.

Tomorrow the President will proceed to Tacurong to start the third day of his eight-day stumping tour of Mindanao provinces.

September 26.—PRESIDENT Garcia today congratulated emigrants in Mindanao for their pioneering spirit and added that the whole country is pinning its hopes in their industry.

In public rallies held at various Cotabato towns today the President explained that the development of the rich virgin lands of Mindanao would put an end to the nation's perennial rice problem. He said that Cotabato and the rest of Mindanao could produce rice, corn, coffee, and other commodities sufficient to supply not only local needs but also foreign markets.

The President also assured the Moslem population that the government would continue its policy of promoting their welfare if the Nacionalista Party were retained in power in the November polls. He said he believed that minority groups were essential in the building of a strong and united Republic.

The presidential party today resumed its tour of Cotabato towns, passing through long stretches of new roads cutting across most of Cotabato's virgin lands. Several times the President stopped at settlers' homes along the road and inquired about the problems of the settlers to find out how the government could be of assistance to them.

Accompanied by Gov. Udtog Matalam, Rep. Luminog Mangelen, Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., his team-mate, and ex-Senator Salipada Pendatun, the President spoke at huge rallies at Mlang, Buluan, Tacurong, Marbel, and at General Santos tonight. He was received with colorful receptions in Moslem towns where the people came out en masse with their gay costumes.

September 27.—PRESIDENT Garcia today authorized the release of ₱125,000 to complete the reactivation of the old Siluay River irrigation system in General Santos, Cotabato, to aid hundreds of farmers who are constantly being harassed by droughts in the locality.

The President gave authority to Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno this morning before boarding his plane from General Santos to Cotabato, Cotabato, in the course of his eight-day stump of Mindanao. Secretary Moreno, who is with the presidential party, explained that the released sum would not be available for actual expenditure until after the elections in view of the 45-day ban.

Secretary Moreno disclosed that ₱25,000 had previously been initially released for the reconstruction of the system. The amount had been utilized in the re-establishment of the main canal which is now servicing 300 hectares. When completed, the project will serve over 3,000 hectares planted to rice and will be a boon to the locality.

Before boarding the plane, the President also visited the NDC cotton plantations some five kilometers from General Santos where he had spent the night. Impressed by the lush growth of cotton plants which he found flowering, the President promised that ways would be found to further encourage cotton planting in the area.

Informed that the project would yield about ₱1,000 worth of cotton per hectare, the President asked Dr. Baltazar, who is in charge, to find out the whether plantation could be expanded. The President said it could bring prosperity to the people in the locality besides saving dollar reserves as the produce is said to be far better in quality than imported American cotton.

The PAF plane Dagohoy bearing the presidential party landed in Cotabato airport at 11:10 a.m. today after about one hour trip from General Santos. Delegations from Cotabato and nearby provinces were on hand to give the party a rousing welcome. The party had flown to Cotabato town only for the purpose of boarding the yacht Sta. Maria docked at Parang for the boat trip to Pagadian. Owing, however, to a large crowd which turned out along the presidential route, the Chief Executive had to conduct two brief impromptu rallies, one at Cotabato town and another at Parang before the yacht pulled out at 2:30 p.m.

Accompanying the President during his tour of Cotabato province were Gov. Matalam Rep. Mangelen, ex-Senator Salipada Pendatun, and Dr. Gil Gadi. The President expected to reach Pagadian, Zamboanga, at 7:30 tonight where a huge rally awaits him.

September 28.—BANCA and vintas filled with gong-pounding Moslems and dancing girls, surrounded the presidential yacht Sta. Maria as it docked at Zamboanga City this afternoon to unload Nacionalista campaigners headed by President Garcia.

The reception given President Garcia and his party was the most colorful and rousing yet accorded the President in his stumping tour of Mindanao provinces. The President has been in Mindanao for five days now.

The Sta. Maria arrived in Zamboanga City at 2 p.m. from Basilan City, where President Garcia and his fellow Nacionalistas promised government support for the rubber industry in that region.

He said the rubber industry in that city should be “exploited to the fullest extent” as a means of preserving the country’s dollar reserves and keeping unemployment down.

The Sta. Maria anchored off Basilan City after several hours of fine sailing from Pagadian where President Garcia addressed a huge rally.

In the Pagadian rally the President and his running-mate, Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., joined hands in lambasting the Liberal Party.

President Garcia charged his Liberal rival, former Speaker Jose Yulo, with having bungled the LP’s economic development program.

On the other hand, Laurel accused his LP rival, Rep. Diosdado Macapagal, of shirking discussion on controversial legislation. He said Macapagal evaded getting enmeshed in the discussion of the land tenure measure when the bill was under consideration before the House.

In Basilan City, the NP presidential team was joined by NP senatorial candidates Oscar Ledesma, Arturo Tolentino, and Roseller Lim.

The President and his party were scheduled to enplane tonight for Iligan City, where they are scheduled to preside over a political meeting.

THE PRESIDENT today granted another 30-day reprieve to death convict Eusebio Molijon whose first reprieve expires tomorrow.

The second reprieve ends on October 29, 1957.

Molijon was sentenced to death in the electric chair for attempted robbery and multiple murder in Cebu. The first reprieve was granted by the President to Molijon last August 23,

In granting the second 30-day stay of execution, the President said that more time was still necessary for a thorough and careful study of the merits of the petition for execution clemency filed in behalf of the convict.

September 29.—PRESIDENT Garcia and his party are scheduled to hit Malaybalay, Bukidnon, today in the course of their eight-day stump of Mindanao, but no report of their arrival there is available at the Malacañang press office until late tonight.

It is suspected that radio contact with Malaybalay failed, and this explains the lack of report from members of the presidential party.

The President and his fellow campaigners are supposed to have proceeded today to Malaybalay from Iligan City, where they held a big rally last night. The rally ended until the wee hours this morning.

A record crowd estimated at 50,000 reportedly jammed the Iligan City plaza and heard the President and his running-mate, Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., expound on the role Mindanao would play in the Nacionalista economic program.

The President spoke in Visayan as he outlined the achievements of his administration. A wild ovation greeted him before he started his speech shortly after midnight.

Earlier he and his party had come from Zamboanga City from where they boarded a plane to Iligan.

Senatorial candidates in the party who also addressed the rally were former Commerce Secretary Oscar Ledesma, Rep. Arturo M. Tolentino, and Sen. Roseller T. Lim. Other speakers were Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez, Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, and Sen. Domocao Alonto.

Early this morning, the President and his group heard mass at the Iligan Catholic church in honor of St. Michael, patron saint of the city in whose honor the townspeople are celebrating Iligan's traditional fiesta.

September 30.—PRESIDENT Garcia was received with a riotous reception by the people of Surigao on his arrival there this afternoon on the last lap of his 8-day barnstorming tour of Mindanao provinces.

Landing at the Surigao airport about 3:20 p.m. on the PAF plane Dagohoy following a 50-minute rough trip from Malaybalay, Bukidnon, the President was met by huge delegations from Surigao and nearby provinces who had converged in Surigao to give him a rousing welcome. The President was immediately mobbed by his enthusiastic welcomers as soon as he got off the plane.

After inspecting the guard of honor formed at the landing field by the local military unit, the President headed a long motorcade to the town proper some five kilometers away. Thousands of people lined up both sides of the road, cheered, and waved colored paper flags and "vote Garcia" placards as the presidential car passed by.

Gov. Bernardino Almeda and Rep. Reynaldo Honrado estimated that the NP ticket would get no less than 85 per cent of Surigao's votes.

Alighting in front of the cathedral, the President was again mobbed by the townspeople who all wanted to shake his hand. It took the President more than five minutes to reach the door of the cathedral where a Te Deum was sung.

After a merienda at the Governor's residence, the Chief Executive proceeded to the yacht Sta. Maria, where he conferred with local political leaders, including 27 of the 29 Surigao mayors, headed by Victor Risma of Tago, president of the local mayors' league, who assured him of an overwhelming majority in the coming elections.

A huge rally is scheduled at the town plaza tonight. After the rally, the President will proceed by boat to Romblon, expecting to arrive there Wednesday morning.

The presidential party in Surigao includes Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., and Sen. Pacita Madrigal Gonzalez.

UPON learning late last evening of Sen. Manuel C. Briones' death, President Garcia sent the following message of condolence received at the Malacañang Press Office today from Malaybalay, Bukidnon:

"I am greatly grieved by the death of Senator Manuel C. Briones.

"A brilliant lawyer and jurist, a master parliamentarian and a crusading newspaperman, Senator Briones has truly served his country and people as a model public servant whose dedication to duty is a model for all to emulate.

"I join my countrymen in mourning the passing of a great Filipino."

President's Month in Review: October 1-15, 1957

OFFICIAL MONTH IN REVIEW

October 1.—PRESIDENT Garcia stayed in his cabin the whole morning today. He did not come out for breakfast or lunch but rested following his 7-day gruelling campaign tour of Mindanao during which he covered five provinces and five chartered cities.

The provinces visited were Davao, Cotabato, Zamboanga del Sur, Lanao, and Surigao. The cities where he attended huge public rallies were Davao, Basilan, Zamboanga, Iligan, and Marawi.

The yacht bearing the presidential party for the return trip to Manila pulled out of Surigao, Surigao, about 2 a.m. today after a public rally held on the town plaza. The President decided to take the boat instead of a plane as originally scheduled in his desire to drop by Romblon on invitation of Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno.

The ship cruised slowly in the famous fishing waters around Gigante Island, about 15 miles northeast of Panay, for the President wanted to time his arrival in Romblon for a rally tomorrow morning. If the ship were to sail direct to its destination, it would arrive there around midnight tonight.

On the suggestion of newsmen on board, the ship detoured to the fishing grounds to try their luck at fishing. Although fish abound in the area, no one managed to get a bite.

October 2.—THE PRESIDENT returned to Manila this evening from his nine-day barnstorming tour of Mindanao provinces and Romblon more confident than ever of victory in next month's elections.

"The situation could not be better," the President said as he went down the ramp of the presidential plane Dagohoy shortly after landing at the Nichols Air Base about 7 p.m. "I am even more confident now than after my last trip to those regions."

The President during the entire tour in which he covered eight provinces and five chartered cities was very much impressed by the spontaneous enthusiasm with which the people had received him. In all the places he visited people turned out by the thousands, waited patiently for hours along presidential routes, regardless of the time of day or night, or of inclement weather.

Motoring through Davao and Cotabato late last week, the President often came upon people waiting in towns, barrios, and important road junctions, soaked wet to the skin with only newspapers, handkerchiefs, or banana leaves protecting their heads from the rain. Touched by their eagerness to see him, the President would alight from his car, thank them for their patience, and advise them to go home.

The day-to-day schedule followed by the President during the tour was always disrupted, sometimes by as much as five hours' delay, because of numerous unscheduled stops caused by townspeople who formed human roadblocks and would not budge from the road unless the President got off a few minutes and shook their hands. It is for this reason that the President was often continuously on the road up to 4 a.m. the following day in order to keep up with his schedule. Then after a few hours' sleep, he would get up again and resume his tour.

Members of the presidential party were surprised by the stamina shown by the Chief Executive. Despite tight schedules which required him to be on the road from 8 a.m. up to the early hours of the following morning, he showed no sign of strain or fatigue. He always came out of a one-hour or 30-minute nap looking fresh and rested, and ready for another gruelling day.

The President, in his speeches which he delivered at the rate of from 10 to 15 a day, kept drumming up support for a straight NP ticket. Toward the end of his speeches, he would read off the names of NP candidates, from the President down to the local official congressional standard bearer, and ask the townspeople to give their support as the best means of insuring the continuance of the NP program of improving the lot of the masses.

“The Nacionalista administration has given you roads, artesian wells, irrigation systems, health centers, pre-fabricated school buildings, rural doctors, and nurses,” the President said. “If you want this to continue, vote for a straight Nacionalista ticket. Vote for the government which can count on the faith and confidence of the people.”

Speaking in fluent Visayan which unfailingly went over big with his audiences who enjoyed his picturesque use of the beautiful dialect, the President had strived to explain the various issues which he thought were involved in this year’s national elections. The people, however, told him not to bother explaining the issues and assured him of victory with large majorities in their respective localities.

Plugging for the NP senatorial line-up, the the President said that the candidates had been chosen for their ability to tackle important functions of government. He mentioned Francisco Delgado who, he said, could handle foreign affairs, Eulogio Balao for defense, Oscar Ledesma and Gil Puyat for economics, Jose Locsin for health; Arturo M. Tolentino for education, Cipriano Primicias for justice, and Rofler T. Lim for labor.

Provinces visited during the tour were Davao, Cotabato, Zamboanga del Sur, Lanao, Surigao, and Romblon. The cities where the party held public rallies were Davao, Basilan, Zamboanga, Iligan, and Marawi. Members of the party included Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., vice-presidential candidate; NP senatorial candidates Ledesma, Locsin, and Tolentino; and Sen. Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez.

THE Chief Executive dropped in at Romblon this morning on the return trip to Manila aboard the yacht Sta. Maria. Docking at the wharf in Odiongan, Tablas Island, about 8 a.m., he was met by a large crowd headed by Gov. Manuel Solidum, Odiongan Mayor Francisco Firmalo, and Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno.

After hearing Te Deum at the parish church, the President addressed a big rally held on the town plaza. With Secretary Moreno acting as master of ceremonies, other speakers at the rally included senatorial candidates Lim, Ledesma, and Tolentino.

At 12:30 in the evening, following the rally, the presidential party proceeded by car to Looc, some 25 kilometers on the other side of the island, where they had lunch. At the request of the people, the President addressed another rally there which lasted until 5 p.m. Then he motored on to barrio Tugdan, Alcantara, where he boarded his plane for Manila, arriving at the Nichols Air Base shortly before 7 o’clock this evening.

October 3.—PRESIDENT Garcia today administered the oath of affiliation to former Rep. Mateo Nonato as a member of the Nacionalista Party at the Malacañang ceremonial hall.

Until his affiliation with the Nacionalista Party, Nonato was an independent Liberal Party congressional aspirant for the first district of Iloilo. He pledged to support the candidacy of the President and the entire Nacionalista ticket.

Then the President received Makati Mayor Maximo Estrella, who together with Vice-Mayor Juan Patag, headed a group of officials of that municipality.

Earlier the President had breakfast with American business executives who were touring the Far East. The American business executives included Robert S. Oelman, president and director of the National Cash Register, Dayton, Ohio; Charles Allyn, NCR chairman of the board of directors and chief executive officer; John Scott, NCR chief overseas operations; George Haynes, NCR general manager of the Far Eastern section; and L. B. Nestles, president of the Erlanger and Galing of the Philippines.

After receiving some callers, the President motored to the Senate session hall where he attended the necrological services for the late Senator Manuel C. Briones. He was accompanied by the First Lady.

After the services, the President went to the office of Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., and conferred with NP leaders and senatorial candidates. This conference was a continuation of that held in Malacañang last Wednesday evening which could not be attended by Senate President Rodriguez, who was then indisposed.

The President gave a press conference before going to the Department of Finance building. He gave the first checks representing the full payment of backpay certificates to Mr. and Mrs. Prudencio Trani, public school teachers from Biliran, Leyte, in the presence of Senate President Rodriguez, Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon, and National Treasurer Vicente Gella.

October 4.—FORMER French Premier Antoine Pinay paid a courtesy call this morning on President Garcia at Malacañang. The prominent French visitor is in Manila for a brief stopover before returning to Paris.

Pinay was accompanied to Malacañang by French Ambassador Georges Cattand; R. Arasse, chief of Cabinet; Yves Coffin, second secretary of the local French Embassy; and Jose Estrada, protocol officer of the Department of Foreign Affairs. The visit lasted about 15 minutes.

The President also received Eric P. Appleby, assistant managing director of the J. H. Vavasour and Co., Ltd., who arrived last Wednesday from London in the course of a Far Eastern tour to inspect subsidiaries of his firm. The President was informed of ready market in Europe for Philippine export products.

Appleby will inspect the dessicating mills of the Red V. Coconut Products, a subsidiary of his firm, which is managed by the Smith Bell and Co., Ltd. He was accompanied to Malacañang by F. M. Coe, director of the Smith Bell, J. V. Perez, and P. C. Salazar.

Rafael Ygoa and Daniel Ma. Gomez, vice-president and manager of the Philippine Air lines, respectively, saw the President to protest against an action of the Civil Aeronautics Board granting a temporary permit to the FAST, an airline company, to operate in the Philippines.

PRESIDENT Garcia at the Cabinet meeting today ordered the NARIC to unload its available stocks of Macan ordinario No. 2 to the public at the pegged price of 85 centavos a ganta.

At the same time, the President directed the adoption of more effective and widespread distribution systems of the cereal in order that more people throughout the country could buy it at the authorized prices. The President:

(1) Directed Commerce Secretary Pedro Hernaez to make NAMARCO stores all over the Philippines act as NARIC distributors in addition to the regular NARIC, distribution system;

(2) Designated all provincial and municipal treasurers to act as NARIC rice distributors;

(3) Directed Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas to lend to the NARIC Army trucks to serve as rolling stores to sell NARIC rice in each province, and Navy LSTs to transport rice from the centers of supply to shortage areas; and

(4) Directed Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno to lend also to the NARIC all public works trucks which have been immobilized for public works projects as a result of the 45-day ban on public works construction to serve as additional rolling NARIC rice stores.

It was the consensus of the President and the Cabinet members that a more systematized and streamlined system of rice distribution by the NARIC will solve the difficulties of some people in buying rice at government prices.

The President and the Cabinet spent a long time discussing the solution of rice, distribution. The President had requested NARIC General Manager Vicente Conception to be present at the Cabinet meeting to make an updated report on the rice situation and to help solve the distribution phase of rice.

Concepcion informed the Cabinet that the NARIC had the following available stocks of rice for distribution, good up to the middle of November: native rice, 280,000 cavans or 6,440,000 gantas; and imported rice, 620,000 cavans or 14,260,000 gantas.

This, Concepcion said, gave a total of 900,000 cavans or 20,700,000 gantas of rice available up to mid-November. He said that, with the weekly overall consumption of 180,000 cavans of rice, these stocks would be good up to mid-November. He added that with the arrival of American rice stocks imported by the Philippine Government and as the new harvest would start early November in some sections of the country, the NARIC would be in a stronger position to meet the overall consumption needs of the country after mid-November.

Concepcion said that as of this day 2,000 metric tons of rice were being unloaded from the S. S. Procyon.

The President in discussing the distribution phase of rice with his Cabinet said that he had observed in his various trips to the provinces that in spite of his previous directives that rice be sold by the NARIC at 85 centavos a ganta, and in spite of the approved importation of rice, people complained about the non-availability of NARIC stocks.

Manager Concepcion revealed during the discussion that for the present there were enough rice stocks. However, it was pointed out that the main problem was a more effective and efficient rice distribution so that NARIC rice could be served to as many people as possible throughout the country.

At this juncture, the President ordered that the NARIC should flood the market with its available stocks of rice, especially in places where they were most needed. He said that with the aid of the different government agencies, the problem of distribution could be solved.

Turning to Secretary Hernaez, the President said that the NAMARCO retail stores all over the country should be utilized as NARIC distributors in addition to the regular NARIC distribution outlets.

Hernaez said that he would just be too glad to have all NAMARCO stores extend their distribution facilities. The President also said that NARIC rice could be consigned to municipal treasurers throughout the Philippines who are in strategic positions to distribute the cereal.

With regard to the use of Army trucks and public works trucks to serve as rolling NARIC stores in distributing rice to as many people as possible in the towns and barrios, Gov. Juan Frivaldo of Sorsogon, who happened to be present at the Cabinet meeting, said that he had adopted this system in Sorsogon and that he had found it most effective. He said that, with the use of Army trucks distributing NARIC rice in his province, there was not much rice problem in Sorsogon.

The President directed Manager Concepcion to pay special attention to the distribution of rice to critical areas of the country.

The President also told Concepcion to coordinate with all the other government agencies concerned and to implement his directives immediately.

THE LONG-STANDING problem of small fishermen in Bulacan who have been deprived of pursuing their means of livelihood owing to the construction of illegal dikes preventing them from fishing in certain areas in Bulacan, Bulacan, was solved with the signing by President Garcia at the Cabinet meeting of Proclamation No. 449, reserving for communal fishing grounds certain parcels of public domain of the foreshore fronting Manila Bay along the province of Bulacan.

In connection with the signing of this proclamation, President Garcia formed a committee composed of Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon, Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez, Sen. Francisco Rodrigo, and Lands Director Zoilo Castrillo to proceed to the town of Bulacan, Bulacan, and inform the officials concerned and the parties affected, of the signing by the President of the proclamation.

The presidential proclamation has prepared the ground for the destruction of illegally constructed dikes in Bulacan, Bulacan, to be done in accordance with existing laws and regulations.

This problem of illegally constructed dikes in Bulacan, which has caused great injury to small fishermen who cannot go out and fish because of the obstruction due to the illegally constructed dikes, has been studied by the government for a long time.

The late President Magsaysay had inspected the place aboard a motor-boat and saw for himself these illegally constructed dikes. He was determined to have these dikes removed but, before doing so, the matter had to be thoroughly investigated by Malacañang and officials of the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

The presidential proclamation is believed to be the final step in arriving at a solution to remove the illegally constructed dikes, in accordance with the law and regulations, to enable the aggrieved fishermen to continue with their means of livelihood.

THE PRESIDENT and the Cabinet took a further step to help Filipino retailers by approving the release of an additional ₱5 million from the general fund.

The release of this amount was the third installment out of the ₱20 million authorized in Republic Act 1292, which aims to encourage Filipino retailers.

It is recalled that the sum of ₱10 million was already released from the general fund for this purpose.

In a previous Cabinet meeting, it had been decided that further releases for this purpose might be made from time to time as the need arose until the entire ₱20 million authorized in the Act would have been fully covered.

THE CABINET authorized during its meeting today:

(1) Dominador Z. Rusell, administrator of the irrigation service unit of the Department of Public Works and Communications, to go abroad to study modern trends and techniques in irrigation management and administration, for a period of about three or four months starting from October this year;

(2) Herminio R. Rabanal to accept a fellowship in fish culture in fresh water ponds granted him by the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation of New York;

(5) Ambassador Salvador P. Lopez to represent the Philippines in the forthcoming meeting of governmental experts called to discuss the application of UNESCO agreement on the importation of educational, scientific, and cultural materials which will be held at the Palais des Nations in Geneva, Switzerland, from October 21 to 25, 1957.

President Garcia presided over the Cabinet meeting which was held at the Council of State room from 11:45 a.m. to 2:15 p.m.

DURING the Cabinet meeting President Garcia signed Proclamation No. 448, declaring Wednesday, October 16, 1957, as special public holiday throughout the Philippines, on the occasion of the Golden Jubilee celebration of the creation of the Philippine Assembly.

The signing of the proclamation was recommended to the President by the Philippine Historical Association, headed by Professor Gabriel Fabella. Former President Sergio Osmeña, who was the first Speaker of the Philippine Assembly, also strongly endorsed the signing of the proclamation by President Garcia.

October 5.— THIS morning President and Mrs. Garcia motored to the Sto. Domingo Church in Quezon City, where they attended the celebration of the golden jubilee of the coronation of the statue of Our Lady of the Rosary of La Naval.

Arriving at the church at 7:05 a.m., the President was greeted by the Catholic hierarchy, including Papal Nuncio Egidio Vagnozzi, Manila Archbishop Rufino J. Santos, and Cebu Archbishop Julio Rosales.

The pontifical high mass which climaxed the celebration was said by Papal Nuncio Vagnozzi. Mons. Rosales delivered the sermon. The mass lasted about two hours.

After the mass, the President motored to his "hideout" where he studied state papers needing his immediate action.

In the evening the President awarded prizes to the winners of the "1956 Outstanding Journalism Awards" at the National Press Club building.

THIS AFTERNOON President Garcia accepted the credentials of Ambassador Pir Ali Muhammad Rashdi of Pakistan in the presentation ceremony held at Malacañang.

The ceremony marked the elevation of the Pakistani legation in Manila into an embassy and the growing importance which the Pakistani Government regards its diplomatic listening post in this country. The new Pakistani ambassador succeeds Minister Choudri Khaliqzaman, who returned to the home office some ten months ago.

Present at the ceremony were Foreign Affairs Secretary Felisberto Serrano, Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas, Education Secretary Manuel Lim, Acting Administrator Juan Concon of the Office of Economic Coordination, Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, Commissioner Madki Alonto of Integration, Counsellor Juan Arreglado of the Department of Foreign Affairs, Malacañang protocol Officer Manuel G. Zamora, Foreign Office Chief of Protocol Jose Estrada, and S. M. Hussein, first secretary of the local Pakistani embassy.

Following the ceremony, the President and the Pakistani Ambassador exchanged toasts for the continued friendly relations of their two countries. They drank apple cider instead of the usual ceremonial champagne for the toast, today being registration day.

The presentation rites started promptly at 5 p.m. It lasted about 15 minutes. The ambassador was met in front of the Palace by a unit of the Presidential Guards Battalion which served as a guard of honor.

Ambassador Pir Ali Muhammad Rashdi, 42 years of age, is a member of the National Assembly of Pakistan. He was formerly Minister for Revenue, Medical and Public Health, and Information in the former government of Sind. He was also editor of an English daily, Sind Observer, in Karachi and president of the Pakistan press delegation to India in 1950. He was elected president of the Joint Indo-Pakistan Press Committee.

The Pakistan ambassador's counterpart in Karachi is Ambassador Manuel Alzate, who was recently assigned there with the elevation of the Philippine legation in Pakistan to an embassy. Ambassador Alzate will succeed Eutiquio O. Sta. Romana, charge d'affaires of the Philippine legation there.

FOLLOWING the ceremony, the President repaired to his study where he appeared before TV cameras of the USIS as he delivered a message to the Sixth National Convention of the UNESCO to be held in San Francisco, California, U.S.A. next month. The TV record taken under the direction of Cullen Landis, USIS motion picture officer in Manila, would be broadcast on a nationwide hookup in the United States at the opening day of the convention.

PRESIDENT Garcia granted another 30-day reprieve to prisoner Crispin Verzo, to expire on November 5, 1957, Malacañang announced today.

Verzo, who had been convicted of multiple murder and damage to property and sentenced to suffer death penalty, had previously been granted a presidential reprieve which expires on Sunday, October 6, 1957.

In his order the President said that some time was considered still necessary for a thorough and careful study of the merits of the petitions for executive clemency filed in behalf of the doomed prisoner.

October 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning was given a rousing welcome in Lucena, Quezon, where he flew with Speaker Laurel and six NP senatorial aspirants. He was met at the airport by Gov. Leon Guinto, Rep. Manuel Enverga, and some thirty mayors.

Immediately after arrival at 8:35 a.m., the President proceeded to the San Fernando church in Lucena, where the party heard mass. At the church, senatorial candidates Eulogio Balao and Francisco Delgado joined the presidential party.

After the mass, the President headed a long motorcade which travelled 27 kilometers to Lucban. Along the way, barrio folks stood cherring along the roadside as the presidential car passed by. A Te Deum was said upon arrival of the presidential party at Lucban.

The rally at Lucban marked the beginning of a series of mammoth rallies in the towns of Tayabas, Sariaya, Pagbilao, and Lucena.

At all rallies the President answered critics who charged that nothing was being done to arrest the spiralling price of rice, saying that the price of Macan had been pegged at ₱.85 a ganta as ordered by the Cabinet in a recent meeting. He said anybody could compel NARIG agencies everywhere to dispose of Macan at that price.

The President pointed out that only the price of rice and very few other items had gone up. The present administration was responsible in bringing down prices of many items, from textiles to machinery, which remained high during the Liberal Party administration, he said.

The President also defended the Garcia-Ohno agreement, saying that the agreement was much better than what was submitted to Congress for ratification by the Liberals during their administration. He said the Garcia-Ohno agreement contained plausible provisions about reparations for the country from Japan.

It was the consensus of political leaders here that President Garcia would win in Quezon province this coming elections.

At Tayabas town, Brig. Gen. Juan Relosa, 2nd MA commanding general, brought before the President 18 surrendered Huks, including three Amazons. The President told the surrenderees that if they turned out to be good citizens, the Government would help them rehabilitate themselves.

October 7.—THE PRESIDENT stayed up until 3 o'clock this morning in Lucena, Quezon, conferring with local officials following the public rally held in that town which lasted until 2 a.m.

After a brief rest and breakfast at the Lucena residence of Gov. Leon Guinto, the President boarded his plane about 7 a.m. at the Lucena airport for the return trip to Manila, arriving here about 8:20 a.m.

The Chief Executive did not receive any caller at Malacañang this morning. He spent his time working over state papers in his desire to clear his desk prior to his departure for a nine-day campaign tour of Northern Luzon early tomorrow morning.

PRESIDENT Garcia this evening received NARIC Chairman Juan O. Chioco, who has just returned from Bangkok (Thailand), Saigon (Vietnam), and Cambodia where he negotiated the importation into the Philippines of 30,300 tons of rice.

Chioco informed the President that his negotiations had gone very well and that the first shipment of 4,500 tons of rice was now being unloaded at the piers.

The President also received this evening a delegation composed of Garcia-Laurel crusade coordinators from all over the country who called at Malacañang to pay their respects.

October 8.—PRESIDENT Garcia counselled the people of the Cagayan Valley to plant cotton and turn their region into one of the pillars of the nation's cotton industry.

In public rallies held in various towns of Isabela today, the President said that the country's textile industry was hampered by lack of raw materials. He said that the Philippines used to import ₱300 million worth of textiles but after 3 1/2 years of the Nacionalista administration which had encouraged cotton planting, the importation had been reduced to about ₱200 million.

The President said that one of his ambitions was to make the country self-sufficient in cotton. He assured the people that, if elected, he would take steps to start the people in the Cagayan Valley to plant cotton.

The President said that the Nacionalista administration under the late President Magsaysay was committed to extend the Manila Railroad line to the Cagayan Valley and that initial steps had already been taken toward this direction. He enjoined the people to vote straight Nacionalista as the best means of insuring the fulfillment of this commitment.

The Chief Executive was cheered heartily when he announced he had ordered the ACCFA to purchase all tobacco raised in the region with price support.

The President devoted the major portion of his speeches to enumerating the accomplishments during the 3 1/2 years of NP administration, citing among other things the construction of 5,600 kilometers of feeder roads, additional provincial and national highways, 3,000 pre-fabricated school buildings, irrigation systems, health centers, 8,000 artesian wells, and other projects for rural improvement.

He added: "If you want all these continued, retain in power the Nacionalista Party which will carry on its program designed to promote the welfare, happiness, and contentment of our people."

The President spoke in nine public rallies today held in the towns of Cauayan, Alicia, Echague, Santiago, Cabatuan, Roxas, Tumauni, Cabagan, and Ilagan, all in Isabela. He was introduced by Isabela Gov. Felix Caro, who accompanied him throughout the province. Other speakers included Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., vice-presidential candidate, and senatorial candidates Eulogio Balao, Cipriano Primicias, Jose Locsin, and Francisco Delgado, who arrived here with the presidential party.

This noon the President inaugurated the ₱14.5 million irrigation project in barrio Magat of San Mateo which will serve some 46,000 hectares of rice lands situated in six towns; namely, Alicia, Angadanan, Cabatuan, Echague, San Mateo, and Santiago.

The President landed at the Cauayan airport at 8:30 a.m. aboard the PAF plane Dagohoy following more than an hour's trip from Manila. On hand at the airport to give him a rousing welcome were delegations from Isabela and nearby provinces headed by Govs. Care and Jose Espino of Nueva Vizcaya, Rep. Delfin Albano, and mayors and councilors.

On coming down the plane's ramp, the President was promptly carried on the shoulders of his enthusiastic admirers. After acknowledging raffles and nourishes offered by an honor guard and after mounting the platform to thank the people for the warm reception accorded him and his party, the President started his long tour which took him through some 200 kilometers of dirt road around the province.

The President told the people that the Nacionalista Party would garner from 70 to 80 per cent of the votes in the Visayas and Mindanao. He urged the people of the North to join the general enthusiasm to continue the Nacionalista administration.

Political observers in Isabela say President Garcia has the edge in the province.

The presidential party, which included Sen. Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez, went to Isabela by a chartered PAL plane.

THE President today directed Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon to alert government relief agencies in extending relief to the fire victims of Caibiran, Leyte.

The Executive Secretary told the Social Welfare Administration, the NARIC, the Philippine National Red Cross, the Department of Health, and the Armed Forces to give immediate help to the fire victims.

The President learned of the Leyte fire when he was in Ilagan, Isabela. The news was flashed to him by the Malacañang Press Office.

October 9.— PRESIDENT Garcia today indicted the Liberal Party for having blocked the country's progress through a reign of graft, corruption, coercion, fraud, and threat in a speech delivered before a huge cheering crowd in Tuguegarao, Cagayan.

The President blamed the Liberals for having failed to solve peace and order, particularly the Huk uprising; for bringing about the people's loss of faith and confidence in the government through frauds, coercion, and threats; and for blocking progress because of graft and corruption.

The President told thousands of cheering Cagayan people who welcomed him that the Nacionalista ticket would get an overwhelming victory in Cagayan. He enumerated the Nacionalista Party accomplishments against the Liberal Party failures, saying that where the LP had failed miserably, the NP succeeded completely.

The President spoke first in the Tuguegarao rally after being introduced by town Mayor Francisco Gosiengfiao. After delivering his speech, the President had lunch at the house of Ex-Gov. Jose Carag and then proceeded to Maguiling, where he delivered another speech in a rally. The President crossed the Cagayan River by ferry in going to Maguiling.

The President arrived at 10:15 a.m. in Tuguegarao from Isabela. He was met by a calesa parade and brass bands. The calesas were decorated with ribbons and posters pledging the province to the President in the elections. Upon nearing Tuguegarao, the President alighted from his car and boarded a calesa with senatorial candidate Eulogio Balao, Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez, and Ex-Gov. Jose P. Carag. Following behind, also in calesas, were Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., vice-presidential candidate, and other government officials. Hundreds of people followed in calesas and on foot.

Along the way the President's calesa was surrounded by many people who wanted to shake hands with him. He extended his hands to everybody who managed to get near him. The calesa parade stopped in front of the Cagayan cathedral. Then the presidential party proceeded to the plaza nearby where a rally was held. On his way to the platform, the President was mobbed by the pressing crowd and the cuffs of his barong tagalog were almost torn away.

The President was able to take a short nap about 4:30 this morning after the rally in Cabagan, Isabela, which was finished at about daybreak. Waking up about 8 a.m., the President had breakfast at the house of Rep. Delfin Albano. Then he boarded his car for Tuguegarao, 40 miles away.

The President proceeded to Aparri by car late this afternoon for a rally this evening.

UPON instructions of President Garcia, the Bureau of Agricultural Extension started conducting today field demonstrations of the Margate rice planting system before farmers at Baliuag, Bulacan.

The President gave the order as a part of the Administration's efforts to increase rice production and make the country self-sufficient in rice.

Under the personal supervision of Marcelo Margate, who after twelve years has perfected the system, the four-day training course which started last October 7 was attended by farmers from Nueva Vizcaya, Nueva Ecija, Pangasinan, Batangas, Cavite, and Pampanga. The next group will start training on October 14.

Other instructors included Rufino Isidro, Ambrosio Lontok, Manuel Velarde, Jose B. Santos, Isabelo Erasmo, Juan Concepcion, and Clemente Yangc. The course covered from pest control to the actual rice planting by applying the Margate system.

In line with the Administration's efforts to make the country self-sufficient in rice, President Garcia is giving his support to the plan of intensifying the propagation of the Margate system throughout the country.

The President said in his directive that "only with the national use of a superior system or method of rice culture can this nation increase its production, and, thereby, obviate the dollar-draining importation of foreign-grown rice."

It is believed that, with the extensive application of the system in existing ricefields throughout the country, the importation of rice will greatly diminish and stop in due time. This is due to the fact that, by the use of the Margate system, the yield per hectare will increase to 100 to 150 cavans of palay at a minimum cost of production.

October 10.— PRESIDENT Garcia today promised the people of Ilocandia that he would initiate the enactment of a law providing for price support for locally produced garlic if the Nacionalista administration continues in power.

In public rallies held in several towns of Ilocos Norte today, President Garcia also said he would see to it that different grades of tobacco be properly classified in order to give incentive to produce high grade tobacco. Accompanied by former Gov. Damaso Samonte, Dr. Rizal Peralta, and local officials, President Garcia spoke at rallies in Dingras, Bacarra, and tonight at Laoag. President Garcia in speeches sought to refute what he called unfair charges hurled by his critics. He belied charges that the NP administration imported 1,000 metric tons of garlic to the prejudice of Ilocano growers, saying that although the Cabinet had approved such importation, only 500 tons were actually imported out of which only 100 tons were distributed not to consumers but as seedlings. The President recalled that the garlic importation was authorized through the recommendation of the then NAMARCO Manager Dindo Gonzalez to avoid expected deficiency and price increase of the commodity. According to him, NAMARCO lost through the deal, because the importation was never sold to the public in order to protect garlic growers.

President Garcia laughed off talks spread by detractors who claimed he was running for President to advance his financial interest. He said that had he used his power for personal advantage during the 32 years he had been in public service, he would now have an hacienda bigger than Canlubang.

"My record as a public servant is clean and I intend to keep it that way," he said. "I am running because I would like to carry out the program of the NP aimed at improving the lot of the common people, especially those in rural areas."

The President slept about 2 a.m. at the puericulture center in Aparri after the rally held in the town's market place. He arrived at Aparri about midnight and found a large crowd waiting for him despite the rain.

Before boarding the plane for Laoag, President Garcia officiated at a tree planting ceremony held in front of the Aparri municipal hall. Among those who bade him goodbye at the airport were two school children who handed him an envelope containing five- and ten-centavo coins, as their contribution to the NP campaign fund. The children were Hedy Hontiveros and Estelita Adolfo, Grade VI, Punta Community School.

Landing at the Gabu airport in Laoag about 10: 00 a.m., President Garcia again was met by enthusiastic admirers who carried him and Speaker Laurel on their shoulders. The presidential plane Dagohoy carried only six passengers, including the President, as the Aparri airport was flooded and take off was risky. President Garcia did not want to return to Tuguegarao, more than hundred kilometers away, because it would set back his schedule by almost one day.

From the airport President Garcia proceeded to the Laoag church where he heard a Te Deum. Then he motored to Dingras where he had lunch at the residence of Dr. Peralta. There the President received a Katokong, favorite headgear of the Ilocano farmer, made of dried upo skin, from Aquilino Menor, barrio lieutenant of Alabaan, Dingras. Then he held a rally which lasted until five p.m.

October 11.—PRESIDENT Garcia today assured the people of Ilocos Norte and Ilocos Sur that if they would vote Nacionalista they would be voting for good and progressive government, citing the accomplishments of the Nacionalista administration.

The President delivered nine speeches from Batac, Ilocos Norte, to Vigan, Ilocos Sur. He reiterated that government aid would be given to the Ilocos provinces for the planting of tobacco, onion, and garlic. He spoke at the laying of the cornerstone of the Ilocos Norte School of Arts and Trades in Laoag where he was assisted by Education Secretary Manuel Lim, Mayor Vicente Hernando of San Nicolas, Ex-Gov. Damaso Samonte, and others.

Other speeches which the President delivered were in Batac and Paoay, Ilocos Norte, and Sinait, Lapog, Cabugao, Magsingal, Sto. Domingo, and Vigan in Ilocos Sur. In Cabugao the President laid the cornerstone of the new municipal building costing about ₱85,000.

The President inducted into the NP fold former Liberal leaders in Magsingal, including Ex-Mayor Policarpio Jurado, Councilor Angel Cortez, and barrio lieutenants headed by Pedro Jurado and Nemesio Cortez. The mass induction was held at the public plaza of Magsingal where a rally was held.

THE PRESIDENT left Laoag for a whistle-stop campaign through Ilocos Sur, at 9 a.m. and was met at the boundary of Ilocos Norte and Ilocos Sur by government officials. Large crowds attended all nine public rallies held by the President. In Vigan a huge crowd waited for the President to arrive.

In speeches at the laying of the cornerstone of the Ilocos Norte School of Arts and Trades, the President counselled young boys and girls to take up vocational education to better prepare them in the future.

The President will swing to other towns of Ilocos Sur before proceeding to La Union tomorrow.

THE PRESIDENT congratulated the first batch of farmer-trainee graduates of the Margate rice planting seminar on the occasion of their receiving their certificates this day.

The President's greetings was transmitted to the graduates by Domingo Paguirigan, Bureau of Agricultural Extension director; who rushed from Cagayan where he had met with the President. Paguirigan arrived in time to attend the graduation of the farmer-trainees which was held at the Boy Scouts headquarters at the Ealiuag Elementary School, in Baliuag, Bulacan.

In his message to the graduates the President said that he was following up with great interest the progress of their seminar held during the past four days.

The President expressed the wish that the farmers taking the course would cooperate in propagating the Margate system, because "only with the national use of superior system or method of rice culture can this nation increase its production and thereby obviate the dollar-draining importation of rice."

The training course was conducted upon instructions of President Garcia by way of implementing the Administration's program to increase rice production and make the country self-sufficient in rice.

October 12.—THE PRESIDENT was deeply touched by the colorful and enthusiastic receptions accorded him and members of his party on the resumption of his tour of Ilocos Sur today.

On hearing assurances of mayors and other local officials that he would win not only in their respective municipalities but also in the whole province, and on seeing spontaneous show of affection by the cheering throngs which received him in towns and principal barrios, the President said: "This is beyond all my expectations. I will remember this as long as I live."

The President lauded the traditional hospitality of the Ilocanos. He expressed the hope that the warmth of the receptions was an indication of the outcome of the elections in this province heretofore generally regarded as opposition bailiwick.

"I know that the Ilocanos are realistic and practical people. I know they will vote for the Nacionalista Party, which is giving them feeder roads, artesian wells, health centers, irrigation systems, and pre-fabricated school buildings."

THE PRESIDENT today delivered 14 speeches in the course of his southward motor tour of Ilocandia. Rallies were held in Bantay, Santa, Narvacan, Santa Maria, San Esteban, Santiago, Candon, Santa Lucia, Santa Cruz, and Tagudin, all of Ilocos Sur; and in Balaoan, Bacnotan, San Juan, San Fernando, and Agoo, La Union. He was accompanied in his tour of Ilocos Sur by Faustino Tobia and Dr. Godofredo Reyes, NP congressional candidates in Ilocos Sur, and former Gov. Perfecto Faypon, chairman of the NP chapter of Ilocos Sur.

The President retired at 4:30 a.m. after a huge rally on the plaza of Vigan. After a few hours of rest and breakfast at the home of Faypon, he addressed some 2,000 public and private school teachers gathered at the Colegio Imaculada Concepcion auditorium. Then he visited Mons. Santiago Sancho and Mons. Juan Sison, archbishop and auxiliary archbishop of Nueva Segovia, respectively.

Newsmen with the presidential party were accommodated at the Tanos Hotel in Vigan which donated its facilities to them during the President's stay in the town.

The President left Vigan about 10 a.m. to resume his long tour southward.

Reaching Santa about 10:30 a.m., the President heard a Te Deum. The presidential party included Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., vice-presidential candidate; senatorial candidates Jose Locsin, Cipriano Primicias, Eulogio Balao, and Francisco Delgado; Sens. Alejo Mabanag and Pacita Madrigal Gonzalez; and Roberto Oca, labor leader.

The most colorful reception in today's tour was in Narvacan where the President stopped at the outskirts of the town, from where he proceeded on foot at the head of a long parade, sheltered from the heat of the noonday sun by a canopy lavishly decorated with roses and borne by a bevy of town beauties in Balintawak dresses.

The President in his speeches expressed admiration for the courage of the Ilocanos to cross party lines and vote Nacionalista for the good of their towns. He assured them that their courage would be repaid in the form of public improvements.

The President held rallies on public plazas. When it rained, he addressed crowds in cockpits and market places.

Speaker Laurel, who meanwhile made a sidetrip to Abra to address a rally in Bangued, informed the President when he rejoined the party at Santa Maria this morning that Gov. Jose Valera and Rep. Lucas Paredes were both endorsing a straight NP ticket.

PRESIDENT Garcia wired today the following message of sympathy to Ambassador and Mrs. Carlos P. Romulo on the death in an airplane crash of their son Carlos, Jr.:

"MRS. GARCIA JOINS ME IN EXTENDING TO YOU AND MRS. ROMULO OUR DEEPEST SYMPATHIES ON THE TRAGIC DEATH OF JUNIOR. BELIEVE US WE WERE DEEPLY SHOCKED TO HEAR OF THE SAD NEWS. IF I THERE IS ANYTHING I CAN DO PLEASE LET ME KNOW. KINDEST REGARDS.

“PRESIDENT GARCIA”

October 13.—BAGUIO City was assured by President Garcia today that if re-elected he would continue prosecuting price support for tobacco. He also pledged to support a bill making the mayor and other officials of Baguio elective.

The President informed the crowd that he had wired the NARIC to allow the people of Mt. Province to buy rice from Baguio NARIC stores. He was informed by Baguio officials that only Baguio residents were allowed to buy NARIC rice.

Denying the claim of the opposition that the Administration was not able to keep rice prices low, the President said that the price of Macan rice has been fixed at ₱.85 a ganta and that every NARIC store in the country was selling this rice at such price. The President also promised that, if given four years more, he would continue the policy of giving protection to new industries and agricultural crops. He emphasized that the prohibition of the importation of Virginia tobacco and the ACCFA price support for locally planted Virginia leaf were the accomplishments of the Nacionalista administration.

The President said the NP administration was truly looking after the welfare of the common people. Citing the accomplishments of the NP administration in about three years against the eight-year LP regime, the President told his audience that, if they wanted progress and continuous good government, they should vote for the Nacionalista Party.

A big crowd attended the rally at Baguio's public plaza in spite of the inclement weather. Among the speakers was Manila Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson, who explained why he was for President Garcia. At the same time Lacson hit the Liberals. Also on the platform was former Labor Secretary Primitivo Lovina.

The President motored to the rally held on the public plaza after hearing mass at the Baguio cathedral with his running mate, Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., Mayor Alfonso Tabora, Sen. Francisco Delgado, and Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon. Before hearing mass, the President met callers at the Guest House, where he arrived at three o'clock this morning from San Fernando, La Union. He ate breakfast at the Guest House.

Mayor Lacson, who was called by the President to Baguio, conferred with the Chief Executive before breakfast. After the conference, Lacson announced he would campaign actively for the President and the entire NP ticket in Negros, Panay, and the Tagalog provinces. He said his first trip would be to Negros and Panay.

Meanwhile the President denied having mentioned any particular party or group as the source of an assassination plot. He reiterated that his statement was that the plot was a desperate attempt by the opposition, if true, to stave off NP victory in the November polls.

After the rally this noon, the President rested at the Guest House for tomorrow's grueling two-day campaign in Pangasinan, where he is scheduled to speak in about 30 towns.

Otcober 14.—PRESIDENT Garcia said today that the victory of the Nacionalista Party in the November elections was inevitable.

He urged the people of Pangasinan to vote for the winning team and share in the fruits of victory in the form of continued public works improvements.

In speeches delivered in about 20 rallies in different towns and principal barrios, the President explained that about 90 per cent of senators, representatives, governors, and mayors belonged to the Nacionalista Party and were campaigning actively for its victory all over the country.

“I do not see how we can lose. So vote for the winning side,” the President said.

The President covered more than 300 kilometers by car today in his tour of Pangasinan towns. Coming from Baguio about 9 a.m., the President first spoke at Rosario, La Union, and then in Sison, Pozorrubio, Binalonan, Urdaneta, Villasis, Rosales, Balungao, Umingan, San Quintin, Tayug, Santa Maria, Sto. Tomas, Alcala, Bautista, Bayambang, Malasiqui, Sta. Barbara, Calasiao, and at some big barrios along the route.

The President in plugging for a straight Nacionalista ticket, endorsed the candidacies of local NP congressional candidates, namely: Aguedo Agbayani, for the first district; Teofilo Guadiz, second district; Cipriano Primicias, Jr., third district; Ramon Saura, fourth district; and Luciano Millan, fifth district.

Gov. Conrado F. Estrella, who accompanied President Garcia around the province, predicted that the President would win in Pangasinan with no less than 100,000 majority. He said that the people had not lost their confidence in the NP administration and that they were looking up to President Garcia to carry out the NP policy of helping the masses, particularly those in the rural areas.

Also with the party were the President's running mate, Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr.; senatorial candidates Cipriano P. Primicias, Jose Locsin, Francisco Delgado, and Eulogio Balao; Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez; Gov. Arsenio Lugay and Rep. Constancio Castafieda of Tarlac; Gov. Bernardo Gapuz of La Union; and Board Members Nancy Q. Sison and Dolores Acuña of Pangasinan.

The President was warmly received in all the towns he visited. Thousands of people waited for him in towns and barrios; they lined up along the presidential route to catch a glimpse of the Chief Executive.

The President had lunch at 4 p.m. in the residence of Mayor Demetrio Belisario of Umingan. He will sleep at the provincial governor's residence in Lingayen, where the party expects to arrive not earlier than midnight.

MALACAÑANG declared today that President Garcia has always stood firm on his strong anti-Communist policy and will relentlessly pursue it without giving any quarters to the enemy.

This was the policy of the late President Magsaysay and President Garcia is implementing it as vigorously as before.

This statement was issued following Liberal Party charges that President Garcia's administration was back-tracking on the Government's anti-Communist policy. These charges were based on false assumptions by the Liberals regarding alleged release of Chinese Communists found guilty of subversive activities. The charges are absolutely fantastic and contrary to fact.

A Malacañang spokesman today released the following facts about disposition of Chinese Communists in the Philippines found guilty of subversion. These facts have been confirmed by Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas, Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, Armed Forces chief of staff, and Brig. Gen. Pelagio Cruz, NICA Chief.

The facts are as follows:

(1) Yu Dy alias Yu Lau and Dy Te alias Tea were ordered released by the Deportation Board on December 29, 1956, for insufficiency of evidence.

(2) Lao Kiat was bailed on July 27, 1955, before the promulgation of the order finding him guilty and ordering him deported. Lao jumped bail when ordered arrested to hear his sentence. He is still at large.

(3) Kao Chian was deported on July 26, 1957.

(4) Nine are still detained as of now in the Immigration Detention cell.

(5) Ninety-seven are still out on bail awaiting resumption of trial since 1954.

October 15.—THE PRESIDENT inaugurated a ₱1,200,000 irrigation system in barrio Dumoloc, Bugallon, Pangasinan, in the course of the resumption of his campaign tour of Pangasinan towns today.

In turning the valve which sent tons of water cascading for the first time down the dam into a main canal of the system, the President told hundreds of grateful farmers gathered to witness the ceremony that the project was one of the many irrigation dams being built by the Nacionalista administration during the last three and a half years, as part of a long-range program to increase production and eventually attain self-sufficiency in rice and other much needed crops.

The President said that according to foreign experts who had come to study agricultural conditions here, rice culture in the Philippines was far superior to those of many countries and that there seemed to be no reason why this country could not produce this staple commodity in sufficient quantities to fill local needs.

Designed to service some 2,500 hectares of agricultural land and benefit about 1,000 farmer families in Bugallon, the new irrigation system will bring about an increase of production in the amount of 68,500 cavans of palay with an estimated cost of ₱680,500 annually. It will eliminate entirely the recurrence of droughts which has brought misery to the farmers of the town for many years.

President Garcia retired at exactly 5 a.m. today, following a series of public rallies held in no less than 20 towns of Pangasinan yesterday up to early this morning. The President was surprised to find people waiting for him along the roads even at very late hours. He stopped in places where large congregations gathered and requested a few words from him.

After a brief rest at the Princess Urduja building, residence of the provincial governor in Lingayen, the President again boarded his car and resumed the stump of Pangasinan towns.

The Chief Executive heard a Te Deum in Lingayen. Entering the church about 9:15 a.m., he was escorted under a canopy borne by Gov. Conrado F. Estrella of Pangasinan, Baguio City Mayor Alfonso Tabora, Judge Eloy Bello, Provincial Fiscal Bartolome Arboleda, congressional candidate Aguedo Agba-yani, Dean Porfirio V. Sison, and Benjamin Guiang.

The President addressed an impromptu youth rally at the Pangasinan School of Arts and Trades auditorium, where he said that the Administration had always been concerned with the development of the youth for better citizenry. He added that the Nacionalista Party would continue to do so if retained in power in next month's elections.

After the rally, the President started another tight schedule which again required him to be on the road until the early hours of the following morning. He held rallies in Bugallon, Labrador, Sual, Alaminos, Bani, Lingayen, Binmaley, Dagupan City, Mangaldan, San Fabian, Manaoag, and San Carlos.

October 16.—UPON learning of reports that Liberal Party leaders had demanded Mrs. Villamor's immediate resignation as head of the Social Welfare Administration, President Garcia today said: "I have full confidence in Social Welfare Administrator Amparo P. Villamor. The demand for her resignation is motivated by political prejudice."

The LP team made this demand as it drove to Naga City on the second day of its campaign tour of the Bicol provinces.

PRESIDENT Garcia this afternoon delivered the principal address at the Manila Hotel at a luncheon given by the Philippine Historical Association in commemoration of the Golden Anniversary of the Philippine Assembly.

The President arrived at exactly 12:30 p.m. at the Manila Hotel, where he was met by officials of the PHA headed by its president, Prof. Gabriel F. Fabella.

In the course of the after luncheon program the President was made honorary president of the PHA and was presented a plaque by Prof. Fabella. Then the President inducted the officials of the association.

Other speakers after the luncheon were Sen. Jose P. Laurel, Sr., who spoke for his son, Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., who could not attend the luncheon, and Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr. Former Speaker Sergio Osmeña delivered a brief response.

Prof. Vicente Albano Pacis acted as master of ceremonies while Prof. Jorge L. Revilla made the opening remarks.

The President's speech which was delivered from 2:40 p.m. to 3:03 p.m. was well received by the audience. (See Historical Papers and Documents, pp. 7215-7223, for the full text of the President's speech.)

FROM the Manila Hotel, the First Lady joined the President and they together motored to the Romulo home in Forbes Park to condole with Ambassador and Mrs. Carlos P. Romulo on the death of their son, Carlos, Jr., who had been inferred earlier this morning.

The President, who returned to Malacañang this morning from a stumping tour of Northern Luzon, did not arrive on time to attend the funeral.

The President had a bedside conversation with Ambassador Romulo, who was still under sedatives. President and Mrs. Garcia were accompanied by Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison.

From the residence of the Romulos, the President and Mrs. Garcia proceeded to Malacañang, where the Chief Executive viewed the demonstration of the NARIC mobile corn mill which showed how corn grains were ground into "rice".

THE PRESIDENT late this afternoon administered the oath of affiliation as members of the Nacionalista Party to two prominent LP leaders from Quezon province and Manila.

Maj. Godofredo Magallanes of Quezon province and Tim Evangelista of Manila assured President Garcia after their oath-taking of their active support in the presidential campaign.

The President earlier also inducted Francisco Offemaria as acting member of the Veterans Claims Commission.

After viewing the mobile corn mill of the NARIC at the Malacañang grounds, the President went to the Palace porch to partake of a merienda on the occasion of the birthday of his daughter, Mrs. Linda Garcia-Campos. Present at the affairs were relatives and friends of the family.

Then the President received Gov. Alejandro Almendras of Davao and Sen. Domocao Alonto with whom he discussed political matters.

PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia this evening honored Ex-President and Mrs. Sergio Osmeña, Sr., with an informal dinner at the Malacañang state dining hall.

The occasion was the 50th anniversary celebration of the Philippine Assembly of which Osmeña was the first Speaker.

October 17.—PRESIDENT Garcia stated today in well attended public rallies in different towns of the home province of the late President Magsaysay that a Nacionalista landslide victory in the coming elections was inevitable.

Exuding confidence, the President said he based his prediction on the number of NP national, provincial, and municipal elective officials, saying that the NP had 90 per cent of senators, governors, and city and municipal mayors actively campaigning for NP victory all over the country. He appealed to the people to ratify their confidence in the NP, the party of the people, so that it could implement the policies and plans of the late President Magsaysay.

He said “It is my duty to bring to reality the plans of Magsaysay,” and promised to continue working for the uplift of the masses. He also summed up the accomplishments of the NP, specifically mentioning the construction of feeder roads, artesian wells, re-fabricated schoolhouses, and irrigation systems throughout the country.

In the rallies he endorsed NP official candidates, including Genaro Magsaysay, brother of the late President, for congressman in the lone district of Zambales.

The President arrived at the Iba airport at 8:40 a.m. today and was mobbed by a big crowd which included Don Exequiel and Mrs. Perfecta Magsaysay, parents of the late President, Gov. Manuel Barretto, Genaro Magsaysay, and Rep. Enrique Corpus, NP rebel candidate for congressman. From the airport the President proceeded to Iba, where, together with Don Exequiel, Doña Perfecta, and Genaro, he heard a Te Deum at the Catholic church.

In the rallies Genaro extolled the record of President Garcia in his 32 years of public service and assured Zambaleños that President Garcia would carry on the good work started by his late brother. Rep. Corpus, who also spoke in several rallies, said that Zambales was united with respect to the presidential and senatorial fights and would vote straight Nacionalista.

Gov. Barretto and Genaro assured the President of his overwhelming victory in this Nacionalista bailiwick. The President ate luncheon at the Governor’s residence at barrio Maloma in San Felipe and merienda at the Magsaysay residence in barrio Esaring, Castillejos.

The President and NP senatorial candidates Oscar Ledesma, Roseller Lim, Jose Locsin, and Arturo Tolentino spoke in rallies at Iba, Botolan, Cabangan, San Felipe, San Narciso, San Antonio, San Marcelino, Castillejos, Subic, and Olongapo, and then boarded the RPS Sta. Maria for Manila.

October 18.—PRESIDENT Garcia stayed up to 2 a.m. today conferring with Zambales officials after a series of rallies in the southern towns of the province.

About 7 last evening, the President laid wreath and led a one-minute prayer at the bust of the late President Magsaysay which was enshrined School at the Castillejos Elementary in Castillejos Before the rally held in Castillejos at 8:30 p.m., the President had dinner with Don Exequiel Magsaysay, who earlier released a signed statement endorsing the candidacy of President Garcia and the entire Nacionalista ticket.

At Subic the President officiated at a ribbon-cutting ceremony inaugurating the ₱60,000 Subic Elementary School. Then he spoke at a mammoth rally in Subic.

At all rallies the President thanked the townspeople for the warm welcome accorded him and his parity which, he said, was like welcoming a long lost brother.

At Olongapo the President headed a torch parade which started at the town's gates where the President was eagerly awaited by a mammoth crowd. The parade ended at the town plaza where a huge rally was held. Manila Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson joined the President's party at the rally and spoke, endorsing the President and the entire NP ticket.

After the rally, the President conferred with provincial officials. Then the President boarded the RPS Sta. Maria, feeling confident that the Nacionalista Party would win by a landslide in Zambales.

The President arrived in Manila at 9 this morning.

PRESIDENT Garcia this morning administered the oath of office to Geminiano F. Yabut as a member of the Board of Directors of the Manila Hotel Company, in the presence of GSIS General Manager Rodolfo Andal and Auditor General Pedro M. Gimenez.

The oath taking took place at the Malacañang study room right after President Garcia arrived at the Palace from the RPS Sta. Maria, which docked at Pier 5 from Olongapo, Zambales, at about 9 a.m.

The President boarded the Sta. Maria after delivering a speech at a public rally in Olongapo before a big crowd that filled the town plaza. The rally lasted up to 1 a.m.

After the oath-taking of Yabut, the President received from Gimenez the reorganization plans of the General Auditing Office under Republic Act 1890. The President promised to study the reorganization plans which will be submitted to Congress after his approval.

Gimenez informed the President that he had appeared before the Commission on Elections, which inquired how he interpreted the 45 days ban provided for by law before the elections insofar as the contingent funds are concerned.

Gimenez told the President that he had informed the Commission that after examining the intent of the law, he believes that the contingent funds, as well as the provincial and municipal funds, does not fall under the prohibition.

Japanese Vice-Prime Minister Misujiro Ishii paid a courtesy call on the President, accompanied by Ambassador Morio Yokawa, Y. Yamamoto, member of the House of Councilors, and T. Ihara, managing director of the Bank of Tokyo.

In the course of his call, the Japanese deputy premier expressed the hope that friendly relations between the Philippines and Japan will further be strengthened. He also took the opportunity to extend in the name of his government an invitation to the President to visit Japan.

Other morning callers included Sen. Quintin Paredes, Gov. Alejandro Almendras of Davao, and Iloilo City Mayor Rodolfo Ganzon.

At the Cabinet meeting today, President Garcia appointed the members of the Palay and Rice Board to study further price support of palay in order to give added incentives to rice producers. The creation of this board was recommended by the Aytona committee which had studied the rice problem.

The board is composed of Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez, as chairman, and Commerce Secretary Pedro Hernaez and Labor Secretary Angel Castaño, as members. The board will soon meet to study this important phase of increasing rice production by means of giving the proper price support to palay and thus further encourage rice producers.

At the same time, the President and the Cabinet approved the importation of 20,000 tons of rice, the balance of the 100,000 tons originally approved by the late President Magsaysay and his Cabinet.

Approval of the importation of this rice was made in order to enable the NARIC to sustain its sale of enough rice at ₱.85 per ganta up to harvest time all over the Philippines.

The decision on this matter was made after NARIC Chairman Juan O. Chioco explained the necessity for the importation to complete the originally approved amount of rice to be imported in order to meet the country's requirements. Chioco was accompanied by NARIC General Manager Vicente Concepcion and other NARIC officials.

The President stressed to Chioco to see to it that all NARIC stores and agencies throughout the Philippines sell macan No. 2 at ₱.85 ganta. The President added that any person could compel the NARIC stores to sell this kind of rice at its pegged price. He also stressed that other government agencies like the Armed Forces and the Department of Public Works and Communications, as approved in a previous Cabinet meeting, should make available all the needed LSTs and trucks for a speedy distribution of the rice to areas of short supply.

At the Cabinet meeting Chioco informed the President that rice was being unloaded from three boats carrying 2,500; 2,400, and 5,426 tons of rice each, equivalent to a total of 200,000 cavans. He said that up to about October 22, three more shipments of rice were coming in three vessels loaded with 8,400, 2,500, and 5,000 tons each, totalling 15,900 tons or 316,200 cavans of rice. Chioco also reported that the remaining 20,000 tons to be imported, equivalent to 360,000 cavans of rice, would arrive at about the end of October.

During the discussion of the rice situation wherein the need for importing the balance of 20,000 tons was explained, Chairman Chioco pointed out that the rice shortage could have been solved earlier were it not for the fact that former ACOFA Administrator Osmundo Mondoñedo had vigorously opposed the importation of rice as approved by the late President Magsaysay and his Cabinet members.

Chioco brought copies of the minutes of the NARIC board meeting wherein Mondoñedo had said that in 1957 the FACOMAs would be able to stock around 8,000,000 cavans of palay which would be enough for stabilization purposes and that if this would not come to pass, he would resign as ACOFA administrator. Chioco said that Mondoñedo's prediction did not come to pass.

However, Chioco said, the Country did not face any corn problem. He said that the NARIC had been able to stabilize the price of corn which was being sold at from ₱.50 to ₱.55 per ganta.

During the Cabinet meeting President Garcia signed a proclamation reserving for a health center site a piece of land in San Miguel district in Manila.

It was believed that the issuance of this proclamation would contribute further in improving the health of Manila residents.

The President presided over the Cabinet meeting from 4:50 to 6:30 p.m. The Cabinet meeting was held at the Council of State room. Owing to other urgent matters which the President attended to, he requested Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason to continue presiding over the meeting after 6:30 p.m.

PRESIDENT Garcia today issued the following statement on the Newsweek article on Speaker Laurel:

"I am not disturbed by the Newsweek article. Obviously, it was a planted story and it was unfortunate that Newsweek probably had not been able to check the facts before publishing the article.

"I am happy that Ambassador Bohlen has disowned the article and reiterated the neutrality of the United States Embassy in the present electoral fight. With the statement of Ambassador Bohlen, I consider the Newsweek incident closed."

October 19.—PRESIDENT Garcia and Australian Minister Richard G. Casey today renewed pledges of goodwill and close ties between the Philippines and Australia.

The occasion was the luncheon given this noon by President and Mrs. Garcia in honor of Australian Minister of State for External Affairs and Mrs. Richard G. Casey.

In his brief remarks after the luncheon President Garcia said that the Philippines and Australia were very closely linked in friendship and that Minister Casey was one of the Philippines' best friends.

He added that being allies in the free world, the two countries, as in the past, would stand together in the defense of freedom.

Minister Casey said in his response that in the face of world tension and the existence of menace to peace, he was glad to have the reassurance that Australia had a friend in the Philippines which would stand shoulder to shoulder with his country in upholding freedom and "our way of life."

The President this morning received Eric Ward, resident representative of the United Nations technical assistance board in Manila, who has been reassigned to Israel.

Ward is leaving on October 26 for his new post. During his call, he informed President Garcia that his successor, David Shaaf, had arrived this morning.

President Garcia also received Gerald Wilkinson, who reported on his observation during his trip to the United States regarding the reaction to the Administration's invitation to foreign capital. Wilkinson informed the President that U.S. capitalists were interested in investing in the Philippines. Wilkinson was accompanied by former Minister Jose Romero.

Dr. Jose R. Reyes, director of the North General Hospital and member of the technical panel of the Philippine Reparations Mission in Japan, also called and reported to the President on the work of the mission.

THE President today directed Land Tenure Administration Chairman Manuel E. Castañeda to defer action until after the elections, on the petition of some 399 out of 455 tenants of the Canlubang estate, to have the government acquire the lands where they are living.

The President learned this day that a petition had been sent by the tenants to the LTA seeking the expropriation of some 2,865.8 hectares of Yulo's estate in Canlubang, Laguna. According to Castañeda, the tenants would like to own, the lands they were occupying.

In his directive to Castañeda the President said that the LTA should not take action on the tenants' petition until after the election in November.

PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia this afternoon fulfilled their "long cherished wish" when they gave a get-together party for Malacañang employees and their families at the Malacañang park.

The President in his brief remarks said that he and the First Lady were very glad in meeting the Malacañang employees informally and on "equal basis."

“We should be more familiar with each other.” the President said, “because we are serving the same purpose—the welfare of our country.”

The First Lady, who also spoke briefly, said: “We should hold similar affair oftener in the future because it will afford us the chance of knowing each other better.”

The President and the First Lady were greeted with cheers and songs of Mabuhay upon their arrival at the Park at 5:15 p.m. Their daughter, Mrs. Linda G. Campos, joined them during the party.

October 20.—THE President today led high Filipino and American officials in a pilgrimage to the Red Beach of Palo, Leyte, to commemorate the thirteenth anniversary of the landing of American forces of liberation led by General Douglas MacArthur to redeem America’s pledge to liberate the Philippines from Japanese occupation forces.

Other high Filipino and American officials included Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr.; Ambassador Charles Bohlen; Speaker Protempore Daniel Z. Romualdez; Secretaries Manuel Lim, Jesus Vargas, and Florencio Moreno; Sen. Ruperto Kangleon; Rear-Admiral Edgar Cruise, commander of the U.S. Naval Forces in the Philippines; Rear-Admiral Roger T. S. Keith, commander of the U.S. Naval Base, Subic Bay; and Major General John Ackerman, commander of the U.S. 13th Air Force.

President Garcia arrived at 10:45 a.m. at the Tacloban airport with his running mate, Speaker Laurel. The presidential party was greeted by provincial and local officials. After receiving military honors, the President proceeded to Red Beach, together with Ambassador Bohlen and Gov. Bernardo Torres, in a car followed by Speaker Laurel and a long motorcade.

At Red Beach, following the simultaneous raising of Filipino and American flags and the playing of the National anthems by a combined Philippine Air Force and U.S. 13th Air Force bands, the President laid a wreath at the foot of the monument of the Unknown American Soldier followed by Bohlen, who likewise laid a wreath at the monument of the Unknown Filipino Soldier. A minute of silent prayer was dedicated to dead Filipinos and Americans.

A commemorative program on the town plaza followed the Red Beach ceremonies. After a welcome address by Palo Mayor Elpidio Monge and an introduction by Gov. Torres, Ambassador Bohlen spoke on the significance of the day.

October 21.—IN a press conference this morning at Abuyog, Leyte, President Garcia expressed concern over the Syria-Turkey crisis.

He said he hoped that none make a mistake of creating an incident which might start another war. However, the President added that he had not issued instructions to Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano on the matter.

The President spoke at Abuyog up to past three o’clock this morning and appealed to the Abuyog people to vote straight Nacionalista. Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., his running mate, also spoke at the same rally. Both the President and the Speaker endorsed the candidacy of Rep. Daniel Z. Romualdez.

PRESIDENT Garcia slept at 5 a.m. today following huge rallies in the eastern towns of Leyte.

Owing to the demands of the people in Palo, Dulag, and Tanawan that the President speak longer, he could not follow his time schedule in his tour. Townspeople stayed until 2 a.m. waiting for the President to arrive. In Abuyog the President arrived about 3 a.m., and the people filled the public square where a rally was held. The rally climaxed the first leg of the President’s tour of Leyte.

At Baybay a big turnout headed by Mayor Paterno Tan gave the President a rousing welcome this morning. A big rally was held on the town plaza.

Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., the President's running mate, and Gov. Bernardo Torres of Leyte spoke in all the rallies. Sens. Francisco Delgado and Roseller T. Lim joined the presidential party at Abuyog.

PRESIDENT Garcia today endorsed the official NP congressional candidate, Dominador Tan, in Baybay, hometown of Rep. Domingo Veloso of Leyte's second district.

At the same time, the President appealed to thousands of Baybay residents who filled the town's Rizal plaza, including the town hall, to vote straight Nacionalista so that the Nacionalistas could continue giving more feeder roads, artesian wells, pre-fabricated schoolhouses, and rural health units to the people.

He asserted that the main concern of the Nacionalistas was to uplift the masses, especially those living in the rural areas. He reiterated his appeal to the electorate to vote for the winning party, the NP, in view of the fact that 90 per cent of the senators, representatives, governors, and city and municipal mayors who were pillars of the NP in their respective localities were working hard for the Nacionalista victory.

The President cited plans of the Administration for Leyte which include construction of five irrigation systems and roads, now suspended owing to the 45-day ban.

The President and his party left Abuyog at 9 a.m. They proceeded to Baybay, where they were welcomed by the townspeople with a parade and brass bands. After the rally the presidential party proceeded to Hilongos on its way to Maasin, one of the biggest towns in Leyte.

IN the afternoon the President fulfilled his hectic speaking engagements in southern Leyte.

A heavy downpour failed to disrupt a scheduled rally in Indang, Leyte, because townsfolk with umbrellas and banana leaves refused to disperse. They chose to brave the rain to hear the President.

At the Hilongos huge rally the President recalled his guerrilla days, saying he would never forget the loyalty of the Hilongos people during those "dark days." It was recalled that President Garcia had spent some time at Hilongos in the continuing fight for freedom, with ₱100,000 offered by the Japanese for his capture.

The rally at Hilongos was held after the President had eaten his lunch at 3 p.m. During lulls in the President's tours, he received petitions from officials of neighboring towns asking for public improvements.

The presidential party had to make whistle-stops along the route from Baybay to Maasin, where people anticipated the President's coming. Baybay and Maasin are about 100 kilometers apart. The President is expected to arrive late in the night in Maasin. Maasin welcomers are headed by Sen. Ruperto Kangleon.

In all the rallies the President stressed the urgency of voting for the entire Nacionalista Party ticket, saying that only Nacionalista officials were capable of continuing projects started by the late President Magsaysay.

October 22.—PRESIDENT Garcia returned to Manila shortly before noon today after a three-hour flight from Surigao, where he took off after a two-day political campaign in Leyte and Surigao.

Upon his return to Manila, President Garcia expressed optimism he and all the Nacionalista Party candidates will win in Leyte by landslide majorities.

The President closed his stump of Leyte with a huge political rally in Maasin, a coastal town in the south-western part of the province.

He stayed clear of a conflict in that town between Rep. Francisco Pajao and Nicanor Yñiguez, both NP aspirants for Congress.

The President, in addressing the large crowd at the Maasin town plaza, recounted Visayan ballads. Mrs. Salvacion Oppus Yñiguez enlivened the rally with Visayan songs.

After conferring with Leyte political leaders until 3 a.m. in Maasin, the President boarded the yacht Santa Maria, and steamed towards Surigao.

President Garcia accompanied by Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., his running mate, and Sen. Francisco Delgado, one of the NP senatorial candidates, arrived at Surigao at 8 a.m.

The Santa Maria was met by a sizable crowd. However, President Garcia did not stay long in Surigao, but boarded a car and proceeded to the airport where his plane Dagohoy waited to take him and the members of his party to Manila.

Upon his arrival to Malacañang, the President retired to his bedroom for a rest.

However, Malacañang officials headed by acting Press Secretary G. V. Sison and Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable, saw the Chief Executive and conferred with him.

IN the evening, the President inducted Gil Garcia as chairman of the Cebu Fire Victims Commission, recently created by Congress to administer the P5 million fire aid fund appropriated by the lawmaking body in its last session.

Malacañang said the new chairman comes from Cebu and is not related to the President.

The President also received delegations from Bulacan and Manila, the former headed by Sen. Francisco Delgado, and the latter, by former Democratic Party leader Demetrio Amurao.

The delegations, Malacañang said, pledged their support to the President and Speaker Laurel in the coming elections.

PRESIDENT Garcia today issued Proclamation No. 454, declaring Friday, November 1, 1957, as a special public holiday.

The President said in his proclamation that the people should be given full opportunity to pay homage to the dead on All Saints' Day, which is one of the country's cherished traditions.

The President added that "in keeping with that tradition, the people should be given full opportunity to observe the day with all its religious fervor."

October 23.—PRESIDENT Garcia today led the nation in celebrating the centenary of the birth of Juan Luna by delivering a speech on the painter-patriot's works and achievements in ceremonies held in Badoc, Ilocos Norte, the hero's birthplace.

The President flew from Manila to deliver the speech and lay the cornerstone for the reconstruction of the Luna house in Badoc.

The Air Force's Dagohoy bearing the President touched down at the Gabbu airport in Laoag at 10:30 a.m. today. President Garcia was met by a huge crowd led by Ilocos Norte acting Gov. Constante Fariñas and former Gov. Antonio Raquiza.

From the airport the President rode some 40 kilometers to Badoc at the head of a long motorcade which passed by cheering crowds.

Upon arriving there, the President proceeded to the ruins of the Luna house, where he laid the cornerstone' in the presence of Sen. Quintin Paredes, chairman of the Luna Centennial Commission, and Mrs. Grace San Pedro de Luna, wife of a son of the patriot.

President Garcia then proceeded to makeshift grandstand in front of the Luna monument on the town plaza and delivered the main address in the centenary celebration.

In his speech the President hailed Badoc for producing Luna, who, he said, "ranks among the world's immortals in the realm of the art."

Sen. Paredes injected politics in the celebration by urging the crowd to vote for President Garcia and other Nacionalista candidates in the November elections.

Paredes said he intended to run for the presidency but withdrew in favor of President Garcia, whom he found to have "the welfare of North Luzon at heart."

The President took advantage of his second visit in two weeks to the Ilocos region by holding political rallies in Pinili, Ilocos Norte; Lapug, Ilocos Sur; and Bangued, Abra.

He planned to spend the night in Vigan, Ilocos Sur, and enplane tomorrow morning for Manila.

October 24.—THE President called upon all freedom-loving countries of the world to present a solid front so that the United Nations would continue to gain strength and vigor to meet the challenge of the times.

The President reviewed the solid accomplishments of the United Nations in his speech at the Luneta rites that climaxed the United Nations Week Rally for Peace.

The President pointed out the challenge posed by the sensational developments in nuclear science and rocketry to the future of the human race, developments which brought into the hands of man "power for infinite good or unlimited evil" and holding out, for him either a promise of a more abundant life or the peril of total annihilation.

Members of the Cabinet, local diplomatic corps, high ranking government officials, civic-minded citizens, and about five thousand students gathered on the Luneta for the rites.

Dr. Manuel V. Gallego, president of the United Nations Association of the Philippines, which sponsored the celebration of the 1957 United Nations Week, introduced President Garcia.

Other features of the UN Flag ceremony and Rally for Peace at the Luneta were the raising of the U.N. flag; raising of the flags of the UN member nations by diplomatic and consular corps, government officials, and civic leaders; Song of the Free sung by the Secondary Schools Music Teachers' Chorus of the Division of City Schools of Manila; and the release of doves of peace to the tune of Mabuhay played by the Constabulary band.

THIS noon President Garcia honored Arthur Hays Sulzberger, publisher of the New York Times, with a luncheon at Malacañang Palace.

The Sulzberger are guests of President Garcia at the Manila Hotel.

After the luncheon, the President gave brief remarks in which he welcomed Sulzberger and his party to the Philippines. The President said that Mr. Sulzberger was deeply interested in the progress and economic well-being of the country.

In a brief response Sulzberger thanked the President for the hospitality accorded him and his party. He said that he had found great satisfaction in the fact that the Philippines was working hand in hand with the United States in the preservation of peace and freedom.

Those who attended the luncheon were local publishers and chiefs of news bureaus and the U.S. Ambassador to the Philippines.

IN the evening the President told a large group of Boholanos that if elected this November “aside from serving the country the best I can, I will do everything to continue keeping my record of 32 years of public service clean.”

The President made this statement at the Malacañang social hall, where Boholanos living in Luzon gathered to reiterate their support to President Garcia’s election bid.

Present during the affair were ranking government officials from Bohol, including Economic Coordination Administrator Juan Concon, Bohol Gov. Juan Pajo, Rep. Bartolome Cabangbang, Ex-Sen. Olegario Clarin, former Education Secretary Cecilio Putong, Ex-Bohol Govs. Conrado Marapao and Agustin Casiñas, Tomas Cloma, and Tomas Toledo, president of the Bohol Association.

Juana Hontacan, a 43-year old paralytic woman, inched her way from the crowd and told the President that she had been campaigning in all parts of Bohol for the President.

Ex-Gov. Marapao, who spoke before the President, assured his listeners that Bohol would solidly support the President, her “favorite son.” He denied reports that President Garcia would lose in Tagbilaran, the capital of the province.

The First Lady, who arrived late owing to a previous engagement at Parañaque, was cheered upon her arrival.

October 25.—PRESIDENT Garcia hit the Liberal Party standard bearer as a symbol of the perpetuation of the tenancy system when he announced in Cabanatuan City the government expropriation of three haciendas for distribution to the landless in Nueva Ecija.

The documents selling to the government haciendas Halili, Lichauco, and Del Rosario were signed at the Cabanatuan rally where Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez also spoke and asked the people to vote straight Nacionalista for the continuation of the progress being enjoyed by the people.

In a speech at the first rally in San Jose, the President said the LP presidential candidate would not be able to implement the land-for-the-land less program because he is the biggest hacendero in the country. He said the Nacionalista Party was against the tenancy system, citing several landed estates already expropriated by the Administration and subdivided among the landless at 5 hectares for each family.

At the same time the President blamed LP senatorial aspirant Osmundo Mondoñedo for the high prices of rice. The President said Mondoñedo opposed the importation of rice when he was ACOFA chairman, claiming that the FACOMAs would be able to produce eight million cavanes. The President remarked that the FACOMAs were not able to produce that amount and the importation was delayed because of Mondoñedo’s opposition.

Answering a placard proclaiming “high rice prices,” the President announced the arrival of two shipments of imported rice and one more coming. He said all imported rice would be distributed to the people at low NARIC prices, and he ordered Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano to use AFP soldiers and facilities to help in the distribution.

There would have been enough rice and prices would have been low if it were not for Mondoñedo's opposition, the President said.

In his speeches the President requested the people to entrust the reins of government in worthy hands on November 12. "When you go to the polls, remember that you can now live and farm in peace because of the Nacionalista administration," he said.

After citing the accomplishments of the Nacionalista Party, the President charged that the Liberal Party failed to win the faith and confidence of the masses because of the wanton disregard by LP leaders of the welfare of the people. He said that during eight years of LP regime, the voice of the common people were not heard.

The President arrived in San Jose at 12 noon, after a three-and-a-half trip from Manila. The delay in his arrival was caused by several stops on the way when he was mobbed by crowds in Baliuag, Bulacan, at the Bulacan-Nueva Ecija boundary, in barrio Bulualto, San Miguel, Bulacan; and in San Leonardo and Gapan, Nueva Ecija.

Numerous people stopped the presidential car several times. Even women planting rice stopped from their chores and flagged down the President's car. The President alighted from the car and shook hands with the women rice planters.

At the Bulacan-Nueva Ecija boundary the President was met by Nueva Ecija officials led by Gov. Amalo Aleta, Rep. Celestino Juan, former Gov. Juan Chioco, and other officials. From the boundary, the President motored direct to San Jose, where he ate his lunch after the rally and rested at the house of J. Sobrepeña, a lawyer.

The President arrived at Cabanatuan about 6 p.m. and heard a Te Deum at the church before proceeding to the rally at the provincial plaza.

October 26.—THE PRESIDENT today received Papal Nuncio Egidio Vagnozzi, who presented to him letters from His Holiness, Pope Pius XII, acknowledging the letters of credence presented by Jose Ma. Delgado, Philippine ambassador of the Vatican. The acknowledgement also included the letter of recall of the former envoy to the Vatican, Manuel Moran.

The Pope in another letter extended his blessings to the Filipino people.

The President was given a routine physical and medical checkup this morning by one of his physicians, Dr. Antonio Guytingco. After the check-up which included an electrocardiography, the President's physician pronounced the Chief Executive physically fit, saying that the President's heart and blood pressure were normal.

At noon the President received Rodolfo Cardoso, Filipino junior chess champion, accompanied by his coach-manager, Florencio Campomanes, and Jose Pascual, national chess champion in 1955. Cardoso presented to the President the Norman Vincent Brilliancy Chess Trophy, which Cardoso had won during the recent World Junior Chess Championship contest in Toronto, Canada.

The President congratulated Cardoso for his chess exploits, especially for his having been nominated as International Chess Master. The President said he would display the trophy in his library in Malacañang.

The President also received Sen. Quintin Paredes with whom he discussed the improving political situation in the North in favor of the President and the entire Nacionalista ticket.

At 3 p.m. the President, accompanied by Education Secretary Manuel Lim, motored to the Nichols Air Base where he took off for the Basa Air Base in Pampanga.

IN the afternoon President Garcia issued the following statement:

“I am reiterating my pledge to the people of the Philippines that this Administration will see to it that we shall conduct the cleanest, freest, and most orderly elections on November 12, 1957.”

“All government agencies concerned with the conduct of the elections have been alerted and are on the job to carry out this policy of the Administration. With the cooperation of an alert citizenry, I am sure that we will succeed in our objective.”

“In this connection, I am again extending my invitation to the press of the free world to come to the Philippines as observers and see for themselves how our democratic elections will be held.”

“I am extending this invitation particularly to the press of our Southeast Asian neighbors, Japan, India, Nationalist China, South Korea, South Vietnam, Indonesia, Malaya, Singapore, Hongkong, Cambodia, Laos, Thailand, Pakistan, Ceylon, and Burma to come and be with us in the Philippines during the period of our national elections.”

PRESIDENT Garcia today reiterated his pledge to the people of the Philippines that the Administration would see to it that “we shall conduct the cleanest, the freest, and the most orderly elections on November 12, 1957.”

In public rallies held in various towns of Pampanga this evening the President said:

“All government agencies concerned with the conduct of the elections have been alerted and are on the job to carry out this policy of the Administration. With the cooperation of an alert citizenry, I am positive that we will surely succeed in our objective.”

The President extended again his invitation to the press of the free world to come to the Philippines as observers and see for themselves how “our democratic elections will be held.” He extended his invitation particularly to the press of “our Southeast Asian neighbors.”

“I hope my invitation will be honored,” the President said.

President Garcia landed at the Basa Air Base in Floridablanca at 3:45 p.m., aboard the PAF plane Dagohoy. A 21-gun salute boomed as the President went down the plane’s ramp amidst the cheers of his welcomers composed of delegations from various towns of Pampanga headed by Gov. Rafael Lazatin.

Among the welcomers were officers of the Confederation of Central Luzon Veterans currently holding their seventh annual conference in San Fernando, Pampanga. Headed by Lt. Col. Jorge Fajardo, the group presented the President with a plaque in gratitude to the Chief Executive’s solicitude for the welfare of the Filipino veterans.

After thanking his welcomers and acknowledging the ruffles and flourishes offered by an honor guard formed by the Air Force units, President Garcia motored to Guagua, San Fernando, and Angeles, where he addressed big public rallies.

The President in his speeches summarized the achievements of the Nacionalista Party and reiterated his confidence in its victory in the coming elections in view of its splendid record of service to the people.

While the President was speaking in Guagua, a plane with a Yulo-Macapagal neon sign swooped several times over the huge crowd gathered at the plaza. The President was enthusiastically cheered when he paused in his speech and pointing at the low-flying plane said, “That is democracy in action, my friends.” The crowd expressed admiration over the sportsmanship displayed by President Garcia, but at the third swoop of the plane the crowd became indignant and showed disgust. Guagua is known as Macapagal’s bailiwick.

The President was accompanied during his tour by Gov. Lazatin and other officials of the province. With the party was Sen. Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez.

After the rally in Angeles, the President motored back to Manila.

October 27.—PRESIDENT Garcia made quick political sorties today in Manila and the suburbs after a grueling week of campaigning in Central and Northern Luzon provinces. He intensified his “Operation Homestretch,” as election day was virtually two weeks away.

He has just returned this morning from an unpleasant campaign in hostile grounds in Pampanga, known bailiwick of Rep. Diosdado Macapagal, LP vice-presidential candidate.

Technical Assistant Sofronio Quimson, one of the President’s speakers, was booed for five minutes as he attacked Macapagal’s alleged ineptitude in Congress. Drowned out by the listeners’ boos, Quimson pleaded with the crowd, “I can’t stop you from booing me but please allow me to proceed.”

The President was also harassed by two L-5 planes carrying the Yulo-Macapagal neon signs as they swooped low over his meetings.

However, he took the gesture calmly and said: “This is democracy in action, my friends.”

Although he slept late, President Garcia woke up early and received Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson, who reported on the political situation in Negros Occidental.

Lacson returned Saturday from a four-day political campaign in Negros Occidental, home province of former Speaker Jose Yulo, Liberal Party presidential standard-bearer.

It was learned that Lacson gave the President encouraging reports on his chances in Negros Occidental on November 12.

The President also received a large group of tenants from the Canlubang Sugar Estate who protested his action in tabling their petition for the expropriation of the hacienda of Yulo in Calamba, Laguna.

The President assured the tenants he would order the acquisition of the Canlubang Estate after the November 12 elections either through negotiated sale or expropriation.

HE motored in the afternoon to Pandacan, where he campaigned at Project 5 of the People’s Homesite and Housing Corporation. He later went to Project 6 in Quezon City.

From the government projects, President Garcia returned to Malacañang and proceeded to the Independence Memorial Grandstand on the Luneta, where he heard a low mass following the procession of the Blessed Sacrament, which climaxed the celebration of the Feast of Christ the King.

From the Luneta, the President continued his campaign in Caloocan, and San Juan, Rizal, and then to Cubao, Quezon City.

From Cubao, the President motored to Pier 5 where he boarded the yacht Santa Maria for Nasugbu, Batangas.

PRESIDENT Garcia today directed the Land Tenure Administration to continue with its fact-finding work regarding the petition of 399 out of 455 tenants of the Canlubang Estate that the lands they are tilling be acquired by the government.

The President pledged that after the elections he would order the LTA to acquire the lands in question either by negotiation or by expropriation. He assured the tenants that they would get justice from the Administration.

The President made these statements in the presence of LTA Chairman Manuel Castañeda, Labor Secretary Angel Castaño, and hundreds of tenants from the Canlubang estate who assembled at the Malacañang social hall to petition the President to help them acquire the lands they are tilling.

The area of the land petitioned for acquisition is 2,865.8 hectares. Last October 19, when the President first learned of the petition of the tenants, he directed Chairman Castañeda to defer action until after the elections in order to avoid interpreting government action on the matter as an act of persecuting the owner of the Canlubang estate.

The President said it was necessary first for the LTA to gather pertinent facts about the petition, especially with regard to the fair appraisal of the value of the land in question. He added that this fact-finding period would afford Mr. Yulo enough time to decide as to whether he was agreeable to a negotiated sale of the property.

The President said, "If Mr. Yulo really loves you as his tenants, he will agree to a negotiated sale, otherwise the government will take action to expropriate the property."

He added: "I hope that Mr. Yulo is sincere in his feelings towards his tenants as announced in the papers. Let us see him show those sentiments in deeds."

Servillano Jarumayan, spokesman of the tenants who came to Malacañang, said that the tenants who signed the petition were not squatters, many of them being sons of the original tenants who had been tilling the lands a since 60 years ago.

He said that at first the tenants were allowed to plant crops and vegetables between the rows of coconut trees in the estate, but now they were ordered to stop this practice because coffee and other crops were ordered planted. He said that as a result of this order, the tenants had no more means of livelihood and that they might suffer from starvation.

One of the many placards displayed by the tenants said "Kami'y mga Magsasaka sa Canlubang. Iligtas Ninyo Kami sa Gutom."

Jarumayan said that at first the Canlubang tenants who petitioned the LTA had thought that their petition would be immediately acted upon with a thorough investigation of the petition. However, he said that on October 19 the investigation was stopped on orders of the President, who told Castañeda to defer action until, after the elections. He added that if Mr. Yulo wanted to implement the late President Magsaysay's land reform program, he should start it with his Canlubang estate.

The Canlubang tenants' spokesman stressed that their petition to have the lands acquired by the government was not politically inspired. Another placard borne by the tenants said that there was no politics involved in the tenants' movement.

Juramayan said that former Calamba Mayor Taciano Rizal was just helping the tenants in their legitimate rights to petition the government to improve their living conditions.

Later, Taciano Rizal, who was with the tenants' group, was introduced to President Garcia.

Jarumayan urged the President that LTA continue with its investigation of the petition of the Canlubang tenants.

After listening to Chairman Castañeda explain the steps he had taken after receipt of the petition of the tenants. President Garcia told the big delegation:

(1) "I assure, all of you and all our people that the late President Magsaysay's policy of giving lands to the landless and homes to the homeless is being implemented by me relentlessly and vigorously." and

(2) “I appeal to you not to commit any violence or take any untoward action during the pendency of your petition to have the government acquire the lands you are tilling.”

The President explained that after the petition of the tenants had been formally presented to the LTA, steps were taken by the LTA in writing the provincial appraisal committee of Laguna to appraise the estate; another letter was sent to the tenants through Lucio Gomez requesting them to maintain the status quo; and still another letter was sent to Mr. Yulo appraising him of the petition received by the LTA.

In view of the personal representations made by the tenants that the LTA continue with its investigation of their petition, the President directed Chairman Castañeda to continue with his fact-finding work and assured the petitioners that after November 12 a final decision would be made on their petition, depending on Mr. Yulo's position on the matter.

The tenants' spokesman explained to the President that the tenants had experienced great difficulty in coming to Malacañang to present their petition. He said that it took them one-half day to come down from the hills to get to the bus line, and that their leaving Canlubang for Malacañang was at the risk of their not being able to go back to their farms. Some of them came bare-footed, some in slippers, and some in wooden clogs.

The President assured the tenants that not one of them could be sent out of the lands they were occupying pending the disposition of their petition.

The tenants thanked the President for assuring them that they would be given justice. They applauded him several times, especially when he reiterated that he was vigorously implementing RM's policy of giving lands to the landless and! homes to the homeless.

October 28.—IN the name of the government, President Garcia took possession today of Haciendas Calatagan and Bigaa after handing over checks and negotiable land certificates totalling ₱904,167.54 to Enrique Zobel, one of the co-owners of the haciendas in simple ceremony at the Nasugbu wharf.

The two haciendas have a total area of 2,026,129 hectares, and their acquisition will benefit 574 tenants, according to Manuel Castañeda, chairman of the Land Tenure Administration, who was present at the wharf ceremony.

From Nasugbu, the President proceeded to Balayan.

The President and his party were welcomed here by a big and enthusiastic crowd led by Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, Acting Gov. Francisco Perez, Rep. Apolinario Apacible, and Mayor Pedro Rinoza. President Garcia arrived in Nasugbu this morning aboard the yacht Sta. Maria.

PRESIDENT Garcia stated in two rallies in Batangas that the Nacionalista Party had the right “to continue enjoying the confidence of the people so that it can fully implement the program of good government left unfinished by the late President Magsaysay.”

The Nacionalista Party should continue in power, the President said, because of its solid achievements during the last three and a half years, citing the rapid rate of construction of roads, artesian wells, irrigation systems, and pre-fabricated school buildings throughout the country, and the enlargement of rural health units.

He also cited as the most solid achievement of the Nacionalista Party the restoration of peace and order all over the Philippines and the restoration of the people's faith and confidence in the government.

At the same time, President Garcia indicted the Liberal Party for its impotence to stop the Huk rebellion. In presenting the case of the NP before the people of Batangas, President Garcia asked for a continuation of confidence in the NP which the Batangueños supported in previous elections.

Before the members of the Batangas Lawyers Association this noon, President Garcia drew rounds of applause when, in paying tribute to the illustrious legal luminaries of Batangas, he mentioned the name of Recto.

The President spoke at rallies in Balayan and Batangas. Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., in both rallies, explained why he could not support Recto. He said that Recto was running for President after being defeated in the Nacionalista Party convention. The Speaker regretted Recto's choosing as his running mate Sen. Lorenzo Tañada, who would only "reduce my Tagalog votes." He said Recto could not win, adding that the fight was between the Nacionalista Party and the Liberal Party.

Secretary of Foreign Affairs Felixberto Serrano also spoke in both rallies and explained why he was supporting President Garcia and not Recto.

In this noon's banquet of the Lawyers' Association, President Garcia waxed eloquent on the solid accomplishments of the NP. He spoke for two hours and was well applauded by the local barristers.

During the banquet, President Garcia acted on the request of Severe Cantos, an employee of the Batangas Electric and Waterworks Company, owned by the municipal government of Batangas, Batangas, for compensation due to loss of sight in an accident.

The President directed the municipal council of Batangas, to expedite payment of compensation amounting to ₱4,605. The President also promised the release of ₱30,000 after the elections for the repair of the Batangas High School.

Major Godofredo Magallanes of PQOG, under General Vicente Umali, presented the President with a resolution assuring 100 per cent support of some 1,200 members in Batangas and Laguna. The resolution was presented on the arrival of the President in Batangas, Batangas, this afternoon.

October 29.— PRESIDENT Garcia today pledged to carry on with the creation and expansion of dollar-producing and dollar-saving industries as a means of achieving the economic stability of the nation.

In brief remarks delivered at the Philippine Coconut Administration Industrial Research Station in Alaminos, Laguna, shortly before noon today, the President said he would pursue vigorously the industrial program of the Nacionalista administration, should the people again express their confidence in him at next month's polls.

The President dropped in this morning at the PHILCOA pilot plant on the second day of his three-day stump of the Tagalog provinces. One of several plants established by the Administration to increase the income of farmers in the coconut region, the Alaminos plant opened its doors to the public on its third anniversary.

The President took time out from his tight campaign schedule and spent about 30 minutes watching test operations on greater utilization of coconut by-products, such as shell and husks, as one of the goals of the government's industrialization program.

He was particularly impressed with the demonstration on processing which turned fiber from the lowly coconut husk into colorful rugs, carpets, and mats. He was shown around the plant by Benjamin Salvosa, manager.

The President left Tanauan, Batangas, about 9 a.m. today, after an overnight stay at the country home of Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., his vice-presidential running mate. Motoring across the boundary to Laguna province, the President spoke some 45 minutes later in public rallies held in no less than 18 Laguna towns, most of which were unscheduled.

During the tour which again made him stay up to the early hours of the following morning, the President inaugurated a number of hospitals, puericulture centers, municipal buildings, public markets, and other public improvements constructed under the present Administration.

The President was enthusiastically received in all the towns of the province. Besides the usual garlands of flowers presented by local beauties, the presidential party was also greeted with numerous kaings of lanzones now abundant in the region. Rep. Wenceslao Rancap Lagumbay saw to it that every car in the long motorcade was provided with at least one kaing of lanzones.

In his speeches the President expressed gratitude for the spontaneous show of affection by the hospitable people of Laguna. He kept drumming up support for the entire NP ticket by citing the achievements of the Administration.

At San Pablo City tonight, the President was presented with a resolution by Gen. Vicente Umali, who pledged 100 per cent support of some 12,000 recognized members of his organization in Laguna, Quezon, and Batangas provinces. Similar resolutions were also presented by other delegations, including that led by Major Godofredo Magallanes, who headed a large delegation of political leaders of Alaminos.

The President today penetrated deep into interior towns, reaching as far as Majayjay on the slope of Mt. Banahaw, once a Huk stronghold. The townspeople, most of whom were seeing a president of the Philippines for the first time, turned out en masse and gave him a rousing welcome.

Among the other towns visited were Lilio, Magdalena, Pagsanjan, Sta. Cruz, Pila, Bay, Los Baños, Calamba, Cabuyao, Sta. Rosa, Biñan, and San Pedro.

THE PRESIDENT this evening awarded special presidential citations to the LVN Pictures, Inc., for its film, Badjao, which had won no less than four coveted awards in the fourth Film Festival of Southeast Asia held in Tokyo, Japan, in May this year.

The awards were presented by Mrs. Linda Garcia-Campos, the President's daughter, on behalf of her father, who could not personally be present at the LVN studios, on the occasion of Doña Sisang's birthday celebration tonight.

One special presidential citation was awarded the LVN Pictures, Inc., in recognition of its distinguished service to the nation. The award was given in line with the Administration's policy of giving the utmost encouragement to the Philippine film industry in its efforts toward greater expansion and development "not only in order to enhance the national economy but also to promote the best possible relations with our fellow Asians and the rest of humanity."

The award was presented to Dona Narcisa Vda. Leon herself. Other awards were presented to Laimberto V. Avellana, director of LVN pictures, Inc., for best direction; Rolf Bayer, for the best scenario; Miguel Accion, for best photography (black and white); and Gregorio Carballo, for best editing.

The citation to LVN said that the Badjao won no less than four coveted awards. It added that in the previous year's festival held in Hongkong, the LVN had also gained renown for the Philippine movie industry when the film, Anak Dalita, won the best picture award, the highest recognition for eminence in motion picture technique and art conferred by the Federation of Motion Pictures in Southeast Asia.

These outstanding achievements, the citation said, in free and open competition among all movie producers in Southeast Asia, had earned additional recognition for Filipino artistic and technical skill. This meritorious participation of the LVN in the Fourth Film Festival brought glory to the Philippines in the international field of motion pictures, the citation concluded.

October 30.— PRESIDENT Garcia today placed emphasis on the improvement of rural health in his speeches in Bulacan as he appealed to the voters to elect a straight, Nacionalista ticket for a vigorous continuation of the program of the late President Magsaysay.

The President said that the NP administration introduced rural health units which are now serving all the barrios of the country with more doctors, nurses, mid wives, and medicine.

In a speech in San Miguel, the President promised that he would order: (1) the subdivision of the 2,000 hectares of land in barrio Sibul for distribution to the landless; (2) the completion of the San Miguel irrigation system; and (3) the opening of the dikes of the San Miguel River leading to Candaba in order to prevent palay in San Miguel and San Ildefonso from being flooded.

Enumerating the numerous measures initiated by the NP administration for the benefit of the rural areas, the President said that it was only during this administration that much was done for the common people.

The President mentioned the granting of loans to small farmers, the construction of irrigation systems and artesian wells, and the completion of more feeder roads among the accomplishments of the NP administration for the rural areas.

The President received resounding “yes” from the people when he asked them if they wanted a continuation of the late President Magsaysay’s program. Only the Nacionalista Party could continue the program, the President said.

Big crowds attended the rallies and people cheered the President as he cited the accomplishments of the NP administration.

The President delivered great portions of his speeches in Bulacan in Tagalog. He delivered speeches in San Miguel, Baliwag, and Calumpit. He is scheduled to speak at the rallies in Malolos and Hagonoy. He is expected to return to Manila early in the morning tomorrow.

Before proceeding to San Miguel, the President inaugurated the Filipino Bakers Association building in Grace Park Caloocan, Rizal. He arrived in San Miguel at past 3 p.m. With him were Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., his running mate, the senatorial candidates, Sen. Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez, and other officials.

The presidential party was met by Bulacan officials headed by Gov. Alejo Santos and Rep. Rogaciano Mercado.

October 31.— PRESIDENT Garcia today received political leaders of Negros Occidental who pledged to work for the victory of the Nacionalista Party ticket. They were headed by former LP Sen. Enrique Magalona.

The President thanked the Negros Occidental leaders for their support and said that if elected, he would not fail the trust and confidence that they placed in him.

Another LP leader who pledged his support to President Garcia was Servando Belmonte, LP campaign manager in the first district of Albay. Belmonte said that he would work for the election of the President in the province of Albay.

The President today received encouraging reports on the political situation in the so-called solid North from members of the task force under Sen. Quintin Paredes.

The spokesman of the group, former Rep. Domingo Siazon of Cagayan, in the name of Sen. Paredes assured President Garcia that in Cagayan, Isabela, Nueva Vizcaya, Abra, Ilocos Norte, Mountain Province, Batanes, as well as in Pangasinan, Nueva Eeija, and Tarlac the Chief Executive and the rest of the NP national ticket were going to win.

Siazon further assured President Garcia that the President was going to put up a good fight in the provinces of Ilocos Sur and La Union.

Former Judge Vicente Jimenez Yanzon, LP congressional candidate in the second district of Negros Occidental, formally switched to the Nacionalista Party at a conference with the President in Malacañang this morning.

Benjamin Ligot, NP official candidate for Congress in the second district of Cagayan, also saw the President to assure him that the NP ticket would win in Cagayan by a landslide.

Another caller was Mayor Hilario de Pedro of Koronadal, Cotabato, who informed the President about the political situation in his province.

President Garcia also received Mohammad Hatta, resigned vice-president of Indonesia, who paid a courtesy call following his arrival recently.

In greeting the former Indonesian Vice-President, the Chief Executive said that he was happy over Hatta's visit because it further strengthened the friendship between the Philippines and Indonesia.

After the exchange of pleasantries, the President presented Mr. Hatta with a Philippine-made kamagong cane.

Hatta was accompanied to Malacañang by Indonesian Ambassador Nazir Pamantjak.

At the Cabinet meeting today President Garcia announced that he would sign the executive order implementing the recommendations of the WAPCO regarding the adjustments of salaries of government employees Thursday, November 7, 1957.

Acting Budget Commission Faustino Sy-Changco said the sum of about P10,200,000 which was appropriated by Congress was ready for the implementation of these salary adjustments as provided for in the WAPCO recommendations.

WAPCO statistics show that the total number of positions classified is 209,320 and the number of employees to receive salary adjustments is estimated at 113,820.

Sy-Changco said that the starting salaries for some of the common positions in the government as classified by the WAPCO follow:

Position	Present Monthly Rate	Wapco Rate
Clerks	₱120	₱150
Nurses	140	191
Dentists	200	259
Physicians	200	301
Stenographers	120	165
Teachers (BSE)	165	212
Lawyers	150	259
Associate Engineers	215	286
Engineers (Journeyman)	260	332
Directors	600,700	736

Commissioner Sy-Changco, however, said that only one-third of the actual difference from the present salary of employees to be reclassified and the initial WAPCO rate would be paid this year because only about ₱10,200,000 has been appropriated for the purpose. Later adjustments will be made.

The Cabinet approved the release of ₱752,666 as aid to provincial, municipal, and/or city governments. This amount will be used to effect the salary adjustments or increases for teachers and other personnel in the public high schools being maintained and operated by such government branches, as well as of teachers and other school personnel in the public intermediate schools being maintained by city governments.

These adjustments or increases in salaries cover the period from July 1, 1957, to June 30, 1958.

The release of the amount had been promised by the President some weeks ago upon representations made by teachers.

Also approved was the release of ₱33,900 to be used for adjustments of the salaries of division superintendents of schools, chiefs of divisions, and superintendents in the general office. These disbursements were authorized under the provisions of Republic Act 842 and had been previously authorized by the late President Magsaysay.

The Cabinet also approved the release of ₱140,790 as salary differentials for public school teachers for the period July 1, 1955, to June 30, 1956. Appropriation for this amount was authorized under Republic Act 1230.

The Cabinet also approved applications for copra barter by the Mindanao Coconut Planters Federation, Inc., in the amount of 20,000 tons and the small Coconut Producers Union, Inc., in the amount of 25,000 tons.

These two companies were allowed to export their copra on barter basis from the uncovered balance of around 64,000 tons not yet used by the Philippine Coconut Producers Federation.

The Cabinet decided that these two companies could barter their copra not in excess of the stipulated amounts and for a period not to go beyond May 9, 1958.

These two companies requested the Cabinet barter permits for copra out of the 80,590 tons allocated the Philippine Coconut Producers Federation. It was understood at the time of the approval of the request of the PCPF that bona fide coconut producers would also be allowed the same privilege.

Out of the said 80,590 tons allocation to the PCPF, the federation has exported only 16,000 tons, leaving a balance of some 64,000 tons.

These two companies are composed of small coconut producers like the PCPF.

The Cabinet approved this export of copra for barter in order to give additional incentives to small bona fide Filipino coconut producers, upon the recommendation of Commerce Secretary Pedro Hernaez and Undersecretary Perfecto E. Laguio.

President Garcia took time out during the Cabinet meeting when informed by Labor Secretary Angel Castaño that the striking employees of the National Development Company wanted very much to see the President and ask his help.

The President left the Cabinet meeting and met with the officials of the NDC union headed by their lawyer, Eulogio Lerum. The meeting was held at the former Cabinet room.

After hearing the explanation of Lerum as to the wishes of the striking NDC union members, the President authorized Secretary Castaño to sit down with the NDC board of directors this afternoon, together with representatives of the union, in order that they could start a negotiation in seeking a solution to the strike.

The strike is now under consideration by the courts.

In the course of the meeting of the President with the NDC union members, the President made preliminary suggestions which might lead to the solution of the strike.

With regard, for instance, to the demands of the strikers that NDC employees who have served three years be allowed to enjoy the benefits of permanent employees, including Christmas bonuses, the President remarked that this might be agreed upon.

However, the President said that with regard to the petition for a general increase in salary, the financial operations of the company as of the end of the present year should first be examined to determine if the granting of salary increases was warranted.

The President said that he authorized Secretary Castaño to sit down with the NDC board of directors and leaders of the striking employees in order that all avenues which might lead to the solution of the employees' demands could be explored.

The employees told the President that they were very grateful for his taking a hand in helping seek ways and means of arriving at a happy solution to the strike.

UPON the recommendation of Education Secretary Manuel Lim, the President and the Cabinet authorized the sending of school principals, supervisors, and superintendents to the College of Education of the University of the Philippines for special training under the Cooperative Leadership Training Program of the U.P. subject to the following conditions:

- (a) That the personnel to be sent to this training shall not exceed 10 every year;
- (b) That no one shall be allowed to spend more than one school year in training;
- (c) That they shall not incur any expense for this purpose except their regular salaries while training;
- (d) That their positions shall not be filled during their absence from their respective stations; and
- (e) That they shall sign contracts to serve continuously for two years after their training.

Secretary Lim said that under this program the trainees will be enabled to enhance their competence as educational leaders in their respective communities. The training will lay emphasis on such areas of study as will qualify the enrollees to direct the work of their schools toward meeting effectively Philippine social economic conditions.

Lim added that this program was inspired by the desire to make the Philippine school system truly Filipino in its philosophy, goals, and methodology.

The applicants will be screened carefully by the director of public schools and his staff. Only those who possess the capacity to undergo training on the graduate level and who possess qualities of leadership will be selected. They will be given free tuition by the U.P.

This scheme is similar to the study grants under the NEC-ICA arrangements. The Cooperative Leadership Training program of the U.P. has the distinct advantage of training school men under Philippine setting and specifically for the local school system.

UPON recommendation of Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, the Cabinet approved the holding of the ministerial meeting of the SEATO in Manila in March, 1958.

Serrano said this meeting was important because of the desire to strengthen the links of world defenses in this area.

The Cabinet approved Philippine participation in the Third Session of the Sub-Committee on Mineral Resources Development scheduled in Calcuta, India, from November 4 to 23, 1957, and the designation of Luis Santos Iñigo, project coordinator of the Bureau of Mines, as the Philippine delegate to said conference.

The holding of this Conference is necessary to gain first hand knowledge of the economic plans to be discussed by representatives of countries within the ECAFE region which would be invaluable in the implementation of the country's program, of mineral development and industrialization. The conference will also help the country advantageously in its commercial dealings with Southeast Asian neighbors, particularly regarding mutual profit in minerals and mineral fuels.

The Cabinet authorized the inclusion of Dr. Conrado R. Pascual, officer in charge of the Institute of Nutrition among the associates and advisers of the Philippine delegation to the 27th Session of the FAO Council and 9th Session of the FAO Conference to be held in Rome, Italy, from October 31 to November 23, 1957.

The Cabinet approved the participation of the Philippines in the Asian Seminar on Vocational Guidance, including employment counselling sponsored by the ILO to be held in New Delhi, India, from November 27 to December 21, 1957, and the designation of Mrs. Cecilia Barniso and Perfect Cabut, both from the Office of Manpower Services under the Department of Labor, as Philippine delegates.

The President presided over the Cabinet meeting from 11:45 a.m. to 2:35 p.m.

THE President this day directed NARIC General Manager Vicente Concepcion to place essential NARIC personnel on 24-hour duty in order to facilitate the stabilization of the price of rice.

Concepcion was also directed by the President to rush shipments of rice to Iloilo, Cebu, Aklan, and other places in need of rice in order to bring down prices of the cereal there. He told Concepcion to utilize ships of the Philippine Navy and trucks of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, aside from other means of transportation, to transport rice throughout the country.

The President gave his directives to Concepcion in the wake of reports that speculators were reaping huge profits in places where the rice crop was not yet being harvested.

The President moreover directed RFC Chairman Eduardo Z. Romualdez to make final arrangements in implementing the new plan of helping local producers and new I (industries secure their supplies of raw materials and capital goods from the United States on a deferred payment plan.

Chairman Romualdez briefed President Garcia on the progress of negotiations being undertaken in the United States by Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno in connection with procuring requirements of local producers for raw materials and capital goods.

According to Romualdez, arrangements were being made in the United States by Gov. Cuaderno to the end that local producers and new industrialists would receive an uninterrupted supply of their raw materials and capital goods by means of deferred payment to the sources of such goods.

It was pointed out by Romualdez that under this new arrangement the drain on the country's dollar reserves would be minimized while at the same time the growth of local industries would continue unimpeded.

Romualdez said that requirements of local producers and new industrialists for this purpose amount to some $50 million a year. Under the plan being worked out in the United States, the dollar payment for these requirements may be staggered or deferred.

Romualdez also informed the President that some investment houses in New York were willing to buy dollar bonds to be issued by the Philippine Government, under proper legislation. He added that inasmuch as the present laws provided that only bonds in pesos were permitted, there was need for passing a law to authorize the issuance of bonds in dollars if this would meet with the approval of government officials concerned.

President's Month in Review: November 1-15, 1957

OFFICIAL MONTH IN REVIEW

November 1.—PRESIDENT Garcia today led the nation in the observance of All Saints' Day by paying homage to the departed presidents of the country.

Accompanied by members of his Cabinet, President Garcia laid wreaths at the tombs of the late President Ramon Magsaysay, Manuel Roxas, and Manuel L. Quezon at the North Cemetery, and at the tomb of the late President Elpidio Quirino in Makati, Rizal.

Earlier in the morning, the President heard mass at the Malacañang chapel with the members of his family.

After mass, the President together with members of the Cabinet, motored to the North Cemetery, where the President laid floral offerings. After dropping in at the cemetery in Makati, the President proceeded to Nichols airbase, where he was joined by the First Lady and their daughter Linda and her husband Fernando Campos.

The President's family boarded the PAF plane Dagohoy and took off at 10:20 a.m., arriving at the Tagbilaran airport at 12:45 p.m.

At 3:15 p.m. the President and his party took off by plane from Tagbilaran and landed at Ubay town 3:35 p.m. From Ubay they motored to the President's hometown of Talibon, where the Chief Executive visited the cemetery and laid wreaths at the tombs of his late parents, Policronio and Ambrosia.

November 2.—MALACAÑANG released this day the following report of Philippine Constabulary of Bohol on the Panglao shooting:

About 3:45 p.m., November 1, 1957, at Mohon, Panglao, Bohol, Lucio Dolojol, NP follower, while attending an LP rally conducted by ex-Rep. Luis Clarin was allegedly stabbed at the back by Bulawin and Salinas, LP followers.

When Sgt. Iluminado Pinggol of the 50th PC Company, non-commissioned officer in charge of the police force of Panglao, rushed to the scene of the crime to arrest perpetrator Angel Cimafranca, an LP follower intervened and tried to puzzle the peace officer in identifying the suspect. By coincidence, ex-Mayor Regino Sarahina with a number of followers arrived, saw the incident, and dared the LP followers and ex-Rep. Clarin. Hence, shooting ensued.

Eye witnesses testified that Patrolman Aurelio Estomata of the Panglao police force fired his service pistol towards Sarahina, and when Sarahina retaliated with his own pistol, Chief of Police Baldomero Mijares of Panglao immediately shot Sarahina.

After the incident, the following persons were victims:

LP side (dead): Angel Cimafranca, a lawyer, Luis Sanilas, Mariano Cimene, and Andres Bulawin. LP side (seriously wounded): Andres Pabalan and Camilo Cimafranca alias Boy.

NP Side (dead): Ex-Mayor Regino Sarahina. NP Side (seriously wounded): Lucio Dolojol.

Victims who were seriously wounded were rushed to the provincial hospital. Immediate arrest was effected on Chief of Police Mijares and Patrolman Estomata. The entire police force of Panglao was disarmed and temporarily placed under the Philippine Constabulary.

The motive of the incident was established as a heated political altercation about the last election. President Garcia ordered a full dress investigation of the incident.

Brig. Gen. Cornelio Bondad with special investigating team, flew to Bohol early this morning. The PC unit at Bohol was strengthened to help maintain peace and order.

PRESIDENT Garcia this afternoon confirmed that he had directed the Constabulary to place the towns of Panglao and Dauis under PC control as a result of the shooting affray between the followers of former Rep. Luis Clarin, a Liberal, and former Panglao Mayor Regina Sarahina, a Nacionalista, yesterday afternoon in barrio Mohon, Panglao, Bohol.

At the same time, the President declared that he had directed the PC to conduct a thorough investigation and to prosecute the guilty parties, irrespective of party affiliations. The President said, "Let the chips fall where they may."

The President sent money to the families of the deceased for burial expenses. He expressed surprise why local LPs refused his offer to airlift the wounded Liberals.

The President believes the shooting was caused by bad blood between "goons" of Clarin, official LP candidate for Congress, and Sarahina followers.

Lt. Col. Jose Alejandro, PC provincial commander, informed the President that the incident started when Lucio Dolojol, a Sarahina follower, was allegedly stabbed in the back at the LP rally by Andres Pabalan, a Clarin rabid follower. A PC sergeant who is the authorized Electoral Commission representative in Panglao tried to arrest Pabalan but Angel Cimafranca, nephew of Luis Clarin, intervened. At this time, Sarahina and his followers who had seen the President off at Tagbilaran airport arrived at the scene. Sarahina berated the intervention of Cimafranca and an exchange of hot words followed.

Panglao Policeman Aurelio Estomata allegedly fired at Sarahina and missed. Sarahina fired back but also missed and was shot down by Police Chief Baldomero Mijares. Both factions deployed and a free-for-all shooting started. When the smoke of battle cleared, only the dead and the wounded were left on the scene.

Police Chief Mijares and Policeman Escomata were arrested and are now under investigation at the PC headquarters. Col. Alejandro said that both would be charged, together with Pabalan, before the courts on Monday.

The President heard mass this morning at the Talibon Catholic church. Afterwards he was guest of Rev. Fr. G. S. Semprun, parish priest, at breakfast. After the breakfast, the President, the First Lady, and their daughter Linda and her husband Fernando Campos proceeded to the Catholic cemetery to visit the tombs of the parents of the President. Then they proceeded to Carmen, where the President spoke at a huge rally appealing for a solid support for the NP ticket. At the same rally, former Liberal Rep. Simeon Toribio, appealed to his fellow townsmen to forget party lines and support President Garcia.

UPON instructions of President Garcia, an indigent patient was flown recently to the United States for major plastic surgery operations which cannot be performed locally.

The patient, Miss Nicolasa Gayoso, 21, is suffering from extensive keloids (scars due to burns) all over her body which she acquired when her house burned during the Liberation.

The President's order was given following the intercession of Social Welfare Administration authorities who informed the Chief Executive that initial surgery had already been performed last month on Miss Gayoso by the famed plastic surgery specialist, Dr. Genia Sakin, who had given her services free of charge.

SWA authorities said that Dr. Sakin had promised to shoulder hospitalization and treatment expenses of Miss Gayoso in the United States. The patient will still undergo seven major plastic surgery operations.

November 3.—THE President was accorded a royal welcome on his arrival in Cebu this morning on the second leg of his current six-day campaign tour of the Visayan provinces.

Accompanied by the First Lady and children, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos, the President landed at Cebu City amid wild cheers of a mammoth throng which jam-packed the city wharf at 9:30 a.m. today. Half an hour from port, the RPS Sta. Maria bearing the presidential party was met by a fleet of gaily decorated motorboats of various sizes which served as platforms for brass bands and launching sites for fireworks. As the yacht cruised into the port escorted by motorboats, half-dozen light civilian planes took turns in swooping low and showering the yacht with flowers, varicolored strips of papers, and confetti.

From the wharf the President headed a long motorcade to the city cathedral, where a Te Deum was sung by Mons. Julio Rosales, archbishop of Cebu. Then the President proceeded to the residence of former President Sergio Osmeña on Jones Avenue and paid his respects to the Grand Old Man.”

After a brief visit at the Archbishop’s Palace, the President, at 10:30 a.m., started a tour of the northern towns of the province, terminating at 7:00 p.m. in Bogo which is more than 100 kilometers from the city. He addressed public rallies in Danao, Catmon, Sogod, Logo, Ilihan, and Bogo. He ate lunch at 2:30 p.m. in Borbon, a sitio about half way between Cebu City and Bogo.

The President found a large crowd in this town despite a heavy downpour. With him in the tour is his running mate, Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., accompanied by Gov. Jose Briones, Reps. Miguel Cuenca and Ramon Durano, and Board Member Celestino Paulin. The President is expected to return to Cebu City tonight for the last rally of the day. He will spend the night at former President Osmeña’s residence.

November 4.—PRESIDENT Garcia spent the day, his 61st birthday, in Cebu City. He began the day by hearing mass at the Cebu cathedral, together with the First Lady and his daughter Linda and her husband Fernando’ Campos.

On the occasion of his birthday, the President received felicitations from heads of state of various countries, from government officials, and from people from all walks of life all over the country. Messages of goodwill came from farmers and teachers in the rural areas, which the President treasures very much.

After hearing mass with his family at the Cebu Cathedral, the President had breakfast at Don Gil Garcia’s residence in Cebu City.

The Chief Executive spent his birthday practically on the road. After the breakfast, he motored to the southern sector of Cebu province going as far as Argao, Carcar, and Barili. The presidential party ate lunch at Bolocboloc rest house in Barili.

IN the afternoon the President motored to Aloguinsan, Panamungahan, and Toledo and then returned to Cebu City.

IN the evening the President was the guest of honor at a dinner at the Club Filipino given by 14 civic organizations of Cebu.

Afterwards, the President left by boat for Opon, where a rally was held. At midnight the President left aboard the Sta Maria for San Carlos.

THE President was wildly acclaimed as he stumped the southern towns of Cebu on his natal day and expressed confidence that the NP ticket would sweep Cebu province.

Everywhere they went, people lined the roads and shouted “Mabuhí Garcia.” In several towns, bands played and people sang “Happy Birthday.”

President Garcia appealed to the Cebuanos to support the NP founded by their favorite son, former President Osmeña. The people responded enthusiastically. In his stumping tour the President was accompanied by Gov. Jose Briones. Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., the President’s running mate, and Eulogio Balao, senatorial candidate, were with the presidential party and spoke at rallies. Both were enthusiastically cheered by the people. At Carcar the President went to the Catholic church to offer flowers at the altar of the Sacred Heart of Mary, accompanied by the people and students of St. Theresa’s College.

At barrio Tinaan, Naga, President Garcia called for the widow and relatives of Teodoro Bacor, who had died two days ago when he fell from the roof of the stage of the cement floor because he touched a live wire while fixing lighting fixtures. Porfirio Bacor, brother of Teodorico, appeared at the rally and received the condolence of the President, who also gave him financial aid for the burial expenses.

PRESIDENT Garcia’s issued the following message on the occasion of his 61st birthday today:

“I am deeply moved and humbly grateful for the many messages of felicitations sent to me by people from all walks of life all over the country on the occasion of my birthday anniversary. I am especially touched by the hundreds of messages of goodwill from farmers and teachers in our rural areas.

“On this significant milestone of my life, coming as it does on the eve of our national elections, I ask just one gift from you, my people—that you help all government, civic, and religious organizations to make the election on November 12, the freest, the cleanest, and the most orderly election ever held in our country.

“God bless you all.”

The President pardoned 51 convicts and commuted the sentences of, two others upon the recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole.

The pardons were granted on the occasion of the President’s 61st birthday.

November 5.— PRESIDENT Garcia boarded the Sta. Maria before 4 o’clock this morning after speaking at a rally in Opon, hometown of Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia. The President rested the whole morning.

At a popular banquet given by 18 civic organizations at the Club Filipino in Cebu City, people stayed up to 1:30 a.m. to hear the President speak. The President said the way the people of Cebu received him gave him more vigor to carry on the fight until the victory of the Nacionalista Party is achieved. The President spoke in the Cebuano dialect as requested by the people present at the banquet.

He took the opportunity to thank the following civic organizations: Rotary, Lions, Jaycees, Tocayos de Rizal, Cebu Press and Radio Association, Lawyers’ League, Medical Association, Knights of Columbus, Association of Engineers and Architects, Catholic Women’s League, Daughters of Isabela, Cebu Women’s Club, YLAC Women’s Auxiliary of Cebu, Katubusan sa mga Mamomoo, International Women’s League, and Pan Pacific and Southeast Asia Women’s Association of the Philippines.

At the rally in Opon after the popular banquet in Cebu City, the President received a resolution from the Labor and Tenants Organization for Good Government endorsing his candidacy. The resolution was presented by Ildefonso Remolona, executive vice-president of the organization. In acknowledging the resolution with gratitude, the President stated that he will always look after the interest and welfare of labor and tenants.

PRESIDENT Garcia arrived at San Carlos, Negros Occidental, at 3 p.m. and proceeded to the church for a Te Deum. From the church, the President motored to Calatrava town for a rally. After the Calatrava rally the President went back to San Carlos for another meeting.

San Carlos and Calatrava are both bailiwicks of Sen. Jose C. Locsin, who is with the presidential party. The two towns have a big Cebuano population and are expected to give the President majority votes.

November 6.— PRESIDENT Garcia this morning was represented by the First Lady and Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano at the breakfast given by the Chief Executive in Malacañang for James A. Linen and Frederick Gilbert, publisher and general manager of Time magazine, respectively, and Mr. and Mrs. Juan Trippe of the Pan American World Airways.

Present at the breakfast were Cabinet members, local publishers, and airline executives.

THE President said today that the Western Visayan provinces might yet swing to the Nacionalista Party in next week's elections.

Impressed by the enthusiastic receptions accorded him in his tour of the region in the last two days, the President said it was likely the people there would vote for him and the rest of the members of the NP ticket in this year's polls.

Despite the inclement weather, the Ilongos turned out by the thousands in all towns the President visited today. People from all walks of life lined the streets along the presidential route, many of whom had only newspapers or banana leaves protecting their heads from a constant drizzle.

Touched by their eagerness to see him, the President said, "If we win here, it would leave the opposition with no region where they could expect any majority vote in their favor."

Sharing the President's optimism over the results of the election in this locality, political leaders here explained that in Iloilo, for instance, 39 out of 42 mayors are Nacionalistas, four out of five congressmen are Nacionalistas, the governor is a Nacionalista, the city mayor is a Nacionalista, and Sen. Fernando Lopez is a Nacionalista. "How could the majority party lose here?" they asked.

The President landed at the Iloilo city wharf about 9 a.m. today from the RPS Sta. Maria, following an overnight voyage from San Carlos, Negros Occidental. He was immediately mobbed by the enthusiastic throng of welcomers which went out of control as soon as the President got down the gangplank at the city wharf.

About half an hour earlier, the presidential yacht was met by a fleet of fishing sailboats and motorboats which escorted the ship to the wharf. Heading a large crowd at the wharf were Sen. Lopez, Gov. Mariano Peñaflorida, City Mayor Rodolfo Ganzon, Rep. Ricardo Y. Ladrido, and other officials of Iloilo and nearby provinces. The local military unit boomed a 21-gun salute as the President, accompanied by Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., his running mate, went down the gangplank.

After acknowledging the cheers of his welcomers, the President headed a long motorcade to the cathedral where a Te Deum was sung. Then he started a tour of Iloilo towns during which he covered the third and the fourth congressional districts of the province. He also inaugurated the city's newly constructed ₱1 million super-highway. Among the towns where the President held rallies were Sta. Barbara, Cabatuan, Janiway, Fototan, and Barotac Viejo.

The last rally was held this evening in Iloilo City. Accompanying the President in the tour were Sen. Lopez, Gov. Peñaflorida, senatorial candidates Roseller T. Lim, Arturo M. Tolentino, Oscar Ledesma, Francisco Delgado, and Jose Locsin. During his tour in the third district, the President was invariably introduced by Domitilo Abordo, NP standard bearer.

The presidential party ate lunch at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Mariano Tiongco in Janiuary. They were house guests of Sen. Lopez in Iloilo City.

TITLES to two big haciendas will be turned over to the government within this week, Malacañang announced today.

The vast Yutivo estate situated at Caguray, San Jose, Mindoro Occidental, containing an area of 2,936.8 hectares, will be turned over tomorrow at ceremonies in San Jose, Mindoro Occidental. The Hacienda Felicidad Intal situated at Baggao, Cagayan, with an area of 1,017 hectares, will be delivered on Saturday morning at Baggao, Cagayan.

Malacañang said the acquisition of these estates was in pursuance of the vigorous implementation of the land reform program begun by the late President Magsaysay and continued by President Garcia.

The Yutivo estate is owned by Yu Khe Thai, until recently a Chinese national, while the Hacienda Feicidad Intal is owned by the estate of the late Jose V. Bagjtas. More than 700 landless farmers will be benefited by the acquisition off the Yutivo property while around 300 tenants will be given farm lands in Hacienda Felicidad Intal.

Commissioner Julian U. de Vera, member of the Land Tenure Administration, in charge of operations, will represent the President in the turnover ceremonies in both estates. The tenants in Mindoro will be represented by Urbano Olivares and those in Cagayan will be represented by the Federation of Free Farmers.

November 7.—THIS morning the President spoke at the University of the Philippines Little Theater before faculty members and students in a convocation sponsored by the U.P. Writers' Club. The President motored to UP immediately after he landed at the Nichols Airbase from Iloilo. He arrived at the University of the Philippines past 11 a.m. (See Historical Papers and Documents, pp. 7658-7635, for the full text of the President's speech.) ‘

PRESIDENT Garcia after delivering his major speech on the Administration's economic policies at the U.P. theater in Diliman Q.C., motored to a Quezon City restaurant where he gave a luncheon in honor of the members of the U.P. Writers' Club, headed by their president, Perfecto Fernandez.

In brief extemporaneous remarks after the luncheon, the President counselled the U.P. writers to write always the truth “so that your works will shine through the ages.”:

The President added, “Stick to the truth even in adversity because it is during this circumstance that you can be inspired most.”

Those present at the presidential table with President Garcia were Education Secretary Manuel Lim, Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, Acting U.P. President Enrique; T. Virata, Dean Tomas Fonacier, Dr. Antonio Isidro, Quezon City Mayor Norberto Amoranto, U.P. Writers' Club President Perfecto Fernandez, U.P. Writers' Club Vice-President Benito Lim, and Jose Campos, Jr. j

Before the luncheon, the President received Liberal Party Mayor Faustino V. Marcelo of Sta. Cruz, Laguna, who took his oath of affiliation to the Nacionalista Party before him Marcelo was accompanied by Laguna Gov. Dominador Chipeco, Rep. Weneeslao R. Lagumbay, and several barrio lieutenants Ox Sta. Cruz who also took their oath as NP members.

The President also administered the oath of affiliation to Virgilio Felix, PPP congressional candidate, of the first district of Tarlac.

After the luncheon, the President was interviewed over the television by Wade Bingham and Peter Calischer of the Columbia Broadcasting System. The television interview took place in one of the halls of the D & E restaurant.

From the restaurant, the j President motored back to Malacañang.

THIS afternoon the President signed the executive order implementing the recommendations of the WAPCO regarding the adjustments of salaries of government employees and said that salary differentials resulting from the implementation would be paid starting tomorrow.

The President signed the executive order before a large delegation of the Philippine Government Employees' Association. The government employees from the various office marched to Malacañang to witness the signing of the executive order.

In presenting the executive order for the President's signature, Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona said that the implementation of the WAPCO plan was "the greatest act of justice ever done to government employees."

The sum of ₱10,200,000 which was appropriated by Congress was ready for the implementation of the salary adjustments. A total of 209,320 positions were classified by the WAPCO and the number of employees to receive salary readjustments was estimated at 113,820.

According to Commissioner Aytona, the ₱10,200,000 represents 30 per cent of all salary readjustments required during the first year of implementation. He assured government (employees that the remaining 70 per cent of funds needed for full implementation will be provided in the next two fiscal years.

Commissioner Aytona further declared when he presented the executive order for the President's signature that under the new system "no longer will government employees need padrinos to obtain promotions because the WAPCO plans provide for automatic salary increases as long as efficiency is up to standard."

The President was presented with a testimonial plaque by the PGEA for his exemplary government service devoted to the upliftment of government employees. The plaque was handed by Gregorio Limjuco, PGEA president, who also delivered a short speech.

The President made a brief speech in accepting the plaque and said that he would continue looking after the welfare of the people and the government employees, in particular.

Present at the signing of the executive order were Senator Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez, Labor Secretary Angel Castaño, and officials of the PGEA.

AFTER the signing of the executive order which was held at the Malacañang compound, the President motored to the University of the East, where he addressed a huge student convocation (See Historical Papers pp. 7665-7677 of speech).

Arriving at the UE about 6:30 p.m., the President was met by university officials headed by Francisco Dalupan, UE president. The President spoke at the UE quadrangle after he had received his guard of honor composed of the university's model company. With the Chief Executive were Labor Secretary Castaño and other government officials.

After his UE speech, the President went to the National Civil Defense Administration office on the Luneta where he broadcast a speech over the NCDA's radio station.

PRESIDENT Garcia this afternoon underscored the importance of the nation-wide National Civil Defense Administration radio network in a speech broadcast over the NCDA's 1,000 receiving sets installed at public plazas all over the country.

The President was invited to broadcast his speech over the NCDA network by NCDA Chief Alfredo Eugenio. Underscoring the importance of the radio network, the President said that it could serve as a guide to safety in war and in peace.

The Chief Executive said that the NCDA radio could forewarn the people of impending typhoons, earthquakes, and other calamities. He said it could indirectly stand as a single formidable preventive to the spread of communism in our country.

He also cited the fact that the control of epidemics through mass education could conveniently be handled through the medium of the NCDA radio. He further said that the fight against communism would be won successfully through the continuous dissemination of wholesome and truthful information over the radio.

Taking opportunity of the occasion to report to the people, the President remarked that among the accomplishment of the Nacionalista administration were the establishment of peace and order, the restoration of faith and confidence of the people in the government, and the busting of the Politburo and the communist plot to overthrow the government.

November 8.—PRESIDENT Garcia today was advised by his physicians to rest for a few days because of bad throat.

The doctors' advice was given to the President after physicians of the V. Luna General Hospital and the President's personal physicians had examined the President's throat at the V. Luna General Hospital.

As a result of his physicians' advice, the President had to cancel all his engagements. The President was scheduled to enplane for Aklan and Capiz tomorrow morning but owing to the advice of his physicians, he had to forego the trip.

The President did not receive callers this morning. After breakfast, he had a huddle with his assistants and then motored to the V. Luna General Hospital. He was accompanied by his physicians, Drs. Antonio Guytingco and Alejandro Gaerlan, Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, and Lt. Melchor Fronda, naval aide.

After the check-up at the hospital, the President went to a hide-out where he was advised to rest by his physicians.

THE President today directed Commissioner of Customs Fleuterio Capapas to see to it that all films in connection with the election coverage being sent out by foreign correspondents be free from all restrictions and duties. The President said that these films should be attended to by airport officials with dispatch.

President Garcia a few days ago issued an invitation to correspondents of the free world, especially those from Southeast Asia, to act as observers in connection with the President's determination to hold clean free and honest elections.

In response to the President's invitation, several foreign correspondents have already arrived to cover the elections.

In order to insure expeditious dispatch of these films about election activities, the President directed that no restriction be made on the sending out of these films.

THE purchase of three lots by the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation for subdivision and homesite purposes was approved by the Cabinet this day. The three lots are:

(1) 752.490 hectares of Hacienda Sapang Palay in Sta. Maria, Norsagaray, and San Jose del Monte, Bulacan, worth ₱3,574,327.50;

(2) 3,919,804 square meters in Montalban, Rizal, worth ₱1,959,902; and

The lots will be paid from the Joan now being negotiated by the PHHC with the GSIS. The Cabinet approved the purchase of the lots as recommended by the PHHC board of directors in three resolutions.

The outright sale of the lots and houses in Project 7 to the actual occupants was also discussed at the Cabinet meeting. The Cabinet said that it was sympathetic with the petition of the occupants for outright ownership of their lots and houses through sale. It was pointed out however, that the Cabinet was waiting for comments from the chairman and general manager of the PHHC and the Office of Economic Coordination before any action could be taken on the petition of the Project 7 occupants.

A committee to determine: the sufficiency of local materials for the manufacture of jute sacks was created by the Cabinet following a request filed by the NAMARCO general manager for the temporary lifting of the existing ban against the importation of Hessian cloth needed for the manufacture of jute sacks which are essential to the sugar, ripe, and copra industries.

The committee, Composed of Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona chairman, and National Economic Council Chairman Eduardo Romualdez and OEC Chief Juan Concon, members, was directed to report on its findings at the next meeting of the Cabinet.

Also approved by the Cabinet was the sending of Philippine delegations to the Ninth Pacific Science Congress to be held in Bangkok from November 18 to December 9, 1957, and to the United Nations Technical Assistance Administration-sponsored Seminar on the Prevention of Crime and Treatment of Offenders to be held in Tokyo from November 25 to December 7, 1957.

The 14-man Philippine delegation to the Ninth Pacific Science Congress with Dr. Antonio G. Sison as the head, is composed of Dr. Patrocinio Valenzuela, Dr. Joaquin Marañon, Dr. Amando Clemente, Dr. Alfredo C. Santos Dr. Cecilio Lopez, Prof. H. O. Beyer, Dr. Hilario Lara, Prof. Arturo Alcaraz, Dr. Valente Villegas, Dr. Jose N. Rodriguez, Dr. Jose Vera Santos Dr Sofia Bona de Santos, and Dr. J. J Dizon.

The Philippine participation to the Seminar on the Prevention of Crime and Treatment of Offenders is composed of Dr. Jorge Bocobo, Assistant Prisons Director Eriberto Misa, Social Welfare Administrator Amparo P. Villamor, and Major Tepdulo Natividad.

The Cabinet meeting was presided over by Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason in the absence of President Garcia, who went to the V. Luna General Hospital for a check-up his throat.

November 9.— STILL suffering from throat ailment, the President hied off this morning to a “hideout” somewhere in Fort McKinley and spent ”the day conferring with his political lieutenants and confidantes.

He cancelled a: flying trip to Mambajao Island upon the advice of his physicians who told him to rest until Monday in order to be able to address a miting de avance on Plaza Miranda.

In his “hideout” the President received reports on the arrival of rice shipments imported, to supplement the present supply of the Naric.

He immediately called up Vicente Concepcion, Naric manager, and ordered him to speed up the distribution of the cereal.

While the President was in his “hideout”, a large crowd gathered in Malacañang until late in the evening.

Malacañang said the people who trooped to the Palace in the evening were victims of Liberal Party propagandists who posed as NP men and urged them to ask for money and tickets from Malacañang so that they could go to the province and vote.

President Garcia returned to Malacañang late in the evening.

November 10.—THE PRESIDENT spent a quiet day continuing his rest as advised by his physicians. As a result of the rest, his throat has improved, his physician said.

The President's voice has so improved that he will be in condition to address a mammoth Nacionalista rally Monday evening on Plaza Miranda.

President Garcia continued his rest at his hide-out near Manila. He heard mass this morning and afterwards retired to his room. He went over state papers during the day.

The President did not receive any callers except Mrs. Garcia and daughter Linda and other immediate members of his family who visited him in the evening.

Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison also called on the President in the evening. During the call the Chief Executive issued a statement lauding the statements of Papal Nuncio Egidio Vagnozzi and Bishop Mariano Madriaga.

THE President praised the Catholic hierarchy for denouncing attempts to create a false impression that the Catholic Church was endorsing the candidacy of Jose Yulo.

The President lauded the action taken by Apostolic Nuncio Egidio Vagnozzi and Bishop Mariano Madriaga of the Lingayen-Dagupan diocese in repudiating the claims in leaflets being circulated which called the attention of all Catholic voters that the Catholic Church wanted Yulo to be president.

He said that the statements of Vagnozzi and Madriaga would go a long way in helping keep the elections free, honest, and clean.

The Chief Executive said that he was glad that the Catholic Church officials had made the necessary announcement in setting right the position of the Catholic Church relative to the November 12 elections.

He expressed the hope that, with the highest officials of the Catholic Church of the Philippines having categorically declared that the Church was not backing any candidate or party, voters would be guided accordingly.

November 11.—DESPITE a continuous light drizzle brought in by typhoon, President Garcia motored to Plaza Miranda this evening to make a final appeal to the city voters.

Earlier in the afternoon, he stayed at his "hideout" and conferred with his political advisers.

The President was reported to have been toying with his plan of flying tomorrow for Tagbilaran, Bohol, where he will cast his vote. He will fly with the First Lady, who will vote in Talibon, the President's hometown.

The President, however, stayed in the Palace this afternoon. He conferred with Malacañang officials and discussed some pending state papers awaiting his decision.

Dr. Antonio Guytingco said today that the President's throat ailment has improved considerably. He said that he was in condition to address the miting de avance this evening.

Commenting on the typhoon which hit some sections of the country this day, the President said the storm would not adversely affect the elections tomorrow. He observed, however, that the typhoon and the continuous drizzle may discourage some of the people who had earlier planned to hear him at the political rally on Plaza Miranda.

Before leaving for his “hideout” shortly before nightfall this afternoon, the President received Acting Press Secretary G. V. Sison and answered some questions submitted to him by newsmen.

THE following is a set of Questions asked of President Garcia by Malacañang reporters, together with the President’s answers to the questions:

(1) QUESTION: Mr. President, how do you feel on the eve of the elections? ANSWER: I am highly optimistic.

(2) QUESTION: Mr. President, do you have any comment to make on the latest LP advertisement that Catholic prelates are backing Mr. Yulo for President, adding that the LP’s previous claim is true, has been verified, and has not been denied?

ANSWER: The Papal Nuncio, Monsignor Egidio Vagnozzi, who is the highest representative of the Pope in this country, has denied emphatically that the Catholic hierarchy is taking sides in these elections. The Papal Nuncio unmistakably declared the absolute neutrality of the Catholic Church in these elections. If this is not a denial of the Liberal Party’s fantastic claim, then the meaning of English words has been twisted by the Liberals to suit their own purpose.

Moreover, the Sentinel which is the authorized organ of the Catholic hierarchy in its editorial Tuesday (Nov. 12), says in part the following:

“To claim, as this leaflet does, that ‘The Church would want Yulo to be the next President to safeguard our Holy Mother Church, is too presumptuous for any lay man to make.

“It is certainly false to say that 95% of all the Catholic priests in the entire Philippines are for Mr. Yulo.”

If the above quoted editorial is not a denial of the LP claims, then there must be something fundamentally wrong with the LP mentality.

(3) QUESTION: Mr. President, what will you stress at the miting de avance tonight?

ANSWER: I will make a last appeal to the Filipino people in behalf of the Nacionalista party, and incidentally will call the attention of the nation to the iniquitous falsehoods of the LP propaganda, especially that referring to the LP claim that the Catholic hierarchy was allegedly backing Mr. Yulo.

I shall sum up the achievements of the NP administration as the basis for my plea to the people to continue the NP in power in order to bring to completion the late President Magsaysay’s Five-Year Fiscal plan. In summing up the achievements, I shall make special reference to the administration’s rural development program and the amelioration of the lot of the laborers, veterans, teachers, employees, farmers, and small businessmen.

I shall also mention the economic advancement the country has achieved during the past four years.

(4) QUESTION: Mr. President, what do you think will be the effect of the typhoon on the elections tomorrow?

ANSWER: According to the latest Weather Bureau reports, the typhoon is moving away and is expected not to affect the holding of the elections tomorrow.

(5) QUESTION: Mr. President, how do you assess now the chances of all the Nacionalista Party candidates, which include Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., and the senatorial candidates?

ANSWER: My personal estimate is that I shall get a majority of between 700,000 to 1,000,000 votes over the second best presidential candidate.

In this eventuality, the vice-presidential candidate, Laurel, and all the NP senatorial candidates will win.

THE following as President Garcia's message on the occasion of Election Day tomorrow.

"The holding of our national elections this year is another test of the capacity of our people to continue exercising our democratic prerogatives.

"We are steeped in the ways of democracy and freedom. Now we should show by our deeds that we have matured as a democratic and free people.

"I have taken the necessary measures to insure the holding of free, clean, and honest elections. I will see to it that these directives are fully implemented.

"My countrymen: I appeal to all of you to go to the polls and vote, and to cooperate in attaining our common objective of holding free, clean, and honest elections. With God's help and our people's wisdom, we shall hold the most democratic elections."

November 12.—PRESIDENT Garcia today cancelled his plans of flying to Tagbilaran, Bohol, where he and the First Lady were scheduled to cast flash votes.

Despite his failure to fly home and vote, President Garcia beamed with optimism that he would win the elections saying that the inclement weather brought about by typhoon Kit would increase the margin of his victory.

He pointed out the typhoon which hit some sections of Luzon would discourage voters in those areas from voting. President Garcia had expected stiff opposition in Luzon.

However, Mindanao and East Visayas, where he had expected to poll large majorities, were spared by the typhoon.

Waking up early this morning although he stayed late last night to address the miting de avance on Plaza Miranda, the President prepared for his scheduled trip to Bohol.

His advisers counselled him against proceeding with the trip on account of the bad weather.

While waiting for the weather to clear up, President Garcia went down to the Malacañang chapel and prayed. He was joined by Sen. Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez and a number of newsmen.

Coming out from the chapel, the President was met by radio men and was interviewed over the radio and television.

After a brief interview at the ground floor, he went around the social hall and viewed preparations for the canvassing of election returns.

The President then received newsmen and other guests at the family dining room. He later abandoned plans of touring the city precincts.

AT noontime the President repaired to his hideout where he spent the afternoon waiting for reports on the nationwide elections.

In his hideout he; received reports of early returns from the radio network of the National Civil Defense Administration.

The Chief Executive was reported to have been elated after reports reached him that early returns from Tanauan, Batangas, hometown of Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., his running mate, gave all his rivals zero.

Upon hearing of the Cavite shooting, President Garcia issued a statement commending Lt. Col. Laureano Marana, commander of the Cavite PC, who was slain by henchmen of Leonardo Manecio, alias “Nardong Putik,” outlaw leader long wanted by the government.

The President spent the early evening in his hideout and, despite unfavorable voting trends in Manila, he was reported unperturbed. He was heard to have expressed optimism about his victory.

November 13.—PRESIDENT Garcia today declined Manila Mayor Arsenio Lacson’s tender of resignation and asked the mayor to stay in office.

Malacañang made this announcement after Mayor Lacson’s letter of resignation was brought to the President in his hideout this afternoon by Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison.

In putting his thumbs down on Lacson’s resignation, President Garcia said that he did not think the results of the election in Manila showed lack of confidence of the city electorate in Lacson.

The President pointed out that according to political observers Manila voters had always voted against the administration candidates, usually with the opposition winning by a sizeable majority.

“The fact that the Administration, comparatively speaking, lost by a few thousand votes in Manila; is credit enough for Mayor Lacson,” said the President.

He added: “This comparatively small margin of defeat of the Administration in the City of Manila shows the confidence of the people in Mayor Lacson.”

“I am prevailing on Mayor Lacson to continue to stay as the chief executive of the city of Manila,” said the President.

He made his decision on the letter of resignation of Mayor Lacson at his hide-out.

The President spent his morning and part of the afternoon listening to the reports of the election returns through radio and television. He was pleased to learn of the mounting lead which incomplete reports of the election returns showed he had over his rivals in the presidential race.

He was calm and collected as he listened to the election returns. The President, while listening to election returns, played chess with Capt. Francisco Calinawan.

The President did not receive any callers during the day. Only Nacionalista Information Officer Jose C. Nable saw the President in the morning and briefed the Chief Executive on the latest election returns.

THIS afternoon the President motored from his hideout to S. del Rosario Street in Gagalangin where he viewed the body of the late Lt. Col. Laureano Maraña, the slain PC commander of Cavite.

The President condoled with the widow of the colonel and with the colonel’s mother.

From the Maraña residence in S. del Rosario Street, the President motored to the Camp Murphy chapel, where he visited the remains of the late Lt. Domingo Pabilani, Cpl. Florencio Esperitu, Pfc. Eusebio Mazano, and Sgt. Roberto Calopas. The President condoled with the families of the deceased and extended to them financial assistance.

The slain Army men at the chapel were among the companions of the late Col. Maraña, who had died in an encounter with Cavite bandit Leonardo Manecio and his men last Election Day.

At the Camp Murphy chapel the President learned that November 13, in the birthday of the late Lt. Pabilani and that he had planned to be married today to his fiancée, Miss Nenita Visco, who was present at the chapel.

The President was accompanied by Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas, Defense Undersecretary Mariano Yenke, Jr., Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff; Acting Press Secretary Sison, and Major Jose Estrella, presidential aide.

From the chapel, the President motored back to his hide-out.

IN the evening the President directed the Bureau of Telecommunications to keep its telegraph lines continuously open until all the election results all over the country had been transmitted to the Commission on Elections.

The President issued the directive on the recommendation of the Commission on Elections.

In issuing the directives, the President expressed his eagerness to avoid unnecessary delay in the transmission of poll results to the Commission. He reiterated his desire to keep this year's election clean and orderly.

November 14.—PRESIDENT Garcia was like an "expectant father," waiting for more than 48 hours since Wednesday for the long-awaited "concession of defeat" from Speaker Jose Yulo, Liberal presidential candidate.

The President stayed in his "hideout" outside the city, playing chess and receiving telephone reports of late election returns which widened his margin over the LP presidential standard bearer.

It was learned that the President was waiting for Mr. Yulo's acknowledgment of defeat before he would plunge into a series of victory banquets.

Acting Secretary of foreign Affairs Felixberto M. Serrano saw the President in his "hideout" and reported on the political situation in Batangas.

It was not known what the secretary told the President, but it was learned that he had just returned from Batangas where he campaigned for the administration candidates.

Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon also saw the President and reported on the political situation in Bataan. De Leon voted in Bataan.

Secretary de Leon also brought some papers to the President for study.

Others who cabled on the President in his "hideout" were acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable, and Willie Jurado.

IN the afternoon, the President received visiting foreign correspondents who came to the Philippines to cover the last election.

The President thanked the newsmen for their response to his invitation to come to the Philippines and witness the conduct of the election.

President Garcia told his visitors that "we have one of the most peaceful and orderly elections." He said that the Cavite slaying which resulted in the killing of Lt. Col. Laureano Maraña, Cavite constabulary commander, was "non-political."

The President answered questions fired by the foreign correspondents, but cautioned them against releasing it for publication until Yulo has conceded his defeat.

While the President was answering the correspondents' questions, Mrs. Garcia and their daughter, Linda, arrived. They were accompanied by Jose D. Aspiras.

PRESIDENT Garcia today called for strengthening of the present close ties between the Philippines and the United States "in these uncertain circumstances."

The President made the appeal in a special message to the nation on the occasion of the annual observance today, November 15, of Philippine-American Day set aside by the Philippine Government on the date falling on the inauguration of the Philippine Commonwealth.

The following is the text of President Garcia's message on the occasion of Philippine-American Day, November 15:

"It is most fitting that the Philippine Government has set aside November 15 of every year as Philippine-American Day.

"For more than half a century the Philippines and the United States have been very intimately associated, bound by strong ties of friendship and ideals such as the strengthening of democracy and freedom everywhere. This relationship has undergone the test of blood and fire in times of war, and the test of understanding in times of peace.

"During these uncertain circumstances obtaining in the world, it is indeed imperative that Philippine-American friendship should be made stronger in the interest of further promoting the mutual interests of both countries and in contributing to the peace of mankind.

"I am therefore happy that we are celebrating Philippine-American Day this year in the hope that our relationship with the United States become firmer, based as it has always been on mutual respect."

November 15.—PRESIDENT Garcia motored out of his "hideout" in Pasig, Rizal, after it had been identified by a Manila newspaper.

Waking up late after listening to radio reports of late election returns yesterday, the President found the residence of Assistant Executive Secretary Nicanor T. Jimenez with large groups of well-wishers.

Annoyed, the President boarded the Santa Maria which he immediately converted into a "floating hideout".

The President stayed aboard the Santa Maria the whole day. He met defense and military officials; who reported on the peaceful conduct of the last elections.

PRESIDENT Garcia today was informed by Brig. Gen. Manuel F. Cabal, PC chief, that there had been general peace and order during the election last November 12.

Cabal told the President that the country never had a more peaceful election than the recent one.

The President thanked all the Army officers and men through Gen. Cabal and all those who contributed their share in conducting free, orderly, and peaceful election.

After the Cabal report, the President met with Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas and Lt. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff. They discussed the proposed AFP budget for the next fiscal year. No details were given.

Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon and Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable were also present.

Gen. Alfonso Arellano is leaving for the United States Monday on the invitation of the United States chief of staff.

Earlier in the morning, President Garcia motored from his hideout to the La Consolacion College chapel at Mendiola Street where he heard a thanksgiving mass for the Holding of the recent peaceful election.

The President was accompanied by Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, together with daughter Linda and husband Fernando Campos. The President received Holy Communion.

Arriving at the chapel at 7 a.m., the presidential family was greeted by members of the faculty of the college headed by Sor Maria Carmen.

After the mass, the First Family returned to Malacañang where they ate breakfast.

President and Mrs. Garcia gave a dinner in honor of Ambassador and Mrs. Charles E. Bohlen at 8 in the evening at Malacañang Palace.

President's Month in Review: November 16-30, 1957

OFFICIAL MONTH IN REVIEW

November 16.—PRESIDENT Garcia today laid down the basis for his state-of-the-nation message before the joint session of Congress which opens in January, 1958, with emphasis on the nation's economic problems.

The President directed Cabinet members to submit a summary of accomplishments of their respective departments for inclusion in his Congress message. These reports will include positive recommendations to Congress.

The President has set the deadline for the submission of these reports of accomplishments for December 1.

The President today mobilized the Social Welfare Administration to give immediate Assistance to victims of typhoon Kit, which caused untold damages on public and private property and loss of human lives.

The President directed defense and Armed Forces authorities to lend direct assistance to the SWA. The presidential directive was issued after the Chief Executive had received comprehensive report of the typhoon damages from Assistant Executive Secretary Nicanor Jimenez.

President Garcia also ordered Air Force planes for Tacloban and Bacolod to airlift patients from these cities.

In Tacloban, Leodegaria Cabillo, 8-year old, who is suffering from severe brain injuries due to an accident, was ordered airlifted to Manila for treatment in the V. Luna General Hospital. She was taken from the Leyte Provincial Hospital on an Air Force plane and airlifted to Manila.

In Bacolod city, Mrs. Rosario Gustillo, wife of E. Gustillo, president of the lawyers' association in Bacolod, who was suffering from hysterical paralysis, was also ordered airlifted aboard an Air Force plane for treatment in Manila. She was taken to the V. Luna General Hospital.

November 17.—THIS morning President Garcia wrote his message on the occasion of his victory in the recent elections.

The President wrote his message after hearing a family "thanksgiving mass" aboard the RPS Sarita Maria, where he had stayed since yesterday studying state papers.

The President's family boarded the yacht this morning to congratulate the President on his election. Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, daughter Linda, and son-in-law, Fernando Campos, got on the yacht which was anchored off the breakwater at 9:10 a.m. They were accompanied by Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable, acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, and Benigno Aquino, Jr.

Upon arrival of the President's family mass was immediately said. The President received Holy Communion. After the mass the Chief Executive wrote his message. Then the President and his family, together with a few relatives and friends, ate breakfast. The yacht then made a leisurely cruise in Manila Bay and returned to Pier 5 in the evening.

THE President today issued the following message:

"With deep humility and gratitude I accept the mandate of the Filipino people through the recent elections to administer the affairs of the nation during the next four years. Our people have spoken and let every true Filipino abide by that decision.

"Ours is not only a victory of the Nacionalista Party but the triumph of democracy.

“I thank Messrs. Jose Yulo, Manuel P. Manahan, Claro M. Recto, and Antonio Quirino for their good wishes for a successful administration. I also offer my sincerest thanks to all those who have worked to make our victory possible.

“I make special mention of the Commission on Elections, the Philippine Constabulary, the corps of untiring, vigilant, and courageous teachers, the press and the radio, and others who redeemed my pledge for a free, orderly, clean, and honest elections.

“This clear-cut mandate is a fresh source of inspiration and strength for me to carry on in the great traditions bequeathed by our forbears.

“On this momentous hour of our country’s history, I rededicate myself to the service of the people. And with the aid of Divine Providence and with our great people by my side, I am confident, we will succeed.”

AFTER Waiting for almost a week for the complete “surrender” of his political rivals, The President finally received word in the evening that former Speaker Jose Yulo had “conceded.”

The report caught the men around him by surprise, but they soon went wild with jubilation, President Garcia was cruising aboard the Santa Maria, mulling over the state papers and at the same time plotting counter-moves in the event the Liberals pushed through their plans of protesting his election.

Legislative Secretary, Jose C. Nable, who drove the propaganda mill, was reported to have jumped hilariously after words flashed from Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison that Yulo had finally conceded, reached the yacht.

The report spread like the proverbial wildfire in the yacht and immediately the President called up the First Lady at the Palace to report to her the happy news.

President Garcia’s victory climaxed 32 years of political life, undefeated and unopposed.

He had told newsmen previously that he had always won with such convincing majorities that he had never been the object of election protests.

With the President aboard the yacht were Assistant Executive Secretary Nicanor T. Jimenez, Nable, and Lt. Rolando Kagaon. Nable was with a large entourage of “rah-rah boys”; namely, Mariano R. Logarta, Jose D. Aspiras, and ex-Mayor Benigno S. Aquino, Jr.

It was learned that Aquino saw the President and tried to explain the defeat of President Garcia and Speaker Laurel in Tarlac.

November 18.— AFTER six days in “hiding” since Election Day Presidential Garcia returned triumphantly to Malacañang early this morning.

He had shied away from the Palace since Election Day, having stayed for three days in his “hideout” which was the residence of Assistant Executive Secretary Nicanor T. Jimenez, and later “hid” himself on the yacht, Santa Maria, to wait for “concession of defeat” from his political adversaries.

Upon his return to Malacañang, the President found the Palace ground littered with placards asking for the relief of Jose Panganiban as General Manager of the National Development Company.

PRESIDENT Garcia today called NDC officials to Malacañang and reiterated his previous directive that NDC workers be granted a general pay increase.

The President reiterated his directive at a conference with NDC Board Chairman Jose Fernandez; Director Sergio Bayan, General Manager Jose Panganiban, and Eulogio Lerum, counsel of the NDC-National Textile Workers Union.

At the same time, the President received well-wishers who trooped to Malacañang to congratulate him on his victory in the last elections.

Among the well-wishers were Senator-elect Eulogio Balao; Representatives-elect Francisco Ortega of La Union, Maximino Noel of Cebu, Jose Aldeguer of Iloilo, Constancio Castañeda of Tarlac Benjamin Ligot of Cagayan, Emilio Cortez of Pampanga, and Salvador Encinas of Sorsogon; and Govs. Manuel Barretto of Zambales, Serafin L. Teves of Negros Oriental, and Jose Dinglasan of Capiz.

The President also received Minnesota Gov. Orville L. Freeman, who was accompanied by Mrs. Freeman; and a big delegation of Minnesotans.

A member of the delegation, Mr. S. J. Kryzsko, President of the Winona National and Savings Bank, gave a letter of Brother I. Basil, F. S. C, President of Saint Mary's College in Winona, Minn., to the President wherein he was informed of the "successful work of four young Filipinos, Brother Benildo Lamberto (Lamberto Feliciano), Brother Arthur Henry (Enrique Lazatin), Brother Augusto Soloman (Raul Mirasol) and Brother Andrews Benjamin (Macario Gonzalez), who are preparing themselves to teach in your schools in the Philippine Islands."

Other members of the Minnesota delegation were Mrs. Maria Arvig, William T. Collins, Dr. James A. Cosgriff, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cramond, Thomas Dransfield, William G. Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Johnson, George Kircher, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kvamme, L. J. Lauerma, H. J. Mickelson, Joseph Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Olson, W. B. Resnick, George L. Peterson, H. O. Lindberg, and Robert Doyle.

Another presidential caller was Rep. Dalip Singh Saund of California, who was accompanied by Minister Horace Smith, charge d' affaires of the U.S. Embassy; James N. Tull, press attache; and Henry Brodie, first secretary. A native of India, Rep. Saund is a naturalized citizen of the United States.

Col. Harry Brenn, ICA director in Manila, called on the President to introduce his successor Paul D. Summers, who until recently was the deputy director of the Far East in the Washington ICA office.

Armando Diaz, manager of the GSIS administrative department, gave the President his 1957 GSIS dividend amounting to ₱58.50. Federico Romero and Baltazar Guerra, GSSIS officials, accompanied Diaz.

Officials of the Liberty Milk headed by R. J. Cooley, assistant vice-president of the General Milk Co., Los Angeles; J. L. Terrassa, general manager; and W. T. Miller, assistant manager of General Milk Company (Philippines), also called on the President to invite him to attend the inauguration of the Liberty Milk factory at Mandaluyong, Rizal.

The President also received Willie Jurado and former Press Secretary J. V. Cruz. The President thanked Jurado for helping him in the campaign in the northern Luzon provinces. JV, who lost in his bid for the lone congressional district of Bataan, told the President he was protesting the re-election of Rep. Jose Nuguid.

However, he told the President he was willing to help the Administration in a private capacity.

JV told the President he is putting up an advertising agency while awaiting the outcome of his protest against Nuguid. The President assured JV he would help him.

IN the evening the president and the First Lady heard a thanksgiving mass at the Malacañang social hall.

After the mass, the President presided over his first post election press conference. A large group of newsmen, Malacañang hangers-on, and kibitzers attended the press conference and merienda-cena which followed the President's first brush with newsmen.

November 19—PRESIDENT Garcia today continued receiving well-wishers and congratulatory messages from friends in the Philippines and abroad.

Among the messages from friends, abroad was that from President Izhak Ben-Zvi of Israel, who expressed his confidence that under the leadership of President Garcia "the Republic of the Philippines will continue its important contribution to the causal of world peace and international collaboration."

Other congratulatory messages came from Neil Blaisdell, mayor of Honolulu; H. H. Herts, vice-president of the Philippine-American Chamber of Commerce; Ted Ayers, executive producer of the Columbia Broadcasting System; and Averill Harriman and Heil Crawford.

To well-wishers who flocked to Malacañang, the President expressed his satisfaction that the recent elections were very peaceful, orderly, and clean.

The President received Representatives-elect Augusto Francisco of Manila, Lorenzo Teves of Negros Oriental, Agustin Coscolluela of Negros Occidental, Reynaldo Honrado of Surigao, Alberto Ubay of Zamboanga del Norte, Faustino Tobias of Ilocos Sur, and Dominador Tan of Leyte, who congratulated him.

The solons from Eastern Visayas and Mindanao informed the President that the majority garnered by the Nacionalista Party in the recent elections was bigger than that obtained in 1953.

Mayor Mariano Perdices of Dumaguete City and Miss Lourdes N. Napalinga, editor of The Negrense, a magazine published in Bacolod City, accompanied the solons.

President Garcia also received Chinese Ambassador Chen Chi-mai, William Walker of the U.S Embassy; C. Hart Schaaf, resident representative in the Philippines of the United Nations Technical Assistance Board; Justice Alejo Labrador of the Supreme Court, Pampanga Gov. Rafael Lazatin; and Manuel Leelin; local manufacturer of the Willard batteries.

THE President today directed RFC Chairman Eduardo Z. Romualdez to extend the fullest possible financial assistance to farmers and planters, especially by making more widely availed of the new policy of granting loans even to those whose lands do not as yet have Torrens titles.

The President made this directive as one of the steps to encourage more people to produce primary food crops, like rice and corn, in order to make the country self-sufficient in its staple food supplies.

This was one of the points the President brought out in his first post election press conference yesterday when he said that his primary concern was the solution of the economic problems of the country.

At the same time, President Garcia directed the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources and the Department of Public Works and Communications to make on-the-field surveys of the destruction to crops and property caused by the recent typhoon Kit.

The President said that he needed these figures and statistics on the destruction so that proper steps could be taken to avoid any shortage in rice and corn especially in the areas affected, and so that reconstruction could be done; at the earliest possible time to the destroyed public and private installations.

President Garcia expressed satisfaction over the new policy adopted by the RFC in granting loans to farmers and planters whose lands are yet without titles. He said that this would give further encouragement to the farmers in producing more crops.

The Chief Executive also said that under this new RFC policy, even those tenants who have been given lands of their own as a result of the government purchase and subdivision of landed estates but who are yet without titles to their lands, would be able to borrow money from the RFC and thus enable them to plant their lands.

He said that the RFC should give special attention to applicants for loans belonging to this category in order to encourage more farmers to plant staple crops in the interest of self-sufficiency in the nation's overall food supply.

With regard to the President's order of an immediate appraisal of losses in crops and property as a result of typhoon Kit, Malacañang said that only fragmentary reports had been received by the Office of the President on the destruction. It is feared, however, that because of reports that many of the rice plants affected were about to form their grain, harvests in the affected areas would be considerably diminished and thus result to rice shortage.

The Chief Executive said that he would take the precautionary measures to prevent the occurrence of rice and corn shortages.

The President also said that he had reiterated his order to the Philippine Navy to make Available the needed LST's to transport NARIC rice of short supply.

PRESIDENT Garcia signed today a proclamation November 28, 1957, as a special public holiday for national thanksgiving.

In the proclamation President Garcia said that "it is fitting that a day be set aside on which to dedicate out noblest thoughts in prayer and thanksgiving to God for all the blessings He has showered upon us."

President Garcia also signed a proclamation authorizing of the Philippines to conduct a rational fund drive during the period from November 15 to December 33, 1957, in places outside of Greater Manila.

In the proclamation the President called upon everybody to assist wholeheartedly in the fund campaign and to give their utmost support so that the Girl Scouts of the Philippines may be assured of which to carry on its work.

The President underscored the success of the organization in serving as host of the first Regional Centenary World Camp in 1957, attaining a distinct place in the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts and bringing prestige not only to the local Girl Scout movement but to the Philippines.

IN the evening the President paid high tribute to Minister Harry H. Brenn, chief of the U.S. International Cooperation Administration in Manila for his help in the country's social and economic development.

After the formal dinner which the President gave in in Malacañang the President said that Brenn had been personally identified with the country's accomplishments in community development rural credit and farmers cooperatives, agricultural extension and public health, land tenure and labor management relations, roads and irrigation projects, public administration and education, and national defense and internal security.

The President added that what had endeared Brenn to the Philippine Government personnel and to the people was Brenn's insistence that full credit for these accomplishments should go to the Filipinos themselves, modestly describing the American role as merely one of a friendly encouragement, stimulation, and cooperation in the common cause of strengthening the free world.

President Garcia said that the Government had intended to confer upon Brenn one of the awards reserved for national recognition; but because Brenn was not allowed by his government to accept such award, the President had taken the opportunity to convey the country's warm appreciation of his past services to the Philippines.

November 20—WISHING to step up the work of the Presidential Incentives Committee, President Garcia Finance Secretary summoned former Antonio de las Alas, chairman of the conference this afternoon in Malacañang.

The President said that he would like to be informed by Chairman De las Alas of the progress of his committee, which had been charged by the President with studying ways and means of giving incentives to producers in order to increase production of essential products and thus eventually lower prices.

When he created the committee last September 18, the President directed that it hold public hearings to get a cross-section of the views of all the economic segments of the country regarding the best by the government in giving incentives to producers.

The President also directed that all government offices and employees should cooperate with the committee whenever it re pursuing its work.

A Malacañang spokesman said that now that the elections were over, the committee could accelerate the tempo of its activities. The President would like the committee to be able to submit its recommendations to give additional incentives to producers so that its recommendation which might require legislation could be readied for submission to Congress when it meets in January.

The spokesman added that the creation of the Incentives Committee was part of the overall plan of the President in tackling the economic problems of the country.

THE President this morning received from Gov. Francisco Infantado of Mindoro Oriental a check for ₱ 17,000 as a contribution of his province to the peace and amelioration fund.

Gov. Infantado was accompanied by Manolo Elizalde, chairman of the Peace and Amelioration Fund Commission, assistant provincial treasurer Paulino Ganda, and Miss Teresita Castro, a lawyer.

The President also received Mrs. Atanacia de Leon, widow, of the late Cpl. Eladio de Leon, who had died when ambushed recently in Cavite by the outlaw band led by Leonardo Manecio, alias Nardong Putik.

Minister Horace Smith, charge d'affaires of the U.S. Embassy, and Maj. Gen. John Ackerman, commanding general of the 13th USAF, accompanied Gen. Kuter.

Former Mayor Elmer Robinson of San Francisco and Judge Thomas M. Foley of the Superior Court of San Francisco, also paid a courtesy call on the President. Robinson was the Mayor of San Francisco during the Japanese Peace Treaty Conference and the Tenth Commemorative Session of the United Nations. In 1955 he was elected president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

Other callers of the President included Representatives-elect Benedicto Padilla of Rizal, Natalio Castillo of Bohol, Manuel Zosa of Cebu, and Tobias Fornier of Antique, and Engineer Constancio Soria.

About 30 members of the Philippine Association of School Superintendents, headed by their president, Jose Y. Tuazon, also called on the President to pledge their loyalty and cooperation to the Administration.

The superintendents asked for the early implementation of the provisions of Republic Act No. 842 regarding salary increases.

They informed President Garcia that he had made a “happy choice” in appointing Justice Manuel Lim as secretary of education.

A group of Lions led by Eduardo Escobar and Alfredo Lozano, saw the President; to invite him to be the guest of honor in a forthcoming affair.

THIS evening President Garcia said he would not act on resignations submitted to him by members of his Cabinet until after he had been sworn in on December 30.

The President made the statement in response to numerous queries received in Malacañang regarding the status of resignations reportedly turned in by certain Cabinet members to give him a free hand in the reorganization of his advisory body. He said that action on the resignations would take a lot of study and that; in case he decided to accept any of them, he would do so only after he had begun serving his new term.

“At least, I would like to have all members of the old Cabinet to be with me on my induction,” the President said.

The Chief Executive also said that he would first decide on possible successors before accepting any resignation. According to him, this was necessary to insure continuity in the service.

Earlier this afternoon, the President received officers and members of the Bankers Association of the Philippines who called to pay their respects following his election. During the call, Alfonso Calalang, association president who acted as spokesman, expressed the readiness of his organization to cooperate with the Administration in regard to programs aimed at furthering the economic uplift of the country.

The President thanked the group for their offer of cooperation. He said that the numerous pledges of support he had been receiving from various elements in the country since his election had encouraged him all the more years with optimism.

The group included N. Tomas of Philippine Banking Corporation, A. delas Alas of Manufacturers Trust, K. Huang of Bank of Communications, R. Recto of Equitable Bank, L. Marquez of Commercial Bank, J. Spering of National City Bank of New York, L. Villa of People’s Bank, C. Cruz of the Philippine National Bank, M. Garcia of Philippine Trust, R. President Garcia today signed Proclamation No. 458, declaring November 29, 1957, as National Teachers Day. The proclamation was signed on the recommendation of Education Secretary Manuel Lim.

The President signed the proclamation in the presence of Secretary Lim and Benigno Aldana and Daniel Salcedo, directors of public and private some representatives of private and public institutions in Manila.

The President pointed out that in all communities teachers are always called upon to cooperate in social, cultural, and civic enterprises and that the teachers deserve greater public recognition of their essential place in the scheme of national existence and appreciation for personal sacrifice which they often make in their daily work.

The President this day also signed a proclamation declaring the period from February 14, to March 31, 1958, as the time for the eleventh annual fund campaign of the Philippine National Red Cross.

At the same time, the President appealed for public support and help in the campaign by giving generously of their means, time, and effort to realize the aims and purposes of the Philippine National Red Cross.

November 21.—REPRESENTATIVE-elect Genaro Magsaysay, younger brother of the late President Magsaysay, led well-wishers who continued tip call this day on President Garcia to congratulate him on his recent victory in the presidential elections.

At the same time, the Zambales solon told the President that he would support in Congress the program of government of the Administration.

Two other members of the Magsaysay family accompanied Rep.-elect Magsaysay when he called on President Garcia. They were Mrs. Luisa Magsaysay-Corpus and Mrs. Soledad Magsaysay-Cabrera.

Gov. Esmeraldo Eco, LP, of Camarines Norte also called on the President and presented a copy of the resolution of the provincial board of his province, conveying to the Chief Executive its decision “to cross party lines in the administration of governmental affairs to serve best the interests and welfare of the constituents of the province of Camarines Norte.”

W. E. Murray, Caltex Far East general manager, paid a courtesy call on the President. He was accompanied by R. Monical, Caltex (Philippines) managing director, and J. P. Roxas, another high official of the local Caltex office.

Murray is the president of the Philippine-American Chamber of Commerce of New York. He was the recipient of the Philippine Legion of Honor, awarded during the administration of the late President Magsaysay. The members of the Board of Trustees of the National Federation of Dental Practitioners presented to President Garcia a resolution of the federation pledging its cooperation to the Administration.

The trustees, led by the president of the federation, Dr. Diosdado Carpio, were Drs. Feliciano K. Cruz, Eladio Aldecoa, Ermelo Vergel de Dios, Potenciano Leoncio, Moises Bartolome, Leonila Tañada, and Francisco Ramirez.

Other presidential callers were Gov. Jose Briones of Cebu, Rep.-elect Justiniano Montano, NP, of Cavite, Rep.-elect William Chiongbian, LP, of Misamis Occidental, and Secretary Pedro C. Hernaez of Commerce and Industry.

PRESIDENT Garcia this evening received a delegation from Misamis Oriental which called to sound him off on the possibility of holding a special election in Sagay, Camiguin Island, where 2,207 registered voters had failed to cast their ballots last election day.

Former Gov. Paciencia G. Ysalina informed the President that ballots which had been intended for Sagay, Negros Oriental, had been sent to Camiguin by mistake and that those intended for Camiguin had been sent to Negros Oriental. Hence, the post of lieutenant governor for the island sub-province which had been declared elective by a special law enacted during the last congressional session had not been included on the ballots.

According to Ysalina, the local board of inspectors had suspended the voting and when the mistake was corrected later in the afternoon of election day, the voters had already gone.

The President advised the delegation to direct their petition to the Commission on Elections, the only body which could recommend to him the holding of special elections.

Paul Wood of the International Harvester Company called to greet the President. During his call, Wood informed the Chief Executive that he was leaving for Korea tomorrow morning, where he would accompany President Syngman Rhee and retired U.S. General James Van Fleet on a visit to a national farm on a Korean Island. Wood is in charge of supervision of all Far Eastern installations and offices of the IHC.

Earlier this evening, the President received a delegation composed of members of his class 1923 of the Philippine Law School. They presented him with a souvenir album containing pictures of the last reunion held by the class last September 1 in Tanay, Rizal, which he had attended.

The delegation included Feliciano Tayag, Protacio Amonoy, Emiliano Anonas, Lorenzo Foronda, Pastor Gonzales, Eleuterio Gustilo, Milagros Llarena Telmo, Graciano Cariño, and Jose de Jesus.

The President received callers until 8 p.m. Among his last visitors were Reps. Ramon Mitra of Mt. Province and Joaquin Roces of Manila, Patricio Senador, and Antonio de las Alas.

THE President this evening stressed that the Presidential Incentives Committee's main task was to study effective means of giving incentives to producers of principal products as he promised to do when he vetoed Senate Bill No. 167 last June 22.

In his veto message the President had said:

"Recognizing the soundness of this policy of providing incentives to producers to increase their productivity. I avail myself of this opportunity to promise to the advocates of Senate Bill No. 167 that I will in due time appoint a committee of responsible officials and leaders in business, agriculture, and industry to study ways and means of attaining the objectives of the said bill in a manner generally beneficial to our national economy.

"It is the hope of this Administration that with the cooperation of all patriotic citizens of this country, a formula can be found to provide positive and practical incentives to producers and manufacturers."

The President conferred this evening with former Finance Secretary-Antonio de las Alas, chairman of the Presidential Incentives Committee, and directed that the committee hurry up its studies on the subject of giving incentives to producers-exporters. He added that parts of the recommendations requiring congressional action would be embodied in an administration bill to be submitted in Congress in January, 1958.

President Garcia suggested to De Las Alas that one way of hastening the work of the committee was to concentrate on the study of the objectionable features of Senate Bill 167 and to seek their solutions.

This was the first formal discussion that the President and De las Alas had in connection with the work of the committee. De las Alas told the President that he already had meetings with members of his committee and that he set another meeting for Saturday with the idea of hastening up its work.

The committee chairman promised that he and his committee would do their best to finish the job in time for submission to Congress in its next regular session.

November 22.—THIS morning the President had a few callers, as most of his time was spent receiving the members of the diplomatic corps and presiding over the weekly Cabinet meeting.

The diplomats, led by Papal Nuncio Egidio Vagnozzi, were received by the President after breakfast. They congratulated President Garcia on his victory at the recent polls.

The President this morning told the chiefs of diplomatic missions in the Philippines that he would follow the same foreign policy formulated during the administration of the late President Magsaysay and which he had been implementing since he was Vice-President of the Philippines and concurrently Foreign Affairs Secretary.

The President made this statement on the occasion of the call of the chiefs of diplomatic missions in the Philippines, during which they congratulated the Chief Executive on his victory in the recent polls.

In his remarks before his diplomatic visitors, the President said that he would continue pursuing the policy of promoting closer ties of friendship with all the countries of the free world but with special consideration in regard to the United States because of our special relationship with that country, and in regard to the Southeast Asian nations.

The President expressed before the diplomats the wish that the disarmament conference would succeed in order to remove the means of waging future wars.

President Garcia said that if the astronomical war budgets intended for the armament race could be removed and invested instead in creating conditions conducive to peace, then the causes of war would be removed.

Papal Nuncio Egidio Vagnozzi, who acted as spokesman of the chiefs of diplomatic missions, expressed the felicitations of his group to the President on his victory in the recent polls. He praised the President for his great desire in the attainment of peace of the world.

Vagnozzi also expressed the hope that under President Garcia's administration, the Philippines would achieve progress, prosperity, and happiness. The President exchanged toasts with his diplomatic guests.

Also present at the ceremonies were Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, Malacañang Protocol Officer Manuel G. Zamora, Foreign Office Chief of Protocol Jose Estrada, Lt. Col. Emilio Borromeo, Lt. Melchor Fronda, and Appointments Secretaries Marcelino Calinawan and Rolando Kagaoan.

The chiefs of diplomatic missions who called on the President were Apostolic Nuncio Egidio Vagnozzi, British Ambassador George Lisle Glutton, Chinese Ambassador Chen Chih-mai, Australian Ambassador Keith Charles Owen Shann, Thai Ambassador Chitti Sucharitakul, Italian Ambassador, Benedetto d'Acunzo, Indonesian Ambassador Nazir Datuk Pamontjak, French Ambassador Georges Cattand, Japanese Ambassador Morio Yukawa, Pakistan Ambassador Pir Ali Mohammad Rashdi, Spanish Ambassador Francisco Javier Conde;

American Charge d'Affaires Horace Smith, Spanish Charge d'Affaires Fernando Aguirre de Carcer, Mexican Charge d'Affaires Carlos Gutierrez-Macias, and Netherlands Charge d'Affaires L. H. J. B. van Gorkom.

After receiving the diplomats, President Garcia also received Gov. Leon Fernandez of Sulu and Gov. Isidro Rodriguez and Representative-elect Francisco Sumulong of Rizal.

Another presidential caller was Roger E. Anderson, vice-president of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago. He was accompanied by RFC Chairman Eduardo Z. Romualdez.

PRESIDENT Garcia in his first meeting with his Cabinet today, after his victory at the polls, ordered that:

(1) Studies be made immediately as regards the amount of palay which the NARIC should buy for its stabilization work; and

(2) The Rice and Palay Board meet immediately in order to arrive at definite recommendations on the price support program for palay, as an incentive to producers.

The President and his Cabinet spent considerable time in the discussion of the rice stabilization program, especially with regard to the role of the NARIC as a stabilizer of the price of the cereal.

The Chief Executive ordered the early study of the effective amount of palay to be purchased by the NARIC in order to forestall the recurrence of rice shortages in the future. It was feared that the damage done by the recent typhoon Kit to rice plants in Northern Luzon might result in a rice shortage in that area.

The President called to the Cabinet meeting Acting NARIC General Manager Vicente Concepcion and inquired from him how much palay had been purchased by the NARIC this year. Concepcion replied that the NARIC had funds enough only for 3,000,000 cavans of palay which he said was only a very small portion of the total amount of palay production which was 76,000,000 cavans yearly.

Concepcion explained that the NARIC could not buy more of the local palay because of lack of capital to support a large-scale palay purchase. It was the consensus of the Cabinet that the NARIC should be authorized to buy as much palay as it could, enough to sustain its role of stabilizing the rice industry in the Philippines. It was believed that the NARIC would need more capital to carry out this objective.

It was further believed by the Cabinet that instead of the NARIC importing rice from abroad, it should concentrate more in the purchase of local palay which it could store in its warehouses and mill into rice for sale to the people during times of shortage.

The President ordered that this matter be studied immediately by the Rice and Palay Board, which will submit its recommendations to the President and the Cabinet.

The President also directed the Rice and Palay Board to meet immediately in order to arrive at definite recommendations on the price support program for palay as an incentive to rice producers. At present the price support of palay is set at ₱10.50 a cavan.

The board is composed of Acting Agriculture Secretary Jose M. Trinidad as chairman, with Labor Secretary Angel Castaño and Commerce Secretary Pedro Hernaez as members,

The committee said that it would meet immediately.

The President directed Education Secretary; Manuel Lim to study and make recommendations regarding the needs in the budget of his department in order to make the educational program of the Philippines more responsive to the present requirements of the country, especially in its economic development.

Lim said that his department would propose to implement a program of education, instruction, and training, both in the public and the private schools, that would produce for the nation a reasonable crop of qualified graduates fit to meet the requirements of business and industry and of technical men and skilled personnel in their respective fields of endeavor.

The education secretary said that according to the plan, these graduates would be able to work as professionals and career men who are needed in the country's extensive and ramified social services. He added that he would submit his studies on the matter at the earliest possible time.

Lim also extended an invitation to the Cabinet members to see the exhibition of products of his department's vocational schools, especially precision tools of industry.

The exhibits are being held at the Department of Education building on Arroceros Street.

The President presided over the Cabinet meeting which was held at the Council of State room from 10:40 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The following is the text of President Garcia's statement on a statement issued by former President Sergio Osmeña congratulating the Chief Executive on his victory in the recent polls:

"I am heartened by the statement of former President Don Sergio Osmeña on the occasion of my victory and that of the Nacionalista Party at the recent polls which he interpreted as the people's approval of the Magsaysay-Garcia policies since 1954, and as an expression of the people's abiding faith in my humble leadership.

"It is my hope that with the sincere cooperation of the people and with the help of God I shall rise equal to the expectation of the nation.

"I heartily thank President Osmeña for the new inspiration and encouragement he has given me and the Nacionalista Party through his statement."

IN the evening the President told a group of sympathizers from Cebu not to dissolve their organization so that they could assist in implementing the Administration's program in that province.

The President made this statement before members of an organization which backed his election bid in the recent election in Cebu.

Headed by Gil Garcia, the members presented the Chief Executive with a resolution expressing their congratulations to the President on his victory in the recent polls.

In expressing his gratitude for garnering an unprecedented majority in Cebu, the President said that he would never forget the manifestation of trust which the people of Cebu had reposed in him.

The group included Nicasio Osmeña, Fructuoso Cabahug, Juan Zamora, Elino Andales, Jose Corominas, Juvenal Almendras, Crecencio Richards, Vicente Garcia, Primo Alves, and Ramon Abellanosa.

November 23—PRESIDENT Garcia arrived in Baguio City at 2 p.m. today where he will hold a series of conferences with economic and financial advisers for the purpose of discussing various measures which he intends to recommend for enactment when Congress convenes in January.

Leaving Malacañang by car at 9 a.m., the President was met some five hours later at the Baguio City boundary by a delegation of local officials headed by Mayor Alfonso Tabora and Rep. Ramon Mitra, who escorted him to the Guest House.

Among the callers this afternoon were Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas, Gov. Bernardo Gapus of La Union, and Filner DaCosta, director of the National Tourist Bureau of Portugal, who came accompanied by Modesto Farolan, his counterpart in the Philippines.

A delegation of Philippine Military Academy officials headed by Brig. Gen. Marcos Soliman, academy superintendent, also called at the Guest House to congratulate the President on his election and to reiterate their loyalty. Other members of the PMA group included Colonels Oscar Rialp, Salvador Piccio, Leonardo Mesiano, Blas Alejandro, and Federico Calma; Majors Geminiano Aguila and Asterio Belmonte; and Captains Raymundo Luna and Asterio Enriquez.

PRESIDENT Garcia today cabled Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo and instructed him to make all the necessary arrangements for the transportation of the remains of the late Governor-General Francis Burton Harrison.

The body of the late Governor-General of the Philippines will be accompanied to Manila by his widow and his son Francis B. Harrison, Jr. The President also directed Ambassador Romulo to have an official of the Philippines Embassy in Washington accompany the body to Manila.

The President gave this directive upon learning from Ambassador Romulo that Harrison's last wish was to be buried in the Philippines.

Romulo informed the President by-cable that Minister Raul Leuterio had already called on the widow of Harrison in Mulhocaway Farm in Clinton., New Jersey.

November 24.—WAKING up early this morning, the President strolled for a few minutes around the Mansion House ground. Then he heard mass before an improvised altar in the Guest House.

After breakfast, he received very few callers, among whom were Sens. Fernando Lopez and Domocao Alonto, Reps. Celestino Juan of Nueva Ecija and Ramon Mitra of Mt. Province, Baguio City Mayor Alfonso Tabora, and Maj. Angel Magallanes, head of the President Quezon's Own Guerrilla (PQOG). The President congratulated Mayor Tabora, who is celebrating his birthday today.

The President also conferred with Benjamin Salvosa, manager of the PHILCOA. He authorized Salvosa during the conference to represent the Philippines at the international conference in Rome (Italy) next week.

About 7 a.m., the President boarded his car and motored around the Pines City. He was accompanied by Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison. He passed by Trinidad Valley, Mines View Park, Aurora Hill, and Camp Allen and returned to the Guest House about 1 o'clock p.m. He had lunch with Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon and Press Secretary Sison.

The President did not receive callers in the afternoon.

President Garcia today issued an administrative order creating a committee which will take charge of preparations for the funeral of former Governor-General Francis Burton Harrison, who had expressed a last wish to be buried in the Philippines.

The President said that the late Governor-General will be accorded a state funeral in recognition of his services to the Philippines. The Committee is composed of Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas, chairman, Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, Sen. Francisco A. Delgado, Reps. Miguel Cuenco of Cebu and Ferdinand Marcos of Ilocos Norte, and Gregorio Licaros of the Central Bank, members. Aguinaldo Maaba, secretary to the Cabinet, was made committee secretary.

The Chief Executive received very few callers today. He spent most of his time in conference with government officials, including Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, RFC Chairman Eduardo Romualdez, Secretary Moreno, Secretary Vargas, ACCFA Chairman Ernesto Jimenez, NARIC Chairman Juan O. Chioco, and Brig. Gen. Diosdado Rodriguez, acting Armed Forces chief of staff.

November 25.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning sent a message of condolence on the death of Mrs. Magsaysay's mother. The message was sent to Mrs. Magsaysay. The text of the message follows:

"Mrs. Garcia and I extend our most heartfelt condolences on the death of your beloved mother, Mrs. Lucila R. Vda. de Banzon. An ideal and loving mother, she has raised a large family and served as an example to our Filipino mothers. May her soul rest in peace."

The President also received this morning from Acting Central Bank Governor Andres Castillo a proof of the fifty-centavo notes which bears the signature of the President.

This is the first time that the signature of President Garcia appears on a Philippine currency note. The fifty-centavo note is being printed now by Thomas De la Rue and Co., Ltd., in London, Great Britain.

The President conferred this noon with defense officials headed by Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas. Others in the conference were Brig. Gen. Diosdado Rodriguez, acting AFP chief of staff; Col. Ananias Rosal, chief of the AFP Finance section; Col. Isauro Sison; and Assistant Executive Secretary Nicanor Jimenez.

The President discussed with them the proposed budget of the Armed Forces for fiscal year 1958-1959.

The proposed increase was ₱6.8 million as a result of readjustments in the increase of enlisted men.

President Garcia did not receive any callers today. He busied himself with important conferences with ranking government officials whom he summoned to Baguio. He also closeted himself in his private study, putting on the finishing touches to his speech before the opening season of the SEATO seminar in Baguio tomorrow.

The President was assisted in going over his speech by Minister Narciso G. Reyes.

November 26—President Garcia formally opened the current four-day seminar on countering Communist subversion in ceremonies held at the Mansion House about 9 a.m., the President inspected the honor guard formed by a company of Philippine Military Academy cadets. Then he was escorted to the seminar hall, where he delivered the welcome address to 81 seminar delegates.

He was introduced by Brig. Gen. Pelagio Cruz, SEATO seminar director.

Senior representatives of participating nations were presented one by one to the President after his 15-minutes speech. He was accorded a standing ovation as he went in and out the Seminar hall.

About 10 a.m., the President retired to a hide-out in the outskirts of the city where he resumed his series of preliminary discussions with Budget Commissioner Dominador R. Aytona and Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno on the new budget which will be submitted to Congress next session.

The Chief Executive also worked on pending state papers brought to Baguio from Manila by Col. Emilio Borromeo, senior military aide.

IN the afternoon the President returned to the Guest House where he received SEATO delegates and cocktails. Then he proceeded to his study where he had a recording made of his speech to be delivered in Manila in celebration of Bonifacio Day on November 30.

Among the last callers this evening were Gov. and Mrs. Felicisimo Aquino of Ilocos Norte; Antonio P. Aquino, brother of the governor who presented the President with an Ilocano blanket and towel woven from local materials; Antonio Floirendo of Davao; Antonio Garcia of Baguio City; and Major Godofredo Magellanes.

November 27—The President woke up early this morning at Baguio. When he entered the dining room for breakfast, he was told the newsmen were still asleep after a splurge the night before.

He then led a motorcade down to Manila, leaving the Guest House at 8:30 a.m. and reaching Manila shortly after 12 noon.

After having lunch at the Palace, the President took his regular afternoon nap.

Later, he went over state papers which had piled up.

Upon learning of the sudden ailment of President Eisenhower, President Garcia immediately cabled the former and expressed his hope for his “speedy recovery.”

PRESIDENT garcia today issued an executive order creting a committee to take charge of the inauguration of the President and the Vice-President of the Philippines on December 30, 1957.

Named by the President as co-chairman of the committee were Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez and Education Secretary Manuel Lim. Members included Sen. Quintin Paredes, Sen. Lorenzo Tañada, Rep. Bartolome Cabangbang of Bohol, Rep. Cornelio Villareal of Capiz, Gov. Isidro S. Rodriguez of Rizal, Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon, Arsenio N. Luz, and Nicasio Osmeña. Aguinaldo Maaba was designated secretary of the committee.

The President empowered the committee to call upon any department, bureau, office, agency, or instrumentality of the government for such assistance, data, and information as it may need in discharging its duties.

November 28.— THIS morning the President agreed to send a personal representative to Iloilo City to look into the peace and order situation obtaining there.

President Garcia agreed to send his personal representative after hearing the request of Iloilo City Mayor Rodolfo Ganson to have the PC control lifted in the city.

Mayor Ganson informed the President that Iloilo City was peaceful and requested that the presidential representative inquire from civic organizations, foreigners, and religious elements about the peace and order condition.

Ganson alleged that he was the object of persecution on the part of the press and the radio.

The President also received M. H. Patterson, vice-president and general manager of the Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing International Company of Saint Paul, who was accompanied by Pedro Vasquez of Vasquez Bros.

Other presidential callers were Leyte Gov. Bernardo Torres, Carlos Montilla, and Rep.-elect Benjamin T. Ligot of the second district of Cagayan, who informed the President about the extent of the damage caused by typhoon Kit.

About 12:30 p.m., President and Mrs. Garcia motored to Manila Hotel to attend the testimonial banquet given in their honor by the officials and employees of the Department of Foreign Affairs.

Earlier, President Garcia received Sen. Jose P. Laurel, Sr., who congratulated him on his victory in the recent polls.

Sen. Laurel expressed his support to the Chief Executive, particularly in implementing the economic policy of the Administration.

Expressing his gratitude to Sen. Laurel, the President said that he was glad to have the Senator's support.

PRESIDENT Garcia this noon bared before officials and employees of the Department of Foreign affairs that the most important aim of the Administration along economic lines is self-sufficiency of the country in food.

Quoting an English economist, President Garcia said that the "center of gravity in economics is the stomach."

The occasion was the testimonial banquet given at the Manila Hotel's Winter Garden in honor of the President and Mrs. Carlos P. Garcia by the officials and employees of the Department of Foreign Affairs.

At the same time, President Garcia also bared a new concept of loyalty when he stated that loyalty should not be to a man, be he president or secretary, but to country.

He appealed to the officials and employees of the department to cooperate with the efforts of the Administration to solve the rice problem of the country, stating that this problem has always plagued the country for decades.

The President also asked the cooperation of everybody in his efforts to make democracy more stable and enduring, and independence more permanent in the country.

He stated that the efforts of the Administration are geared to the solution of the economic problems of the country in order to make it a better place to live in.

The President spoke extemporaneously after being introduced by acting Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano.

The President today signed a proclamation authorizing the Philippine Cancer Society to conduct a national cancer educational fund drive during the period from December 1, 1957 to January 31, 1958.

The PCS has started the construction of a modern cancer clinic and will need funds to purchase much-needed clinical apparatus and other equipment.

PRESIDENT Garcia today received a cablegram from Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo informing him that two other members of the family of the late Francis Burton Harrison are coming to attend the funeral here at their own expense.

Aside from Mrs. Harisson, F.B. Harrison, Jr., a daughter, a stepdaughter, and a granddaughter are accompanying the group, which included Minister Raul Leuterio.

The body of the late former Governor-General is scheduled to arrive in Manila on December 2.

PRESIDENT Garcia, after barely resting from four days of conferences with his advisers in Baguio City, left Malacañang at 9 this evening and sailed for his hometown, Talibon, Bohol.

President Garcia left aboard the yacht Sta. Maria with the First Lady, their daughter, Mrs. Linda G. Campos, and several Boholanos.

A grand welcome awaits President Garcia in Bohol. This is his first trip to his home province since his victory in the November 12 polls.

November 29.—THE President boarded the presidential yacht Sta. Maria at 9 o'clock last night with a large entourage of Boholanos bound for the victory celebration in his home province. Accompanying the Chief Executive is the First Lady and their daughter, Mrs. Linda Garcia-Campos.

The yacht ran into rough, seas at lunchtime today and dropped anchor near Romblon to enable the passengers to have their meals. The high waves sent the boat pitching and the passengers to their beds.

Following lunch, the President held a brief news conference and announced that the Administration was stepping up the hunt for Leonardo Manecio, Cavite bandit leader, by increasing the men engaged in the operations.

At the press conference,, the Chief Executive said he was returning to Manila immediately to resume his meeting with Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona and other Cabinet members on the proposed budget for the coming fiscal year. He said almost all of the Cabinet members had asked for increased operations. He pointed out that their requests would be carefully studied in accordance with their merits.

The Chief Executive said he would prune appropriations to the minimum without impairing the efficiency of government operations.

The President is scheduled to return to Manila in time to attend the state funeral of one-time Governor-General Francis Burton Harrison on Tuesday.

PRESIDENT Garcia today expressed confidence that in the struggle for economic freedom and progress, “our people will prove true to their traditions and will rise and wage the supreme Struggle for economic development with the same determination and sense of destiny as Andres Bonifacio and his brave men did two generations ago.”

The President led the nation in commemorating Andres Bonifacio Day. In a tape-recorded speech, he said that the main motivation and objective of his coming four-year administration will be the uplifting of our common people from ancient poverty and want, providing them opportunities for productive employment of their talents and labor power, affording them of both a just share of the sum total of social wealth as well as of a fair share of responsibility in building up the national economic and social structure.”

The President’s speech had been tape-recorded before he left for Bohol and broadcast over CBN’s station DZXL at 8 p.m. today. He stated that the national structure he wanted to establish “must bear the image of our collective aspirations and ideals as a people, and it must be the product of our own efforts and the material resources which God has so richly endowed this land of ours.”

He urged every Filipino that on this memorable Bonifacio Day, they should realize that in the pursuit of the national objective the same heroism as had been displayed by Andres Bonifacio was required. He expressed belief that his administration objective would rally all the elements of the nation together and galvanize the national will and mind in a unified, purposive force for speedy attainment of that objective.

“I trust that such was the primary expectation of our people in having given me the mandate to head the nation at this period of our history,” the President said.

Reminding the people of the heroism and patriotism of Andres Bonifacio, the President remarked that everybody must realize that in the context of the struggle for economic freedom, everyone, no matter how humble or how mighty, must rise to the heights of heroic dedication.

The President said: “Eleven years ago we won political freedom after long and arduous sacrifice. Today, we are engaged in an equally vital and difficult task—the struggle for economic stability and security. In this struggle we shall need the same fierce fidelity to a common objective, unyielding faith in our own genius and capabilities to rise above harassing circumstances and overcome inevitable obstacles; finally, cheerful willingness to render personal sacrifice for the common good of all and indomitable courage to work together in solid unity such as those of Andres Bonifacio and his men.”

The President added: “This day ought to inspire us with a strong sense of hope and confidence in the future. The story and record of that great struggle of Andres Bonifacio forms a proud part of the traditions not only of our people but also of the whole mankind.”

THE President today; directed NEC Presiding Officer Eduardo Z. Romualdez and his committee which had prepared the bidding of the development of the Surigao nickel deposits to study amendments to the law governing the mines in order to make its exploitation more attractive to private companies.

The President took this step to hasten the development of the multi-million-peso mines. In the bids which were opened last October 31, to exploit these mines, no bidder participated reportedly because of certain restrictions.

Among points in the law governing the development of the Surigao mines which need amendments are those regarding the participation of the operating company and the guaranteed payments which the company should pay after five years of operation.

It is believed that if the provisions of the law were made more equitable and attractive to the operator, foreign companies will participate in the next bidding.

The President however pointed out that in amending the law, provisions should be included to protect the interests of the Philippine Government.

The President told Romualdez to ready the amendments to the law at the earliest time possible for; submission to the next session of Congress.

The President's interest in the development of the Surigao nickel mines is in accordance with his main objective of solving the country's economic problems.

EXECUTIVE Secretary Fortunato de Leon today inducted Col Jose Rodriguez as chairman of the Board of Dental Examiners, Dr. Pedro Bañez as member of the same board, and Eugenio Reyes as member of the Board of Examiners for Accountancy.

Col. Rodriguez and Dr. Bañez were new appointees while Reyes was reappointed to the same position. Secretary De Leon inducted the three officials at his office in Malacañang.

November 30.— PRESIDENT Garcia arrived in Tagbilaran, Bohol, this morning to find the capital town in a festive mood in welcome to the favorite son of the province. He was received with fluvial parade as the presidential yacht Santa Maria steamed into Tagbilaran harbor.

After a brief news conference aboard the yacht, President Garcia debarked at 9:20 a.m. to be received by a welcoming group headed by Bishop Manuel Mascariñas of Tagbilaran. The prelate led the President to the Cathedral where a Te Deum was sung for the Chief Executive.

From the church, President Garcia proceeded to the town plaza where he addressed a large throng to thank the Boholanos for endorsing his candidacy. He was later honored with a luncheon at the Tagbilaran Hotel by different civic organizations.

IN the afternoon, the President motored to Batuan where he laid a wreath at the marker honoring Francisco Salazar and his guerilla band. The spot marked the first clash between the Bohol guerillas and Japanese occupation forces in the last war. President Garcia was a member of the guerilla outfit of the province.

IN the evening, the President was honored with a victory ball. He is scheduled to sail for Manila tomorrow evening to arrive here Tuesday morning in time for the funeral services for former Governor-General Francis Burton Harrison.

A BIG delegation of farmers from five provinces in Central Luzon trooped to Malacañang this morning to bring their problems to the attention of President Garcia.

In the absence of President Garcia, who is in Bohol, Col. Crisanto Alba, Malacañang adviser, receive the delegation and heard their complaints, promising to transmit them to president Garcia.

The farmers complained against Juan Bengco, overseer of the San Juan Estate in San Fernando, Pampanga, for allegedly trying to change the crop sharing contract from a basis of 70-30 to 50-50.

The same delegation also requested a presidential directive releasing at least 200 hectares of agricultural land belonging to the Pampanga National Agricultural School reservation to about 60 landless farmers who actually are cultivating the land in the municipality of Magalang, Pampanga.

The farmers also requested presidential intervention in the land conflict between a group of farmers belonging to the Federation of Free Farmers and another headed by Mayor Federico Muli of Dinalupihan, Bataan.

Both groups claim priority rights in the possession of the farm lots, which is a government-owned agricultural land with an approximate area of around 300 hectares located in the barrios extending from Saguin, San Benito, up to Colo, Dinalupihan.

The delegation also alleged that Mayor Muli was able to drive away some of their companions from their farms having a total area of 50 hectares.

Earlier, Nationalist China Foreign Minister George K. Yeh came to Malacañang to pay a courtesy call on the President. In the absence of President Garcia, Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon received the Chinese dignitary.

Present during the call were Chinese Ambassador Chen Chih-mai, Col. Chen Ping-ching, air attache, of the Chinese Embassy, and Malacañang Protocol Officer Manuel Zamora.

Meanwhile, Secretary De Leon announced that President Garcia had signed two proclamations, one declaring the period from December 8 to 14, 1957, as Government Employees Week and another transferring Public Administration Week from the second week of November of this year to the third week of June, 1958.

PRESIDENT Garcia's four-year economic development program gets a boost with the President signing Proclamation No. 459, declaring the period from December 1 to 7, 1957, as National Rice Production Week, Malacañang announced today.

The President's long-range economy plan which the President discussed with his economic advisers last Sunday in Baguio embraced among other things, but principally, all gigantic food production program aimed at making the country self-sufficient in its staple foods which are rice and corn, and other food crops. The proclamation signed by the President stresses only a phase of the huge food production program.

In his proclamation, the President said that "in order to encourage rapid increase in the production of rice, our principal staple food, it is necessary to set aside a period during which the people's attention may be drawn to the importance of increasing our rice supply and achieving self-sufficiency in this commodity."

The Chief Executive directed the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources to take charge of the celebration and to coordinate all activities in connection with the week-long observance. Acting Agriculture Secretary Jose Trinidad said that he had circularized his field men giving them instructions as regards the most effective means of celebrating the National Rice Production Week.

During this period, the people of the Philippines, especially the farmers, will be made more aware of the necessity of producing enough rice to prevent scarcity of this commodity and in order to bring its price well within the reach of the masses. The farmers will also be shown the more effective means of producing rice; such as, seed selection, use of fertilizers and insecticides and the scientific way of planting palay. All of these means will contribute to the production of better quality rice and greater rice yields per hectare.

A Malacañang spokesman said in this connection that the President's four-year food production program included:

- (1) Completion of the irrigation program which will irrigate a total of 500,000 hectares of ricelands;
- (2) Free distribution of insecticides and fertilizers to small farmers producing rice, corn, and other food crops;
- (3) Providing farmers with selected seeds through the establishment of more seed farms throughout the country;
- (4) Construction of more feeder and rural roads to enable farmers to transport their produce more easily to centers of population; and
- (5) Intensified adoption of the Masagana and the Margate systems of rice culture.

The spokesman said that the observance of the National Rice Production Week would focus the nation's attention to the national efforts in increasing the country's rice production and would pave the way for the implementation of the President's gigantic food production program which will be pursued in the next four years.

THE President this day directed all government relief agencies to rush aid to the fire victims of Abuyog, Leyte, where a reported ₱1.5 million fire had gutted six blocks of commercial and residential houses Thursday night, November 28.

In a communication sent to Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon, the President ordered the Social Welfare Administration, the Philippine National Red Cross, the Department of Health, and the Armed Forces to rush necessary aid to the fire victims of Abuyog.

The President sent the directive from Tagbilaran, Bohol, where he was informed of the fire.

Official Month in Review: December 1 – December 15, 1957

December 1.—PRESIDENT Garcia today said that one of the prime objectives of his administration was not only to make the country self-sufficient in rice but also to export this commodity.

The President said this effective could be attained by intensive application of fertilizers, insecticides, seed selection, and irrigation system.

The President made this statement at the Bohol capitol at Tagbilaran, where he held a conference with local officials and all town mayors this noon.

The President called upon all town mayors to give their utmost in assisting the Administration's efforts to make the country self-sufficient in rice.

He told the town mayors to exert efforts in making their respective towns self-sufficient in rice and "the Administration will assist you in your objectives."

The Chief Executive said that if the present yield per hectare could be doubled, "we are well on our way to self-sufficiency." The President disclosed that he had talked with rice experts from foreign countries. He said that from these discussions he had learned that the Philippines had all the advantages in rice production over other countries and that he saw no reason why we could not increase rice production. He assured the town mayors that the first agenda in his administration would be to make this country self-sufficient in rice.

Earlier this morning, the President heard mass together with the First Lady at the Tagbilaran cathedral. After the mass, the President and the First Lady went to the Graham Memorial Hospital to visit an 80-year old friend, Camilo Calceta, who is suffering from a heart ailment. Then the President retired to his Tagbilaran residence, where he spent most of the day receiving well-wishers.

At 6 p.m. the President and his family boarded the RPS Sta. Maria for the return voyage to Manila.

THE President this evening ordered the half-masting of the Filipino flag all over the Philippines in honor of the late Governor-General Francis Burton Harrison beginning Monday morning, December 2, until Thursday, December 5.

The President's order was issued aboard the RPS Sta. Maria bearing the presidential party on its return trip to Manila from Bohol.

Malacañang kindly requests that all officials concerned be guided and act accordingly.

EXECUTIVE Secretary Fortunato de Leon today announced the appointment by President Garcia of Caesar Lanuza as chief of the Philippine Reparations Mission to Japan.

Malacañang also announced that President Garcia received a cablegram from President Dwight D. Eisenhower thanking the former for his message expressing his concern and that of the Filipino people regarding the latter's recent illness.

The message of President Eisenhower reads:

"His Excellency Carlos P. Garcia
"President of the Republic of the Philippines
Manila, Philippines

“I received your kind message expressing concern regarding my illness. I am most grateful for your good wishes and those of your countrymen.

“DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER”

December 2.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed RFC Chairman Eduardo Z. Romualdez to confer again with ACCFA Administrator Ernesto Jimenez on the finalization of plans to grant loans through the cooperative way to small farmers whose lands are without titles, as a means of increasing rice production.

The President’s directive was a follow-up of his previous approval of a new RFC policy granting loans on lands without titles owned by small farmers.

Chairman Romualdez had earlier conferred with Administrator Jimenez on the granting of this kind of loans through cooperatives. Romualdez said a preliminary understanding had already been reached regarding the mechanics of the granting of these loans through the FACOMA cooperatives.

President Garcia said that the granting of this kind of loans through the cooperative way was more effective and would minimize liability of possible losses by the government.

The Chief Executive told Romualdez to perfect the mechanism in securing this loan through the cooperative way. He added that he would call a joint conference with Romualdez and Jimenez when they were ready with their final plan.

THE President this day ordered the airlifting to Manila, if necessary, and the hospitalization and treatment of a 17-year old girl who had been reportedly raped by about 22 persons in Victorias, Negros Occidental.

At the same time the President ordered the immediate and thorough investigation of the incident. The girl, Dionisia Salem, of Calatrava town was reported by the Philippine News Service as having become insane and almost mute.

The PNS story also said that the girl was suffering from hemorrhage as a result of her experience. The report further said that she would not talk to anybody and would merely stare at nothing.

Salem was a house maid and was on her way to Bacolod City on a bus when she was allegedly abused in the town of Victorias.

The President issued the order for the investigation of the incident and the hospitalization and treatment of the girl from the presidential yacht Sta. Maria, where he is now on board on his way to Manila from Bohol. The President was informed of the incident by Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison.

PRESIDENT Garcia today spent most of his time in the ship’s salon, working on a pile of state papers flown over to Tagbilaran from Manila for the Chief Executive to study on the return trip.

For relaxation, the President played a few rounds of chess with Navy Capt. Heracleo Alano and some of the newsmen with the presidential party.

Pulling out of Tagbilaran harbor at 6:20 p.m. yesterday, the yacht followed a longer route to Manila to avoid the choppy Visayan and Sibuyan Seas which had caused considerable discomfort to passengers on the way to Bohol last Friday.

On the return voyage the boat headed for Ticao Pass and sought calmer waters around a string of small islands along the coast of the Bicol region.

The trip suffered a slight delay when a cable in the ship's steering mechanism snapped at 4:26 a.m. today. The boat was cruising at 13.5 knots near Manok Island, several miles from the southeastern tip of Masbate, when Lieut. Cmdr. Leovigildo Cantioque, the ship's captain, promptly ordered all engines stopped and the steerage transferred to a subsidiary mechanism located at the stern and used in emergencies. The yacht then proceeded at a slower pace, while the mechanical defect was being fixed.

Some four hours later, the ship again stopped near Tansurias Point, some 46 miles south of the eastern coast of Masbate while the steerage was restored at the captain's bridge.

With the President on board are the First Lady, daughter Linda, and son-in-law Fernando Campos.

December 3.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning received former President Sergio Osmeña at Malacañang, immediately after arriving from a trip to Bphol on board the RPS Santa Maria.

The Chief Executive and Osmeña were closetted at the Malacañang music room for about 30 minutes.

Former President Osmeña is in Manila to speak tomorrow at the necrological services at the session hall of the House of Representatives in honor of the late Governor-General Francis Burton Harrison.

After receiving Osmeña, President Garcia conferred with Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon about pending state matters.

The President signed the appointments of Rodolfo Andal and Miguel D. Velasco as members of the Board of Trustees of the Government Service Insurance System for a term of three years, expiring on December 3, 1960.

After conferring with Secretary De Leon, President Garcia presided over the Cabinet meeting.

THE President today signed a proclamation declaring the period from February 2 to 8, 1958, as "Aid to the Blind and Handicapped Week."

The proclamation said that the money to be realized from the solicitation of funds during the week would constitute a trust fund called "The Blind and Handicapped Fund" to be placed under the control and administration of the Social Welfare Administrator.

The proclamation authorized the SWA to conduct a campaign for the blind and other handicapped persons.

The President called upon all citizens and residents of the Philippines, as well as civic spirited organizations and associations to support this campaign.

THE CABINET at its meeting today unanimously endorsed the four-year program of self-sufficiency in rice and corn production launched by President Garcia in consultation with his economic advisers in Baguio 10 days ago.

The endorsement of the President's long-range food production program which forms the core of his four-year economic development plan had also the concurrence of the Presidential Rice and Palay Board which had studied the problem.

The board is composed of Acting Agriculture Secretary Jose M. Trinidad as chairman, with Commerce Secretary Pedro Hernaez and Labor Secretary Angel Castaño as members.

The President and the Cabinet spent considerable time in discussing this gigantic food production program launched by the President. They discussed the long and short-range incentives which the Government should give to producers of rice and corn in order to increase effectively the production of these essential cereals.

The Cabinet approved the following incentives that will insure increased rice production under the President's long-range program:

- (1) Completion of the construction of 26 irrigation systems in addition to the 16 already finished, making a total of 42 irrigation systems which will irrigate a total of 500,000 hectares of rice lands. At present there are only 16 irrigation systems serving around 200,000 hectares.
- (2) Distribution of free fertilizers and insecticides to small rice and corn farmers.
- (3) Loaning of superior varieties of rice seedlings to farmers to replace inferior ones now being planted. This calls for the construction of more seed farms throughout the country.
- (4) Construction of more rural and feeder roads throughout the Philippines to enable the farmers to transport their palay to centers of population.
- (5) Intensified propagation of the Margate and the Masagana rice cultures to replace the antiquated systems of rice planting.
- (6) Use of high-recovery rice mills.

The President and the Cabinet approved a recommendation of the Presidential Rice and Palay Board fixing the price support for palay from P9 to P10 a cavan, depending on the quality of the palay and the distance from the point of purchase to the nearest NARIC station.

In approving this price support, the President emphasized that this was only a temporary incentive to rice producers. He said that the permanent incentives would be given in the implementation of the long-range food production program.

The President and the Cabinet also decided that the NARIC should buy as much as possible of the present palay harvest in order that it would have enough palay stocks for stabilization purposes during periods of scarcity of the cereal.

During the discussion of the rice problem, it was pointed out that it was essential for the majority of rice farmers to change their old and ineffective methods of rice culture to the more scientific ways which have proved to result in much greater yields per hectare.

It was further said that this was one of the difficulties being encountered in the national effort at increased rice production and that it should be immediately overcome by more intensified propagation of the Masagana and the Margate systems.

It was suggested that there should be a model rice farm in every town in the Philippines in order to serve as an example for all the farmers in the barrios to follow the improved methods of rice culture.

It was the consensus of the Cabinet that with the implementation of this four-year gigantic food production program of the Administration, the Philippines would succeed not only in producing enough rice but also in eventually producing surplus stocks for export. This belief was based on the fact that the Philippines usually imported about two million cavans of rice. However, if all these incentives would be fully implemented, rice production would increase by several million cavans.

During the discussion of the rice situation, the President directed Marcelino Constantino, acting director of the Bureau of Plant Industry, to make an official inspection of rice farms in Central Luzon which are reportedly infested. The President further directed that if this widespread rice infestation was true, the Bureau of Plant Industry should borrow an Air Force plane to be used in spraying the rice fields for more effective results.

Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas said that an Air Force plane would be available at a moment's notice.

The President called Director Constantino to the Cabinet meeting to give information on reports that rice farms in Central Luzon were infested. Constantino replied that the Bureau of Plant Industry and the Bureau of Agricultural Extension had already taken action in remedying the situation by means of using insecticides.

It was suggested that the more effective way to arrest this infestation was to spray the rice fields with insecticides by means of planes.

Constantino said he would implement immediately the President's orders.

UPON recommendation of Manila Railroad Company General Manager Salvador T. Villa, the President and the Cabinet approved the inclusion of the following items in the second year reparations payments from Japan:

Three sleeper coaches at $51,626.67
Twenty third class coaches at $37,500.00
Seven diesel rail cars at $48,320.00
Total	$

The Cabinet gave top priority for the procurement of these items and directed that they should be procured immediately in order to hasten the rehabilitation of the MRR.

THE Cabinet authorized the creation of the Philippine delegation to the Third ECAFE Regional Technical Conference on Water Resources Development to be held in Manila from December 4 to 10, 1957.

The committee is composed of the following:

Public Works Director Julian A. Buendia, chairman; National Power Corporation General Manager Filemon Zablan, 1st alternate chairman; NAWASA General Manager Susano Negado, 2nd alternate chairman; and the following as delegates:

Manuel Torres, Antonio Locsin, Tomas de Guzman, Antonio A. Villanueva, Alejandro B. Deleña, Pedro Afable, Cesar Nuguid, Anastacio Bartolome, Jose Macaranas, Lauro Pacis, Roberto Villatuya, Antonio C. Menor, Jose O. Lahoz, Jose U. Jovellanos, Ramon R. Ravanzo, Teofilo M. Mendoza, Santiago A. Banilan, LCdr. Constancio M. Legaspi, Florencio M. Asiddao, Eugenio B. Manalo, Ignacio R. Ang, Alberto M. Villarez, Benedicto L. Adan, Filemon C. Rodriguez, Francisco B. Fajardo, Antonio N. Avecilla, Crisostomo L. Alma Jose, Epifanio N. Salumbides, Vicente G. Cruz, and Oscar L. S. Sarte.

THE Cabinet approved the reservation of 3,360 square; meters of land in Intramuros, corner of Cabildo and Sta. Potenciana Streets, as the site for the construction of the National Economic Council building.

The Cabinet gave its approval upon recommendation of Acting NEC Presiding Officer Eduardo Z. Romualdez.

The Cabinet meeting was held at the Council of State room and lasted from 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. The President presided over the meeting.

IN the afternoon, the President inaugurated the Liberty Milk Plant of the General Milk Company in Mandaluyong, Rizal, and said that the establishment of the factory was a contribution to the progress of the country's economy.

The President gave a brief remark after the plant was blessed by Archbishop Rufino J. Santos of Manila. The First Lady, assisted by Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez and ladies of the company officials, cut the ceremonial ribbon.

The Chief Executive praised the officials of the General Milk Company of Los Angeles, California, for the establishment of the company's first milk plant in the Far East. He said that the establishment of the milk plant was a milestone in the industrial and economic progress of the country.

The President was shown around the plant by William D. Dobson, executive vice-president of the General Milk Company, and James L. Terrassa, general manager of the local plant.

Leaving Malacañang about 5:15 p.m. with the First Lady, the President arrived at the milk plant about fifteen minutes later and was met and greeted by the company officials. He and the First Lady then proceeded to the platform where a short program was held in connection with the inauguration. The President gave his remarks before the ceremonial ribbon was cut.

From the Liberty Milk plant, the President and the First Lady motored to Taft Avenue where they inaugurated the Carmen D. Cruz building. The new commercial building is owned by Mrs. Carmen D. Cruz.

The President and the First Lady returned to Malacañang past 7 p.m.

December 4.—THIS morning the President assured members of the Iloilo Newsmen's Association who called on him that his stand on the case against Iloilo City Mayor Rodolfo Ganzon would be based on the merits of the case "devoid of political color."

The President said that he had not acted on the administrative case against Mayor Ganzon before the elections because then his action would have been suspected of being tinted with politics.

He allayed fears of the Iloilo newsmen that the official papers had been stolen. He said that transcription of the records of the case had been made and that copies would always be available to interested parties.

Members of the INA who called on the President included Jesus P. Ramos, president of the association, and members Jose Burgos, Rudolfo Claparols, Gil G. Palma, and Nacionacino Rico.

Earlier, the President received Manila City Mayor Arsenio Lacson, who discussed with the Chief Executive matters on the improvement of Manila.

The President also received Gov. Alejo Santos and Rep. Rogancio Mercado of Bulacan, who informed him that rice production in Bulacan had been accelerated by applying both the Margate and the Masagana systems.

The President told Gov. Santos and Rep. Mercado that he was glad that rice production in Bulacan had been intensified. He reiterated that the first objective of his administration was to increase rice production and make the country self-sufficient in this staple crop.

Then the President motored to the Senate session hall, where he delivered a speech at the opening of the THIRD ECAFE Regional Technical Conference on Water Development. (See Historical Papers and Document, pp. 8523–8527, for full text of the President's speech.) He was fetched from Malacañang by Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno.

PRESIDENT Garcia this day issued the following statement:

"I have read from the newspapers that the Supreme Court has granted bail to the members of the Politburo. I have asked for a copy of the court's decision.

"Since this is of vital importance to the country affecting specifically the national security, I have summoned the secretary of justice, the secretary of national defense, the AFP chief of staff, and the director of the National Intelligence Coordinating Agency to a conference tomorrow for the explicit purpose of assessing the implication of the court's ruling.

"I take this occasion to restate my unequivocal stand against Communism. Partly on this platform I was elected to office by our people and I am determined to implement the people's mandate."

PRESIDENT Garcia expressed indignation upon receipt this day of a report from the provincial commander of Negros Occidental verifying a Philippine News Service story on the alleged group-raping of a 17-year old girl in Victorias, Negros Occidental.

The President said that the guilty parties of the beastly crime should be made to suffer the full penalty of the law. He further directed that the victim, a 17-year old girl, Dionisia Salem of Calatrava town, Negros Occidental, who is still at the Negros Occidental Hospital, be given all the needed medical treatment and hospitalization and, if necessary, should be immediately airlifted to Manila for hospitalization.

According to the Constabulary report, Dionisia is still at the provincial hospital suffering from shock. The report added that she would not answer questions when interviewed.

The Constabulary commander said that the PC was leaving no stone unturned until justice is done. He added that the PC was assisting the provincial fiscal in gathering evidence in the prosecution of the case.

The report further said that 10 persons involved in the alleged rape were already identified and had been accused with rape, including serious physical injuries. The case is now filed with the justice of the peace court of Victorias.

Of the ten persons accused, three were lodged in jail because they had been unable to post a bond of P16,000 each. The seven others still at large are the object of a province-wide manhunt by the PC and the police forces.

THE President today received a resolution of the Iloilo Lawyer's Association pledging anew the loyalty, support, and cooperation of its members to his administration.

In renewing their pledge, the Ilongo barristers stated that it was cognizant of the determination of President Garcia, who had shown devotion and dedicated service to the Filipino people, to push through his plan to ameliorate the economic plight of the masses.

The resolution was presented to President Garcia by Tomas Concepcion and Engracio Areño, in the presence of Rafael D. Lavente, Ramon D. Duremdes, Emilio Eligio, Nazareno Bedia, and Agustin Misola, all members of the association.

IN the afternoon the President received Ambassador Felino Neri, who paid his respects immediately upon his arrival from Tokyo.

Neri congratulated the President on his victory at the recent polls and informed the Chief Executive that his victory had been popularly acclaimed in Japan. He also took up with the President general matters pertaining to the visit of Prime Minister Nobusuki Kishi.

Ambassador Neri, who returned to the Philippines after about two years of stay in Tokyo, will be in consultations with President Garcia and Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano on Philippine-Japanese problems.

During his stay in Manila, he will find out how he can be of help in appraising Philippine-Japanese relations from a proper perspective in the light of his experiences in Tokyo.

President Garcia also received this afternoon visiting executives of the Compania General de Tabacos de Filipinas who called at Malacañang to pay their respects following their recent arrival here from Barcelona, Spain.

During their call the business executives informed the President of the plan of their company to expand its branch factories in the Philippines in line with the Administration's industrialization program. They also presented the President with an autograph picture of the President of Uruguay.

The visiting Tabacalera officials were Fernando Gari, Francisco Cantarell, and Jaime Gil de Leon. They were accompanied to Malacañang by officials of the local branch; namely, Charles H. Davies, Ramon Barata, Ricardo Padilla, and Rafael S. Torres. The visiting businessmen are scheduled to return to Spain on Friday.

Mons. Egidio Vagnozzi, papal nuncio, also called to pay his respects. During the call, the nuncio discussed with the President the forthcoming visit to the Philippines of Francis Cardinal Spellman.

Other callers this evening included Gov. Juan Alberto and Congressman-elect Jose Alberto of Catanduanes; Mayor Cesar Climaco of Zamboanga City; Augusto Syjuco, president of Darigold Milk Co.; and Manuel Leelin, vice-president of the Willard Batteries of the Philippines

December 5.—PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia today led the nation in paying last tribute to the late former Governor-General Francis Burton Harrison.

The First Family motored to the session hall of the House of Representatives, where necrological services for the departed former-governor-general were held.

Arriving at the session hall at exactly 8:30 a.m., the President and the First Lady sought the immediate members of the family of the late governor-general and condoled with them.

The necrological services commenced after the President had taken his seat at the rostrum of the session hall. Seated with the Chief Executive were former President Sergio Osmeña, Sr., Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, and Speaker Protempore Daniel Z. Romualdez.

The President's funeral oration climaxed the necrological services. (See Historical Papers and Documents, pp. 8527–8530, for full text of President's oration.) Other funeral orators were former President Sergio Osmeña, U.S. Minister Horace Smith, Sen. Gil Puyat, and Rep. Joaquin R. Roces. The Philippine Constabulary Band under the baton of Col. Antonio Buenaventura furnished the music.

Present at the necrological services were department secretaries, members of the diplomatic corps, justices of the Supreme Court, and other high government officials of the Philippines and the United States. Also present were ranking officers of the armies and navies of both the Philippines and the United States.

After the necrological services, the President joined the funeral procession to the North Cemetery. The No. 1 car bearing the President, the First Lady, Mrs. Maria Teresa Harrison, and F. B. Harrison, Jr., followed the caisson bearing the remains of the late governor-general.

A 19-gun salute marked the arrival of the funeral cortege at the North Cemetery. Then taps was played and rifle volleys were fired.

After the burial ceremonies, five Filipino soldiers carefully folded the Philippine and the American flags which were draped around the coffin of the late governor-general. The flags were handed to the President who in turn gave them to the widow of the late governor-general. At high noon the coffin bearing the remains of Governor-General Harrison was interred.

The President returned to Malacañang about 12:20 p.m.

President Garcia today discussed with the secretary of justice, the defense secretary, and top brass of the Armed Forces the implications of the recent Supreme Court decision granting bail to ten politburo members.

The conferees agreed to take up certain precautionary measures in the interest of the State. Details of the measures were not revealed.

Attending the luncheon conference presided over by the President were Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason; Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas; Defense Undersecretary Mariano Yenko, Jr.; Assistant Executive Secretary Nicanor Jimenez; Brig. Gen. Diosdado L. Rodriguez, acting AFP chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Manuel F. Cabal, PC chief; Brig. Gen. Pelagio A. Cruz, NICA chief; Col. Ismael Lapuz, AFP G-2 chief; and Col. Angel Salcedo, AFP Judge Advocate General. Also present were Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison and Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable.

The President's action in calling justice and defense officials to a conference was spurred by the Supreme Court's allowing ten politburo officials accused of rebellion to be released on bail pending appeal of the decision convicting them.

The President said that the Supreme Court action was of vital importance to the country, as it affected national security.

IN the afternoon the President conferred with Senator Puyat on plans for gradual lifting of trade and exchange controls.

The President then motored to the National Press Club building, where he inducted the officers of the Political Writers Association of the Philippines.

He delivered a 30-minute extemporaneous address before the political writers, after which he went down to the NPC library and had a chess bout with Pedro A. Amaguin of the Chronicle.

PRESIDENT Garcia yesterday called upon the political writers of the country to help his administration with "constructive criticisms to guide me in my actuations for the next four years."

He inducted the officers of the Political Writers Association of the Philippines in a brief ceremony at the National Press Club building this afternoon.

In a 30-minute extemporaneous speech the President said his program in the next four years will be geared towards "putting the Republic in a state of stable economy."

He exhorted newspapermen to help him guide his administration with suggestions and "constructive criticisms."

In inviting criticisms from the newspapermen and from the public, the President said he is human and does not presume to the infallible.

He pointed out that since he is not contemplating to run for reelection, he will "not fear the bunting against me."

The Chief Executive recalled that the political writers had been "fair with me during the last election campaign in spite of their political convictions."

He expressed the hope that newspapermen will always "write truth," adding that the newspapermen "who are mostly my friends, should consider more their friendship with truth than with me."

The President reiterated that his main concern the next four years is the solution of economic problems.

Expressing his determination to tackle this problem, he sought the guidance from the public and the press with their suggestions.

In inducting the officers of the Political Writers Association, the President said the organization is a “potent group especially during the elections.”

However, he urged them to live up to the noble traditions established by early political writers such as former President Sergio Osmeña, Sen. Claro M. Recto, and the late Sen. Manuel C. Briones.

After their induction, the PWA officers presented President Garcia with a scroll congratulating him on his recent electoral victory and wishing him success in his administration.

Francisco C. Dipasupil of the Chronicle, who was inducted president of the association, said in his brief remarks, that the organization proposes to “conduct forums to which we shall invite our political leaders, government administrators, and our men of thought and action who, we believe, could help in our task of informing the public of the facts and implications of a given problem or measure affecting the vital interests of the people.

PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia this evening gave a dinner in Malacañang in honor of the late Governor-General Francis Burton Harrison.

Those honored were Mrs. Francis B. Harrison, widow; Mrs. Wescott, daughter; Miss Deborah Wescott, granddaughter; Miss Haite Aguietxe, step-daughter; and Francis B. Harrison, Jr., son.

Other guests were Ex-President and Mrs. Sergio Osmeña, Minister Raul Leuterio, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos, Capt. Russ Sabalones, aide to the Harrison family from U.S., and Manuel G. Zamora, Malacañang protocol officer.

December 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia today expressed hope that the visit to the Philippines of Japanese Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi would usher in a new era of better relations and understanding between this country and Japan.

Receiving at Malacañang the Japanese premier who arrived in Manila this morning on a two-day state visit in this country, the President added that under a friendly atmosphere, the Philippines and Japan could work together for the common welfare and peace not only of countries within this area but also in the whole world.

Pledges of friendly and better relations between the Philippines and Japan were exchanged by President Garcia and the visiting Japanese prime minister.

Kishi expressed the gratitude of the Japanese people for Filipino support in the admission of Japan as a member of the United Nations and its election as member of the Security Council.

He also congratulated the Philippine Chief Executive on his victory in the presidential election and said that the country will have a rosy future under the administration of President Garcia.

In response, President Garcia expressed his satisfaction that the two countries are friends again and added that the help the Philippines extended to Japan in the United Nations is in line with his policy to help establish an enduring peace.

The Japanese Prime Minister received full military honors upon arrival at Malacañang from a unit of the President Guard Battalion.

He was accompanied to Malacañang by Secretary Felixberto Serrano of Foreign Affairs and members of his official party which included Kichi Aichi, chief cabinet secretary; Takizo Matsumoto, parliamentary vice-minister of foreign affairs; Ryoichi Nagata, Hajime Tamura, and Tatsui Chuma, members of the House of Representatives; Kyutaro Ozawa, member of the House of Councilors; and Michiaki Suma, Shinsuke Hori, Kuniyoshi Date, and Masao Togashi, of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

IN the evening the President gave a formal dinner in honor of Japanese Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi and members of his party who are currently on a two-day state visit in the Philippines.

Minister Kishi and his party arrived in Manila this morning on the last lap of their second Asian goodwill tour which had taken them to 11 countries.

The affair was attended by leaders of Congress, department secretaries, members of the local diplomatic corps, Chief Justice Ricardo Paras, Senate Foreign Affairs Committee Chairman and Mrs. Francisco Delgado, Senator Jose P. Laurel, Senator Claro M. Recto, and Auditor and Mrs. Pedro Jimenez among others.

December 7.—THE President cancelled his trip to Baguio City where he was scheduled to meet Japanese Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi on the Japanese sponsored Asian Development Fund and other problems facing the two countries.

President Garcia cancelled his trip after he was informed that the Japanese Prime Minister became indisposed following a dinner given him in Malacañang last night.

However, Mr. Kishi told a press conference in the evening that his doctors diagnosed his indisposition as due to fatigue in “selling” his Asian Development Fund and the change of climate he experienced in the Philippines.

The Japanese prime minister also told newsmen at a press conference that he had refrained from eating since his ailment, and disclosed that he was a little weak but felt much better.

The President did not receive any callers in the morning, as he conferred with his advisers on the Japan- sponsored Asian Development Fund and other ticklish issues which had recently ruffled the relations between the Philippines and Japan.

President Garcia, upon learning that his guest, Prime Minister Kishi, had recovered from a stomach ailment, re-scheduled their conference in the afternoon.

The two were locked in conference for three hours and 25 minutes and were reported to have touched on various subjects, including the international situation.

After his conference with Kishi, the President received Rep. Bartolome Cabangbang of Bohol, who reported on the attempt on his life at his residence by three grenade throwers early this morning.

PRESIDENT Garcia underscored the active threat posed by communism to the integrity of the family as an institution at the closing ceremonies of the First National Conference on Filipino Family Life held this evening at the Malacañang Social Hall.

In his speech, read by Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon, President Garcia pointed out that communism is hostile to the family in the belief that it is the last refuge of property right.

He added that the communist regime in Russia has embarked on a campaign aimed at the systematic eradication of families, substituting them with numerous youth organizations.

Although the Filipinos are fortunately free from this threat, the President said, for they are uncompromisingly against communism as a way of life, even a modern democratic society develops conditions which tend to undermine family cohesion, like co-education, industrialization, woman suffrage, and the increasing search for recreation outside of the home as a result of a rising standard of living and shorter hours of work.

Another highlight of the closing ceremonies was the presentation of a certificate of appreciation to Mrs. Carlos P. Garcia, who “in her various roles as housewife, mother, and First Lady, has carried on in the best tradition of the Filipino family.”

December 8.—THE President this day spent most of his time working on state papers. He motored to his hideout with only an aide accompanying him.

Earlier, the President together with his family heard mass at the Malacañang Chapel. After breakfast at his bedroom, the President read the Sunday papers. Afterwards he motored to his hideout where he worked on state papers until lunchtime.

After a brief rest in the afternoon the President resumed working on state papers.

December 9.—THIS morning the President received Manila City “Mayor” Ana Lopez, of the Epifanio de los Santos Elementary School, and other juvenile city officials, who took the reins of the city government in connection with Boys and Girls Week.

“Mayor” Lopez and the other juvenile city officials took their oath of office before proceeding to Malacañang to pay a courtesy call on President Garcia.

Other juvenile officials were Romeo Fernandez, “vice-mayor” and “presiding officer” of the Municipal Board; and Elza Dapilos, Jose Layug, June Bergman, Amante Legaspi, Zoilo Isip, Romana Sioson, Emmanuel Arriola, Alejo Villanueva, Jr., Juanito Go, Emiliano Yumang, Rustico Serrano, and Francisco Villaflor.

Sorsogon Gov. Juan Frivaldo and about ten municipal mayors of his province also saw President Garcia to request the partial release of at least P5 million for the construction of the extension of the railroad line to Matnog, Sorsogon.

Frivaldo informed the President that the survey of the extension would be through by February next and with the immediate release of P5 million, construction work could be started right after the survey.

Under Republic Act 1623, Congress appropriated the sum of P15 million for the extension of the southern line of the Manila Railroad Company to Matnog.

Don Huth, outgoing manager of the local AP office, called on President Garcia to bid goodbye before proceeding to his new post in Singapore and to present his successor, Jim Becker. Huth was accompanied by his wife, Ann, and Eugenio Boado, also of the AP.

PRESIDENT Garcia this morning received the immediate members of the family of the late former Governor-General Francis Burton Harrison who called at Malacañang to express their gratitude to the Philippine Government which had accorded the departed former governor-general a state funeral.

Mrs. Maria Teresa Harrison, widow of the late governor-general, told the President that the entire Harrison family would never forget the assistance which the Philippine President had extended to them in their hour of bereavement.

The immediate family of the late former governor-general included Mrs. Barbara Wescott, daughter; Francis, Jr., son; Deborah Wescott and Maite Aguiretxe, granddaughters.

The Harrison were accompanied to Malacañang by Philippine Minister Raul T. Leuterio and Capt. Ruso Sabalones of the U.S. Army, aide to the Harrison family.

FOUR leading Filipino chambers which had recently been merged into the Philippine Inter-Chamber Organization (BICO) today called on President Garcia and pledged to cooperate with the Administration in the solution of the country's economic problems.

Former Secretary Primitivo Lovina, chairman of the PICO, told the President that in order to coordinate the activities of these four chambers and synchronize them with those of the government in relation to trade, commerce, and industry, the new organization had been organized.

Those who called on the President aside from Chairman Lovina, who is the President of the Philippine Chamber of Commerce, were Fernando E. V. Sison, vice-chairman of the PICO and at the same time president of the Philippine Chamber of Industries; Alfredo Montelibano, president of the Chamber of Agriculture and Natural Resources of the Philippines; and Gaudencio E. Antonino, president of the Producers and Exporters Association of the Philippines. Also with the group were A. B. Isip, secretary of the PICO, and Dean Hermenegildo R. Reyes.

Speaking for the PICO group, Lovina said that the organization would periodically meet to study problems of common interest in order to promote more cooperation, team-work, and understanding among the different chambers and thus minimize conflicting view-points.

He said that owing to the many problems affecting private business and industry, the PICO would assist the Administration in the solution of these problems.

The President thanked the PICO for their offer of help and said that he would confer with them from time to time as he had already started to do, in seeking the solution of the country's economic problems.

December 10.—PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia this morning motored to the Sta. Rita College chapel to hear another Thanksgiving mass for the holding of the recent peaceful elections.

Arriving at the chapel at exactly 7:30 a.m., the President and the First Lady were greeted by the members of the faculty headed by Sor Carmen de la Sagrada Familia, mother superior of Sta. Rita College.

President and Mrs. Garcia were accompanied by their daughter Linda and her husband, Fernando Campos. Also present at the mass were Mrs. Eulogio Balao and Quezon City Mayor Norberto Amoranto. The mass was followed by a Te Deum.

Then the President and his family ate breakfast at the Sta. Rita convent.

THE President today received Charles Lucey, of the Scripps-Howard newspaper chain, who called following his arrival from Saigon, Vietnam. Lucey was accompanied by William Miller, local UP head.

After Lucey, the President received Nick Osmeña, Peping Corominas, and Geminiano Yabut, who informed him of the progress of the work of the inauguration committee.

The President then received Govs. Manuel Barretto of Zambales and Conrado Estrella of Pangasinan, who discussed problems of their respective provinces.

President Garcia also received Sens. Pedro Sabido and Quintin Paredes, and Senator-elect Eulogio Balao, as well as Lands Director Zoilo Castrillo and acting OEC Administrator Juan Concon, before going to the ceremonial hall to receive a delegation of veterans led by Manila Vice-Mayor Jesus Marcos Rocas, Col. Conrado B. Rigor, Maj. Francisco Offemaria, and Mrs. Pilar Normandy.

PRESIDENT Garcia today expressed satisfaction that 22 different veterans organizations had finally decided to unite under the Veterans Federation of the Philippines and promised to help the federation look after the welfare of its members.

The President admitted that in the past, the Administration could not help effectively the veterans because of their disunited stand on matters concerning them.

Representative elements of the 22 different veterans, organizations saw the President at the Malacañang ceremonial hall and informed him that they had unified under one permanent national federation. They also requested the President to prepare an administration bill to be submitted to Congress granting a charter to the Veterans Federation of the Philippines.

Dealing with one united organization, the President said, the Administration could understand better the problems of the veterans. He recalled that the question of veterans, unification had been first started during the administration of the late President Roxas.

He added that when he was a senator, he advocated the unification of the veterans, group under one organization to present a solid front in obtaining more benefits for the veterans, war widows, and orphans.

Manila Vice-Mayor Jesus Marcos Roces, national commander of the CONVETS, and Col. Conrado B. Rigor, chairman of the unification committee, informed the President that the VFP was ready to begin the spadework in the attainment of its objectives, one of them being legislation affecting veterans and their widows and orphans.

Filipino delegates to the World Veterans Federation Convention in Berlin, Germany, led by Maj. Francisco Offemaria, national commander of the Philippine Veterans Legion, and Ben Florentino of the United Disabled Veterans of the Philippines, also reported to the President the accomplishment of the Filipino delegation.

THIS noon President Garcia expressed the gratitude of the Filipino people especially the veterans, to John T. Cooper, Jr., U.S.V.A. manager, in an after-luncheon remarks.

President and Mrs. Garcia honored Mr. and Mrs. Cooper with a luncheon. The Coopers are sailing for the United States tomorrow.

In his brief remarks President Garcia said that Cooper had done a wonderful work in looking after the benefits of some 100,000 Filipino veterans. For this reason, the President said, the Filipinos were grateful to Mr. Cooper.

Mr. Cooper said that he would continue to be of help to the Filipinos even if he would be away from the Philippines. He wished the President success in his administration during the next four years.

THE President will meet with his Cabinet members jointly with members of the Monetary Board tomorrow to discuss the new Central Bank policies regarding the curbing of imports and the restriction of credits.

The President had a preliminary talk today with Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, chairman of the Monetary Board, on new reports about the Monetary Board, on new reports about the Monetary Board's seven-point directive.

The Chief Executive said that he would take up this matter with his Cabinet members and the members of the Monetary Board at their meeting tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

IN the afternoon the president urged all the organizations which worked for his victory in the recent election to help him in making a success of his administration.

"We won the election and we should not lose the administration," the President told the members of the various Garcia-for-President organizations who called on him at Malacañang. He suggested that the GPM and the other organizations unite and join in a crusade for good government.

The President said that there were many ways of making the Administration a success, and appealed to the members of the various organizations to help him. "Let us make our victory complete by giving the people a good government," he remarked.

The Chief Executive thanked the members of the organizations "for your assistance in making my victory in the polls possible." He said that in choosing men for government jobs, he would adhere to qualifications and "would not place square pegs in round holes."

The President was cheered by the members of the organizations several times during his brief remarks. He met them at the Malacañang social hall about 5:30 p.m. After shaking hands with them, he delivered his brief remarks.

Earlier in the afternoon, the President received CONDA (Conference Delegates Association) officials who invited him to be their guest speaker at their conference in Baguio City on December 28. The President said that he would send a representative, because he would be very busy with his inauguration address which he would deliver on December 30. The CONDA officials were headed by Napoleon Lichauco, president, and accompanied by Rafael Salas and Ignacio Debuque, Jr., Malacañang technical assistant on student affairs.

The President also received officials of Cagayan de Oro City headed by Vice-Mayor Osmundo Waga. The Cagayan de Oro City officials discussed their local problems with the Chief Executive.

PRESIDENT Garcia today wished Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi of Japan "continued success in all your undertakings for strengthening the ties of friendship between Japan and the Philippines and all Asian neighbors."

In an answer to Premier Kishi's message expressing his gratitude "for the warm reception and hospitality I and my party were accorded in the Philippines," the President also wished peace and prosperity of the Japanese people.

In his message to the President, Premier Kishi said: "I am happy to believe that my visit, especially the personal contact I had with Your Excellency, will bear good fruits in the furtherance of friendship and cooperation between our two nations."

December 11.—THE President this morning was assured by officials of the National Power Corporation and the International Engineering and Development Company of Japan that arrangements had already been made to start soon the design work of the Marikina multipurpose project.

Filemon Zablan, NPC general manager, and Filemon Rodriguez, former NEC chairman, accompanied Yoshiaki Hatta and Kazunori Nakamura, president and managing director, respectively, of the Japanese firm. Also with the Japanese industrial officials were Nobuyuki Kumakawa, director, and Kiyoshi Yasuda, managing director.

The President was assured that as soon as the design work is through, a report will be submitted to the Import and Export Bank of Japan to support a proposed loan application of $50 million to finance the construction of the project.

The Chief Executive expressed the hope that the project will serve as a monument of concrete manifestation made by the Japanese through reparations.

The $50 million loan to be extended by the Import and Export Bank of Japan will be paid out of reparations.

The Marikina multi-purpose project will include a hydroelectric plant, irrigation system, flood control system, and a reservoir to augment the water supply of Manila and the suburbs.

The President received Speaker Protempore Daniel Romualdez, who accompanied Reps. Manual Zosa of Cebu and Cesar Fortich of Bukidnon, members on the part of the House of Representatives of the congressional board of canvassers which reported the results of the recent presidential elections at a joint session of the Senate and the House of Representatives held yesterday.

Earlier, President Garcia received Minister Raul T. Leuterio, who called to say goodbye before returning to his post in New York.

THE President today was informed by Social Welfare Administrator Amparo P. Villamor that relief materials, mostly rice and canned goods, were released by the SWA for shipment to Batanes where an estimated 10,000 persons are suffering from hunger as a result of the destruction of crops in the recent typhoon.

Mrs. Villamor reported to the President that 200 sacks of rice and canned goods had been sent earlier to Batanes where the SWA has a branch office. She said that the SWA was sending continuous shipments to the hunger-stricken area to curb the threat of starvation.

She also said that some emergency food materials might be sent by plane to the hunger-stricken area. She said a team of SWA social workers might also be sent to survey the disaster and make the necessary recommendation to rehabilitate the typhoon victims. The Air Force has been cooperating with the SWA in ferrying relief to the typhoon stricken areas.

PRESIDENT Garcia today was informed by Collector of Internal Revenue Jose Arañas that there actually is no deficit of a little over P10 million in the BIR collections during the period from July 1 to September 30, 1957, as earlier reported.

In a written report to the President, Collector Arañas said that the collections of the BIR from July 1 to September 30, 1957, exceeded the estimated budgetary income by P544,379.70. Arañas said that a perusal of the figures on actual collections compiled by the BIR from the monthly reports of provincial, city, and deputy provincial treasurers showed that the total amount of P124,794,579.70 was collected from July 1 to September 30, 1957, as compared to the Budget estimates of P124,240,000.00 for the same period.

Arañas submitted to the President two statements showing the comparison between actual collections and Budget estimates to support his report that there was an increase instead of deficit in the BIR collections from July 1 to September 30, 1957.

AT the Cabinet meeting today President Garcia directed Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason to look into charges that the World War II Veterans Enterprises, Inc., allegedly, was not properly handling the importation of Japanese reparations good, which privilege had been granted by the Cabinet to the organization to help in the rehabilitation and employment of deserving veterans.

The President made the directive on the complaint of Gonzalo L. Manuel and Co., Inc., which charged that the veterans organization "instead of doing business for itself under the terms and conditions of the Cabinet grant, farmed out exclusively the privilege granted them by the Cabinet to the Mayon Commercial Company."

Last August the Cabinet had approved the proposal of the veterans organization to undertake the sale and distribution of specific goods coming from the $20 million reparations goods earmarked for the veterans for a period of two years, amounting to some $8 million.

The complainant company said that the Mayon Commercial Company had been organized only on October 10, 1957, less than two months after the Cabinet grant had been awarded, with a capitalization at only P25,000.

It further alleged that the Mayon Commercial Company was reportedly financed and controlled by aliens and alien firms. It was also claimed that representations made to the World War II Veterans Enterprises, Inc., and the Mayon Commercial Company that Filipino traders and entities be allowed to share in the $8 million allocation had been refused, unless Filipino traders and entities dealt with the Mayon Commercial Company and agreed to pay a ridiculous mark-up of 55 per cent over and above other charges and fees except customs duties and import taxes.

The complainant company said that “when we were tempted to accept the 55 per cent mark-up, it was impressed upon us that on our payments of the $1 million worth of reparations goods tentatively allowed us verbally, it will be made to appear that we paid only a 45 per cent mark-up and that the 10 per cent mark-up differential will not be receipted for.”

The complainant company requested among other things that of the $8 million worth of reparations goods granted by the Cabinet to the veterans organization, the amount of $1 million be earmarked and set aside in favor of the complainant company under the same terms and conditions in the Cabinet decision.

The company also requested that the veterans organization be directed to handle directly the distribution and sale of reparations goods to guarantee direct assistance to the heroes, veterans, and orphans of the last war and that any arrangement made with the Mayon Commercial Company be cancelled and withdrawn.

In reply to the charges against the World War II Veterans Enterprises, Inc., Maj. Gen. Calixto Duque (Ret.), president and general manager of the company, said that it was not true that the veterans organization had given exclusive privilege of implementing the Cabinet authority to generate the $8 million for the trust fund intended for veterans to the Mayon Commercial Company.

Duque said that the Mayon Commercial Company, a co-partnership of David L. Ghent and Joseph Uy, both Filipino citizens, had been employed by the veterans’ organization only to process on its behalf orders for goods or commodities that might be brought in under the Cabinet authority.

Duque further said that to this effect he had put out an advertisement advising the public to deal directly with the management of the veterans organization.

Duque explained that Ghent and Uy had been employed by the veterans’ organization “principally because of their technical knowledge of the import business and because of the fact that these two gentlemen are war veterans.”

The retired general stressed that the veterans’ organization had never authorized the Mayon Commercial Company to fix a mark-up profit on the commodities to be brought in, which phase of the transaction, he said, was the responsibility of the general manager and the board of directors of the corporation.

He added that if Mr. Manuel had been made to understand what he had alleged in this matter, it was “without the knowledge and authority of the president and general manager and the board of directors of the World War II Veterans Enterprises, Inc.”

Duque said that in connection with the request of Mr. Manuel and his company that they be allocated $1 million worth of commodities, the veterans’ organization was ready to entertain all offers from Filipino citizens without discrimination.

The President told Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason to look into these charges and make a report of his findings.

PRESIDENT Garcia at the Cabinet meeting directed Commerce Secretary Pedro Hernaez to suspend temporarily the processing of applications for barter.

A Malacañang spokesman stressed that the President’s directive did not include those applications for barter which had already been processed.

THE Cabinet approved the agreement arrived at between the Catholic Relief Services of the United States in cooperation with the Catholic Welfare Organization of the Philippines on the one hand and the Philippine Government on the other hand, to distribute here relief goods coming from Catholic organizations in the United States.

Under this agreement, after consultations between the Catholic Relief Services and the Social Welfare Administration and the Department of National Defense, in representation of the Philippine Government, Catholic, relief goods will be distributed in the Philippines irrespective of religious or political affiliation of the needy recipients. The transportation facilities of the Armed Forces will be used in the distribution of the relief goods.

Education Secretary Manuel Lim, who reported to the President and the Cabinet on the successful termination of the negotiations, said that under this program $6 million worth of relief goods will be distributed in the Philippines by the Catholic Relief Services. These relief goods consist of rice, powdered milk, clothing, and other relief articles.

It was understood that the Philippine Government would pay some amounts for necessary expenses incidental to the distribution of these relief goods.

THE Cabinet authorized the holding of the Far Eastern Animal Resources conference in Manila from April 7 to 16, 1958, under the joint sponsorship of the Bureau of Animal Industry, the Colleges of Veterinary Medicine and of Agriculture, University of the Philippines, the National Research Council of the Philippines, and the National Sciences Board.

The objectives of the conference are to exchange information on present animal resources of participating countries, ideas and information in the fields of animal husbandry and veterinary science, plan for cooperation in the development and conservation of animal resources, and other information and recommendations that may be introduced at the conference.

Delegates will come from Australia, Burma, Cambodia, Ceylon, Indonesia, India, Japan, Laos, Malaya, Nationalist China, New Zealand, Pakistan, South Korea, South Vietnam, and Thailand. The following countries and organizations will send observers: United States, Canada, Fiji, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, Mexico, Argentina, Brazil, Costa Rica, Cuba, Denmark, Inter-American Institute of Agricultural Sciences at Turrialba, South Pacific Commission at Noumea, New Caledonia, FAO, and Office International des Epizooties, Paris.

The Cabinet also authorized Eugenio E. Santos, general manager of the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office, to receive the salary of P18,000 per annum.

The increase in Santos' salary was approved in view of recommendations of the board of directors of the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes and of the commissioner of the budget.

The Cabinet action placed the Sweepstakes general manager's salary at par with those of the general managers of the NARIC, the NASSCO, and the PHHC.

The President presided over the Cabinet meeting which was held at the Council of State room and which lasted from 10:45 a.m. to 2:15 p.m.

IN the afternoon the President had a conference with officials of the Social Security Commission who called at Malacañang to report on the performance of the agency since its organization last September 1 and to recommend general policies and principles it shall follow in its future operation and administration.

The President said he was immensely interested in the success of the new commission, as he expected it to play a vital role in the economic development of the country because of its capital potential. He said that, through the commission, the people become contributors to the development of the economy.

The Chief Executive, however, cautioned SSC officials to exercise great care in the investment and administration of the commission's funds. He said that those funds were a responsibility of the government to the thousands of workers who constitute the SSC members.

Rodolfo P. Andal, acting SSC administrator who acted as spokesman for the group, informed the President that the commission had already passed the critical stage of its organization. Andal disclosed that to date, it had already 238,000 members, more than two-thirds of its goal for the period ending June 30, 1958.

Andal also said that total collections so far of the commission amounted to P6,200,000, of which P800,000 had already been invested with the Central Bank and the Rehabilitation Finance Corporation. According to Andal, the commission during the last three months had been operating below the financial limits set for it by Congress.

Speaking for the SSQ commissioners, Andal recommended the early appointment of a permanent administrator so that the agency would be run on a fulltime and more stable basis. He also took up with the President some proposed amendments to the social security act to do away with certain objectionable features of the law.

The Chief Executive instructed SSC officials to prepare a draft of the proposed amendments and submit it to him before the opening of the next congressional session.

Present at the conference were Social Security Commissioners Paulino Garcia, secretary of health; Angel Castaño, secretary of labor; Gonzalo Gonzales, U.P. regent; Ildefonso Remolona, vice-president of the Mindanao labor organization; and Leopoldo Rovira. Also present were Higino Francisco, first deputy administrator, Alfredo Gomez, and Exequiel Sevilla.

December 12.—IN view of the declining level of our international reserves as a result of rising inflationary pressures, the Cabinet and the Monetary Board, in joint executive session presided over by President Garcia, approved early this morning the following remedial measures in addition to the measures already adopted by the Monetary Board:

- (1) Tightening vigilance of government agencies so as to prevent undeclared overshipments of exports, underpricing of exports, and overpricing of imports;
- (2) Tightening of rules and regulations on barter Republic Act No. 1410;
- (3) Concentrating on importation of essentials only as much as possible by the NAMARCO;
- (4) Reducing to a minimum of rice importation;
- (5) Reforming domestic transportation system with a view to economizing fuel and spare parts;
- (6) More effective tax legislation designed to achieve as soon as possible an effective syphoning off of excess purchasing power; and
- (7) Utmost intensification of food production to achieve self-sufficiency in rice, corn, and other food crops, thereby saving foreign exchange.

The conferees also decided to recommend to the President that a bill creating a board of trade to consolidate and coordinate all existing governmental agencies concerned with the regulation and promotion of foreign trade be submitted at the forthcoming session of Congress.

These measures will mean sacrifices on the part of both the government and private sectors of the economy. On the part of the government, utmost economy in current operating expenditures will be effected and public borrowing will be reduced by deferring public works projects and public investments of lower priority. The private sector is enjoined to heed these measures which call for national discipline in order that the country may overcome these present difficulties in as short a time as possible.

These measures were approved by the Cabinet and the Monetary Board in a joint session held aboard the RSP Santa Maria, and presided over by President Garcia. The conference started 11:15 p.m. yesterday and lasted until 3 a.m. today.

PRESIDENT Garcia this morning received more than 100 callers, mostly congressmen and governors with their political leaders.

The first caller of the President was Sen. Quintin Paredes and members of his task force II who informed him officially of the results of their labor during the last elections.

The Chief Executive thanked the members of the Paredes task force for their work which had contributed to his victory in Ilocandia. Members of the task force were ex-Gov. Vicente Formoso of Isabela, ex-Rep. Domingo Sioson of Cagayan, Provincial Board Member Antonio Paredes of Abra, and Federico Diaz and Graciano Cariño.

The President also received Gov. Jose Briones of Cebu and his brother Jesus, and Reps. Serafin Salvador of Rizal, Ricardo Y. Ladrado of Iloilo, Maximino Noel of Cebu, and Salvador Enemas of Sorsogon.

Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez and Gov. Juan Triviño of Camarines Sur presented to the President the newly elected congressmen of their province, Rep. Felix Fuentebella and Rep.-elect Agaton Ursua. They were accompanied by Naga City Mayor Monico Imperial and Provincial Board Member Jack Arroyo.

Other presidential callers were Sen. Alejo Mabanag, ex-Rep. Juan Alcasaran, Rep. Leonardo Perez of Nueva Vizcaya, Gov. Mariano Tajonera of Mindoro Occidental, acting Gov. Francisco Perez of Batangas, Rep.-elect Jose Leido of Mindoro Oriental, and Rep. Apolinario Apacible of Batangas.

THE President today said that he was adhering to his hands-off policy with regard to the election of the president of the University of the Philippines. He made this statement at a conference with acting UP President Enrique T. Virata.

The Chief Executive told Virata that he wanted to give the Board of Regents absolute independence of action in the election of the U.P. president. However, the President said, if the regents still procrastinated and if the majority expressed a desire that he intervene, he would do so.

The people were tired of the inaction of the Board of Regents on the matter and even the UP students were impatient and had asked him for an audience, the President added.

The President inquired about the progress of the rubber plantation of the state university at Basilan City and was informed by Virata that out of the 7,000 hectares of land granted to the university, about 600 were already planted to rubber trees, which were giving a gross income of P500,000 a year.

However, Virata said, the profits derived from the U.P. rubber plantation were being plowed right back to the U.P. in the form of equipment and funds for further development.

Virata told the President that it was the plan to plant the rest of the area with rubber trees which are profit-making. He added that Philippine rubber production was not enough for local use.

Virata bared his plan to grant 200 scholarships every year in science and technology in order to help augment the manpower needed in the industrialization program of the Administration.

The plan is expected to attract bright high school graduates from all parts of the country, especially from the Visayas and Mindanao, who owing to transportation and financial difficulties, cannot easily come to Manila.

IN the afternoon the President received the credentials of Reinhard M. Neuerburg as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the Netherlands to the Philippines.

The new Dutch minister to the Philippines assured the President that he would continue "to exert my utmost efforts to maintain and foster" the happy relations between the Philippines and the Netherlands.

In his response the President said that it was his "fervent hope that the bonds of friendship that bind our people will grow closer, nurtured by an increasing sense of a common purpose to preserve and advance their mutual interests and to do their share in promoting respect for the principles and objectives ordained in the Charter of the United Nations and the faithful adherence to international law and justice."

The President received the new Dutch Minister at the ceremonial hall of Malacañang about 4:30 p.m. With the President when he received Minister Neuerburg were Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon, Acting Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, and some officials of the Department of Foreign Affairs.

AFTER receiving the new Dutch Minister, the President proceeded to the music room of Malacañang, where he gave cocktails for the radio commentators who had worked for his victory in the recent polls. The President thanked the radio commentators for their assistance in his victory and praised them for "keeping within the bounds of decency." With the radio commentators was Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable.

The President also received Don Toribio Teodoro and some officials of the Ang Tibay. Accompanying the Ang Tibay officials was Rep. Constancio Castañeda of Tarlac.

December 13.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona to release the unexpended appropriation of the Music Foundation of the Philippines in order that the Foundation could help Miss Catalina Zandueta, soprano, in her financial difficulties in Europe.

Miss Zandueta sometime ago had voiced her appeal for financial help through the press. According to reports, this Filipino singer had made quite a name for herself and the Philippines by giving successful concerts in Europe. However, as she was short of funds, she could not carry on her work as an ambassador of good will for the Philippines.

Upon learning of Miss Zandueta's appeal, President Garcia sometime ago had directed the Department of Foreign Affairs to look into the case. Minister Jose D. Ingles, chief of mission of the Philippine legation in Bonn, Germany, studied the matter and made a report to the foreign affairs office.

Mrs. Pura Santillan-Castrencia, president of the Cultural Foundation of the Philippines, in a recent letter to President Garcia, said that the appeal of Miss Zandueta had been finally referred to the Foundation. She said that as the Foundation did not have any money, the matter was referred to the Music Foundation of the Philippines.

The Music Foundation, according to Mrs. Castrencia, would donate the sum of $2,000 to Miss Zandueta if the unexpended appropriation of that Foundation would be released to it.

The President, upon knowing of this report, immediately directed Commissioner Aytona to release the needed amount.

THE President stayed Aboard the RPS Sta. Maria the whole day today working on state papers. He worked on his radio speech to be delivered tomorrow night, and started outlining his inaugural address to be delivered on December 30. The President had boarded the yacht last evening.

The President was accompanied aboard the yacht by Maj. Jose Estrella, aide.

December 14.—THIS morning the President continued working on two speeches; first, his speech tonight over a nationwide radio hook-up appealing to the people to support the government's austerity program; and second, his inaugural address.

From the RPS Sta. Maria where he had stayed last night, the President motored back to Malacañang this morning to receive a few callers and to fulfill his luncheon engagement with editors and publishers of the metropolitan newspapers.

The only group of callers who were received by the Chief Executive at the Malacañang study room were Prof. Sumiyuki Kotani, chief instructor of the Kodokan Judo Institute, Tokyo, who paid a courtesy call. Prof. Kotani is touring the country demonstrating judo techniques at various police agencies particularly the National Bureau of Investigation. He is on a cultural and educational exchange mission which was made possible through the friends of the Philippine Society of Japan.

Prof. Kotani was accompanied to Malacañang by Yuichi Hiroshi, also a judo instructor, and Lucio Ong of the NBI.

After receiving the callers, the President retired to his room and resumed working on state papers.

AT noontime, the President received editors of Manila dailies at a luncheon in the Palace.

IN the afternoon, the President went to the Doctors Hospital, where he attended the surgical operation on his daughter, Mrs. Linda G. Campos. He said that his daughter underwent a cyst operation.

In the evening, the President appealed to the nation to support "fully and unselfishly" the Administration's austerity program in an effort to save the country from an impending economic crisis.

He made his appeal in a nationwide radio-TV hook-up from his study room in Malacañang last night.

In his appeal, which he said was a "a heart-to-heart talk to all our people," the President exhorted the nation to observe "self-denial" and make temporary sacrifices by not using luxuries and non-essential commodities.

He pointed out that the importation of non-essential commodities have caused a heavy drain on the dollar reserves of the country.

However, the President said that the financial position of the country is not yet alarming "because after all the picture is not so dark when we consider that between the establishment of industries and production there is a lull which must be bridged by the courageous and prudent use of our dollar reserves." (See Historical Papers and Documents, in the next issue for the full text of the President's speech.)

After his speech, President Garcia explained to newsmen that the low dollar reserves may lead to the devaluation of the peso.

The President said the drastic measures were adopted to help boost the dollar reserves of the country.

He disclosed that owing to heavy importation and an imbalance in trade, "we have now a low level of the dollar reserves which threatens the stability of the peso."

The President pointed out that the Central Bank policy has been adopted on a temporary basis and will be relaxed as soon as the dollar reserves reach $200 million.

Central Bank figures of the country's dollar reserves were quoted at $142 million.

The President indicated that as soon as the figures shoot up to the $200 million mark, he will order a gradual relaxation of the restrictions.

President Garcia also attributed the low dollar reserves to the country's rapid industrialization.

December 15.—PRESIDENT Garcia said this morning that the present air-mindedness of the Filipinos indicated that the debacle in 1941, when the morale of the people was very low due to lack of air power, would never be repeated.

The President made this statement in a brief extemporaneous speech at the Manila International Airport, where a program in which he was the guest of honor was held, climaxing the 10th aviation week celebration.

The President said that the response of the people in activity participating in the aviation week celebration showed that "we are conscious of the worldwide aviation progress." He stressed that aviation played a vital role in our national security and progress.

He expressed gratitude to the nations which participated in the country's aviation week celebration, saying that without their participation the aviation week would not have been as successful as it was.

The participating nations included the United States, Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand, Nationalist China, and South Korea.

The President was accompanied to the MIA by Mrs. Garcia. They were welcomed by CAA Administrator Urbano Caldoza and Brig. Gen. Diosdado Rodriguez, acting AFP chief of staff. Others who welcomed the President at the MIA were Mrs. Victoria Araneta, president of the Feati Institute of Technology, and Commodore Jose M. Francisco, chief of the Navy.

Present at the program were members of the diplomatic corps, Cabinet members, and other high-ranking government officials.

After the speech of the President, a spectacular air-show started.

EARLIER, the President and the First Lady heard a Thanksgiving mass at the San Miguel Pro-Cathedral. The mass was sponsored by the Legion of St. Michael headed by Victor Baltazar.

Then, the President and the First Lady were fetched by Air Force Chief Brig. Gen. Pedro Q. Molina, who accompanied them to MIA for the aviation week celebration.

PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia were glad to know this morning that their daughter Linda, who had been successfully operated on for a benign cyst in the chest was doing fine at the Manila Doctors Hospital on Isaac Peral.

The President and the First Lady visited Linda at the hospital after attending the air show at the Manila International Airport. They found her resting well and were told that she would be ready to leave the hospital in a few days.

Linda had been operated on at 2:30 p.m. yesterday by Dr. Januario Estrada, Sr., who was assisted by his son Dr. Januario Estrada, Jr. Other attending physicians were Dr. Braulio de Castro, anesthesiologist; Dr. Benjamin Barrera, pathologist; and Dr. Paulo Campos. The operation lasted about 30 minutes.

OFFICIAL MONTH IN REVIEW

January 1.—PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia and Vice-President and Mrs. Macapagal spent the whole day this day receiving people from all walks of life in the traditional “open house” at Malacañang.

The President and the First Lady first received the Vice-President and Mrs. Macapagal. Then they together formed a reception line and met government officials, members of the diplomatic corps, the press, and the general public.

At noon, the First Lady complained of a headache after the tedious chore of shaking hands and greeting all those v/ho had lined up to meet the two highest officials of the government and their ladies.

About 20,000 persons greeted the President and the Vice-President during the “open house” in the Palace.

The President was offered a toast by the members of the diplomatic corps headed by Papal Nuncio Egidio Vagnozzi in the state dining room.

The President said that his government and people extend to the governments and peoples represented by the diplomatic corps in this country the greetings of the season and hope for a lasting peace.

Locally-made basi was served during the toast in deference to a precedent set by the late President Magsaysay and to give emphasis to the v austerity program launched by President Garcia's administration.

During the afternoon's reception, a blind sculptor, Rogelio Dungo of Manila, touched the facial features of the President. He said that he was making a bust of the President and he could not make the finishing touches unless he knew the facial features of his subject.

The President consented to Dungo's desire to study his facial features while clasping Dungo's hand at the reception line. Dungo said he was making the President's bust for the Philippine Jaycees headed by Sotero Laurel.

A 60-year old woman, who had joined the line of well-wishers, planted a kiss on the President's right cheek. The old woman shed tears after kissing the President. Then she also kissed the First Lady.

Boholanos who joined the lines kissed the 'President's hand, in keeping with a tradition in their province of greeting a top official in that manner.

The President in the afternoon also conferred with, the members of his “incentives committee” and discussed the progress of its mission to find out means of encouraging producers to increase their output. In the committee are former Finance Secretary Antonio de las Alas, chairman; Miss Helen Benitez, secretary; and Leonardo Gutierrez, legal counsel of the National Economic Council.

January 2.— PRESIDENT Garcia retired to his “hideout” this morning where he received Floyd A. Akers, President Eisenhower's personal representative to the inauguration ceremonies last Monday.

Malacañang sources said the President also took up with Akers the invitation of President Eisenhower for a state visit to the United States.

It was learned that President Garcia had tentatively set the visit for the latter part of February or early March.

The President also received Minister Caesar F. Lanuza, chief of the reparations mission in Japan.

Lanuza was accompanied by Gregorio Abad, technical assistant in the reparations office in Japan.

EARLIER this morning, the Chief Executive administered the oath of office to Enrico Palomar as ad interim director of the Bureau of Post, vice Director Felipe Cuaderno, retired. Palomar was formerly assistant director of the bureau.

Following the induction, the President left Malacañang for his hideout where he started working on His state-of-the-nation message which he will deliver before a joint session of Congress when it convenes in regular session later this month.

PRESIDENT Garcia this afternoon returned to Malacañang and received Francis Cardinal Spellman, archbishop of New York and military vicar of the United States, who just arrived in Manila in the course of his tour of military installations in the Far East.

Accompanied to Malacañang by Msgr. Egidio Vagnozzi, papal nuncio to the Philippines, the Cardinal expressed regret for having arrived here at this time and missed President Garcia's inauguration. "My itinerary was so crowded I simply could not make it, Mr. President," he said.

The American cardinal motored direct to Malacañang from the Manila International Airport where he landed at 3 p.m. today. Waiting for him at the head of the Palace stairs was the President, who inquired on his plane trip from Taipeh, the last stepping place of the church dignitary before Manila.

"Very, very bumpy," the cardinal replied.

After signing the Palace guest book, the cardinal was shown to the music room where he and the President had coffee and sandwiches while the cardinal gave some of his observations on countries he last visited. He had gone to Alaska, Japan, Kiprea, and Taiwan.

"I have always looked forward to my annual visits to the Philippines," Cardinal Spellman said. "I am deeply impressed by the wonderful demonstrations of faith shown by the good people of this country."

The President told his visitor that he had used at his inauguration the Holy Bible presented to him by the cardinal during one of his visits here years ago. While reciting his oath of office before Chief Justice Ricardo Paras at high noon last December 30, the President had his left hand resting on the Bible.

After a few minutes' talk at the music room, the cardinal was shown to his room at the Palace by Maj. Ciriaco Hocson, who will be his aide during his one and one-half days' stay here. The cardinal is house guest of President and Mrs. Garcia. He was assigned the room formerly used by the late Presidents Magsaysay and Quirino.

President and Mrs. Carlos P. Garcia gave a state dinner at Malacañang this evening in honor of Francis Cardinal Spellman, who arrived in Manila this afternoon in the course of his current tour of the Far East.

The affair was attended by high dignitaries of the government, members of foreign and local diplomatic corps, and members of the Catholic hierarchy.

January 3.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning received the Collar de la Orden del Mferito Civil award of the Spanish Government as a token of sincere friendship.

The Spanish decoration was presented by Spanish Ambassador Francisco Javier Conde, on behalf of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, head of the Spanish Government.

Ambassador Conde said that President Garcia was the first chief of state to receive the decoration. Present at the simple presentation ceremony held at the Malacañang music room were Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano; Jose Antonio Acebal, secretary of the Spanish Embassy; and Jose Estrada, protocol officer of the Department of Foreign Affairs.

President Garcia told Ambassador Conde to transmit to Generalissimo Franco his greetings and to inform him that the decoration was being accepted as another proof of the love and affection of the Spanish Government towards the Filipinos.

EARLIER, President Garcia inducted into office Consul Eduardo Rosal as acting Philippine Consul General for Hongkong at a simple ceremony held at the Malacañang study room.

Rosal's promotion came after the Philippine consulate in Hongkong, which he had headed, was elevated to consulate general.

Present at the ceremony were Mrs. Rosal, Immigration Commissioner Emilio Galang, and Foreign Affairs Protocol Officer Jose Estrada.

PRESIDENT Garcia met Malacañang newsmen today in his first press conference of the new year.

Appearing in a barong-tagalog, the President greeted the newsmen individually and wished them a "Happy New Year."

Newsmen noted an ominous atmosphere of austerity at the press conference. For the first time, drinks (soft and hard) were conspicuously done away with. Locally-made cigarettes were served but first class cigars were there.

The President appeared in high spirits, and bantered with the newsmen.

After the hour-long press conference, the President rushed to the Manila Cathedral in Intramuros, where he heard a pontifical low mass said by visiting Francis Cardinal Spellman, archbishop of New York and military vicar of the United States. The mass was said in honor of the Sacred Heart.

With the President at the mass were the First Lady, former President and Mrs. Sergio Osmeña, Mrs. Luz Banzon Magsaysay, Mrs. Trinidad L. Roxas, Mrs. Linda Garcia-Campos, members of the Cabinet, solons, and members of the judiciary.

Also present were Msgr. Egidio Vagnozzi, papal nuncio, Archbishop Rufino J. Santos of Manila, and other church dignitaries from all over the Philippines.

After the mass, the President and the First Lady left for Sangley Point, Cavite, where they were honored guests at a dinner, along with Cardinal Spellman.

January 4.—THIS morning the President paid tribute to the Filipino soldier at a ceremony marking the re-activation of the 1st infantry division of the Philippine Army at Fort William McKinley in Makati, Rizal.

In an extemporaneous speech delivered at the parade ground which highlighted the ceremony, the President said that "the reactivation of the 1st infantry division is, in a way, the rebirth of the Philippine Army that has written in blood its highest service to the nation in the last world war."

With his audience consisting mostly of men in uniform, the President said: "As I talk to you now my memory is full of reminiscences of the heroic actions of our soldiers not only in the Philippines during the last world war but in other parts of the world where they had a chance to help deliver a blow for freedom and democracy."

He added: "In Bataan and Corregidor we have written in astral light the bravery and spirit of sacrifice of the Filipino soldier."

Recalling the heroic deeds of soldiers of the revolution, the President said that the Filipino soldier, in an effort to overthrow a yoke imposed upon him by a former sovereign, had acquitted himself gloriously in battlefields and in small unregistered skirmishes. He said that the same patriotism that had become a distinctive mark of soldiers of former times still characterized the soldiers of today, soldiers who now composed the 1st infantry division of the Army.

"This is a tradition that the Filipino soldier must live up to," the President said.

Concluding his speech, the President said: "As I now deliver the colors of your division, I have no doubt that you are going to carry it gloriously in peace or in war."

Present at the ceremony were former commanders of the battle-scarred 1st infantry division, including Maj. Gen. Guillermo Francisco (ret), Brig. Gen. Mateo Capinpin (ret.), and Col. Margarito Torralba (ret.). Also present were Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas, members of the diplomatic corps and their military attaches, and ranking officers of the Armed Forces.

The President was fetched from Malacañang by Lt. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff. He was greeted with a 21-gun salute upon arrival at the military reservation at 8:45. A battalion of 20-year old trainees formed an escort of honor at the gates of the Fort.

The President was escorted by Army Commander Brig. Gen. Leoncio Tan and Brig. Gen. Tiyso Fajardo to the parade grounds where the 1st infantry division stood in formation.

After his speech, the President handed the colors of the newly reactivated division to its acting commander, Brig. Gen. Tirso Fajardo. A parade and review by the new division climaxed the re-activation ceremony.

EARLIER in the morning, the President and his family had Holy Communion at a mass officiated by His Eminence, Francis Cardinal Spellman, at the Malacañang chapel. Among those present at the mass were Papal Nuncio Egidio Vagnozzi, Manila Archbishop Rufino J. Santos, and Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor.

After the mass, the President presented the visiting cardinal with a commemoration medal of his recent inauguration and also with his autographed picture.

FROM Fort William McKinley, the President about 12 noon motored to his hideout where he had lunch. Then after a brief rest, he worked on state papers and on his state-of-the-nation message to be delivered at the opening of the next congressional session.

January 5.—PRESIDENT Garcia spent a quiet Sunday with members of his family in his hideout located in the suburb of Manila. People who sought to see him in Malacañang were politely told by presidential aides that the President was not in and to come back some other day.

The President started the day by hearing mass before an improvised altar at his hideout. With him were Mrs. Garcia, their daughter, Linda, and son-in-law, Fernando Campos.

Following the services, the President had breakfast with members of his family. Then he spent some time reading the Sunday morning papers.

About 10 a.m., the President repaired to his private study at the hideout and resumed work on the draft of his state-of-the-nation message he will deliver before Congress when it convenes in regular session later this month.

In the afternoon, he worked on state papers brought over to him from Malacañang.

January 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia today observed the feast of the Three Kings, which climaxed the Christmas season in the Philippines. He heard mass at the Malacañang chapel.

After mass, the President conferred with his new executive secretary, Juan C. Pajo, and briefed him on his duties and functions as the President's right-hand man.

The President, it was learned, asked Pajo to hold the fort while he keeps in retirement in his new home in Quezon City where he prepares his state-of-the-nation address, which he will deliver at the opening day of the first session of the Fourth Congress on January 27.

He stressed to his executive secretary the importance of his duties in receiving thousands of bailers trekking daily to the Palace, which, he said in his inaugural speech, he would keep as the "symbol of hope and justice."

At 9:30 a.m., the President motored out of the Palace to his new house, where he started working on his state-of-the-nation address.

After the President had left the Palace, thousands of people, mostly job seekers who had pitched in during the campaign, swarmed at the office of the new executive secretary.

However, Secretary Pajo was busy conferring with the chiefs of divisions of Malacañang, as it was his first day in office.

After the conference, Secretary Pajo found out that he was being mobbed by job-seekers, and he had to struggle out from the crowd in order to get into his car.

January 7.—THE President this day received more support for his austerity program from national and provincial officials even as he received encouraging reports that the Philippine dollar reserves have steadily been increasing.

The President also received International Chess Master Rodolfo Tan Cardoso, who won the recently concluded First Asian Chess Tournament in Baguio City. Accompanying Cardoso were Karl Ozols of Australia, who placed second; and Joseph Porath of Israel; Yousouf Safvat of Iran; Meliton Borja, Philippine national champion; Horacio Cebrero, president of the Philippines Chess Federation; and Florencio Campomanes.

The Chief Executive distributed the prizes to the winners and received a cup donated by Iran as a souvenir.

Rep. Manuel Zosa was the first congressman to take his oath of office before the President. The simple ceremony was held at the Malacañang music room before Mrs. Zosa, friends, relatives, and mayors of the sixth district of Cebu.

A delegation of Iloilo NP stalwarts led by Sens. Fernando Lopez and Oscar Ledesma called on the President to renew their pledge of loyalty. At the same time, the delegation also promised to support the austerity program of the Administration.

Other Ilongo NP leaders who called were Gov. Mariano Peñaflorida and Reps. Jose Aldeguer, Pedro Trono, Domitilo Abordo, and Ricardo Y. Ladrado.

Among other presidential callers were Sens. Pedro Sabido and Quintin Paredes; Reps. Lucas Paredes of Abra, Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan, Canuto Enerio of Zamboanga del Sur, Alberto Ubay of Zamboanga del Norte and Luciano Millan of Pangasinan; Govs. Felixberto Dagani of Agusan, Bienvenido Ebarle of Zamboanga del Sur, Salvador Lluch of Lanao, and Don Tomas Morato.

An early caller who was received by the President was Allen Kline, chief of the CARE Mission who paid a courtesy call.

The President also received later Games and Amusement Board Chairman Manuel Nieto, Jr., who discussed with the Chief Executive routine matters in his office.

IN the evening the President received a delegation of local executives of principal oil companies operating in the Philippines which submitted a request for the establishment of a system of priorities in the distribution of oil products to local consumers.

The oil executives explained that as a result of the austerity program launched by the Administration, the importation of oil products would be cut by 28 per cent during the current year. They suggested that a committee be formed to determine which sectors of industry or agriculture be given priority in the allocation of the limited fuel supply.

In the course of their call, the business executives expressed their readiness to cooperate with the Administration. They offered their services as well as the facilities of their companies to assist the proposed committee in its work. They said the principal function of the body would be to see to it that adequate fuel supply were assured vital industries, particularly dollar-producing ones.

The President said he would take up their suggestion at the Cabinet meeting tomorrow morning. The delegation was composed of R. J. Monical of Caltex, J. A. Sanguinetti of Shell, J. M. Le Deux of Tidewater, and H. P. Byrd of Stanvac.

Another delegation composed of officers of the Philippine Columbian Club called to pay their respects and invite the President to be guest of honor at a musical and historical program to be held on January 29 at their headquarters on Taft Avenue to commemorate their 50th anniversary.

The President accepted the invitation. Headed by Carlos Fernandez, Columbian president, the delegation included Ramon Ordoveza, vice-president, and the following directors: Dr. Antonio Sison, Dr. Jose Barcelona, Ismael Mathay, and Carlos Nivera.

Among the last callers at Malacañang in the evening was RFC Chairman Eduardo Z. Romualdez, who consulted the President on "various matters."

Shortly before 8 p.m., the President motored to the Manila Hotel to attend a dinner given at the Winter Garden by Mindanao political leaders headed by Sen. Emmanuel Pelaez.

January 8—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning instructed Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas and Lt. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff, to instruct the technical staff of the Armed Forces to undertake an intensive research on the development of alcohol and coconut oil so that these products could substitute imported motor fuels.

At a breakfast conference at Malacañang this morning, the President stressed to Vargas and Arellano the importance of the research in connection with his austerity program.

The defense officials assured the Chief Executive that the research and development division of the Armed Forces would intensify its study in the development of alcohol and coconut fuel "as one of the contributions of the Armed Forces to the President's austerity program.

Following the conference which lasted from 8 to 9 a.m., the President received Gen. Isaac David White, commander of the United States Army in the Pacific.

General White was accompanied on his courtesy call by U.S. Ambassador Charles Bohlen; Maj. Gen. Joseph Harper, JUSMAG chief; Maj. Gen. Rassil Vittrup, deputy chief of staff for operations and training of Gen. White; and Col. Henry L. Miller, army attache of the U. S. Embassy.

The visiting American general once commanded the U. S. Armed Forces and the United Nations contingent in Korea. He had, under him the 19th and the 14th BCTs of the Philippines in Korea.

General White lauded the Filipino soldiers for their bravery displayed in the fight against communism in Korea.

Earlier, President Garcia received a delegation of the Bohol Mayors League, and administered the oath of office to Mariano Ledesma as acting director of the Bureau of Printing.

IN the evening, President and Mrs. Garcia received Prince Boun Oum, inspector general of the Kingdom of Laos, who paid a courtesy call.

Accompanied by Madame Oum, the prince is on a month-long observation tour in the Far East. Leaving Laos last December 13, the Laotian Prince had gone to Hongkong and Tokyo. From Manila the prince, who holds the rank of minister will visit Thailand and Cambodia and be back at Laos about the middle of this month.

Present during the call which was purely a social affair were Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando C. Campos, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Pelagio A. Cruz, Assistant Executive Secretary and Mrs. Nicanor Jimenez, and Malacañang Protocol Officer Manuel G. Zamora.

Among the last callers at Malacañang this evening were Col. Salvador Villa of the Manila Railroad Company, NBI Director Jose G. Lucban, and Mayor Salustiano C. Baura of Tubigon, Bohol.

PRESIDENT Garcia met his Cabinet for the first time this year and decided to recommend to Congress the repeal of Republic Act No. 1410, otherwise known as the No-Dollar Barter Law, and instead approved the exportation of Philippine products to countries which have stable currencies convertible into dollars.

The Cabinet decision was arrived at after a long discussion of the pros and cons of the No-Dollar Barter Law. It was the consensus that while the law gave some incentives to producers, yet it opened the door to a pattern of trade prejudicial to the country's economy.

Besides, it was believed that goods coming in from abroad through this barter process were mostly non-essentials and luxuries which were not in consonance with the spirit of the austerity program.

After a thorough discussion of the merits of the law, the Cabinet unanimously approved the recommendation to Congress for the repeal of the law.

THE President and the Cabinet approved the organization of a trading center in Manila that will further encourage, coordinate, and supervise the exportation of Philippine cottage industry products to the United States and other countries. It was believed that the exportation of these products would bring in dollars to the country.

The President created a special committee composed of Commerce Secretary Pedro Hemaes as chairman and Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason, Education Secretary Manuel Lim, and Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor as members, to organize this trading center.

The committee will study ways and means of increasing the production and the improvement of the quality of Philippine cottage industry products; such as, hats, abaca slippers, door mats, shell crafts, mats, baskets, etc. This committee will also look into the standardization and marketing of these products in foreign countries, especially in the United States.

The organization of this trading center was brought about by a report from the President that he had received information that there was a big demand for Philippine cottage industry products in the United States but that this demand could not be adequately met because of lack of sustained production and standardization of these products.

At this juncture Education Secretary Lim said that there were 108 vocational schools under his department which were engaged in cottage industries and that they were in a position to supply the U.S. demands. Mrs. Villamor also said that she had units of cottage industries engaged in the same work.

The President said that the activities of these two departments should be coordinated with those of the Department of Commerce and Industry in order to bring about a steady supply and the standardization of the products.

Regarding the question of funds to finance these cottage industries, NAMARCO General Manager Benjamin Estrella, who was at the Cabinet meeting, said that he could release P1 million for this purpose.

It was also contemplated to get more funds if necessary from the Philippine National Bank.

The President said he wanted the committee to start working immediately in order to boost these industries which will give the country dollars.

The President said that as soon as these cottage industry products were well on their way, the government would let private enterprises take over.

DURING the Cabinet meeting the President created a committee to study the equitable distribution of oil products to local consumers, depending on the importance of public services such consumers are rendering.

The need for this equitable distribution of oil products stems from the austerity program requiring a cut of 28 per cent in the importation of oil products during the current year.

The Cabinet decided on this measure because of the desire of the Administration that industries which are public utilities should suffer no hitch in rendering services to the people.

The President emphasized that public services to the community would not suffer as a result of the 28 per cent cut in the allocation for the importation of all products.

The committee was directed to see to it that the burden be borne equitably by public utilities, depending on the services they were rendering to the community. The President explained that public utilities giving services in the form of water, gas, transportation, and other essential services should suffer less cuts in the distribution of oil products than those which are rendering less important services.

The committee to study the equitable distribution of oil products is composed of Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez in his capacity as chairman of the Monetary Board, chairman; and NEC Presiding Officer Eduardo Z. Romualdez and Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, members.

The President told the committee to submit a report on its study on the system of priorities in the distribution of oil products as soon as possible.

The Cabinet meeting was attended for the first time by newly-inducted Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo. The Cabinet meeting was presided over by President Garcia. It was held at the Council of State room from 10:45 a. m. to 2:30 p. m.

January 9.—FORMER President Sergio Osmeña today fully endorsed the program of President Garcia's administration as enunciated in the latter's inaugural address.

The former President called on President Garcia this morning prior to his departure for Cebu on Saturday. Former President Osmeña has been staying in Manila since the inauguration of President Garcia and Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal which he attended,”

The former President, in a statement, said that he considered the assumption of President Garcia to the national leadership essential for the conduct of an orderly and efficient government and for the proper discharge of party responsibility imposed by a mandate from the people.

Mr. Osmeña said that he was especially delighted “with the recognition made by President Garcia of our existing friendly relations with Spain and Latin America as constituting an integral part of our foreign policy based on a close association with the United States and our good neighbor policy towards the nations of Asia.”

The Former President congratulated President Garcia for his inaugural address. The Chief Executive received him at the music room of Malacañang.

PRESIDENT Garcia this morning received the pledge of support of representative elements of the President Garcia Club of California, as well as their assurance to encourage Filipinos living in the United States to invest their savings in the Philippines.

Members of the club who came to the Philippines expressly to witness the inauguration of President Garcia are soon returning to California. The club members were Mr. and Mrs. Mariano Gorospe, Mr. and Mrs. Jose Figueras, Mr. and Mrs. Gerardo Mendoza, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Gorospe, Jaime Catuiran, George Directo, Asperio Bercero, Jose Tauro, Jose de Leon, Nemesio Ramos, and Higinio Hijada.

Mariano Gorospe, president of the PGC, assured President Garcia that the club proposes to continue raising funds for the construction of artesian wells and other projects dedicated to the welfare of the people living in the rural areas of the Philippines.

The club is also willing to contribute to the task of nation-building, according to Gorospe, who added that it is also encouraging Filipinos who have accumulated savings to return to the Philippines and establish dollar-earning industries to create more job opportunities here.

THE President today directed officials of the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources to extend immediate help to farmers in areas affected by drought and rats in Western Visayas and Northern Mindanao.

At the same time the President said that he would study the idea of employing Japanese technicians to help in the food production campaign of the Administration, whose wages are to be paid out of reparations funds.

The President was informed that drought has affected 21 towns in the northern part of Samar, the western part of Negros Oriental, and parts of Misamis Oriental. The plight of the farmers in the drought areas has been aggravated by rats.

The President directed that corn seedlings be sent immediately to the drought areas and that a campaign be started for the planting of secondary crops to help ease the critical situation of the farmers.

The President also received Govs. Alejo Santos of Bulacan, Isidro Rodriguez of Rizal, and Amado Aleta of Nueva Ecija, who gave their contributions to the peace and amelioration fund amounting to ₱44,500.

Other big delegations received by President Garcia came from Samar, Pangasinan, and Negros Occidental. The Samar group was headed by Sen. Decoroso Resales, Gov. Fernando Veloso, Reps. Eladio Balite, Valeriano Yancha, and Felipe Abrigo, and former Reps. Agripino Escareal and Tito Tizon.

Commerce Secretary Pedro Hernaez, Gov. Valeriano Gatuslao, and Rep. Vicente Gustilo led the Negros Occidental group, while the Pangasinan group was headed by Gov. Conrado Estrella, Reps. Luciano Millan, Aguedo Agbayani, and Cipriano Primicias, Jr., Labor Undersecretary Agapito Braganza, Public Schools Director Benigno Aldana, Private Schools Director Daniel Salcedo, and Provincial Board Members Mrs. Nancy Q. Sison and Mrs. Dolores Acuña.

Other callers included Rep. Constancio Castañeda of Tarlac, Gov. Nicanor Seva of Albay, Geraldo Wilkinson, Aurelio Montinola, and Highways Commissioner Rodolfo Maslog and 12th division engineers.

IN the evening the President ordered a thorough and all-out investigation of fraudulent importations and similar venalities which are contributing to the depletion of the country's dollar reserves.

The President ordered NBI agents detailed to the Office of the President to go down to the bottom of these anomalies, adding, "I don't care who gets hurt."

The Chief Executive made this directive upon receiving reports this day that the textile raw materials worth over $200,000 allegedly imported by the Roxas-Kalaw Textile Mills, Co., for its use from the United States turned out to be finished textile materials belonging to the luxury class.

The NBI agents who reported the seizure of this irregular importation said that the textiles which came in 264 bales consisted of lace, veil materials, gabardine, wool, and rayon. These materials are now being held in custody at the Bureau of Customs warehouse. The discovery of this importation was effected with the close cooperation of Col. James Keefe of the Bureau of Customs.

The President was informed that the Roxas-Kalaw Textile Mills had received over $2,000,000 allocation for the year 1957. This shipment held up by the NBI agents was reportedly only one of the shipments received by the company.

The NBI agents told the President that during the investigation of the case, officials of the Roxas-Kalaw Mills had obtained a re-export license with the intention of re-exporting these materials alleging "wrong shipment" on the part of the exporter at the point of origin in the United States.

Upon being informed of this attempt to re-export the held goods, the investigating agents reported the matter to high officials of the Central Bank who issued an immediate order cancelling the re-export license.

The NBI agents are conducting further investigations which they believe may reveal some extensive conspiracy aimed at cheating the Philippine Government not only of its dollar reserves but also of import and other duties or fees that would have accrued to the government were these importations made in accordance with existing laws and regulations of the Bureau of Customs and the Central Bank.

The President directed the NBI agents to extend their investigations to other similar cases of fraudulent importations which would deprive the Government of its dollar reserves and revenues.

January 10.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning received Floyd D. Akers, President Eisenhower's special representative to the presidential inauguration, at the Malacañang music room.

Akers, who is leaving for the United States tonight, bade farewell to President Garcia.

During the call President Garcia handed to Akers his gift for President Eisenhower. The gift consisted of an autographed picture of President Garcia framed in carved Philippine wood and a 1957 presidential inauguration medal.

President Eisenhower gave a similar token which had been handed to President Garcia by Akers upon his arrival in the Philippines shortly before the presidential inauguration.

Akers was accompanied to Malacañang by U.S. Ambassador Charles Bohlen.

Earlier, the President received Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson, who called briefly to discuss routine matters for the improvement of Manila.

Then the President received about 20 foreign student delegates to the Fourth Asian Students' Forum which met at Baguio recently.

Accompanied by Jose Clemente, Jr., the foreign students thanked the President for the hospitality accorded them during their stay in the country.

Other callers consisted mostly of congressmen and town mayors who requested aid for public works improvements in their respective localities, including feeder roads construction.

Pampanga Rep. Francisco Nepomuceno accompanied residents from Macabebe who consulted the President on local problems.

Then the President received Quezon Rep. Leon Guinto, Jr., who accompanied Tagkawayan Mayor Felipe Mabilangan and Pitogo Mayor Vicente Martinez requesting funds for feeder road construction in their municipalities.

Necitas Viesca, president of the mayor's league of Nueva Ecija, accompanied a delegation from his province which likewise requested the Chief Executive aid for public works improvement.

The President also received this morning a resolution approved by the Philippine Junior Chamber of Commerce endorsing the austerity program instituted by the Administration in view of the gradual decline of the Philippine dollar reserves.

The resolution was handed over to the President by Dr. Sotero H. Laurel, president of the Philippine Jaycees, in the presence of Guillermo Rosales, Vicente Fernandez, Jose P. W. Tantoco, Joaquin Ortega, Leo Valdez, Osmundo de Guzman, Alfonso Yuchengco, Reynaldo Eustaquio, Alex Sevilla, Gregorio Imperial, Bienvenido Villadolid, Tito Orroz, Vincent Recto, Elpidio Cucio, Felipe Mendoza, Douglas McKenzie, Benjardi Crame, and Bening Crisostomo.

During the call, Dr. Laurel also presented to the President a bust done by a blind sculptor, Rogelio Dumo, who finished his work after touching the facial features of the President.

The Jaycees presented another resolution approved during the joint Eastern-Western Visayas Regional Conference supporting the austerity program, as well as another resolution approved by the organization supporting the anti-vice campaign initiated by the Marikina Junior Chamber of Commerce.

THE President today issued a proclamation authorizing the Veterans Federation of the Philippines to conduct a national, and educational fund drive from January 15 to February 28 this year for the purpose of establishing a Veteran memorial library and museum.

The President signed the proclamation in the presence of a group of veterans headed by Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo and Francisco Offemaria. Ex-Senator Francisco Delgado was also present during the ceremony.

The proclamation stressed the necessity of strengthening the "historical foundation of our culture by providing our students, researchers, and citizens in general with adequate and suitable library and museum wherein they can have ready access to historical documents and other mementos in connection with all wars in which the Philippines participated."

The proclamation also pointed out that the establishment of a Veterans memorial library and museum, aside from enhancing the cultural growth of the people, will serve as “a fitting memorial to our heroes and stand as an inspiration for the living and the generations yet to come.”

MEMBERS of the Kabataang Maka-Rizal called this day on President Garcia to present a progress report on their work towards the development of sound nationalism through the teachings of Rizal.

Led by their chairman, Fernando C. Campos, and their vice-chairman, Dean Santiago de la Cruz, the KMR members also presented some of their projects for the coming year, including a membership drive, improvement of the Fort Santiago Shrine, a marker on the spot where Rizal was shot, and a fund drive for the construction of the Rizal Shrine.

Other members who were present were former Rizal Gov. Wenceslao Pascual, NPC Board Chairman Angel Tesoro, Col. Ricardo Galang, Elias Ablaza, Eduardo Escobar, and Mrs. Rosita S. Peñera.

Other presidential callers were former Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon; Reps. Constancio Castañeda of Tarlac, Agaton Ursua of Camarines Sur, and Emilio Espinosa of Masbate; Sen. Ruperto Kangleon; and Govs. Juan Frivaldo of Sorsogon and Diego Ty Deling of Misamis Occidental.

Rep. Maximino Garcia of Bphol took his oath of office before President Garcia in the presence of mayors of his district (3rd district), friends, and relatives.

PRESIDENT Garcia this afternoon told a press conference he favored the adoption of “multiple reserves” in a move to expand Philippine trade to non-dollar using countries.

He said the Philippines should not limit itself to trading with the dollar bloc but may allow commercial intercourse with Germany, Switzerland, and Japan which have stable currencies.

Malacañang sources said the President had decided to adopt “multiple reserves” in an effort to expand local exports.

He pointed out that expansion of foreign markets would serve as an incentive for producers to increase their productive capacity.

At the same time, the President denied press reports that he would lift government controls within six months.

He said he was in favor of a gradual lifting of controls, but added that these restrictions will be relaxed only after the exports have balanced the volume of imports.

At the press conference, the President:

1. Announced he had given the Philippine Air Lines a “free hand” to deal with the Indonesian Government on the latter’s request to fly the Dutch-abandoned planes on a “purely business level;”
2. Said he will enforce the penal laws regarding the imposition of the death penalty after he had gone “carefully” over the various petitions for executive clemency;
3. Refused to comment on news reports that he was going on a state visit to the United States and Japan;
4. Reiterated he will name the new members of his Cabinet after he had consulted with Nacionalista Party leaders; and

5. Withheld comment on the auditor general's ruling to retire "compulsorily" all officials who have reached the age of 65 years.

In announcing his plan to adopt "multiple reserves," the President said the Philippines can branch out from its present position of maintaining a single reserve, which is in dollars, to other currencies.

He said that the German mark, the Swiss franc, and the Japanese yen are stable currencies.

However, the President was lukewarm to the idea of maintaining a reserve for the sterling currencies.

President Garcia also told newsmen he has been going over the various petitions of death convicts for executive clemency.

Asked whether or not he was in favor of imposing the death penalty, the President said, "It is not a question of whether I am in favor or not. We have the law in the books; I should enforce it."

The President explained that the delay in his study of the different petitions for executive clemency was attributable to the gravity of the matter involved.

He said: "The petitions involve the life or death of a person. I should be given more time to study them carefully."

Asked by newsmen to comment on reports that he was going to the United States and Japan on a state visit, the President remarked: "I do not want to comment on that yet."

The President also reiterated that he is planning to meet with the council of congressional leaders after the opening day of the session of Congress in order to consult them on the new membership of his Cabinet.

"I want to extend to them the courtesy of knowing the men I intend to name to my Cabinet," the President said.

The President also disclosed that he had not yet received the recent ruling of Auditor General Pedro M. Gimenez, who the other day said that government officials should be forced to retire upon reaching the age of 65 years.

He made this statement when he was asked on the status of Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno, who is now 67 years old.

He said he will resolve the legal question on Cuaderno's status after receiving the auditor general's ruling.

At his press conference this afternoon the President announced that the Philippines would receive soon from CARE 26,250,000 pounds of powdered skim milk and 168,000 pounds of cheese for distribution to over 1,300,000 needy school children. The total value of these commodities is approximately $6 million.

The President made this announcement in the presence of Dr. Allen Kline, chief of the CARE mission in the Philippines, who was invited by the President to attend the press conference.

Doctor Kline said that the first shipment of powdered milk was due to arrive in Manila on January 20 aboard the SS William Lykes.

Doctor Kline explained that the milk and cheese, including the cost of the ocean freight, were a free gift of the American people, through CARE, to the school children of the Philippines. The Philippine Government will pay CARE's administrative expenses pertaining to the milk and cheese feeding program in the Philippines and will provide all funds for the distribution of the commodities after their offloading in Manila.

Distribution will be made through the Bureau of Public Schools, with CARE assisting in the overall supervision.

The milk will go to financially needy pupils, from grade 1 to grade 6, in more than 8,000 schools. The cheese will be sent to specifically selected schools on an experimental basis in order to determine how well it can be adopted to conditions in the Philippines.

The first ship carrying powdered milk is scheduled to arrive in Manila on the SS William Lykes on January 20. The remainder of the commodities for this school quarter will be aboard three vessels arriving in the latter part of January and early February.

The actual milk-feeding will start in late January and will continue through the 1958-59 school year. Dr. Kline said that this was the largest milk-feeding program under contract with CARE in the world.

THIS evening President Garcia instructed the Interdepartmental Committee on Atomic Energy to study means of encouraging private enterprises to share with the government the burden of financing research undertakings for the purpose of developing locally-produced materials and making them satisfactory substitute for imported items.

In an hour-long conference held late this evening at Malacañang, the President expressed confidence that private companies, if given enough incentives, would willingly expend some of their funds for the development and utilization of local raw materials or for the improvement of the quality of local products now in existence so as to enable them to compete with imported articles.

The President devoted some time exploring with the committee the possibilities of tapping the resources offered by certain plants growing in abundance in this country to produce much-needed drugs and chemicals. Nipa and coconut were mentioned as among the best possible sources of alcohol which, if properly developed through research, could very well take the place of motor fuels now being imported at the rate of $200 million yearly.

Created several years ago to advise the President on atomic matters, particularly on the use of atomic energy for industrial purposes, the committee called at Malacañang this evening to submit a number of recommendations, among which were:

1. Implementation of Republic Act No. 1815, which provides for the creation of an Atomic Energy Commission; and
2. Appointment of a presidential assistant charged with the responsibility of checking and reporting to the President the progress of research work undertaken by different agencies on various fields. With Health Secretary Paulino J. Garcia, committee chairman, acting as spokesman, the group advised the President of the necessity of creating the commission so that the country would have an agency through which it could fulfill its commitments to the International Atomic Energy Agency of the United Nations, of which the Philippines is a member.

Regarding the appointment of a presidential assistant on research matters, the committee pointed out that there are in existence a number of research bureaus and offices which result in wasteful duplication of work. Among the more important ones, according to the Committee, are the National Science Board, the Institute of Science and Technology, the National Research Council, and, on its creation, the Atomic Energy Commission. A presidential assistant could coordinate the work of these different agencies and avoid waste in the national research effort, the committee said. Headed by Secretary Garcia, those present at the conference were Commander Marcelino Calinawan of the Navy, vice-chairman of the committee, and the following members: Dr. Gregorio Zara of FEATI, Aurelio Ramos of the Department of Foreign Affairs, Professors Amando Clemente and Crisostomo Ortigas of the University of the Philippines, Pedro Afafe of the National Economic Council, Director Casimiro del Rosario of the Weather Bureau, Col. Florencio Medina of the AFP, Leopoldo Salazar of the Institute of Science and Technology, and Alfredo Eugenio of the National Civil Defense Administration.

January 11.—THE President today repaired to his “hideout” in Quezon City and closeted himself there the whole day, working on his state-of-the-nation message scheduled to be delivered at the opening of Congress on January 27.

The Chief Executive went over the draft of the message with his advisers. These included Executive Secretary Juan Pajo, Rodolfo Andal, general manager of the Government Service Insurance System, and Acting Press Secretary Guillermo Sison.

President Garcia started going over portions of his message in the morning at an uninterrupted pace and continued through merienda until well into the evening.

During the whole day, callers were barred from the President’s hideout. President Garcia was expected to stay at his undisclosed retreat until tomorrow.

To implement President Garcia’s pledge in his inaugural address that Malacañang would remain a symbol of “hope, faith, and justice to the common man,” Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo today streamlined the physical layout and simplified the duties of administrative officials of the Executive Office.

In his first memorandum order, Secretary Pajo directed the re-arrangement of the offices of the various administrative units, placing those which are most often consulted by the President nearest to Malacañang Palace where the President works. Such offices are those of the executive secretary and the three assistant executive secretaries, local governments and civil affairs, local staff, legislative secretarial staff, and appointments division.

The new physical layout of the executive offices is such that confusion in the traffic of visitors is avoided, insuring the orderly and maximum rendering of service to the general public.

In view of the increased number of visitors who wish to transact business with Malacañang and because of the greater volume of works being performed, Secretary Pajo simplified the division of labor among the three assistant executive secretaries as follows:

1. One assistant executive secretary supervises (a) the President’s private office, (b) the provost and aides offices (c) the Malacañang household, (d) the protocol division, (e) the appointments division, and (f) the finance division.
2. Another assistant executive secretary supervises (a) the legal office, (b) the local governments and civil affairs office, and (c) the Malacañang library.
3. A third assistant executive secretary supervises (a) the administrative division, (b) the records division, (c) the buildings and grounds division, and (d) the Malacañang clinic.

In addition to Assistant Executive Secretaries Nicanor Jimenez and Henry Quema, Sofronio Quimson, aside from being technical assistant, has been designated also as assistant executive secretary.

In this connection, Executive Secretary Pajo ordered that the duties of each administrative unit be so clearly defined that there would be no overlapping of functions and duties.

Secretary Pajo directed that all technical advisers and assistants should report regularly to their offices and perform their assigned duties.

To insure immediate attention to all complaints and letters addressed to the President, including letters to the President’s family and those sent to the executive secretary and the three assistant executive secretaries, it was directed that all correspondence should be channelled through the Message Center which will take care of assigning the letters to corresponding action units. The hand-carrying of correspondence by outsiders is prohibited.

A more systematic and more efficient way of processing and scheduling v callers on the President has been devised. A staff of appointments secretaries will take care of processing presidential callers, including those of the First Lady and the executive secretary.

Marcelino Calinawan, Jr., chairman of the action committee on reorganization of the Executive Office, said that Executive Secretary Pajo's memorandum order will take full effect Monday, January 13. He directed the rearrangement of the layout of the Executive Office today.

The streamlining of the Executive Office has been patterned after the recommendations made by the Government Survey and Reorganization Commission.

Secretary Pajo said that with this reorganization, the Executive Office could render more efficient service to the people.

January 12.—PRESIDENT Garcia spent a great portion of his Sunday perfecting two speeches he is scheduled to deliver shortly. These are the speech on austerity which he will deliver on the Luneta Saturday and the state-of-the-nation message which he will deliver before Congress when it convenes in regular session late this month.

To avoid interruptions from callers, President Garcia worked on the drafts of these speeches at his "hideout" somewhere in the suburbs.

The President started the day by hearing mass with his family at the hideout. Following the services, the President had breakfast about 8:30 with members of his family.

Then he spent sometime reading the Sunday papers brought over to him by his aide, Maj. Jose Estrella.

In the afternoon, he went over pending state papers and then started on drafts of his speeches.

January 13.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning directed the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources to intensify distributing better varieties of rice and corn seeds to farmers as a vital step in implementing the Administration's program of making the country self-sufficient in staple crops.

The President issued the directive to officials of the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources and the U.P. College of Agriculture who called at Malacañang to pledge their support to the President's food production campaign.

The President also told the group that there would be no let-up in the search for better varieties of rice and corn seeds which would result to an increased production and which could withstand the ravages of pests.

The agriculture officials who called on the President were Agriculture Undersecretary Jose P. Trinidad, Agricultural Extension Director Domingo Paguirigan, Director of Plant Industry Eugenio Cruz, Dean of the U.P. College of Agriculture Leopoldo Uichangco, Juan Torres, and Dioscoro Umali.

Aside from pledging their support to the President's food production campaign, the group also requested the Chief Executive to consider as one of his administration bills the "certified seed bill" in the coming congressional session. The group informed the President that the bill, if enacted into law, would give the National Seed Board, a body which was formed a few years ago, a personality to implement more effectively the Administration's food production program.

Earlier, the President received U. S. Assistant Secretary of the Navy Fred Bantz, who paid a courtesy call. Secretary Bantz is here in the course of a three-week inspection tour in the Far East.

Secretary Bantz was accompanied to Malacañang by U. S. Embassy Minister Horace Smith, Rear Admiral Edgar A. Cruise, and Capt. John Myers, naval attache of the United States Embassy.

Then the President received Highways Commissioner Rodolfo Maslog, who, together with other highways officials, called to discuss with the President matters affecting their office.

The President told Maslog to keep up with the projects that will help ameliorate the economic condition of the country. The President also told Maslog to gear his office with the austerity program.

Hilarion Henares, Jr., of the H. G. Henares and Sons, called to pay his respects to the President prior to his departure for the United States on an eight-month tour grant as an Eisenhower fellow to study the manufacturing industry.

During the call, the President was shown by Henares samples of his firm's locally-manufactured by-products of local materials consisting of plastics, wax, and benzene. Henares also brought sample of the by-products of sunflower seeds and lumbang seeds.

Education Secretary Manuel Lim accompanied around 200 public school officials consisting of vocational schools superintendents, supervisors, principals, and teachers, who paid a courtesy call on the President following a conference at Baguio City and San Fernando, La Union.

The public school officials pledged to support the Administration's food production campaign and the encouragement of cottage industries. Heads of the group included Education Undersecretary Martin Aguilar, Jr.; Apolinario Apelado, president of the Philippine Association of Vocational Education; and Jose Tuason, president of school superintendents' association.

Sen. Arturo M. Tolentino accompanied members of the Santol-Sociego Tenants Association from Quezon City and members of the Tambunting Tenants Association.

Through their respective spokesmen, Marcelo Bautista and Emeterio Timban, the tenants requested government assistance in acquiring the lots they are occupying.

Other callers were Acting Health Director Jesus Nolasco, Dean Ricardo Lacson of the Philippine Law School, Pastor Gonzales, Protacio Amoroy, and Jose Topacio Nueno.

The President also received the officers and members of the Philippine Mental Health Association who presented him with a plaque making him honorary president of the PMHA. The PMHA officials expressed their gratitude, for the government assistance which the PMHA was being accorded by the President's administration.

PMHA members who called on the President included Domingo Bascara, president; and Mrs. Estefania A. Lim, Rodolfo Andal, Jose A. Fernandez, E. Lopez, Dalmacio Martin, Cesar Catinlig, Mrs. Geronima Pecson, Francisco Raymundo, Mrs. Consuelo A. Herrera, Celia Nicolas, and Frisco Matheu.

Leonardo Carlos, whose leg was amputated owing to cancer, called on the President to express his gratitude for an artificial leg which was made by Army doctors at the V. Luna General Hospital upon instructions of the Chief Executive.

Alfonso Frias, mayor of Naga, Cebu, requested aid for public improvements of his town,

The President received callers up to 2 p.m.

THE President this day directed Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno to help the farmers of Lubao and Masantol, Pampanga. In two separate directives, the President, instructed Secretary Moreno:

(1) To direct immediately the construction of a temporary earth dam across the Bebe-San Esteban cut-off channel to prevent salt intrusion which could be destructive to the palay seedlings of Masantol farmers; and

(2) To order immediately the suspension of the construction of the Guma-in Diversion Canal project in order to give the farmers of Lubao enough irrigation water for their ricefields.

The President also authorized the expenditure of ₱6,000 from corresponding funds for the construction of the earth dam in Masantol.

The plight of the farmers of Masantol and Lubao was brought to the attention of the President by Rep. Francisco Nepomuceno of Pampanga's first district. Immediately after reading Rep. Nepomuceno's communication, the President sent Capt. Francisco Calinawan, an engineer, to Lubao and Masantol to look into the conditions. The President based his directives on the recommendations of Capt. Calinawan.

Benefited by the President's directive in Masantol were farmers of five barrios consisting of about 350 families. The Mcfeantel farmers were dependent on the rice-planted area from 800 to 1,000 hectares with an estimated yield of 35,000 cavanos.

According to Capt. Calinawan, the earth dam across the Bebe-San Esteban cut-off channel in Masantol was necessary to prevent salty water of the Manila Bay from intruding into the rice-planted areas. The salty water could seriously affect the growth of the palay, eventually leading to the destruction of the crop.

The complaint of the Lubao farmers was that the Guma-in Diversion Canal project was causing water shortage for irrigation. The construction of the diversion canal, according to Rep. Nepomuceno, was diverting the course of the Guma-in River and depriving the farmers of irrigation water supply. The President's order to defer construction of a portion of the canal assured the farmers of uninterrupted supply of irrigation water for their summer palay crop. Farmers of seven Lubao barrios were benefited by the President's directive.

THE President today awarded to 14 rural lady dentists the Golden Heart Presidential Award in a simple ceremony at the Malacañang study hall.

The citations of the awards read: "For your most efficient professional activities in the rural sections of the country. The free services is a positive indication that you have opened your heart to the needy and stretched your hands to the poor."

Eufemia L. del Rosario, head of the group, received a special Golden Heart Presidential Award. Present during the ceremony was Sen. Eulogio Balao, who accompanied the dentists to Malacañang.

Those who were given the awards were Doctors Francisca Picache, Teresita Papa, Socorro Cruz, Luz Figueroa, Elsie Mendoza, Amalia Castañeda, Irene Leaño Sembal, Victorina F. Tolentino, Puring Rocamora, Josefa Gloria, Benedicta Castro, Nene Javier Arenas, and Elena Ompoc.

IN the afternoon, the President received the members of the Hotel Operators Association, which protested the proposed construction- of the 17-story, 500-room Inter-continental Hotel by the Pan American Airways.

The group, composed of owners or managers of eight first-class hotels in Manila, had objected to the construction of a new hotel to house the passengers of the Pan-American Airways in Manila. January 14.—THIS morning President Garcia directed General Manager Filemon Zablan of the National Power Corporation to study the feasibility of a general reduction of electric rates for the benefit of the consuming public.

In a conference at Malacañang the President told Zablan to explore the possibility of considering hydroelectric development projects as a unit and not as individual projects so that electric rates might be made uniform.

To achieve the desired objective of rate reduction, the President ordered the NPC and the Public Service Commission to cooperate in determining the reasonable electric rate which should be charged to the public, taking into consideration the wholesale rate at which the utility operators buy from the NPC.

The conference between the President and Zablan lasted for about 30 minutes. Then the President proceeded to his study room to receive scheduled callers which consisted mostly of governors, congressmen, and town mayors.

Laguna Gov. Dominador Chipeco and Rep. Wenceslao R. Lagumbay accompanied town mayors from their province who pledged their support to the Administration's program. The town mayors were headed by Cabuyao Mayor Mauro Alimagro.

The President asked the town mayors to explain to the residents of their respective towns the objectives of the Administration's austerity program.

Then the President received Capiz Gov. Jose Dinglasan, who informed the Chief Executive that there was an overproduction of rice in his province. Gov. Dinglasan suggested that the NARIC purchased rice from Capiz. Judge Rafael Dinglasan was present during the call.

Rep. Nicanor Yñiguez of Leyte accompanied Maasin Mayor Alfredo Bantog, who requested the President's aid for waterworks improvements in that town.

Other callers were Sen. Francisco Rodrigo; Reps. Pedro Trono of Iloilo, Apolinario Apacible of Batangas, Augusto Francisco of Manila, and Maximino Garcia of Bohol; and Surigao Gov. Bernardino Almeda.

The President received callers until 1 p.m.

In the evening, the President conferred with H. B. Reyes, vice-president of the Meralco.

January 15.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning was informed by American vocational instructors that the country's public school system is one of the world's best. Some 23 American vocational instructors under the ICA, NEC, and the Stanford University teams, detailed with the Department of Education to train public school teachers on vocational and agricultural courses, paid the President a courtesy call.

The American instructors said that the country's public school system had made their work most effective and that they had "gained a very rich experience" in their contact with public school teachers, particularly those in the barrios who are playing a vital role in moulding the minds of the barrio folks.

The leaders of the teams were Paul Hanna, Graham Sullivan, Noel Myers, Frank Miller, and Earl Hashall. They were accompanied to Malacañang by Education Secretary Manuel Lim, Education Undersecretary Martin Aguilar, Jr., and Pedro Guiang.

Earlier this morning, the President and Mrs. Garcia received officers of the Young Ladies Association of Charity who sought the President's contribution to their fund drive. Present during the call were Mrs. Linda Garcia-Caropos, YLAC honorary chairman, and Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor. The group was headed by Miss Virginia Mata, YLAC president of the national high counsel. Mrs. Diosdado Macapagal, YLAC honorary vice-chairman, accompanied the group to Malacañang.

Then the President received officers of the World Brotherhood of the Philippines who sought presidential proclamation declaring February 16 to 24, 1958, as World Brotherhood Week. WBP officers included Tomas Benitez, Jorge Bocobo, Albino Sycip, Arturo Tanco, Jr., Geronima T. Pecson, Trinidad F. Legarda, and Alice Fera Winn.

Capt. Feliciano Miravite, whose legs had been amputated as a result of an encounter with the communists during the South Korean campaign a few years ago, called to say goodbye to the Chief Executive prior to his departure for the United States where he will take actuarial courses. He was accompanied to Malacañang by Assistant Executive Secretary Nicanor Jimenez.

Then the President proceeded to the Council of State room to preside over the Cabinet meeting.

THE Cabinet at its meeting today authorized Commerce, Secretary Pedro Hernaez to conclude immediately the transaction to barter Philippine copra with 50,000 metric tons of rice equivalent to 900,000 cavans of rice from Hongkong.

This approval came after a thorough discussion of the report of Secretary Hernaez, who had taken the necessary steps in effecting the copra-rice barter as approved in a previous Cabinet meeting in view of the estimated rice shortage of from 1,862,900 to 2,000,000 cavans during the year 1958.

In addition to this, the Cabinet also authorized Secretary Hernaez to start negotiations for an additional 50,000 metric tons of rice. It was believed that, together with the 16,000 tons of rice coming from the United States soon, the already closed deal for 50,000 tons of rice and the expected additional importation of 50,000 metric tons would be sufficient to fill the expected rice shortage and provide enough rice at prices within the reach of all.

The President, however, directed Secretary Hernaez to report to the President and the Cabinet on the progress of his negotiations for the additional 50,000 metric tons before concluding the transaction.

Before approving the conclusion of the 50,000 metric tons of rice to be bartered with Philippine copra, the President first got assurance that the cost of the rice which is $120 C & F Manila per metric ton was the best price possible.

The President was informed that as this rice was 35 per cent broken, with 14 per cent moisture and two per cent stained, it was better than another offer of rice priced at $114 per metric ton but which had 50 per cent broken grains. It was the consensus of the Cabinet members that the former offer was fair and reasonable.

The barter of rice at $120 per metric ton will be on the basis of an equivalent exportation of copra from the Philippines at $170 on a back-to-back letter of credit per ton.

The copra to be bartered will be taken from the accumulated 15 per cent barterable copra.

President Garcia also clearly indicated at the Cabinet meeting that products other than copra, except sugar, would be allowed to be bartered with rice. He said that in this first copra-rice barter, copra was used because so far it was the barterable product which was offered to be used.

The President told Secretary Hernaez to rush the consummation of the barter.

It was also stressed at the Cabinet meeting that the bringing in of this 50,000 tons of rice was only a safety measure to prevent hunger and unreasonable rise in rice prices due to an impending rice shortage caused by drought which was being felt in other rice-producing countries in the Orient.

It was also stipulated that the imported rice would not be dumped in the market upon its arrival but would be stored and sold during times of scarcity.

The Cabinet also approved in principle the recommendations of Budget Commissioner Dominador R. Aytona for the improvement of the financial position of the government, particularly the retrenchment measures for adoption by government agencies.

The President, however, advised department heads to confer with the budget commissioner within this week if they desired a re-examination of the reductions allotted to their respective departments so as not to impair the rendering of essential public services and the construction of important projects. The President also directed Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez to intensify tax collection and study ways of stopping up revenue collections in the Bureau of Customs in order to improve the financial position of the government.

In his lengthy report on the financial position of the government, Commissioner Aytona indicated a probable excess of obligations over income in the general fund during the current fiscal year 1958 in the amount of ₱77.1 million computed as follows: total income, ₱766.6 million; and total obligations ₱843.7 million.

The estimated income of ₱766.6 million is ₱79.7 million less than the original estimate of ₱846.3 million caused by the reduction in estimated customs collection, failure of Congress to pass tax amnesty and tax census bills, failure to collect properly receivables from government-owned or controlled corporations and local governments, reduction in estimated operating and service income, and apportionment adjustment to local governments.

The budget commissioner explained that to prevent the deficit of ₱77.1 million, two courses had been explored with department and agency heads as follows: (1) reduction of expenditures during the remainder of the fiscal year and (2) reversion to income of excess certifications to accounts payable.

As pledged by the department and agency heads, the budget commissioner said that the amount of savings expected to be realized from the first course of action would total ₱53.6 million while the additional income to be derived from the second course of action would amount to ₱6.2 million, making a total of ₱59.3 million. After applying this total of ₱59.3 million to the estimated deficit of ₱77.1 million, there would still remain the amount of about ₱16 million which may be covered from the following sources:

- (1) Reversion of excess certifications to accounts payable of the Armed Forces which amount to some ₱11 million;
- (2) Collection by the treasury of the Philippines of outstanding receivables from the Central Bank, government-owned and controlled corporations, and local governments amounting to over ₱85 million; and
- (3) Any reduction in expenditure which the Armed Forces and the Department of Education may be prevailed upon to make.

Commissioner Aytona recommended the following specific retrenchment measures for adoption by agencies in a greater or lesser degree, depending upon each given situation:

- (1) Economy in personnel utilization, non-filling of vacancies, deferment of promotions, restriction or termination of emergency employment, strict control in the use of floating plantilla personnel, restriction of overtime work, requiring employees to go on leave when their services can be dispensed with;
- (2) Economy in the use of supplies, materials, and equipment;
- (3) Restriction of travel, locally and abroad, restriction of the holding of conventions or conferences or the sending of representatives thereto, limitation of field inspections, deferment of scholarship or fellowship travels;
- (4) Economy in the use of communication and transportation services, restriction in the use of postage, telegraph communication, and government vehicles of all types, restriction of installation of new PLDT facilities in government offices;
- (5) Economy in the use of water, electricity, gas, oil, or other fuel for light and power, cooking or heating;
- (6) Limitation of repair and maintenance work to minimum essential requirements consistent with safety, security, and the demands of health and sanitation; and
- (7) Economy in the printing, engraving, and binding requirements of agencies, especially in the use of elaborate and luxurious printing and binding jobs, letterheads, envelopes, desk memorandum pads, posters, handbills, pamphlets, etc.

President Garcia and his Cabinet agreed to change the time of the Cabinet meeting from 10 o'clock in the morning every Wednesday to 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo, who suggested the change, said that holding the Cabinet meeting in the afternoon would enable Cabinet members to work the whole day in their respective offices and attend to the people's needs. He said that if the Cabinet meeting was held at 10 o'clock in the morning, almost the whole day was lost because the Cabinet usually adjourned its meetings at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

It was believed that the change in the schedule of the Cabinet meetings would enable Cabinet members to have more time in thoroughly studying the agenda.

The President said that he would try the proposed new schedule for Cabinet meetings beginning Wednesday, January 22.

The Cabinet meeting this day lasted from 11:30 a.m. to 3:10 p.m.

President's Month in Review: January 16-31, 1958

OFFICIAL MONTH IN REVIEW

January 16.—IN a drastic move designed to stop the unscrupulous practice of unidentified individuals who are reported to have been injudiciously using the President's name to enhance selfish individual interests, President Garcia today issued an appeal to the public asking for their cooperation to put an end to a bad practice which, he said, tends "to shake the confidence of our people in this administration."

The President's move was spurred by persistent reports about private individuals allegedly paddling influence in both government and private sectors by invoking his name.

In a statement directed to government agencies, particularly to investigative agencies, the President asked them to be on the look-out for such individuals and to take immediate remedial action that will include court prosecutions.

The President explained that this practice invariably puts him in bad light to the people, creating a situation in which the people ultimately are prone to lose faith in his administration. Strict public service morality, he said, does not condone such a practice even by members of his family.

The President promised stern punishment of persons committing such a malpractice. He added that he could only succeed in this move with the full cooperation of the people themselves.

THE President today appointed Idelfonso Sinco, Artemio Mati, and Antonio Jaro, ad interim Leyte provincial board member, city mayor, and vice-mayor of Tacloban City, respectively.

The appointment papers of the new Leyte officials were signed in the presence of Leyte Gov. Bernardo Torres, ranking officials, and residents of that province, including Minister Eduardo Quintero, Reynaldo Pascual, Sotero Escarrilla, Jesus Catalla, Ramon Taluzas, and Rodulfo Nievas.

The President received Pampanga Gov. Rafael Lazatin, who accompanied residents from that province who consulted the Chief Executive on matters affecting Pampanga.

Sorsogon Gov. Juan Frivaldo requested aid for public works improvements of his province.

Mayor Bara Lidazan of Parang, Cotabato, requested funds for feeder roads and other public works improvement in that town. He was accompanied by Gil Gadi of Kidappwan.

Other callers were former Public Works Secretary Sotero Baluyot, Miguel Baluyot, Juan T. David, Silvestre Punzalan, and Clemente Soriano.

The President received callers until 1: 30 p.m.

ALL schools, colleges, and universities throughout the Philippines will observe Friday, Janixary 17, as Austerity Day in acordance with Proclamation No. 469, signed by President Garcia last month.

In this connection, school authorities have circularized all schools concerned so that appropriate steps would be taken to observe the day.

To cap the celebration, President Garcia will deliver a speech the following day, Saturday, January 18, at 4:30 p.m. at the Independence Memorial grandstand. The President will explain the positive measures he will take to impement the austerity program.

The President's speech will be broadcast by all radio stations.

Public Schools Director Benigno Aldana circularized all schools under his bureau suggesting how the day could be observed fittingly by pupils and school personnel through school and out-of-school activities and thus contribute directly and positively to the success of the austerity campaign.

Aldana called attention to his previous office memorandum entitled "Concerted and Vigorous Observance of the National Self-Sufficiency and Food Production Campaign," which gave directions regarding the implementation of the Austerity Day proclamation of the President.

PRESIDENT Garcia last night conferred with the officials of the International Cooperation Administration, the Industrial Development Center, the National Economic Council, and the National Power Corporation in an effort to re-direct the U.S. aid to the Philippines for agricultural and industrial development.

It was the first time the President took steps to utilize the United States aids to boost his program of industrial and agricultural production.

He had previously said that he was not in favor of securing additional aid from the United States in his projected visit to Washington.

"We should not rely on American handouts," the President told a previous press conference.

Present at the conference were Paul D. Summers, Dr. Ernest E. Neal, Charles MacGillivray, and Stewart Baron of the ICA; Filemon Zablan, National Power Corporation general manager; Ramon Binamira, presidential assistant on community development; Chairman Eduardo Romualdez of the National Economic Council; Cornelio V. Crucillo of the foreign aid section of the NEC; and Faustino Lozada of the IDC.

Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo assisted the President at the conference.

The President also received members of the Mindanao bloc which recommended five names for possible appointment to the President's Cabinet.

Recommended were Rep. Cesar Fortich of Bukidnon, Gov. Alejandro Almendras of Davao, ex-Sen. Felisberto Verano, and Gov. Vicente Lara of Misamis Oriental for the position of secretary of public works and communications. The fifth name recommended was that of Health Undersecretary Rafael Tombokon for the position of secretary of health.

With the Mindanao bloc leaders were Sens. Emmanuel Pelaez and Roseller T. Lim; Reps. Reynaldo P. Honrado of Surigao and Fausto Dugenio of Misamis Oriental; ex-Sen. Felisberto Verano; Govs. Bernardino Almeda of Surigao and Felixberto Dagani of Agusan; City Mayor Leroy S. Brown of Basilan City; and former Rep. Ignacio Cruz.

Mayor Rosendo Tomas of Mayantoc, Tarlac, also saw the President. Mayantoc was the only town in Tarlac which gave the President a majority over his rivals for the presidency in the last, elections.

THE following is the statement of Malacañang clarifying the circumstances and reasons leading to the approval by the Cabinet of the barter of locally produced low-grade Virginia leaf tobacco with U. S. high grade Virginia leaf tobacco:

"Regarding the story published in the morning papers of Thursday, January 16, 1958, on the approval by the Cabinet of the exportation of 14 million pounds of local low-grade sun-dried Virginia leaf tobacco to be paid for or bartered with 10 million pounds of U. S. high grade Virginia leaf tobacco, Malacañang, through its Legal Office headed by Judge Salvador Esguerra, clarified the circumstances and reasons leading to the approval of the transaction by the Cabinet in order to straighten out misstatement and inaccuracies appearing in the publication.

1. The President and the Cabinet approved the barter of 14 million pounds of local low-grade Virginia leaf tobacco with 10 million pounds of U. S. high-grade Virginia leaf tobacco on the basis of the recommendation of the Agricultural Credit and Cooperative Financing Administration (ACCFA), and of its certification to the President, that for this fiscal year, the local production of Virginia leaf tobacco in the Philippines is insufficient to maintain the manufacture of tobacco products in this country at a level sufficient to produce not less than the quantity of tobacco products manufactured in the preceding fiscal year, which quantity shall be certified to by the Bureau of Internal Revenue (BIR).

2. The certification by the BIR does not refer to the shortage of local production of Virginia leaf tobacco. It merely refers to the quantity of tobacco products manufactured in the Philippines in the preceding fiscal year out of Virginia leaf tobacco. The certification by the ACCFA refers to the shortage of the local production of Virginia leaf tobacco in the Philippines and that said production will be insufficient to maintain the same quantity of tobacco products manufactured during the preceding fiscal year. When it comes to the certification as to the existence of a shortage in the local production of Virginia leaf tobacco, it is the ACCFA that issues it and not the BIR whose function is limited to the certification as to the quantity of tobacco products manufactured in the preceding fiscal year out of locally grown Virginia leaf tobacco which in turn is the basis of comparison by the ACCFA with the quantity of the local production of Virginia leaf tobacco.

3. The importation of the shortage as certified by the ACCFA is authorized by the President under section 1 of Republic Act No. 1194. It is not the certification of the BIR which serves as basis for the President's action in authorizing the importation of the quantity corresponding to the shortage of local Virginia leaf tobacco. To deny this is to show abysmal ignorance of the law or to refuse to know the law. The prohibition in Republic Act No. 1410 against the importation by barter of articles that are limited or prohibited of importation is not applicable with respect to the quantity of Virginia leaf tobacco certified as shortage which the President is authorized to permit to be imported. Once the President authorizes the importation of Virginia leaf tobacco to cover the shortage, there is no more prohibition against the importation of the quantity of that shortage. Therefore, the prohibition in -Republic Act No. 1410 no longer applies because the authority to import it is made as an exception to the prohibition in the law. To barter the local production of low-grade Virginia leaf tobacco for the importation of high-grade foreign Virginia leaf tobacco would logically follow as a necessary consequence of the lifting of the prohibition by the President.

4. The Secretary of Justice has not issued any statement that the BIR certification regarding the existence of a shortage in the production of local Virginia leaf tobacco is necessary to authorize the importation of the shortage. The Secretary of Justice explained that the certification of the BIR refers only to the quantity of the tobacco products manufactured in the preceding fiscal year which is the basis of the ACCFA in making a comparison whether there is a shortage between that quantity of tobacco products manufactured and the local production of Virginia leaf tobacco to be used in the manufacture of such products.

5. The certification by the BIR as to the quality of the tobacco that will be exported under the transaction approved by the Cabinet is needed only for purposes of collecting the tobacco inspection fee provided under the National Internal Revenue Code. Evidently, such certification of the Collector of Internal Revenue regarding the quality of tobacco has nothing to do with the existence of a shortage in the local production of Virginia leaf tobacco which is to be certified by the ACCFA.

6. Under the Cabinet resolution to allow the importation of foreign Virginia leaf tobacco, the allocation of the imported quantity will be dictated by the ACCFA, and the private firm called the Philippine Tobacco Flue Curing and Redrying Corporation will only act as agent in carrying out the equitable distribution among local manufacturers of Virginia cigarettes. There is, therefore, no favoritism towards the Philippine Tobacco Flue Curing and Redrying Corporation that will enable this corporation, as alleged, to monopolize the importation of Virginia leaf tobacco.

January 17.—THE President this morning called upon the officers and members of the Civic Assembly of Women of the Philippines to help in the implementation of the Administration's austerity program, saying that "austerity is not only in dollars but is a way of life."

The President and the First Lady had breakfast with the members of the CAWP at the Malacañang state dining hall. In appealing to the women of the country, the President said that spirit and ideals should go hand in hand with economic development.

The Chief Executive cited the causes and reasons leading to the Administration's austerity measures and said that it was his sincere hope that the CAWP and the country's women in general would continue supporting the program. "Help us enlighten the people on why the measures were taken," the President said in his brief remarks after the breakfast.

Extolling the characteristics of the Filipino women, the President said that he would not hesitate in appointing qualified women to ranking government positions. He invited the CAWP officers and members to feel free to come to Malacañang for enlightenment in the efforts to implement the austerity program.

The First Lady, who said a few words, expressed approval of the plan to appoint qualified women to government positions.

CAWP President Helena Z. Benitez expressed the opinion of the association that with President Garcia in Malacañang, "the country is in best hands."

The CAWP members assured the President that they would cooperate in the solution of the economic problems and would be militant in their support of the austerity program. They also promised to help step-up production, individually and collectively, and to buy less imported goods and consume less to save more and use more of the local goods.

The CAWP members also said that their first concern was the strengthening of spiritual and moral values, and the pledge to fight the social forces directly and indirectly causing moral disintegration of the people. In the implementation of their fight against the social forces causing moral disintegration, the CAWP suggested more well-organized seminars and workshops, improvement of the Social Security System, stricter laws on movies and movie goers, and nationalization of schools to implement a real citizenship training and to educate people to practice real patriotism and nationalism.

Those who attended the breakfast were Helena Z. Benitez, president; Belen E. Gutierrez, treasurer; Concepcion R. Gonzalez, 1st vice-president; Minerva Laudico, 3rd vice-president; Leticia P. de Guzman, public relations officer; Enriqueta R. Benavides, Pilar H. Lam, Rafaelita H. Soriano, Concepcion Henares and Estefania Aldaba-Lim, members at large;

Jossie Lichauco, Asociacion de Damas Filipinas; Nestora Benetua, Catholic Women's League; Isabel S. Lopez, Club de Damas de Manila; Pilar M. Normandy, Gold Star Mothers & United War Widows and Orphans Association; Lourdes Casas, Junior Federation of Women's Clubs of the Philippines; Constancia D. Dumlao, League of Women Voters of the Philippines; Maria Orense Casas, Manila Ladies Civic Group; Eloisa B. Brior, Manila YWCA; Mercedes Panganiban, NDC Women's Clubs; Paraiunian S. Aspillera, Panitik ng Kababaihan; Maria Cid Peralta, Philippine Association of University Women.; Joaquina Zapanta, Pihlippine Women's Christian Temperance Union; Remedios Mijares Austria, Women Lawyer's Circle; Paz Catolico, Women's International League; Geronima T. Pecson, Zenta Club of Manila; Leonor Jacinto, Jaycerettes; Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez, Women's Welfare Movement; Judge Minerva Piguing, Board of Dircors; Felisa Carina, former secretary of CAWP; Salud Unson, Manila Women's Club; Carmen Adriano Pineda, Rural Improvement Club; Gloria Monzon, Philippine Home Economics Association; Carmela Lucero, Constabulary Women's Club, and Lilia de Jesus-Sevilla, Camp Murphy Women's Club.

President Garcia's austerity program was further bolstered this morning as businessmen, civic leaders, professionals, and laymen who called at Malacañang pledged their all-out support for the measure.

MRR General Manager Salvador T. Villa, newly-elected President of the Management Association of the Philippines, headed officers of that association who took their oath of office before the Chief Executive. Those who were inducted into office were Jose Olbes, vice-president; and Leopoldo Rovira, Jr., Art Cummings, and Federico Borromeo, members of the board. Present during the induction ceremony were Leonides Virata, Salvador Estrada, A; Mon-tinola, Jr., Luis Panagitan, and A. Liboro.

The first callers of the President after his breakfast with the officers and members of the Civic Assembly of Women of the Philippines were the officials of the Boy Scouts of the Philippines headed by Jorge V. Vargas, president of the BSP. The BSP officials informed the President of the holding of a boy scouts' international jamboree in the Philippines in 1959. The international jamboree will be the first of its kind to be held in the Far East and thousands of boy scouts from countries all over the world will attend. The BSP officials invited the President to be the guest speaker at the BSP national jamboree on April 14 this year.

Then the President received two American business executives who simultaneously paid a courtesy call following their recent arrival in the country. They were Albert Tegen, president of the General Public Utilities Incorporated, NY, mother corporation of the Manila Electric Company; and Walter Wilma, executive vice-president of the U. S. Industries Incorporated, NY, mother establishment of the Koppel (Philippines), Inc.

Tegen was accompanied to Malacañang by W. R. Snyder and H. B. Reyes, president and vice-president of the Meralco, respectively. Wilma was accompanied by N. A. Fittinghoff, president of the Koppel, Inc., and Gil Carlos.

Later the President received members of the Filipino Nurses Association who, aside from pledging their support to his Administration, also expressed their gratitude for the release of a government land for the Nurses Village at Novaliches. The group was headed by Mrs. Rosario Ordiz. Present during the call was Fr. Domingo Nebres, spiritual adviser of the FNA.

Impressario Alfredo Lozano accompanied Nena del Rosario, who formally invited the President and his family to her concert to be held on January 31 at the Sta. Escolastica auditorium. The concert will be given in honor of the President and his family.

The President received members of the UNESCO National Commission of the Philippines who briefed the Chief Executive on the UNESCO educational and cultural program in relation to the country and to the Administration.

The group included Mrs. Geronima T. Pecson, chairman; Benecio Catapusan, Mrs. Trinidad F. Legarda, Mrs. Concepcion Gonzales, Prof. Ramon Tapales, Benigno Aldana, Francisco Trinidad, Eduardo Quisumbing, Patrocinio Valenzuela, Joaquin Maranon, Tomas Fonacier, and Mariano de los Santos.

Then the President received officers and members of the Rural Bankers' Association who, aside from pledging their support to the austerity program, also assured the Chief Executive that they would intensify giving financial assistance to small farmers in rural areas to realize the objectives of the good production campaign.

The group included Jose Rodriguez, president; Jose Desiderio, Florencio Garcia, Eduardo Barretto, and J. Ortanez.

Land Tenure Administrator Manuel Castañeda called to discuss matters affecting the LTA.

Other callers were members of the Good Government League, headed by Luis Gloria; members of the Iloilo Voters' League, headed by Bernabe Gomez; Manuel Leleen; Dominador Villanueva, president of the Ilocano National Association; Mrs. Comemoracion M. Concepcion, Quezon City High School principal; Emma Bernabe; B. Magaro; Orlando Yangco; M. V. Arguelles; and Justice Buenaventura Ocampo and his sons, Miguel, Bienvenido, and Rodolfo. Leopoldo Brias, Philippine honorary consul for Barcelona, Spain, and his wife Maria paid a courtesy call following their arrival in the country recently. The couple was accompanied to Malacañang by Col. Benito Razon.

Mayor Floripes Venturanza of Banga, Capiz, requested aid for feeder roads construction in his town.

The President received callers until 1:45 p.m.

January 18.—THIS morning, President Garcia directed Health Director Jesus Nolasco to send immediately by plane medicine and necessary personnel to Catarman, Samar, to check the gastro-enteritis and influenza epidemics in that area.

The President issued the directive upon representation of Rep. Eladio Balite, who had been informed by Catarman Mayor Moobe of the epidemics.

Balite said that Catarman has 37,000 population, the majority of which was residing in 50 barrios. Only 15 barrios are accessible by roads, and the only public health officer available in the town is the sanitary inspector. Catarman is 150 kilometers from Catbalogan.

THE President today sent a cable to His Holiness Pope Pius XII on the latter's feast day. The President's cable reads:

"The Philippines today prays that your Holiness on this date set aside in your honor may look forward to many more such days to further your great leadership in peace, unity, and moral guidance of nations."

The President stayed the whole day in his hideout, having gone there the night before. He spent the morning working on his speech which he delivered in the afternoon.

About 4:00 p.m., the President was fetched from the hideout by Francisco Dalupan, President of the University of the East, who accompanied him to the Luneta. After the ceremonies at the grandstand, the President returned to his hideout.

PRESIDENT Garcia this afternoon delivered his second "austerity speech" in which he stressed the positive measures he would take to implement the government's austerity program. (See Historical Papers and Documents, pp. 308-314, for the full text of the President's speech.)

The President spoke at the Independence Memorial Grandstand before an estimated 250,000 audience composed mostly of students from schools, colleges, and universities from Manila and the suburbs, including civic, business, and religious leaders. The President's speech capped the nationwide observance by schools throughout the Philippines of "Austerity Day" yesterday.

After the President's speech, Fernando E. V. Sison, president of the Philippine Chamber of Industries, congratulated the President and said that the Chamber was glad to accept the Chief Executive's challenge to industries to go all-out for scientific and industrial research and to cooperate with the Government's research program in order to increase production.

January 19.—THE President will seek amendment of the Central Bank Charter in the forthcoming session of Congress in order to make the majority of the members of the Monetary Board work on a full time basis, Malacañang announced today.

A Malacañang spokesman said that the President would like the majority of the Monetary Board members to serve on a full time basis so that work of that very important body which plays a vital role in the development of the country's economy would be sped up.

In its present composition the Monetary Board has only one full-time member. The spokesman said that if the majority of the board members would work full time, there would be no delay in acting on all matters which require full deliberation of the board.

The spokesman further said that the President is also considering making the majority members of the board of directors of other government corporations work on a full time basis. In this manner all problems of the different government corporations could be studied more thoroughly and could be acted upon with more dispatch, the spokesman said.

THE President spent a quiet Sunday in his hideout where he had retired the day before to resume work on his state-of-the-nation message and on drafts of bills which he intends to recommend for enactment in the forthcoming regular session of Congress.

The President started the day by hearing mass said at 9 a.m. before an improvised altar at his hideout.

After breakfast about 10 a.m., the President spent some time reading the Sunday morning papers brought over to him by Lt. Melchor Fronda, naval aide. Then he started working on his message to Congress and on some pending papers sent over from Malacañang.

The Chief Executive did not receive any caller at his hideout the whole day.

January 20.—PRESIDENT Garcia is considering the appointment of a technical adviser to the President on science, Malacañang announced today.

A Malacañang spokesman said that prominently mentioned for appointment to the position is Lt. Comdr. Marcelino Calinawan (PN), now vice-chairman of the Interdepartmental Committee on Atomic Energy. Calinawan is the only Filipino who had been awarded the Eisenhower scholarship on nuclear studies. He returned recently from Washington, D. C.

The Malacañang spokesman said that the presidential technical adviser on science will serve as a liaison between the science agencies of the government and Malacañang. At present the government agencies undertaking scientific researches are the National Science Board, the Institute of Science and Technology, the National Research Council, and the Philippine Nuclear Energy Commission now in process of organization.

Researches are also being undertaken by the Bureau of Plant Industry and the Bureau of Animal Industry.

For the present the presidential technical adviser on science will serve as a liaison between these science agencies and Malacañang. The President will recommend to Congress the integration of all these government agencies undertaking scientific and industrial researches in order to make their services more effective and so that they can effectively serve private industry in the effort to increase production of prime commodities.

The President's action in recommending to Congress the integration of these government agencies was announced by him in his speech last Saturday at the Independence Memorial Grandstand. In his speech the President stressed the positive measures he would undertake in connection with the austerity program of the government.

Sen. Emmanuel Pelaez and Rep. Fausto Dugenio of Misamis Oriental called on the President this morning and pledged to him their full backing of his announcement to recommend to Congress the integration of all government agencies undertaking scientific and industrial researches in order that the integrated offices could service the needs of industries in achieving maximum production.

Earlier the President swore into office Natalio P. Castillo as congressman for the first district of Bohol. The President also inducted Rep. Fausto Dugenio as member of the Nacionalista Party. Dugenio was the only successful congressional candidate of the Nacionalist-Citizens Party.

The induction ceremonies for the two congressmen took place at the President's study this noon. Among those present were Sen. Fernando Lopez, who sponsored the affiliation of Rep. Dugenio, Sen. Pelaez, and Reps. Bartolome Cabangbang of Bohol and Domitilo Abordo of Iloilo.

After the induction ceremonies, President Garcia received Vicente P. Gabriel, national chairman of the Economic Emancipation Association who presented a resolution to the President requesting the relief of Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno and all the other top officials of the Central Bank, the appointive members of the Monetary Board, the appointive members of the National Economic Council, and the top officials of the Office of Economic Coordination.

The resolution urged that these officials be replaced with those “who have no interest to protect, cannot be influenced by foreign vested interests, and with workable ideas for the betterment of our country and people.”

The President said that he would study the petition.

The President stayed at his hide-out today where he continued working on his state-of-the-nation message. He left his hide-out and motored to Malacañang at past 11 am for the induction ceremonies. He was accompanied by Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, Rep. Cabangbang, and Maj. Jose Estrella.

After luncheon, the President returned to his hide-out and resumed working on his state-of-the-nation message.

THE President today said that if the unbridled speculation in the price of rice and other prime commodities would continue, he would ask Congress to enact a price control law for these commodities.

The President reiterated this statement upon receiving reports that the prices of essential commodities had continued to soar without any justifiable reason.

The President in his speech Saturday afternoon at the Independence Grandstand on the Luneta appealed “to the patriotism of our merchants, nationals, and aliens alike, to refrain from making excessive profits at the expense of the suffering of our people.”

In that speech the President said that he would take “necessary measures, drastic measures if need be, to protect our people from the concupiscence and greed of the heartless.”

The President reiterated his warning today upon being informed that the prices of prime commodities had continued to go up without justifiable reason.

IN the evening, the President sent the following message congratulating Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., on the eve of the latter’s 75th birthday:

“MRS. Garcia heartily joins me in wishing you a very happy birthday. The stature and prestige of our party today, in the attainment of which you have dedicatedly played a big hand, may well be your gift on this day. May God grant you many more years that you may continue to serve the nation. Warmest Regards.”

January 21.—PRESIDENT Garcia will recommend to Congress changes in the country’s educational program in order to gear the education of the youth to the government’s policy of developing the nation’s agricultural and industrial resources, Malacañang announced today.

The proposed changes in the educational system which the President will recommend to Congress will stress greater emphasis on the teaching of physics, chemistry, biology, mathematics, economics, and allied subjects.

A Malacañang spokesman said that the laying of emphasis on these subjects will not in any way sacrifice the teaching of general education which is essential to the cultivation of those qualities which will make men socially, politically, and culturally well rounded.

The spokesman added that these proposed changes in the educational system of the Philippines were necessary in order to implement fully the country’s agricultural and industrial development.

President Garcia spent the whole day in his hide-out revising the first draft of his speech. He did not receive any callers.

Early in the morning, he motored to the residence of Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., to congratulate the latter on his birthday.

In the afternoon, the President received Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison and Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable in connection with his state-of-the-nation address. ,

A Malacañang spokesman this evening said that the neutral stand which the President had taken on the speakership remained the same. The spokesman said that the President had not authorized anybody to campaign for someone for the speakership.

He added that the President expected full cooperation from whoever might be elected Speaker, and especially from the majority of the House of Representatives composed of 83 Nacionalistas.

According to the spokesman, the President expressed faith that this Congress would be equal to the highest expectations of the people in these days of stress and hardships.

January 22.—THE President spent almost the whole day today in his new residence, generally referred to as his hideout. He was busy giving the finishing touches to the draft of his state-of-the-nation message to be delivered Monday before the joint session of the Fourth Congress.

In the afternoon, the President motored to Malacañang to preside over the regular weekly meeting of his Cabinet.

THIS afternoon, the President received the credentials of the first Ambassador of India to the Philippines, Mohinder Singh Chopra, at a simple ceremony held at the Malacañang ceremonial hall with all the members of the Cabinet present.

Toasts with basi, a local wine, for the continued friendly relations now existing between both countries were exchanged by President Garcia and Ambassador Chopra after the ceremony. Arriving at Malacañang a few minutes before 5 p.m., the Indian Ambassador was received with full military honors rendered by Malacañang guards before he was ushered to the ceremonial hall.

Present at the presentation ceremony were Acting Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason, Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, Labor Secretary Angel Castaño, Commerce Secretary Pedro Hernaez, Education Secretary Manuel Lim, Health Secretary Paulino J. Garcia, Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo, NEC Presiding Officer Eduardo Z Romualdez, Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas, Acting Agriculture Secretary Jose Trinidad, Economic Coordination Administrator Juan Concon, Social Welfare Administrator Amparo P. Villamor, Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, National Integration Commissioner Madki Alonto, and Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison.

Among those present at the ceremony were Rep. Miguel Cuenco of Cebu, Ministers Tomas de Castro and Juan Arreglado, and Malacañang Protocol Officer Manuel G. Zamora.

EARLIER in the afternoon, President Garcia received Manuel Nieto, Philippine ambassador to Spain, who arrived this morning on the SAS Madrid-Rome-Manila inaugural flight.

Ambassador Nieto informed the President that the Spolarium, a painting by Juan Luna which was recently turned over to the Philippine Government by the Spanish Government, will arrive by boat, as it could not be transported by plane.

FINANCE Secretary Jaime Hernandez reported to the President and the Cabinet at their meeting this afternoon the action of the Monetary Board, allowing all oil companies during the first semester of 1958 to utilize in full their 1957 first half actual importation. The Hernandez report follows:

“The Monetary Board, acting swiftly on the representations made by industries affected, decided at its meeting today, January 22, 1958, to allow the oil companies during the first semester of 1958 the utilization in full of their 1957 first half actual importation. This decision means the restoration of the cuts previously made upon the oil companies. The Monetary Board arrived at this decision in order to assure the steady and smooth operations of the essential industries of the country, particularly of manufacturing and dollar-earning industries, and after considering the foreign exchange savings effected in the allocations of other sectors.

“In addition, the Monetary Board approved the grant of the full quotas of dollar-earning industries to the level of their 1957 semestral regular allocations in order that the contribution of these industries to our dollar reserves shall continue unhampered. Furthermore, in line with the Administration’s policy of attaining self-sufficiency in foodstuff, the Monetary Board has seen to it that importers of fertilizers and insecticides shall utilize in full their 1957 semestral allocations during the first semester of 1958.”

THE Cabinet approved a draft agreement between the Department of Health of Vietnam and the Department of Health of the Philippines providing for the recruitment of 20 Filipino physicians who will serve under contract for a period of one year in Vietnam in connection with the implementation of a Joint Vietnamese Government and ICA Rural Health Program.

Under this agreement which was submitted to the Cabinet by Health Secretary Paulino Garcia, the Philippine department of health will request Filipino physicians interested in the project to file formal letters of applications to be accompanied with statement of academic accomplishments and experience; thereafter the applicants will be screened by the Philippine department of health and the USOM/Philippines to determine whether or not they are qualified to participate in the project.

The Vietnamese department of health and USOM/Vietnam will review the applications, after which the Philippine department, through the USOM/ Philippines, will be notified of the acceptance or rejection of the applicant. The Philippine department will then notify any applicant by letter of his acceptance or rejection. If accepted, the physician may either be designated a general practitioner or a general surgeon.

Any physician recruited by the Philippine department will serve for a period of one year, or until earlier terminated, in places where he will be assigned under the supervision of a Vietnamese physician designated by the Vietnamese department. He will be licensed to practice in Vietnam only in a health facility of the Vietnamese department. He cannot engage in any other employment during the period of his service, or receive or accept any gift or remuneration other than what is provided in the agreement.

The Cabinet approved the agreement upon the assurance of Health Secretary Garcia that the release of 20 Filipino physicians for service in foreign land would not affect the Philippines’ own rural health program.

The agreement contains, among others, the following conditions:

1. For consideration of services rendered, each general surgeon will receive the equivalent in pesos of $350 a month; each general practitioner, the equivalent of $300 a month. These amounts will be paid in the Philippines to the respective agents designated in writing filed with the Philippine department, subject to reimbursement in dollars by USOM/Vietnam.

2. Each physician will be entitled to the following allowances:

- (a) Free first class transportation from Manila to Saigon and return.

(b) Free transportation within Vietnam only for all journeys undertaken in the performance of official duties.

(c) Each physician will be entitled to baggage and personal effects weighing not more than 200 pounds to be sent as unaccompanied air freight at the expense of USOM/Vietnam.

(d) Each physician will be provided furnished living quarters by the Vietnamese department without charge.

(e) Each physician shall receive transfer allowance of VN$ 1,000 to be paid by USOM/Vietnam. After the one-year period, he shall receive one-half month's salary in lieu of leave rights in the same manner as regular salary. Cost-of-living allowances shall be determined by USOM/Vietnam in accordance with conditions in the area where the physician is assigned, but such allowance shall not be less than VN$ 200 nor more than VN$400 a day.

3. The physicians will not be required to furnish any medical instruments, drugs, or supplies in connection with their employment in Vietnam.

4. The Philippine department, with prior concurrence of USOM/Philippines, will provide group insurance for sickness, accident, and death, premiums therefor to be paid by USOM/Philippines. The amount involved will be reimbursed by USOM/Vietnam.

5. A physician may resign by giving 30 days written notice to the Vietnamese department, and resignation will not entitle him to return transportation. In case of gross misconduct, a "physician may be discharged immediately, as major be determined by a committee composed of one representative each from the Vietnamese department, the Philippine Embassy in Vietnam, and USCOM/Vietnam, and returned to the Philippines without the benefit of severance pay or return transportation.

PRESIDENT Garcia and his Cabinet at their meeting today took further steps to insure sufficient rice supply in the Philippines by approving an additional importation of 50,000 metric tons of rice, bringing the total to 150,000 metric tons to be imported as follows:

(1) 50,000 metric tons of rice as already approved in the Cabinet meeting on Jan. 15, to be bartered with Philippine copra on a back-to-back letter of credit per ton;

(2) 50,000 metric tons of rice which has been under negotiation for barter was decided to be imported from the United States under the U. S. Public Law 480. This change in the manner of importing the rice was decided at the Cabinet meeting today; and

(3) 50,000 metric tons of rice to be imported from the United States under the same U. S. Public Law 480.

The Cabinet decided to increase the importation of rice by another 50,000 metric tons in view of the latest reports from the National Rice and Corn Corporation that, owing to drought in several regions in the Philippines, the total estimated rice shortage for 1958 will be 150,000 metric tons.

During the discussion of the rice importation, the President emphasized that the copra to be bartered with the 50,000 metric tons of rice would be taken from the accumulated 15 per cent barterable copra.

The Chief Executive also stressed that the cost of the rice, $120 per metric ton, C. & F. Manila, was the best price for this transaction because the copra to be bartered with it would cost $170 per metric ton, C. & C. Hongkong, while in the other offer of $114 per metric ton of rice the cost of the copra would be $145 per metric ton.

The President and the Cabinet believed that in a barter deal like the copra-rice barter, not only the price of rice should be considered but also the price of copra. In the accepted offer, although the price per metric ton of rice was $6 higher than the lower offer, yet it had the advantage in that the copra would be paid $25 higher than in the second.

Besides, it was further explained that in the offer accepted the rice was only 35 per cent broken with 14 per cent moisture and 2 per cent stained, whereas in the lower offer the rice had 50 per cent broken grain.

In dropping the negotiation to barter the second 50,000 metric tons of rice for copra and preferring importation from the United States under U. S. Public Law 480, the President and the Cabinet believed that this importation would be better because the government would pay in pesos for a period of about 25 years. It, therefore, decided that the total of 100,000 metric tons of rice to fill the balance of the 150,000 metric tons shortage should all be imported from the United States.

With the major items on the agenda over, the President requested Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo to read before the Cabinet the draft of the President's state-of-the-nation message to Congress.

As the reports on the achievements, needs, and problems of each department were read, the corresponding secretary made his suggestions. The reading of the state-of-the-nation message took over an hour.

The President will go over the corrected draft of his message.

For the first time, the Cabinet meeting was held in the Malacañang state dining hall. The reason for the change of place was the presentation of the credentials of Indian Ambassador Mohinder Singh Chopra which coincided with the Cabinet meeting. The Indian ambassador presented his credentials to the President at the ceremonial hall, which was only a few steps away from the Malacañang state dining hall. Since the President and all the Cabinet members had to attend the ceremony, it was deemed best to hold the meeting at the state dining hall.

The Cabinet meeting started at 4 p.m. sharp with Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason presiding during the first minutes before the arrival of the President. The Chief Executive then presided over the meeting until its adjournment at past 8 p.m.

January 23.—AS anticipated, the President stayed this day in his hideout, his new residence in Quezon City. He resumed going over the draft of his state-of-the-nation speech to be delivered at the opening of Congress on Monday.

The President had lunch with the First Lady this noon. With them were Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable and Acting Press Secretary Sison.

After lunch, the President had an afternoon siesta. He resumed going over and revising the draft of his speech at 4 p.m. Helping him in the preparation of his speech was Legislative Secretary Nable.

PRESIDENT Garcia today praised Rep. Sergio Osmeña, Jr., of Cebu for the "sportsmanlike way" in which the latter took his defeat at yesterday's caucus.

The President commended Osmeña for his "promise of unqualified cooperation to the Nacionalista Party" which, the President said, added to Osmeña's stature as a political figure.

The Chief Executive conveyed his congratulations to Rep. Osmeña through Nic Osmeña, the congressman's brother. The President's message was telephoned to Nic by Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison.

The President's message was sent after the President had received a telephone call from Nic Osmeña last evening informing him that Rep. Osmeña had taken his defeat in a sportsmanlike way and that he had promised unqualified cooperation to the Nacionalista administration.

THE President today issued a proclamation declaring February 28 this year as Labor-Management Cooperation Day.

The President emphasized in his Proclamation No. 477, that in order to raise living standards through greater economic production, it was necessary to promote labor-management cooperation with a view to minimizing work stoppage which results in economic waste.

In issuing the proclamation, the President called upon all government offices and instrumentalities throughout the country as well as upon all private entities and individuals to participate in the proper observance of the day and to cooperate with the Department of Labor in fostering cooperation between labor and management in the pursuit of its program for industrial peace.

The President called especially on schools and the various chambers, professional organizations and societies, civic organizations, and service clubs to dedicate a program for the promotion of knowledge of ways and means to bring about labor and management cooperation in their economic dealings with one another and the public.

The President, moreover granted today another 30-day reprieve to Eusebio Molijon y Cantay, who was convicted of attempted robbery with multiple murder and sentenced to suffer the death penalty.

The President stated that some time was still considered necessary for a thorough and careful study of the petition for executive clemency filed in behalf of Molijon.

The reprieve will expire on February 25, 1958. The last one was granted on December 20, 1957.

January 24.—PRESIDENT Garcia returned to Malacañang in the afternoon today to preside over his weekly press conference. He arrived at 4:30 p.m.

Before showing up at the Malacañang state dining room, the President was briefed by Acting Press Secretary Sison on the probable questions the newsmen would fire at him during the press conference.

The President told the newsmen he will ask Congress for “broad powers” to cope with the worsening price situation. He said he wanted to use “strong hand” methods in dealing with uncrupulous businessmen and hoarders who, he charged, have sabotaged his austerity program.

The President, visibly incensed by the sudden upswing of the prices of prime commodities, deplored the fact that he was powerless to go after the profiteers.

“I have appealed to them,” the President said, “and if my moral influence will not be enough, I will have to use drastics measures.”

The President said he will ask Congress to give priority to his request for “broad powers.” He said he will also endorse an administration bill on price control to Congress.

Explaining his request for broad powers, the President said he was not asking for what is commonly known as “emergency powers.”

However, he said, “Congress can give it whatever name it may choose. I want to have broad powers to open warehouses with hoarded prime commodities.”

He further said he wanted authority to suspend transactions or negotiations carried beyond normal levels.

At his weekly press conference, the President also:

1. Disclosed an increase in the dollar reserves in the Central Bank, which he attributed to the implementation of his austerity program;

2. Announced he will accept the resignation of his brother, Minister Cosme Garcia, owing to the latter's political commitments before the elections;
3. Hailed the selection of Rep. Daniel Z. Romualdez as Speaker of the House of Representatives as an indication of the ability of Nacionalista solons to decide any question among themselves;
4. Said he was not in favor of increasing taxes and denied reports the government will go on deficit-spending;
5. Ordered an inquiry into reports that the National Rice and Corn Corporation has increased its prices for the macan variety of rice in violation of a Cabinet resolution fixing the prices of this particular variety;
6. Refused to comment on reports that the Philippines was filing an omnibus claim with the United States; and
7. Withheld comment on the bill filed by Sen. Francisco Rodrigo to 'legalize the stay in the Philippines of 2,700 over-staying Chinese temporary visitors.

AFTER the press conference, the President received Raymond Moyer, Far Eastern regional director of the International Cooperation Administration. Moyer paid a courtesy call on the President. He is proceeding to Tokyo in the course of his inspection of the Far East countries.

Moyer was accompanied to Malacañang by Paul D. Summers; local 10A head, and Ambassador Charles Bohlen.

The President also received Ambassador to Taipei Narciso Ramos, who called on the Chief Executive. The envoy is in Manila on "sick leave."

After receiving the callers, the President returned to his hideout where he resumed revising the draft of his message to Congress on the state of the nation.

January 25.—THE Chief Executive stayed in his hideout the whole day today, putting the finishing touches to his state-of-the-nation message to Congress.

Meanwhile, Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo stayed in Malacañang, calling the President off-and-on by telephone or motoring to the President's hideout for consultation.

Disturbed by reports that many job-seekers and other political supporters have been seeking audience with the President by displaying GPM (Garcia-for-President) badges to the presidential guards, Secretary Pajo issued a directive banning persons from entering the President's bedroom.

It was learned that some people have been frequently entering the President's bedroom seeking audience with the President.

Secretary Pajo said that all those who want to see the President should clear appointments with the appointment secretaries.

January 26.—THE President finished polishing his state-of-the-nation message to Congress at 3 o'clock this morning. Legislative Secretary Nable and Acting Press Secretary Sison helped him put the finishing touches to his message at his hideout in Quezon City.

The President got up bleary-eyed about 8 a.m. and heard mass said before an improvised altar at his hideout.

After breakfast with Rev. Juan Tugade, Philippine Navy chaplain who said the mass, and his aide, Maj. Jose Estrella, the President read the Sunday papers brought over from Malacañang.

At noon, he had for lunch guest his son-in-law, Fernando Campos. Mrs. Garcia was not with the President because she attended a social function in Bulacan.

In the afternoon, President Garcia again went over his message to Congress.

January 27.—PRESIDENT Garcia today resumed receiving callers in Malacañang after working on his state-of-the-nation message at his “hideout” for several days.

The President had breakfast with Robert Stanley Dollar, president of the Robert Dollar Co. (former owner of the American President Lines), the Dollar Associates, Inc., and the Globe Wireless Ltd., who paid a courtesy call in the course of a business and goodwill tour in the Orient.

Present during the breakfast were Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, RFC Chairman Eduardo Romualdez, Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo, Acting Agriculture Secretary Jose M. Trinidad, Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuademo, Commerce Secretary Pedro Hernaez, Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, Economic Coordination Administrator Juan Concon, Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines President Primitivo Lovina, U. S. Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen, Dollar Company Vice-President Carl Gabrielson, Dollar Co. (Far East) Representative T. B. Wilson; Howard Cavender, Dollar Co. (Manila) manager; H. C. Hendry, Globe Wireless Ltd. (Manila) manager; and Paul H. Wood, American Chamber of Commerce president.

After the breakfast, the President received 14 year-old William A. Beban, carrier salesman of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune, who paid a courtesy call in the course of a worldwide tour as “centennial air ambassador” in connection with the Minnesota centennial anniversary this year.

The President received from Bevan the Minnesota Statehood Commission certificate making the Chief Executive an honorary citizen of Minnesota, which entitles him to “all the privileges and rights enjoyed by residents of this great state,” and a letter of introduction and personal invitation to visit Minnesota during its centennial year from Minnesota Gov. Orville Freeman.

Beban also handed to the President a copy of the Minneapolis Sunday Tribune, which contains a special section devoted to Minnesota’s hundredth birthday.

The President expressed his gratitude to Gov. Freeman and congratulated Bevan for being chosen as “air ambassador” among 11,000 aspirants.

Beban was accompanied to Malacañang by U. S. Embassy Public Affairs Officer William Copelan, William Pollock, and Cesar Jayme, TWA public relations officer and assistant district sales manager, respectively.

A PLAN whereby Philippine export products could find an outlet in European markets was presented today to President Garcia by a Spanish financier.

The plan was breached during a courtesy call made by Don Julio Munoz, a multimillionaire of Barcelona, Spain, who was accompanied by his wife, Dona Carmen Villalonga de Munoz, Philippine Ambassador to Spain Manuel Nieto, Sr., and GAB Chairman Manuel Nieto, Jr.

The President said that the plan will be presented for study to Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno, Commerce Secretary Pedro Hernaez, Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez in his capacity as chairman of the Monetary Board, and RFC Chairman Eduardo Z. Romualdez in his capacity as chairman of the National Economic Council,

The Spanish financier informed the President that Spain, after her war of liberation, faced the same problem as the one the Philippines is now facing because of lack of international reserves.

The plan submitted by Mr. Munoz was backed by a group of Swiss, Spanish, and German capitalists.

The Spanish capitalist is also exploring the possibility of investing his capital in the exploitation of Philippine natural resources, and expressed his desire to contact Filipino business elements in order to create a new industry in the country.

According to Mr. Muñoz, Spain followed with close interest the recent presidential elections, and that the triumph of President Garcia was well received by the press and official circles of Spain.

The Muñozes plan to stay for one week more in the Philippines before returning to Spain.

THE President also received Sens. Fernando Lopez, Claro M. Recto, and Gil Puyat, who formed a Senate committee created to inform the Chief Executive that the upper legislative chamber was in session.

Past noon, the lower house committee arrived at Malacañang to inform the President that the House of Representatives was already in session. The committee was composed of Reps. Francisco Ortega, Sergio Osmeña, Jr., and Cornelio Villareal.

PRESIDENT Garcia outlined before Congress this afternoon a 16-point “economic self-sufficiency” program with an urgent bid for “broad powers” to protect the people from what he called the “insatiable greed” of profiteers.

The President delivered his first state-of-the-nation address before a joint session of the Fourth Congress highlighting the opening of its first regular session.

He struck the keynote of his 75-minute address with the assertion that the country’s economy today is faced with “serious problems.”

He pointed out that the country is faced with dwindling dollar reserves and fluctuating revenues. However, he exhorted members of Congress “to rely mainly on our resources if we are to proceed with our development.”

The President said “we cannot continue to draw on our international reserve at the present rate.” He appealed for a slackening in the consumption of dollars, cutting down imports for machinery and raw materials, “sacrificing more of our consumer imports in favor of the industrial.”

The President arrived at exactly 5 p.m. at the House session hall, where members of both chambers of Congress had assembled for the joint opening session.

Prolonged applause greeted him as he strode along the center aisle of the hall, shaking hands with congressmen and senators on his way to the rostrum.

Composing the distinguished audience were Armed Forces brass, members of the Supreme Court led by Chief Justice Ricardo Paras, members of the Manila diplomatic corps, department secretaries, and ladies of senators and congressmen.

The proceedings started as soon as President Garcia had taken his seat at the rostrum between Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez and Speaker Daniel E. Romualdez.

The President started reading his address at 5:10 p.m. and finished its last sentence at 6:25 p.m.

After enumerating what he called the achievements of the past Nacionalista administration, the President proposed the following:

1. Intensified rice production estimated to cost ₱20 million to increase the rice yield by six million cavan in the first year alone which, he said, at ₱10 per cavan would represent ₱60 million in returns;
2. Establishment of more commodity exchanges for agricultural crops;
3. Conservation of natural resources;

4. Coordination of the work of the different research and scientific agencies with a view to obtaining maximum results;
5. Re-examination of the present policy of granting tax exemptions to new and necessary industries with a view to correcting certain unsound patterns of investment so far resulting from this incentive;
6. Expansion of exports by opening new markets abroad and improving the quality of local products;
7. Establishment of an economic development bank capitalized from the proceeds of the capital goods from Japanese reparations;
8. Granting tax amnesty to delinquents and setting higher interest rates for savings and time deposits to force out hoarded capital;
9. Creation of a single agency of full-time members to centralize economic controls which are at present handled by the Central Bank, the Department of Commerce, the National Marketing Corporation, and the Export Control Committee;
10. Revamp of the domestic transportation system in order to do away with wasteful practices and conserve fuel and spare parts;
11. Extension of greater incentives and encouragement to small producers on the cottage industry level;
12. Admission of foreign capital on a selective basis to protect legitimate Filipino investors;
13. Modernization of the Armed Forces as far as the resources would permit;
14. Revamp of the educational system to make it give with the Administration's program for economic development;
15. Promotion of tourism and improvement of local facilities to take care of increased passenger and cargo traffic that passes through the country; and
16. Improvement and expansion of social services for the protection and security of workers through mass insurance covering the non-governmental sector against disability, sickness, old age, and death.

The President also sounded a "stern warning" against erring public servants and pledged that his administration would "exert its utmost in combatting all forms of graft and corruption."

In his bid for broad powers, the President said the "rise in prices of prime commodities which appears to be artificial," needs the urgent attention of Congress.

He said he wanted "broad powers" to handle the "situation swiftly and effectively to protect the people from those who would exploit them and who seem motivated by insatiable greed for profit."

January 28.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed Malacañang aides to rush the preparation of administration bills to be submitted during the current session of Congress even as solons led by Speaker Protempore Constancio Castañeda gave assurance of full cooperation in the strengthening of the country's economy.

The President gave the directive during a call made by Speaker Protempore Castañeda and Reps. Vicente Gustilo, Inocencio Ferrer, and Agustin Gatuslao of Negros Occidental; Manuel Enverga of Quezon; and Alberto Ubay of Zamboanga del Norte.

The Chief Executive discussed with his callers several measures he mentioned in his state-of-the-nation message yesterday, one of them being the price control bill which the President said should receive early consideration.

Castañeda informed President Garcia that Congress was waiting for the administration bills so that it could act on them.

THE President this morning received ex-Speaker Jose B. Laurel and Acting Secretary of Foreign Affairs Felixberto M. Serrano behind closed doors, which raised speculation on the assignment President Garcia may give to the former House leader.

Significantly, young Laurel's visit to the President was followed by a call on the President in the evening by former Senator Jose P. Laurel. The former Senator's visit was also held behind closed doors.

Malacañang forwarded this day to Congress a draft of a price control bill which will grant President Garcia powers:

- (1) To set ceiling prices for prime and essential commodities;
- (2) To promulgate rules and regulations which will prevent hoarding injurious speculation, manipulation, and profiteering in the supply, distribution, and movement of prime and essential commodities; and
- (3) To import prime commodities with or without foreign exchange cover;

The bill was taken to Congress by Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo and Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable. The draft was prepared by Secretary Pajo and Judge Salvador Esguerra, Malacañang legal adviser. The bill was the first administration measure to be submitted to the Fourth Congress during its first regular session.

The proposed bill also fixes the penalties for persons or parties found guilty of hoarding prime commodities, injurious speculation, manipulation, and profiteering. It seeks to charge the Executive Secretary with the enforcement of its orders, rules, and regulations. All officers and members of the Constabulary, the local police forces, and the NBI will act as deputies of the Executive Secretary in the enforcement of the proposed bill.

The proposed bill will grant the President the power to fix prices of any goods or commodities when their prices threaten to rise or have risen in a manner inconsistent with the declared national policy. Exception will be in the price of palay, rice and corn which the President can fix only upon the recommendation of the NARIC.

Penalties for violation of the proposed law were fixed by the bill at imprisonment for a period of not less than two months and not more than five years or a fine of not less than ₱2,000 or not more than ₱5,000 or both. Persons, corporations, partnerships, or associations found guilty of any violation against the proposed law will be barred from the business for five years for a first offense and will be permanently barred from the business for a second or succeeding offenses.

Any government employee or official found conniving with any person or party in violating the law will be held criminally liable and will be permanently disqualified from holding public office.

January 29.—AS ANTICIPATED, President Garcia today went to his "hideout" where he plunged into a long conference with Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona on his proposed budget for the next fiscal year.

Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo shuttled between Malacañang and the President's hideout occasionally to consult the Chief Executive on some problems.

In the afternoon, the President returned to Malacañang to preside over the weekly meeting of his Cabinet.

At 7 o'clock, the President motored to the Philippine Columbian Club, where he addressed the members of the Philippine Columbian Association.

President Garcia, a new member of the association, was the guest speaker of the Club's fiftieth anniversary dinner in the evening.

President Garcia this noon was given by Budget Commissioner Dominador R. Aytona a bird's eye view of the form which the 1958-59 budget will take.

During a conference between the President and Aytona, the President laid down the general principle that no increases in salaries and appropriations will be recommended, beginning with the Office of the President.

It was, however, pointed out during the conference that in some mandatory instances, it was necessary to appropriate additional funds for such items as;

(1) Increase in the salaries of enlisted men of the Armed Forces of the Philippines to implement the law approved by the last Congress;

(2) Additional elementary classes which is a mandatory constitutional duty of the state;

(3) Increased health services in the rural areas, as approved by the past Congress, and hospital facilities to provide for one free bed in hospitals for every five thousand population, in accordance with the Rural Health Act and the Hospital Financing Act;

(4) Modernization of the Philippine Navy and the Philippine Airforce in the interest of national security;

(5) ₱20 million for increased rice production, including distribution of insecticides, fertilizers, and selected seeds to small farmers; and

(6) Economic development projects, including the integration of scientific agencies of the government in the interest of increased production.

The President this day issued Proclamation No. 480, declaring February 1 to March 1, 1958, as Philippine Tourist Promotion month.

In his proclamation President Garcia called on the people to organize themselves in civic groups in their respective communities for the location, conservation, and further beautification and development of all scenic, historical, cultural, and other attractions throughout the land, to make them more useful and effective in the promotion of both local and national tourist industry.

The President appealed particularly to organized business, civic service, labor and cultural bodies, educational institutions, both public and private, women's organizations, and all residents to support the tourist, promotion movement.

The President called attention to the wealth of scenic and beauty spots which he said are potential natural assets for the promotion of the tourist trade in the Philippines. The President said that as a result of the survey of the world travel market, the Board of Travel and Tourist Industry was fully convinced of the bright prospects of developing a profitable tourist industry.

The President called on private enterprises and the public in general to assist the government in the "immediate, consistent, and fullest possible exploitation of the country's unlimited wealth of tourist sights and resorts.

Moreover, the President issued Proclamation No. 481, declaring the period from February 16 to 22, 1958, as World Brotherhood Week.

The President in his proclamation enjoined all the people, regardless of race, color, creed, or station in life to observe the week by appropriate ceremonies, public discussions, and programs truly reflective of the common will to nourish the spirit of universal good will, understanding, and cooperation so essential to the attainment of everlasting peace.

The President said that the period is being celebrated in many countries of Asia, North America, Europe, and other regions for the 24th successive year.

The President called attention to the development of the ICBM and rockets as the latest weapons of war and stressed the imperative need of bringing about world-wide disarmament, conciliation, and cooperation among mankind as brothers under the fatherhood of God in order to avert universal suicide.

The President declared that the Filipino people have a definite stake for survival, progress, and moral fulfillment in the pursuit and preservation of peace as envisioned by the movement for world brotherhood

President Garcia at the Cabinet meeting this evening gave the go-signal to the NAMARCO for the procurement of 50,000 metric tons of rice from a Hongkong firm on the copra-rice barter basis.

The President at the Cabinet meeting also decided to have negotiations for the projected importation of 100,000 metric tons of rice from the United States followed through in-order to fill the shortage of this staple commodity in this, country which had been estimated at from 120,000 to 150,000 metric tons for the next crop year.

The Cabinet at a previous meeting had already approved the importation of rice from Hongkong. It was discussed again this evening when the case was resubmitted by the NAMARCO board of directors. The President gave final approval to the deal on the assurance by Commerce Secretary Pedro Hernaez, NAMARCO board chairman, that the Hongkong rice would start arriving in Manila about the middle of next month.

The Cabinet spent some time discussing other offers made by foreign rice suppliers. The President instructed Secretary Hemaiez to submit complete data on these foreign offers for future discussion by the Cabinet in case negotiations for the importation of 100,000 metric tons from the United States did not come through.

The Cabinet also decided to enjoin government offices to purchase smaller, cheaper, and more economical cars for the use of its officials. This action was taken in the course of discussions on a request filed by the city engineer's office of Cebu City for permission to purchase two automobiles at ₱10,500 each for the use of its public highways division.

The request had been referred to the Cabinet in view of its policy not to allow the purchase of government cars at prices more than ₱10,000 each. The Cabinet decided to turn down the request. He urged government officials to purchase smaller and cheaper cars available in the local market.

The Cabinet at its meeting which lasted from 4 to 7 p.m., also discussed salient features of the forthcoming budgetary message of the President to Congress.

January 30.—A COMPLAINT against alleged anomalous acts committed by Santiago Perez, a former member of the Bureau of Lands, while stationed at Tabuk, Kalinga, Mountain Province, was filed this day before President Garcia by Gov. Bado Dangwa.

Perez allegedly acquired big tracts of public agricultural lands using fictitious names in violation of an administrative order, according to Dangwa.

The President directed Assistant Executive Secretary Sofronio Quimson to look into the matter and submit his findings as soon as possible. The provincial executive of Mountain Province was accompanied by Reps Luis Hora and Ramon Mitra of the same province.

The President also received Gov. Leon Fernandez of Sulu, who brought to the attention of the Chief Executive the request of Muslims for dollars to be used in their pilgrimage to Mecca. Fernandez said about 400 Muslims desired to go on a pilgrimage this year and needed about $80,000 for the trip. The matter will be studied carefully by the President in view of the austerity program.

Other callers of the President included Reps. Nicanor Yñiguez of Leyte, Manuel Zosa of Cebu, Jose B. Legaspi of Aklan, and Lamberto Macias of Negros Oriental; Govs. Juan Alberto of Catanduanes, Diego Ty Deling of Misamis Oriental, Leon Guinto, Sr., of Quezon, Francisco Infantado of Mindoro Oriental, and Jesus Almero of Masbate; and Ambassador Roberto Regala who had just arrived from his post in Rome for consultations.

AFTER receiving a few callers this morning, President Garcia motored to his hideout in Quezon City to resume his conference with Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona on the proposed budget for the next fiscal year.

January 31.— PRESIDENT Garcia explored this morning the possibilities of obtaining American aid for the food production campaign of his administration at a conference with Paul Summers, International Cooperation Administration director in the Philippines.

The President discussed with Summers the tie-up between the exploitation of the nickel resources in Nonoc, Island, Surigao, and the integration of the steel industry in view of a new American process where iron ore extracted from nickel can be processed and then converted into low class steel.

The President requested the aid of the ICA in boosting the rice production in the country, specifically in the construction of additional irrigation system and installation of pumps to irrigate arid ricelands.

He also discussed with Summers the procurement of better seeds adaptable to Philippine conditions, fertilizers, and insecticides. As regards insecticides he said he was planning to set up a plant in the Philippines to save dollars. He also bared his plan to boost the production of better seeds in the Philippines.

The President told Summers that if the Philippines could increase its rice production to at least 50 cavanes a hectare, we would not need to import rice

Summers informed the President that American and Japanese firms are interested in bidding for the exploitation of the local nickel resources.

The President inquired about the American policy of stockpiling chromite in order to help the local industry.

AT another conference with Ernesto Rufino, Alex Adamson, and Carlos Palanca Jr., the President said he was receptive to a plan to establish a paper and pulp mill in Bataan.

The proposed Bataan paper and pulp mill will utilize buho, a kind of bamboo. The company has a capital of ₱15 million subscribed by Filipinos.

However, the dollar requirements for the purchase of machinery is estimated to amount to about ₱5 million. The incorporators of the Bataan mill assured the President that the establishment of the mill would mean a savings of approximately ₱14.3 million worth of dollar exchange yearly, as it would be able to manufacture first class quality paper like bond and book paper.

Aside from taxes which it would pay the government, the proposed mill would create job opportunities to at least 600 persons in its mill construction and operation, as well as direct labor and raw material payroll of about ₱2.2 million a year.

PRESIDENT Garcia received this morning members of the Supreme Council of the Knights of Rizal who informed him that the council had decided to award him the Grand Cross, the highest degree of the order.

The degree was being conferred on the President in view of his “outstanding service to the country,” according to H. B. Reyes, supreme commander of the order.

Other members of the council who saw the President were Vicente P. Arenas, Teodoro Evangelista, Dr. Herminio Velarde, Sixto Y. Orosa, Hilarion T. Feliciano, Luis Montilla, Micheal Goldenberg, Eufonio M. Alip. Juan F. Nakpil, and Francisco Zamora.

Other presidential callers this morning included Manuel Nieto, Jr., Games and Amusement chairman; Henry Grady Moore and C. W. MacElven, general manager and assistant general manager, respectively, of the Philippines regional office of the United States Veterans Administration; Carlos Maria Da Luz Nunez, Portuguese vice-consul in the Philippines; Felieiano Leviste, Batangas governor; Conrado Sevilla, PNB vice-president; and Roberto Benedicto.

AT his regular weekly press conference in the afternoon, the President said he was ready to call off the controversial copra-rice deal with a Hongkong firm if he finds it anomalous.

He followed up his threat to scrap the transaction with an announcement that he would conduct a personal inquiry into the supposed irregularities in the barter transaction.

He made the announcement shortly after receiving a Senate resolution shifting “full responsibility” for the deal to the Chief Executive.

He said he was placing under advisement the Senate resolution calling for suspension of the trip to Hongkong of a three-man committee to supervise the implementation of the deal. He pointed out that he would look into the charges of irregularities between tomorrow and Monday.

“If I find the contract irregular,” the President said, “I will call it off,” indicating at the same time that he will conduct private inquiries into the transaction to find out if any irregularities were committed in pushing it through.

The President said he may ask Sen. Mariano Jesus Cuenco, chairman of the Senate Blue Ribbon Committee, to submit to him the facts he has regarding the transaction. He said he was ready to receive Sen. Cuenco and discuss with him the facts of the disputed transaction.

The President told newsmen that if the rice would come from communist sources, he would abrogate the contract. But he took occasion to defend the integrity of the contract, saying that on the facts submitted to the Cabinet by Commerce Secretary Pedro C. Hernaez, he did not find any irregularity.

The President reiterated that the Cabinet decision was “the best under the circumstances” and that he was not aware of any dishonesty in the transaction.

He denied that the Senate had started an inquiry into the barter deal. He said that the Senate had merely appraised him of alleged irregularities in the transaction.

AT 6 p.m. the President and the First Lady motored to the St. Scholastica College to attend the piano concert of the famous Filipino pianist, Nena del Rosario. They were fetched from Malacañang by Impresario Alfredo Lorenzo.

President's Month in Review: February 1-14, 1958

OFFICIAL MONTH IN REVIEW

February 1.—PRESIDENT Garcia today studied a report on the steps to be taken to coordinate the work of different research and scientific agencies of the government so that they could be utilized to aid in increased production as an integral part of the economic development program.

The President also studied probable nominees to the Philippine Nuclear Energy Commission so that this scientific body could start functioning and play its role in the country's development.

A Malacañang spokesman said that the President would announce soon the appointment of a special assistant to the President for science coordination and the commissioners of the Philippine Nuclear Energy Commission to hasten the growth of scientific research and apply it to the development of the country's agriculture and industry.

In his state-of-the-nation message the President pointed out that intensive and extensive scientific research was a necessary hand-maiden of both the utilization and conservation of the country's natural resources, and urged Congress to provide appropriations for scientific research.

The Chief Executive directed that a bill be drafted immediately to create an office of science coordination. This office is expected to draft plans to organize an integrated and coordinated national scientific effort.

To make the work of the different scientific agencies of the government more effective, the proposed office will coordinate the activities of these agencies to bring about the maximum utilization of science in the country's economic development.

This proposed office will initiate the formulation of plans to promote science and make arrangements for aid and exchange of information between local and foreign sources.

The report recommended the appointment of a special assistant to the President for science coordination who will head the proposed office. It further recommended the amendment of Republic Act No. 1606, creating the National Science Board, to make the board members serve on a full time basis. The amendment will seek the establishment of an agricultural research center.

The report also recommended the amendment of Republic Act No. 1815, creating the Philippine Nuclear Energy Commission and converting the Institute of Science and Technology into an office of standards and documentation.

THE President spent the whole morning in his hideout in Quezon City.

It was learned that the President went to his weekend hideout to be able to go over pending state papers.

He had been behind in his schedule on vital state papers, among which were petitions of doomed prisoners for executive clemency.

The President left Malacañang this morning shortly after a brief conference with Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo, who took over control of Malacañang while the President was out of the Palace.

Secretary Pajo inducted former Rep. Esteban Bernido as acting governor of Bohol. He replaced Pajo as provincial executive of President Garcia's own province.

Bernido was sworn in before a large crowd of Boholanos at the new executive secretary's office.

In the afternoon, the President received Kenichiro Yoshida, chief of the reparations division of the Gaimusho, the Japanese foreign affairs office, following his arrival. The Japanese official was accompanied by Morio Yukawa, Japanese ambassador to the Philippines.

IN the evening, the President held a two-hour conference with his financial advisers during which they discussed in general terms the fiscal policy of the Administration to be embodied in the budget message to Congress. With the President were Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno, Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, Eduardo Romualdez, chairman of the Rehabilitation Finance Corporation, and Secretary of Finance Jaime Hernandez.

February 2.—THE President spent a quiet Sunday with members of his family in his hideout somewhere at the suburbs, where he had retired the night before to work on his budget message to Congress. He will deliver the message next week. He also worked on some pending papers he had taken along with him from Malacañang.

The President started the day by hearing mass before an improvised altar in his hideout. With him at the mass were Mrs. Garcia, his daughter, Linda, and son-in-law, Fernando Campos.

Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas and Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff, called early at the presidential hideout and talked briefly with the President after the mass.

After breakfast, the President read the Sunday papers. Then he repaired to a private study where he worked on his budget message and on pending papers.

The President had lunch with members of his family about 1 p.m. After a brief rest, he resumed working on state papers.

February 3.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning obtained a three-day grace for the Santol-Sociogo tenants facing ejection, after a conference with J. Antonio Araneta, representing the Gregorio Araneta, Inc., manager of the estate, and Sen. Alejo Mabanag and Lucio A. Lindain, counsels for the tenants.

The President obtained the conformity of Araneta after the tenants had informed him that they were willing to pay the difference of ₱2.50 per square meter for the land which had been acquired through expropriation.

The Tuason family, owners of the Santol-Sociogo Estate, fixed the price at ₱20 a square meter, but the Philippine Homesite and Housing Corporation is only willing to buy the 18-hectare estate at ₱17.50 a square meter.

PHHC General Manager Vicente Y. Orosa informed the President in a telephone conversation that one-half of the estate was not occupied, as it needed filling up, and this extra expense would raise the value of the land beyond the paying capacity of the tenants.

However, President Garcia gave Orosa three days to study the matter and report to him. He also directed that Orosa contact the Government Service Insurance System for a loan to be used for the purchase of the estate in case the additional expense was not too much.

The estate, which is located along Santa Mesa Boulevard, has about 500 tenants. It was the subject of expropriation proceedings instituted by the Government Corporate Counsel on behalf of the PHHC, in pursuance of a written directive from the late President Magsaysay.

The case was dismissed by the Court of First Instance of Quezon City and the owner secured orders from the same court for the demolition of the houses in the area.

The President received this morning Judge Gavino Abaya, Rev. Fr. Wilfredo Rojo, rector of San Beda College, Archbishop Julio Rosales of Cebu, and Bishop Manuel Mascariñas of Bohol.

The President also received film producers who informed him that the Asian Film Festival would be held in Manila in April. Those who saw the President were Manuel de Leon of LVN, Mrs. Jose O. Vera and Dr. Jose Perez of Sampaguita Pictures, and Ricardo Balatbat of Premiere Productions.

THE President said today that plans for the establishment of a government clearing house for cottage industry products are now underway.

The President made this statement before a group of physically handicapped and blind persons who called at Malacañang in connection with the "Aid to the Blind and Other Physically Handicapped Week" celebration from February 3 to 10.

The President emphasized that among the aims of the project were to encourage home industries, ease unemployment, and increase the country's international reserve.

In the course of the call Edermundo Lihguete, a 24-year-old cripple, handed a charcoal sketch of the President which took him three days to draw.

The group was headed by Miss Lili Pablo, president of the Philippine Association of Social Workers. Also present were PASW Board Members Elias Ablaza and Soledad Bermejo. The group was accompanied to Malacañang by Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor.

Juan T. David, president of the Association of Fishpond Owners and Leasees of the Philippines, accompanied members of the organization who consulted the Chief Executive on problems confronting the fishing industry.

The President received callers until 2:10 p.m.

PRESIDENT Garcia last night junked the $6 million rice-copra barter transaction after the Hongkong rice supplier had unexpectedly withdrawn his offer to ship the cereal to the Philippines at $120 per metric ton.

As a result of this development, the President cancelled the trip of a four-man committee to the crown colony which he had earlier approved. The group was scheduled to leave this evening.

Malacañang was reported to have been surprised by the unexpected turn of events. A Palace spokesman said President Garcia received a cable from acting Consul General Eduardo Rosal in Hongkong reporting that the Chinese firm, Nam. Chiao Hong, had backed out of the deal.

The President, after receiving Rosal's cable from the foreign office, immediately went into a huddle with Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo.

It was not known what transpired at their meeting, but the President minutes later directed acting Secretary Felixberto Serrano to contact Ambassador Mariano Ezpeleta in-Saigon to start government-to-government negotiations for the barter of Philippine copra with Vietnam rice.

Malacañang said that Ezpeleta had assured Serrano that Vietnam had surplus rice, which could be bartered with Philippine copra, sufficient to fill local needs.

February 4.—THIS-morning the President received from Philippine, Ambassador to Spain Manuel Nieto, Sr., a battle flaglet belonging to General Emilio Aguinaldo during the revolution.

The battle flaglet, a white cotton cloth, 40 by 41 cms, bearing an incscription LMATE with religious designs, was handed in Madrid to Ambassador Nieto by Luis de Zunsuneque, a Barcelona hotel owner. It was given to Zunsuneque by the son of former Spanish Governor General Camilo de Polavieja, who took it to Spain following the flaglet's capture in Cavite during the height of the Philippine Revolution in 1898.

The flaglet was handed to the Chief Executive after a breakfast which the President gave for Julio Muñoz, a prominent Spanish financier who is touring the Orient.

Present at the breakfast were Acting Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo, Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno, Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, RFC Chairman Eduardo Z. Romualdez, Ambassador Manuel Nieto, Philippine Bankers Association President Alfonso Calalang, Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, GAB Commissioner Manuel Nieto, Jr., Natalio Balboa, Lorenzo Pastor, and Malacañang Protocol Officer Manuel G. Zamora. Spanish Ambassador Francisco Javier Conde accompanied Muñoz to Malacañang.

PRESIDENT Garcia today authorized a committee of three to proceed to Hongkong not to consummate the copra-rice barter but with specific instructions to investigate the following developments regarding the barter:

- (1) A renewal of the offer of the Chinese trader in Hongkong of his previous offer which had been reported yesterday evening as having been withdrawn;
- (2) That the rice to be bartered with Philippine copra would come from a non-communist country;
- (3) That the first 10,000 metric tons would be delivered in February and the remaining rice every month thereafter; and
- (4) That the terms of the contract previously agreed upon will be the same.

The President emphasized the fact that the mission of the committee in going to Hongkong was merely to check on these details. The President said that, if there would be any contract at all to be signed, the signing should be done in Manila.

A Malacañang spokesman said that the President was reiterating his previous statement that, if the President find any anomaly in connection with the deal, the transaction would be cancelled.

The President appointed Consul General Eduardo Rosal to Hongkong to be the fourth member of the committee who will help the committee in its investigation.

The President said that his directive to Ambassador Mariano Ezpeleta in Saigon, Vietnam, to explore the possibility of bringing in 50,000 metric tons of rice from Saigon to be bartered with copra on a government-to-government level would go on. The President said this step was necessary in order to insure that enough stocks of rice would be made available for the Philippines.

The President gave the authority for the committee to leave for Hongkong upon receiving this noon fresh reports from Commerce Secretary Pedro Hernaez to the effect that the Hongkong dealer's representative in Manila had made representations for the renewal of the offer of his firm to proceed with the copra-rice barter, and had assured him that the rice would come from a non-communist country.

When it had been reported last evening by Consul General Rosal in Hongkong that Lee Bon Kim, manager of the Nam Chiao Hong firm, had withdrawn his offer, the President had stopped the committee from proceeding on its trip.

However, in view of fresh reports from Secretary Hernaez and because of the President's desire to bring in at the earliest possible time the needed rice, for the Philippines, he authorized the committee to proceed on its trip to Hongkong to investigate the facts as brought to the President's attention.

Some members of Congress assured President Garcia today of a speedy approval of the price control measure submitted by Malacañang in order to bring down the high price of rice and other essentials even as the Chief Executive received reports that prices in several provinces have been brought down.

At an impromptu caucus held at the Malacañang study room, President Garcia expressed his determination to concentrate his efforts on the rice production campaign. Boosting the rice production would bring down not only the price of rice but also that of other prime commodities, the President said.

Congressmen present at the caucus stated that the rice shortage was not so acute as believed and blamed alien manipulators for the artificial shortage and spiralling prices.

Sen. Eulogio Balao informed the President that FACOMA warehouses in the northern region of Luzon were bulging with rice while Rep. Delfin Alonzo of Isabela urged the President to direct the farmers' cooperative association to release its rice for sale to the public.

Reps. Ramon Durano and Manuel Zosa of Cebu urged that Cebu starch factories should refrain from buying corn during the period of scarcity so that the corn used in starch making could be sold for human consumption.

Durano also recommended that NARIC directors should not be rice growers in order to erase the impression that they were protecting the producers.

Zosa assured the President of the good and sincere cooperation of the Lower House in his program of government, and added that the price control bill should contain a provision giving the President the power to commandeer rice and other essentials, and sell them to the public at government prices.

The conferees also discussed the acquisition of irrigation pumps from the Japanese reparations in order to boost local rice production as well as the need for a bigger appropriation for fertilizers.

President Garcia asked Congress members to decide on a financing plan for rice producers similar to that extended by the Philippine National Bank to the sugar planters.

The President assured those present that, as soon as Congress appoint all its officials, he would exchange views with the Council of Leaders regarding the composition of his Cabinet.

In this respect, Rep. Nicanor Yñiguez, acting as spokesman of Leyte congressmen, recommended the appointment of Leyte Gov. Bernardo Torres to the Cabinet.

During the caucus President Garcia directed that illegal construction of dikes by fishpond owners of Pampanga and Bulacan be stopped and the immediate creation of a commission to study the problem posed by the construction of dikes which were closing up streams in two provinces.

Those present at the impromptu caucus were Sens. Eulogio Balao and Rogelio de la Rosa; and Reps. Nicanor Yñiguez of Leyte; Ramon Durano, Manuel Zosa, and Maximino Noel of Cebu; Tobias Former of Antique; Benjamin Ligot of Cagayan; Delfin Albano of Isabela; Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan; Godofredo Reyes and Faustino Tobia of Ilocos Sur; and Pedro Venida of Camarines Norte.

Other presidential callers were Alan Lau, a Portuguese businessman from Hongkong who offered to sell Saigon rice to the government; Reps. Luciano Millan of Pangasinan and Salipada Pendatun of Cotabato; Sen. Domocao Alonto; and former Sen. Camilo Osias.

THE President this day appointed Marcelino E. Calinawan, Jr., as a special assistant to the President for science coordination.

A Malacañang spokesman said that Calinawan was tendering his resignation from the Navy of which he is a lieutenant commander, in order that he could dedicate his full time to his new job in preparation for the creation of an Office of Science Coordination for which a bill will be submitted to Congress.

Calinawan's appointment was the first step to be taken by the President in coordinating the work of different research and scientific agencies of the government so that they could be utilized to aid in increased production as an integral part of the economic development program.

President Garcia also signed today a proclamation declaring the last seven days of February of every year as "Philippine Industry and NEPA Week" in recognition of the long and unselfish services of the National Economic Protectionism Association in the promotion of local products.

IN the afternoon the President received Jan Th. M. Randag, director of Unilever (Rotterdam, Netherlands), considered the biggest buyer of copra export of the Philippines.

Mr. Randag called to say goodbye prior to his return to the Netherlands after a six-day survey tour in this country. He was accompanied to Malacañang by Dr. Jan M. Goudswaard, president of the Philippine Refining Company, local subsidiary of Unilever, and Benjamin Salvosa, PHILCOA administrator.

Unilever purchases some 400,000 tons of Philippine copra yearly, which is about 40 per cent of the nation's annual export. The Philippine Refining Company also exports to the United States an estimated 20 per cent of Philippine coconut oil exports.

About 6 p.m., the President conferred with Assistant Executive Secretary Nicanor Jimenez, who consulted him on various pending matters. Also, at the conference which lasted about 45 minutes was Capt. Francisco Calinawan, Malacañang technical assistant.

Following the conference, the President received several callers including Acting Mayor Bartolome Hernandez, Jr., and Councilor Teodulfo Mercado of Padada, Davao, who requested aid for the construction of a municipal building and feeder road in their municipality.

February 5.—PRESIDENT Garcia today told members of the Tax Advisory Board that in his opinion the tax measures to be recommended by the Board: (1) should not carry additional burden to the average taxpayer; and that (2) such measures should be intended to support new essential public services.

The President gave his opinion to the Tax Advisory Board members as he discussed with them the general principles in carrying into effect the tax structure of the country based on the principle of ability to pay as enunciated by the Chief Executive in his state-of-the-nation message.

During the discussion, the President was informed by the board members that since 1954 the revenue collection agencies of the government had substantially increased the amount of collections. However the board members added that these increased collections were enough only for the country's present needs and could not sustain new and essential public services demanded by the growing needs of the country's increasing population.

The President was told that even if the work on intensified revenue collection would continue, this would not be enough to cope with the financial requirements of new additional public services.

However, the President stressed to the board to prepare measures to further intensify tax collections and prevent tax evasion so as to increase further government revenues.

The general discussion on proposed tax measures was led by Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, chairman of the board. Other board members present were Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, Central Bank Governor Revenue Commissioner Jose Arañas, Customs Commissioner Eleuterio Capas, Philippine Bankers Association President Alfonso Calalang, and Elias Vega, board secretary. Also present was Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison.

The discussion started at about 10 a.m. and lasted through luncheon, ending at 2 p.m. at the President's hideout. The conferees could not finish the discussion and the President said he would meet them again in a day or two.

The Chief Executive said he would take up tariff matters in his next meeting with the Board.

THE Cabinet at its meeting today approved the procurement this year of $35,102 million worth of agricultural commodities from the United States under U. S. Public Law 480.

Procurement had been proposed by the National Economic Council to make up for the expected shortages of the local supply of these commodities this year. The commodities include rice, corn, cotton, skimmed milk, inedible tallow, and wheat grain.

Based on the study of the technical staff of the NEC, the proposed procurement was broken down as follows: Rice, 100,000 metric tons; yellow corn, 15,000 metric tons; white corn, 15,000 metric tons; cotton, 38,500 bales; skimmed milk, 30 million pounds; inedible tallow, 16 million pounds; and wheat grain, 34,000 long tons.

The Cabinet at its meeting this afternoon also:

1. Instructed Acting Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano to follow up negotiations for the procurement of rice from the United States.
2. Granted permission to NBI Director Jose Lukban to undergo three-month training and observion in advanced police methods in New Scotland Yard, United Kingdom, under the Colombo Plan;
3. Instructed NARIC and PNB officials to get together and agree on a financial arrangements for the purchase by the NARIC of all rice stocks in FACOMA bodegas to stabilize prices of this commodity; and
4. Approved plans for the holding of an Agricultural Extension training center to be conducted at the U. P. College of Agriculture in Los Baños, Laguna, this coming summer without expense to the Philippine Government which will be the host country.

The procurement of corn under U. S. Public Act 480 had been requested by the NARIC in view of the reported shortage in the cereal, not only for human consumption but also for the use in the manufacture of foods. The raw cotton will be in addition to the about $6 million worth requested for procurement under the NEC-ICA program.

Acting NEC Presiding Officer Eduardo Romualdez who presented the procurement-proposal to the Cabinet, explained that the 30 million pounds of skimmed milk would meet the requirements of the five milk plants, four of which are now in operation. The quantity, of tallow to be procured is in accordance with estimates of the CB and the NEC staff of the requirements of the six manufacturing companies. The wheat grain is intended to meet one-half of the requirements of the Republic Flour Mills, Inc., Romualdez reported.

The Cabinet meeting was devoted mainly to the discussion of the possibility of procuring rice from various countries, either on a barter basis or direct purchase on a government-to-government level, to insure an adequate supply of this staple commodity in view of the expected shortages this year due to droughts and other natural calamities.

Secretary Serrano reported that on instructions from the President, he had cabled the Philippine embassy in Vietnam to explore the possibility of obtaining rice in that country and Cambodia. According to Serrano, the Philippine embassy had wired back stating that 30,000 metric tons could be procured from Vietnam and 10,000 metric tons from Cambodia. The Philippine ambassador in Vietnam, however, had reported that Vietnam did not need

Philippine copra so the discussion at the Cabinet meeting was devoted to the feasibility of procuring Vietnamese rice through triangular barter or direct purchase.

Romualdez pointed out that the Philippines was now in a position to use dollars in the direct purchase of rice owing to improved conditions of the nation's reserves.

The Cabinet also discussed details of the projected importation of 100,000 metric tons of rice from the United States. The body could not, however, arrive at a concrete decision on the matter until it received the report from the Philippine embassy in Washington that the desired quantity of the cereal would be available for the Philippines.

In the course of the discussion, Commerce Secretary Pedro Hernaez reported that the committee charged with the responsibility of following up negotiations for the procurement of rice from a Hongkong firm had already left for the crown colony this noon. Among the instructions of the committee was to verify whether the 50,000 metric tons of rice came from Red China and to report its findings to Manila as soon as possible.

Previously, the President had announced that the deal would be called off if the rice would be coming from the China mainland. However, Secretary Hernaez informed the Cabinet this afternoon that he had received assurances that the cereal would be supplied directly from Thailand although negotiations were being made through the Hongkong firm.

The Philippine consul general in Hongkong, who had been instructed by the President to conduct his own inquiries on the transaction, was made a fourth member of the committee.

Regarding the purchase by the NARIC of all available rice stocks now stored in FACOMA bodegas to stabilize prices, Capt. Ernesto Jimenez, ACCFA administrator, who had been summoned to this afternoon's Cabinet meeting, informed the Cabinet that the ACCFA was willing to sell all the FACOMA stocks at average procurement costs.

The meeting lasted from 4 to 7 p.m. It was presided by Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason. The President did not attend the meeting, as he was busy with his budget message due for submission to Congress on Monday, February 10.

February 6.—OBVIOUSLY feeling more at home in his new residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City, than in Malacañang, President Garcia spent the third consecutive day at his house, commonly referred to as his "hideout."

He resumed his conference with Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona at 9 o'clock this morning regarding the budget message to be submitted to Congress next week. After his conference with Aytona, the President received the members of the Tax Advisory Board with whom he discussed proposals to increase taxes in order to avert an expected deficit in the 1959 budget. The conference started at 11 a.m. and ended at 4 p.m. It was one of the longest presidential conferences on record.

The President and the Tax Advisory Board had divergent views on the method of hiking government revenues. The President believed that intensified tax collection would solve the problem of insufficient government income, while the board is of the opinion that this step alone cannot meet an expected deficit in the new budget.

Present at the conference were Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, CB Governor Miguel Cuaderno, Internal Revenue Commissioner Jose Arañas, Customs Commissioner Eleuterio Capapas, Budget Commissioner Aytona, Alfonso Calalang, president of the Bankers Association, and Elias Vega, board secretary.

After his conference with members of the board, the President relaxed.

During the conference, the First Lady, his daughter Linda, and son-in-law, Fernando Campos, came to join the President at luncheon.

EXECUTIVE Secretary Juan Pajo took steps to implement President Garcia's policy of advancing the agricultural and industrial development of the country through scientific research. He called some of the nation's top scientists to a conference in Malacañang this afternoon to discuss ways of increasing production through coordinated scientific effort. At the conference held at Malacañang's council of state room, Secretary Pajo told the scientists of the President's desire to harness the collective technical know-how available in this country towards attaining self-sufficiency in essential items, particularly food, clothing, and shelter.

The conferees suggested that the President issue a proclamation declaring a National Science Week to instill science consciousness among the people so that they might be more in a position to cooperate effectively in the general effort. This was agreed upon as an initial step toward enlisting national support and cooperation to the Administration's program of scientific and industrial research.

Other matters agreed upon at the conference were:

- (1) That a committee be formed to take charge of the proper celebration of the proposed National Science Week;
- (2) That the Week be proclaimed from March 24 to 29 this year; and
- (3) That all government offices and agencies, as well as private organizations, be called upon to cooperate in the proper observance of the Week.

The conferees agreed to meet again on February 11 to approve the final draft of the proposed proclamation.

Present at the conference presided by Secretary Pajo this afternoon were Comdr. Marcelino Calinawan, Malacañang technical assistant on science; Dr. Eduardo Quisumbing, National Museum director; Dr. Anastacio L. Teodoro, FEU Institute of Technology; Director Luis Aguilar, U. P. Forest Products Research Institute; Dr. Deogracias Villadolid, Araneta University; Dr. Manuel Roxas, Rose Packing Corp.; Dr. Patrocinio Valenzuela. U. P.;

Col. Florencio A. Medina, AFP; Dean Crisostomo Ortigas, U.P. College of Engineering; Dr. Juan Salcedo, U.P. Graduate School; Dr. Joaquin Maraño, Institute of Science and Technology director; Dr. Manuel Arguelles, National Science Board; and Dr. Jose J. Mirasol, Sr., Philippine Sugar Association.

President Garcia today issued an executive order regulating the registration and assignment of motor vehicle license plates to Philippine government officials and accredited representatives of foreign states.

The executive order grants only one low plate number each to the President of the Philippines, the Vice-President, the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, but additional plate numbers would be allowed these officials, bearing the letters a, b, c, and so on.

Senators and representatives are allowed only two sets of plate numbers, one for the official car and another one for an additional car, instead of three, four, or five additional numbers for each members of Congress.

The executive order eliminates "SPL" (Special) used in plate numbers of diplomatic and consular officials, and replaces it with "CM" for chief of mission, "CD" for Corps Diplomatique, "UN" for United Nations, and "CC" for consular corps. This change was recommended by Acting Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano.

The President issued another proclamation declaring Wednesday, February 19, 1958, as a special public holiday in Quezon province to commemorate the birthday of the late Aurora Aragon-Quezon, the famous First Lady. The proclamation was issued on the petition of leaders and prominent residents of the province.

The President today forwarded to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the reappointment of the following members of the Board of Review for Moving Pictures:

Teodoro F. Valencia, Mrs. Trinidad F. Legarda, Mrs. Asuncion A. Asistio, Mrs Angelica Belarmino, Mabini R, Centeno, Mrs. Lourdes M. Garcia, Jose L. Guevara, Capt. Francisco Calinawan, Mrs. Dolores P. Liveste, Mrs. Pilar Hidalgo Lim, Mrs. Remedios O. Lim. Alfredo Lozano, Limneo S. Platon, Mrs. Carmen E. Vasquez, and Mrs. Adelaida R. Magsaysay.

February 7.—PRESIDENT Garcia returned to Malacañang shortly before nightfall today to preside over his weekly press conference.

The President, appeared healthy despite reports he had plunged into nightlong studies of the proposed budget for the next fiscal year in his new residence on Bohol Ayenue, Quezon City.

The President found a usually big crowd at his press conference at the state dining room, where newsmen were outnumbered by public relations counsellors and Palace hangers-on

He was swamped with questions on the controversial copra-rice barter deal and showed his inclination to push it through in spite of a threat by the Senate Blue Ribbon committee to investigate the transaction.

President Garcia today dismissed as “nothing much” the projected Senate Blue Ribbon Committee investigation of the $6 million rice-copra barter with Hongkong firm and said he was “pushing the deal through.”

He told a press conference at Malacañang that he “will not submit to the psychological warfare of rice manipulators and profiteers.”

The Blue Ribbon Committee announced today that it would start its official probe of the barter deal sometime next week.

Sen. Alejo Mabanag, committee vice-chairman, made the announcement. He said no definite date yet has been decided.

At the same time Commerce Secretary Pedro C. Hernaez said he welcomed the investigation but warned that the investigating body “should not interfere in the delivery of the staple which is badly needed by the people.”

Hernaez reported that the Philippine team now in Hongkong and headed by Ramon Lacson was proceeding shortly to Bangkok, Thailand, to consummate the purchase of rice.

The President recalled that the price of rice has gone down considerably since the government announced its plan of importing rice to fill an expected shortage of the cereal.

At the same time, the President said, “there was nothing much” to the charges lodged by the Senate on the regularity of the barter transaction.

The President said under the separation of powers, the Senate could not investigate a member of the Cabinet.

However, he said, “its up to Commerce Secretary Hernaez” to submit or not to the Senate Blue Ribbon Committee inquiry.

During the press conference the President:

1. Reiterated his policy against trading with Communist China;
2. Expressed optimism the Philippines would be able to swing negotiations for the importation of 100,000 metric tons of United States rice under a special American law; and

3. Defended the reappointment in 1956 of Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno by the late President Magsaysay for another six years.

The President told newsmen he was against opening trade relations with Communist China.

He said the Philippines may profit a few million pesos from the trade, but would spend several millions to suppress communist subversion in the country.

The President pointed out that trade relations with communist countries may eventually abet communist infiltration into the Philippines.

He underscored the fact that he was ready to rescind the controversial copra-rice barter deal with a Hongkong firm if the cereal came from communist sources.

The President said he received another cable from Consul General Eduardo Rosal in Hongkong informing him that Nam Chiao Hong, the rice supplier, would send Thailand rice to the Philippines.

President Garcia admitted that the Hongkong trader had previously stockpiled communist-grown rice in Canton for delivery to the Philippines.

AFTER the press conference, the President inducted the officers of the Suburban Press Club and later the officers of the Visayan Writers' Club.

The President, after inducting the officers of the Suburban Press Club and Visayan Writers' Club, was immediately "cornered" by Palace hangers-on for some patronage.

After almost an hour with the newsmen, the President retired to the music room, where he was scheduled to receive Sen. Pedro Sabido and Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson.

February 8.—PRESIDENT Garcia congratulated the delegates to the constitutional convention for the "monumental work" they had achieved in drafting the fundamental law of the land, which, he said, had enhanced the prestige of the Philippines in the eyes of the nations of the world.

The occasion was the cocktail party the President gave at Malacañang this afternoon in honor of the delegates on the 23rd anniversary of Constitution Day. He said that the Philippine Constitution speaks well of the "high juristic knowledge of those who had taken part in its formulation."

In brief remarks before the delegates gathered at Malacañang's ceremonial hall, the President said that meeting the authors of "that great document" gave him moral courage in pushing through the program of democratic government as in the Constitution.

Calling the Constitution a "most valuable heritage of the nation," the President recalled he had no part in its formulation. According to him, the only contribution he had was in obtaining the almost unanimous vote of ratification of the people of Bohol of which he was then governor.

Sen. Claro M. Recto, president of the constitutional convention, who, responded on behalf of the delegates, thanked the President for having invited them to Malacañang. Speaking in Tagalog, Sen. Recto wished the President "the strength of mind and heart so that you may succeed in the next four years of your administration in fulfilling the high hopes of our country as embodied in the preamble of the Constitution," Sen. Recto concluded his response by reciting in the national language the preamble.

AFTER the cocktails, the President conferred with Acting Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, who informed him on the latest developments of the negotiations for the procurement of rice from Thailand on the coprarice barter basis. Serrano said that according to report from the consulate general in Hongkong, the committee sent there to negotiate was still in the Crown Colony awaiting definite word from Thailand whether there was rice available for the Philippines.

Serrano said that the availability of rice in Thailand would determine whether the committee would proceed to that country to follow up negotiations. Otherwise, the committee would return to the Philippines. Final word on the matter will probably be received from the committee tomorrow, Serrano added.

The President "also conferred with Speaker Protempore Constancio Castañeda, who reported on the current reorganization of the House.

THE Chief Executive spent the morning in his hideout, finishing, his budget message to Congress due for delivery on Tuesday, February-11.

Returning to the Palace this afternoon for the cocktails, the President presented Sen. Recto with a birthday cake and led the delegates in singing "Happy Birthday." Among those present at the affair were former Sen. Jose P. Laurel, Cabinet members, justices, senators, and representatives who had a hand in the framing of the Constitution about 23 years ago.

During the affair, Manuel Abella, president of the Constitutional Convention Club, who acted as master of ceremonies, expressed the wish of the delegates to have the old constitutional documents published. He asked for government financial support for the project, which the President readily promised.

Last caller of the President in the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Murray, who had taught in a primary school in Bohol in 1904, in the town of Guindulman. They called at Malacañang to pay their respects prior to their return to the U. S. after a six-week visit to this country.

IN his Budget Message, which he will submit to Congress on February 11, President Garcia will stress the fact that the necessary services as well as the mandatory obligations, as provided by Republic Acts or the Constitution, will increase the budget for the fiscal year 1959 by ₱265,568,930.

A Malacañang spokesman said that owing to these necessary and mandatory appropriations, the budget for the fiscal year 1959 will exceed the ₱1 billion mark. He added that the exact figures were not yet available this day.

The President will point out in his Budget Message the inevitability of taking measures for a more vigorous and effective tax collection. He will state that, where increase of old taxes or imposition of new ones are necessary, such taxes should not burden the ordinary taxpayers and should be spent only for additional essential services.

The Chief Executive will tell Congress the need to balance the government public borrowing program by a vigorous and progressive tax policy which must produce revenue to finance not only the normal operations of the government but also the overhead expenditures required by an expanding national economy.

President Garcia will state in his message that the government will reserve the use of public borrowings to finance capital outlays and investments of high priority.

PRESIDENT Garcia kept working on his budget message to Congress from 9:30 p.m. yesterday up to 3 a.m. today in his workshop in Quezon City. He was assisted by Budget Commissioner Dominador R. Aytona, RFC Chairman Eduardo Romualdez, Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable, and acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison.

A Malacañang spokesman said that because the "hideout" has been actually converted into a "workshop" where the President goes to whenever he has to work on important state papers, the President decided to call it "workshop."

The President's budget message will consist of Book I which contains the Five-Year Fiscal Plan and Book II which contains the Message for the Fiscal Year 1959 budget. Although the five-year fiscal plan is not an integral part of the budget message, it serves as a point of reference in relation to the 1959 budget. It also serves as the blueprint for the country's economic development program during the next five years.

Having retired about 4 o'clock this morning, the President woke up late. After breakfast he telephoned Sen. Claro M. Recto and greeted him on his birthday. They exchanged pleasantries in Spanish for a few minutes. The President personally invited Sen. Recto to attend the cocktails which the President was giving in honor of the surviving delegates to the Constitutional Convention, of which Recto was the president.

The President ate luncheon, in his workshop with acting Press Secretary Sison, Maj. Jose Estrella, and other aides. The President motored to Malacañang before 5 p.m. for the cocktails.

Before 8 p.m. the President motored to the National Press Club to attend the annual gridiron dinner. He was accompanied by acting Press Secretary Sison and Maj. Estrella.

President Garcia was "roasted" by newsmen who prepared a skit dramatizing objectively or in exaggeration the President's faults and virtues.

It was the first Gridiron Dinner attended by the President as Chief Executive although he had witnessed previous affairs when he was a member of the Cabinet.

He was observed to change expression several times but managed to smile despite pointed allusions to his actuations as President.

February 9.—THE President spent a quiet Sunday at his residence in Quezon City. He began the day by hearing mass before an improvised altar set up in his home's living room.

About 9 a.m., the President had a light breakfast alone. Then he spent some time reading the Sunday morning papers and working on state papers he had brought along from Malacañang.

The President called up Sen. Roseller T. Lim by telephone to felicitate him on his birthday.

The Chief Executive also had telephone conversations with Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, who consulted him several times on certain aspects of next year's budget currently under preparation.

About 1 p.m., the President had lunch with Mrs. Garcia, who arrived about noon.

After a brief rest in the afternoon, the President went over the final draft of his budget message before having it printed for submission to Congress on February 11.

February 10.—PRESIDENT Garcia finally put into final shape his pro-posed budget for the next fiscal year and signed his budget message which he will forward to Congress tomorrow.

Having finished his work on the budget and beaten by one day the 15-day deadline fixed by the Constitution, the President returned to Malacañang and resumed his daily chores of receiving his scheduled callers.

PRESIDENT Garcia this morning announced formally that he had accepted the resignation of Col. Salvador T. Villa as general manager of the Manila Railroad Company, effective Friday, February 14, at a conference with directors and high officials of the state firm.

At the same time President Garcia, stated that he will appoint an ad interim successor of Col. Villa on or before Friday.

The President discussed with MRR directors the extension of the rail-road line from San Jose, Nueva Ecija, to Tuguegarao, Cagayan.

Present at the conference were Col. Villa; Juan Carlos, chairman of the Board of Directors; and Directors Vicente Olazo, Francisco Marasigan, Dr. Benjamin Garcia, Jack Arroyo; Assistant General Manager F. F. Santiago; and Col. Cipriano de Leon, general manager of the Manila Port Service.

The President next received members of the Board of Trustees of the Philippine Rural Reconstruction Movement and signed an executive order declaring the third week of May of every year as Barrio Communities Week.

In signing the order the President said that it is necessary to “improve conditions in the rural areas and to help the barrio people attain a better life, more opportunities for creative living, and a higher level of social, educational, and economic development.”

Cornelio Balmaceda, PRRM president, told President Garcia that the organization is limiting its activities to pilot centers in different parts of the country.

PRRM trustees who saw the President were Dean Conrado Benitez, chairman of the board, Mrs. Geronima Pecson, Antonio de las Alas, Miss Helen Benitez, Gaudencio Antonio, Alfonso Sycip, Albino Sycip and Yao Shiong Shio.

The President also received William I. Myers, dean of the College of Agriculture of Cornell University, and member of the top agricultural advisory committee of President Eisenhower.

The President discussed with Myers the four points of his food production program and expressed his determination to lower the cost of production in the rice industry in order to lower the price of rice and give farmers an increase in their margin of profits.

Myers was accompanied by H. B. Knapp, Cornell exchange professor at the College of Agriculture (Los Baños, Laguna) of the University of the Philippines, and Leopoldo Uichangco, dean of the college.

The President moreover, received Merle D. Thompson, chairman of the executive committee of the Insular Lumber Company and director of the Philippine American Chamber of Commerce; Harvey C Pope, director and general manager of the Insular Lumber Company; Herbert Magneson, president of the Connell Bros. Co., Ltd.; Francis Florence, vice-president of the Connell Bros. Co., (Phil.); Ralph Brubaker, vice-president of the Carnation Company (Los Angeles); Budget Commissioner Dominador R. Aytona; Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas; Manuel Leelin; and Theodore Lewin.

IN the afternoon, the President signed his budget message in the presence of Commissioner Aytona, Deputy Budget Commissioner Faustino Sychangco, Fernando Dizon, and other members of the staff of the Budget Commission.

Later he received the officials of the Commission on Tourism headed by its chairman, Commerce Secretary Pedro C. Hernaez.

Hernaez later conferred with the President and explained the latest developments in the off-and-on copra-rice barter deal with a Hongkong firm.

The President also received Fr. Mariano Gaviola, assistant secretary general of the Catholic Welfare Organization, and H. B. Reyes of the Meralco.

February 11—THE PRESIDENT directed today acting Agriculture Secretary Jose Trinidad to dispatch a team of experts to Lanao and Cotabato in order to determine the extent of destruction caused, by rats.

The new rat infestation in Cotabato, which is said to be worse than that of 1953, has spread to the neighboring province of Lanao, according to Rep. Laurentino Badilles.

The presidential directive was given at a conference at Malacañang between President Garcia, Badilles, and Rep. Salipada Pendatun of Cotabato.

The President also directed DANR authorities to determine the feasibility of draining the Liguasan marshes in Cotabato and converting them into agricultural lands. The Liguasan marshes are the breeding places of rats.

Rep. Pendatun informed President Garcia that he had presented a bill appropriating ₱2 million to combat the rat infestation. He requested the Chief Executive to certify it to Congress as a priority administration measure.

At the same time, Pendatun, acting as spokesman of the Mindanao bloc, urged the President to appoint Rep. Cesar Fortich of Bukidnon as a member of the Cabinet.

Other presidential callers were Sens. Quintin Paredes, Emmanuel Pelaez, and Roseller Lim, and Reps. Nicanor Yniguez of Leyte, Inocencio F. Ferrer of Negros Occidental, Ramon Bagatsing of Manila, Vicente Gustilo of Negros Occidental, Reynaldo Honrado of Surigao, Aguedo Agbayani of Pangasinan, Delfin Albano of Isabela, Gaudencio Abordo of Palawan, Emilio Cortez of Pampanga, and Domitillo Abordo of Iloilo.

In the evening, the Chief Executive received Henry Clay, president of the Chase Manhattan Bank, who called to pay his respects.

Other evening callers included former acting Foreign Affairs Secretary Raul S. Manglapus, who called to say goodbye prior to his departure for Australia on the invitation of the Australian government; Cebu Congressman Manuel Zosa; and Ramon Sytangco, a Manila businessman.

AN old and tattered Filipino insurrectionist battle flag captured in Mindoro by an American oldtimer on November 11, 1903, was presented today to President Garcia at Malacañang by A. F. Tegen, president of the General Public Utilities Corporation, parent company of the Manila Electric Company.

The turn-over was witnessed by Lt. Col. Henry Gilhouser (P.C., retired), who had captured the flag when he had surrounded the forces of Captain Valeriano Gasio, then operating in Mindoro.

Gasio maintained a military organization which was opposed to the sovereignty of the United States. After his capture, Gasio was placed on trial in the court of first instance of Mindoro, with the then Provincial Fiscal Manuel L. Quezon handling the prosecution. Before the American occupation, Gasio had been the municipal captain of Naujan, Mindoro.

In 1920 Gilhouser sent the flag to the United States where it was added to a collection of historical Philippine weapons of the late Maurice Lowenstein. On Lowenstein's death, it was purchased by the late John M. Switzer, of Northport, Long Island, New York. In 1937 the collection was inherited by Lane Marohn, who sold it to a New York art dealer.

Tegen heard that the flag was to be sold and cabled instructions from Manila to have the flag purchased and returned immediately to the Philippines, 54 years after its capture.

Gilhouser now 76 years old, is living at the Elks Club in Manila.

PRESIDENT Garcia issued two directives aimed to enhance the agricultural and economic development of Mindanao, Malacañang announced today.

In an executive order the President opened the port of Parang, Cotabato, as a subport of entry “in order to stimulate commerce and trade” in Mindanao. The order opened the port of Parang to both foreign and coastwise trade under the administrative jurisdiction of the Collector of Customs of Davao.

In a proclamation the President reserved certain portions of the public domain in the barrio of Musuan, Maramag, Bukidnon, for the site of the projected Mindanao Agricultural College. The President reserved the site for the MAC upon the recommendation of the secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

The Chief Executive opened the port of Parang as a subport of entry upon the recommendation of the secretary of finance. The commissioner of customs and the director of quarantine were designated by the President to assign personnel from their offices to take charge of immigration and quarantine matters at the subport.

THE President also signed another proclamation declaring the period from March 24 to 30, 1958, as Special Science Week in order to give more impetus to the role of science in the economic development of the country.

After signing the proclamation, the President said that he was giving much significance to the occasion. He told the committee in charge of the affair to do their best in making it a success.

Particular emphasis will be given during the week on science applications in the fields of agriculture and industry. The celebration will be observed throughout the country in schools, colleges, universities, and scientific and technical institutions and societies with appropriate ceremonies.

The National observance of the work will be undertaken by a committee headed by Marcelino Calinawan, Jr., and Patrocinio Valenzuela, dean of the U. P. College of Pharmacy, as chairman and vice-chairman, respectively.

After signing the proclamation, President Garcia together with Mrs. Garcia, motored to the Our Lady, of Lourdes Church in Quezon City, where they heard the 12 o'clock noon mass said by Archbishop Rufino J. Santos on the occasion of the 100th anniversary of the apparition of Our Lady of Lourdes. They were accompanied by Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, Appointments Secretary Agerico Palaypay, and Majors Jose Estrella and Ciriaco Hocson.

MEMBERS of the Board of Travel and Tourist Industry called at Malacañang in the evening to thank the President for proclaiming a tourist promotion month and to invite him to be the guest of honor at the first national tourist conference to implement the proclamation.

During their call the board members presented the President with a portrait done in oil by Oscar Navarro, showing the Chief Executive in an informal pose at his state room at the yacht Sta. Maria, with a huge painting of a Filipino warrior on a vinta in the background. The President appreciatively accepted the gift saying it was one of the best likenesses of himself among the recent paintings of him.

The President explained to the board some of his ideas on tourist facilities development, including the expansion of hotel space, and directed planning for a large-scale travel trade and tourist traffic. He suggested that studies be made on a more adequate financing of such a program.

The Board of Travel and Tourist Industry recommended three executive orders, which would implement provisions of R. A. 3478, by which (1) tourist travel regulations would be further relaxed and made competitive with those of other countries, (2) trade in tourist souvenirs facilitated, and (3) Manila's leading tourist attraction, like the walls and bastions of Intramuros, conserved and properly maintained.

Those who called on the President were Commerce Secretary Pedro C. Hernaez, BTTI chairman; Tourist Commissioner Modesto Farolan, BTTI vice-chairman; Justice Undersecretary Jesus Barrera; Finance Undersecretary Jose Trinidad; Public Works Undersecretary Rafael Contreras; and Primitive Lovina, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines.

February 12.—PLANS to requisition trainer planes to be charged against the Japanese Government under the reparations agreement were threshed out this morning at a conference between President Garcia and top defense officials.

Engines for the twelve trainer planes to be requisitioned from, Japan through reparations will be purchased from the United States.

It was understood that, the Japanese Government cannot be charged under the reparations agreement for the cost of engines of the trainer planes, as Japan does not manufacture plane engines.

Present at the conference were Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas and Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff.

IN the afternoon, the President received the credentials of Ambassador Lincoln Hoon Kim, first ambassador of the Republic of Korea to the Philippines.

In his brief response to the remarks of Ambassador Kim, the President said that the Victory in the Korean war where Filipino soldiers participated, “did not put an end to the determination of the people and the Government of the Philippines to extend whatever assistance may be within their power to help your country in the attainment of its ultimate goal of unifying Korea.”

Ambassador Kim said that the reciprocal elevation of the diplomatic missions in Manila and Seoul was no doubt a great, forward step toward strengthening the friendly ties that bind the Philippines and the Republic of Korea. He said “the memory of your gallant soldiers who fought with us shoulder to shoulder in Korea against Communist aggression remains vivid in the minds of all Koreans who are eternally grateful to your courageous nation . . .”

The ROK ambassador also stated that it was his country’s sincere desire that the Philippines would continue to stand with and assist the Republic of Korea in her efforts to achieve unification.

The President received the ROK ambassador at the Malacañang ceremonial hall at 5 p.m. The Cabinet members, who were meeting at the nearby state, dining hall, were in full attendance. The Cabinet meeting was suspended during the presentation ceremony.

After the remarks of the ROK ambassador and the President, Ambassador Kim exchanged toasts with the Chief Executive and the Cabinet members for the continued strengthening of the friendly ties between the Philippines and the Republic of Korea. Present at the ceremony were Secretary of Justice Pedro Tuason, Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, Acting Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo, Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, Education Secretary Manuel Lim, Labor Secretary Angel Castaño, Health Secretary Paulino Garcia, Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas, Commerce and Industry Secretary Pedro Hernaez, Social Welfare Administrator Amaro P. Villamor, Budget Commissioner Dominador R. Aytona, NEC Chairman Eduarck Z. Romualdcz, Acting Agriculture Secretary Jose Trinidad, OEC Chief Juan Concon, Integration Commissioner Madki Alonto, Acting Assistant Executive Secretary Sofronio Quimson, PCAC Chief Tirso Joson, Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, Minister Tomas de Castro, Counsellor Juan Arreglado, and Malacañang Protocol Officer Manuel G. Zamora. Presidential Senior Aide Lt. Col. Emilio Borromeo and Foreign Office Protocol Officer Jose Estrada accompanied Ambassador Kim to the ceremonial hall.

President Garcia today called For Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno, Sr., and Dr. Vicente C Sinco and Dr. Amando Dalisay of the Import-Export Committee of the Central Bank to explain before the Cabinet reported delay in processing applications for dollars for projects previously passed upon by the Industrial Development Center and the ICA

The President called to the Cabinet meeting the Central Bank officials because according to reports out of the 37 projects duly processed by the IDC only seven had been approved by the Import-Export Committee of the Central Bank. The President said that he was eager to localize any responsibility with respect to the speedy implementation of these projects which would assist in increasing substantially the productive level of the country's economy.

It was gathered during the discussion at the Cabinet meeting that the principal stumbling block in the approval of these projects was the foreign exchange requirements to support the raw materials which would be needed by the various projects presented for consideration by the Import-Export Committee.

The Central Bank officials categorically made clear to the President and the Cabinet that the ICA support was not in dollars and that it was from the country's international reserve that the raw material requirements of these projects would be filled.

The President after consultations with his Cabinet members directed the Central Bank officials to coordinate immediately with the IDC the matter of putting these projects into realization. He also directed that the Central Bank officials concerned consider the priority aspects in relation to the production potential to be generated by such projects.

The President also said that he wanted immediate action on this matter.

THE President and his Cabinet at their meeting this day discussed the establishment of an integrated steel plant in Iligan, Lanao, for which a loan is being negotiated in the United States.

It was the desire of the Cabinet to develop the steel industry in order to speed up the country's industrialization development.

The Cabinet believed that two big corporations like the NASSCO and the proposed integrated steel plant, the latter to cost approximately ₱200 million, should be managed separately. In order to study further this matter, the President appointed a committee composed of RFC Chairman Eduardo Z. Romualdez, as chairman, with Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno and Education Secretary Manuel Lim, as members.

During the Cabinet meeting President Garcia inquired from Commerce Secretary Pedro Hernaez about the progress of the work of the three-man-committee which was following up the copra-rice barter deal in Hongkong.

Hernaez said that he had received a radiogram from Ramon Lacson to the effect that the committee had left for Bangkok to look into the 50,000' metric tons of Thailand rice to be bartered with Philippine copra.

Hernaez said that according to information he had received the first shipment of Thailand rice, consisting of 5,000 metric tons would come during the first week of March. Another shipment consisting of 5,000 metric tons would follow. The reason for these two shipments according to Hernaez was that the shipping bottom could carry only 5,000 tons.

Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano also reported to the -President that Ambassador Mariano Ezpeleta was continuing with his explorations for the acquisition of rice from Cambodia and Saigon.

It was decided at the Cabinet meeting that the 50,000 metric tons of Thailand rice to be bartered with copra will go on. It was further decided that Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo make an official inquiry in Washington on the final status of the proposed Philippine importation of 100,000 metric tons of rice under U. S. Public Law 480.

During the discussion of the rice problem, ACCFA Administrator Ernesto Jimenez informed the President and the Cabinet that FACOMA units all over the country had as of today 700,000 cavans of Macau palay.

THE Cabinet approved this evening the proposed aerial photogram-metric survey of Bulacan province as a pilot project to be jointly undertaken by the Philippine Air Force and the Bureau of Lands.

The survey which will cover 97,684 hectares affecting 16 municipalities will pave one way for the cadastral, survey of the whole country through this modern method which is cheaper, quicker, and more accurate. It will expedite awarding of titles and the development of virgin lands.

Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas reported that the Air Force, in cooperation with the Bureau of Lands, had the technical potential to undertake the project. Vargas said the Air Force had trained men who had graduated from U. S. schools and had now from 70 to 80 per cent of the equipment needed in the project.

While the work could begin right away with the equipment now available in the country, Secretary Vargas said that highly sensitive precision equipment would have to be imported from Switzerland. He estimated that the Bulacan project, including the cost of the imported instruments, would cost about ₱880,000. Acting Agriculture Secretary Jose M. Trinidad agreed to put up the money from funds available for that purpose from the Bureau of Lands.

Nicanor Jorge, a technical man from the Bureau of Lands, informed the Cabinet that the survey of the whole country through conventional transit and tape method would take some 100 years to complete and would be much more expensive than the new method which would take 15 years.

THE Cabinet also approved the acquisition of 12 T-34 jet training, planes from Japan under the" reparations agreement. It authorized the purchase of 18 jet engines at $5,000 per unit which would have to be secured from the U. S. for the 12 planes, as Japan does not manufacture jet engines.

Defense Secretary Vargas, who recommended the acquisition of the planes, said that the $90,000 required for the purchase of 18 jet engines would be taken from Air Force funds.

February 13.— PRESIDENT Garcia said today that there would be no let-up in the enforcement of the carabao slaughter ban. The President made this statement before a group of provincial governors and town mayors who called at Malacañang following reports that the enforcement of the executive order prohibiting the slaughter of carabaos was lax in some provinces, particularly in remote parts of the country.

The Chief Executive enjoined the provincial executives to enforce strictly, the carabao slaughter ban until the end of the fiscal year, as provided' in the executive order, after which the feasibility of lifting the ban would be lengthily discussed.

Those who called on the President were Govs. Juan Alberto of Catanduanes, Arsenio Lugay of Tarlac, Jose Meñes of Aklan, Naga City Mayor Monico Imperial, Mayor Macario Asistio of Caloocan, Rizal, and Mayor Dator Hobart of Lucban, Quezon.

The callers also requested aid for public improvements in their respective localities.

Individual callers were Rep. Alberto Ubay of Zamboanga del Norte, Gil Garcia, a Cebu businessman, Maj. Arturo Sevilla, and Mrs. Gladys Vincent of Seattle, Washington.

Earlier, the President received Frank Metcalf, president of the Columbia Rope Company of Auburn, New York, which is the biggest importer of Philippine abaca in the American market.

Metcalf was accompanied by Merle Robiem, vice-president of the same company; Antonio O. Florendo, president of the Tagum Agricultural Development Company of Davao; and Baguio City Mayor Alfonso Tabora.

The President also received Rep. Canute Enerio of Zamboanga del Sur, who urged the construction of more roads in Mindanao, as well as the granting of more liberal banking facilities and the granting of more land titles to farmers in order to hasten the economic development of the island.

The President received callers until 2 p.m.

THE President today called on executives of government-owned or controlled corporations to pool their resources and launch a concerted information campaign to project to the masses especially these in the rural areas, the program “of austerity and increased production enunciated by his administration.

February 14.—THIS morning the President had “breakfast with John Mc-Cloy and James Jacobson, chairman of the board and vice-president, respectively, of the Chase-Manhattan Bank, who paid a courtesy call following their recent arrival in Manila in the course of a worldwide observation tour.

Present at the breakfast were Acting Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, U. S. Ambassador Charles Bohlen, Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, RFC Chairman Eduardo Z. Romualdez, Executive. Secretary Juan C. Pajo, Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, former Senator Jose P. Laurel, Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, CB Governor Miguel Cuaderno, Paul Wood of International Harvester, Alfonso Calalang (president-of the Philippine Bankers Association), Primitivo Lovina (president of the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines), Conrado Sevilla, and Col. Emilio Borromeo and Capt. Agerico Palaypay, aides.

PRESIDENT Garcia stood firm in upholding the majesty of the law when he said that no amnesty would be extended to outlaws and criminals still at large.

The President made this statement at a conference at Malacañang this morning with Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason and PC Chief Manuel Cabal.

The President added that amnesty may be considered only after the outlaws have faced trial in civil courts.

Discussed at the conference was the peace-and-order situation in Lanao.

On the recommendation of Secretary Tuason, the President rejected the proposal of some prominent Lanao datu that tribal feuds involving killings be tried according to the Moro custom, that the complaints filed against outlaws be dismissed, and that a general pardon be extended to the malefactors, especially to those whose sentences had been confirmed by the Court of Appeals.

THE President signed today a proclamation declaring Wednesday, February 19, 1958, as a special public holiday in the province of Pampanga and Tarlac to celebrate the birthday of the late Jose Abad Santos.

The Chief Executive in signing the proclamation said that the people of Pampanga and Tarlac requested that the birthday of the great jurist, patriot, and martyr be declared a holiday to afford them an opportunity to celebrate the day with appropriate ceremonies.

At the same time, the President also signed a proclamation declaring Monday, February 17, 1958, as a special public holiday in the province of Ilocos Sur to honor the martyrdom of Father Jose Burgos.

THE President was informed this day of a plan to establish in the Philippines an oil refinery to be controlled and managed by Filipinos.

The establishment of the first Filipino controlled oil refinery will be undertaken with the help of the Gulf Oil Corporation, said to be one of the largest oil companies in the world.

According to the plan, the Filipino stockholders will subscribe 60 per cent of the capital needed for the establishment of the refinery, with the Gulf Oil Corporation as minority stockholder.

The plan was presented to the President in an official call paid by leading local businessmen and industrialists composed of former NEC Chairman Filemon Rodriguez, Security Bank President Alfonso Calalang, Carlos Palanca, Leonides S. Virata, and Ramon V. del Rosario, president of the Philippine Investment and Management Consultants, Inc.

The Filipino group was accompanied by representatives of the American oil firm headed by Z. David Bonner. The other GOC officials were C. F. Skinner and Elston Law, legal counsel.

The plan will be submitted to the National Economic Council and the Central Bank. The refinery, with a daily output of 10,000 barrels is expected to be in operation by the latter part of 1961.

Rodriguez pointed out the facts that refining crude oil locally instead of importing finished products would result in dollar savings amounting to 30 per cent of the yearly importation of petroleum products which is now at a level of $46 million.

The President was also informed that since 60 per cent of the capital of the refinery would be subscribed by Filipinos, only 40 per cent of the profits of the refinery would have to be sent abroad, which would be a big help in conserving local dollar reserves.

Conversely, the Philippines could import more crude oil and process a greater amount of petroleum products to meet its expanding needs while using the same dollar outlays that were at present being spent on importations of processed petroleum product Rodriguez further informed President Garcia.

PRESIDENT Garcia received today from Vicente Orosa, general manager, of the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation, a proposition to solve the problem of the squatters of the Sociego-Santol Estate who are now facing ejection.

Orosa stated that the PHHC, instead of buying the estate and selling lots to the squatters at ₱24 a square meter, is willing to sell lots in Caloocan or Novaliches at about ₱3.50 a square meter.

Orosa further informed the President that few squatters could afford to pay for their lots in the Sociego-Santol Estate. In this respect, Orosa said that the state firm was willing to finance the purchase of their lots although it would prefer that these squatters deal directly with the owners of the estate.

President Garcia directed Orosa to inform the squatters about the solution and report to him immediately about their decision.

Although the buying price amounts to only ₱20 a square meter, Orosa informed President Garcia that the state firm would have to add ₱4 a square meter to the selling price in view of the improvements it would have to undertake, like the construction of paved roads and sewerage system, as well as the extension of water and light facilities to the area.

President Garcia was also informed that the U. S. International Cooperation, Administration has approved the request of the PHHC for the transfer of the amount of ₱680,000 originally intended for Project 3 for the construction of the Tondo housing project in the reclaimed area.

The PHHC plans to construct three-story tenement houses with low rents similar to the Bagong Barangay housing project in Pandacan.

Orosa also asked the help of President Garica to secure more funds in order to expedite construction of the projects of the state firm.

THE President sounded a general appeal for “unqualified support” to this year’s national fund campaign of the Philippine National Red Cross as he handed in a check for ₱1,000 representing his personal contribution to the drive.

In his speech at the ceremonies held in Malacañang this afternoon formally launching the PNRC fund campaign, the President said: “I am confident that austerity or no austerity, our people will gladly respond to the call of the Red Cross, for everybody knows that there is no austerity in human suffering.”

The President authorized all national, provincial, city, and municipal officials and school authorities to accept for the Red Cross fund raising responsibilities, and appealed to them to take the initiative and participate in active leadership in their respective communities.

The President’s contribution was handed to Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, honorary chairman of the 1958 PNRC Fund Campaign. Then representatives of various commercial houses, civic organizations, and civic-spirited citizens started coming forward one by one to hand in their own contributions in amounts ranging from ₱5 to ₱15,000.

By the time the kick-off ceremony was over, initial contributions handed in exceeded the ₱100,000 mark. The First Lady who received all the cash donations’ was assisted by Health Secretary Paulino Garcia and GSIS General Manager Rodolfo P. Andal, chairman of the PNRC board of directors and chairman of the 1958 Manila fund campaign, respectively.

The ceremony which was held at Malacañang’s social hall started about 1 p.m. with the National Anthem played by the Constabulary band under the baton of Lt. Col Antonio Buenaventura.

The ceremony which lasted up to 5 p.m was attended by some members of the Cabinet, senators and representatives, members of the diplomatic corps, and other high government officials and their ladies. Angelo Castro, vice-chairman for radio of the PNRC national publicity committee, was master of ceremonies.

Addressing a conference of general managers and public information officers of government firms called by Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo at Malacañang this afternoon, the President pointed out the necessity of acquainting the people with what the government corporations could do for them so that they might properly avail themselves of their services, increase their incomes, and participate in the stepped-up production drive.

The President placed particular emphasis on food production, especially of rice and corn. He urged the officials to educate the farmers on the advantages of fertilizers, seed selection, pest control, and other methods of scientific farming.

Earlier this afternoon, the conferees gathered at the council of State room in Malacañang and discussed the matter of organizing a central agency to push through a coordinated information campaign.

With Capt. Francisco Calinawan as temporary chairman, the conferees discussed the feasibility of having each government corporation contribute to a common fund to finance a central agency which would reach the masses through various media of disseminating information; such as, the newspapers, the radio, the movies, and posters, pamphlets, and handbills.

The conferees also discussed the formation of a steering committee charged with the responsibility of planning the activities of the proposed agency. Secretary Pajo was unanimously made chairman of the committee.

The President, in the course of his brief remarks before the group, traced the root causes of the current economic crisis to the efforts made by the government to rehabilitate the country after the last war. Liberal use of credit, facilities by both government and private sectors had drained the nation's dollar reserves and resulted in the present predicament, he said.

The Chief Executive ended his remarks by expressing his confidence in the ability of the Filipino people to ride over their difficulties.

Represented in the conference were the Abaca Corporation, the ACCFA, CEPOC, NAMARCO, CENTRAL BANK, NARIG, Central Cooperative Exchange, OED, NASSCO, National Media Production Center, Industrial Development Center, NPC, MRR, NARRA, Philippine Tobacco Corporation, NAWASA, PHILCOA, GSIS, RFC, PNB, and the Bureau of Public Schools.

IN the evening President Garcia said that if "we can make man see the truth and make him believe the gospel of love, and make him look to his neighbor as a friend and brother ... we can attain true universal, brotherhood.

The President was the guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Supreme Council of the 33rd and Last Degree of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry of the Republic of the Philippines, at the Plaridel Masonic Temple.

In his address to the Masons, the President said he was happy to know that this venerable and ancient fraternity was founded on the precepts of brotherly love, relief, and truth. The President said that if men's minds and hearts could be directed toward the achievement of the brotherhood of mankind, "our hope for people will be accomplished."

He added that in the precepts of brotherly love, relief, and truth which were the foundation stone of Freemasonry "is broadly premised on the promise of peace."

President Garcia took cognizance of the great and noble work which "your grand Fraternity has done and is still doing for freedom of thought and conscience for democracy and for equality." He said that in the Philippines and in the United States, members of the fraternity led in the fight for the 'sacrosanct cause of liberty, equality, and fraternity."

The President congratulated the organization for being dedicated to such high and noble ideals.

The President said: "Freedom of thought, freedom of experience, and freedom of conscience constitute the greatest heritage of democratic civilization for which many of your greatest heroic brothers have fought and died in all climes and times."

REMEMBERING that tomorrow would be St. Valentine's day, President Garcia asked for a pen and wrote a Valentine's Day note to his lady love, the First Lady. He directed that the letter be delivered to Mrs. Garcia and not to be opened until tomorrow evening."

The President having just corrected a speech which he was to deliver before Masons this evening, changed from his oratorical prose to the more poetical phrase.

COL. Mamerto R. Montemayor was designated coordinator of all the duties, functions, work, and special missions, assignments, or activities of the technical assistants in the Office of the President, Malacañang announced today.

Col. Montemayor, who is on detail with Malacañang from the Armed Forces, was also given the job of preparing, the necessary directives to the technical assistants for signature of the executive secretary.

The designation of Montemayor was made in order that proper and necessary coordination may be made of all the duties, functions, work, and activities of the technical assistants.

The placing of the technical assistants under the direct administrative supervision of Montemayor was contained in a memorandum order issued by Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo. Secretary Pajo also required all the technical assistants to submit to the President through; Col. Montemayor monthly reports of their accomplishments and/or activities, in addition to special reports they may be required to prepare;

Until his new designation, Col. Montemayor was an assistant to the President. He is a recipient of various military awards and decorations from both the Philippines and the United States Governments and has held several important assignments in the Army, including that of chief of the Southeast Asian Military Affairs Office of the Department of National Defense. Col. Montemayor is a lawyer, having finished law at the University of the Philippines in 1933.

President's Month in Review: February 15-28, 1958

OFFICIAL MONTH IN REVIEW

February 15.—THIS morning, the President stayed in his bedroom where he went over pending state papers. With him was Acting Press Secretary Sison.

While the President was poring over his papers, Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia formally launched the National Press Week by cutting the ceremonial ribbons at the National Press Club building, marking the opening of the photo and art exhibits.

The First Lady was greeted by NPC officials, stayed for a couple of minutes, and posed with the newsmen at the building.

She was shown around the building by Jose D. Aspiras, former NPC president.

With the First Lady were Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez, Social Welfare Administrator Amparo P. Villamor, and Mrs. Dolores Gaerlan.

IN the afternoon, the President appealed to members of the local press to emphasize in the columns of the newspapers the "positive side of things" with the view to building up a more salutary public opinion among the citizens of this young Republic.

In an extemporaneous speech delivered after luncheon given in Malacañang in honor of members of the Fourth State on the opening day of National Press Week, the President observed that the tendency of the press was to "over-emphasize the negative side and underplay the things more pleasant and worthwhile."

He said that stories of violence, criminality, and vice were often given prominent places in the pages of newspapers while acts of philanthropy and integrity and good accomplishments were given minor treatment.

"I will not be surprised if the so-called juvenile delinquency which has become a problem tile world over will someday be attributed by social scientists to the current trend in journalism," the President said.

The chief Executive warned against underestimating the power of the press to influence what he called "public thinking" and "public feeling." He said that what people read in the newspapers every day eventually would become part of their consciousness and "their very soul."

The President said that like a soldier who, after exposure to military rules and regulations, would later in life make discipline, courage, and patriotism as part of his existence, the newspaper reading public would be susceptible to making newspaper ideas part of their own.

Contending that "journalism of all times and climes is the key to progress," the President recalled that some of the world's great events had been shaped up by some of the world's great editors and publishers.

The President stated that the people were imaginative and were quick to respond to the thoughts and situations published in the daily press. He said it was about time that the press gave due recognition to good deeds rather than to scandals and notoriety.

He concluded: "I will consider it as the greatest contribution of the press if they would help build up a citizenry imbued with civic virtue and patriotism in this young Republic of ours."

The luncheon was featured with the distribution of recognition certificates awarded by the NPC to some 52 newspapermen who have been 25 years or more in the profession, J. V. Cruz was awarded a certificate for having been the first press secretary to be given a Cabinet rank. The certificates were distributed by the President.

Another feature of the affair was a reunion of former press secretaries most of whom were awarded certificates “as the grand old men of Philippine journalism.”

In keeping with the hilarious atmosphere which pervaded the affair, the President started his speech in a bantering tone as he recalled some of the funny anecdotes about old newspapermen and politicians. He complained with mock bitterness that he had not been included in the list of awardees. He said he was once a staff member of a paper edited by the late Sen. Manuel Briones in Cebu some 35 years ago.

Then shifting to a serious tone, the President said he would like to unburden himself of some thoughts that had been bothering him for some time. He delivered an extended discourse on the responsibilities of the modern press.

The affair started at 12 noon with an austerity luncheon at Malacañang’s social hall. It broke up about 2:30 p.m. after the President’s speech; Domingo Abadilla, NPC president, was master of ceremonies.

After the luncheon, the President motored to his Quezon City residence, where he stayed for the night.

February 16.—PRESIDENT Garcia spent a quiet Sunday at his “workshop” at Quezon City where he retired as early as yesterday afternoon.

He started the day by hearing mass said before an improvised altar at his residence.

After breakfast with Fr. Tugade and Lieut. Melchor Fronda, the President retired to his room and read the Sunday papers.

He lunched with Fronda and, after a short rest, summoned Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison to give him pointers on what he intended to discuss with the Council of Leaders on Tuesday.

After his conference with Sison, the President studied papers brought over from Malacañang.

February 17.—THIS morning the President had a breakfast conference with Northern Luzon senators and congressmen with whom he discussed measures to improve the tobacco industry. The proposed measures taken up at the conference included:

- (1) Amendment of the tobacco law so that only high-grade leaf tobacco will be given government price support; and
- (2) Classification of the tobacco purchasing by the ACCFA and the Philippine Tobacco Administration so that the ACCFA will deal only with Virginia tobacco and the PTA will handle only native tobacco.

The Northern Luzon solons also proposed looking for additional foreign markets for Philippine grown tobacco. The lawmakers from the country’s tobacco region, in proposing an amendment to the tobacco law, said that price support for high-grade tobacco will encourage production of such tobacco.

Also discussed during the conference were local problems of the solons. Present were Sens. Quintin Paredes and Eulogio Balao; Reps. Manuel Agudo of Batanes, Francisco Ortega of La Union, Luciano Millan of Pangasinan, Cipriano Primicias, Jr., of Pangasinan, Aguedo Agbayani of Pangasinan, Lucas Paredes of Abra, Felipe Garduque of Cagayan, Benjamin Ligot of Cagayan, Delfin Albano of Isabela, Faustino Tobia of Ilocos Sur, and Luis Hora of Mountain Province.

THE Administration's food production campaign was further bolstered today as members of the Philippine Poultry Association pledged their support to the program.

In a letter personally handed to President Garcia this morning by Amado E. Baladad, president of the association, the PPA members proposed a plan whereby they could gradually reduce the importation of meat and meat products, produce more meat within the shortest possible time, and ease the unemployment problem.

The PPA members further stated that the plan resolved mainly on the simple fact that chicken, aside from being the quickest and cheapest meat to produce, also produced meat in two and a half months and reproduced itself 150 times in one year.

The PPA members requested government assistance so as to "take advantage of the tremendous potentialities" of the poultry industry.

The President told Baladad to confer with the Industrial Development Center authorities with a view to exploring the possibilities of having the government assist properly the poultry industry.

THE President received Brian Boobbryer and the Honorable Juliet Boobbryer, officers of the International Moral Rearmament Movement, who paid a courtesy call following their arrival recently in the course of a tour in the Orient. The MRA officials were accompanied to Malacañang by Sen. Roseller Lim and Roberto Oca.

Then the President received the listed callers composed mostly of congressmen and town mayors who requested aid for public works improvements in their respective localities.

Such callers were Reps. Gaudencio Abordo of Palawan, Alberto Ubay of Zamboanga del Norte, Emilio Espinosa, Jr., of Masbate, and Mayors Pio Dao and Agustin Capines of Uson and Aroroy, Masbate.

Individual callers included Davao Gov. Alejandro Almendras, Lyric Soprano Luz Morales, Concert Pianist Ramona Lopez Sun, Vicente Buysen, Eugenio Guevarra, Gabriela Walstromm, and her daughter Gilda.

The President was presented with a lei from the Filipino community in Hawaii by Mrs. Evaristo Fernandez, who arrived recently. Mrs. Fernandez was accompanied to Malacañang by Justice Jose Ma. Paredes and Mesdames Socorro Diez and Josefa N. Pastor.

Then the President conferred briefly with Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo, who consulted the President on matters concerning the veterans of the revolution.

The President received callers until 2 p.m.

PRESIDENT Garcia conferred today with Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason and PC Deputy Chief Col. Flaviano Olivares in connection with the riots in Muntinlupa which resulted in the death of 13 inmates and the serious wounding of several others.

Upon learning of the riots the President contacted Secretary Tuason by telephone and inquired from him what steps had been taken to stop the riots and to prevent their recurrence.

Secretary Tuason informed the President that he had been to Muntinlupa during the riot and, that some 50 PC soldiers led by Brig. Gen. Juan Relosa had gone to the riot scene to quell it. Tuason said that the riot had been stopped when he left the Muntinlupa prison.

The President inquired from Secretary Tuason why the violent type of prisoners who had been involved in the first riot had not been segregated in isolation cells. Tuason said that there were no isolation cells to keep these violent type of prisoners for disciplinary action. The President was also informed that the guards were not enough to take care of the inmates and that there were not enough buildings to house them.

President Garcia requested Secretary Tuason to submit a full report on the Muntinglupa riots during the Cabinet meeting on Wednesday so that necessary remedial measures could be taken to prevent the recurrence of such riots.

The President also talked by telephone with Col. Olivares and asked what steps had been taken by the Constabulary. Olivares informed the President that he had dispatched two PC platoons to the Muntinglupa prison to stop the riots. He said that he would make a full report to the President on the incidents later.

IN the evening the President received a delegation from the Alliance of Philippine Tabloids, an association of publishers, editors, and staff members of tabloid newspapers, to reiterate their pledge of cooperation to the Administration.

During the call, the delegation informed the President of a fund-raising project being undertaken by their organization for the construction of a gymnasium for inmates of the Welfareville Correctional Institutions. The President started the fund drive by contributing ₱500.

Headed by Manuel Ramos, alliance president, the group included Fausto Candano, secretary; Vito Barcelo, treasurer; Pacifico Arceo, auditor; Juanito Sagun and Francisco Ramos, directors; Ramon Paquengan, Jose Marasigan, Pol Serato, Mabini Esteban, and Vic Marasigan, members.

The President also received Alexander Calhoun, vice-president of the First National City Bank of New York who is on a brief visit in Manila. Accompanied to Malacañang by Irving Sperring, manager of the NCBY local branch, and Sen. Gil Puyat, Calhoun, who had been for many years NCBY manager in Manila, recalled some of his experiences as an internee at the Japanese prison camp in Los Baños, Laguna, during the occupation.

The Chief Executive received callers from 5 to 8:30 p.m. Among his last visitors were Rep. Bartolome Cabangbang of Bohol, CAA Administrator Urbano Caldoza, Dr. Manuel Quimpo of Capiz, and former Gov. Paciencia G. Ysalina of Misamis Oriental.

THE President upon learning today of the results of the elections of the National Press Club officials, sent a wire of congratulations to the victorious candidates.

In his telegram to Francisco Dipasupil, elected NPC president, President Garcia said he was extending his hearty congratulations to "you and all the other elected officials of the National Press Club."

The President added, "Yours is a well-deserved triumph and I join all of your fellow newspapermen in wishing your administration great success, hoping that your administration will continue to bring about more benefits to the Fourth Estate."

President Garcia directed today Brig. Gen. Pedro Q. Molina, PAF chief, to send immediately a plane to airlift Felipe Nunez, who had been stabbed in the chest from Iligan City.

The President received a telegram from Gov. Salvador Lluch of Lanao requesting immediate evacuation of Nuñez, who received a penetrating wound in the chest.

Nuñez is the son of the chief detective of Iligan City.

February 18.—PRESIDENT Garcia this day discussed with the Council of Leaders the general program of legislation for this year and arrived at a full understanding on the working relationship between the Executive and Congress.

During the first meeting of the President with the Council of Leaders which was held aboard the Std. Maria, the latter promised to support the economic program of the Administration.

Regarding the question of revenues, it was agreed that Congress would try to exhaust all means of improving government revenues through a more effective system of collecting taxes to cover the mandatory obligations of the government amounting to some ₱265 million, before resorting to new levies, if necessary.

The conference discussed ways and means of improving the collection of revenues such as increasing the personnel engaged in this work and providing a check-up system on the appraisers and examiners divisions in the Bureau of Customs.

The Congress leaders promised to pass a price control bill substantially the same as the one submitted by the Chief Executive. The bill will contain whatever additional provisions as may be found advisable after the public hearings on the measure now going on have been held.

Another point of agreement during the conference was that some austerity restrictions on public works financed from the general funds will be lifted as soon as government funds show improvement to warrant such lifting.

It was understood during the conference that consultation between the President and the Council of Leaders on changes in the Cabinet will be made in the next meeting. This meeting is scheduled for next week.

With President Garcia presiding, the meeting was attended by Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., Senate President Pro-Tempore Fernando Lopez, Senate Majority Floor Leader Cipriano Primicias, Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, Speaker Pro-Tempore Constancio E. Castaneda, and House Majority Floor Leader Jose M. Aldeguer.

The conference started with a breakfast at 9 a.m. at the President's cabin. The meeting was held behind closed doors. At 9:30 a.m. Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo and Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano joined the conference.

The conference lasted until luncheon which was served at the yacht's salon, after which the conferees returned to the President's cabin. The conference ended at 3 p.m.

President Garcia said that he would meet more frequently with Congress leaders, tentatively scheduling these meetings twice a month.

In the evening, President Garcia received aboard the Sta. Maria a group of sugar planters headed by Alfredo Montelibano. The President spent the night aboard the yacht where he studied state papers he took with him.

February 19.—PRESIDENT Garcia stayed aboard the presidential yacht the whole morning today, resting after a hectic six-hour conference with the Council of Leaders yesterday.

A Malacañang spokesman said the President stayed aboard the yacht Santa Maria in order that he could devote his time to pending state papers which had piled up.

Assistant Executive Secretary Sofronio Quimson took the papers to the yacht this morning.

There were reports the President conferred with Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona. However, the reports were not confirmed by the Malacañang press office.

Unofficial sources said the President had summoned Commissioner Aytona .to the yacht for a conference.

It was intimated that Aytona briefed the President on the developments in Congress on his ₱1.03 billion budget for the next fiscal year.

The presidential summons on Aytona also touched off speculations that the budget commissioner may be named secretary of finance shortly, vice Secretary of Finance Jaime Hernandez, who is retiring from the government soon.

THE President left the boat shortly after 5 p.m. and was late for the Cabinet meeting at Malacañang.

In the absence of the President, Secretary of Justice Pedro Tuason started the Cabinet meeting.

Upon the President's arrival, Tuason yielded the chair to him.

The President started the meeting by naming a nine-man committee to prepare for the national observance of the first anniversary of the death of President Magsaysay.

President Garcia said that fitting honors should be given to the man who had restored the Nacionalista Party to power.

He named Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo as head of the committee and recalled officials close to the late President to be members of the body.

With Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo as chairman, the committee is composed of Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas, Education Secretary Manuel Lim, Sen. Emmanuel Pelaez, Rep. Sergio Omena, Jr., which was Cebu provincial governor at the time of the tragic plane crash, Justice Fred Ruiz Castro of the Court of Appeals, Gov. Manuel Barretto of Zambales, the president of the National Press Club of the Philippines, and former Press Secretary J. V. Cruz.

The President also touched on the controversial copra-rice barter deal with a Hongkong firm, following reports that the transaction was heading for the rocks.

When he asked Secretary of Commerce Pedro C. Hernaez, the President was informed that the deal was on.

However, the four-man committee headed by Hernaez's assistant, Ramon B. Lacson, did not arrive in Manila as expected. The committee members were reported still in Bangkok.

The President had previously told a press conference that the four-man committee was scheduled to arrive in Manila last Saturday.

President Garcia and the members of his Cabinet also approved the purchase with dollars of 23,000 metric tons of Saigon rice.

The price was $125 per metric ton, five dollars higher than the quotation offered by Nam Chiao Hong of Hongkong in the controversial copra-rice barter deal.

A Malacañang observer said he hope that the deal would not go through the Senate Blue Ribbon committee for investigation.

Then the Cabinet discussion switched to the prison riotings. Touching on the problem of homo-sexuality among inmates, solutions were reported offered.

However, the solution suggested by Secretary Hernaez was placed "off the record."

February 20.—PRESIDENT Garcia received Dr. John Hanna, president of the Michigan State University, who bade goodbye prior to his departure for the United States after a three-day stay in the country.

Dr. Hanna headed a special survey team of educators who were contracted by the University of the Philippines to review its administration planning.

The Chief Executive was informed by Hanna that the team would recommend to the U. P. board of regents some policies, procedures, plans for campus development, and other vital aspects concerning the administration of the U. P.

Hanna said that he was coming back to resume working with two other members, William T. Middlebrook and Floyd Reeves, vice-president of the University of Minnesota and administrative assistant of the Michigan State University, respectively, who are staying to continue the survey.

Dr. Hanna was accompanied to Malacañang by U. S. Ambassador Charles Bohlen and Paul Summers, local ICA chief.

The President also received at the Malacañang study room the other scheduled callers consisting mostly of congressmen and provincial governors who requested aid for public works improvements in their respective localities.

Quezon Gov. Leon Guinto, Sr., together with Fabian Millar, consulted the Chief Executive on matters, concerning electric power in their province.

Sorsogon Gov. Juan Frivaldo requested the extension of the Manila Railroad to Sorsogon.

Pangasinan Gov. Conrado Estrella presented resolutions from residents of different towns of Pangasinan requesting feeder roads and other public improvements.

Nueva Vizcaya Gov. Jose Espino reported to the President some land disputes in his province.

Earlier, the President received from Sen. Domocao Alonto a carved chess set with an Egyptian theme which was a gift from Pulong Arpa, Philippine minister to Egypt.

Then the President received Rep. Sergio Osmeña, Jr., who discussed matters affecting the second district of Cebu.

Oriental Negros Gov. Serafin Teves and Rep. Lamberto Macias requested aid for public school teachers in their province.

Other callers included Catanduanes Gov. Juan Alberto, Reps. Marcelino Veloso of Leyte, Salipada Pendatun of Cotabato, and Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan.

The President also received Norman S. Marsh and Edward Kozera, secretary general and administrative secretary of the International Commission of Jurists, respectively, who paid a courtesy call. Marsh and Kozera, who arrived recently, are on their way to attend the UN seminar on human rights in Baguio.

The visiting ICJ officials were accompanied to Malacañang by Arturo Alafriz, president of the Philippine Lawyers Association, Tomas Barnes, Eliseo Tenza, and Angelica Belarmino.

The last caller received by the President was Manila Rep. Ramon Bagatsing, who requested aid for the construction of a health center in the district of San Miguel.

The President received callers until 2 p.m.

PRESIDENT Garcia received the letters of credence of Dr. Daniel Lewin as envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the state of Israel to the Philippines in a ceremony held in Malacañang this afternoon.

In accepting the credentials, the President recalled that the Philippines and Israel had always taken the same side in the current ideological conflict. He expressed confidence that the two countries would continue to do their part “in the common task of keeping the bulwarks of democracy.”

Minister Lewin, in presenting his letters of credence, said that the people of his country will not forget the “sympathetic understanding which the Philippine delegation has shown during the discussions at the United Nations Assembly in Israel’s difficult hour.” He assured the President he would do his best to assist in the continuation and strengthening of the happy relations existing between their two countries.

Following the ceremony, the President and the new envoy offered a toast for the continued friendly relations between the Philippines and the Israeli governments. The toast was made with basi, which has become the official “austerity ceremonial wine” in Malacañang.

Present at the ceremonies were Foreign Secretary Felixberto Serrano, Ministers Tomas de Castro and Juan Arreglado, Assistant Executive Secretary Nicanor Jimenez, Presidential Protocol Officer Manuel Zamora, Counsellors Benjamin Tirona and Jose Espino, Assistant Protocol Officer-Pedro Angara of the foreign affairs office, and Lt. Col. Emilio Borromeo, chief presidential aide.

Minister Lewin succeeded Minister Yaacov Shimon, who had been reassigned by his home government (following a one-year tour of duty in this country. Lewin is concurrently ambassador of his country to Burma.

Accompanied by Consul General Ernest E. Simke, the new envoy arrived at Malacañang for the ceremonies at exactly 5 p.m. After inspecting an honor guard formed at the Palace main door, he was led up to the ceremonial hall where the President and other Philippine government officials received him. Lewin was presented to the Chief Executive by Chief Protocol Officer Jose Estrada of the Department of Foreign Affairs.

The ceremony lasted about 20 minutes.

PRESIDENT Garcia in the evening pledged his administration to an expanded program of social amelioration in the rural areas as a basis for building a “progressive, happy, and enduring Philippine nation.”

He made the pledge in an address before the members of the Knights of Rizal at a dinner at the Manila Hotel shortly after he was conferred the Knight Grand Cross by the organization.

The President paid tribute to Dr. Jose Rizal as the “father of social justice in our country.” He said, “Every aspect of our present program of mass uplift was a facet of his deed and dream for the common man.”

He declared that his administration is resolved to continue and, if possible, to accelerate and expand the rural uplift program of the late President Magsaysay.

“This resolve,” President Garcia said, “is not only buttressed by our desire to keep faith with Rizal and the other patriots who made the supreme sacrifice that our people may rise from degradation and poverty to dignity and prosperity; it is also dictated by our loyalty to democracy, that kind government which alone permits the respect for human rights and the observance of human dignity for which Rizal died that his people may live to enjoy.”

Explaining his social justice program, the President said he will carry on the program of the late President Magsaysay of building artesian wells, barrio roads, barrio schools, and mobile health clinics, and of purchasing big landed estates for distribution to the landless.

He said only financial limitations will deter the Administration towards the improvement of the lot of the masses.

He took occasion to laud the aims of the Knights of Rizal. He urged them to translate their oaths into a positive living reality.

THE President signed today Proclamation No. 490, declaring Friday, February 21, as Seeds for Democracy Day.

In the proclamation the President said that the Seeds for Democracy program, which was participated in by 13 civic groups, has been greatly instrumental in strengthening democracy in the rural areas.

A Seeds for Democracy convention will be held on February 21 and 22, 1958, for the purpose of intensifying the participation of the member civic organizations in the implementation of the various community development programs.

February 21.—PRESIDENT Garcia was informed today that Manila hemp is still the world's best fiber for rope-making and that the product is in great demand in the world market, particularly in the United States.

The information was transmitted by Spencer Brewster, vice-president of the Plymouth Cordage Company, Plymouth, Massachusetts, who paid a courtesy call this morning following his arrival in Manila recently in the course of an observation tour in the Far East.

Brewster was accompanied to Malacañang by Frank P. Hill, vice-president of the Macleod and Co. of the Philippines; Robin Duncan, vice-president and general manager of the Conrad and Co.; Merle S. Robie, vice-president and general manager of the Columbian Rope Co.; and Luis Concepcion, secretary of the Philippine Fiber Association.

The President also received members of the League of Philippine Architects who pledged "its manpower and resources through the scientific use of professional and technological knowledge, skill, and experience in helping the Administration realize its ends."

The pledge of the architects was contained in a plaque which was handed to the Chief Executive by Mel V. Calderon, LPA president. Also present were LPA officers, including Nicanor Bautista, vice-president; Jose Vibar, Jr., secretary; Benedicto Laygo, treasurer; and Directors Ernesto Baylon, Jr., Leonardo Majul, Philip Wisca, Bibiano Valbuena, Terry Sanz Frial, Fritz Ruiz, Jesus Casuso, and Edilberto Florentino.

Then the President received representatives of 13 civic organization who took part in the Seeds for Democracy Day program. They presented the Chief Executive with different kinds of vegetables, the products of the seeds sent by different civic organizations of America sometime last year in connection with the Seeds for Democracy program.

The civic organization represented in this morning's call were the Boys and Girls Scouts, the Jaycees, the Lion's Club, the Federation of Free Farmers, the Salvation Army, the 4-H Clubs, the Asia Foundation, the Social Welfare Administration, the Catholic Action, the YMCA, the YWCA, and the Philippine Federation of Christian Churches. Mrs. Paz Catolico of the National Federation of Women's Clubs headed the group.

In expressing his gratitude to the representatives of the 13 civic organizations, the President said the program was in line with the Administration's food production campaign.

Members of the Philippine Boxing Association headed by Mamerto Besa, PBA president, also called at Malacañang to consult the President on matters affecting the boxing profession.

Jose H. Mendoza of Naga City informed the President that he will donate to the national government parcels of land in his city as sites for a motor pool, schoolhouse, and a post office. Mendoza was accompanied by Mesdames Lita Corpus and Rosita Piñera.

Then the President received members of the Rangay, a national Ilocano civic organization, who likewise pledged their support to the Administration. The group included Willie Jurado, president, and Jose de los Reyes, Eddie Florentino, and Theo Paruganan, officers.

R. Ingrisch, executive vice-president of the Binney and Smith Incorporated of New York, paid a courtesy call following his arrival recently in Manila in the course of an observation tour. Ingrisch was accompanied to Malacañang by Hilarion G. Henares, and R. E. Thompson, presidents of the H. G. Henares and Sons and the Wm. Reynolds Co., Inc., of the Philippines, respectively.

THE President was irked again during his weekly press conference today.

Swamped with questions on the controversial copra-rice barter deal, the President, at one time, showed exasperation and waved aside a newsman's question, saying the subject had already been thoroughly covered.

Touching on the status of Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal, the President pointed out that if the Liberal Party leader wanted to join his Cabinet, he "must toe the line."

It was a stiff imposition on the Vice-President; who was virtually told to refrain from criticizing the Administration if he wanted to be a member of the Cabinet. The President said that Macapagal's criticism of the Administration had virtually killed his chance of getting a Cabinet portfolio.

The President also received the new officers of the National Press Club headed by President-elect Francisco C. Dipasupil of the Manila Chronicle.

He told them he was willing to induct them on March 3.

In the morning, the President received Secretary of Foreign Affairs Felixberto M. Serrano in the President's bedroom.

Asked at the press, conference what was taken up at the bedroom conference, President Garcia expressed surprise on the penetrating coverage of Malacañang newsmen.

"I do not know" he told the newsmen, "how you learn of my bedroom conferences."

The President also conferred with Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno and decided to lift the ban against public works construction.

President Garcia had stopped all public works construction to enable the budget commissioner to tap savings to cover the expected deficit in this year's budget.

In the evening, the President motored to the Manila Hotel to address the awards dinner of the Business Writers Association of the Philippines. (See pp. 945-951, Historical Papers and Documents, for the full text of the President's speech.)

From the BWAP dinner, the President motored to the Philippine Navy headquarters where he boarded the presidential yacht Santa Maria for his second trip to Bohol, his home province, after the last presidential elections.

February 22.—THE President today signed an executive order implementing the reorganization of the Department of Health. The reorganization would bring health services of the government closer to the people, especially to those of the rural areas.

As reorganized, the Department of Health will have two undersecretaries and five bureaus.

Reorganization of the Department of Health was made with the following essential objectives: (1) decentralization which will permit expeditious conduct of business of public health at local levels or at areas of operations;

(2) avoiding duplication of functions at all levels; (3) better distribution of manpower resources for maximum coverage and strategic performance; (4) better coordination of all services; (5) economy in Operations; and (6) more time for policy and program planning and determination at central level.

Two undersecretaries in the revamped of the department will be, one for health and medical services and one for special health services. The five bureaus will be the Bureau of Health Services which will replace the present Bureau of Health, the Bureau of Medical Services which will replace the present Bureau of Hospitals, the Bureau of Disease Control which is new but will absorb the divisions of malaria, tuberculosis, sanatoria, social hygiene, cancer control, and mental hygiene, the Bureau of Quarantine, and the Bureau of Research and Laboratories.

The undersecretary for health and medical services will supervise the Bureaus of Health Services, Disease Control, and Field Operation in general. The undersecretary for special health services will supervise the Bureaus of Quarantine, Research, and Laboratories.

As a result of the revamp, 800 positions in Manila will be transferred to regional offices in the field. Two offices directly under the Department of Health will be the Office of Administrative Services and the Office of Health Education and Personnel Training. Three new divisions will be the Division of Statistics, Cancer Control, and Mental Hygiene.

Another important feature of the revamp is the transfer of existing medical and health functions of other executive departments to the Department of Health. It was pointed out that with the new setup, the secretary of health will have adequate means and facilities for controlling administrative functions of the department at top level.

The President had breakfast with his family on the deck. After breakfast he went over state papers he carried with him on the ship. He busied himself again with state papers after having lunch with the family.

February 23.—PRESIDENT Garcia formally opened the 1958 Bureau of Public Schools Interscholastic Athletic Association Meet in Tagbilaran, Bohol, this afternoon. He said that the interscholastic meet will be held annually beginning this year.

He expressed the hope that with the improved BPSIAA, the Philippines would be able to reconquer its records in past Olympics and Asian games. He counseled participating athletes and encouraged them to win for their respective teams.

The President also congratulated officials of the Bureau of Public School and of Bohol for what he called “one of the most successful BPSIAA meets in several years.”

The President was introduced by Education Secretary Manuel Dim, who recommended the annual holding of the meet and the improvement of school playgrounds and athletic fields. Other speakers at the opening ceremonies were Acting Bohol Gov. Esteban Bernido and Public Schools Director Benigno Aldana.

The President and the First Lady arrived at Tagbilaran Athletic Field at 8:30 p.m. amid the cheers of thousands gathered at the field.

Earlier in the morning, the President and family heard mass on board the presidential yacht Sta. Maria. The mass was said on deck by Fr. Mariano Gaviola. After the mass, the Chief Executive had breakfast with his family on board the yacht. The President had a press conference after breakfast, just before the yacht docked at Tagbilaran.

The President and party arrived in Tagbilaran about 9:30 a.m. A large crowd and the sounding of sirens greeted them at the wharf. A 21-gun salute boomed as the President went down the gangplank, Gov. Bernido led provincial officials who met the President.

After reviewing a Constabulary guard of honor with Brig. Gen. Cornelio Bondad, Gov. Bernido, and Commodore Jose Francisco, and led by Major Jose Estrella, the President proceeded to his residence in Tagbilaran where he had lunch. After a brief rest the President proceeded to the athletic field where he opened the BPSIAA meet.

February 24.—UPON orders of President Garcia an emergency patient was airlifted today from Romblon to Manila for treatment.

The President gave the order upon receiving a telegram from Leovegildo Villanueva, municipal health officer of Cajidiocan, Romblon, who stated that the patient, Adela Rabino, who was suffering from ectopic pregnancy, had to be flown to Manila for treatment.

The PAF authorities dispatched an Albatross to airlift the patient. The plane was piloted by Captains Oscar Bautista and Rafael Ravina.

PRESIDENT Garcia sent a message of condolence today to Mrs. Dolores Pimentel on the death of her husband, Narciso Pimentel, Sr., former secretary of the Lower House.

The full text of the President's message sent to the Pimentel residence in San Juan, Rizal, follows:

"I have just received word of the passing, away of your husband whose dedication to public service I have always admired. Please accept my heartfelt sympathies. I am sure his colleagues and all members of Congress will miss him and will deeply feel the irreparable loss caused by his untimely demise.

"Mrs. Garcia joins me in being with you in your hour of bereavement."

THIS afternoon the President signed the appointments of Oscar Illustre and Lucio Javier as members of the board of examiners for sanitary engineers. Illustre's term will expire on September 22, 1960, while that of Javier' will end September 2, 1959.

PRESIDENT Garcia saw his team, the East Visayan nine, drop a heart-breaker to the southern Tagalog baseball team at the interscholastic meet in Tagbilaran, Bohol, this morning.

However, President Garcia said, he was not "altogether disheartened" by the defeat, as the winning team hailed from, the southern Tagalog provinces, bailiwick of his son-in-law, Fernando Campos.

President Garcia, the First Lady, their daughter Linda and her husband, Fernando Campos, spent the morning watching the 1958 Bureau of Public Schools Interscholastic games which the President opened yesterday afternoon. They were accompanied by Education Secretary Lim and aides.

After the baseball game, President Garcia had lunch with Secretary Lim in his residence in Tagbilaran. He also received newsmen and nurses from Davao.

He returned to the ball park in the afternoon. President Garcia and his party are scheduled to leave Bohol aboard the yacht Sta. Maria at midnight tonight.

CAPT. Francisco H. Calinawan was appointed special assistant to the President on performance and efficiency, Malacañang announced today.

The announcement said that Calinawan will be sort of an executive aide to the President with instructions to meet and confer with chiefs of government agencies for the purpose of:

- (1) Following up and expediting the implementation of presidential directives;
- (2) Imparting, to them the views and attitudes of the President on various matters concerning their departments; and
- (3) Bringing to the attention of the President major problems of the agencies which need immediate consideration of the Chief Executive.

Capt. Calinawan acted as temporary chairman of a group of executives of government owned and controlled corporations which the President recently mobilized to boost his austerity and increased production campaign. He also received instructions from the President to take part in the deliberations of a four-man management committee recently created from among 18 government firms to step up the campaign.

A civil engineer, Calinawan is an officer in the AFP corps of engineers. He took engineering in the University of the Philippines and law in the University of San Carlos in Cebu. He is a graduate of advance military engineering at Fort Belvoir, Virginia (USA). A Bataan veteran, he was chief of plans and operations of the Combat Engineer Group and chief of the planning division, G-4, GHQ. He had been called to Malacañang together, with Assistant Executive Secretary Nicanor T. Jimenez, in April of last year by President Garcia.

The Malacañang performance and efficiency officer is 37 years old, hails from Cagayan de Oro City. He is married to the former Julia G. Abais of Cebu City.

February 25.—PRESIDENT Garcia today brushed aside pleas of the First Lady that they stay in Tagbilaran, Bohol, for another that day. The President told newsmen he wanted to leave Bohol as he was being pestered by jobseekers.

The President boarded the yacht Sta. Maria yesterday afternoon and feted friends aboard the vessel until departure at midnight last night.

He woke up early this morning and, after breakfast, played chess with acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison and Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo.

After lunch with the First Lady, President Garcia received newsmen in a brief conference.

In the afternoon, he listened to a string band of the Presidential Guards Battallion which played aboard the yacht.

February 26.—THE President returned at 9:30 a.m. today from a five-day trip to Tagbilaran, Bohol, where he opened the national interscholastic athletic meet.

Upon reaching the Philippine Navy wharf, the President was swamped with visitors and was informed immediately of the brewing rebellion in Congress where a move to impeach him has been started.

Others came to unburden their personal problems, causing the President to delay his debarkation from the presidential yacht Santa Maria.

However, the President appeared rested on the return trip during which he conferred with Govs. Bernardo Torres of Leyte and Alejo Santos of Bulacan.

In the morning, upon waking up, the President was informed by Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo, who was with him aboard the yacht, that one of his staunch political supporters in Bohol had died of heart failure.

Pajo said that Eladio Balili, the heart victim, had supported the political fights of President Garcia in Bohol.

Immediately upon receiving the news, the President wired his message of condolence to Balili's bereaved family. Pajo also joined the President in condoling with the relatives of the Bohol trader.

The President was accompanied by the First Lady and a host of Boholanos.

The First Lady headed those who heard mass aboard the boat before the presidential party disembarked.

Upon reaching the Palace, the President conferred with his aides and immediately directed Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable to arrange a breakfast conference with Congress leaders for Tuesday.

He decided on the conference to prevent the trouble brewing in Congress from getting out of hand.

In Malacañang the President was reported to have gone over the agenda to be followed at the scheduled Cabinet meeting this afternoon.

He presided over the weekly session of the Cabinet which he opened at five o'clock at the Council of State room.

The President discussed several problems topped by the rice issue, following the failure of the controversial copra-rice barter deal to go through.

The Cabinet meeting ended at 9:30 o'clock in the evening.

THE Cabinet at its meeting this afternoon approved the draft of a basic agreement proposed between the Philippines and the UNESCO in Paris on the program of participation in the activities of the member states covering assistance in the educational, cultural, and social fields.

Under this program, aid may be made available to member states in the form of (1) specialists, (2) equipment and documentation, (3) fellowships, and (4) aid to national or regional seminars.

The basic agreement should first be signed by the Philippine Government before the UNESCO in Paris could extend to this country assistance under the regular program.

The Cabinet also approved a program of activities for the commemoration of the first anniversary of the death of President Ramon Magsaysay on March 17. The program had been prepared by a committee to take charge of the proper observance of the day.

The Department of Education may hold programs in different schools for about 30 minutes to last up to high noon for the observance of one minute silent prayer. From reveille to high noon, flags of all government buildings and installations throughout the Philippines shall be flown at halfmast.

Provincial governors and city mayors will be advised of this observance. The Department of Foreign Affairs will request all Philippine embassies and missions abroad to observe one minute silent prayer at high noon.

The Cabinet also approved the issuance of a presidential proclamation making March 17 this year a special public holiday in the province of Zambales and the city of Cebu. The holiday in Zambales was recommended by Gov. Manuel Barreto while that in Cebu was requested by civic organizations which will observe the day by laying the cornerstone of a monument which the organizations will construct on Plaza Independencia in that city.

The families of the 25 other crash victims will be invited to all these ceremonies to be held for the occasion. Office hours on that day will begin at 9 a.m., in order to enable employees and workers to participate in the religious services.

In the course of the discussions the President signed the administrative order creating the committee to take charge of the observance. The committee is composed of Executive Secretary Juan .C. Pajo, chairman; Secretary Jesus Vargas, vice-chairman; Secretary Manuel Lim, Senator Emmanuel Pelaez, Rep. Sergio Osmeña, Jr., Justice Fred Ruiz Castro, Gov. Manuel Barreto, former Press Secretary J. V. Cruz, and NPC President Francisco Dipasupil, members.

February 21.—THE President received from Vietnamese Minister Cao Thai Bao the letter of President Ngo Dinh Diem of Vietnam accepting President Garcia's invitation to be a state guest here.

During the call, the President and Minister Bao discussed the itinerary of the Vietnamese chief executive during his stay here sometime in March.

Present during the call were Manuel Zamora and Jose Estrada, protocol officers of Malacañang and the Department of Foreign Affairs, respectively.

Earlier, the President received Gale Johnston, vice-president of the Mercantile National Bank of St. Louis and his sons, Gale, Jr., and Northwick, who paid a courtesy call following their arrival in Manila recently in the course of a worldwide tour.

The Johnstons were accompanied to Malacañang by Jose Cojuangco and F. de la Costa, president and executive vice-president of the Philippine Bank of Commerce, respectively, and Jose Fernandez.

The President also received Donald M. Kendall and Samuel Desch, president and executive vice-president of the Pepsi-Cola International, respectively, who likewise paid a courtesy call following their arrival recently in the course of a Far East observation tour.

The Pepsi-Cola executives were accompanied to Malacañang by Sen. Pedro Sabido and George Anadelle, president of the local Pepsi-Cola company.

Other callers consisted mostly of provincial executives and a few congressmen requesting aid for public works and other improvements for their respective localities.

The callers included Camarines Sur Gov. Juan Triviño; Gov. Jesus Almero and Rep. Emilio Espinosa, Jr., of Masbate; Pampanga Gov. Rafael Lazatin; and Reps. Canuto Enerio and Cipriano Primicias, Jr. of Zamboanga del Sur and Pangasinan, respectively.

Capiz Gov. Jose Dinglasan requested funds for the purchase of an ambulance for the Mamburao Emergency Hospital, while Romblon Gov. Manuel Solidum requested assistance for the marble industry development in his province.

Congressman Salipada Pendatun accompanied Cotabato Gov. Datu Ugtug Matalam, who headed a delegation of town mayors. Aside from requesting aid for public works improvements in their respective municipalities, the members of the delegation expressed their gratitude to the Chief Executive for the announced plan to push through the reclaiming project of the Liguasan Marsh in Cotabato.

The Cotabato delegation consisted of Tamba Mayor C. Dumamba, Buluan Mayor S. Mangelen, Gen. Santos Mayor P. Acheron, Makilala Mayor R. Ipong, Midsayap Mayor E. Sedeño, and Tupi Mayor A. Balisi.

PRESIDENT Garcia sent the following message of condolence today to Mrs. Ruperto Kangleon on the occasion of the death of Sen. Kangleon;

“I was deeply grieved to hear of the passing of your beloved husband this morning. Both as a soldier and as a legislator who gave the best years of his life in the service of his people, Senator Kangleon will be fondly remembered. There is no doubt that the country has lost a dedicated public servant in his death. As I hasten to extend to you my heartfelt condolence I also join his colleagues in the Senate in mourning his passing.”

IN the afternoon the President received medical practitioners who requested the restoration of the dollar allocations for the importation of drugs, medicine, and medical supplies.

The delegation was composed of Dr. Francisco Duque, president of the Philippine Medical Association; Dr. Ramon Atienza, president of the Philippine Federation of Private Medical Practitioners; Dr. Rosita Rivera-Ramirez, president of the Philippine Medical Women’s Association; Dr. Guillermo del Castillo, president of the Philippine Hospital Association; Dr. Laureano Marquez, president of the Philippine Veterinary Medical Association; Dr. Genaro Felizardo, vice-president of the Philippine Dental Association; and Dr. Manuel Martinez Gil, secretary-treasurer of the PFPMP.

The delegation said that the 52 per cent cut for importers and 28 per cent for producers of existing dollar allocations will cause an acute shortage by next June of vital medicine.

President Garcia informed the members of the delegation that he would endorse the matter to the Central Bank for top priority if the international reserves of the country continue the upward swing.

After receiving the medical practitioners, the President left by car for Baguio City, where he will speak before the delegates to the UN seminar on human rights tomorrow.

February 28.—PRESIDENT Garcia today hailed the United Nations Seminar on the Protection of Human Rights in Criminal Law and Procedure, saying that “the participating nations have consistently striven to give meaning and substance to the basic human rights enumerated in the Declaration of Human Rights.”

The President addressed the delegates to the UN seminar at the closing ceremonies of their nine-day session held at the Pines Hotel in Baguio.

Justice Undersecretary Jesus Barrera, seminar chairman and head of the Philippine delegation, introduced the Chief Executive as the man who, as vice-president and concurrently secretary of foreign affairs, had been mainly responsible for the holding of the seminar on human rights in this country, the first ever held under the auspices of the United Nations and participated in by 17 nations. Barrera recalled it was President Garcia, then secretary of foreign affairs, who had extended the invitation to the UN Secretary-General for the holding of the first seminar here.

Other speakers at this morning’s ceremony were Judge Aung Khine of High Court of Burma and Chief Justice Ernest Williams of Sarawak, North Borneo, and Brunei who expressed gratitude, on behalf of the delegates, to the President and the Filipino people for their generosity in making the delegates’ stay here pleasant and memorable. They said the holding of the first UN seminar here showed how highly the Philippine Government and people regarded the protection of human rights.

The President and his party arrived at the Pines City at 11 o’clock last night after a five-hour motor trip from Manila. Waking up early this morning, the President had breakfast with members of the Philippine delegation to the seminar who had come to the Guest House to fetch him.

Arriving at the seminar hall at the Pines Hotel about 9:30 a.m., the President was met by chiefs of the various delegations of participating countries, headed by John P. Humphrey, director of the Division of Human Rights of the United Nations. The President's speech lasted about 20 minutes. (See the next issue of the Official Gazette, for the full text of the President's speech.)

From the Pines Hotel, the President dropped in at the new zoo recently put up by Baguio as added tourist attraction. He returned to the Guest House shortly before noon.

After lunch the President boarded a car and went down to San Fernando airfield (La Unión), where he took a plane for Bitulok airstrip in Nueva Ecija. There he transferred to a U. S. Navy helicopter which conveyed him aboard the USS Rochester, flagship of the USN Seventh Fleet, out in Dingalan Bay to observe "Operations Strongback", which will be climaxed with the landing of 80,000 Filipino and American marines at Dingalan beach tomorrow morning. The President is a guest of Admiral Herbert Hopwood, commander of the USN Pacific Fleet, aboard the flagship during the massive maneuvers said to be the biggest ever undertaken since the end of World War II.

President's Month in Review: March 1-15, 1958

OFFICIAL MONTH IN REVIEW

March 1.— PRESIDENT Garcia said today that the very successful staging of "Operation Strongback" by the armed forces of the Philippines and the United States was one more palpable demonstration of the determination of both countries to live up to their commitments in their mutual defense pact.

In the course of his inspection tour of the beachhead area where the USN Seventh Fleet landed a large contingent of Filipino and American forces along Dingalan Bay in the biggest maneuver held in the Pacific since the end of World War II, the President said that the military exercises had shown precise and complete coordination between the two teams.

He continued: "They served notice that if and when necessary, the Philippines and America are ready to meet jointly the threat of any aggressor nation. I am sure that this event has contributed to the maintenance of peace and security in this part of the world."

Congratulating some 80,000 officers and men who had participated in the operations for their excellent performance, the President said: "Their invaluable experience will go a long way in the mutual defense preparations of the Philippines and the United States."

Accompanied by Admiral Herbert Hopwood, commander-in-chief of the USN Pacific Fleet, who had flown from Honolulu to watch the maneuvers, and Vice-Admiral Wallace Beakley, commander of the USN 7th Fleet, the President cruised around Dingalan Bay, where more than 100 ships consisting of aircraft carriers, cruisers, destroyers, submarines, landing crafts of various sizes, and other auxiliary vessels were spread over an area 22 miles wide and 12 miles deep in support of the combine amphibious exercises. The President was very much impressed with the precision with which wave after wave of landing crafts carrying troops, supplies, and equipment stormed the beaches in simulated amphibious attacks.

The President was also gratified with the efficiency of the Philippine naval and ground forces which coordinated with the US forces in the concerted effort to drive away an imaginary aggressor which had established itself in Central Luzon area. The exercises was, however, marred by inclement weather which had prevented the participation of more than 1,000 jet fighter planes and bombers of the Philippine and American forces.

Also at the maneuvers were Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas, Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, Sen. Gil J. Puyat, Reps. Bartolome Cabangbang of Bohol and Lorenzo Teves of Negros Oriental, U. S. Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen, and Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff.

After addressing the delegates to the UN seminar on human rights at the Pines Hotel yesterday, the President motored down to the San Fernando (La Union) airport, where he boarded a U. S. Navy plane for Bitulok airstrip in Nueva Ecija. He originally intended to take the plane in Loakan airport in Baguio City for Dingalan Bay, but low hanging clouds which completely covered the field about noontime prevented him from doing so.

Arriving at Bitulok at 3:30 p.m., the President boarded a U. S. Navy helicopter which conveyed him to the USS Rochester, a heavy cruiser, out on Dingalan Bay, used by Admiral Beakley as his flagship during the exercises. He spent the night aboard the heavy cruiser as guest of Admiral Hopwood.

This morning the President transferred to a light-vessel, the RPS Ifugao, a Philippine Navy ship participating in the maneuvers.

From the ship's bridge, the President, together with Admiral Hopwood and Admiral Beakley and Filipino officials, watched the massive operations.

About 10 a.m., the President's party landed at the beach and, boarding an Army jeep, toured the perimeter already "secured" by the Philippine-U.S. troops.

The President was surprised by the large quantities of men and materials landed from the ships within a short time. In the course of his inspection tour, the President's jeep was stopped several time by MP's who were not aware of his presence in the area. He also noted the efficiency of the MPs which directed large number of vehicles, including heavy tanks, armored cars, artillery vans, and the latest type of amphibious trucks, along narrow dirt roads in the beachhead area.

After lunch at the Dingalan residence of Don Felipe Buencamino, the President boarded a helicopter for the first leg of her return trip to Baguio.

At the Bitulok airstrip he took the presidential plane Dagohoy and landed at the Loakan airport about 1:20 p.m.

The President this afternoon received Speaker Daniel Romualdez, who reported that the organization of the House had been completed.

March 2.—PRESIDENT Garbia spent this Sunday by himself at the Guest House.

He instructed his aide, Lieut. Melchor Fronda, to express to whoever wishes to see him his regrets for his inability to receive callers.

It was believed that the President refrained from stirring out of the Guest House at the instructions of his security officers.

President Garcia heard an early morning mass before an improvised altar at the Guest House.

After breakfast with Malacañang staff members who went with him to Baguio, President Garcia read the Sunday papers, after which he retired to his study room and went over state papers.

March 3.—UPON arrival from Baguio this morning, the President administered the oath of office to Dean Vicente G. Sinco as president of the University of the Philippines at a simple ceremony held at the Malacañang reception hall.

The ceremony was witnessed by high government officials, members of the Central Bank and the Monetary Board, members of the U. P. Board of Regents, U. P. college deans, and prominent alumni.

Among those present were Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo, Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, Education Secretary Manuel Lim, CB Deputy Governor Andres V. Castillo, Sen. Decoroso Rosales, Rep. Manuel Enverga, UP Regents Aurelio Periquet, Ernesto Sibal, Benigno Aldana, Gumersindo Garcia, Modesto Farolan, and Arturo Garcia.

Also present were Mrs. Sinco and Deans Tomas Fonacier, Patrocinio Valenzuela, Jose Belmonte, Antonio Isidro, Crisostomo Ortigas, Leopoldo Uichanco, Calixto Mabesa, Julitaj Sotejo, Dr. Jose Uichanco, Dr. Ricardo Pascual, Juan C. Canave, and Dr. Enrique T. Virata, UP executive vice-president.

After the induction President Garcia expressed the hope that the new U. P. head would maintain the prestige that the state university enjoys in the intellectual world and keep it in the lead among the world's highest institutions of learning.

President Garcia congratulated the U. P. Board of Regents for having elected the new U. P. head. He lauded Sinco and said that he is a man of intellectual stature and high prestige.

In his response Sinco pledged to help the Administration's policies and placed the services and facilities of the state university at the disposal of President Garcia towards this end.

Other presidential callers were members of the Philippine Association of Civil Engineers led by Antonio Arcilla, Felicisimo B. Serrano, former Judge Modesto Castillo, Mrs. Pacita Vargas Gella, and Mrs. Ramona Vargas Syquia.

Members of the Philippine Public School Teachers Association saw President Garcia to invite him to be the guest of honor and principal speaker at the Silver Jubilee and Annual Assembly of the association in April.

The delegation informed President Garcia of their intention to work for the amendment of the WAPCO Salary Law and asked for representation in the GSIS Board of Trustees.

The delegation was composed of Ricardo Castro, executive secretary and treasurer, Directors Erasmo Punzalan, Polirconio Domingo, Domingo Tan, Jose E. Rosario, Miss Angelita Pulgado, Policarpio Bautista, and Quirino Cruz, Manuel Flores, Miss Prisca Bautista, Mrs. Paz Vergara, Salvador Bautista, Agapito Hog, Arnulfo Castro, and Emilia Cristobal.

THE President returned to Manila about 10:10 a.m. today after a three-day absence from the city during which he had addressed the delegates of the United Nations seminar on the protection of human rights held at the Pines Hotel in Baguio, and observed "Operation Strongback", a joint PI-US military maneuvers in Dingalan Bay.

Leaving Baguio by car about 5 a.m. today to catch up with scheduled engagements in Manila, the President found a large number of callers waiting for him. He received visitors until 2 p.m. after administering the oath of office to Dean Vicente Sinco of the University of the Philippines college of law as president of the state university.

In the afternoon, the President motored to the NPC building on Aduana Street at the foot of Jones Bridge, where he was guest of honor at the inauguration of the newly-elected officers of the NPC.

Back in Malacañang in the evening, the President conferred with financial advisers; namely, Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, Governor Miguel Cuaderno of the Central Bank, and Chairman Eduardo Romualdez of the RFC. The President also conferred with Rep. Sergio Osmeña, Jr., of Cebu.

IN the afternoon the President reiterated his appeal to the Philippine press to point out the deficiencies and defects of the government in rendering public service so that these might be corrected for the benefit of the people and in the interest of good government.

The President said that he welcomed constructive criticism against the government, including the remedies that might be offered in improving government service.

The President made these remarks in an extemporaneous speech which he delivered after inducting into office the newly elected officials of the National Press Club headed by its president, Francisco Dipasupil of the Manila Chronicle. The ceremony was held at the deck of the NPC building.

The Chief Executive told the newspapermen that he would back up the fullest freedom of the press in the country, but he exhorted them to uphold the truth and to publish it.

The President, however, pointed out that in the interest of writing the truth, both the positive and the negative sides of life should be displayed in the newspapers without overemphasizing the negative aspects. He said, "To do this is not suppressing the truth."

"On this policy I stand," the President stressed. He added, "The press is a tremendous power. I urge you to make the press produce among our people positive and creative thinkers who will assume the responsibilities of nation-building."

The Chief Executive took the opportunity to explain what he had said at the opening day of the celebration of National Press Week. The President's speech then had been interpreted in(some quarters to mean that when the President had decried the over-emphasis on the negative side of the news, that would be suppressing the truth.

The President said that what he had advocated and would continue to advocate was that in writing the news both the positive and negative aspects of it should be given in order that a complete picture could be presented to the people.

He said that his idea was not to hide or suppress the dark side of the news but not to overemphasize it so as to produce a negative way of thinking among the newspaper readers. He said that as a matter of fact it was impossible not to print the dark side of life, because he believed that life was a combination of "sunlight and shadows," and that the delineating of the dark side would show in bolder relief the positive side.

The President congratulated the newly elected officials of the National Press Club and wished them good luck in their administration.

Before the President's speech, former NPC president Domingo C. Abadilla turned over the responsibilities of office to the incoming president, Dipasupil. Another past NPC president, Teodoro R. Valencia, introduced President Garcia and acted as master of ceremonies.

The NPC ceremony was featured by the oath-taking of the NPC officials before President Garcia. The ceremony was held at the deck of the National Press Club building. The program was followed by cocktails.

President Garcia was accompanied to the NPC by Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, Appointments Secretary Agerico Palaypay, and Lt. Melchor Fronda, aide.

From the NPC building, the President returned to Malacañang a little before 6 p.m.

March 4.— PRESIDENT Garcia stood firmly in dealing with a corrupt government official as he ordered today the dismissal of Agripino M. Ensoy as justice of the peace of Palompon, Leyte.

The dismissal was recommended by the Department of Justice, which found Ensoy guilty of violating Republic Act 145, which limits to ₱20 the maximum fee that may be charged a veteran client for assistance in obtaining veteran's benefits.

It appears that in 1949, Eduarda Casing Vda. de Villaflor filed a claim for benefits because of the death of her son who had died as a soldier during the last world war. She was assisted by Ensoy in the preparation of the pertinent papers.

As a result of the claim, Mrs. Villaflor received two checks for ₱200 and ₱2,070 from which Ensoy had allegedly collected ₱100 and ₱800 respectively.

The district judge who first had investigated Ensoy recommended three months' suspension. However, the President in Administrative Order No. 260 issued today directed the outright dismissal of the erring official following the recommendation of the secretary of justice, who reviewed the case.

Ensoy's removal from office takes effect upon receipt of a copy of the administrative order.

The secretary of justice in his report to the President said:

"After a careful review of the record of the investigation, I find from the evidence that the charge for violation of Republic Act No. 145 has been substantially established. And considering the immense amounts the respondent charged and received from the claimant in relation to the amounts collected, his perjury in connection with this count, and the fact that this is a criminal offense for which he is being prosecuted, as we have been informed, I am of the opinion that the respondent should be removed from office, instead of merely suspended for three months, as recommended by Judge Debuque. It is so recommended. This recommendation disregards the other charges regarding some of which there are signs of guilt.”

THE President today directed: (1) ACCFA Administrator Ernesto Jimenez to speed up the investigation now going on of alleged loss of half million pesos through manipulations of government fertilizer supplies in Iloilo and to prosecute guilty parties as circumstances would warrant; and (2) NARIC General Manager Vicente Concepcion to take all precautionary measures to prevent the channeling of U.S. imported rice into the black market.

In a telephone conversation with ACCFA Administrator Jimenez, President Garcia inquired into the progress of the investigation which the ACCFA had been undertaking of the alleged anomalies in Iloilo regarding fertilizers in which the Panay Federation of FACOMAs was allegedly involved. The President told Jimenez to speed up the investigation, make it thorough, and submit a report on the matter to the Chief Executive as soon as possible.

The President took these steps upon reading reports in the newspapers about the alleged anomalies in the distribution of fertilizers in Iloilo and in the reported siphoning of U.S. rice into the black market. He gave his directives by telephoning Administrator Jimenez and General Manager Concepcion.

Jimenez submitted this afternoon to President Garcia a report in which he said that press stories about a “multi-million-peso racket involving clandestine selling of government fertilizers in Iloilo were grossly exaggerated.”

Jimenez explained that from March 28, 1956, to December 18, 1957, the Panay Federation of FACOMAs received a total of only 69,672 bags of fertilizers with a sale value of ₱339,552.59. He pointed out that from this figure, it was clear that even if all those fertilizers went into the black market, they could not have cost more than ₱339,000.

Jimenez explained that Iloilo was a trans-shipment point for fertilizers requisitioned by farmers from Negros Occidental, Negros Oriental, Antique, and Capiz. It was possible, he said, that a small quantity of the fertilizers reached the blackmarket. However, he said that like all other cases of reported blackmarketing, the case had been looked into immediately, as the ACCFA would never countenance any irregular disposal of this essential farm item.

Jimenez told the President in his report: “I am personally interested in prosecuting the guilty parties in the FACOMAs so that the misdeeds of one or two persons will not reflect on the prestige and integrity of the farm cooperatives as a whole.” He said that the object of investigation was only the Panay Federation of FACOMAs in Iloilo and not the Iloilo FACOMAs themselves.

Jimenez also informed the President of the difficulties facing the probers in digging up the cases. He said that the NBI and ACCFA agents had to trace every single bag of fertilizers sent out through Iloilo to other places in the Visayas and Mindanao. He said that if any irregularity were unearthed, he would do everything within the law to have the guilty parties prosecuted.

In this connection Jimenez bared that Republic Act 1699, known as the subsidized fertilizer law, was faulty in that the provisions for the punishment of persons found blackmarketing government subsidized fertilizers were defective. In a few other cases, when ACCFA operatives found evidence of blackmarketing of fertilizers, the courts were helpless in pinning down the suspects, Jimenez said. He suggested that the law be revised to put more teeth into it and that there should be provisions for stiff penalties for black-marketing of the subsidized fertilizers.

IN the afternoon the President enlisted the cooperation of the Federation of Asian and Western Pacific Contractors Association in the construction of various public works projects of the Philippine Government aimed at boosting the economy of the country.

In an informal conversation with some 300 delegates to the first convention of the FAWPCA to be held in Manila and Baguio this week, the President said that certain phases of important government projects, such as the proposed extension of the railroad lines in Luzon, the construction of huge irrigation systems, and the building of roads might be offered for international bidding. He asked the cooperation of the delegates in “these great tasks.”

The delegates representing 11 countries called at Malacañang this afternoon to pay their respects prior to the opening of their convention at the Manila Hotel tomorrow. Domingo V. Poblete, federation president, informed the Chief Executive that most of their sessions would be held at the Pines Hotel in Baguio.

The President in brief remarks expressed gratification over the choice of the Philippines as the site of the first convention of the organization. He welcomed the foreign delegation on behalf of the Filipino people and expressed hope that their stay here would be “both pleasant and fruitful.”

In the course of the call the President was presented with souvenirs consisting of landscape paintings, vases, and carvings by the delegations from China, Japan, and Korea. The President accepted them as a token of goodwill from their respective countries.

Earlier this afternoon, the President received Ambassador Pete Sarasin, SEATO secretary general, who called to pay his respects following his recent arrival in Manila for the annual foreign ministers’ meeting of the SEATO to be held here next week. Ambassador Sarasin, who had flown from Bangkok, Thailand, was accompanied by William Worth, deputy SEATO secretary general.

This morning, the President received members of Congress with whom he discussed problems of their respective localities.

Listed callers were former Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., and his son Rep. Jose Laurel IV, and Leiut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff.

Among ether callers were Sen. Quintin Paredes, Cebu Gov. Jose Briones, and Reps. Juan Duyan of Mt. Province, Lorenzo Teves of Negros Oriental, Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan, Marcelino Veloso of Leyte, Pedro Venida of Camarines Norte, and Laurentino Badilles of Lanao.

IN the evening, the President motored to his new residence on Bohol Avenue, where he met Nacianalista congressmen at a dinner.

It was reported that the solons unburdened to the President their gripes against the executive officials. The meeting lasted late into the night.

CENTRAL Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno informed Malacañang this evening that the Export-Import Bank had approved the purchase of tractors and farm implements by the Planters Federation. The purchase will be made under credit lines extended by the Export-Import Bank.

March 5.—THE President this morning motored to his new residence on Bohol Avenue, where he conferred with the Council of Leaders for six hours on his plan to revamp his Cabinet.

The meeting was held behind closed doors. Malacañang said “no definite decision” was reached on the President’s plan of reorganizing the advisory body.

Present at the conference were Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Senate President Protempore Fernando Lopez, Senate Majority Floor Leader Cipriano Primicias, Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, Speaker Protempore Constancio E. Castañeda, and House Majority Floor Leader Jose Aldeguer. Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo attended the meeting.

The conference started at breakfast time and wound up at 3 o’clock in the afternoon.

It was learned that the President brought up the names of prospective appointees to the Cabinet and that tentative agreement was reached on the candidates

Malacañang, however, did not disclose the names of the prospective Cabinet members, saying that the President intends to announce them as soon as complete concurrence had been reached on the matter.

It was learned that the President plans to make the announcement at the weekend.

As he conferred with the Council of Leaders, aspirants waited for the announcement of the new appointees to the Cabinet,

Aspirants for the position of press secretary stayed away from the Garcia residence, otherwise known as the President's workshop, but waited frantically like expectant fathers at the press office.

Acting Secretary G. V. Sison also stayed away from the conference saying he was personally involved in the so-called Cabinet revamp.

However, Sison said after seeing the President last night that President Garcia and the Council of Leaders had agreed to pitch into the recurrent rice crisis.

The President and the Council of Leaders, Sison said, "agreed to do their utmost" to step up rice production and avert the annual shortage of the grain.

Delayed by his conference with the Council of Leaders, President Garcia decided to cancel the presentation of credentials of the new German ambassador to the Philippines.

President Garcia likewise cancelled his weekly Cabinet meeting this afternoon but stayed in his "workshop", where he was reported to have relaxed after his six-hour meeting with the Council of Leaders.

PRESIDENT Garcia today declared March 17, the day the late President Magsaysay met sudden death in an airplane crash, as a special public holiday in the province of Zambales and Cebu City.

In a proclamation the President said that the holiday was set aside in order to give the people of Zambales and Cebu City full opportunity to observe the anniversary with appropriate ceremonies.

The special holiday in Zambales had been requested by Gov. Manuel Barretto, who said he was expressing the general sentiment in his province. That in Cebu City was on the representation of civic organizations which would like to observe the day by laying a cornerstone for a monument in honor of the late President to be erected on Plaza Independencia in that city.

THE President granted today another reprieve to death convict Crispin Verzo. The new 30-day reprieve was the 11th granted by the President to the death convict. The last reprieve given last February 4 expired yesterday.

In extending another stay of execution to convict Verzo, the President said that some time was still necessary for a thorough and careful study of the merits of the petitions for executive clemency filed in behalf of the prisoner.

March 6.—THE President received the delegates to the 4th SEATO Council of Ministers' Meeting and the 8th SEATO Military Advisers' Meeting. The delegates were accompanied by Ambassador Pote Sarasin, SEATO secretary general.

The delegates to the Council of Ministers' Meeting were U. S. Ambassador Charles Bohlen, French Ambassador Georges Cattand, British Ambassador George L. Glutton, Thai Ambassador Chitti Sucharitakul, and Pakistan Ambassador Pir Ali Mohammad Rashdi. The Ministers' meeting will start on March 11 and end two days later.

The chiefs of delegation to the SEATO Military Advisers' Meeting who saw the President were Admiral Felix B. Stump of United States, Maj. Gen. C. E. Weir, CB, CBE, DSO of New Zealand, Vice-Admiral D'Escadre Ortoli of France, Lt Gen. Sir Henry Wells, KBE, CB, DSO, of Australia, Commodore A. Rashid of Pakistan, Gen. Sir Francis Gesting, CCB, KBE, DSO of United Kingdom, Lt. Gen. Alfonso Arellano and Brig. Gen. Alfredo Santos of Philippines, and Gen. Jira Vichitsonggram of Thailand.

The President also received Ambassador Ali Amroussi of the United Arab Republic, who is on his way to assume his new job in Indonesia. Amroussi was accompanied by Sen. Domocao Alonto, Commissioner Madki Alonto, and Rep. Salipada Pendatun.

Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, director general of the UN Technical Assistance Administration, paid a courtesy call on President Garcia. He was accompanied by C. Hart Schaaf, local representative of the TAA.

Sorsogon Gov. Juan Frivaldo suggested to President Garcia that the extension of the railroad lines to Matnog, Sorsogon, and to Tuguegarao, Cagayan, be submitted for the consideration of the SEATO Military Advisers' Meeting.

The extension of the railroad line to Matnog has been affected by the austerity program of the Administration, according to Gov. Frivaldo, who added that during the last SEATO economic conference in Bangkok, it was agreed to support projects of economic and military value in member countries.

President Garcia certified to Congress the necessity of the immediate enactment of House Bill No. 770, entitled "An Act changing the name of the Province of Zambales to Province of Magsaysay," upon the recommendation of the Provincial Board and the Mayors' League of Zambales.

Other presidential callers were Gov. Jose Dinglasan of Capiz, Gov. Pomulo Garrovillo of Zanjboanga del Norte, Mrs. Trinidad Legarda, and William Strickland.

IN the afternoon the President was advised by his physicians to rest owing to a stomach upset which he complained of about 1:00 p.m.

After resting in the afternoon, the President felt better in the evening, according to his physicians.

Because of the President's slight indisposition, his physicians, Drs. Alejandro Gaerlan and Antonio Guytingco, cancelled the President's afternoon appointments, including the induction into office of Roberto Benedicto, as member of the board of governors of the RFC.

Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo substituted for the President and inducted into office Roberto Benedicto, who was designated as member of the board of governors of the Rehabilitation Finance Corporation.

Benedicto, who will serve full time, replaces Isaac Lacson, retired.

Present at the ceremony were some members of Benedicto's family and a few friends, among whom were Reps. Jose M. Aldeguez of Iloilo and Cesar Fortich of Bukidnon, Eugenio Lopez, and Jose M. Gomez.

PRESIDENT Garcia signed today an administrative order requiring Eufemio H. Guamos to resign as justice of the peace of Donsol, Sorsogon, within five days from receipt of a copy of the order, otherwise he would be considered removed from office effective on the day following the expiration of the period given.

Guamos was the respondent in an administrative case filed by Alfredo Hoelzl, who charged him with, among others, habitual drunkenness or conduct unbecoming a justice of the peace. The charges were investigated by the district judge and reviewed by Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason, who found the respondent guilty of the charge.

The President said that the respondent's claim that he was never drunk in all his life and that when forced to drink he would simply dip his lips and return the glass "is untenable in the face of the positive and convincing testimony of several eye-witnesses."

The President, in his order punishing the respondent, said: "By his proven conduct, obviously notorious and reprehensible, the respondent does not deserve to remain in the judiciary where only men of strong personal character and upright conduct have the right to be. He has not only created public scandals and exposed himself to public ridicule and contempt but has also violated the sanctity of his courtroom where public justice is administered, thereby impairing the people's respect for his person and undermining their faith and confidence in his office."

The President today certified to Congress the urgency of a bill changing the name of the province of Zambales to Magsaysay.

The President's action was prompted by resolutions by both the provincial board and the residents of Zambales indorsing the move to change the name of their province in honor of the late president.

The approval of the bill by Congress and the President is expected to coincide with the first anniversary of the death of the late President Magsaysay on March 17.

March 7.—PRESIDENT Garcia cancelled all his engagements and appointment with callers this afternoon after complaining of abdominal pains.

Drs. Antonio Guytingco and Alejandro Gaerlan stayed with the President almost all night yesterday and asked him to enter a military hospital for a "check-up." He said that the President's ailment had been traced to late luncheon yesterday noon.

It was learned that President Garcia had stayed long with his callers and sat down for lunch shortly after one o'clock.

President Garcia stayed in his new residence in Quezon City last night and almost the whole day today. He cancelled all his appointments with callers in Malacañang today.

He motored back to the Palace at five o'clock this afternoon to receive the credentials of Freiderich H. von Furstenberg as ambassador of the Federal Republic of Germany.

After meeting with the German envoy, the President repaired to the state dining room where he presided over his weekly press conference.

The press conference was televised and attended by a large group of newsmen and kibitzers, who had expected the President to announce the new members of his Cabinet.

President Garcia was evasive in his reply to newsmen's questions and claimed that all reports on the possible new members of the Cabinet were "purely speculative."

He said he was delaying the announcement of the new members of his Cabinet, as he had been afflicted by a stomach ailment. He said he had previously thought he could make the announcement this week-end.

The President minced no words in the press conference and observed that some questions were "abusive."

After the press conference, the President retired to his study.

He left shortly thereafter for an unidentified military hospital where he expected to stay for two days for a “medical check-up.”

PRESIDENT Garcia received the letters of credence of Friedrich H. von Furstenberg as ambassador of the Federal Republic of Germany in a ceremony held at Malacañang this afternoon.

The presentation ceremony climaxed for the German government the reciprocal elevation of both the Philippine legation in Germany and the German legation here to embassies.

In accepting the credentials, the President said that the elevation of the legations of the Federal Republic of Germany and of the Philippines was a manifestation of high esteem and friendship which binds our nations together.”

The President added that it was a “clear evidence of our desire to place in a firmer basis the friendly relations that happily exist between our two peoples and government.”

Ambassador von Furstenberg, in presenting his credentials, in turn said that the move was a “farsighted initiative proof of progress and intention in the friendly relations between our countries.”

He assured the President that he would “continue and intensify my efforts in furthering political understanding in developing mutually agreeable interchange of goods and services and in cultivating cultural and educational relations between our two countries.”

After the ceremony the President and the new ambassador exchanged toast for the continued friendly relations between the Philippines and Germany.

The new German Ambassador was presented to the President by Foreign Affairs Chief of Protocol Jose Estrada. Also presented to the President were officers of the new German Embassy; namely. Dr. H. U. von Schweinitz, counsellor, and W. Mueller, administrative attache. They were introduced by DFA Deputy Chief of Protocol Pedro A. Aragon.

Philippine government officials present were acting Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo, acting Agriculture Secretary Jose Trinidad, Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor, and acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison.

March 8.—PRESIDENT Garcia has reported to be in “good health” today. Seven physicians, said to be experts along their lines, were reported to have taken turns in examining the President’s physical condition. They issued a bulletin in the evening giving the President a “clean bill.”

President Garcia entered an unidentified military hospital for his annual “medical check-up” last Friday night.

Malacañang withheld the identity of the hospital to prevent some so-called “friends” and province people from “orbiting” around the Chief Executive.

Drs. Antonio Guytingco and Alejandro Gaerlan, the President’s physicians, recommended a medical examination of the President’s condition after he had complained of abdominal pains.

He did not receive many visitors in his quarters.

Said to have seen him at the hospital were the First Lady, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos, acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable, and Capt. Francisco Calinawan, the President's performance officer.

Sison said that the President avoided playing chess the whole day today.

However, when he saw Sison, the President was reported to have been irked by newspaper reports that Rep. Ferdinand Marcos of Ilocos Norte had accused the Chief Executive of "deliberately" abetting the soaring of prices of mime commodities to favor "certain individuals."

He directed Sison to issue a statement to the newspapers answering the Marcos charges.

March 9.—THE President rode out of the V. Luna General Hospital at * noon too assured that he "is in good health."

The President entered the hospital Friday evening. Seven physicians subjected him to such examinations as blood chemistry, X-ray, electrocardiography, urinalysis, liver function tests, and dental tests.

The physicians said "everything is normal" with the President, but prescribed that he "eat regularly and on time, get more sleep, and take more physical exercises."

President Garcia started the day by hearing an early morning mass at the hospital, with Fr. Alfredo Reyes officiating.

After breakfast, he received Executive Secretary Juan Pajo and discussed with him "routine matters."

He received the First Lady shortly after he submitted himself to the "final" physical examination at 11 a.m. He was discharged from the hospital at 12 noon.

From V. Luna, the President proceeded to his "workshop" on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City.

He went over the final draft of the speech he will deliver Tuesday morning before the opening session of the 4th Southeast Asia Treaty Organization council of ministers meeting at the Department of Foreign Affairs' Hall of Flags.

Late in the afternoon, he received acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison and gave him information he wanted passed on to Malacañang reporters. He also composed a wire of felicitations to Senator Jose P. Laurel, who celebrated his 67th birthday yesterday.

March 10.—UPON his return from his "workshop" in Quezon City, where he spent his weekend, the President received a delegation of Filipino retailers and told them to submit a memorandum on ways and means to improve and simplify the present system of procurement and distribution of the National Marketing Corporation.

The suggestion of President Garcia was made after the delegation led by Dionisio Reyes, E. V. Mendoza, former Manila Councilor Mateo Herrera, and Jose Pascual complained against the present NAMARCO system, branding it as ineffective, inefficient, and uneconomical.

Members of the delegation charged that some NAMARCO distributors channeled goods to the black market, especially to the Divisoria Market to the prejudice of Filipino retailers.

The President also received a delegation composed of members of the Home Industries Association of the Philippines led by its president, Hilarion Henares, Sr., which reported that some members would represent the Philippines in the Seattle (US) Trade Exposition to find means to develop cottage industries.

Modesto Farolan, chairman of the Home Industries Study Group, who accompanied the delegation, submitted the report of his group which recommended as an interim measure that the NAMARCO and the Department of Education be authorized to use ₱200,000 out of the ₱1 million made available by the Cabinet for a home industries production program.

Members of the Philippine Better Roads Association led by Luis Ayesa and accompanied by Highways Commissioner Rodolfo Maslog presented a resolution of the association appointing President Garcia as its honorary president. Other members were Pat Dayrit, Vic Stater, Jack M. Le Deux, L. de Palechynden, R. M. Bayot, Lorenzo Sevilla, A. Martinez, and Jose Javier.

Hans A. Roelli, acting general manager of the Manila office of the Ed A. Keller & Co., Ltd., of Zurich, Switzerland, called on President Garcia to pay his respects, accompanied by Leandro G. Zorrilla, manager of the pharmaceutical department of the said office.

Other callers were members of the Philippine branch of the Summer Institute of Linguistics, which is affiliated with the University of North Dakota, U. S. The group presented the 5th anniversary report of the Institute. The members were Drs. Richard S. Piitman and Howard McKaughan, Mr. and Mrs. Len Newell, Mr. and Mrs. David Huey, Ben Needham, and Morris Cottle.

Sol R. Kunkis of New York informed President Garcia of a plan to establish a chemical plant in the Philippines to manufacture, among other things, fertilizers in order to control crop damage, increase local production, and export fertilizer to neighboring countries.

IN the afternoon the President received the delegates to the foreign ministers conference of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization who paid a joint courtesy call.

Headed by foreign ministers of the eight member nations, the delegates arrived at Malacañang at 4:25 p.m. and were conducted to the Malacañang ceremonial hall, where the President was waiting for them.

First to greet the President was the Australian delegation headed by External Affairs Minister Richard G. Casey. The French delegation with Foreign Minister Christian Pineau came in next, followed by New Zealand Foreign Minister Walter Nash and his group. Pakistan Foreign Minister Ali Khan Qizilbash was followed by the Philippine delegation composed of acting Secretary of Foreign Affairs Felixberto Serrano, Sen. Lorenzo Sumulong, Rep. Ramon Mitra, Sr., and Minister Tomas de Castro. Prince Wan Waithayakon came after the Philippine delegation. The last two delegations were those of the United Kingdom, headed by Foreign Minister Selwyn Lloyd, and the United States, led by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. Pote Zarasin, SEATO secretary-general, also came with the delegation.

The President exchanged pleasantries with the delegates as he shook their hands. After the formal introductions, the President and the delegates exchanged toasts with basi. The president conversed with the members of the various delegations while still and movie cameras flashed.

For about 20 minutes the President exchanged amenities and renewed acquaintances with the delegates and posed with them for pictures. The chiefs of missions of the eight member nations accompanied the delegates who were introduced to the President by Malacañang Protocol Officer Manuel G. Zamora, Foreign Affairs Protocol Officer Jose Estrada, and Lt. Col. Emilio Borromeo, senior presidential aide.

Gov. Amado Aleta of Nueva Ecija headed a big delegation from his province which called on President Garcia to present several resolutions and petitions. The President promised to study the matters presented by Aleta.

Malacañang announced today the appointment of Bartolome Fernandez as deputy auditor general to occupy the position left vacant when Pedro M. Gimenez was appointed auditor general.

President Garcia signed the appointment papers of Fernandez.

PRESIDENT Garcia held a conference with officials of the Manila Railroad Company who called at Malacañang this afternoon to apprise him of the progress made on the projected extension of the railroad line from San Jose, Nueva Ecija, to Tuguegarao, Cagayan.

Juan J. Carlos, chairman of the MRR board of directors, informed the President that the project would be finished in less than four years with an estimated total expenditure of ₱80 million. It would involve the installation of railroad trucks over a distance of 335 kilometers, the construction of five bridges totalling some 2,000 meters in length, and the boring of a 4.5 kilometer tunnel through the Cordillera Mountain ranges.

The President was impressed by the enlarged aerial photographs and colored charts brought by the MRR officials with which they graphically explained the enormity of the engineering work required by the project. He said that the extension of the railroad lines, long dreamed of by the people of the North, would provide cheap means of transportation to three northern provinces.

MRR officials present at the conference included acting General Manager Feliciano Santiago and the following board directors: Salvador T. Villa, Benjamin Alonzo, Jack Arroyo, Vicente Olazo, and Francisco Calinawan.

After his conference with MRR officials, the President held a close-door conference with Speaker Protempore Constancio Castañeda, Reps. Tobias Fornier of Antique, chairman of the House committee on appropriations; Bartolome Cabangbang of Bohol, and Manuel Zosa of Cebu. Also present at the conference which lasted about one hour was Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona.

March 11.—PRESIDENT Garcia today attended the SEATO conference no longer as a chief-delegate of the Philippines, but as chief of state of the host country.

The President felt the change of role he had played as he addressed the SEATO council of ministers' meeting.

He recalled that in previous conferences in Asia and in Canberra, Australia, he was just one of the foreign ministers that had traded views on the subject of collective defense and united efforts to arrest Communist subversion.

As head of state, the President was fetched from Malacañang by Acting Secretary of Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano, and upon entering the Department of Foreign Affairs on Padre Faura, he was met by the foreign ministers headed by Pote Sarasin, SEATO secretary-general.

His arrival was heralded by a 21-gun salute which boomed in front of the foreign office as he was given full military honors.

The President, upon his arrival, greeted all the foreign ministers who stood in front of the flags of their respective states.

It was a great moment for President Garcia, who had attended many SEATO conferences as one of the chief delegates.

After greeting the foreign ministers, the President retired to the office of Secretary Serrano. It was his former office while Vice-President of the country and concurrently secretary of foreign affairs.

He rested at his former office until he was told that the SEATO delegates had already taken their seats and were ready to receive the President of the country.

As President of the host country, he opened the conference with a 12-minute address.

He was accompanied by Lt. Col. Emilio Borromeo, his senior military aide; Major Jose Estrella, junior aide; and acting Press Secretary G. V. Sison.

After delivering his opening address, the President returned to Malacañang where he retired in his bedroom.

He was reported to have gone over pending state papers.

IN the afternoon the President received Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas and Lt. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, chief of staff of the Armed Forces.

No detail was released by Malacañang on the subject of their conference.

Later, the President conferred with his press secretary who was asked to answer the charges hurled against the President by two Liberal solons; namely, Sen. Ambrosio Padilla and Rep. Ferdinand Marcos.

It was learned that President Garcia was feeling the LP's fiscalizing pressure which has kept the Malacañang spokesman busy putting up the President's defense.

March 12.—THE President planned early this week a meeting with US Secretary of State John Foster Dulles this morning. He invited the visiting US secretary of State to a breakfast conference in his new residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City, to insure complete secrecy for the affair.

However, President Garcia was surprised when he found out this morning that all the newspapers carried reports of his breakfast conference with Dulles.

Although the newspapers got wind of the conference, the President glumly motored to his new residence in Quezon City this morning to fulfill his engagement with the visiting US secretary of state.

Malacañang issued a brief statement on the meeting, saying:

“President Garcia and Secretary Dulles discussed problems of common interest to both the Philippines and the United States. The breakfast conference started at 8 o'clock and broke up at 9:40 a.m.

“Present at the conference were President Garcia, Secretary Dulles, and acting Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano.”

Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, who was pumped for information by newsmen, said that was the only statement given to him by President Garcia for release to the papers. He said he was barred from the breakfast conference and admitted he was not aware of the details.

Told by newsmen that his replied: “That's all I know.”

AFTER the conference, the President stayed in his residence. He motored back to Malacañang in the afternoon to preside over the weekly meeting of his Cabinet.

It was learned that President Garcia adjourned the Cabinet meeting promptly at 8 p.m.

A Malacañang spokesman Explained that President' Garcia cut short the Cabinet meeting “upon the advice of his physicians.”

It was learned that the President had been advised by his physicians not to strain himself too much and to observe early sleeping hours.

This development immediately drummed anew speculations on the state of the President's health.

March 13.—MALACAÑANG announced this day that President Garcia would appoint Leyte Gov. Bernardo Torres as general manager of the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation.

Gov. Torres will replace PHHC Chairman-General Manager Vicente Orosa who retired.

The announcement was made after the Chief Executive had a breakfast conference at his Quezon City "workshop" with some Leyte and Samar solons who consulted the President on matters affecting their respective districts.

Present at the breakfast conference were Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, Reps. Dominador Tan, Nicanor Yñiguez, Marcelino Veloso, and Alberto Aguia, all of Leyte, and Reps. Valeriano Lianza, Eladio Balite, and Felipe Abrigo, all of Samar.

To be named shortly as successor to Gov. Torres is Leyte Senior Board Member Ildefonso Cinco. Cinco will be succeeded by Mayor Emiliano Melgazo of Hilongos, Leyte.

Also discussed at the conference was the feasibility of selling bonds in the province to finance urgent public works projects.

RETURNING to Malacañang about 11 a.m. from his "workshop" in Quezon City, President Garcia received American singer William Warfield, who was accompanied by Alfredo Lozano, local impresario; William Morris, cultural officer of the U. S. Embassy; and his assistant, John Reinhardt.

After receiving Warfield, President Garcia received Sen. Roseller Lim and Vicente Villamin with whom he discussed the austerity program and the different aspects of the Barter Law.

Other callers were Gov. Juab Alberto of Catanduanes, Gov. Jose Espino of Nueva Vizcaya, and Jose Topacio Nueno.

PRESIDENT Garcia conferred for the third time last night with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles on various matters of common interest to the Philippines and the United States.

He met Dulles shortly after the state dinner he gave for the foreign ministers of eight nations which attended the fourth SEATO conference. The conference closed today, Until press time, no details were available from Malacañang on the Garcia-Dulles conference.

It was recalled that President Garcia had wanted the conference kept in complete secrecy, presumably in accordance with the "positive-news" policy he expounded at the National Press Club on two occasions,

March 14.— PRESIDENT Garcia this morning received Reiner Willemsen, co-owner of Holtz & Willemsen, an independent West German oil factory, who suggested that Philippine copra be sun dried or artificially dried but not smoke dried.

Willemsen also suggested that a number of drying stations be constructed in districts most suited for the purpose.

Willemsen made these suggestions in the presence of David K. G. Chan, Far East representative of Gargill, Inc., and Hans H. Hessler, manager of the Manila branch office of the same firm. The firm of Willemsen has been buying Philippine copra since World War II.

Willemsen travelled during the last three weeks throughout the most important coconut-growing areas in the Philippines and observed that copra produced by small farmers are of inferior quality owing to the primitive methods used.

The West German businessman lauded the efforts exerted by the government towards the improvement of copra quality. He warned that the future common European market will prohibit the importation of finished products, such as crude coconut oil with high tariffs, and added that for this reason alone the Philippine Government should give more incentive to the improvement of local copra.

He also told President Garcia that, tackling this problem at its grass roots, thousands of small farmers could be offered the opportunity to dry their copra at modern drying centers and then they could sell their produce at a premium.

The President likewise received Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, who briefed him on the progress of the negotiations on the financing of the Marikina multi-purpose project. Another caller was the Rt. Hon. Walter Nash, prime minister and minister of external affairs and chief of delegation of New Zealand to the Fourth SEATO Council of Ministers' meeting, who presented a gift.

Spanish Ambassador Francisco Javier Conde also called on President Garcia to extend the invitation extended by the Spanish Minister of State to visit Spain as a guest of the government of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, in case the Chief Executive decides to go abroad this year.

Other callers were Jose Corominas, Miss Jovita Fuentes, Rep. Rogaciano Mercado of Bulacan, Justice Undersecretary Jesus Barrera, Jose W. Diokno, J. Amado Araneta, M. Silverio, and Jose Lauchengco.

President Garcia today lauded the Medical StudentsVolunteers' Rural Health Project in a simple ceremony that formally launched the second year of the movement.

The President received a plaque of appreciation for his generous and wholehearted support, which has made possible the successful implementation of the project last year, from the committee on awards composed of Director Tranquilino Elicaño of the Bureau of Hospitals; Director Jesus A. Nolasco of the Bureau of Health; Dr. Romeo Atienza, president-elect of the Philippine Medical Association; and Medical Deans Virgilio Ramos of the University of Santo Tomas, Alfredo Ortiz of Manila Central University; and Lauro Panganiban of Far Eastern University.

The movement has for its aims the promotion of the health and well-being of the rural population, as well as the advancement in the training and education of medical students in the field of public health.

The movement is designed to decongest urban medical practice in the future, arouse and awaken barrio people for their apathy and indifference towards healthful living, and gain their confidence in the government, in the fulfillment of the promise of the Administration to improve the health conditions of the remote rural areas.

The President today declared April 9, Bataan Day, as a special public holiday.

April 9 marks the fall of Bataan 16 years ago, which “has become a shining symbol of courage and heroism to all freedom-loving peoples of the world.”

In a proclamation declaring the holiday, the President said that “the commemoration of the Fall of Bataan is a fitting homage to the heroism of Filipino and American forces who fought side by side against overwhelming odds in the epic struggle for democracy and freedom.”

The President called upon all public officials and citizens of the country to observe the day with a one-minute silence at 4:30 p.m. and to hold appropriate religious rites in honor of the heroic defenders of Bataan. He also invited all American nationals residing in the country to participate in the commemoration.

IN the afternoon the President said that no nation can “aspire to the pinnacle of progress without learning and adopting the techniques of manufacturing.”

The President’s statement was contained in a message which was read by Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo at the Manila Hotel before a large gathering of delegates to the Fifth National Convention of Manufacturers and Producers. The confab was sponsored by the Philippine Chamber of Industries in connection with the Philippine Industry and NEPA Week celebration.

The President said it was imperative that a nation develop a strong manufacturing economy “to achieve higher living standards and better life for all.”

PRESIDENT Garcia told his weekly press conference this afternoon he will announce the new members of his Cabinet today.

The President had previously planned to meet the Council of Leaders early tomorrow for final consultation on the new appointments.

However, Malacañang said he had abandoned the plan following reports that Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez and Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez will be on out-of-town speaking engagements.

Acting Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison said that although President Garcia had cancelled his scheduled meeting with the Council of Leaders, he will nevertheless name new members of his Cabinet sometime tomorrow.

At the same time, the President announced today he is leaving for a state visit to the United States this summer to secure aid to hasten the economic development of the country.

The President finally broke] his silence on his much-speculated US trip and admitted for the first time he was going to Washington this summer.

He said the date of his trip is being set in an exchange of notes between the Philippines and the US governments. He hinted he may go to the States neither in May or June.

The President said a formal announcement will be issued jointly in Manila and in Washington on his trip “next week.”

In disclosing his plan to go to Washington, the President indicated he will secure aid to help straighten out local economy.

Commenting on a report submitted by experts of the International Cooperation Administration claiming that the Philippines could not speed up economic development without external aid, the President said he believed that the findings were “more or less correct.”

He said “I would be indifferent to our local problems, if I did not do something about them when I go to the United States.”

Although the President did not specify the so-called aid he intends to secure from the United States, it was hinted, however, that he may seek an early solution to the Philippine omnibus claim amounting to $800 million with the US government.

President – Garcia had also planned to secure development loans with the US banks to finance several projects which have lain idle since the Administration launched its austerity program late last year.

At his weekly press conference, the President:

1. Said he was appointing Commissioner of Public Highways Rodolfo Maslog as chairman of the three-man Reparations Commission;
2. Disclosed that Jose W. Diokno had turned down an appointment as solicitor general, vice Ambrosio Padilla, who had been elected senator last November; and
3. Reiterated that the Philippines will recognize the Indonesian rebel government only if it wins in the current civil war and succeeds in establishing a stable form of government worthy of international recognition.

Meanwhile Malacañang also announced the (appointment of Gonzalo W. Gonzalez as chairman of the Social Security System. Gonzalez replaces Rodolfo P. Andal as SSS head.

The President said that to be affected in his Cabinet revamp is the position of press secretary.

Other than his projected US trip, the President refused to comment on his two conferences with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, who was here early this week for the Fourth SEATO Council of Ministers Meeting

He said he was “fairly” satisfied with the outcome of his talks with Dulles.

Commenting on the rebellion in Indonesia, the President reiterated his policy of “strict neutrality” in the crisis which had brought about a shooting civil war there.

He said, however, in reply to a newsman’s question, that the Philippines will recognize the rebel government only if it succeeds in overthrowing the Jakarta regime and in establishing a stable form of government worthy of international recognition.

The President did not comment on the question of whether or not the Philippines will grant asylum to any Indonesian faction which may seek refuge in the country.

“I will answer that question if a request is formally made with our government,” the President said discreetly.

The President also disclosed that the Philippines may be able to purchase only 20,000 metric tons of rice from the United States. He said the Cabinet had authorized the purchase of 100,000 metric tons of US rice under the US Public Act 480.

AFTER the press conference, the President conferred with former Chairman-General Manager Vicentje Orosa of the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation, who denied he had anything to do with reports he had been relieved of his PHHC post because of his refusal to accommodate some 100 persons recommended by Malacañang.

Former Manager Orosa emphasized to the President he had never made such statement to any representative of the press. He said he had welcomed the acceptance of his long pending resignation, as he had wanted to retire from the government service and lead a life of just "Juan de la Cruz" after so many years.

The President, in the course of the conference, prevailed upon Mr. Orosa to continue serving as chairman off the PHHC board of directors so that the corporation could keep on benefiting from his knowledge and experience. Orosa had been serving both as general manager and chairman of the PHHC board of directors.

The President and Orosa devoted the greater part of their conference to discussion of current problems confronting the PHHC. The President, in turn, thanked the former PHHC manager for bringing to his attention those problems and enabling him to formulate remedies for their solution.

The conference lasted from 7 to 7:30 p.m.

March 15.—PRESIDENT Garcia appointed today Jesus Barrera as secretary of justice to take the place of Secretary Pedro Tuason, who insisted on his retirement.

As of this day, Barrera's appointment is the only change the President has made in his Cabinet.

At the same time, President Garcia gave permanent status to Felixberto M. Serrano as foreign affairs secretary and Guillermo V. Sison as press secretary.

The Chief Executive has retained the following Cabinet members: Jaime Hernandez as finance secretary, Juan de G. Rodriguez as agriculture secretary, Florencio Moreno as public works secretary, Manuel Lim as education secretary, Angel M. Castaño as labor secretary, Jesus Vargas as defense secretary, Paulino Garcia as health secretary, Juan C. Pajo as executive secretary, and Dominador Aytona as budget commissioner.

President Garcia still has under consideration the positions of commerce secretary, economic coordination administrator, and social welfare administrator. Announced on these Cabinet positions will be made later.

Madki Alonto, commissioner of integration, retains his post.

Malacañang also announced that President Garcia would most likely appoint Manila City Fiscal Edilberto Barot as solicitor general.

President Garcia, moreover, issued an executive order today providing for the organization of the Department of General Services in implementation of Reorganization Plan Nos. 4-A, 5-A, 7-A, 8-A, 9-A, upon the recommendation of the Government Survey and Reorganization Commission.

The new department shall consist of the office of the secretary, administrative division, fiscal division, legal division, Bureau of Supply Coordination, Bureau of Building and Real Property Management, Bureau of Records Management, Bureau of Printing, and National Media Production Center.

Gov. Alejandro Almendras or Davao most likely will be appointed secretary of the department in order to give the people of Mindanao greater participation in the national government.

Under the executive order the functions of secretary of general services shall include the following:

(1) Advise the President on the formulation and execution of policies concerning the performance of common administrative services in the various entities of the government; and (2) Administer, coordinate, and direct the assignment, regulation, and performance of the functions related to maintenance, custody, and utilization of buildings and real property; procurement, issuance and utilization of supplies, materials, and equipment; management of government records and documents; and printing and media production services.

The undersecretary shall, among others, advise and assist the secretary in the formulation, determination, and implementation of department policies, and act as secretary in his absence or if the office becomes vacant.

THE President this afternoon reassured the veterans of his ever-increasing concern for their welfare and for the early resolution of the various problems facing the veterans today.

The President's reassurance was given in a speech delivered before the delegates to the premiere convention of the Veterans Federation of the Philippines at the Manila Hotel's petal room this afternoon. (See next issue for the full text of the President's speech.)

After his speech the President was made VFP honorary president in a ceremony which highlighted the opening day of the convention.

The President was fetched from his Quezon City workshop by Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, Armed Forces chief of staff. Arriving at the convention hall at exactly 4 p.m., he was greeted by VFP officers headed by Vice-Mayor Jesus Marcos Rocas, acting president.

Earlier, the President held a conference at his workshop with the council of leaders. He also worked on pending state papers.

MALACAÑANG announced today that President Garcia called to Manila Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo from Washington and Ambassador Salvador P. Lopez from Paris, for consultation.

The two ambassadors are scheduled to arrive in Manila sometime next week. President Garcia will discuss with Romulo details of the anticipated trip of the President to the United States. Romulo will also report to the President on the latest development on the importation of American rice.

President's Month in Review: March 16-31, 1958

OFFICIAL MONTH IN REVIEW

March 16.— PRESIDENT Garcia spent his Sunday quietly in his workshop in Quezon City. He heard mass at about 8 a.m. together with the First Lady and children.

After breakfast the President and Mrs. Garcia strolled in the garden. The President then went to his study and read the Sunday papers.

After luncheon the President had a brief rest. In the evening he went over state papers. He conferred with Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison and then issued his statement on the state visit of President Diem on March 19 to Sunday, March 23.

CHAIRMAN Eduardo Z. Romualdez of the Rehabilitation Finance Corporation will remain as acting presiding officer of the National Economic Council until the permanent appointee for that office has been named. Romualdez remains in the Cabinet,

THE following is the text of President Garcia's statement on the occasion according to an announcement issued by Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison today of President Ngo Dinh Diem's state visit to the Philippines:

"The goodwill state visit to the Philippines of President Ngo Dinh Diem opens an era of closer and more cordial relations between the Filipinos and the Vietnamese. We have seen the gallant fight of the Vietnamese for their independence under the leadership of their courageous President Diem. We have witnessed the rise of the Vietnamese Republic and the establishment of a democracy dedicated to the cause of peace and freedom. That young Republic is now gradually establishing economic security for its people.

"During the formative stage of the new Vietnam we have in our humble way, through Operations Brotherhood, helped in the amelioration of the masses of the Vietnamese people, many of whom were thrown out of their homes by reason of the political upheaval at that time. Under the leadership of President Diem, the Vietnamese have the storms and stresses that have characterized the first years of their democratic life, and now we share in the pride that this young Republic has won, not only the recognition but also the admiration and faith" of all the peoples in the free world.

"The Philippines, therefore, feels happy and honored to welcome the distinguished President of South Vietnam on his first state visit to our country on March 19 to 23,"

March 17.—THE PRESIDENT Garcia this morning conferred posthumously on the late President Magsaysay the Golden Heart presidential award in an impressive ceremony held at Malacañang in connection with the first anniversary observance of the death of the late President.

After Mrs. Luz B. Magsaysay had received the award, President Garcia spoke briefly and lauded the "great record of devoted and patriotic service to our country" of the late President. He added that the award "stands out as a warm and grateful recognition from our people of the many signal achievements in his lifetime which have all brought about the consummation of the desired objective of returning once again the government to the people."

Present at the ceremony were high government officials led by members of the Cabinet, members of the diplomatic corps led by their Papal Nuncio Egidio Vagnozzi, members of the Philippines and U. S. armed forces, relatives, friends, and admirers of the late President.

Also present were immediate members of the family of the late President, including his father Don Exequiel Magsaysay, his son Ramon, and daughters Teresita and Milagros.

The President stood at the south end of the ceremonial hall, flanked by Mrs. Garcia, Mrs. Magsaysay, Mrs. Diosdado Macapagal, Don Exequiel Magsaysay, Ramon Magsaysay, Jr., Misses Teresita and Milagros Magsaysay, while members of the diplomatic corps and of the Cabinet stood at the sides.

The citation, read by Col. Emilio O. Borromeo, senior aide-de-camp of the President, dwelt on the “dedicated and patriotic service” to the country of the late President as a guerrilla fighter, military governor of Zambales, congressman, secretary of national defense, and finally as President.

As Secretary of National Defense, the citation read, the late President “proved to the world that the spread of Communism could be effectively contained in the Far East, as it actually was suppressed within our shores through a systematic military campaign waged on the communist Huks, tempered with the implementation of socio-economic reform measures.”

President Garcia received from Salvador M. Buazon, national vice-president of the Barrio Lieutenants of the Philippines, a bust of President Magsaysay made by sculptor Isauro Flaviano, who also presented another bust to Mrs. Magsaysay at Malacañang after the award ceremony.

Earlier, President and Mrs. Garcia motored to the Pro-Cathedral of San Miguel to hear mass offered by Archbishop Rufino Santos of Manila for the repose of the soul of the late President.

After the ceremony at Malacañang, the President and the First Lady led a pilgrimage to the tomb of President Magsaysay at the North Cemetery. Upon arrival at the cemetery, the President laid a wreath on the tomb amidst a 21-gun salute. Mrs. Luz B. Magsaysay and her children followed in laying a wreath on the tomb of the departed leader while taps was played. Honor-guards were mounted around the tomb. Members of the diplomatic corps, ranking government officials, and people from all walks of life gathered around the tomb to pay tribute to the “Guy.”

THE President today received Lions International First Vice-President Dudley L. Simms to whom he gave presidential proclamation No. 493 declaring March 11-17 as Lions Week.

Simms, the incoming president of Lions International, personally brought the Lions’ two-year scholarship offered by Lions International, California Lions, and Nevada Lions, recently accepted by Mrs. Ramon Magsaysay for her son Ramon.

Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason informed President Garcia during his call today that he would turn over his office to newly-appointed Justice Secretary Jesus Barrera.

President Garcia thanked Secretary Tuason for his long and fruitful services to the government. The President; said that Secretary Tuason’s stay as secretary of justice has helped strengthen the faith of the people in the government. He praised the outgoing secretary of justice for his invaluable services to the country and to the people.

The President, after thanking Secretary Tuason, personally directed Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo to write an official letter thanking Tuason for his services.

PRESIDENT Garcia today marked his first year as Chief Executive of the country with a “quiet dinner” at his new residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City.

President Garcia invited those who were with him in Canberra, Australia, when he received the shocking news that President Magsaysay died at a plane crash in Cebu and that he was to take over the presidency of the country.

The President then was head of a Philippine delegation to a SEATO conference in Canberra when he got a flash report that he was succeeding President Magsaysay, who had perished in a plane disaster at Mt. Manunggal in Cebu.

Invited to the “reunion” among the members of the presidential entourage to Canberra were Lt. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, chief of staff of the Armed Forces; Brig. Gen. Pelagio Cruz, Assistant Executive Secretary Niconor T. Jimenez, Mrs. Rafaelita Hilario-Soriano, Gov. Rafael Lazatin of Pam-panga, former Press Secretary and Mrs. J. V. Cruz, Artemio A. Garlit of the Philippines Herald, Nati Valentin of the Manila Times, and Col. Jorge Delarmente, military aide.

Malacañang said that there were other unidentified guests who were invited to join the blessed group.

In his Bohol Avenue residence the President received the officials of the Peace and Amelioration Fund Campaign headed by Manolo Elizalde, who presented a progress report to President Garcia on the drive.

March 18.— THIS morning President Garcia called upon all provincial governors and city mayors to drum up support among the people in their respective localities for the government’s program for self-sufficiency in rice, corn, and other basic needs of the people.

In an extemporaneous address delivered before the provincial and city executives at the opening of their three-day convention at the Malacañang Park this morning, the President outlined his plans of increasing production of food, clothing, and shelter and appealed for general cooperation in the implementation of these plans.

The President asked the provincial and city executives to generate enthusiasm in the campaign being waged by the government for increased production. He said that the local officials were in- the best position to assist in this campaign, as they were the ones directly in contact with the masses.

The Chief Executive devoted a considerable portion of his speech to enumerating various projects earmarked by the government; such as, the establishment of an integrated steel mill, the indoctrination of the people in scientific methods of farming and livestock raising, and other plans aimed at attaining self-sufficiency in basic commodities. He expressed hope that the local officials, irrespective of whatever party they belonged to, would support his program for the good of the country.

The President arrived at the convention hall about 10 a.m. He was accompanied by a five-man committee formed by the conventionists earlier this morning to fetch him from his “workshop” in Quezon City. The committee was composed of Govs. Amado Aleta of Nueva Ecija, Bernardo Torres of Leyte, Alejandro Almendras of Davao, and Esmeraldo Eco of Camarines Norte, and Mayor Cesar Climaco of Zamboanga City.

Other speakers at this morning’s session were Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo, who dwelt mainly on the President’s austerity program, and former Gov. Sofronio Quimson, assistant executive secretary for local governments, who delivered the opening remarks. r

After the President’s speech, the conventionists proceeded with the election of officers for the current year. Gov. Isidro Rodriguez of Rizal was unanimously elected chairman of the league.

The Chief Executive spoke before the governors find city mayors after the luncheon he tendered in their honor in Malacañang.

President Garcia came out in favor of synchronizing elections even as he urged governors and city mayors to generate enough congressional support to insure its approval.

The President said that even when he was still a senator he was in favor of the idea, saying that one election every four years would be enough.

The President cited the move in Congress to give senators a district so that they could have a specific area of service, saying that he was in favor of restoring the former senatorial districts. However, he pointed out the obstacles, constitutional in character, that bar the approval of the synchronization of elections.

First of all, he said, a constitutional amendment must be approved to extend the term of the senators to 8 years, instead of the present 6 years, and hold elections for 12 senators every 4 years.

Pointing out that this is the only way to synchronize elections, the President expressed his doubts, however, that Liberal solons would agree to it. Other after-luncheon speakers were Gov. Isidro Rodriguez of Rizal, chairman of the League of Governors and City Mayors; Iloilo City Mayor Rodolfo Ganzon, vice-chairman of the League; and Gov. Dominador Chipeco of Laguna, secretary of the League.

The three LGCM officials promised to implement the food production campaign of the administration and pleaded for more local autonomy.

Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., and Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez declared that they were in favor of granting more autonomy to local governments. Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo acted as toastmaster.

After the luncheon, President Garcia administered the oath of office to Gov. Rodriguez, City Mayor Ganzon, and Gov. Chipeco. Other LGCM officers elected at the opening day of the convention held at the Malacañang recreation hall who were absent during the occasion were Gov. Rafael Lazatin of Pampanga, treasurer; Gov. Juan Frivaldo of Sorsogon, PRO; and Basilan City Mayor Leroy Brown, sergeant-at-arms.

In the afternoon session, Ramon Binamira, head of the PACD lectured on the master plan for increased food production. The League adjourned at 4:30 p.m. They will resume their meet tomorrow at 8 a.m.

Presidential callers this day were former Sen. Francisco Delgado, Oscar Arellano, and Reps. Canuto M. S. Enerio of Zamboanga del Sur, Benjamin T. Ligot and Felipe Garduque of Cagayan, Emilio Cortez of Pampanga, Faustino Tobia and Godofredo Reyes of Ilocos Sur, Pedro Venida of Camarines Norte, Ricardo Y. Ladrado of Iloilo, Francisco Ortega of La Union, Cesar Fortich of Bukidnon, Wenceslao R. Lagumbay of Laguna, Alberto Ubay of Zamboanga del Norte, and Jose Moreno of Romblon.

The President held a conference with Budget Commissioner Dominador R. Aytona and Rep. Tobias Former of Antique, chairman of the House committee on appropriations, with whom he discussed budgetary matters.

March 19.—PRESIDENT Garcia, in welcoming Vietnam President Ngo Dinh Diem this morning, said that it was “an honor to have you the leader of the Viet Nam people and defender of freedom and democracy, with us.”

The President said that he was looking forward to a hearty conversation with President Diem on the reaffirmation and strengthening of the close relationship between the Philippines and Viet Nam.

In his reply to the President at the Manila International Airport a few minutes after his arrival, President Diem said that “it is with a deep sense of emotion and delight that I set foot on this, land of freedom.” President Diem praised President Garcia as “a man who has an impressive record as a champion of the cause of freedom not only in his country, but also throughout the Free World, and to whom the Filipino people entrusted the task of continuing the work left unfinished by your predecessor.”

President Diem and his party arrived at 11 a.m. at the Manila International Airport on board of four engine Air Viet Nam plane which was escorted by six PAF mustangs. President Garcia, who led high government officials and members of the diplomatic corps in welcoming the Viet Nam chief of state, arrived at the MIA at 10: 50 a.m.

First to board the plane carrying president Diem when it stopped in front of the MIA building was President Garcia followed by his aide, Lt. Col. Emilio Borromeo, and Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez, A few minutes after President

Garcia stepped down the plane, President Diem, dressed in the Viet Nam national costume, followed and was met with a warm applause by the welcomers.

President Garcia introduced the Viet Nam President to the ranking government officials, including Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal, Speaker Daniel Romualdez, and members of the Cabinet, members of the diplomatic corps, and the top brass of the Armed Forces led by Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano. Members of the Philippine Jaycees were also at the airport. After the introductions, the National Anthem of Viet Nam was played amidst the booms of a 21-gun salute.

A composite company of men of the Philippine Army, the Philippine Navy, and the Philippine Air Force served as the honor guard. After the playing of the Viet Nam National Anthem, President Diem and President Garcia, with Lieut. Gen. Arellano and Brig. Gen. Le Van Kim, aide to President Diem, inspected the guard of honor. The Philippine National Anthem was played after the inspection of the guard of honor.

Proceeding to the improvised platform, President Garcia and President Diem delivered their messages of welcome and response. President Diem expressed the belief that his visit here would be "most inspiring and will contribute to strengthen still further the very happy and brotherly relations existing between our two countries."

Members of President Diem's party included Vu Mau, secretary of state for foreign affairs; Tran Huu The, secretary of state for national education; Bui Van Luong, high commissioner general for agricultural development; Quach Tong Due, director of Cabinet of the President; Hoang Thuc Dam, director of protocol; Brig. Gen. Le Van Kim, aide-de-camp; Vo Van Hai, chief of Cabinet of the President; and Ton That Thien, press secretary to the President.

From the airport after the ceremonies, President Garcia and President Diem boarded a cream colored Cadillac top-down with plate No. 1 and headed a motorcade to Malacañang passing through Dewey Boulevard, Taft Avenue, Escolta, Rizal Avenue, Azcarraga, and Aviles streets.

President Garcia and President Diem arrived at Malacañang at 12:30 p.m.

President Garcia was conferred by visiting President Ngo Dinh Diem with the Kim Khanh, the highest decoration within the gift of the Viet Nam Government, in a ceremony held in Malacañang shortly before lunch today.

President Diem, in conferring the award, said: "It gives me great pleasure in presenting to you the Kim, Khanh as a token of the friendship of the Vietnamese people and in acknowledgement of your services in the cause of Filipino-Vietnamese friendship."

President Garcia responded: "It is to me a great pleasure as well as an honor to receive this decoration which your government has deemed appropriate to confer upon me and, subject to approval by Congress, I shall vocally accept it. I hope it will grow in significance as our friendship and our relations grow closer and warmer."

The Kim Khanh consisted of medals in the form of miniature gold crowns. Its presentation which was held at Malacañang's ceremonial hall was witnessed by Mrs. Garcia, Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos' members of President Diem's party, and Philippine Government high officials.

Escorted by a fleet of motorcycle cops and prowl cars' of the Manila Police Department, Presidents Garcia and Diem arrived at Malacañang about 12:30 p.m. at the head of along motorcade from the airport. They rode in an open, gray convertible.

The visiting Viet Nam President inspected an honor guard formed by Companies A and B of the presidential guard battalion, which played the Vietnamese and Filipino national anthems.

After acknowledging the raffles and flourishes offered by the honor guard, President Diem was accompanied up the Palace by President Garcia.

At the music room the President offered a toast to the “continued good health” of his guest. The toast was made with basi, which has become the official ceremonial wine in Malacañang.

After a brief exchange of pleasantries at the music room, President Diem was shown to his room on the northeast corner of the Palace. About 1 p.m. Presidents Garcia and Diem were at the ceremonial hall for the award presentation ceremonies which lasted about 10 minutes.

President and Mrs. Garcia were later presented with a laminated bamboo wind screen, with a lacquered painting of a typical Vietnamese rural scene. Said to be the third of its kind produced in Viet Nam the first having been presented to the President of Korea and the second to the King of Thailand, the wind screen is said to last for centuries.

President Garcia had lunch with his visitor at the state dining hall. With them at the lunch table were Mrs. Garcia, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos, Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, and Vu Van Mau, Viet Nam secretary of state for foreign affairs.

President and Mrs. Garcia gave a state dinner in honor of visiting President Ngo Dinh Diem of Viet Nam at the social hall in Malacañang in the evening.

President Liem’s party who were present at the dinner were Va Van Mau, secretary of states for foreign affairs; Tran Huu The, secretary of state for national education; Bui Van Luang, high commissioner for agricultural development;. Quach Tong Due, director de Cabinet of the President Hoang Thuc Dam, director of protocol; General Le Van Kim, presidential aide-de-camp; Vo Van Hai, the chief de Cabinet of the President; Ton That Thien, press secretary; and Dr. Bui Kien Tin, personal physician of President Diem.

Vice-President and Mrs. Diosdado Macapagal, Senate President and Mrs. Eulogio Rodriguez, Speaker Daniel Romualdez, and Chief Justice Ricardo Paras; the chief of foreign missions; Cabinet members, Congress leaders and their ladies, and top brass of the Armed and U. S. Army were invited to the state dinner.

March 20.— PRESIDENT Garcia was kept busy the whole day today attending to his state visitor, President Ngo Dinh Diem of Viet Nam.

President Diem, who arrived Wednesday, is the house guest of the President at Malacañang.

However, the Vietnamese Chief of State had breakfast alone in his room, while the President had his with the members of his family.

In the morning, the President motored to his residence in Quezon City to wait for President Diem, who was moving from Malacañang to the house on Bohol Avenue.

President Diem, on the other hand, went to Camp Murphy, where he was honored by the Armed Forces.

After the Camp Murphy ceremonies, the President received President Diem at his residence.

IN the evening, the President and the First Lady motored to the Vietnamese Embassy in Forbes Park, where President Diem gave a dinner in honor of the First Couple.

At the dinner Mrs. Garcia was given a corsage by President Diem.

It was the second dinner the two residents had in two’ days since President Diem’s arrival in Manila.

The two presidents conferred at the anteroom of President Garcia's Bohol Avenue residence. They exchanged views on matters of mutual interest between the Philippines and Viet Nam. A joint statement will be issued later by the two presidents prior to President Diem's departure for Saigon.

President Garcia thanked President Ngo Dinh Diem for making possible the importation by the Philippines of 30,000 tons of rice from Saigon. He also thanked the Vietnamese President for donating some rice to the Philippine Government for distribution among the needy.

President Garcia thanked President Diem after Ambassador Mariano Ezpeleta had informed him last night that through the intervention of President Diem, the Philippines had succeeded in importing 30,000 tons of Vietnamese rice.

According to Ezpeleta, the Philippines could not have imported the total of 30,000 tons of rice because of government regulations limiting the amount of rice to be exported per quarter.

It was through the personal intercession of President Diem, Ezpeleta said, that an exception was made, allowing the approval of the Philippine importation of the needed amount of rice.

President Diem arrived at the residence of President Garcia at 9:20 a.m. after attending the ceremonies in his honor at Camp Murphy. President and Mrs. Garcia greeted him at the entrance of their residence. President Garcia then personally conducted President Diem to his room and later on showed him the other parts of the house. Then the two presidents went into a huddle. The conference lasted from 9:35 to 10:15 a.m.

March 21.—HIGH officers of the Philippine Copra Exporters Association today informed President Garcia of their determination to increase the volume of exports in order to bolster the dollar reserves of the country and strengthen the national economy.

Led by their president, Tommy Qua, members of the board of directors of the association presented a resolution to the Chief Executive promising to cooperate with the Administration.

After receiving the resolution, President Garcia expressed his gratitude for the promised cooperation.

In promising to increase the tonnage of copra export to the United States, Europe, and other countries, the association members informed the President that a goal of from 30,000 to 40,000 tons of copra was set for export within 20 days.

The association placed at the disposal of President Garcia its facilities in the solution of the problems of the country, particularly the need for the immediate purchase of rice and other basic foodstuffs, consistent with existing rules and regulations of the Central Bank.

Other PCEA officers who saw President Garcia were C. Richard, first vice-president; J. Jacobi, second vice-president; M. Igual, J. Lim, C. L. Tan, F. Tussing, directors; and J. Collas, PCEA secretary Jose Corominas, B. Rocca, and N. T. Whitting accompanied the group.

Earlier this morning, President Garcia saw Victor Laurel, president of the Worldwide Progressive Company, Leonardo Padilla, and Alfredo R. Gomez. The callers informed the President of their plan to establish a plant to exploit a new process to utilize the food value of the coconut.

The President also received Michael Tsur, director of foreign trade of Israel, who presented on behalf of President Ben Zvi a silver and gold chess set. Tsur was accompanied by Israeli Consul General Ernest E. Simke.

Ambassador Horace Smith called on the President before leaving on Tuesday for his new post at Laos. President and Mrs. Garcia are honoring Ambassador Smith with a farwell breakfast on Monday.

Other presidential callers were Andres Castillo, deputy governor of the Central Bank; Marcial P. Lichauco; A. G. Norrhan, managing director of Thomas de la Rue & Co., Ltd. of London; M. C. Fitz Gerald, Southeast Asia sales manager of the same firm; Mrs. Mary Ford; and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. McGuire of California.

PRESIDENT Garcia this afternoon branded as “absolutely baseless” charges of alleged anomalies in the implementation of the reparations agreement, but refused to comment on the departure at noon of two congressmen on a fact-finding trip to Japan.

At his weekly press conference, the President said he had “very little to do with the reparations schedules.”

The President’s statement was apparently intended to exculpate himself from charges of irregularities even as he emphatically denied there is “such a reparations mess.”

President Garcia devoted a great portion of his press conference to explaining that reparations schedules were prepared by the “ad interim” reparations office and approved by both the Cabinet and the Council of State.

At the same time, the President said he will meet the Council of Leaders next week to discuss the composition of the three-man Reparations Commission.

He said he is considering the appointment of a political lame-duck, possibly former Sen. Jose Locsin, to the reparations body.

The President told newsmen he was in favor of appointing “lameducks” to non-Cabinet positions, depending on their “ability and integrity.” At the press conference the President also:

1. Said that while the Philippines is an Asian country and is a part of Asia, this does not preclude her from associating with the West, especially with the countries to which she is historically linked—the United States and Spain.
2. Indicated he may go to Europe after his state visit to the United States on June 16;
3. Claimed as “unnecessary a proposal in Congress to have the nominations of holdover Cabinet members submitted to the Commission of Appointments for re-confirmation; and
4. Inducted Guillermo V. Sison as press secretary.

In explaining the reparations schedules, the President pointed out that the Reparations Commission was created by law only last June.

He said that in the presentation to Japan of the last two schedules, his participation was “merely in the capacity of a Cabinet member,” as the then vice-president and secretary of foreign affairs.

The President also pointed out that rules and regulations have been adopted to govern the preparations of the yearly schedules.

He took occasion of the news conference to praise the work of Minister Caesar Z. Lanuza, head of the Reparations Mission in Tokyo.

“I believe he has been implementing the reparations agreement very well,” the President said.

However, President Garcia refused to comment on the trip of Reps. Francisco Ortega of La Union and Antonio Raquiza of Ilocos Norte, who left for Japan shortly before noon today.

The two* solons went to Tokyo to conduct an on-the-spot inquiry into disposition of the reparations items. They make up a bipartisan team, to check on the reparations instalment.

House members had asked the President to recall Lanuza to Manila to testify on the disposal of war indemnity good. However, they abandoned the plan and instead decided to send the bipartisan team to Japan.

March 22.—PRESIDENT Garcia and Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo this morning exchanged views on all questions concerning Philippine-American relations which, it was understood, would be discussed by President Garcia during his forthcoming state visit to the United States. They also discussed the details of the President's trip to the United States.

Ambassador Romulo, who had been called to Manila by the President, arrived early this morning by plane. Immediately upon arrival, he proceeded to President Garcia's residence on Bohol Avenue. He arrived there before 8 a.m. A few minutes later, the President arrived from Malacañang and then invited the Ambassador for breakfast. Present at the breakfast were Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo and Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison.

After the breakfast, the President, Ambassador Romulo, and Secretary Pajo went to the President's anteroom and resumed their talks behind closed doors.

Ambassador Romulo presented to the President a gift consisting of a chess set suitable for use during airplane trips. Together with the chess set was a time clock for chess players.

The conference started from 8 a.m. at breakfast and lasted up to 10:30 a.m. After the breakfast, President Garcia received Reps. Lorenzo Teves of Negros Oriental, Bartolome Cabangbang, Maximino Garcia, and Natalio Castillo, all of Bohol, with whom he discussed matters pertaining to their respective districts.

The President ate his lunch at his residence. In the afternoon he returned to Malacañang and went over state papers.

March 23.—PRESIDENT Garcia and President Ngo Dinh Diem of Viet-Nam issued a joint communique after holding their final talks this morning.

Earlier in the morning a mass was held at the Malacañang chapel attended by President and Mrs. Garcia and President Diem, together with Vietnamese Ambassador Cao Thai Bao and some members of his entourage. Also present were Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos.

AFTER the mass, the President accompanied President Diem to the Palace. Before entering the family dining room, President Diem presented to Mrs. Garcia a token sack of rice representing President Diem's donation of rice for poor and needy families.

Breakfast was served at the family dining room. After breakfast, President Garcia presented President Diem and ranking members of his entourage with souvenirs. President Garcia also presented President Diem with an album containing a pictorial account of his visit. The album was prepared by the Malacañang press office.

Before leaving the Palace, President Diem thanked President and Mrs. Garcia for their hospitality. President Diem then motored to the residence of President Garcia on Bohol Avenue where some ceremonies were held. From there President Diem proceeded to the Manila International Airport, where he boarded his plane for Saigon.

President Garcia motored to the Manila International Airport this morning, arriving there at 10:15 to bid goodbye to President Diem, who had been his house guest during Diem's state visit to the Philippines. President Diem and his entourage arrived at the airport five minutes later.

Upon Diem's arrival a 21-gun salute was fired. President Garcia and President Diem then mounted an improvised platform to receive military honors. First, the Vietnamese National Anthem was played. It was followed by the Philippine National Anthem.

President Diem then shook hands with the members of the diplomatic corps and other Philippine officials who had assembled at the airport to see him off. President Garcia accompanied President Diem to the ramp of President Diem's plane where they shook hands. President Diem thanked President Garcia for the hospitality accorded him during his stay here and President Garcia wished President Diem bon voyage.

Before entering his plane, Diem faced the people at the airport and waived his hand. The plane carrying President Diem taxied out of the airport at 10: 30 a.m., the scheduled time of its departure.

PRESIDENT Garcia today directed Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo to look into the reason why Sen. Mariano Jesus Cuenco's letter to Secretary Pajo had not been received by the executive secretary although it was reportedly receipted for at the Records Division of Malacañang.

The President said that after an investigation of the case, the person who may be found remiss in the performance of his duty would be properly dealt with.

President Garcia gave this directive upon reading Sen. Cuenco's statement in the newspapers refuting Secretary Pajo's assertion that he had not received Sen. Cuenco's letter to him. Cuenco, according to news reports, attached a photostat copy of the return registry receipt showing that the letter had been received at the Malacañang Records Division.

Secretary Pajo earlier had denied receiving the Cuenco letter.

The President also ordered this morning all government relief agencies to rush aid to the fire victims in Iloilo City.

The President's order was given upon receiving reports that a fl million fire had hit Iloilo City, rendering many families homeless.

Ordered to coordinate in the distribution of relief goods were the Social Welfare Administration and the Philippine National Red Cross.

The President also ordered the Constabulary to maintain order in the fire stricken area and to determine the extent of damage wrought by the conflagration.

The Department of Health was also ordered to extend medical aid to the fire victims.

President Garcia this day started his yearly two-week fasting.

During his first day of fast, the President took water with only a dash of sugar.

At the breakfast which President and Mrs. Garcia gave in honor of President Diem, President Garcia did not take anything but water.

The President fasts annually as a health measure which he has been observing the past several years.

March 24.— THIS morning the President urged coconut producers to take A the necessary steps to take advantage of scientific discoveries about the nutritive value of coconuts and to assume the initiative in research. He assured them of government help in this respect.

The President cited the progress made by the sugar industry through scientific research with government help. He expressed the hope that coconut producers would seize the initiative for progress.

At the same time, President Garcia approved in principle the recommendation made by Gov. Juan Triviño of Camarines Sur, president of the Philippine Coconut Producers Federation, that producers be allowed to barter copra outside the Philippines so that funds could be raised for the establishment of a research center and the purchase of machinery for the industrialization of the coconut industry.

The President spoke extemporaneously at the opening day of the sixth national convention of the Philippine Coconut Producers Federation held at the Manila Hotel's Winter Garden.

By viva voce vote, President Garcia was named honorary president of the federation, upon motion of Davao delegate Roque Monfort, seconded by another Davao delegate, Angel Villarica.

The President suggested that copra producers exert more effort to seize more of the European market where Philippine copra is finding more buyers owing to the improvement of its quality and displacing those of other countries.

The President decried that until now no report had been submitted on the progress of operations of the Hiller machine. He urged the conventionists to study the means to solve the marketing problem facing the coconut industry.

Earlier in the morning, President and Mrs. Garcia gave a farewell breakfast in honor of American Ambassador Horace C. Smith, who is leaving soon for his new post in Laos.

PRESIDENT Garcia administered the oath of office to former Gov. Bernardo Torres of Leyte as general manager of the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation, vice former Public Works Secretary Vicente Orosa, retired, in a ceremony held at Malacañang this afternoon.

In inducting Torres the President said that the PHHC was considered one of the most important branches of the social services program of the Administration. He said that its success so far has been due to the interest of the Administration in uplifting the lot of the masses.

Stating that the PHHC should carry on until every citizen of this country owns a home in accordance with his means, the President continued: "A man who lives in his own house acquires a better perspective in life, develops a sense of self-reliance, and brightens his chances of advancement. That is why the housing program is considered one of the most essential services of the government."

The President then impressed upon the PHHC officials, particularly the new inductee, the enormity of their responsibilities. He cautioned them to be careful in carrying on with the installment system of home-acquisition to prevent the possible breakdown of the corporation.

Manager Torres, in turn, thanked the President for the opportunity given him to serve in such a responsible position. He said he considered it a challenge and promised to do his best to measure up to the responsibilities of the post.

The President also inducted this afternoon officers and members of the supreme council of the Veterans Federation of the Philippines. Among those inducted were Col. Jose Razon, president; Ben Florentino, executive vice-president; Col. Nicanor Jimenez, Jose del Rosario, and Jose Ma. Barredo, vice-presidents; Col. C. B. Rigor, secretary general; Augusto Espiritu, treasurer general; Col. Daniel Victoria, auditor; and the following council members: Vice-Mayor Jesus: Marcos Roces of Manila, Antonio Varias, Fausto Alberto, Tereso Pia, Francisco Offemaria, Col. Dionisio Ojeda, Eugenio Recto, Lt. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, Col. Jose G. Arambulo, and Onesimo Soriano.

Present at the oath-taking of Manager Torres were Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, Rep. Dominador Tan of Leyte, NAWASA General Manager Susano Negado, and the following PHHC officials: Directos Salud Pareño and Isidro Retiroz; Benjamin Gray, board secretary; Jacobo de Vera, assistant general manager, Vicente Mercado, treasurer; and Jose Barce, Simeon Garcia and Jesus Merritt, technical assistants.

The President appealed this afternoon to the nation's scientists for united and concerted effort to resolve the current economic problems of the country through science and technology.

In his brief extemporaneous remarks before reading a prepared speech in the ceremony held at Malacañang social hall ushering in the 1858 National Science Week, the President outlined his plan to harness the collective know-how available in this country towards attaining self-sufficiency in essential items; such as food, clothing, and shelter

The President was introduced by Commander Marcelino Calinawan, Jr., (PN), who called the President's attention that among the personages gathered to witness, the ceremony were industrialists, agriculturists, legislators, scientists, engineers, and educators.

The President replied: "With the array of personages I see before me, I feel more confident than ever that there is no impossibility to the solution of our economic problems."

The ceremony was featured by the President's disseminating the staccato sound effect of atomic radiation over the air for one-half minute with the aid of a scientific gadget. The proceedings were broadcast by radio stations by remote control from Malacañang.

FIFTEEN Nacionalista senators this evening assured President Garcia of speedy action on 24 administration measures which he had referred to Congress for legislative implementation.

The senators' assurance was made at a dinner-conference held this evening with President Garcia at the latter's residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City.

Legislative Secretary Jose C. Nable said late in the evening that President Garcia's meeting with the senators was cordial and discounted early reports that the solons would convert the dinner into a "gripe session."

It was learned that the senators had agreed to take immediate action on the President's request for a price control law in an effort to arm him with powers to go after profiteers and hoarders.

At the same time, the senators promised to take up the budget as soon as the House approves the general appropriations bill.

President Garcia and the senators also agreed to consider "integrity and capability" as the overriding qualifications in the choice of the membership of the three-man Reparations Commission.

The President pointed out that "integrity and capability" should be the main consideration in the choice of members of the Reparations Commission following reports that many candidates have been recommended for this body.

The President, it was learned, was considering the appointment of former Sen. Jose Locsin to head the commission.

Others mentioned to compose the reparations body are Commissioner on Public Highways Rodolfo Maslog, Gov. Juan Alberto of Catanduanes, Gregorio Abad, Francisco Ortigas, Jr., and Judge Jesus de Veyra.

The President and the senators took up the case of Sen. Mariano Jesus Cuenco, staunch critic of President Garcia and Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo. Some senators defended Cuenco during the conference, while others took the cudgels for Secretary Pajo.

Cuenco boycotted the meeting saying that he did not want to embarrass the President and the senators with his presence. The Cebu solon said that he wanted the Chief Executive and the senators to take up his case “freely.”

At the dinner conference this evening the President and the senators also agreed to appoint the undersecretaries of foreign affairs and of justice next week.

Present at the conference last night were Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, and Sens. Cipriano Primicias, Oscar Ledesma, Lorenzo Sumulong, Francisco Rodrigo, Eulogio . Balao, Quintin Paredes, Ale jo Mabanag, Domocao Alonto, Emmanuel Pelaeiz, Edmundo Cea, Gil J. Puyat, Pedro Sab’ido, Pacita Madrigal Gonzalez, and Decoroso Rosales.

March 25.— MEMBERS of the League of Provincial Governors and City Mayors, led by their president, Gov. Isidro Rodriguez of Rizal, this morning presented President Garcia with a resolution approved during their recent convention lauding the appointment of Juan C. Pajo as executive secretary.

In approving the resolution, the provincial and city executives cited the distinguished government career of Secretary Pajo as provincial fiscal, provincial board member, and provincial governor, as well as his tact, diplomacy, and courtesy in his dealing with government officials and the general public in his present job.

In another resolution presented to the President, the League members pledged an all-out cooperation in the effective and successful implementation of the food production campaign of President Garcia.

Members of the League who saw the President were Govs. Amado Aleta of Nueva Ecija, Mariano Peñaflorida of Iloilo, Cnrado Estrella of Pangasinan, Jose Briones of Cebu, Fernando Veloso of Samar, Diego Ty Deling of Oriental Misamis, Dominador Chipeco of Laguna, Manuel Barretto of Zambales, Marcelo Adduru of Cagayan, Jesus Almero of Masbate, Marcos Malupa of Batanes, Leon Fernandez of Sulu, Esmeraldo Eco of Camarines Norte, Serafin Teves of Negros Oriental, Bienvenido Ebarle of Zamboanga del Sur, Juan Frivaldo of Sorsogon, Alfredo Abueg, of Palawan, and Arsenio Lugay of Tarlac, and City Mayors Teopisto Cordova of Bacolod, Leroy Brown of Basilan, and Jose Dorado of Roxas.

Reps. Pascual Espinosa, Domitilo Abordo, and Pedro Trono and Gov. Peñaflorida, all of Iloilo, in separate conferences with President Garcia, asked for more funds for the fire victims of Iloilo City.

The Chief Executive stated that he would look for funds for the fire victims and added that he had no more contingent funds.

The Iloilo solons told the President that the recent fire was the biggest ever to hit Iloilo City.

President Garcia also received Lady Olave Baden-Powel, world chief guide, who had arrived by plane in the course of a round the world trip. The widow of the founder of the Boy Scouts movement was accompanied to Malacañang by high officials of the Girl Scouts of the Philippines. Miss Betty Haugh, secretary to Lady Powell, was with the group.

The GSP officials who accompanied the distinguished visitor were Mesdames Concepcion R. Gonzales, Angelina Chipeco, Pilar Hidalgo-Lim, Mary Kalaw-Katigbak, Geronima T. Pecson, Trinidad F. Legarda, and Concepcion Gil.

President Garcia approved the immediate purchase of eight vitally needed fire and rescue trucks for distribution to important local airports, Malacañang announced today.

Responding to the need of local airports for fire fighting and rescue equipment of the specialized nature, the President had earlier ordered the immediate release of the fund appropriated by Congress in 1953 for the procurement of fire and rescue trucks.

It will be recalled that the Cabinet had approved the procurement of fire and rescue trucks through the Philippine Procurement Mission in New York. The Civil Aeronautics Administration has been negotiating for the fire and rescue trucks since last year.

Major Arturo D. Sevilla, Malacañang technical adviser on aviation, had been designated to follow up the early procurement of the much needed equipment. The eight fire and rescue trucks will be distributed to the airports in Manila, Cebu, Baguio, Bacolod, Zamboanga, Iloilo, Cagayan de Oro, and Naga.

THE President this day reprimanded Edilberto Y. David, deputy collector of customs (airport) and former acting commissioner of customs, saying that the evidences submitted to substantiate the charges against the former acting customs commissioner were “not of such nature as to warrant the taking of drastic disciplinary action against the respondent.”

In an administrative order reprimanding David, the President warned the respondent that the commission of similar acts in the future will be dealt with more severely. David had been charged with, and investigated for, (1) maladministration, (2) conduct prejudicial to the service, (3) corruption in office, and (4) moral unfitness in public office.

The President said that after a thorough review of the records of the case, he was satisfied with the explanations offered by the respondent except that he (David) overstepped his powers by interfering with functions properly belonging to the collector of customs in connection with the case of a certain shipment of undeclared saccharine and jewelry involved in the first charge, and that he made a poor choice of occasion in boarding a ship owned by a strike-bound company for his inspection trip to the South embraced in the second charged.

The President further said that with regard to the third charge, David had already been properly rebuked while he was arrastre superintendent in 1949. The fourth charge, according to the findings, had not been properly established.

THIS afternoon the President appealed to the members of the Chamber of Agriculture and Natural Resources to help the greater production of the country's prime necessities: food, shelter, and clothing. He laid stress on food production and the exploitation of the natural resources and mineral deposits “so that we can attain economic security.”

The President was guest speaker at the first convention of the CANRP at the Manila Hotel.

“We must do first things first and there is nothing more urgent than the matter of food because the average man needs three meals a day,” the President said.

Citing food, shelter, and clothing as the three fundamental necessities of life, the President said that agriculture was an institution created by man to answer his need for food, shelter, and clothing. “I am appealing for help to a composite group that can produce all the necessities of life,” the President remarked.

Touching first on the subject of increased food production, the President said that modern methods of technology should be applied,, including more irrigation systems, fertilizers, insecticides, and selected seeds for planting. He urged the bringing down of the cost of production as the best means of helping the farmers. He said that the giving of a price support of ₱12 per cavan of palay would be perpetuating the high cost of production. He stated that if the farmers would be able to produce 100 cavans of palay per hectare instead of 21 cavans, the cost of the production of rice would be reduced to about one-fourth of the present ₱. 81 per ganta. This, the President said, would mean lower cost of rice and more profit for the producers.

As regards natural resources and mineral deposits, the President cited the fact that the Philippines was importing as much as ₱300 million worth of construction materials every year “in spite of our rich forests and mineral deposits.”

The President told the CANRP members that the government was establishing integrated steel industry in order to process local iron ore but only on a pioneering basis to prepare private firms and nationals to take over when they were prepared for the job. He appealed to the CANRP members to “help in this movement so that you will be able to prepare yourselves when you take over.”

Speaking extemporaneously, the President also touched on the development of the textile industry and said that it was experimentally proven that we could produce raw materials, especially cotton for the textile industry. He called upon the farmers to help in the raising of raw cotton and other raw materials for the textile industry.

On other matters which included foreign exchange, controls, and marketing brought to his attention by the CANRP members, the President counselled them “to approach the problems with caution.” He assured them that he would give a firm decision on the said matters after a thorough study.

Arriving at the Manila Hotel with Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison about 5 p.m., the President was met by officials of the CANRP led by Alfredo Montelibano, president. From the lobby, the President proceeded to the Winter Garden, where the convention was held.

Before he spoke, the President inducted the members of the board of directors of the CANRP, among whom were Mario Moreno, Alberto Dimayuga, Juan Ledesma, Gov. Juan Trivihio of Camarines Sur, Felix Maramba, Benjamin Guiang, Manuel Gallego, Alex Reyes, Jr., Jose Mapa Gomez, Juan T. David, and Conrado S. Ramirez.

The President was flanked on the platform by Sen. Oscar Ledesma, Montelibano, Moreno, and Gov. Trivifio, and the other officers of the chamber.

President Garcia today said, “I have no plans to change General Carlos P. Romulo as ambassador to Washington.”

Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison said the President made this statement in view of some news reports giving the impression that Ambassador Romulo might be affected by the plans to reshuffle Philippine diplomatic personnel.

According to reports, Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano said that he had left entirely in the hands of the President the question of the diplomatic assignment of Ambassador Romulo in Washington.

Sison said that this statement was interpreted in some quarters as meaning to say that Romulo might be affected by the projected reshuffle of diplomatic personnel.

March 26.— PRESIDENT Garcia this morning motored to his Quezon City residence, where he conferred with Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona on the f 1.2 billion budget he had proposed for the next fiscal year.

The budget is now with the House of Representatives. Rep. Tobias Fornier, chairman of the House appropriations committee, has recommended its approval but some dissenting voice has been heard.

Aytona assured the President that Rep. Fornier and other Nacionalista solons are taking the cudgels for the budget measure and its approval in the House is expected before the Congress recesses for the Holy Week.

The President’s conference with Aytona lasted up to almost noontime. He did not receive any other caller until lunchtime.

The President, on his fourth day of fasting, rested in the forenoon.

He motored back to Malacañang shortly before four o’clock and presided over the Cabinet meeting.

During the Cabinet meeting, the President signed an executive order fixing the office hours during the summer season from 7:30 in the morning to 12:30 in the afternoon.

The summer schedule will be enforced from April 1 to June 15.

The President was elated by reports that the Monetary Board had lifted its dollar restrictions in the importation of essential commodities. He said that the MB action proved that the government had “taken the right path” in launching its austerity program late last year.

He congratulated Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez during the Cabinet meeting for the MB action. Hernandez is concurrently MB chairman. The President concluded his Cabinet meeting at 8 o’clock and retired to his new residence in Quezon City for the night.

March 27.—THIS morning, the President received Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo, who called to say goodbye prior to his return to his post in Washington D.C. During their brief conference, the President and Romulo discussed further details of the President’s forthcoming visit to the United States.

PRESIDENT Garcia this evening received Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez, who rendered a preliminary verbal report on the result of his mission. Members of his mission were Benjamin Gozon, director of mines, in Surigao.

Secretary Rodriguez informed the President that American capitalists had indicated to him their willingness to invest some $100 million for the development of the Nonoc mines. Rodriguez said he would submit a formal written report on the matter at the earliest possible time.

The President said he was very glad to know of the favorable reaction shown by American businessmen on the development of the mines which would be a great source of dollars for the Philippines and at the same time provide employment to the people.

Rodriguez recently returned from a few months abroad as head of a mission. Members of his mission were Benjamin Gozon, director of mines, and Leopoldo Abad.

The President this evening also received officials of the Department of Health headed by Secretary Paulino Garcia, who reported some of the effects of the recent implementation of the reorganization plan of their department as recently effected by the President through an executive order.

Secretary Garcia explained that with the decentralization of his department, health services had been brought closer to the people. His explanations were graphically illustrated by charts.

March 28.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning had a breakfast conference with ranking officials of the Mindanao-Palawan-Sulu Association who made a formal bid for more participation in the national government.

Headed by Sen. Emmanuel Pelaez, president of the association, the MPSA officials told the President that to implement more effectively the development of Mindanao, Palawan, and Sulu able men from these areas should be in the national government.

The President assured his guests that he will give the matter a serious consideration. He also told the MPSA officials to submit the names of their recommendees with their respective qualifications and experiences.

Present at the breakfast conference were Sens. Roseller T. Lim and Domacao Alonto; Reps. Cesar Fortich of Bukidnon, Salipada Pendatun of Cotabato, and Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan; Govs. Alejandro Almendras of Davao, Diego Ty Deling of Misamis Occidental, and Vicente’ Lara of Misamis Oriental; and City Mayors Carmelo Porras of Davao City and Leroy Brown of Basilan City.

Also discussed at the conference were the general conditions of Mindanao and Sulu, particularly, peace and order and smuggling problems in these regions.

The breakfast conference lasted from 8 to 9:30 a.m.

THE President this day directed Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno to find means to release ₱1 million in order to rush the completion of the ramie textile mills of the National Development Company in Davao.

The establishment of the NDC ramie textile mill had been authorized under the bond issue at a cost of ₱8 million, with the NDC advancing about ₱3 million from its operating capital.

In order to finish the construction of the buildings, the NDC entered into a financing plan with the RFC, which in turn requested the Monetary Board to release the amount needed for the purpose.

However, the Monetary Board denied the RFC request to support the approved arrangement for financing the ramie textile mill in view of the austerity program of the Administration which suspended the release of funds from bond issue.

The delay in the construction of the buildings was brought to the attention of the President by Davao Gov. Alejandro Almendras at a conference with the Chief Executive. Present at the conference were NDC General Manager Jose Panganiban, Davao City Mayor Carmelo Porras, Ricardo Ledesma, president of the Ramie Planters Association, Angel Padilla, former Rep. Carmen Dinglasan-Consing, and Batak, Davao, Mayor Isario Daguman.

Panganiban informed President Garcia that most of the machinery ordered from Europe are already stored in Davao warehouses. Installation of the machinery is awaiting completion of the buildings.

Ramie planters told President Garcia that the early operation of the Davao mill would stop further drain on the Philippine dollar reserves, as ramie at present sent to Japan for processing can be processed locally.

The early operation of the mill would effect a cut in the importation of textiles from abroad, the planters claimed.

The President also received the delegates to the Second Asian Dental Congress led by Dr. A. Karim, newly elected president of the congress; Dr. Bienvenido Eraña, president of the Asian-Pacific Dental Federation; and Col. Agustin Zarate, president of the Philippine Dental Association.

During the call, Dr. W. R. Alstadt, president of the American Dental Association, extended to President Garcia the greetings of the association, while Dr. Don Jose F. Aubertine gave the "President a letter of Mayor George Christopher of San Francisco extending the greetings and best wishes of the citizens of his city to the President, who is expected to pass the city on his forthcoming trip to the United States.

The President also received three prominent residents of San Francisco, California, who arrived recently on a combined business and pleasure trip accompanied by Captain and Mrs. Carmelo Manzano.

The visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dant, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Jones, and Mr. and Mrs. John Bradley. Dant is the president of the States Steamship Company.

Other presidential callers were Arsenio Jison, president of the Philippine National Bank; former Representative Jose Topacio Nueno, Hans Menzi, Vittorio Pinto, and Charles J. Graemiger.

PRESIDENT Garcia today accepted the resignation of four governors of the Agricultural Credit and Cooperative Financing Administration as he defended the controversial P10 million tobacco-for-tobacco barter deal.

At his weekly press conference this afternoon the President justified the ACCFA's transaction with the Philippine Tobacco Flue-curing and Re-drying Corporation and announced, "I am accepting the resignation of the four governors."

Those who resigned in protest of the barter deal were Ramon V. del Rosario, Agustin Fabian, Dr. Roberto Soler, and Mrs. Belen E. Gutierrez. They claimed there were "irregular actuations" involved in the transaction.

They tendered their resignation last evening after a six-hour stormy session of the board of governors over the controversial transaction.

A fifth ACCFA governor, Hilario de Pedro, was also reported to have indicated his desire to quit the government agency. However, his resignation has not been received at Malacañang until press time this evening.

President Garcia opened his press conference by explaining the tobacco barter transaction.

He said he had summoned Ernesto T. Jimenez, ACCFA general manager, to Malacañang to shed light on the disputed barter transaction.

However, Jimenez was reported still convalescing from a recent illness and instead submitted a written explanation to the President.

President Garcia said he had gone over Jimenez's report and was "satisfied" with his explanation.

March 29.— AFTER a meeting with the Council of Leaders at breakfast this morning, the President announced the following appointments:

Highways Commissioner Rodolfo Maslog as chairman of the Reparations Commission, Catanduanes Gov. Juan Alberto and Bulacan Gov. Alejo Santos as members of the Commission, former Senator Jose C. Locsin as chairman of the National Economic Council, Judge Enrique Fernandez as undersecretary of justice, and former Rep. Juan Alcazaren as undersecretary of foreign affairs.

These important appointments were made by the President after consultations with the Council of Leaders at the President's residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City. The conference lasted from 9:15 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. Present at the conference were Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Speaker Daniel Romualdez, Senate Majority Floor Leader Cipriano Primicias, and House Majority Floor Leader Jose Aldeguer. Also present was Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo.

Senate President Protempore Fernando Lopez and Speaker Protempore Constancio Castañeda could not attend the conference as they were out of town fulfilling some previous engagements.

During the conference it was agreed that President Garcia certify to Congress the Zosa bill which aims to amend the law requiring full complement of officers for fishing boats.

President Garcia decided to certify to the urgency of the bill in view of representations made by operators of small fishing boats that enforcement of the law would work hardships on them and that they would not be able to send out their boats to fish. This eventually would result in less supply of fish and higher prices, it was pointed out.

President Garcia today accepted with regret the resignation of Domingo Imperial as chairman of the Commission on Elections.

In his letter of acceptance President Garcia congratulated Imperial for the "splendid performance" of his duties as chairman of the Commission and extended his "sincere best wishes for further success in your subsequent undertakings."

President Garcia today issued three proclamations. One declares Saturday, April 5, as special public holiday, another extends by 30 days the 11th annual fund campaign of the Philippine National Red Cross, and the third designates the period from July 1 to August 15 this year for the national fund campaign of the Boy Scouts of the Philippines.

The President said that as April 3 (Holy, Thursday) and April 4 (Good Friday) are public holidays, April 5 could be declared a special public holiday without any prejudice to the public interest.

The 11th annual fund campaign of the PNRC was originally proclaimed to last from February 14 to March 31 this year. The President had to extend the period until April 31, as the drive “has been affected adversely by the failure of crops due either to drought or disasters in many areas.”

In designating the period for the Boy Scouts national fund campaign, the President said that the organization was “in need of funds to carry out its operations effectively, to intensify its nation-wide training and recruiting program so that the great number of boys of scout age seeking admission into the organization may be served.”

The President called upon all government officials and employees as well as upon all citizens and residents of this country to assist in the Boy Scouts campaign. He also authorized all national authorities and teachers to accept, in behalf of the BSP, “fund-raising responsibilities” and urged them “to give active support and leadership in their respective communities.”

March 30.—PRESIDENT Garcia started this day by reading the Holy Bible, particularly the chapter on Palm Sunday. He used the Bible presented to him by Francis Cardinal Spellman on one of the latter’s recent visits to Manila.

The President today started taking fruit juice on the seventh day of his fasting. He sipped orange juice from slices of fresh oranges for breakfast, lunch, and supper. In between meals he took water with little sugar.

After breakfast this morning, the President weighed himself and found that he had lost four pounds since he started fasting seven days ago. He weighed 159 pounds compared to his 163 pounds before he started his fast,

The President heard mass early this morning before an improvised altar at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City. Also at the mass was Major Jose Estrella, presidential aide, and members of the household.

About 9 a.m., the President read the Sunday papers. Then he was joined by his daughter Linda, and son-in-law, Fernando Campos, who had arrived to visit him.

The President read the Holy Bible the rest of the day.

March 31.—THE President had a breakfast conference with Manila City Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson and Vice-Mayor Jesus Roces, after which he received a delegation led by Mrs. Rizalina T. Buenaseda, dean of student affairs of the Philippine Normal College.

The delegation urged the appointment of Dr. Jesus I. Martinez, incumbent dean of instruction of the college, as president of the institution upon the retirement of Dr. Macario Naval.

Other members of the delegation were Mrs. Victoria B. Castro, directress of the training department; Regino Gyco, president of the faculty association; Mrs. Herminia Ancheta, and Basilio Santos, president of the student council.

President Garcia announced today the appointment of Gov. Alejandro Almendras of Davao as secretary of the Department of General Services, which was created recently by an executive order pursuant to the provisions of the Reorganization Law.

The nomination of the new department head was immediately sent to the Commission on Appointments by President Garcia for confirmation.

The President granted a reprieve of 30 days to Manuel Daet, Jose Villaroya, and Enrique Arejola, who were sentenced to death. The three prisoners were found guilty of murder by the Court of First Instance of Camarines Sur and later by the Supreme Court on two cases.

The three were granted a reprieve until April 29, 1958.

THE President today directed the suspension of “all actuations of purchase of Hacienda San Luis until further orders.”

The suspension of the purchase was contained in a telegram sent by Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo to Land Tenure Administration Commissioner Manuel Castañeda. Commissioner Castañeda was also directed to confer immediately with the President and Secretary Pajo upon receipt of the telegram.

Secretary Pajo informed Sen. Mariano Jesus Cuenco and Rep. Genaro Magsaysay of Zambales of the suspension of the purchase in separated telegrams.

Meanwhile, tenants of Hacienda San Luis called at the office of Commissioner Castañeda early this morning and urged the continuance of the purchase. The tenants claimed that if the negotiable land certificates in payment of the hacienda were not delivered March 31, 1958, last day of payment as stipulated in the contract, products worth ₱40,000 would go to the Compania General de Tabacalera as owner of the hacienda.

The contract between the LTA and the Tabacalera stipulated March 31, 1958, as the last day of delivering the negotiable land certificates to the latter in payment of the hacienda. The tenants said that the ₱40,000 worth of tobacco products could go to the LTA coffers as their installment if the hacienda was paid for by the government on March 31.

The tenants belonging to the San Luis Hacienda Tenants’ and Petitioners’ Association were headed by Rosendo Antonio, president; Domingo Luna, vice-president; Delfin Respicio, secretary; Elias V. Lelina, treasurer; Manuel Bañez, counsel; and members of the board of directors. They were received by Julian U. de Vera and Numeriano A. Fabie, members of the LTA, and Eicardo S. Lieu, LTA administrative assistant.

President Garcia was informed today by Rep. Leonardo Perez of Nueva Vizcaya that it was the consensus of Nueva Vizcaya mayors, councilors, and barrio councils that the low-grade tobacco barter deal was “the best way out to dispose of inferior tobacco to save ACCFA capital for farmers.”

In a telegram sent to the President, Rep. Perez said that if the inferior tobacco was not disposed of, it would have tied up ACCFA capital to the prejudice of farmers who- badly need more loans.

The President issued a proclamation today declaring Wednesday, April 2, this year, is special public holiday in Bataan and Bulacan provinces in commemoration of the birthday of Francisco Balagtas, “Prince of Filipino Poets.”

The President issued the proclamation on representations made by political and civic leaders from the two provinces who would like to be afforded opportunity to celebrate the day. Bulacan was the birthplace of the poet while Bataan was the place where he had lived and died.

President Garcia today directed all government relief agencies to extend assistance to victims of the ₱1 million fire in Hagonoy, Bulacan.

The President directed the Social Welfare Administration, the Department of Health, the Philippine! National Red Cross, and the Armed Forces to send immediately relief units to the stricken area to give necessary assistance to the fire sufferers.

IN the evening the President directed Land Tenure Administration Commissioner Manuel F. Castañeda to cooperate fully in the proposed investigation by Congress of land purchases by the LTA.

The President told Castañeda to offer all the facilities of his office and make available all records which may be needed in the forthcoming investigation.

The Chief Executive also directed that government agencies which may be needed to aid in the investigation, such as the NBI or the Constabulary, should cooperate with the Congress investigating committee, should their services be needed.

The President issued these directives tonight following a statement issued last night that Malacañang welcomed the investigation of the landed estate purchases made by the LTA.

Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison said that President Garcia expressed regret upon reading news reports today that Malacañang was backing up the LTA. Sison said that the President precisely said that Malacañang welcomed the investigation and, therefore, it was contrary to reason that Malacañang would prematurely absolve the LTA even before the investigation had started.

Sison said that to show further that Malacañang welcomed the investigation, President Garcia issued today a directive suspending "all actuations of purchase of Hacienda San Luis until further orders." The deadline for the payment is Monday, March 31, 1958.

Sison said further that the order to suspend the purchase of the hacienda would mean a loss of f 40,000 worth of products which the government would get from the harvest of the hacienda. However, in spite of this loss, the President issued the directive to clear the way for the investigation of the purchase, Sison added.

Official Week in Review: April 1 – April 15, 1958

April 1.—PRESIDENT Garcia this day continued receiving telegrams from politicians and spokesmen of farmers' groups endorsing his stand on the tobacco barter deal and expressing their complete confidence in the actions of Ernesto Jimenez, administrator of the Agricultural Credit and Cooperative Financing Administration.

Rep. Leonardo Perez of Nueva Vizcaya, after consultations with members of the Mayors' League as well as of the councilors and barrio councils league of his province, wired President Garcia that the preponderant sentiment is that the barter deal "is the best way to dispose of the Virginia inferior tobacco to save ACCFA capital for farmers."

The Nueva Vizcaya solon further informed President Garcia that the inferior tobacco which ACCFA was compelled by law to purchase, if not disposed of, would tie up ACCFA capital to the detriment of small farmers who need loans.

"Your immediate acceptance of the resignation of ACCFA governors shows your deep concern over the welfare of small farmers who depend on ACCFA for loans. There is widespread belief here that the resigning ACCFA governors, by subtle maneuvers and by opposing the barter deal, benefit aliens in business," Perez told President Garcia.

From Cebu, Besinga of the Central Cooperative Exchange wired President Garcia stating that the dissension in the ACCFA Board was caused by the presence of vested interest in its membership. He reiterated his complete confidence in Jimenez.

Teafilo Allas, president of the Pangasinan Federation of Facomas, informed President Garcia that 30 Pangasinan Facomas "endorsed the ACCFA administrator's stand which precipitated the resignation of ACCFA governors."

Thomas Smith, president of the Mountain Province Federation of Facomas; Juan M. Medina, president of the Pampanga Federation of Facomas; Jose Bañez, CCE director representing the Western Visayas Facoma as well as the Ilocos region Facomas, also wired President Garcia lauding him for his "wise decision" on the matter.

Members of the ACCFA Board of Governors recently tendered their irrevocable resignations to President Garcia after disowning the barter deal. The Chief Executive accepted their resignations.

The President this morning received Ambassador Salvador P. Lopez, who recently arrived from his post in Paris, France. Earlier, the President received Sen. Pedro Sabido.

THE President gave orders to Capt. Francisco H. Calinawan, presidential performance officer, to visit some provinces in the Visayas and Mindanao to survey the progress of the food production campaign in the provinces of Cebu, Leyte, Iloilo, Negros Occidental, Negros Oriental, Zamboanga del Norte, and Zamboanga del Sur.

Capt. Calinawan was also instructed: (1) to see the operation and management of the Cebu Portland Cement Company in. Naga, Cebu; (2) to see the progress of government help at the areas damaged by the recent fire in Iloilo City; (3) to verify reports received by Malacañang regarding the wanton destruction of forest reserves at Misamis, Zamboanga, and Cotabato; (4) to investigate the complaints of about 300 settlers within the reservations of the Davao Penal Colony who according to some sources have illegally settled there; and (5) to join the recently created presidential committee composed of representatives from the ACCFA, BPW, and AFP, of which Calinawan is the chairman, and to study and recommend to the President immediate measures that will help solve the perennial problems of the Sulu archipelago.

In Negros Occidental, Capt. Calinawan will also confer with the sugar cane planters on the fertilizer situation and will make appropriate studies on the feasibility of the government's adopting the production of artificial rain which have been successfully experimented there. This artificial rain, it is believed, may yet prove to be the answer to the destruction caused by the long draught which has brought misery, especially to those engaged in rice and corn production.

The President's performance officer is expected to be out of Manila for three weeks.

April 2.—PRESIDENT Garcia spent a quiet day at the Guest House reading the Holy Bible in spiritual meditation in observance of the Holy Week. He did not receive any caller.

The President started the day by hearing mass said by Capt. Emilio Palma, Philippine Military Academy chaplain, before an improvised altar at the Guest House living room. With him at the mass were the First Lady and children, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos, who were having their first real reunion with the President in a long time.

After breakfast, the President and the First Lady went on a brief stroll of the Mansion House grounds. They were accompanied by Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, Lt. Melchor Fronda, naval aide, Lt. Eustaquio Meim, and Segundo Guila, caretaker of the presidential residence in the Pines City.

The President and the First Lady were very much impressed with the lush of flower garden with its vari-colored flowered plants in full bloom. At one point during the stroll of the garden, the First Lady picked a little light violet flower and pinned it on the boutonniere of the President.

In the course of their stroll of the spacious Mansion House grounds, the President and the First Lady were kept constantly busy acknowledging the greetings of vacationists from various parts of the country which abound all over the place. They paused briefly at the amphitheater and later at the kiosk, where the President conferred informally with his press secretary, who took advantage of the opportunity to brief him on various matters.

The President took milk today for breakfast, lunch, and supper. He is now on the eleventh day of a fourteen-day fast. He started taking milk yesterday. In between "meals", the President continued taking water with a dash of sugar.

THE President expressed satisfaction upon receiving reports today from newspapermen that the 1951 Cadillac which Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal had junked had been road-tested by them last night and was found in perfect running condition.

The Cadillac laid aside by the VP made the 250 kilometers from Manila to Baguio last evening at 70 to 80 kilometers an hour without any hitch. The driver, Teodulo Felicidadario, who had been driving presidential cars since President Quezon, wondered especially at the magnificent pick-up performance of the car at the famous Zigzag Road which it negotiated smoothly. The passengers of the car were Amante Bigornia on the Manila Daily Bulletin, Celestino M. Vega of the Bagong Buhay, Johnny Yeh of the Fookien Times, Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, and Malacañang chief photographer, Rolando Manuel.

The President remarked that his firm belief in the Cadillac's readability had been confirmed and that there was nothing basically wrong with it except the manner it was taken care of. He said that even a 1958 car model would stall on the road if it was not given due attention. He recalled that he liked the car very much when as vice-president he used it.

The 1951 Cadillac was returned by Vice-President Macapagal to the Malacañang garage recently, reportedly because on occasions it had stalled on the road, and thus embarrassed or inconvenienced the VP.

President Garcia granted conditional pardons to 14 prisoners, absolute pardon to five other, and commuted the sentence of one for the Holy Week, Malacañang announced this day. The pardons and the commutation were granted by the President upon the recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole.

PRESIDENT Garcia this evening mobilized all government relief agencies to extend immediate assistance to fire victims in Tayug, Pangasinan. He gave the order following receipt of reports that fire broke out in that town this evening rendering many families homeless.

Agencies alerted were the Social Welfare Administration, the Philippine National Red Cross, the Philippine Constabulary, and the Department of Health.

April 3.—THE President today directed ACCFA to provide farmers who were hard hit by the recent fire in Capas, Tarlac, with 150 sacks of seedlings to enable them to continue with their planting and facilitate their rehabilitation. The President issued the directive on receipt of report of his representative whom he had dispatched to the fire area to survey the extent of damage and to find out how the Government could be of immediate help to the victims. Capt. Francisco Calinawan, Malacañang performance officer, informed the President that farmers had promised they would return next harvest the quantity of seedlings received from the ACCFA. Calinawan reported that the fire had razed approximately two-thirds of barrio Sta. Lucia, Capas, with an area of 12,000 square meters, bringing misfortune to 120 families of about 850 persons. Estimated cost of property destroyed was P200,000 belonging mostly to farmers.

Calinawan reported that the distribution of relief goods were promptly undertaken by the SWA and the PNRC with 80 sacks of rice, 14 cases of milk, 5 cases of sardines, 10 sacks of flour; 1,200 pieces of assorted clothings, and several cases of other canned goods and local stuffs. SWA had also authorized the release of P2,000 for relief in compliance with previous presidential directive.

In his report Calinawan said that a well organized relief activities had been accomplished by the SWA, the Red Cross, the Constabulary, and civic organizations under the joint leadership of Gov. Arsenio Lugay, the PC provincial commander, and Barrio Lieut. Patricio Malonzo. Active participation was also given by the American soldiers stationed in Camp O'Donnell.

President Garcia expressed gratification over the assistance of the U. S. armed forces which had promised 50 canvas tents to help shelter temporarily the fire sufferers, as well as canned goods. He said that the coordinated efforts of several civic organizations like the YLAC, the Daughters of Isabela, the K of C, and the Jayces to alleviate sufferings of the victims was worthy of commendation.

President Garcia today resumed his spiritual meditation and reading of the Holy Bible in observance of the Holy Week. He resumed taking milk at the rate of half a glass every two hours on the twelfth day of his 14 day's fast.

The President started the day by going to confession early this morning. He was scheduled to receive Holy Communion today, Saturday, and Sunday in fulfillment of his Easter obligations.

ABOUT 9:00 a.m., the President and the First Lady boarded the car and motored around the Pines City. Among the places they visited were the Country Club, Camp John Hay, and the City Zoo. They were accompanied during their brief tour by Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison.

At Camp John Hay, the President viewed the forest fire which had destroyed many trees in the vicinity. He was glad to see the fire was now under control and almost completely put out.

At the Zoo, the President inspected the progress being made by the City Government to make the zoo a real tourist attraction. He approved Mayor Alfonso Tabora's plans to improve further the facilities of the zoo and make it more attractive to visitors.

The President and the First Lady were joined in the course of their tour by Mayor Tabora and Pangasinan Gov. Conrado Estrella.

THE President continued reading the Holy Bible in the afternoon and evening. He did not receive any caller at the Guest House the whole day.

April 4.—PRESIDENT Garcia, observed Good Friday by making the traditional “Visita Iglesia” at the Baguio Cathedral.

The President and Mrs. Garcia arrived at the cathedral and proceeded to the pew fronting the tabernacle. They made their religious devotion for about 20 minutes. The President and the First Lady knelt together with the crowd. Their coming to the cathedral was unnoticed, as they entered like ordinary citizens observing their religious duties.

President and Mrs. Garcia were accompanied to the cathedral by Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison and Lt. Melchor Fronda, aide. The President’s daughter, Linda, and her husband, Fernando Campos, followed in a separate car.

Earlier in the morning, at about 8 o’clock, the President resumed his spiritual exercises by reading the Bible, especially the section on the Passion of the Lord. After taking his half-glass of milk and a glass of water in observance of his fasting, now on its 13th day, the President met with Malacañang reporter covering him in Baguio and gave his regular daily news conference.

From the Baguio Cathedral the President motored around Burnham Park for some air. He noted a great number of tourists in the Pines City which he said meant good business for Baguio. As the President’s car was traveling slowly, the President also noted that the majority of the car plates of parked cars were from Manila and suburbs. “This is a real exodus of Manila people to Baguio,” the President remarked.

After arriving at the Guest House, the President went to his bedroom and continued reading the Bible. He spent a great portion of the day in spiritual reading and meditation.

The President and the First Lady heard Maundy Thursday mass at 5 p.m. at the Guest House.

PRESIDENT Garcia mobilized today relief agencies to extend immediate assistance to some 100 families rendered homeless by a fire which razed five barrios in Basilan City. He issued the mobilization order upon receipt of a message from Basilan Mayor Leroy S. Brown, who estimated the loss due to the conflagration at P3 million. Mayor Brown reported that houses, farms, and coconut plantations were among those destroyed by the fire.

On the direction of the President, the Social Welfare Administration released P5,000 for the purchase of supplies locally available in the area for the immediate assistance to the sufferers, pending arrival of relief goods from Manila. The SWA had already arranged with the Philippine Air Force for the air-lifting of clothing, blanket, and other commodities to the fire area.

The President today received a message from Administrator Alfredo Eugenio of the Civil Defense, who reported that recent fires in Marinduque, Zamboanga City, Taytay (Rizal), Hagonoy (Bulacan), and Tayug (Pangasinan) had been controlled and put out by fire engines from Japan obtained under the reparations agreement.

Eugenio in his message recommended that the Reparations Mission in Tokyo be instructed to expedite shipment of 200 fire fighting units included in the list for the second reparations year, to minimize further fire losses during the current dry season. Eugenio also reported that he had circularized municipal and city mayors to activate the ronda fire patrol as an additional measure to reduce to a minimum the destruction caused by fire.

President Garcia also received today a message from Gov. Arsenio Lugay of Tarlac, who conveyed the gratitude of fire victims in barrio Sta. Lucia, Capas, for the prompt assistance extended them by the government.

The President had directed yesterday the ACCFA to provide farmers who were the most hard hit by the conflagration, with 150 sacks of seedling to enable them to continue planting and facilitate their rehabilitation. He had also mobilized relief agencies to extend immediate assistance to the fire sufferers.

Capt. Francisco Calinawan, Malacañang performance officer who had been dispatched to Capas to survey the extent of the fire damage and to find out how the government could be of further help to the fire victims, reported that the conflagration had destroyed two-thirds of the barrio proper, rendering homeless some 120 families, most of whom were small farmers.

Calinawan reported that the distribution of relief goods was promptly undertaken by the SWA and the Red Cross with 80 sacks of rice, 14 cases of milk, 5 cans of sardines, 10 sacks of flour, 1,200 pieces of assorted clothing, and other local commodities. Calinawan also reported the U. S. Army in Camp O'Donnell had helped in the relief work with 15 canvas tents to shelter temporarily homeless farmers as well as with canned goods.

The President sent the message to Camp O'Donnell and civic organizations, expressing his deep appreciation for their splendid cooperation in alleviating the suffering of the unfortunate victims. The message was sent this afternoon through Gov. Lugay.

April 5.—PRESIDENT Garcia today granted conditional pardon to former Rep. Narciso H. Umali on the recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole.

The President also commuted to life imprisonment the death sentence imposed on Crispin Verzo, who had been convicted by the court of first instance of Camarines Norte of the crimes of multiple murder and damage to property.

Six other prisoners were granted conditional pardon on the recommendation of the parole board this Easter season.

The board, in its resolution of January 9, 1958, recommending executive clemency to Umali, took note of the fact that the prisoner is suffering from cancer and is at present confined in the University of Santo Tomas hospital for a series of surgical operations.

Dr. Ricardo S. Juico, who had conducted an operation, stated that Umali's sickness was such that only an expert operation and a well-equipped hospital could save his life and that a slight mistake in the operation would prove fatal to the prisoner.

The parole board also took into consideration the period the prisoner had served, that is, about six years, during which time he had displayed constructive leadership among his fellow prisoners and contributed his knowledge and experience as an engineer in the construction of the seawall in the San Ramon penal farm in Zamboanga.

Umali had been convicted by the court of first instance of Quezon and the Supreme Court of the crimes of sedition, multiple murder, arson, frustrated murder, and physical injuries. On the recommendation of the Parole Board, all his prison sentences and fines imposed for these crimes had been commuted on July 4, 1957, to a single prison term of from 12 years and one day to 20 years, and to pay a total indemnity of P85,423.

Among the conditions of his pardon were that he shall report to a parole officer twice a month during the first six months, and thereafter, once a month, and that he shall give monthly one-fifth of his earnings during the period of his parole to the payment of the indemnity.

The President's grant of clemency to Crispin Verzo was prompted by numerous petitions received in Malacañang from various political, civic, and religious organizations, as well as from prominent residents of Camarines Norte, including the provincial board, the mayor's league, and the lawyers' league.

In view of the numerous petitions from practically all sectors of the province, the President, in granting clemency, felt that prisoner Verzo must be basically a good man and that if he had committed the crimes, he must have been perhaps prompted "by one of those emotional upheavals in life."

A review of the records of the case showed that the conviction of Verzo was based on circumstantial evidence and that the prisoner had consistently maintained his protestation of innocence. Judge Salvador V. Esguerra, Malacañang legal adviser, in a memorandum to the President on March 26, 1956, regarding the Verzo case, said in part as follows:

"I, for one, believe that the exercise of the pardoning power of the President in the present case would absolutely preclude possible miscarriage of justice in case future events should show that Crispin Verzo is innocent, as he claimed he is, even as a chain of circumstantial evidence shows otherwise."

Judge Esguerra also had called the President's attention to the following excerpts from a resolution of the municipal council of Daet, Camarines Norte, one of many which sought clemency for the prisoner:

"... that notwithstanding the findings of the court, it is noteworthy that since the tragic crash as alleged, or disappearance of the ill-fated PAL plane of which crime Crispin Verzo was made to own, a series of similar, if not identical incidents or accidents invariably occurred, not only in several parts of this country but in many lands, without necessarily constituting the product of any scheming criminal hands, but normally traceable to either inherent craft defect, or navigational errors, also communist-inspired hijacking in the open space, and other were causes only the Infinite Wisdom of God can pin-point most assertively."

Other considerations which weighed in favor of prisoner Verzo were that:

- (1) He is not a hardened criminal; in fact, he has a good reputation in the community as evidenced by the numerous petitions for clemency;
- (2) He rendered public service and his record as clerk and school teacher spoke well of his character;
- (3) He had helped effectively in the resistance movement during the Japanese occupation;
- (4) He had served in prison for about nine years during which he had shown excellent deportment; and
- (5) He is a diesel engine mechanic and a radio technician and his services as such could be utilized to advantage in confinement.

Verzo was previously granted 11 reprieves in view of the President's desire to study his case thoroughly in the face of numerous petitions received in Malacañang pleading to spare the life of the prisoner. The last of these reprieves expires tomorrow, April 6.

Verzo had two co-accused, Amado Salazar and Gabino Largo, who were also sentenced to death by the trial court but were later found by the Supreme Court guilty as accomplices only and each sentenced to serve 17 years and four months of imprisonment.

The records of the case showed that in the afternoon of May 7, 1949, a PAL plane while winging its way to Manila from Daet was disabled by an explosion in its baggage compartment which caused it to drop into the sea near Alabat island, on the southeast coast of Luzon. All 13 persons aboard, including the crew, were killed and the PAL sustained a loss of P100,000, the value of the plane.

THIS evening the President received a delegation from Pangasinan which presented him with a resolution pledging support to his program of administration, especially his food production campaign.

The delegation, headed by Pangasinan Gov. Conrado Estrella, also invited the President to inaugurate a P15 million irrigation system in San Manuel, Pangasinan, sometime at the end of this month or the first week of May. Said to be the biggest project so far in this country, the system will serve seven municipalities.

Another resolution thanked the President for the retention of Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez and the appointment of Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison.

The delegation included board members Nancy Q. Sison and Dolores Acuña and 45 mayors of the province. Also with the group was PNB Director Porfirio V. Sison.

Meanwhile, the President formally accepted to be guest speaker during the 10th anniversary celebration of the death of the late President Manuel Roxas in Clark Field, Pampanga. The invitation was extended tonight by Felixberto Bustos, secretary of the Friends of Roxas society.

April 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia today started breaking his 14 day fast by taking solid food in small amount. His return to normal diet would be gradual and would take a few days more.

A physical check-up made on the President today on the completion of his annual fast showed that he had lost 8 pounds. He now weighs 155 lbs. compared to his original 163 before he started his fast exactly two weeks ago.

The President started the day by hearing mass with members of his family before an improvised altar at the Guest House.

Following the mass, the President gave a breakfast in honor of Celestino M. Vega of the Bagong Buhay, one of the Malacañang newsmen covering him in Baguio, who was celebrating his 48th birthday. The affair was attended by members of the President's family, Malacañang newsmen, and Baguio correspondents.

Main part of the affair was the reading of a poem which Vega had written especially for the occasion and which he dedicated to the President and to each of the members of his family.

AFTER breakfast President Garcia received Judge Natividad Almeda Lopez, who called at the Guest House to pay her respects. Then he boarded his car and motored to the Trinidad Valley and inspected a vegetable farm there. He spent some time talking with farmers and was impressed by the lush vegetables which abound in the area. He expressed hope that more vegetable farms be grown all over the country to increase food production.

Returning to the Guest House shortly before noon, the President found ranking government officials and their ladies awaiting him to extend their Easter greetings. He later gave a luncheon in honor of his well-wishers at the kiosk on the northern side of the Guest House lawn.

Among those present at the luncheon were Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal, Speaker Daniel Romualdez, Chief Justice Ricardo Paras, Presiding Justice Jose Gutierrez David of the Court of Appeals, Senate President Protempore Fernando Lopez, Speaker Protempore Constancio Castañeda, members of the Cabinet, and other ranking officials of the executive, legislative, and judicial branches of the government and their ladies. Also present were former Sen. Jose P. Laurel and Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson of Manila.

After luncheon the President conferred with Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, Armed Forces chief of staff, who had just returned from a mission in the South.

In the afternoon the President received a message from Health Secretary Paulino J. Garcia in Legaspi, Albay, who reported the result of his visit in the fire area in Iloilo City. Secretary Garcia, who is currently on a tour of the Bicol and the Visayan regions, said that medicine worth P2,000 was distributed in the fire ravage area. The health secretary further reported that there was no cause for apprehension for possible breakout of epidemic, as sanitation and health conditions were under control. Secretary Garcia also said that he was surveying regional areas in the Visayas and Mindanao for the early implementation of Executive Order No. 288, which provided for the reorganization of the Department of Health.

April 7.—THE President returned to Malacañang by car at 10 o'clock from "a seven-day sojourn" in Baguio City.

The President left the Guest House in Baguio for Poro Point in San Fernando, La Union, after breakfast this morning, on the first leg of his return trip in Manila.

Arriving at the Point at 10:35 a.m., the President hurriedly donned a pair of ordinary drawers and plunged into the inviting Poro Point swimming pool.

After negotiating a few laps, the President got dressed and conferred with La Union officials headed by Gov. Bernardo Gapuz and San Fernando Mayor Godofredo Rilloraza.

Gapuz requested the President to intercede with the GSIS to expedite action on a loan applied for by the provincial government in the amount of P130,000 for the expansion of the facilities of the government electric plant in San Fernando, its connection with the Ambuklao hydro-electric plant, and the extension of its services to the barrios.

Gapuz called the President's attention to a private-owned electric plant in San Fernando which allegedly was charging exorbitant rates. The La Union governor said that this plant bought its power at 1 1/3 centavos per kilowatt hour from the National Power Corporation and sold it to its consumers at P0.40 per kilowatt hour. He said that the consumers were now on strike refusing to use the power and asking the plant to cut off their electric connections.

The governor also recommended that the ACCFA be provided with adequate funds to enable it to pay its purchases from local farmers promptly. According to the governor, the ACCFA usually took several months to pay the tobacco leaves it bought from local farmers who needed the cash very badly.

The President said he would act on their requests on his return to Manila.

During lunch at the guest house of the Poro Point naval reservation the President gave a press conference to Malacañang newsmen who had gone with him on the trip.

After a brief rest, he boarded his car at 4 p.m. and proceeded to Manila.

April 8.—PRESIDENT Garcia after a seven-day stay in Baguio City during the Holy Week found himself deep in pending state papers which had piled up during the Lenten season.

He cancelled his appointments with callers and went over the papers. He signed the appointment of Roman L. Paguio as sugar administrator, and Rufino Tolentino as assistant director of the Bureau of Telecommunications.

The President also signed the pardon papers of Guillermo Salvador, a former Manila detective, who was sentenced to a prison term ranging from six years to ten years for the slaying of Ricardo Deblois, a crack NBI agent, at the City Hall in 1948.

The President, after going over the pending state papers, went to his room and drafted his speech which he will deliver tomorrow afternoon in connection with the "Bataan Day" celebration.

IN the afternoon, the President received Sen. Gil J. Puyat, who conferred with him for almost an hour.

No release was available from Malacañang on the subject matter of the conference.

The President also received Ambassador George L. Clutton of the United Kingdom, who conferred with the President behind closed doors. No mention was made of Clutton's visit.

Minister and Mrs. Luis Moreno Salcedo also saw the President and paid a courtesy call on the Chief Executive.

The Salcedos returned two weeks ago from the Vatican, where they were assigned. Salcedo is the new political counsellor of the Department of Foreign Affairs, replacing Minister Tomas de Castro, who was assigned to Berne, Switzerland.

IN the evening the President told Homobono A. Adaza to write a formal letter to the President, as chairman of the Board of Visitors of the University of the Philippines, in seeking an appeal from the decision of the U. P. authorities against him.

Adaza, editor of the Philippine Collegian, had been expelled from the University of the Philippines by the U. P. Executive Committee for allegedly being guilty of maligning the U. P. Board of Regents, among other things.

Adaza called on President Garcia this evening and verbally presented his side of the case. He was accompanied by his father, Pedro Adaza. He said that he was not seeking pardon but justice.

President Garcia told Adaza to put his petition in writing and address it to the President, who is chairman of the U. P. Board of Visitors, which is the supreme ruling body in the state university.

PRESIDENT Garcia today certified to the necessity of the immediate enactment by Congress of a bill designed to encourage deep-sea fishing in the country.

The bill seeks to require only one licensed navigator and only one licensed engineer in addition to licensed fishermen as provided for in Act No. 4003, known as the Fisheries Act of 1932, to man any vessel of Philippine registry of not less than 15 gross tons but not more than 150 gross tons which is operated exclusively for catching fish in Philippine territorial waters.

The certified bill is a joint Senate-House measure and was submitted to Congress immediately after the President had signed the certification.

April 9.—THIS morning the President took a positive step to bring down the price of fish when he directed Customs Commissioner Eleuterio Capapas to suspend the implementation of the opinion of the secretary of justice holding that fishing vessels are governed by the provisions of section 830 of the new Tariff and Customs Code.

The directive was given at his conference with members of the Inter-Island Deep Sea Fishing Association, Inc., held at Malacañang. The fishing operators informed President Garcia that they had presented a motion for the reconsideration of the opinion on the grounds that it is not supported by law and jurisprudence and that it is inimical to public interest and welfare.

Fishing operators had tied up their fishing vessels when the secretary of justice ruled that fishing has been held to be a part of the coastwise trade and hence fishing vessels are governed by the provisions of section 830 (k) of the Tariff and Customs Code.

The operators alleged before the President that they could not profitably continue operations if they followed Customs requirement to hire the same complement as vessels engaged in the coastwise trade.

The directive followed a presidential certification to Congress on the necessity of immediate enactment of an amendatory bill to break the impasse between Customs authorities and fishing boat owners. The bill requires only one licensed navigator and one licensed engineer to man fishing boats of not less than 15 gross tons.

The fishing operators profusely expressed their gratitude to President Garcia for his directive and assured him that their boat will resume operations immediately.

THE President in a speech this afternoon said that the epic of Bataan and Corregidor had shown the world how a determined, freedom-loving people could translate material defeat into victory and overcome material inadequacies and obstacles “in its forward march to greatness and a place of honor in the great family of nations.”

In a ten-minute speech delivered at the Independence Memorial Grandstand on the Luneta this afternoon, the President extolled the valiant efforts of Philippine-American forces in defending the last bastion of freedom in this country 16 years ago. He also congratulated officers and members of the Defenders of Bataan and Corregidor for having sponsored the festivities commemorating the anniversary of the Fall of Bataan. He said that the people should take time out “now and then from the hectic grind of our existence to rededicate ourselves to the memory of the heroes and martyrs of that epic” (See pp. 2154–2156, Historical Papers and Documents, for the full text of President’s speech.)

Accompanied by Mrs. Garcia and Gen. Basilio J. Valdez, grand marshal of the military parade which featured the Luneta rites, the President arrived at the grandstand from Malacañang about 3:15 p.m. Among those with him on the reviewing stand were Mrs. Trinidad de Leon-Roxas, widow of the late President Manuel A. Roxas; Miss Ira Van, representative of Mrs. Jonathan Wainright, widow of the late American general who had commanded the Bataan defenders; Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo; Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas; and Lieut. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff. Also at the ceremony were members of the diplomatic corps, senators, representatives, and some members of the judiciary.

The military parade started about 3:20 p.m. It was participated in by various units which had fought in the gallant defense of the peninsula 16 years ago. They were each given a hearty applause as they marched smartly past the reviewing stand. It was, however, noted that the men in some of the units were pitifully few which brought to mind the tremendous casualties sustained in the peninsula and, later, at the concentration camp in Capas, Tarlac, in 1942.

Bringing up the rear were motorized units which included atomic cannons and the medium American guided missile “Honest John,” which were putting in their public appearance in this country for the first time, and bazookas, recoilless rifles, mortars, and machine guns of different calibers mounted on jeeps and special launching trucks.

The President was introduced by Defense Secretary Vargas. Other features of the ceremony were a one-minute silent prayer marked by sounding of sirens; floral offerings on the cenotaphs of the Unknown Filipino soldier by the representative of Gen. Wainright and of the Unknown American soldier by Mrs. Roxas, which were accompanied by a volley and taps; and the playing of the Philippine and American national anthems as the flags of both countries were lowered in a flag pole in front of the grandstand at the close of the ceremony. The flag-draped cenotaphs of the unknown soldiers were erected immediately in front of the grandstand.

A distinguished service medal was also presented posthumously to the late President Roxas by the Defenders of Bataan. The medal was received by Mrs. Roxas for the late president.

President Garcia returned to Malacañang about 5:30 p.m.

PRESIDENT Garcia pinned Philippine Legion of Honor medals with the rank of a legionnaire on 12 women in a ceremony held at the Malacañang social hall this afternoon in connection with the celebrations commemorating the 16th anniversary of Bataan Day.

The recipients were awarded the medals for having demonstrated “exceptionally distinguished services rendered during the Death March and at the concentration camp at Capas, Tarlac, until the return of the prisoners of war to Manila or their respective provinces, at various times from 1942 to 1945.”

The awardees included Mesdames Geronima T. Pecson, Concepcion M. Trias, Ruby Roxas de Roxas, Maria Carmen G. Ford, Carmen Sapinoso de Rivera, Conchita Liboro Benitez, Betty Magalona Gomez, and Misses Fanny Adarna, Conchita Sunico, Paching Gana, Maria Luisa Mendoza, and Lourdes Alunan.

The citation further stated that these women, “disregarding the dangers of the time and motivated by their own desires to help alleviate the sufferings of their countrymen, wholeheartedly extended financial and material aids to the prisoners of war.”

The citation concluded: “Through their untiring energy and patriotic services, thousands of men in the service and their families were greatly relieved of their sufferings and miseries in life.”

Present during the occasion was Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia. The ceremony started at 2:45 p.m. with the reading of the citation by Maj. Jose Estrella, presidential aide. The ceremony lasted for about 15 minutes.

April 10.—THIS morning the President instructed Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona to look into the possibility of extending additional financial aid to the victims of the recent fire in Iloilo City.

The President’s directive was contained in a note to Commissioner Aytona following representations made by Iloilo City Mayor Rodolfo Ganzon, who informed the Chief Executive that the recent fire in that southern metropolis was the worst since 1920.

Ganzon said that the city government found it difficult to house the fire victims who were either housed in public school buildings or makeshift huts.

This morning’s callers consisted mostly of provincial officials who requested funds for public works improvements in their respective provinces.

Pampanga Gov. Rafael Lazatin requested aid for the construction of additional public schools in his province.

Misamis Occidental Gov. Diego Ty Deling discussed improvements of the ports in that province.

Other callers were Tarlac Gov. Arsenio Lugay, Camarines Sur Gov. Juan Triviño, Rep. Felipe Abrigo of Samar, and Severe Aragon.

Sen. Domocao Alonto was called to consult the President on matters affecting the Moslem problems. He denied reports that people in the southern regions of Mindanao were participating in the Indonesian civil strife.

The President received callers until 12:30 p.m.

PRESIDENT Garcia created this afternoon a special task force to stop smuggling in the South which has reportedly reached “scandalous proportions.”

The President signed an executive order during the regular Cabinet meeting, creating the President’s Law Enforcement Unit for Southern Philippines. He said that rampant violation of the customs, revenue, immigration, and other laws of the Philippines has remained unchecked in the southern areas of the country.

Discussing the matter with the Cabinet, the President pointed out that the illicit traffic and activities in the southern areas were depriving the government of substantial revenue and were providing ruinous competition to legitimate business. He said the government was annually losing about P3 million in taxes because of smuggling. He also declared that legitimate businessmen were being demoralized.

The President charged the special task force with the supervision and coordination of the administration and enforcement of Philippine tariff, customs, internal revenue, immigration, firearms, and currency laws and regulations, including the apprehension and prosecution of violators thereof in southern Philippines.

The President's Law Enforcement Unit for Southern Philippines will operate in the Mindanao, Sulu, and Palawan areas, including all the surrounding or adjacent waters, and in such other areas as the President may direct.

The Chief Executive told the Cabinet that the uncontrolled traffic of persons carrying on their illegal activities through the southern frontier of the country may provide opportunities for the conduct of foreign-inspired clandestine activities inimical to the national economy, political institutions, and way of life, especially to the national security.

The special task force will be composed of one representative of the Armed Forces to be designated by the President and to act as chairman of the unit, one representative from the Department of Justice, two representatives from the Department of Finance, representing the Bureau of Customs and the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and one representative each from the Bureau of Immigration and the Philippine Constabulary. All of the members will be designated by the respective heads or chiefs of the departments or bureaus concerned within seven days from the date of the executive order.

The special task force will have its office or headquarters at such places as the chairman shall designate. Each member, as the direct representative of the department head or chief of the bureau or office, shall exercise all the powers and duties vested by law in such department head or chief of bureau or office, including such additional powers and duties as may be specifically delegated by them.

Each member of the unit shall also have authority to require officers, agents, or deputies in the area belonging to, or under the jurisdiction of, the department, bureau, or office he represents to perform any duty or do any act which the head or office thereof could lawfully require them to do.

The heads of the departments, bureaus, and offices represented in the unit shall extend their full support and assistance to the unit and to their representatives therein and shall take immediate steps to carry out the purpose and intent of the executive order within their respective organizations and capabilities.

The task force was also directed by the President to study continually ways and means to improve law enforcement in the area of its operation and to submit periodically reports of its activities and recommendations to the President.

In issuing the executive order, the President took cognizance of "the urgent need for a vigorous, coordinated, and continuing national effort to counteract the illegal activities."

The President told the Cabinet that the AFP chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, whom the Chief Executive had sent to Mindanao to check on the smuggling reports, practically confirmed the illegal activities. The President said that smuggling was being conducted in two ways—into and out of the country.

The President also called on the Departments of Justice, National Defense, and Finance to pool their efforts together in the move to stop the illegal activities in the South. He informed the Cabinet that he had asked Filipino Moslem leaders to cooperate and help in the project.

President Garcia and his Cabinet this evening at their meeting approved Commerce Secretary Pedro Hernandez's action in revoking his previous department order freezing the issuance of domestic sugar quotas with the understanding that the NAMARCO would be sold enough B sugar in order to stabilize sugar prices.

The Cabinet heard Secretary Hernandez explain his reason for issuing his previous order freezing the issuance of domestic sugar quotas. He said that earlier in the day he held a meeting with representatives of the sugar industry during which he made his announcement of his decision.

The President and the Cabinet unanimously approved the action taken by Hernaez.

The Cabinet also approved the membership of the Philippine panel to the PI-Japan joint committee which will continue discussing trade arrangements between Japan and the Philippines. The members of the Philippine panel are Counselor Jose Ma. Espino, chairman; Dr. Marcelino Bernardo, vice-chairman; Dr. Benito Legarda, Jr., member; a representative of the Department of Finance; and Director Bonifacio Quiaoit, members.

The Cabinet, moreover, approved the recommendation of Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano for the approval of the application by the Philippine Government of the Convention on Privileges and Immunities of Specialized Agencies to the World Meteorological Organization. The Philippines is the host country to the present session of the Regional Association V (Southwest Pacific) of the World Meteorological Association which has been holding its meetings in Manila since April 7.

The President discussed with the Cabinet the request made to Malacañang to amend further the proclamation which increase the area of the fishing grounds in Bulacan, Bulacan. Present during the discussion were technical men of the Department of Agriculture. The Cabinet decided to continue discussion of the subject matter in its next meeting.

April 11.—PRESIDENT Garcia devised means to stop the channelling of NAMARCO goods into the black market and to extend its distribution to the barrios at a breakfast conference with NAMARCO high officials held this morning at Malacañang.

Feuding NAMARCO officials promised to “bury the hatchet” and work harder in order to help the administration of President Garcia. NAMARCO officials present at the conference were General Manager Ben Estrella, Commerce Secretary Pedro Hernaez, who is the chairman of the board of directors, and Directors German Neri, Martiniano Abad, Pablo Tapia, Jose Castillo, Salvador Balane, and Isaac Saldaña.

The President reminded the NAMARCO officials that the state corporation was created not for profit but to serve the people, and in this connection he reiterated his previous directive to channel more NAMARCO goods to the barrios.

He stated that he had received confidential reports to the effect that provincial distributors are disposing NAMARCO goods in Manila. He urged that constant vigilance be maintained in order to stop the practice.

The President decried the fact that in cases of anomalies, the persons concerned did not receive the full penalty prescribed by law.

To extend the NAMARCO distribution system to the barrios, the President said that he would request Congress for more operating capital for the state firm.

The conferees also took up the plan of abolishing distributors and setting up provincial branches. Secretary Hernaez and Estrella assured the President that, in doing away with distributors, the corporation would save the 5 per cent profit they make and, with the money thus saved, pay for the establishment of provincial branches.

Under this plan, NAMARCO would deal directly with the retailers through its office in Manila and its provincial branches.

THE President today expressed determination to implement a recent Cabinet ruling to the effect that all government purchases of rice from abroad should be conducted through public biddings.

The President turned down an offer of J. Carlos, a rice dealer, to promote a government-to-government transaction between the Philippines and Thailand wherein the latter would sell to the former 60,000 tons of rice at $126.10 per metric ton.

The President said that while he appreciated the rice dealer's desire to help ease the country's rice problem, he could not go against the ruling of his own Cabinet.

Meanwhile, the President received NARIC Assistant General Manager Federico Yambao, who submitted a report on: (1) the corn stock of the NARIC; and (2) the price of corn in production and consumers areas as reported to the NARIC from the field.

In his report Yambao said that the NARIC has at present approximately 624,000 cavans of shelled corn in the bodegas at the principal corn producing and consuming regions. The report estimated that this stock would last up to June on the assumption that the NARIC would be able to market from 150,000 to 200,000 cavans of corn a month.

About the current prices of corn, Yambao said that the latest quotations of corn grits in Cebu, considered the price barometer in the Visayas, are for grits No. 10, from P12.25 to P12.75 a cavan, and for grits Nos. 12–14, from P12.50 to P13.00 a cavan. Yambao pointed out that the prices of corn grits in Cebu and other corn-eating regions had never risen to P16.

THEN the President received officers and members of the Surety Association of the Philippines who, aside from pledging their support to the Administration, also invited the President to be their guest at the 10th anniversary celebration of their association.

The SAP members who called were Antonio Tankiang, president; Jesus San Luis, treasurer; and P. M. Venoya, Julian Yson, Romualdo Constantino, and Simeon Reyes, members. Present during the call were Insurance Commissioner Ceferino Villar and Romeo Echaus, former SAP president.

The President also received Zambales Gov. Manuel Barretto, who sought the President's assistance in making representation with authorities of the U. S. Navy at Olongapo to reconsider reported plans of the U. S. Navy to lay off thousands of Filipino workers in the navy yard.

Gov. Barreto also requested assistance for mining industries in his province.

Roberto Oca, president of the Philippine Transport Association, requested the President that a representative of the labor group in the Philippine Air Lines be appointed to the board of directors of the PAL.

The President received callers until 1 p.m.

THE President today cleared the Land Tenure Administration of any irregularity in connection with its projected purchase of the Hacienda San Luis in Isabela at P2.4 million.

At his weekly press conference this afternoon, the President told newsmen: "Apparently there is nothing wrong with the LTA."

But as he gave the LTA a clean bill of health, the President said he welcomed a congressional investigation of the purchase of the 3,300-hectare hacienda.

President Garcia indicated that he did not want to give the impression that he wanted to "shield anybody." He added that the investigation would "better inform" the people of the functions of the Land Tenure Administration.

The President presented at the conference Manuel E. Castañeda, LTA chairman, and Commissioner Julian U. de Veyra, who explained the controversial purchase of the hacienda from the Tabacalera company.

Castañeda told newsmen that the Hacienda San Luis was a "good buy" at P2.4 million and presented facts and figures to justify his statement.

At the weekly press conference, the President also:

1. Reiterated his invitation to the Liberal Party to send a representative to join him in his trip to the United States; and

2. Kept his hands off the rift between Secretary of Justice Jesus G. Barrera and Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson over the appointments by Barrera of employees in the municipal court and the city fiscal's office.

Castañeda debunked reports that an LTA appraiser recommended the purchase of the hacienda for only P800,000.

A House fact-finding team had declared that the hacienda was overpriced by P1.6 million.

The LTA chairman said that his representative submitted a report recommending the purchase of the hacienda at varying prices, ranging from P300 to P1,000 per hectare.

Castañeda also stressed that the hacienda is arable and, with the aid of a map, pointed to the area near the Cagayan River as fertile and suitable to tobacco planting.

The LTA chairman refused to answer a question on whether or not the congressional inquiry was politically-motivated.

April 12.—THE President and the Council of Leaders at breakfast this morning discussed legislation:

- (1) To eliminate or minimize graft and corruption in the government and to improve the collection of taxes so as to increase government revenues; and

- (2) To give more attraction to foreign capital to invest in the Philippines and help in the economic development of the country.

The President and the Council of Leaders also agreed on the need to speed up legislative work during the remaining days of the current congressional session.

The President and the Council of Leaders agreed to create two executive-legislative committees to take charge of drafting the necessary legislation to carry out the two policies enumerated above.

The first committee will draft a bill aimed at eliminating or minimizing the commission of graft and corruption in revenue-producing office, such as the Bureaus of Customs and Internal Revenue, and at the same time increasing government revenues.

It was planned that one of the means of achieving this end, for instance in the case of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, was to spread out the functions of the collector of internal revenue among different deputies.

One deputy would take care of the collection of income taxes; another, the collection of specific taxes; and still another, the administrative functions. The collector of internal revenue would have supervisory powers over the work of these deputies.

This proposal may also be applied in the case of the Bureau of Customs. It was believed that by following this system, there will be more effective means of intensifying the collection of revenues and there will be lesser chances of temptation to commit graft and corruption in these revenue-producing offices.

It was also further believed that although these innovations, which will be introduced in different offices, might mean additional appropriations, yet these new expenditures would be justified because the new positions to be created would contribute to the increase in the revenues of the government.

It was believed that the adoption of these measures would be able to plug leakages in the collection of taxes.

With regard to the bill on foreign investment, the President and the Council of Leaders recalled that three bills had been introduced in the last session of Congress but none passed. The conferees agreed that the executive-legislative committee which would draft a new bill to give more attraction to foreign capital, should incorporate the good provisions of the three bills with the view to attracting foreign investors by giving them more incentives.

The conferees also said that the bill to be drafted would define the government's policy on foreign investment. This policy would be based on the statement of President Garcia as he enunciated in his state-of-the-nation message as follows:

"It is my considered opinion that foreign investments, though welcome, should be admitted on a selective basis in order that legitimate Filipino business may be protected, particularly in fields already being fully exploited by our own nationals. The remittance of net profits and repatriation of capital by foreign investors should be under most reasonable terms compatible with our exchange resources and development."

Those who attended the conference which was presided by President Garcia were Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., Senate President Protempore Fernando Lopez, Senate Majority Floor Leader Cipriano Primicias, Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, and Speaker Protempore Constancio Castañeda. House Majority Floor Leader Jose Aldeguer was not able to attend the conference. The breakfast conference was held at the residence of the President in Quezon City. It lasted from 8:30 a.m. to 12 noon.

During the conference with the Council of Leaders, the President took occasion to congratulate Sen. Fernando Lopez, who is celebrating his birthday today, together with Mrs. Mariquit Lopez. The President earlier had tape-recorded a congratulatory message on the occasion of Sen. Lopez's birthday.

Earlier in the morning, the President visited Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia at a local hospital, where she had been confined since last night for a gynecological check-up.

THIS afternoon the President received Lt. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff, who informed him of the implementation of the creation of the President's Law Enforcement Unit for Southern Philippines, which had been formed by the President last Thursday to curb smuggling in the South.

Gen. Arellano reported to the President that he had already dispatched an LST to Sanga-Sanga in Tawi-Tawi fully loaded with equipment and men to help implement the mission of the task force. Arellano also discussed with the President the measures to improve further the relations between Christian Filipinos and Moslems in the South.

Among the measures approved were the proposed establishment of a settlement in Jolo Island, the construction of more artesian wells, and the repair of roads. The proposed settlement project in Jolo will be undertaken by the NARRA with the aid of the Armed Forces.

In this connection, President Garcia directed Assistant Executive Secretary Nicanor T. Jimenez, who is leaving for Washington tomorrow night, to work for the acquisition of fast small boats of the cutter type which are very badly needed by the President's task force in curbing smuggling activities in the South. Also present at the conference was Capt. Carlos J. Albert.

The President congratulated Arellano for his quick action in implementing the work of the task force which had been created only last Thursday evening by the President.

April 13.—PRESIDENT Garcia today took positive steps to implement his policy as enunciated in his state-of-the-nation message to integrate, coordinate, and intensify the scientific and technological efforts in the country by certifying to Congress the urgency of a bill to carry out this objective.

The main purpose of this measure is to utilize fully both public and private resources in pursuing common scientific processes, methods, and technique to fill the country's basic and immediate economic needs in order to accelerate the Administration's economic development program.

The bill aims to enable private sectors to participate fully and partake of the facilities, equipment, and personnel of the government in order to solve and investigate problems of production and development through project proposals.

It also aims to pool together the finances, manpower, time, and effort of governmental agencies and private facilities in the formulation and implementation of plans and programs necessary to the country's economic and social uplift.

The proposed legislation has been drafted by the country's best minds in the scientific, technological, and agro-industrial circles who were drawn together for the purpose. The draft of the bill was presented to President Garcia this morning by Marcelino Calinawan, the President's technical assistant and coordinator on science.

The bill proposes among other things the reconstitution of the National Science Board into a National Science Coordination Board and placing under it an institute to take care of all controversial sciences and the Atomic Energy Commission to take care of all the nuclear sciences.

All other existing science agencies will be included in the overall pattern. Science and technological centers will be created in order to concentrate the limited personnel and equipment stock and thus avoid a thinning out of critical talents.

The proposed National Science Coordinating Board will be the top coordinating agency whose chairman is proposed to have a cabinet rank and position. It is envisioned that all projects of all other government agencies in science and technology will be coordinated by the board expressly to determine only whether such projects will be necessary and to follow a plan of priority. The board will also determine that such projects should avoid a lateral overlapping with existing or progressing projects.

The bill proposes to intensify scientific research by providing the direction and substance of the entire national effort and the active participation of the private sector. Research effort will be undertaken up to pilot plant levels in order to afford the country the production facilities with a sound basis for establishment, development, and operations.

Malacañang will request the Senate committee on scientific advancement and the House committee on scientific and technological research to sponsor the bill in Congress.

The ultimate objective of the coordination of all scientific works in the Philippines will be to insure a continually rising standard of living of the Filipino people.

The program for the development through scientific efforts in order to fill the country's immediate economic needs are:

- (1) Extensive use of locally made products;
- (2) Increased production of existing production facilities; and
- (3) Increased production of expanding existing production facilities and educating the people in this nation-wide campaign to speed up the country's development through scientific efforts.

THE President spent his Sunday quietly at his residence on Bohol Avenue in Quezon City.

He started the day by hearing mass before an improvised altar in his residence.

After breakfast, he conferred briefly with Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas and Lt. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff, who had called to report on "routine matters."

The President also had a brief conference with Assistant Executive Secretary Nicanor T. Jimenez, who received his final instructions prior to his departure for Washington, D.C., tonight, to help prepare the ground for the Chief Executive's state visit to the United States in June.

After lunch with some assistants who consulted him on pending matters, the President accompanied by Maj. Jose Estrella, military aide, boarded his car and motored to the Veterans Memorial Hospital, where he visited Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, who had undergone a minor operation yesterday morning.

The President found the First Lady in fine spirits. With her at the hospital during the President's visit were their children, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos, and some close relatives and friends. The First Lady is scheduled to be discharged from the hospital tomorrow morning.

Returning to his Bohol Avenue residence about 3 p.m., the President spent some time in his study, going over some papers he had brought with him from Malacañang. He did not receive any caller in the evening.

April 14.—THIS morning the President urged local textile manufacturers to step up production to enable the Philippines to attain self-sufficiency within the shortest time possible.

Accordingly, the President promised the officers of the Textile Mills Association of the Philippines, led by Jesus Yujuico and P. L. Lim, sufficient incentives and support to reach that goal.

At the same time, the Chief Executive informed the TMAP members that he was going to look into the possibility of drastic cut in the importation of cotton knitting yarn, after being informed that the local spinning industry could meet local requirements.

Yujuico told the President that the limitation of the present importation of knitting yarn would result in savings of dollar reserves. About $6.6 million is granted annually for yarn importation.

Yujuico also appealed to President Garcia to work for an increase of U.S. raw cotton export allocation to the Philippines. An estimated 115,000 bales of cotton would be needed for the more than 200,000 spindles in the local textile mills.

The other members of the TMAP delegation were Martin Tinio of Crown Textiles Corp., Domingo Celis of Lirag Textile Mills, Julio D. Tan of Philip Manufacturing Corp., Moises Malca of Synthetic Textile Manufactures, Felix Assad of United Textile Mills, Benedicto Dakanay of National Development Co., C. B. Lim of Central Manufacturing Corp., Joseph Mycock of Allied Thread Co., Steven Cheng of Eastern Textile Mills, and Jose Chioco of United Textile Mills.

High officials of the World War II Veterans Enterprises, Incorporated, led by retired Generals Calixto Duque, Florencio Selga, and Alberto Ramos, called on President Garcia to ask for a copy of the report submitted by Baldomero Viilamor and Catalino Macaraig, Jr., to then Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason and recently submitted to Malacañang. Tuason had recommended that the privileges granted to the Warvets Enterprises by the Cabinet on August 14, 1957, be revoked respecting, however, its legal and bona fide transactions with private parties affecting goods that had already been delivered to it in the Philippines.

The Cabinet had granted the Warvets the privilege to undertake the sale and distribution of reparations goods at a gross profit of 15 per cent.

Earlier, the President received Dudley Colton, an American businessman who bared his plan to establish here an asbestos cement pipe plant. Colton was accompanied by Gerald Wilkinson, Aurelio Montinola, Berto Benedicto, and Jose L. Africa.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Garland paid a courtesy call on President Garcia. The Garlands were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Jorge B. Vargas.

Other presidential callers were a group of CB employees led by Domingo Enerio and Ciceron Angeles.

April 15.—THIS morning, the President received several Nacionalista congressmen who had protested the withholding of the “pork barrel” funds.

Some 40 NP solons headed by Speaker Daniel Z. Romtialdez, Speaker Protempore Constancio E. Castañeda, and House Majority Floor Leader Jose Aldeguer, agitated for the release of the “pork barrel” funds.

The President called Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona and in a move to stave off an impending rebellion in the House, authorized the release of P8 from the public works funds.

The President also received Major General Thomas Moorman, new commander of the 13th U.S. Air Force. Moorman arrived the other day to take over the command of the base.

He was accompanied to the President’s residence in Quezon City by Ambassador Bohlen; Major General Emery Wetzel, chief of staff, Pacific Air Forces headquarters; and Col. William G. Lee, Jr., vice-commander of the 13th Air Force.

PRESIDENT Garcia today led the nation in paying tribute to the late President Roxas on the 10th anniversary observance of the death of the illustrious leader.

In ceremonies held early this afternoon on the spot where the first President of the Philippine Republic met his untimely death at Clark Field Airbase, President Garcia reviewed the brilliant record of the late Chief Executive as an orator and parliamentarian, as an economist, as Speaker of the House of Representatives, as a nationalist statesman, as a constitutionalist, and as President of the Philippines.

President Garcia said: “What places does Roxas occupy in Philippine history? It might be too early now to render a definitive answer to this question. Let history have the perspective of time to do that. But, as one of his contemporaries, I feel that I owe it to history to make of record my opinion about Roxas, the man and the public servant.” (See next issue of the Official Gazette for full text of President’s speech).

The President was introduced by Felixberto Bustos, executive secretary of the Friends of Roxas under whose auspices the celebration was held. Other speakers were former Ambassador Manuel Gallego, president of the Friends of Roxas, Maj. Gen. Thomas S. Moorman, new commander of Clark Airbase; and Rep. Gerardo Roxas of Capiz, son of the late President, who delivered the response on behalf of the family.

Present at the ceremonies were Vice-President and Mrs. Diosdado Macapagal, Mrs. Trinidad de Leon-Roxas, widow of the late President, Mrs. Luz B. Magsaysay, U. S. Ambassador and Mrs. Charles Bohlen, and officials under the administration of President Roxas.

The ceremonies were featured by laying wreaths on a permanent marker constructed on the very spot where the late President Roxas expired in the residence of the then commander of the 13th airforce. Wreaths were laid by the President, the Vice-President, Ambassador Bohlen, Gen. Moorman, former Ambassador Gallego, and Mrs. Magsaysay. An airforce chaplain intoned the invocation.

President Garcia arrived at the base at 1:40 p.m. aboard the Philippine Air Force plane Dagohoy after a 40-minute flight from Manila. He was welcomed at the base by Gen. Moorman, together with the Vice-President, the U. S. Ambassador, Mrs. Roxas, and Mrs. Magsaysay, who had arrived earlier by car. With the President was Rep. Gerardo Roxas.

After acknowledging the raffles and flourishes offered by an honor guard formed by American airforce personnel at the landing field, the President led a long motorcade to the site of the ceremonies. The affair was attended by Filipinos and Americans.

Gen. Moorman, in his speech, considered himself fortunate that he had arrived at the base in time to participate in the commemoration rites. Rep. Roxas, on the other hand, expressed the gratitude of the family which, he said, is not alone in its bereavement “even after all these years.”

The President returned to Malacañang by plane about 3:30 p.m.

Official Month in Review: April 16 – April 30, 1958

April 16.—PRESIDENT Garcia today met with his top economic advisers and discussed with them measures which the Administration plans to take in solving the problem of lack of rice in the provinces due to drought.

The conference was held behind closed doors and no details so far were given about the measures to be adopted.

The President took this step in view of reports reaching Malacañang that people in the provinces were facing difficulties in securing rice as a result of the drought which had affected not only the Philippines but the entire Southeast Asia.

Those who attended the conference were RFC Chairman Eduardo Z. Romualdez, Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, and Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno.

THE President this day gave full authority and backing to Elias Vega, internal revenue stamp racket investigator, to carry on his work of probing anomalies involving collection of specific taxes.

Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison said that the President had given this authority in view of Vega's desire that he be given support in carrying on his work.

Sison, added that the President would not comment yet on news report that Internal Revenue Commissioner Jose Aranas and Deputy Commissioner Melecio Domingo had concurred with three proposals of tobacco firms which, Vega had explained, might nullify his current investigation. Sison said that the President had not yet been officially informed of this reported oral agreement.

The presidential authority given to Vega was by way of implementing the Chief Executive's determination to prosecute his anti-graft policy without let-up.

AT the Cabinet meeting this evening President Garcia turned down as unsatisfactory an offer made by the Gas Workers' Union to purchase 15,000 shares of stock owned by the government in the Manila Gas Corporation.

In line with the Administration's policy of withdrawing from business ventures that can be undertaken by private entities, the Cabinet sometime last year approved the sale of the shares which constitute 60 per cent of the Manila Gas Corporation stock. The remaining 40 per cent is owned by the Island Gas and Electric Company.

The Cabinet had approved the sale "subject to the condition among other things that the government shares shall be sold at public auction at no less than P362.76, the book value per share as of March 31, 1957, and that the sale shall be made for the whole bloc of government shares, the payment to be on cash basis."

Before bidding could be formally announced, the Gas Workers Union had offered to purchase on a negotiated sale with a bid price of P4,665,000, or P311 per share, and a down payment of 25 per cent, the balance to be paid semi-annually for 11 years at 6 per cent interest.

The Cabinet at its regular weekly meeting this evening decided to turn down the offer and to stick to the terms it had laid down in its previous resolution approving the sale of the stocks.

PRESIDENT Garcia summoned Press Secretary G. V. Sison and took up with him until late this evening the derogatory Time magazine article on his first year as Chief Executive of the country.

The critical report entitled "A Year after Magsaysay," was the first broadside from the American press against President Garcia's administration. It referred to the President as an "undistinguished politician."

However, Malacañang was silent on the President's reaction, but it was learned that President Garcia had his misgivings about the report.

The President and his press secretary conferred at length at President Garcia's residence in Quezon City.

The President also received at his residence Dr. John Hanna, president of the Michigan State University, who submitted a report entitled "A Study of the University of the Philippines."

Dr. Hanna headed a four-man body, composed of prominent American educators, in a survey of various aspects, from campus development to curricular management, in the state university.

With Dr. Hanna were Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen and Paul D. Summers, local chief of the International Cooperation Administration.

April 17.—THIS morning the President received a suggestion to barter chrome ore with surplus agricultural products of the United States at a conference with Gov. Manuel Barretto of Zambales and Jesus Cabarrus, president of the Acoje Mining Company.

Cabarrus informed President Garcia that the sales of chrome ore to the United States and other markets had suffered a big slump. He expressed the fear that unless there was a demand for chrome ore he would be forced to shut down the mine.

Since November last, Cabarrus added, sales to the United States had tapered and now it was practically nil, forcing the company to initiate a five-day-a-week work program in order to avoid laying off men.

Barretto seconded the suggestion of Cabarrus and added that negotiations be started immediately on a government-to-government basis.

Other presidential callers were Sens. Quintin Paredes and Lorenzo Su-mulong. Govs. Esmeraldo Eco of Camarines Norte and Jose Dinglasan of Capiz, and Reps. Agustin Gatuslao of Negros Occidental and Leon Guinto, Jr. of Quezon.

Earlier, the President received Alderman H. F. Jensen, lord mayor of Sydney, Australia, who paid a courtesy call following his arrival in the country this morning in the course of a two-day visit as an official guest of the City of Manila.

Alderman Jensen was accompanied to the President's Quezon City residence by Manila Vice-Mayor Jesus M. Roeses, Foreign Affairs Protocol Officer Pedro A. Aragon, and Australian Embassy Charge d'Affaires Douglas Kieth.

The visit lasted about 15 minutes.

THIS evening the President continued to drum up national enthusiasm towards his program of attaining self-sufficiency in basic commodities through coordinated and intensified scientific effort.

In his conference with some of the nation's top scientists at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City this evening, the President pointed out that no progressive nation in the world had made economic advancement without the "mighty arm of science." He said that in the United States, United Kingdom, and Germany, science had always played an important role in the furtherance of their economic objectives.

The President expressed gratification that he had the full support of the nation's technologists who had pledged their accumulated knowledge and know-how behind his program. He expressed confidence that with sufficient determination, this country would succeed even with the limited resources at its disposal.

“Our goal is to make this country economically stable and independent so that the humblest citizens could feel some measure of security” he said. The President recalled the country’s struggle for political independence years ago. After July 4, 1946, the struggle had shifted to economic independence which, he said, was equally as important to the people.

The Chief Executive took occasion to consult the scientists on the various provisions of the bill he had recently certified to Congress providing for the necessary machinery to pool the nation’s scientific, technological and agro-industrial resources and channel them towards promoting the country’s economic and social uplift. He called the bill the ‘Magna Charta of Science.’”

Dr. Juan Salcedo, who delivered the response on behalf of the group, reiterated the pledge of support and cooperation of Filipino technologists.

The group called, on the President this evening to present him with records of proceedings during the series of seminars held in connection with the recent National Science Week. Among the proceedings presented were 16 resolutions passed by the 1958 National Science Week Committee.

The resolutions included (1) endorsing approval of the proposed Rice-Enrichment bill; (2) recommendations on irrigation, certified rice seeds, hybrid corn, and fertilizers; (3) government support and financial aid on livestock and other industries; (4) recommending the inclusion of fish in any appropriation set aside prime necessities, such as by the government for increased production of rice and corn; (5) recommending amendment of certain provisions of the Minimum Wage Law so as to promote and regulate contracts on pakiao labor in the Philippines so far as home industries (like shelter and clothing) are concerned.

Headed by Navy Lt. Cdr. Marcelino Calinawan, chairman of the 1958 National Science Week, the group which called on the President this evening, included Patrocinio Valenzuela (vice-chairman), Dr. Juan Salcedo, Joaquin Marahon, Leopoldo Uichangco, Eduardo Quisumbing, Marcos Alicante, Manuel Arguelles, Eugenio Cruz, Eugenia de la Cruz, Faustino Lozada, Laureano Marquez, Florencio Medina, Jose Mirasol, Heraclio Montalban, Crisostomo Ortigas, Domingo Paguirigan, Anastacio Teodoro, Deogracias Villadolid, and Gregorio Zara,

Earlier this afternoon, the President conferred with General Manager Bernardo Torres of the People’s Homesite and Housing Corporation, who consulted him on pressing problems of the corporation.

April 18.—THIS morning President Garcia told Col. Flaviano Olivares, head of the Presidential Law Enforcement Unit for Southern Philippines, to leave at the earliest possible time for the South so that the government’s campaign against smuggling could get underway.

Olivares called on the President at the President’s workshop in Quezon City with the information that he had already organized fully his unit and that he was set to go. Olivares said that as head of the task force he will stay with his unit wherever there was need for it so that he could make decisions on the spot.

The President told Olivares that his unit should always be in those places where its services are most needed in effecting the anti-smuggling campaign, of the government.

PRESIDENT Garcia today directed that judicial proceedings be instituted to stay the demolition of the houses of residents of the Santol-Sociogo estate.

The Chief Executive gave this directive after Marcelo A. Bautista, president of the tenants’ association said that they were willing to transfer their houses in the unfilled areas of the estate and pay the purchase price of P20 per square meter, provided that the government buy the estate for bona fide tenants.

The President told Bautista to inform General Manager Bernardo Torres of the People’s Homesite and Housing Corporation of the tenants’ decision.

J. M. Tuason and Company, owners of the estate, are willing to sell the whole estate amounting to 18 hectares for P20 a square meter, but the PHHC could pay only P17.50; so the tenants offered to pay the difference.

However, when the negotiation did not prosper in view of the desire of the tenants to purchase only the lots where they were residing, the owners proceeded to demolish their houses through a court order.

TENANTS of the San Luis estate charged before President Garcia this noon that the opposition of Gov, Felix Caro and Rep. Delfin Albano, both of Isabela, to the purchase of the estate was “politically inspired” even as former Rep. Samuel Reyes stated in an affidavit that it was a “good buy.”

The charge was made by a representative group of San Luis tenants, led by their president, Rosendo Antonio, and accompanied by their legal counsels, Manuel D. Banez and Silvestre Bello.

The delegation asked President Garcia to lift his order suspending the payment to Tabacalera, owners of the estate, but the Chief Executive informed the tenants that he could not grant their request while Congress was investigating the matter.

The President told the tenants to appear before the good government committee headed by Rep. Joaquin R. Roces to present their side.

The tenants told President Garcia that Albano was “getting even” with them and opposing the purchase of the estate, as he got only 11 votes in the five precincts of the estate.

The tenants also told President Garcia that the purchase price was “not high” and that they were even “willing” to pay more than the P53 a hectare per year for 25 years that the Land Tenure Administration is charging them.

They alleged that they were the best judges of the purchase price, as they would have to pay the government for the land that they have been cultivating for a long time.

The delegation said that the annual amortization” of P53 per hectare is less than the rentals they are paying the Tabacalera which amounts to about P200 a year for every hectare they cultivate.

Other members of the tenants’ delegation were Domingo de Luna, vice-president; Delfin Respicio, Secretary; Elias V. Lelina, treasurer; and Nemesio Galicen, Faustino Sawit, Eduardo Acasio, and Juan Agcaoili, directors.

Other presidential callers were Dr. Alvin H. Hansen, professor emeritus of Harvard University who is returning to the United States after six years as exchange professor in Bombay University in India; Marcial Lichauco; G. P. Aplomar; Sen. Eulogio Balao; former Ambassador Jose Romero; Commerce Undersecretary Perfecto Laguio; Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez; Fred Imhoff; E. M. Grimm, president of Luzon Stevedoring Company; Byron S. Huie; and Dick Baldwin.

PRESIDENT Garcia inducted former Undersecretary Jesus Barrera as secretary of justice and former Sen. Jose Locsin as chairman of the National Economic Council in ceremonies held at Malacañang this afternoon.

The President also administered this afternoon the oaths of office to (1) Board Member Ildefonso Cinco, as governor of Leyte; (2) Mayor Emiliano Melgaso of Hilongos as board member of Leyte; (3) the officers of the Federation of Coconut Producers; and (4) the officers of the Association of Agriculturists.

Secretary Barrera succeeded former Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason, retired. Leyte Gov. Cinco took the place of Bernardo Torres, who had been appointed general manager of the People’s Homesite and Housing Corporation, while Hilongos Mayor Melgaso succeeded Gov. Cinco as board member.

Secretary Barrera had been in the government service for the last 20 years, having been appointed judge of the court of first instance in 1938. He was subsequently named justice undersecretary, which position he held until his elevation to the secretaryship.

Chairman Locsin on the other hand had been in the public service for more than 30 years, first as a member of the provincial board of Negros Occidental, then as provincial governor, congressman, secretary of health under the Osmeña administration, and lastly as senator during which term of office he was representative of the Senate in the National Economic Council. He was also a member of the Constitutional Convention.

Officers of the Federation of Coconut Producers who took their oath before the President this afternoon are Governor Juan F. Trivino of Camarines Sur, president; Rep. Leon Guinto, Jr., vice-president for Luzon; Rep. Manuel Zosa, vice-president for the Visayas; Benjamin Guiang, vice-president for Mindanao; Santiago Gancayco, secretary-treasurer; and the following directors: Ernesto Gala and Jose Mercado for Luzon; Rep. Lamberto Macias of Negros Oriental and Tirso Uytengsu for the Visayas; Gov. Romulo Garrovillo of Zamboanga del Norte and Luis Lorenzo for Mindanao.

Officers of the Association of Agriculturists inducted were Dr. Jose J. Mirasol, president; Dr. Leopoldo P. Uichangco, first vice-president; Eugenio E. Cruz, second vice-president; and the following directors: Undersecretary Jose L. Trinidad of Agriculture and Natural Resources, Cornelio V. Crucillo, Domingo Paguirigan, Dr. Dioscoro L. Umali, and Alejandro Apacible.

The ceremonies were held at the reception hall in Malacañang from 4:30 to 5 p.m. Among those present were Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, Reps. Dominador Tan, Alberto Aguja, and Marcelino Veloso, all of Leyte; other congressmen and senators; members of the judiciary and prominent legal practitioners, including Sen. Claro M. Recto; and relatives and friends of the inductees.

Earlier, the President received Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, who consulted the Chief Executive on the implementation of the plan to improve the port of Manila.

The President also received Papal Nuncio Egidio Vagnozzi, who bade farewell to the First Family prior to his departure for Europe next week.

PRESIDENT Garcia today told a press conference he may cancel his projected state visit to the United States if “developments and public opinion in America may tend to embarrass me during my stay in Washington.”

He angrily reacted to an unflattering article in the current issue of Time magazine which referred to him as an “undistinguished politician.” The President called the article “unfair.”

The President said that, “at the moment,” he is still considering on going through with his state visit to Washington scheduled in June.

During the press conference, the President issued a statement calling upon the Liberal Party to “re-examine its view on my invitation to join me in my state visit to the United States for the purpose of strengthening further Philippine-American relations and getting assistance for the bolstering of our national economy.”

He said he had talked to Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal, titular head of the Liberal Party, and the latter indicated he would take the matter up with his colleagues in the opposition.

The President is scheduled to emplane for the United States early in June to be in Washington on the 16th of that month.

Asked if he would sue Time magazine for what he called an “unfair” report, the President said he will make a decision after a due deliberation.”

But in announcing his plans of going on with the trip unless adverse developments tend to embarrass him in Washington, the President minimized the effects of the Time report.

He said that Time magazine did not reflect the prevailing public opinion in the United States.

The President added that he will shortly issue a formal statement after he had made an assessment of the reaction to the article in the United States.

At the same time, he expressed elation over the reaction in the Philippines against the report. He said it was a vindication of his honor which the American magazine had sought to discredit.

The President also indicated there are indications that forces or groups exist which are seeking to discredit him before the American people in order to subvert his mission to secure economic aid from the United States.

He said he is conducting a silent inquiry into the sources of the Time article. However, he did not say what action he would take against such sources.

The President hedged on questions as to whether the report was communist-inspired or abetted by the Liberals.

He said “it is too early to accuse anyone of feeding the Time magazine with malicious information.”

In announcing his plan to watch developments, the President also said “it is too early to apprise the result of the report.”

However, he said he had read the report with a “clear conscience” and expressed the belief that the information was malicious.

In reiterating his invitation to the Liberal Party to join his trip to the United States, the President said, “I have not lost all hope that in the higher interest of our country and people, the opposition will yet re-examine its views on my invitation.”

He said that in previous occasions, the majority and the opposition patriotically stood on a united front.

“I have not lost all hope that in the higher interest of our country and people, the opposition will yet re-examine its views on my invitation to join me in my state visit to the United States for the purpose of strengthening further Philippine-American relations and getting assistance for the bolstering of our national economy. These are vital matters in which all Filipinos are one and united.

“In previous eras when we were fighting for our independence, the majority and the opposition patriotically stood on a united front. This time, the common cause of national economic stability is involved. Believing in the patriotism of the leaders and men in the opposition, I hope the same national unity as shown in the past will be demonstrated by them and the entire Filipino people.

“I have full faith that as Filipinos first and foremost, we can still rally together for the common good and welfare of the nation.”

April 19.—PRESIDENT Garcia today ordered the immediate return to the Philippines of Minister Caesar Lanuza, chief of the Reparations Mission in Tokyo, Japan to explain certain aspects of reparations transaction

The President issued the order upon reading a news report that Rep. Antonio V. Raquiza of Ilocos Norte had made some charges against the manner of implementing the Reparations Act, in his report to Congress.

The President said that he would like Lanuza to explain particularly the charges on overpricing of reparations items as claimed by Raquiza.

Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison said Lanuza had been recalled several days ago from Tokyo to shed light on the reparations transaction, but until now Lanuza has not arrived yet.

The President upon reading Rep. Raquiza's charges this morning, sent a tracer directive to Lanuza requiring him to return to Manila immediately.

The President spent this day in his Quezon City residence owing to an indisposition. He cancelled all callers because of cold which he developed. His physicians advised him to stay in his room.

April 20.—THE President today spent his second quiet day at his residence on Bohol Avenue in Quezon City.

Disregarding his personal physician's order that he remained in bed, the Chief Executive spent some time pouring over state papers which needed his immediate attention.

Yesterday, the President had cancelled all his engagements owing to a bad cold.

His physicians, however, said today that the President's condition "had improved a lot".

Earlier in the morning, the President heard mass, together with his family, before an improvised altar at his Quezon City residence.

Shortly before noon, the President conferred with Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, who briefed him on various matters. They also discussed the proposed revamp of the Presidential Complaints and Action Committee.

THE President said today he would revamp the PCAC in order to make it a more effective government instrumentality not only in combatting graft and corruption but also in getting maximum efficiency in the work of government officials and employees and in implementing effectively government policies.

The President will soon sign an executive order amending the order which created the PCAC.

The Malacañang spokesman said that as envisioned by the President, the revitalized PCAC will have as its main functions:

- (1) To see to it that government offices concerned perform effectively their role in implementing the government's program of service to the people.
- (2) To see to it that government officials and employees render maximum efficiency in their work; and
- (3) To combat the commission by government officials and employees of graft and corruption.

The Malacañang spokesman said that in revamping the PCAC the President planned a constant follow-through of the performance of the various government agencies concerned in the implementation of the government's program, of action. In this manner, the spokesman said, any project that the government would launch could be carried through until its successful completion. Besides, difficulties that might be encountered in the execution of government policies or projects would be more easily solved.

The revamped PCAC will also be charged with following up the status of all matters which the Office of the President will refer to government agencies for action.

The spokesman added that another aim in revamping the PCAC was to get the maximum efficiency from government officials and employees in the performance of their duties. He said that with greater efficiency, the government could render better service to the people.

The other function of the revamped PCAC, according to the spokesman, would be to find ways and means of maintaining the integrity of government officials and employees. It would implement the President's policy of attacking the problem of graft and corruption through preventive measures, aside from the punitive measures already being carried out.

The spokesman said that the present functions of the PCAC of attending to all complaints from the people would be continued vigorously by the revamped office. The spokesman added that the present fact-finding duties of the PCAC would be retained by the new office.

The President, according to the spokesman, is considering the names of several persons who may probably head the revamped PCAC.

April 21.—TODAY the President received high officials of the Manila Tobacco Association who lodged a protest against congressional proposals to establish floor prices on native filler type of tobacco. They reiterated their petition that American cigar wrappers be included among the items to be imported under the United States Public Law No. 480.

In presenting their opposition to the proposal to establish floor prices on native filler tobacco, MTA officials said the government instead should help the farmers more effectively in trying to increase the productivity of their fields, which they added, was less than half per unit of acreage, of that in Central and South American countries.

The tobacco men alleged that roughly two-thirds of the native filler tobacco were sold abroad and, therefore the prices must stay always within competitive level with other foreign sources. They also pointed out the keen competition offered in the U.S. market by Cuban and Central and South American tobaccos, and the move to lower the U.S. tariff duty on leaf tobacco entering the United States.

The tobacco men favored the agreement reached upon in a conference called by the late President Magsaysay which was attended by buyers of tobacco and by high government officials to establish floor prices of P20 and P18 per quintal for the fourth class current Isabela tobacco and Cagayan tobacco, respectively. They alleged that the proposed bills introduced during the current session of Congress were "beyond any realistic approach."

The President said he would study the protest of the MTA officials.

MTA officials who saw President Garcia were Dr. Roque D. Yap, president; Alfonso R. de Campierre, Tomas Hernandez, and Col. Salvador T. Villa of Tabacalera; Wolfgang Deerner of Bunning & Co.; J. Huber of Alhambra Cigar & Cigarette Manufacturing Co.; Hamilton Parrish of Isabela-La Yebana Tobacco Corp.; and Alberto Go of Go Foy & Company.

Another presidential caller was Dr. Melquiades G. Virata, who, on behalf of the Filipino Social Club of New York, presented a congratulatory plaque to the President on his election as President of the Philippines.

The President also received Alberto Philippe, president of Junior Chamber International, who was accompanied by a group of local Jaycees headed by Sotero Laurel and P. W. Tantoco, president and vice-president of the Philippine Jaycees, respectively; and Alfonso Yuchangco, president of the Manila Jaycees.

Education Secretary Manuel Lim; Jorge B. Vargas, and H. B. Reyes headed a group of officials of the local scouting movement and members of the Boy Scouts of the Philippines who presented to the President the annual report of the scout organization.

The President also received Victor H. Zeller, W. Helmerich, William R. Horkey, E. Conrad Geeslin, and H. Stuart Scott, who called to give him a fill-in on their oil exploration in the country for the last year.

A Japanese delegation headed by Ikkaku Matsuzawa also called on President Garcia to pay their respects. The delegation arrived to light the torch kept in the Rizal Memorial Field and relay it to Tokyo where the Third Asian Games will be held from May 24 to June 1, 1958.

Earlier, the President called Jose Arañas and Melecio Domingo, commissioner and deputy commissioner of internal revenue, respectively, for a briefing on the doings in the Bureau of Internal Revenue, especially with reference to the specific tax campaign.

PRESIDENT Garcia said today that he is definitely going to the United States in June, despite any reaction to the unfavorable article in Time magazine, in an exclusive interview with Jim Baker, a foreign correspondent.

“My plans have not changed, simply because of a story in one American magazine,” he said in the interview.

The President also said that if he is successful in his trip in America in search of development loans there will be no need to continue the import and dollar reserve restrictions of the austerity program.

President Garcia also made these points:

1. As a “general rule” Japanese reparations goods sent to the Philippines are higher in price than the same goods produced by Japan for export sales.
2. He was assured Ly Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio that the Djakarta Government will put down any communist uprising. But President Garcia said he would like Indonesia to follow a more pro-western course and would welcome that nation as member of SEATO.
3. The Formosa Government has apparently turned down a plan submitted to handle the problem of overstaying Chinese here.

Discussing the austerity program, the President said that the downward trend in the dollar reserve has been arrested. He said he expected the reserve to hit a peak in May and June when proceeds from the sales on the sugar crop flow in.

“Beginning in August,” President Garcia said, “the copra, hemp, lumber, and mineral industries will carry the load and we expect to break even until the end of the year, judging by past experience. In January the sugar receipts will again be flowing in.”

The President said he has already lifted 80 per cent of the restrictions on imports and dollar spending and “we are lifting these controls one after another as conditions warrant.

He said that if he is successful in his quest for $300 million in development loans from the United States, “there will be no more need” for these controls.

April 22.—ONE hundred Igorot families displaced from their former lands in the Philippine Military Academy site will receive lands from the government to cultivate, pursuant to a proclamation signed today by President Garcia at a conference in Malacañang with Rep. Luis Hora of Mountain Province.

The proclamation signed by the President amends Proclamation No. 208, series of 1955, which released a portion of the agricultural station site of the Bureau of Plant Industry located in Baguio City, by declaring the said portion of land open to disposition under the homestead provisions of the Public Land Act.

In signing the proclamation, President Garcia stated that he would honor the commitment of the government made by the late President Magsaysay.

The President today named five congressmen to the Tobacco Watchdog Committee, which he created to look into the proper implementation of the importation and exportation of tobacco and to seek ways and means to improve the local tobacco industry in order to expand the markets for local tobacco.

Those named were Reps. Francisco Ortega of La Union, Luciano Millan of Pangasinan, Godofredo Reyes of Ilocos Sur, Lucas Paredes of Abra, and Antonio Raquiza of Ilocos Norte.

Presidential callers included British Ambassador George Glutton, former Senator Pablo Angeles David, Sens. Roseller Lim and Pedro Sabido, and Reps. Ramon Mitr'a of Mt. Province, Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan, Godofredo Reyes of Ilocos Sur, Antonio de Pio of Cebu, Natalio Castillo of Bohol, Ricardo Ladrido of Iloilo, Nicanor Yniguez of Leyte, Jacobo Gonzales of Laguna, Pedro Venida of Camarines Norte, Pedro Trono of Iloilo, Cesar Fortich of Bukidnon, Vicente Gustilo of Negros Oriental, Inocencio Ferrer of Negros Occidental, and Felipe Garduque of Cagayan.

PRESIDENT Garcia today urged superintendents of schools all over the country to help in the campaign for self-sufficiency in food, shelter, and clothing.

In appealing to the superintendents, the President said that the teacher is the central figure in the barrios. The superintendents, members of the Philippine Association of Superintendents of School, called on the President following their conference in Baguio. They were accompanied by Education Secretary Manuel Lim and Public Schools Director Benigno Aldana.

The superintendents, through their president, Superintendent Roman Lorenzo of Rizal, expressed their support of the President's food production campaign and his trip to the United States.

The Chief Executive said that by reducing the cost of production and doubling the yield per hectare, the country not only could become self-sufficient in rice but would be able to export the cereal to neighboring countries.

The President cited the important roles of the superintendents and the teachers in the community and how they could help in the campaign for self-sufficiency in food, shelter, and clothing. He assured the superintendents that the means and equipment in conducting the campaign would be improved.

The superintendents informed the Chief Executive that public vocational schools have been conducting a reforestation campaign. They also told the President that they needed better equipment and facilities for the food production campaign.

After meeting the superintendents, the Chief Executive received retired Admiral Ellery Wheeler Stone, president of the American Cable and Radio Corporation. Admiral Stone paid a courtesy call and was accompanied by William Moser.

The President at 6 p.m. motored to the residence of Manila Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson, where he attended the silver wedding anniversary of the Mayor and Mrs. Lacson.

THE President this day launched a "new deal" for the Sulu Archipelago.

The President directed Capt. Francisco H. Calinawan, Malacañang performance officer and chairman of the newly created Committee on Sulu Affairs, to leave immediately for Sulu with members of his committee to undertake a comprehensive survey of the economic conditions in that area and to prepare a master plan for its development with all its implications to the national security.

The President made this decision because of numerous reports he has been receiving pointing to the urgency of improving the deplorable conditions in the Sulu archipelago.

In directing Calinawan and the members of the Committee on Sulu Affairs to proceed to the South, the President said that they “approach their task with a fresh outlook, free from prejudice or bias, so that the plan will be factual and objective and that the solutions will be non-partisan and statesmanlike.”

The President reminded the committee that “the people of Sulu constitute the proudest and most patriotic sector of our nation who have never succumbed to alien domination in the past and that it is now the duty of the Republic to uplift them in order to make up for time lost during their non-collaboration with colonial rule.”

The President said: “This is the ‘new deal’ which my administration wants to give to Sulu.”

With Capt. Calinawan as chairman, the members of the Committee on Sulu Affairs are ex-Gov. Perfecto Balili of the division of local governments, Major Federico Salcedo of the Department of National Defense, Capt. Benjamin Labayen of ACCFA, Alvaro Martinez of the PACD, Feliciano Serrano of the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources, Engineer F. S. Salvador of the Department of Public Works and Communications, and Armando A. Rivera of Malacañang.

President Garcia received today from Capt. Calinawan a report of his eight-day extensive tour of the province of Iloilo, Negros Occidental, Cebu, Misamis Oriental, and Bukidnon.

Calinawan toured these provinces in connection with his duty as Malacañang performance officer.

The President also instructed Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo to issue a memorandum to all national government officials to go out of their way and make more visits to the provinces. The President said this would boost the morale of the people and show the concern of the Administration for their welfare.

PRESIDENT Garcia today directed the National Bureau of Investigation to investigate the mass jailbreak last Sunday in the provincial jail of Nueva Vizcaya.

Rep. Leonardo B. Perez asked the help of the President, alleging that the jailbreak was made possible through the laxity of the jail guards.

Of the fourteen prisoners who escaped from jail, five were members of the dreaded murder syndicate of Nueva Vizcaya, according to the Nueva Vizcaya solon.

Perez told President Garcia that he had received reports that the jail-breakers are out on a mission to liquidate ranking members of the Nacionalista Party in Nueva Vizcaya.

He recalled that during the last election campaign, one prisoner was “allowed” to escape and, after being recaptured, confessed before government investigators that he was sent out to liquidate him (Rep. Perez).

April 23.—THIS morning, the President conferred with Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, concurrently president of the Nacionalista Party and chairman of the Commission on Appointments.

The conference started at breakfast and ended shortly before lunchtime.

While no details were released to the press on the conference, it was indicated that the President urged the Senate President to speed up the confirmation of his nominations in the Reparations Commission.

The conference immediately bore fruits at the Commission on Appointments when the body confirmed the nomination this afternoon of Chairman Rodolfo Maslog, and Commissioners Juan Alberto and Alejo Santos.

It was learned that the President and Senate President Rodriguez also discussed the question of appointments to the mayoralty of Quezon City.

After Rodriguez had left, Senator Lorenzo Sumulong also saw the President. Sumulong is also from the province of the Senate President.

The President also conferred with Rodolfo Andal, general manager of the Government Service Insurance System, who informed him that the GSIS had loaned the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation P1 million to finance the construction of PHHC housing units in Davao City.

PRESIDENT Garcia this afternoon did his share in the nation-wide food production campaign of his administration by putting up a vegetable garden in Malacañang and planting it to eggplants, radishes, tomatoes, lettuce, pechay, and other staple plants.

Accompanied by the First Lady, the President crossed over to Malacañang Park this afternoon and inspected a 500-square meter lot which he had ordered cultivated and turned into vegetable plots,

The President and the First Lady spent about one hour going around the lot, talking to a gardener in charge, and planting a few plots with vegetable seedlings. The President also inspected a mound of fertilizers donated by Dr. Gonzalo Montemayor, a noted chemist who had processed the fertilizers but of garbage waste.

The First Lady tended her flower plots which she had set up near the vegetable plots. She launched a flower-for-every-home campaign not only to beautify the homes but also to have extra income for the families from the sale of the flowers.

With the President at the vegetable garden this afternoon were Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez, Education Secretary Manuel Lim, Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo, Director Eugenio Cruz of the Bureau of Plant Industry, and Dr. Dionisio Aquino, a soil chemist.

AFTER consultation with his Cabinet this evening President Garcia approved the sending of a delegation to the 13th general meeting of the International Social Security Association to be held in London, United Kingdom, from May 12 to 23 this year.

The Social Security Commission, which had recommended the sending of the delegation, explained that the Philippine social security system which had commenced operations some time last year was one of the most recent members of the international association. The commission felt it advisable that the Philippines be represented in the general meeting which the association holds but once in every three years.

The commission further explained that the system in the Philippines being in its infancy, the participation of this country in the international assembly would be of value in the solution of problems of administration of social security benefits here.

The delegation will be composed of Chairman Gonzalo Gonzalez of the SSC, as chief delegate, and Labor Secretary Angel Castaño, Social Security Commissioner and Acting Administrator Rodolfo P. Andal, Commissioner Ildefonso Remolona, Hilarion Corpus, and Alfredo Gomez.

The delegation is scheduled to leave for London on May 4 and return to the Philippines in the first week of June. Expenses of the group will be borne by the SSC, except in the case of Commissioner Andal, one-half of whose expenses would be borne by the GSIS. Corpus and Gomez will defray their own expenses.

April 24.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning received Maj. Gen. Don Spry, a director of the International Bureau of the Boy Scouts.

Spry paid his respects to the President upon his arrival in Manila to attend the Far East conference of Boy Scout leaders to be held in the Mansion House, Baguio, from April 26 to 28.

Spry thanked the President for the invitation extended by the Philippine Government to hold the 10th World Boy Scout Jamboree in Manila in 1959. He said that the Boy Scouts of the Philippines was considered as the leading organization of boy scouts in Asia today. As a result of this, Spry said, the International Bureau of Boy Scouts, with which are affiliated 67 nations, approved the holding of the Jamboree in Manila.

Others who accompanied Gen. Spry were Bill Campbell, international commissioner of the Boy Scouts of America; Jorge B. Vargas, president of the Boy Scouts of the Philippines; Judge Enrique Fernandez, president of the Davao Council and member of the national executive board of the BSP; Guillermo Padolina, traveling commissioner of Boy Scouts International Bureau; and Jose Panlilio, national scout director, BSP.

Secretary-designate Alejandro Almendras of the Department of General Services informed the President today that the construction of the P4.5 million waterworks system of the City of Davao will suffer a delay.

Pipes, fittings, and couplings have already arrived in Davao but, according to Almendras, they did not fit.

President Garcia learned from NAWASA General Manager Susano R. Negado, whom he called by telephone, that the German firm which supplied the pipes did not comply with the specifications.

The President was also informed by Negado that the contractor had promised to defray the expenses for the manufacture of new fittings and couplings to fit the pipes. To save time, the fittings and couplings will be ordered by the contractor from Japan, Negado said.

Almendras also informed the President that the drought in Davao was over, as it started raining there the last four days. People were already planting rice and corn in Davao, Secretary Almendras said.

Almendras, who until recently was governor of Davao, handed over a check for P17,000 collected in his province for the peace-and-amelioration fund campaign. The President said the money will be utilized in the peace-and-order campaign in Sulu.

Almendras was accompanied by Judge Enrique Fernandez, Davao City Vice-Mayor Ramon Morada, and political leaders, who expressed their gratitude to President Garcia for nominating Almendras as head of the newly created Department of General Services.

Earlier, President Garcia received at his residence Rep. Joaquin R. Roces, chairman of the good government committee; Rep. Delfin Albano of Isabela, and Rep. Bartolome Cabangbang of Bohol and discussed with them the controversial purchase of the Hacienda San Luis by the Land Tenure Administration.

It was agreed at the conference that more attention should be paid to legislation during the current congressional session and the congressional investigation of the purchase should be continued during the recess of Congress.

A goodwill delegation from the Norwegian Export Council paid a courtesy call on the President. The delegation consisted of Soren Christian Sommerfeldt, vice-president of the Norwegian Export Council and chief of the Trade Political section of the Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs; Lars Fronth, vice-president of the Norwegian Export Council; Thorolf Prytz, vice-president of the council; Torkel Ruud, director of the council; and Sverre Lindeberg, department manager of the Scandinavian Airlines System. They were accompanied by Lars Onsager, charge d'affaires of the Norwegian Legation here; Arne S. Fonkalarud; Per C. Odner, Manila manager of SAS; and Jose Blaquiedra, acting protocol officer of Malacañang.

Gov. Conrado Estrella conferred with President Garcia over the visit of the Chief Executive to Pangasinan on May 17 to inaugurate the P15 million Agno Irrigation System which will water 27,000 hectares, covering 11 towns.

Other presidential callers were Sens. Quintin Paredes and Domocao Alonto, Quezon City Mayor Norberto Amoranto, Reps. Benjamin Ligot and Salvador Enciñas, Govs. Juan Trivino of Camarines Sur and Juan Frivaldo of Sorsogon, former Gov. Hadji G. Rasul, and former Rep. Godofredo Ramos.

PRESIDENT Garcia this day sent a cable to U. S. Rep. John McCormack (D-Mass.) extending the "sincerest appreciation and gratitude of the Filipino people and of myself for your strong and generous support to the economic assistance which the Philippines needs."

The President sent the cable to McCormack upon reading news report that Rep. McCormack had said in the congressional session that President Garcia "should be given all the assistance he needs to help his country weather the current economic recession in the Philippines."

President Garcia in his cable added that McCormack's thoughts and sentiments would "go a long way in further strengthening the love and faith between the American and Filipino peoples."

The President was informed by Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo today of the operational profits of three companies where the government is a majority stockholder.

According to Secretary Pajo, the Philippine Air Lines, Inc., realized a net profit of P4,007,444 in 1957, and P5,223,832 in 1956. Pajo also told the President that the annual report of the Philippine Electrical Manufacturing Company, Inc., revealed a net profit of P419,469 in 1957 and P803,308 in 1956. The third company mentioned in the report of the Executive Secretary was the Manila Gas Corporation, which realized a net profit of P772,396 in 1957 and P745,751 in 1956.

President Garcia and the First Lady this afternoon received some 80 delegates to the Fifth Asian Film Festival being held in Manila.

The movie stars, dressed in their native costumes, suffered from the heat and busily primed themselves while waiting for the President and the First Lady to show up at the Malacañang reception hall.

A number of Malacañang officials and employees packed the reception hall as they curiously watched the top movie actresses from Asian countries.

The delegates were introduced to the President and the First Lady by Manuel de Leon of the LVN, who is executive secretary of the Asian film festival.

After greeting the delegates individually, the President and the First Lady tendered a merienda for their guests. They also posed with the delegates.

THE President this evening instructed the Presidential Law Enforcement Unit for Southern Philippines (PLEUSP) to exert all efforts to eradicate rampant violations of customs, revenue, and immigration laws in the South which had deprived the government of substantial revenues and provided ruinous competition to legitimate business.

In his conferences with the PLEUSP which called at Malacañang this evening for final instructions prior to its departure for the South early tomorrow morning, the President pointed out that the uncontrolled illegal activities might provide opportunities for foreign-inspired clandestine activities inimical to the nation's economy, its political institutions and way of life, as well as its national security.

The President expressed hope that, with the creation of this special task force, the rampant law violations would be greatly minimized, if not totally eradicated.

Col. Flaviano Olivares, group chairman, promised that this organization would do its best to perform its assigned mission.

Members of the group are Solicitor Pacifico Querubin of the Department of Justice⁷, Collector Edilberto David of the Bureau of Customs, Deputy Commissioner Melecio B. Domingo of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, Tirso Santillan of the Bureau of Immigration, and Lt. Col. Mamarinta Lao of the Constabulary.

Also at the conference was Navy Capt. Emilio Liwanag, commander of the naval unit which will serve as the executing arm of the group.

The task force will establish its headquarters in Jolo, Sulu. It will supervise and coordinate the administration and enforcement of Philippine tariff, customs, internal revenue, immigration, firearms, and currency laws and regulations, including the apprehension and prosecution of violators.

Its area of operation will be Mindanao, Sulu, and Palawan, and such other areas as the President may direct.

April 25.—THIS morning President Garcia received NAWASA General Manager Susano Negado, who urged the restoration of funds appropriated for the construction of artesian wells

Negado expressed the fear that, unless the funds cut by the austerity program were restored, the wells construction program would suffer a great delay.

The NAWASA head also discussed with the President the programming of about $63 million earmarked for the construction of 800 new waterworks systems in the entire country. The amount represents the dollar requirements for the construction of the systems.

Board Members of the National Resettlement and Rehabilitation Administration led by their chairman, Mrs. Remedios O. Fortich, submitted to President Garcia the 1957 Annual Report of the government corporation.

At the same time, the President administered the oath of office to Mario Morelos as NARRA assistant general manager during the occasion.

The report stressed the fact that in its 17 resettlement projects, the corporation had been able to resettle more than 22,000 families in three years at a cost of only P762.18 per family as against 2,308 families in 1950-1953 at a cost of P1,325 per family.

Other NARRA officials who accompanied Mrs. Fortich were Directors Eugenio Reyes, Valeriano Plantilla, Rafael Hilado, Angelino Banzon, and Severo Yap; Board Secretary Delfin Manlapid; and Oscar Sarte.

Other presidential callers this morning were MRR General Manager Feliciano F. Santiago, Manila Port Service General Manager Francisco Medrano, Civil Defense Administrator Alfredo Eugenio, Reps. Manuel Zosa and Ramon Durano of Cebu, Vicente Araneta, Serafin Salvador, and Felisberto Verano.

PRESIDENT Garcia accepted today "with regret" the resignation of Vicente Y. Orosa as chairman of the PHHC board and as member of the NAWASA board.

The President accepted Orosa's resignation upon insistence of Orosa to resign because of his desire to engage in private business as consulting, engineer. Acceptance of his resignation takes effect upon the appointment and qualification of his successor.

The letter of acceptance which was signed by Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo extended to Orosa the President's "sincere appreciation for the invaluable services you have rendered to the government in various capacities."

Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison said that the President will name Ambrosio Magsaysay to replace Orosa in the NAWASA board.

Other nominations made by President Garcia today were Ladislao Yap, director of the Wage and Position Classification Office; Gregorio Alfabeto, treasurer of the City of Silay; Jose L. Gonzalez, clerk of court of Surigao; and Jose C. Sering, board member of Surigao.

The President also appointed the following as members of the Board of National Education: Felicidad A. de Silva, Salih Ututalum, Leon O. Ty, and Feliciano Ledesma.

The President earlier, after breakfast at his Quezon City residence, conferred with Executive Secretary Pajo, Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, Press Secretary Sison, Assistant Executive Secretary Sofronio Quimson, and Legislative Liaison Officer Vicente Logarta on various matters.

At 10 a.m., the President proceeded to Malacañang and received his morning callers.

THE President today suspended from office for one month without pay Justice of the Peace Salvador F. Calizo of Balete, Capiz, after finding him guilty of "a cynical and deliberate disregard" of an official duty,

The suspension of Calizo was the result of an administrative case filed against him by a Mrs. Fructuosa C. Yaza. Of the three charges filed against the Balete justice of the peace, he was found guilty of only one after an investigation conducted by the district judge of Capiz.

The suspended justice of the peace was found guilty of deliberately not issuing to the complainant a copy of the order committing to jail the accused in a criminal case so as to enable the complainant to collect the cost of their (the accused) subsistence which the complainant, who was a caterer, had furnished.

The complainant, Mrs. Yaza, furnished the subsistence of five accused in a criminal case under a contract with the municipality. When she presented her bill to the municipal treasurer, however, the latter declined to pay because she did not have a copy of the order committing the five accused to jail.

Mrs. Yaza claimed that when she approached Calizo for the copy of the order of commitment to jail, the justice of the peace refused to give her one saying that he had not docketed the case.

In his decision following the investigation, the district judge of Capiz observed: "It is to be remembered always that the record of criminal or civil cases are public records and . . . as the legal custodian of the whole and every part thereof he (Calizo) is duty bound to show and furnish true or certified copies of any part of it when required to do so on demand of any interested party upon payment of the corresponding fees."

The President's action on the case followed recommendations by the Capiz district judge and the secretary of justice. Calizo was likewise ordered by the President to issue to the complainant a copy of the commitment order in the criminal case.

PRESIDENT Garcia today announced he will take "drastic measures" to step up revenue collections which he said have "sagged" for the last nine months.

He made the announcement at his weekly press conference this afternoon as he rejected the petition of Ilocos solons who had interceded for Internal Revenue Commissioner Jose Aranas in his dispute with Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez and Elias Vega, head of the assessment division of the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

At the same time, the President said he had appealed to Congress to rush its legislative work on vital measures during its remaining 27 days of the current session.

He said he had appealed to the “sense of patriotism” of Congress to suspend in the meantime its investigations of several cases and devote its remaining 27 days of session to legislative matters.

The President admitted to newsmen he had received the resolution of Ilocos solons interceding for Aranas, who had been virtually stripped of his powers to investigate the tax liabilities of tobacco firms.

He upheld Secretary Hernandez in naming Vega as head of an 11-man body to check into the tax liabilities of tobacco firms.

However, the President refused to comment on reports that Finance Secretary Hernandez had lost confidence in Aranas.

He pointed out that Aranas and Deputy Commissioner Melecio Domingo could not justify the slump in the revenue collection.

The President stressed that “obviously there is a faulty system of revenue collection.”

At his press conference, the President also:

1. Reiterated his statement that there was no “reparations mess; and
2. Said he was naming a new man as chairman of the board of directors of the People’s Homesite and Housing Corporation, vice Vicente Y. Orosa, who resigned.

President Garcia observed that while Congress has only 100 days of session, it has 300 investigation days.

He asked Congress leaders to undertake their investigations after the regular session.

He pointed out that the legislature has only 27 day of session work left, but have practically not passed any measure of vital importance.

However, he expressed optimism that Congress, which is conscious of its responsibility, may be able to clear its dockets at the end of the 100-day session.

The President commenting on the move to extend the regular session to 150 days, said that “will require a constitutional amendment.”

He also hit the Liberals for the slack in the congressional work. Pie said that “the Liberals have also their days in privilege speeches.”

In announcing his plan to take “drastic measures” to boost tax collections, the President said he was not at the moment contemplating to revamp the BIR.

He disclosed that when the specific taxes were imposed in 1955, an increase in revenue collection of P12 million was registered for the fiscal year 1955-56 and P16 million for the fiscal year 1956-57.

However, he noted that for the last nine months, there has been an abrupt drop in the collection.

The President said that when he summoned Arañas and Domingo to Malacañang, the two BIR officials could not explain the decline.

Touching on the resolution of the Ilocos solons urging for the return of porters to Arañas, the President said that Secretary Hernandez has not withdrawn the powers from the BIR chief. He explained that Hernandez merely clothed Vega's committee with the same powers.

President Garcia justified Hernandez's action as based on a law which empowers "anybody in his department to undertake a special task in relation to any matter and clothe his man with the necessary power."

The President said he was endorsing Hernandez in this action in an effort to step up revenue collection.

Commenting on reports that United States may not give him the amount he would seek for development loans, the President said, "I will justify every dollar I will secure as loan from the United States."

He expressed elation anew over the speech of Rep. John McCormack, House majority floor leader of the US' Congress. He said McCormack's speech was "encouraging and augurs well for my coming state visit."

At the same time, the President virtually closed the door to the Liberals to join him in his trip to the United States.

He previously invited the Liberals to join him in his economic mission to Washington, D. C.

At the press conference, the President said he has given the Liberals "sufficient time" and that "it seems there has not been any favorable reaction."

However, the President said he was appreciative of the point of view of Rep. Ramon D. Bagatsing (L-Manila), who was in favor of naming a minority member in the presidential entourage.

President Garcia refused to comment on reports that the Philippines should take the initiative for the reopening of the bases talks with the U.S.

Touching on the reparations questions, the President said that Minister Caesar Z. Lanuza, chief of the Philippine reparations mission in Japan, is still "too busy" in Japan for him to return here and explain alleged irregularities in the mission.

However, he denied there is a reparations mess and pointed out that "prices of reparations items are the same as those charged to other countries like Indonesia and Burma, which are getting war indemnity from Japan."

The President also told newsmen he was naming a new chairman of the PHHC. He said he was not inclined to name Bernardo Torres, PHHC general manager, as concurrent chairman of the board.

He indicated he wanted to separate the management of PHHC from the board of directors.

Commenting on the charge of Sen. Ambrosio Padilla that he should be blamed for the faulty filing system in the Department of Foreign Affairs, the Chief Executive retorted:

"Is Sen. Padilla willing to accept any blame for any missing document in the Office of the Solicitor General after he has resigned from office? It is not fair, no?"

He also remarked that Sen. Padilla "has many novel constitutional theories."

April 26.—PRESIDENT Garcia and the Council of Leaders today agreed that during the remaining days of the session, right of way be given to the discussion of the Administration's economic measures.

Among the bills intended to hasten the country's economic development which will be given priority attention are those amending the Nickel law, encouraging foreign investments, coordinating scientific efforts, establishing the Economic Development Bank to be capitalized from reparations proceeds, and increasing food production. These bills were first recommended by the President in his state-of-the-nation message to Congress.

During the conference, the nomination of Serafin Salvador, former congressman from Rizal, as undersecretary of the newly created Department of General Services, was approved.

The conferees agreed that during the remaining days of the session, the legislators would concentrate their work on legislative measures and would continue with investigation work during the recess.

Minister Ceasar Lanuza's return to Manila to shed light on reparations transactions, especially on alleged overpricing, was deferred in view of urgent business which the Reparations Mission in Tokyo is concluding in the procurement of the second-year reparations installment and in preparing for the third-year installment schedule which is due at the end of April.

In this connection, Congress leaders said that Congress was agreeable to continuing the reparations investigation after the session, confronted as it is with important and necessary legislation.

It was understood at the conference that in the Senate, there would be morning and afternoon sessions every day, including Saturdays, beginning May 2.

The Council of Leaders meeting which was presided over by President Garcia was held at the President's residence in Quezon City. Those who attended were Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., Speaker Daniel Romualdez, Senate Majority Floor Leader Cipriano P. Primicias, Speaker Protempore Constancio Castañeda, and House Majority Floor Leader Jose Aldeguer. Senate President Protempore Fernando Lopez could not attend the meeting which was held beginning at breakfast and lasting up to noon.

FIVE hundred settlers from Diffun and Aglipay, Nueva Vizcaya, hailed the recent order of President Garcia cancelling the sale of patents of five big government lands in Isabela and Nueva Vizcaya, according to a telegram sent by Gov. Jose Espino to the President.

Gov. Espino requested President Garcia to issue orders to government agencies for on-the-spot issuance of free patents to individual settlers to avoid further agrarian troubles in his province.

Espino alleged that the 500 settlers who occupied lands within the five government tracts have been victimized when patents were applied for them by other persons.

EXECUTIVE Secretary and Mrs. Juan C. Pajo left this morning by plane for Tagbilaran, Bohol, after receipt of a rush telegram notifying them of the tragic death of their only son, Eduardo, in a jeep accident on the road between Tagbilaran and Baklayan.

The accident occurred at 12:30 yesterday afternoon, according to the sketchy report received by Secretary Pajo.

The sad news was relayed to President and Mrs. Carlos P. Garcia, who immediately expressed their condolence to the Pajos.

THE President today considered the Time magazine article incident closed-

In declaring the incident closed, President Garcia said he was glad that our people had shown in an unmistakable way that they could forget partisanship, and in complete solidarity rally in defense of the country's honor and dignity of which the President is the personification.

The President was also pleased to know that the article did not represent the sentiment of the American press and the American people toward him and the Filipino people.

The Chief Executive said that the statement of Rep. John McCormack (D. Mass.), majority leader of the U.S. House of Representatives, vigorously supporting our government and our President in the effort to strengthen the country's economy with American assistance, was an eloquent indication of the great American reservoir of goodwill and understanding toward the Filipino people.

April 21.—MALACAÑANG today referred to the Department of Public Works and Communications the cases of a paymaster and a Bureau of Public Works foreman in Kalibo, Aklan, for further study and possible prosecution for alleged anomalies in the handling of laborers' payrolls.

Malacañang also transmitted to the Department of Education the cases of teachers in Cebu who had allegedly falsified their service records in order to qualify for the promotional junior teacher's civil service examination.

In forwarding these cases to the departments concerned, Malacañang called attention to the President's policy of dealing firmly with irregularities in the government service. Malacañang directed a prompt implementation of this policy.

Tirso C. Josen, vice-chairman of the Presidential Complaints and Action Committee, reported that one of his investigators, Tex P. Carillo, had unearthed alleged anomalous activities of one Pedro Medula, a foreman of the Bureau of Public Works in Kalibo. Medula reportedly had forged signatures of his laborers and gave them fictitious residence certificate numbers so that he could collect certain amounts from their salaries. The foreman was also said to have padded some payrolls by making it appear in the time book that those laborers had worked for a period longer than they actually did.

PCAC man also suggested that one Urbano Perroco, acting paymaster in the provincial treasury of Aklan, might be charged administratively for having allegedly certified under official oath that the laborers under Medula had gone to him personally to get their salaries. The PCAC investigator had recommended that a special prosecutor be sent to Aklan to handle these cases.

Acting on a presidential directive to look further into the case of allegedly fraudulent civil service junior teachers examinations in Cebu province, PCAC Vice-Chairman Josen has dispatched Carillo and another investigator, Constancio Bernaldes, to that province. The investigating team recently returned and reported that many teachers in the locality who had failed in the regular junior teachers examination had applied for conversion from regular to promotional in order to obtain the required passing mark of 70 per cent.

To cover the period of ten years' teaching experience required by the Bureau of Civil Service for conversion from regular to promotional, the teachers involved executed affidavits to the effect that they had taught during the Japanese occupation from 1943 to 1945, as the period of teaching during that time is recognized by the Bureau of Civil Service.

The investigators, however, found that most of these teachers could not have possibly taught during the occupation, for the places mentioned in their affidavits were then the center of guerrilla activities and classes were closed in those localities. It was also found that some of those teachers were only 13 or 14 years old during the time and, hence, were still too young to be teachers. It was noted that some 200 teachers in Cebu had executed such affidavits.

Vice-Chairman Joson, in his report, pointed out that “teachers as moral leaders of their respective communities must set good examples to the people, especially to the young.” According to him, what those teachers had done was “an evident cheapening of their official op. this certainly degrading to their noble profession.”

PRESIDENT Garcia spent today another quiet Sunday at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City. Except for a few close friends who called on him early in the morning, the President did not receive any visitor.

The Chief Executive started the day by hearing mass before an improvised altar set up in the living room of his house. At the mass were some close friends of the President, Maj. Jose Estrella, military aide, and members of the household.

After the mass, the President had a brief stroll around the lawn. He showed his friends some newly planted fruit trees in his backyard and an orchid house which the First Lady was maintaining. He also spent some time talking with gardeners whom he found tending to the fruit trees which included a few oranges, coconuts, and calamansi.

After breakfast, the President repaired to his study where he read the Sunday morning papers. He also went over some papers which he had taken along from Malacañang.

IN the afternoon, the President worked on a prepared speech which he will deliver at the opening ceremonies of the Third Philippine Foreign Trade Conference of the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines at the Manila Hotel tomorrow morning.

The President later in the evening conferred with Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, who briefed him on varied matters.

April 28.—THIS morning President Garcia was the guest speaker at the opening session of the Third Philippine Foreign Trade Conference held at the Fiesta Pavilion of the Manila Hotel under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines. (See Historical Papers, for May 15th issue, for full text of the President’s speech.)

Members of the diplomatic corps, foreign and local businessmen, and commerce students heard the President speak on foreign trade. A delegation of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce led by Dwight K. Tripp was also present.

The President arrived at the Manila Hotel accompanied by CCP acting President Marcelo S. Balatbat and Director P. E. Domingo, who fetched the President from his Quezon City residence.

At the presidential table were high CCP officials and members of the diplomatic corps. Education Secretary Manuel Lim, in his capacity as CCP director, was the presiding officer at the opening ceremonies.

PRESIDENT Garcia this noon ordered the confiscation of all the banned goods brought into the country in the guise of personal effects and directed that those violating the law be prosecuted and the guilty meted out the highest penalty.

The President gave this order as he personally directed the opening up of big crates containing banned items in Pier 7 which had been brought in as personal effects of persons who had travelled abroad.

The President was informed that some 92 crates had been stored in Pier 7 and in another bodega of the Bureau of Customs. These goods had come in as personal effects of travelers, who are entitled to bring in $500 worth of personal effects.

The President had been tipped off earlier that these crates contained banned items. The President motored to the Customs House and then to Pier 7, where several of these crates had been in storage. He was accompanied by Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez and Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison.

Upon arrival at the Customs House, the President was informed that Customs Commissioner Eleuterio Capapas was out on inspection. However, several customs officials, among them Assistant Commissioner Pablo C. Mariano, Manila Customs Collector Isidro Angangco, and Col. James Keefe, were on hand. Finance Undersecretary Jose Trinidad and other customs officials were also present.

Upon the President's direction, the first crate marked "AM, R-370" and allegedly belonging to one Albert Magallona of Manila, was opened. The crate contained banned items; such as, dried shrimps, chocolate candies, Nescafe tins, pickled lettuce, black pepper, and tea. Another item shown the President was cigarette paper.

The President was informed that although each traveler was entitled to personal effects amounting to $500, it was estimated that each of the big crates stored in Pier 7, measuring about three meters high and two meters wide, contained goods worth about P20,000 in the black market.

The President showed indignation upon learning that some travelers had been abusing the privilege of bringing in personal effects by violating the country's laws in the bringing in of banned item.

The President was further informed that in some crates cigarettes, fancy jewelry, and other banned items were found.

The President directed Col. Keefe to have all the remaining crates opened and inspected and said he was going to send his personal representatives in the person of Commander Marcelino Calinawan, Capt. Abdinaso Ortiz, and Lorenzo Licad to be present during the opening of all the remaining crates.

The Chief Executive told the customs officials to check with the Department of Foreign Affairs to verify the names of those travelers who had allegedly brought in the crates. It was held probable that some of the names listed were fictitious.

The President was also informed that the investigation of the alleged illegal importation of textiles by the Roxas-Kalaw firm was proceeding apace. The discovery of this alleged illegal importation had been made by secret operatives assigned by the President to prevent the violation of customs and internal revenue laws.

The President arrived at the Customs House shortly before 11 a.m. He motored to Pier 7 immediately after he had delivered his speech at the Manila Hotel, Fiesta Pavilion on the occasion of the opening of the Foreign Trade Week celebration. Staying for about an hour at Pier 7, the President returned to Malacañang shortly before 12 noon.

IN the evening, the President conferred in Malacañang with the nominated members of the Reparations Commission and discussed with them some details of the third-year reparations schedule due for submission on April. 30.

Present at this conference were Rodolfo Maslog, Reparations Commission chairman; and Governors Alejo Santos and Juan Alberto, commission members; Gregorio Abad; and Anacleto Mangaser, reparations assistant.

April 29.—AT a conference starting at breakfast today, President Garcia and House leaders agreed in principle to pass legislation which will more effectively check on the integrity of tax collecting agents.

This agreement was made to implement further the Administration's determination to combat graft and corruption and to help increase the revenues of the government.

Under the plan, it was agreed in principle between the President and House leaders to classify the positions of tax collecting agents as primarily confidential and highly technical in nature and for them to hold the position at the pleasure of the appointing power.

The purpose of this action will be to make effective the removal from office of the tax collecting agents, both in the Bureau of Customs and in the Bureau of Internal Revenue, the moment they have lost the confidence of the appointing power.

It is believed by the conferees that this measure will minimize the commission of graft and corruption in the tax collecting agencies and at the same time increase the amount of taxes due the government.

To effect this measure it will be necessary to amend the internal Revenue Code and, indirectly, the Civil Service Law.

The President and the House leaders also agreed to speed up the legislation on economic measures designed to strengthen the economy of the country.

The conferees approved the proposed anti-smuggling bill and the amendments to the provisions of the law; exempting new and necessary industries from the payment of taxes. Regarding the latter bill, it was agreed in principle that new and necessary industries which are already making profits should pay income tax.

The conferees agreed in principle to back up a bill which aims to develop cottage industries. They also agreed in principle to amend the No-Dollar Import Law so as to abolish barter.

It was moreover, agreed to support a bill creating the Foreign Import-Export Trade Office to be known as the FIETO.

The conferees agreed to amend the law giving awards to tax informers in such a way as to keep the identity of the informer secret.

The President presided over the conference which was attended by Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, Speaker Protempore Constancio Castañeda, Reps. Lorenzo Teves of Negros Oriental, Justiniano Montano of Cavite, Salipada Pendatun of Cotabato, Sergio Osmeña, Jr., of Cebu, Bartolome Cabangbang and Natalia Castillo of Bohol, Vicente Peralta of Sorsogon, Wenceslao R. Lagumbay of Laguna, Jose Roy of Tarlac, Lucas Paredes of Abra, Jose Leido of Mindoro Oriental, Valeriano Yancha of Samar, and Eladio Balite of Leyte, and Canuto Enerio of Zamboanga del Sur. Also present were Assistant Executive Secretary Sofronio C. Quimson and Malacañang legal advisers, Salvador Esguerra and Enrique Fernando.

The conference started at 8 a.m. and lasted up to luncheon about 1:30 p.m. The conference was held at the President's residence in Quezon City.

THE President authorized today the Cultural Foundation of the Philippines to conduct a national fund campaign during the period from May 1 to June 30, 1958.

In authorizing the fund campaign, the President said that the propagation and dissemination of Philippine art and culture would further enhance the prestige of the Philippines abroad and enable her to have closer relations with other countries.

The Cultural Foundation of the Philippines is at present undertaking an extensive cultural promotion program between the Philippines and other countries through increased knowledge and better understanding of their history, art, literature, music, political institutions, and common problems and interests in the economic and social fields.

The President's authorization of the fund campaign was contained in a presidential proclamation. The Chief Executive called upon all citizens and residents of the Philippines to assist in this noble campaign by giving generously of their means in the interest of Philippine culture.

PRESIDENT Garcia this day granted another reprieve to three Muntinglupa convicts who were scheduled to “burn” tomorrow afternoon. The 30-day reprieve was granted to enable President Garcia to study more carefully the case.

The convicts, Manuel Daet, Jose Villaroya, and Enrique Areloja, were sentenced to death for the slaying of a couple, Felix Refugio and Victoria Toy, in Tinambac, Camarines Sur, in June 1951.

THIS evening President Garcia administered the oaths of office to members of the Reparations Commission and to Bartolome Fernandez, supervising auditor of the General Auditing Office, as deputy auditor general.

Reparations commissioners inducted were Rodolfo Maslog, chairman; and Govs. Alejo Santos of Bulacan and Juan Alberto of Catanduanes, members. The inductions were held this evening at the President’s residence on Bohol Avenue in Quezon City.

The new deputy auditor general has been in the government service for a total of 40 years, 38 of which were spent with the GAO where he started as clerk in 1920. He succeeded the former deputy auditor general, Pedro Gimenez, who had been promoted to auditor general in January of last year. Fernandez is from Libon, Albay.

Present at the ceremonies were officials of the GAO headed by Auditor General Gimenez, relatives, and friends of the inductees.

Following the inductions, Gimenez took occasion to thank the President for having approved the reorganization plan of the GAO so as to make it a more effective fiscalizing arm of the government. The administrative order providing for the revamp signed by the President this noon pursuant to Republic Act 1890, which authorizes the auditor general to reorganize the office,

The President this evening also conferred with former Gov. Bernardo Torres, general manager of the People’s Homesite & Housing Corporation, who informed him of the latest developments in the projected purchase of the Santo-Sociego Estate in Quezon City by the PHHC from private owners, for subdivision and distribution to present tenants. Torres was accompanied by Tirso Joson, vice-chairman of the PCAC who conducted investigations on some 500 families living in the 18-hectare estate.

Another caller this evening was Agriculture Secretary Juan de G Rodriguez.

April 30.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning expressed to Maj. Gen. Joseph Harper the gratitude of the Philippine Government and the Filipino people for his services as JUSMAG chief.

The President made these remarks after a despedida breakfast given by President and Mrs. Garcia at Malacañang honoring the Harpers.

The President said that General Harper’s stay in the Philippines had enhanced friendly relations between the Philippines and the United States. He expressed the hope that although the Philippines would lose a military adviser, it would gain an additional friend in the United States where he could be of great service to the Philippines.

General Harper in thanking the President for his remarks said that the help he had rendered the Philippines was the result of the joint efforts of the Armed Forces of the Philippines represented by Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas and Lt. Gen. Alfonso Arellano, AFP chief of staff.

Harper paid high tribute to the Armed Forces of the Philippines, which he said, is composed of “magnificent troops.”

After the breakfast, the President gave a cane and a buntal hat to Gen. Harper, while Mrs. Garcia gave Mrs. Harper a salad set made of native hard wood, as souvenirs.

THE President this morning received members of the Senate committee on agriculture and natural resources who appraised him on problems of various fishing grounds of the country, particularly in Pampanga and Bulacan.

The committee, composed of Sens. Oscar Ledesma, chairman; and Lorenzo M. Tañada, Francisco Rodrigo, and Rogelio de la Rosa, members, informed the President that they had been conducting on-the-spot investigations on the matter and that they had agreed on the following temporary remedial measures for the President's approval:

(1) Status Quo should be maintained in controversial areas in the sense that constructions of new dikes should be considered illegal; and

(2) Authorities concerned should set up provisional markers with the view to upholding the lineage defined as communal fishing grounds in Executive Order No. 449.

At the same time, the committee members presented a copy of Senate Bill No. 196, sponsored by Sens. Ledesma, Tanada, Rodrigo, and De la Rosa, to the President. The bill seeks to prohibit constructing dams, dikes, or any other works in public navigable waters and to provide penalties for its violations.

Then the President received Rep. Salipada Pendatun of Cotabato, who consulted him on various problems in the Moslem regions.

PRESIDENT Garcia administered the oaths of office to some 40 officers of the newly-organized Good Administration Supporters Association (GASA) in a ceremony held at Malacañang this afternoon.

The organization is composed of various political groups which had helped campaign for the President's victory during the last elections. They had combined into one civic organization to assist the Administration in attaining its objectives designed for the welfare of the people.

The President thanked the association for its offer of cooperation. He said that with civic organizations behind him, he felt all the more encouraged to push through his economic program to attain self-sufficiency in the basic needs of the people, until every citizen of this country could have some measure of security.

Headed by Rep. Bartolome Cabangbang of Bohol, national chairman, among those inducted were Tereso Dumon, national executive vice-chairman; Teofilo Manalo, executive secretary; Ramon Ludovico, assistant executive secretary; Elpidio Cusio, vice-chairman for Luzon; Sergio Tucao, vice-chairman for Mindanao; and Emilio Benedicto, Jr., regional director for Western Visayas.

After the ceremony, the President received members of the Committee on Sulu Affairs headed by Capt. Francisco H. Calinawan, Malacañang performance officer. The President reiterated his desire to solve the Sulu problem once and for all for the benefit of our Moslem brothers in the South.

The Chief Executive recalled that there had been various attempts in the past to solve this perennial problems in Sulu. He hoped the present committee could learn a lot from these attempts, avoid their mistakes, and improve their methods which had produced some results.

The President created the committee recently with his launching of a "new deal" for the Sulu archipelago.

THE President and the Cabinet at their meeting this afternoon approved the importation of 30,000 metric tons of rice from Burma on a government-to-government level transaction.

Ten thousand metric tons of this rice, which is 255 per cent broken, will cost $117 per ton, C. & F. Manila. The remaining 20,000 metric tons, which is 20 per cent broken, will cost $122 per metric tons, C. & F. Manila.

The Cabinet took this action to insure the country's supply of rice and to prevent undue increase in rice prices.

It was understood that the Burmese rice could be shipped to Manila at any moment. The importation of the rice will be made through the NAMARCO.

The President directed that NARIC General Manager Vicente Concepcion, a representative of NAMARCO, and Mayor Arsenio Lacson leave for Rangoon to supervise the shipment of the rice.

The President appointed a committee to screen some 33 bills drafted by the different governments in order that only those which are really necessary would be endorsed to the Congress.

The committee is composed of Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano as chairman, with Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona and Justice Secretary Jesus Barrera, members. The committee will meet on Friday to screen the bills.

The President set a special Cabinet meeting for Monday in order to discuss the report of the committee and decide which bills will be recommended by the President to Congress.

Office of the President of the Philippines. (1958). Official Week in Review. Official Gazette of the Republic of the Philippines, 54(8), cliii-clxxv.

President's Month in Review: May 1-15, 1958

OFFICIAL MONTH IN REVIEW

May 1.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning authorized Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson to make exploratory talks for the acquisition of additional Burmese rice as the Manila mayor called on the President to receive final instructions prior to his departure for Rangoon. The Mayor called on the President at the latter's workshop in Quezon City.

Afterwards the President received Maj. Gen. William H. Nutter, who will replace Maj. Gen. Joseph Harper as JUSMAG chief. Nutter was scheduled to take over today.

Nutter was accompanied by Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen, Maj. Gen. Harper, Col. H. L. Conner, JUSMAG chief of staff; and Capt. Boyd T. Bashore, Harper's aide.

After receiving Nutter, the President retired to his study room and worked on his Labor Day speech to be delivered this evening.

The President alerted today all government relief agencies to extend relief to the victims of the ₱2.5 million Cotabato fire which, according to news reports, burned four blocks of commercial and residential establishments, including government offices in Cotabato, Cotabato.

The agencies alerted were the Social Welfare Administration, the Philippine National Red Cross, the Department of Health, and the Armed Forces.

President Garcia this evening capped the celebration of Labor Day by paying tribute to Philippine labor as "the real backbone and strength of our country."

Addressing in Tagalog a crowd estimated at 10,000 from the independence grandstand on the Luneta, the President said that the absence of serious labor strikes at a time when economic difficulties beset the country is "a good and excellent index of the good qualities of Philippine labor."

Speaking in halting, accented Tagalog, President Garcia asked the workers to be stout-hearted in the face of economic difficulties.

"Of course, my countrymen, we are not alone in our present economic state, because the whole world is experiencing it too," he said. "Even the richest countries are suffering the effects of economic disequilibrium."

The President observed that it is noteworthy that it is the better-placed in life who are complaining of the austerity program.

"The poor, unsung workers and laborers silently suffer so that they can give better opportunities for this administration to put our country in order and improve the economic life of the Filipino people."

President Garcia then proceeded to extol labor thus: "Whatever progress our country has achieved today, we owe it in great measure to the masses of our laboring class who are the most forgotten but who nevertheless give their utmost for the welfare of our government, and while less fortunate in the aspects of life, are willing to sacrifice for the common weal and glory of our native land."

A torch parade, in which at least 30,000 men and women took part, preceded the presidential address.

The participation in the parade was believed one of the biggest in the past four years. However, the crowd which usually come to watch the parade never exceed 10,000.

May 2.—THIS noon the President administered the oath of office to Gonzalo Gonzalez as acting chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Social Security System.

The oath-taking ceremony took place at the Malacañang study room and was witnessed by three members of the SSS Board; namely, Labor Secretary Angel Castaho, Health Secretary Paulino J. Garcia, and Ildefonso Remolona.

Earlier, problems of the cordage industry were taken up at a conference the President had with Howard P. Strickler, chairman of the board of directors of the Manila Cordage Company, and Don Manolo Elizalde, president of the Elizalde and Company.

The cordage executives requested President Garcia to direct Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo to intensify his fight against the unfair practice of some American importers of labelling as “Manila Type Rope” foreign-made rope made of sisal.

The President assured the cordage executives that the government would be willing to extend a helping hand to the cordage industry in its efforts to recapture European and South American markets which it had lost owing to the lack of dollars in other parts of the world.

The President also received John Roelli, resident manager of Ed Keller and Company, Ltd., who gave him a high precision aerial photogram-metric camera for the use of the government.

Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez, who was present at the turnover ceremony, informed the President that the camera would be used for the early execution of a surveying pilot project of the province of Bulacan to be carried out jointly by various entities under the Department of National Defense and the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Other presidential callers were Commissioner Madki Alonto; Richard Pockmire and A. Ponce Enrile, general manager and director, respectively, of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company (Philippines); former Secretary Sotero Baluyot and Mariano Agaoli.

First to be received by the President this morning was Ambassador Jose Fuentebella. The Philippine envoy to Djakarta was accompanied by Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez and his brother, Rep. Felix Fuentebella.

PRESIDENT Garcia today received the final report of the Presidential Incentives Committee, which recommended the lifting of control on foreign exchange as soon as possible but not later than two years provided that measures to increase production and to safeguard the stability of the currency are adopted and implemented.

Antonio de las Alas, committee chairman, submitted the report to President Garcia in the presence of Alfredo Montelibano, Alfonso Calalang, Fernando E. V. Sison, Helen Benitez, Jose Hernandez, and Gaudencio Antonino, committee members.

The committee also recommended that during the interim period prior to the complete lifting of exchange control, the government adopt a policy of granting adequate allocations of foreign exchange for the direct importation by agricultural producers and manufacturers of machinery, equipment, spare parts, fertilizers, insecticides, fungicides, weedicides, and fuel essential to production, with a view to increasing production at lower costs.

The committee also recommended that as a matter of policy, whenever the obstacles to trade are purely in the nature of payments difficulties, the Philippines should adopt a multiple currency payment system, under which stable and freely convertible currencies other than the U. S. dollar can be accepted.

President Garcia stated that he was in favor of gradual decontrol and added that he was considering endorsing to Congress the adoption of the multiple currency payment system in order to aid local industries which are encountering difficulties in the non-dollar areas owing to dollar scarcity.

PRESIDENT Garcia intimated at his weekly press conference this afternoon that Ambassador Jose Fuentebella was on his way out of the Philippine foreign service.

In hinting on Fuentebella's fate, the President pointed out that there are three courses of action open to a diplomat who disagrees with the policy of his home office.

These are (1) resignation, (2) a request for a reassignment to another diplomatic post, and (3) an appeal directly to the President.

"Pat it is a little bit too late now," President Garcia said ominously, as he admitted that Fuentebella has resorted to the third alternative. Fuentebella has not asked for a reassignment,

With Fuentebella's appeal, the President took official cognizance of the raging controversy between Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano and the ambassador to Indonesia.

At the same time, the Chief Executive declared, that the current conflict over the conduct of Philippine-Indonesian relations will be decided "on its merits" and not on political considerations.

The probability of Fuentebella's being asked to "resign" appeared when the President pointed out that the ambassador has not availed of "easier" courses of action for a diplomat who differs with the policy of the home office.

At his press conference, the President also:

1. Declared that the Philippines will maintain "friendly relations with the Sukarno regime pending final resolution of the Indonesian civil war;
2. Said he was considering calling a special Congress session to tackle proposed amendments to the Constitution, but that there was "nothing sure" about it yet;
3. Reiterated his appeal to Congress to work faster during the remaining session day in acting on his various economic proposals to help out the limping Philippine economy;
4. Warned that he will continue to conduct "lightning" raids on government offices suspected of being graft-ridden;
5. Said that Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson was the one who arranged the purchase on a government-to-government transaction of 30,000 metric tons of rice from Burma; and.
8. Minimized the adverse effect on the civil service system of a plan to change the status of tax collecting agents from civil service men to employees holding positions confidential and highly technical in nature.

The President said he would wait for the action which Congress might deem fit to take on the Serrano-Fuentebella row before he himself makes a move on the part of the executive department.

He temporarily ruled out the possibility that Fuentebella might be charged with insubordination for his bitter criticisms of Serrano.

"That is still too early," he said.

However, the President upheld the authority of the Foreign Service Board to initiate the investigation of Fuentebella on charges of alleged mismanagement of the embassy in Jakarta. ,

He said: "That is theirs to decide. That is clearly within the province of the Foreign Service Board."

The President said he might call Secretary Serrano either today or early next week to ask him to give his side on his row with Fuentebella since the Palace has taken official cognizance of the controversy.

The Chief Executive was reminded by a newsman that Fuentebella's seeming defiance of Serrano apparently stemmed from the fact that he counts with the support of the politically-powerful Bicol bloc of senators and representatives.

President Garcia stressed that the diplomatic controversy could not be settled on the basis of partisan considerations, but purely "on its merits," indicating that he would resist political pressure on the ease.

He said: "We cannot afford to decide this case on political considerations. We have to decide the case on the merits regardless of who gets more votes."

Then the President proceeded to explain the three courses of action available to diplomats who differ with the policy of the foreign secretary,

Asked if Fuentebella had appealed to him, the President said: "He sort of did that. But it is a little bit too late now."

The Chief Executive rejected a suggestion that Fuentebella be retired under the compulsory retirement law, the ambassador now being over 73.

"The matter of an ambassador's age is not a very important consideration in the foreign service," he said.

Queried about the present Philippine relations with strife-torn Indonesia, President Garcia said that it was "just in a sort of suspended animation."

"We are waiting for developments," he said. "In the meantime, we will maintain our friendly relations with the Djakarta Government."

May 3.—THIS morning the President held a preliminary discussion with the Council of Leaders on the proposed amendments to the Constitution. The proposed constitutional amendments will affect the holding of simultaneous elections in the Philippines.

It was agreed that if a special session were to be held, it should be only for the purpose of constitutional amendments.

The President also discussed with the Council of Leaders important legislative matters, especially bills which would bolster the country's economy. The President was assured by the Congress leaders of their support to these important legislations.

Presided by the President, the conference was attended by Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Speaker Daniel Rornualdez, Senate President Pro-tempore Fernando Lopez, Senate Majority Floor Leader Cipriano Primicias, and House Majority Floor Leader Jose Aldeguer. House Speaker Protempore Constancio Castafieda could not attend the conference.

The conference was held at the President's residence in Quezon City at breakfast from 8 a.m. until noon.

PRESIDENT Garcia's campaign against graft and corruption in the government went into high gear this afternoon when he directed Lt. Cdr. Marcelino Calinawan to push vigorously his investigation of alleged anomalies in the Bureau of Customs.

Calinawan who made a progress report on his work in the Bureau of Customs reported to the President that he found the situation to be explosive. The President told Calinawan: "Let it explode."

The President officially designated Calinawan today as his investigator to clean up the Bureau of Customs. The designation followed Calinawan's acting as one of the President's personal representatives at the opening up of 92 crates of alleged personal effects brought in the country by returning travelers abroad.

The President who made a surprise visit last Monday to the Bureau of Customs was angered upon seeing for himself the personal effects brought in by returning tourists which turned out to be banned items. The President at that time ordered the confiscation of all these goods and directed that those violating the law be prosecuted vigorously and those found guilty be meted out the highest penalty.

President Garcia was informed by Calinawan that 14 out of the 92 crates stored in the Bureau of Customs' storeroom had already been opened. He said that the crates were owned by only a few persons.

Calinawan said that aside from banned items, such as dried shrimps, chocolate candies, Nescafe tin, pickled lettuce, black pepper, tea, and cigarette paper which the President had seen during his surprise visit, other items found so far were fancy jewelry, cigarettes, rayon pajamas, sotanghon, ornaments, fishing rods, reels, and ladies wear.

Calinawan also told the President that owing to anomalous practices in the Bureau of Customs the government was losing millions of pesos on account of uncollected taxes.

President Garcia told Calinawan to do his job thoroughly and to go hard against the guilty parties.

The President conferred with Calinawan this afternoon at the President's residence in Quezon City.

The President stepped out of his residence in the evening to talk about economics before Filipino insurance men on the 10th anniversary of the Surety Associations of the Philippines.

He arrived at the club about 8:42 p.m. Although the invitation was for 7:30 p.m., the President found very few people in the hall and had to wait for 45 minutes before other guests arrived and the ceremonies started.

President Garcia was introduced by Romeo Echaz, immediate past president of the association.

May 4.— PRESIDENT Garcia spent a quiet Sunday today with members of his family at his private residence on Bohol Avenue in Quezon City. He did not receive any caller the whole day.

The President woke up early this morning at his Quezon City home, where he had proceeded the night before, after attending a dinner held at the Philippine Columbian Club commemorating the 10th anniversary of the Surety Association of the Philippines in which he was guest speaker.

He had a brief stroll around his backyard and spent some time chatting with gardeners tending to the few fruit trees he had planted there and to the orchid house which Mrs. Garcia was maintaining in the premises.

About 8 a.m., the President heard Sunday mass at his living room. Also at the mass was the First Lady, Lt. Melchor Fronda, naval aide, and members of the household.

After breakfast with the First Lady, the President repaired to his study where he read the Sunday papers. He also spent some time reading state documents which he had brought along from Malacañang.

The Chief Executive had lunch at 1 p.m. with the First Lady and their children, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos, who had arrived shortly before noon to join them. Then the President went to his bedroom to rest.

In the evening, the President resumed reading some state papers.

May 5.— PRESIDENT Garcia today took up the problems of local Virginia tobacco industry with a delegation of the United Growers Association led by Dr. Rizal de Peralta.

Showing his deep interest in the industry which is the livelihood of about 2 million Ilocanos, the President discussed the disposition of low grade Virginia tobacco with the delegation.

As a temporary solution, the UGA members proposed the barter of low-grade Virginia tobacco, to be handled by the growers themselves, with essential commodities like machinery. The President said that the Cabinet had made a stand against barter.

Another solution more permanent in nature offered by the delegation was the amendment of Republic Act 1194 by eliminating the price support for sun-dried stock.

The UGA delegation told President Garcia that low-grade Virginia tobacco which amounts to about 45 per cent of the annual production, is hard to eliminate but added that efforts were being exerted by the planters themselves to minimize its production.

President Garcia said that if price support for low-grade Virginia tobacco cannot be eliminated, the local Virginia tobacco industry will suffer in two or three years, as the ACCFA by then would have no funds available even for the purchase of high-grade Virginia tobacco.

The President also received a delegation of health officers, led by Health Undersecretary Tranquilino Elicaño; Dr. Marcos Corpus, president of the Health Officers Association; and Dr. Jose Reyes, president of the League of Hospital Directors.

The callers are holding their annual convention in Manila. They reiterated their pledge of support to the President.

Ralph Boyd, representing a group of foreign investors, also called on President Garcia to submit a proposal to finance the fishing industry. He also said that his group is interested in setting up a canning factory for the industry as well as a rayon factory.

The group will accept payment for supplies to be extended to fishing operators not in dollars but in products like canned fish.

Other presidential callers were Secretary Alejandro Almendras of the Department of General Services; C. V. Starr and William S. Youngman, board chairman and president, respectively, of the C. V. Starr and Co., Earl Carroll and Leonides Virata of the Philippine-American Insurance Co.; Gov. Leon Fernandez of Sulu; ex-Rep. Carmen D. Consing; and Mayor Justiniano Borja of Cagayan de Oro City.

Bothered by the low government revenues collections, the President called the members of his Cabinet to a special meeting this afternoon and drafted a measure for immediate congressional action seeking to reorganize the Bureaus of Internal Revenue and Customs.

After listening to the President's report, the Cabinet immediately approved a measure seeking the reorganization of these two government offices and classifying the top positions in these agencies as "confidential in nature."

Under the plan, the top officials may be removed at any time even without cause.

After his Cabinet meeting which adjourned at 8 p.m.; the President retired to his private residence in Quezon City, where he stayed for the night.

May 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia today expressed the need for congressional approval of a bill he had certified as urgent which seeks to cloak the President with the authority to order the removal of all illegally constructed dikes or dams across any river or stream.

The President made this move in order to solve the problem in the provinces of Pampanga, Bulacan, and Iloilo where rich landowners reportedly closed rivers and converted them into their own fishponds.

The matter was taken up at a conference President Garcia had with Rep. Ricardo Y. Ladrado of Iloilo and Dr. Leodegario Bedia.

The President was informed that certain Marta Espinosa had allegedly constructed a dam on the Darajogan River in Barotoc Nuevo, Iloilo, for fishpond purposes to the prejudice of the residents of six barrios

Rep. Ladrado called the attention of President Garcia to the fact that there is a government project to construct a port in Guintas not far from the site of the dam with an appropriation of ₱100,000. He added that the dam has impeded navigation upstream.

Upon the petition of Rep. Leonardo Perez of Nueva Vizcaya and confirmed by Mariano Almeda, assistant to the NBI director, the President directed that all insular prisoners who bolted last April 21 from the provincial jail of Nueva Vizcaya be returned to Muntinlupa.

The insular prisoners were transferred to the provincial jail for trial which was later postponed until August in view of their escape.

Sen. Domocao Alonto and Hadji Ibrahim Ali asked the help of President Garcia in the matter of dollar requirements of more than 2,000 Moslem pilgrims who are going to Mecca within two months. President Garcia told Sen. Alonto that the matter would be taken up at the Cabinet meeting tomorrow.

Cebu Gov. Jose Briones appealed to President Garcia for relief for the inhabitants of seven towns of Cebu who are suffering from hunger.

President Garcia immediately directed SWA Administrator Amparo Villamor to dispatch ₱5,000 worth of relief goods to Cebu and coordinate relief work with Gov. Briones.

Other callers were Reps. Luciano Millan of Pangasinan, Faustino Tobia and Godofredo Reyes of Ilocos Sur, Luis Hora of Mountain Province, Benjamin T. Ligot of Cagayan, Canuto Enerio of Zamboanga del Sur, Francisco Ortega of La Union, Wenceslao Lagumbay of Laguna, Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan, Jose Legaspi of Aklan, Felipe Abrigo of Samar, Isidro Kintanar of Cebu, Emilio Cortez of Pampanga, Pedro Trono of Iloilo, and Gov. Isidro Rodriguez of Rizal.

THE President this day took steps to prevent jailbreaks throughout the country. In several directives wired through Assistant Executive Secretary Sofronio C. Quimson, the President:

- (1) Placed the provincial jail of Nueva Vizcaya under Constabulary control;
- (2) Approved the holding of a ten-day in-service training among all provincial and city jail wardens beginning May 12, to be held at the New Bilibid Prisons in Muntinlupa, Rizal, under the auspices of the director of prisons;
- (3) Directed the forming of a committee in each province and city composed of provincial board members or city councilors and the provincial commander to conduct on-the-spot investigation in all provincial and city jails and to submit a report within two days upon receipt of the directive; and

(4) Inquired from the provincial governor of Nueva Vizcaya about what action had been taken against the provincial warden and/or provincial guards found negligent in connection with the recent jailbreak in the provincial jail of that province.

The President approved the holding of the ten days⁵ in-service training among all provincial and city wardens “in the interest of effective administration of provincial and city jails.” During the duration of the training, the President directed the provincial governors and city mayors that if necessary the provincial commanders should be asked to detail PC officers to supervise the provincial and city jails in the absence of the provincial and city wardens.

In directing the forming of the committee to look into the conditions of the provincial or the city jail, the President specified that the on-the-spot investigation should be centered on the problems confronting the administration of the jails, particularly on the accommodation or living space of prisoners, the necessity of training the jail wardens and guards, the maintenance and subsistence of prisoners, the work and recreation of the prisoners, and other aspects.

The President informed the provincial governors and city mayors that the secretary of justice requested the judges of courts of first instance and municipal judges to cooperate with the committees in their respective provinces and cities.

The directives to the provincial governors and city mayors were contained in circular telegrams sent by Secretary Quimson. The secretary of justice, the secretary of national defense, the chief of the PC, and the director of prisons were accordingly informed of the action taken by the President in separate communications.

Reports and recommendations of the provincial and city committees will be submitted to the secretary of justice who will furnish the President with a copy. The President told the provincial governors and city mayors that the provincial board or the city council should implement immediately such recommendations of the committee as may be done without assistance or approval of national authorities.

President Garcia today directed Philippine National Bank President Arsenio Jison to look into the possibility of granting buildings loans to the victims of the recent fire in Cotabato, Cotabato.

The request for the building loans was made by the civic leaders and citizens of the fire-gutted town through Sergio F. Toca, Malacañang technical assistant on Mindanao and Sulu Affairs.

After receiving the President’s directive, PNB President Jison said that he would immediately send a special representative to Cotabato to assist the PNB branch manager there in appraising the loans needed by the fire victims.

The President this day declared May 7 as a special public holiday in Morong, Rizal, in order to afford the citizens of that municipality an opportunity to commemorate the birthday anniversary of the World War I hero, Tomas Claudio, a native of Morong.

THE President created today a national committee to take charge of the Twelfth Anniversary celebration of the Republic of the Philippines on July 4, 1958. The 26-member committee will formulate plans and devise ways and means for the appropriate celebration of the Twelfth Anniversary of Philippine independence.

With Education Secretary Manuel Lim as chairman and Dr. Manuel Gallego as vice-chairman, the members of the committee include RFC Chairman Eduardo Z. Romualdez, Defense Secretary Jesus Vargas, Labor Secretary Angel Castano, Health Secretary Paulino Garcia, OEC Administrator Juan Concon, National Integration Commissioner Madki Alonto, Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, the Chairman of the League of Provincial Governors and City Mayors, the Chairman of the League of Provincial Board Members, CB Deputy Governor Andres V. Castillo, PNB President Arsenio J. Jison, the President of the University of the Philippines, the President of the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines, the President of the Philippine Chamber of Industries, the President of the Philippine Chamber of Agriculture and Natural Resources, the President of the Bankers Association of the Philippines, the Administrator of the ACCFA, the President of the Manila Rotary Club, the President of the Manila Junior Chamber of Commerce, the President of the National Press Club, the President of the Civic Assembly of Women of the Philippines, the Secretary General of the Philippine Association, and Aguinaldo C. Maaba, who will also acts as secretary of the committee.

IN the evening the President met the Committee on Sulu affairs headed by Capt. Francisco H. Calinawan, Malacañang performance officer, and gave his final instructions prior to the committee's departure for Sulu.

Inspired by laudatory public reaction to the "new deal" he has launched recently for the upliftment of Sulu, the President reiterated his "desire to solve the Sulu problem once and for all for the benefit of our Muslim brethren in the South." The President recalled that there had been many attempts in the past to solve this perennial problems. "The present Committee can learn a lot from these attempts—to avoid their mistakes and improve on those methods that produced some results," he said.

The Chief Executive said that the national government in Manila is "a father trying to help her children in Sulu so that they, too, may love our common Motherland, the Philippines."

The President warned that "we can no longer afford to fail," and urged the committee to exert its utmost effort to succeed at all costs. He assured the committee of his full support.

May 7.—PRESIDENT Garcia this noon directed Lt. Cdr. Marcelino Calinawan to turn over to government prosecutors the first cases of customs officials and employees against whom charges would be filed. The President told Calinawan to take speedy action on several pending cases in which customs men are involved. These cases have not been decided for some time now.

Calinawan conferred with President Garcia at luncheon today aboard the yacht Sta. Maria and made a progress report on his fact-finding mission on alleged anomalies in the customs bureau.

He said that he had gathered evidence and facts against several persons in the bureau which would justify the filing of criminal or administrative charges against them.

Calinawan added that the filing of the charges would be made after due consultation with Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, Justice Secretary Jesus G. Barrera, and prosecuting attorneys of the two departments.

President Garcia's "racket buster" in the Bureau of Customs said that in the course of his fact-finding work, he had discovered several violations of customs laws which had cost tremendous financial losses to the government owing to uncollected taxes. He added that he had barely scratched the surface and that he was digging deeper into several other cases.

President Garcia made another surprise inspection before noon today at the NAMARCO. The President went to the auditor's section of the strike-bound government corporation to look into the financial situation of the NAMARCO, but he found out that auditor Alfredo Liboro and his assistants were also on strike.

Irked by the absence of the NAMARCO auditor and his clerks, the President later inquired from Auditor General Pedro Gimenez why members of the GAO are allowed to stage a strike although they are regular government employees.

The President was accompanied to the NAMARCO auditor's office by Commerce Secretary Pedro Hernaez and NAMARCO Board Member German Neri.

Earlier in the morning, President Garcia conferred at his residence in Quezon City with Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., and Sen. Edmundo B. Cea. They discussed some administration bills, especially those on economic development in which there was some disagreement in the Senate. They also took up some presidential nominations which were under question.

From his residence the President, accompanied by Mrs. Garcia, Press Secretary Guillermo V. Sison, and Maj. Jose Estrelia, aide, motored to St. Ignatius chapel in Camp Murphy, where he visited the body of the late Brig. Gen. Climaco Pintoy.

Earlier in the day the President and Mrs. Garcia had sent a wreath and a telegram of condolence.

The President and the First Lady were met at the chapel by Defense Undersecretary Mariano Yencko, Jr. The President and Mrs. Garcia condoled with Mrs. Pintoy and the children of the deceased.

From the chapel, the President and the First Lady motored back to Malacañang from where the President proceeded to the NAMARCO office. After inspecting the NAMARCO office, the President went to the yacht Sta. Maria where he spent the rest of the day preparing materials for the speeches which he will deliver in the United States during his state visit there.

The President cancelled all his afternoon callers today, including those scheduled for tomorrow in order that he can work on his speeches.

May 8.— TODAY the President spent most of his time on the presidential yacht Sta. Maria working on speeches that he will deliver in the United States during his state visit in that country in June.

Earlier in the morning, the Chief Executive received U. S. Air Force Secretary James H. Douglas, who paid a courtesy call following his arrival in the country yesterday afternoon in the course of an inspection trip of air force installations in the Far East.

Secretary Douglas was accompanied to Malacañang by U. S. Ambassador Charles Bohlen; Lewis Thompson, deputy secretary for military assistance program; Gen. Lawrence Kuter, commander-in-chief of U. S. Air Force in the Pacific; and Maj. Gen. Thomas Moorman, commanding general of the 13th Air Force.

The President also received Admiral Gerald Gladstone, British Navy commander-in-chief in the Far East, who paid a courtesy call a few minutes after his flagship Alert anchored at Manila from Singapore.

Admiral Gladstone was accompanied to Malacañang by British Ambassador George Glutton and Lt. George Drake, aide.

Thai Ambassador and Madame Chitti Sucharitakul also called on the President to bade farewell prior to their departure for Bangkok. Sucharitakul will assume a new post at the SEATO secretariat in Bangkok.

THIS afternoon the President administered the oaths of office to Gov. Alejandro Almendras of Davao as Secretary of General Services and Madki Alonto as Commissioner of Integration.

Present at the ceremonies was a large delegation composed of Mindanao political leaders, including Sens. Emmanuel Pelaez, Reseller Lim, and Domocao Alonto; Reps Sergio Osmeña, Jr., of Cebu, Gavino Sepulveda of Davao Salipada Pendatun of Cotabato, William Chiongbian of Misamis Occidental, Fausto Dugenio of Misamis Oriental, Laurentino Badiiles of Lanao, Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan, Reynaldo Honrado of Surigao, Alberto Ubay of Zamboanga del Norte, and Conrado Enerio of Zamboanga del Sur.

The ceremonies were held at the Philippine Navy Officers Clubhouse on Dewey Boulevard at 4 p.m. today.

The induction was originally scheduled to be held on board the RPS Sta. Maria anchored at the Navy yacht basin on where the President had been staying since yesterday drafting some of the speeches he expected to deliver during his forthcoming state visit to the United States. However, owing to the big crowd which attended the ceremonies, the President decided to hold the induction at the Navy Officers Clubhouse nearby.

Almendras has been provincial governor of Davao for seven years before his appointment as head of the newly-created Department of General Services,

May 9.—IN the absence of President Garcia who spent this morning going over his speeches for his state visit to the United States, the First Lady and Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo received a delegation of the Philippine War Widows Association led by Mrs. Victoria de Jesus.

The war widows requested a share in the reparations goods earmarked for World War II veterans and informed Mrs. Garcia and Secretary Pajo that for this purpose they had organized the Great Pacific Traders Co., Inc.

Secretary Pajo informed the war widows to present a memorandum to the Cabinet for consideration.

Other members of the delegation were Mrs. Vicenta Domaoal, Mrs. Pacita Ramirez, Mrs. Anita de Jesus, Mrs. Filomena Alvarez, and Mrs. Minerva Kierulf.

Other callers received by Secretary Pajo were Tom Bavin, an American union leader, and Carlos P. Ramos, who explained the purpose of the Regional Conference on Public Administration to be held in Manila and Baguio on June 7-21.

The conference had been called by the Institute of Public Administration of the University of the Philippines to exchange information and experiences of government administrators in Asia in order to find the solution to mutual problems and help hasten and assure the success of government efforts in the economic and social development of the area.

The Executive Secretary also received a delegation of the Cattle Raisers Association led by Ricardo Ledesma, which asked for the temporary suspension of the distribution of the Australian bulls and cows acquired by the government.

Ledesma expressed the fear that the Australian cattle were infected with a highly communicable disease and that the distribution might spread the disease.

Ledesma also requested that the 200 Santa Gertrudes cattle acquired by the government from the United States be distributed to the association members who are in a better position to propagate the high breed cattle. Present plans call for distribution of the cattle to farmers.

Secretary Pajo endorsed the matter to Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez for action.

PRESIDENT Garcia today said he would not call Congress to a special session unless legislators assured him it would lead to the amendment of the Constitution for a synchronization of all elections every four years.

He made the statement at his weekly press conference this afternoon when asked to comment on a House resolution that a special session be called to discuss constitutional amendments.

The amendment would postpone the local elections scheduled next year until 1961 when both local and national officials could be chosen at the polls.

At his weekly press conference, the President also:

1. Denied having received the letter of resignation of Ambassador to Japan Felino Neri;
2. Said he has referred the plea for re-entry of Ted Lewin, an American sportsman, to the Department of Foreign Affairs and Bureau of Immigration;
3. Announced that his entourage to the United States will not include more than ten persons; and

4. Explained that he went to the office of the National Marketing Corporation to check on the books of the agency and on reports of irregularities in the NAMARCO.

The President indicated that Neri's resignation would be one of the matters he would take up with. Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano today.

The President also refused to comment on the House-approved measure converting Tagaytay City into a gambling casino. He said he was reserving his decision until he gets hold of the bill.

However, President Garcia said he will sign the bill which had been approved by the conference committees of both houses of Congress amending the customs and tariff code provision requiring fishing vessels to have a full crew complement before setting out to sea.

Informed that Ted Lewin, who has been allowed to re-enter the Philippines for 60 days in order to "wind up his affairs here," had sent up new business enterprises, the President said "that is up to the Department of Foreign Affairs and the immigration office to determine."

He said that Lewin was allowed to re-enter the country for "humanitarian reasons."

At the same time, the President indicated that his entourage to the United States will not exceed ten members. He said that members of his entourage will be mostly economists and technicians.

May 10.— THE President was assured this morning by Congress leaders that they would submit as soon as possible for his signature all bills which both houses of Congress would pass during the current session.

This assurance was given by the Congress leaders during a meeting of the Council of Leaders held at the President's residence in Quezon City, in view of President Garcia's departure for the United States on a state visit on June 15.

The President said that he would like to act on all bills approved by both Houses before he leaves for Washington.

The Chief Executive, with the approval of the Council of Leaders, formed a committee headed by Justice Secretary Jesus Barrera, with Judge Salvador Esguerra and Professor Enrique Fernando, as members, to study the constitutionality of the section of the administration bill requiring certain positions in the Bureau of Customs and Internal Revenue to be classified as primarily confidential and highly technical in nature.

This provision of the bill if approved will enable the appointing power to remove from office, subject to presidential approval, all officials and employees referred to in the bill, upon loss of confidence. This provision has been embodied in the bill as a means of enabling the Administration to help stamp out graft and corruption. It is believed that this provision will also help increase tremendously the revenue collections of the government.

The Council of Leaders reiterated their determination to pass the economic measures submitted by Malacañang to Congress.

The conferees also agreed on the appointment of former Rep. Serafin Salvador as undersecretary of the Department of General Services.

The President conferred with the Council of Leaders during the breakfast which lasted up to noon time. Those present were Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, Senate Majority Floor Leader Cipriano Primicias, Speaker Protempore Constancio Castaheda, and House Majority Floor Leader Jose Aldeguer. Senate President Protempore Fernando Lopez could not attend the conference.

President Garcia said today that he was considering the acceptance of Ambassador Felino Neri's resignation.

The Philippine ambassador to Japan had submitted his resignation to Secretary Serrano a few day ago. Neri said that he was resigning owing to personal reasons. It was understood he would join a private business concern.

Serrano formally transmitted Neri's resignation to the President this morning. This was one of the matters discussed by Serrano with the President before the conference of the Council of Leaders with the Chief Executive.

PRESIDENT Garcia this afternoon received judges and prosecutors who marched to his private residence in Quezon City to pay their respects to the Chief Executive before returning to the provinces.

The judges and prosecutors came to Manila early this week to attend a three-day conference.

President Garcia congratulated the judges and prosecutors for their "splendid work" in the conference.

The delegation was headed by Justice Secretary Jesus G. Barrera and Chief Prosecutor Baldomero Villamor.

After receiving the judges and prosecutors, the President conferred with Lt. Cdr. Marcelino Calinawan, Malacañang racket buster, who heads a team investigating corruption in the Bureau of Customs.

Also present at the conference was Secretary Barrera, whom the President directed to assign prosecutors to assist Calinawan, a Navy man, in the evaluation of the evidence.

With Calinawan were members of his team, S. P. Fausto of the National Bureau of Investigation, Major Zoilo Estrella of the Constabulary, and Capt. Jose Diosimito of the National Intelligence Coordinating Agency.

May 11.— PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia today led the traditional pilgrimage to Antipolo, Rizal, and paid homage to the Holy Patron of Peace and Good Voyage.

Like almost every Catholic who holds yearly visits to the miraculous Virgin, the President and the First Lady heard mass at the town's church and later visited the famed Hinulugang Taktak, which the President called the summer resort of the common man.

Accompanied by Sen. Lorenzo Sumulong and Antipolo Mayor Isaias Tapales, the President and the First Lady stayed at one of the improvised rest booths overlooking the falls where thousands of men, women, and children, after hearing mass, converge for a little swimming, boating, and picnicking, waiting for the summer heat to subside before starting the trip back home in the cooler hours of the afternoon.

The President noted that the facilities of Antipolo's public recreation center were not adequate to serve the needs of the faithful who visit the place in large numbers every year. He said that the resort should be further expanded and improved to serve better the common people who could not afford to pay the required fees in private resthouses set up around the town during summer.

Fetches by Sen. Sumulong, President and Mrs. Garcia arrived in Antipolo about 10 a.m. after a half-hour car ride from their Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City, Mrs. Garcia wore a red and white Balintawak dress.

They proceeded direct to the town church where, along with hundreds of other people, they heard mass. After the mass, Mrs. Garcia presented Mons. Fernandez, Antipolo parish priest, with a cash contribution for the reconstruction of the church which had been destroyed during the war.

On learning from Mayor Tapales that thousands of people were expecting them at the Hinulugang Taktak, the President and the First Lady visited the famed resort where they stayed about 20 minutes talking with a large group of cheering people which flocked around them.

The presidential party had lunch at the Antipolo farm of Sen. Sumulong. Other guests at the farm included senators, representatives, members of the diplomatic corps, and other high government officials.
